

HISTORY OF ALABAMA AND DICTIONARY OF ALABAMA BIOGRAPHY

BY THOMAS McADORY OWEN, LL.D.
Lawyer, Founder and Director Alabama State Department of Archives and History, and author of numerous historical and bibliographical publications

IN FOUR VOLUMES

VOLUME III

CHICAGO
THE S. J. CLARKE PUBLISHING COMPANY
1921

7129
97
OWEN
V. 2
CO. 1
[LEFT IN VAULT]

History lives in the men who make it, and the individuals are thus the first study, not only as they appear in public, but much more as they are in private and when taken unawares.

John Esten Cooke, in his "History of Virginia," p. 319.

Copyright, 1921,
BY MARIE BANKHEAD OWEN

Library

Dedicated

TO MY FATHER

William Marmaduke Owen, Physician

and

TO MY FATHER-IN-LAW

John Hollis Bankhead,
Statesman

Unfailing and sympathetic friends in all my efforts

PREFACE TO BIOGRAPHICAL VOLUMES

Feeling that the memory of the worthy men and women who have built the State of Alabama should be preserved for the inspiration of posterity, the author of this book—with great pains, and through a long period of years—assembled the data that is presented in these biographical volumes. As may be expected in a work of this character, some errors may have crept in and omissions been made. These faults should not be attributed to carelessness or to failure in earnest effort on the part of the author, for he was conscientious in verifying all claims, dates, and statements as far as his ability to do so permitted. The fault in many cases justly belongs to others. After repeated efforts to get the proper data from descendants of the men and women who had distinguished themselves in the annals of Alabama, Dr. Owen often failed. This failure was due in some cases to procrastination in those appealed to, in others to their indifference, and in still others to a lack of records. On the other hand, hundreds coöperated with the author with the greatest enthusiasm, supplying data and answering questions fully and promptly, and to these thanks are due and acknowledgment here made.

In a few cases, supplementary facts or corrections of former data came too late to be used. I desire also to explain that material for the preparation of a few sketches was assembled too late to admit of the subjects being placed in their proper alphabetical order. These sketches therefore appear in an Addenda.

It will be noted that all biographical sketches included in this work are stripped of any attempt at eulogy.

This "History of Alabama and Dictionary of Alabama Biography" is issued to a limited number of advance subscribers only. If, in the future, there is sufficient demand for a second edition, it will be highly desirable to correct at that time all errors occurring here. For that reason, I respectfully urge all persons who detect such errors kindly to call my attention to them.

It is a great loss that Dr. Owen was not permitted to live to put the last touches to the manuscript, and to bring to the task of proof reading that scholarship and acumen that characterized all his finished work.

If any discrepancies in style appear, I beg indulgence. And I invoke from the good people of Alabama charity of judgment toward my efforts to complete this work,—since they, as well as I, must know that none but the author himself could have made of it the masterpiece of his dreams.

MARIE BANKHEAD OWEN

Dictionary of Alabama Biography

A

ABERCROMBIE, ANDERSON, planter, was born and reared in Hancock County, Ga., and died in 1867; son of Maj. Charles and Dicey Edwina (Boothe) Abercrombie (q. v.) and brother of James Abercrombie (q. v.). He was an extensive planter and slave owner. He enlisted as a private in the War of 1812, rose to the rank of adjutant-general, and was wounded at the battle of Calebee. The Indians were his friends on account of his kindness to them, and when hostilities broke out between the settlers and Indians, the Abercrombie home was not molested. He represented Hancock County, Ala., 1826 and 1827, in the house. Early in the thirties he removed to Russell County, Ala., and settled on a large plantation. He was a Presbyterian; and a Democrat. Married: in 1818, at Sparta, Greene County, Ga., to Sidney, daughter of John Grimes, of that place. Children: 1. Elizabeth, m. Nicholas Howard; 2. John Grimes, m. Tabitha Crowell; 3. Charles Thomas, m. Virginia Gordon; 4. Sara, m. her cousin, James Abercrombie, of Pensacola, Fla.; 5. James Jackson, m. Eliza Parthenia Ross (q. v.); 6. Everard H., m. Pauline Lewis; 7. Josephine, m. Edwin Belser; 8. Louisa, m. John R. Berry; 9. Robert S.; 10. Mary F., m. Gen. S. G. French, of the C. S. Army; 11. Florida, m. (1) S. M. Wellborn, (2) Gov. James M. Smith, of Georgia; 12. Wiley W., m. Nettie Spear.

ABERCROMBIE, CHARLES, soldier of the American Revolution, an early settler of Hancock County, Ga., was born about 1742 and died in 1819; son of Robert Abercrombie of Scotland who emigrated to America and settled in Hancock County, Ga. He was an officer in the Revolutionary war and is said to have been "a gentleman of great wealth and influence and held the rank of major in the patriot army during the Revolutionary war. He was patriotic in every sense of the word and while the eventful struggle was in progress erected a large fort which was designed as a protection and free use for friends and neighbors." Married: to Dicey Edwina Boothe. Children: 1. John, m. Miss Martin; 2. Abner; 3. Edmund; 4. Leonard, m. Sallie Comer; 5. Gen. Anderson, (q. v.) m. Sidney Grimes; 6. Charles, m. Mrs. Elizabeth (Grimes) Martin; 7. James (q. v.), m. Evalina Elizabeth Ross; 8. Jane, m. Bolling Hall (q. v.); 9. Nancy, m. Barnes, of North Carolina; 10. Sarah, m. Raines.

ABERCROMBIE, CHARLES GORDON, business man, was born in Russell County, June 14, 1855, and died in Montgomery, June 23, 1917; son of Dr. Charles Thomas and Virginia (Gordon) Abercrombie of Russell County; grandson of Gen. Anderson and Sidney (Grimes) Abercrombie (q. v.) and of Charles P. and Barbara (Galbraith) Gordon, the former of Georgia and the latter from Pennsylvania. He attended the Russell County schools but was unable to attend college on account of the death of his father. He at one time was president of the Montgomery chamber of commerce and a member of "Independent rifles" and the "Mounted rifles" 1883-95; was a Democrat; an Episcopalian; Knight of Pythias; and a Red Man. Married: (1) January 12, 1887, at Columbus, Ga., to Fannie, daughter of Henry Herman and Isabella Epping, of that place; (2) November 1896, to Kate, daughter of William D. Westcott, of Montgomery; (3) in 1903, to Mrs. Mary (Sadler) Grigg, daughter of Claudius Earle and Helena (Frazier) Sadler, of Montgomery. Children by the first wife: 1. Isabella, deceased; 2. Fannie Virginia, m. Gustav Fletcher of Philadelphia; by the second wife, 3. Charles Gordon jr. Last residence: Montgomery.

ABERCROMBIE, JAMES, State legislator and representative in congress, was born in 1795, in Hancock County, Ga., and died in Pensacola, Fla., July 2, 1861; son of Major Charles and Dicey Edwina (Boothe) Abercrombie, (q. v.) and brother of Anderson Abercrombie (q. v.). He received a splendid education and came to Alabama about 1812, settling in Monroe, now Dallas County, and removing to Montgomery County about the time that Alabama was admitted to the Union. He represented that county in the house, 1820-1822, and 1824, and in the senate, 1825, 1828 and 1831. In 1834 he moved to Russell County and represented the county in the house, 1838 and 1839, and in the senate in 1847. He was elected, 1851, to congress in opposition to Hon. John Cochran of Barbour County, and reelected two years later, defeating David Clopton of Macon. He retired in 1859 and spent part of his time in Florida, where he engaged in government contracts for brick. He died in Pensacola, Fla., and was buried in Columbus, Ga. In politics he was a Whig and was at all times a leader in the party. Married: July 27, 1816, in Montgomery County, to Evelina Elizabeth, daughter of Isaac I. and Parthenia Anne (Browne) Ross (q. v.). Children: 1. James, m. his cousin, Sarah Abercrombie, of Pensacola, Fla.; 2. John Lucas, m. America Watson; 3. Thomas Anderson, m. Mollie Gobert, of Pensacola, Fla.; 4.

George Hargraves, deceased; 5. Evelina Elizabeth, m. William C. Wright (q. v.); 6. Sarah Edwina, m. Gazaway D. Williams, of Barbour County; 7. Jane, m. Dr. John E. Bacon, of Columbus, Ga.; 8. Parthenia, m. Gen. James H. Clanton (q. v.), of Montgomery; 9. Clara, m. William C. Cook, of Pensacola; 10. Mary, m. L. R. Davis, of Limestone County. Last residence: Pensacola, Fla.

ABERCROMBIE, JAMES JACKSON, lawyer and judge, was born August 28, 1825, near Sparta, Hancock County, Ga., and died at Opelika, May 18, 1901; son of Anderson and Sidney (Grimes) Abercrombie (q. v.). At an early age, he removed to Russell County; attended the country schools, and at La Grange, Ga.; graduated from Emory college and from the law department of Harvard university. He opened an office at Columbus, Ga.; served for four years as judge of the superior court of Muscogee district; enlisted, 1862, as a private in a company of minute men Ross' battalion, Co. G., and was advanced for meritorious conduct to the rank of major. After the war, he took up his residence at Opelika and continued the practice of law there until his death. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: April 23, 1856, at Tallassee, to Parthenia Eliza, daughter of Isaac II and Narcissa Whitfield (Sledge) Ross (q. v.) Children: 1. James Anderson, deceased; 2. Ross, deceased; 3. John Chappell, m. Mrs. Dora (Thornton) Jefferson, of Meridian, Miss.; 4. Wiley, unmarried. Last residence: Opelika.

ABERCROMBIE, MILO BOLLING, sr., planter, was born March 1, 1806, in Hancock County, Ga., and died August 22, 1860; son of Leonard A. and Sallie (Comer) (Abercrombie); grandson of Major Charles and Dicey Edwina (Boothe) Abercrombie (q. v.). He removed to Alabama while a young man and settled at Cross Keys, Macon County, where he became a large planter and slave owner. He is buried at Montgomery. Married: (1) December 15, 1829, to Sarah Lee, daughter of Robert G. and Mary (Fisher) Hayden, of Clarke County, early settlers of that county and who started a small shoe factory about three miles south of Sugsville, 1815; granddaughter of Col. George and Catherine (Sossamon) Fisher (q. v.); (2) January 30, 1851, to Sarah G. Greenleaf. Children, by first wife: 1. Mary S.; 2. Alabama; 3. Leonard A., m. L. A. Chilton of Montgomery, lived at Huntsville, Tex.; 4. Milo Bolling, m. Miss Houston of Houston, Tex., d. at same place; 5. John Comer, m. R. A. Martin, and was a member of the 45th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, d. at Tuskegee; 6. Robert Haden (q. v.) m. Fannie R. Gary; 7. George A., a physician who practised at Snowdown, d. unmarried; 8. W. H. H.; 9. Sarah Comer, m. Dr. W. H. Crawford; 10. Amelia; 11. Annie B., m. Bolling Reid, of Tuskegee; 12. Charles A. I; 13. Charles A. II; 14. James B. I; 15. James B. II; by the second wife 16. Webster, an educator of distinction, at one time at the head of Worcester academy, Mass.; 17. Bolling; 18. Winona; 19. Tallulah. Last residence: Macon County.

ABERCROMBIE, ROBERT HADEN, colonel 45th Alabama regiment C. S. Army, was born September 11, 1837 at Cross Keys, Macon County, and died June 8, 1891, at Gadsden, and is buried in Tuskegee; son of Milo Bolling and Sarah Lee (Haden) Abercrombie (q. v.). He was graduated from the law school of Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., 1859, and immediately began the practice of his profession at Tuskegee with the firm of Williams, Graham and Mayes. He entered the C. S. Army, 1862, as captain of Co. H, 45th Alabama infantry regiment, was promoted to major after the resignation of Col. Gilchrist, appointed lieutenant colonel about December 1863, and colonel after the battle of Atlanta. After the war he returned to Tuskegee and continued to practice law under the name of Graham and Abercrombie. On removing to Gadsden, 1888, he formed a partnership with Judge J. A. Bilbro. He was a Presbyterian. Married: January 9, 1860, to Fannie R. Gary. Children: 1. William; 2. Fannie H., married Dr. D. H. Baker, of Gadsden; 3. Ann E., m. Dr. Thomas S. Jordan; 4. Robert H.; 5. Newton; 6. Thomas Gary. Last residence: Gadsden.

ABERCROMBIE, JOHN WILLIAM, lawyer, superintendent of education, president State University, and representative in Congress, was born May 17, 1866, near Kelly's Creek, St. Clair County; son of Henry Monroe and Sarah Anne (Kendrick) Abercrombie, the former a private in the C. S. Army; a farmer and a merchant; the grandson of Isaac and Nancy (Dowdy) Abercrombie of Arbacoochee, Randolph County, and of Andrew Jackson Kendrick. The Abercrombies, Dowdys and Kendricks have for many years been residents of St. Clair County. Dr. Abercrombie was educated in the country schools, and at Oxford college, Oxford, A. B., 1886, and graduated from the University of Alabama, LL.B., 1888. His career in educational work has been continuous since 1886: president, Ashland college, 1886-87; principal, Cleburne institute, 1888-89; president, Bowdon college, Georgia, 1890-91; superintendent public schools, Anniston, 1891-97; and president, Anniston college for young ladies, 1897-98. He served as mayor of Edwardsville, 1889-90; was a member of the State senate from Calhoun and Cleburne Counties, 1896-97, and 1898-99; was elected State superintendent of education in 1898 and served until 1902; and was president of the University of Alabama, 1902-1911. The University of Alabama conferred the degree of LL.D., 1904, and University of S. C., 1905. In 1906, under his direction, the University celebrated its 75th anniversary. In 1912 he was elected to the 63rd Congress from the State-at-large, re-elected in 1914 to the 64th Congress, and retired at the expiration of his term, March 3, 1917. He is the author of the reports and other publications of the State superintendent of education, issued during his term, and he is also the author of several addresses, booklets and documents on educational subjects. In addition to his political service in the State, he has been active in the larger field of educational effort, having served as member of Alabama text-book commission, 1903-1908; chairman Alabama commission for selection of Rhodes scholars, 1903-1911; organizer and president Alabama association of colleges, 1908-1912; member board of directors National educational association, 1900-1904, and 1909-1911; president Southern educational association, 1906-1907, and life member board directors since 1907; member National association of state universities, 1903-1911; president Southern educational council, 1912-1914; member National council of education, 1908-1912; appointed by President Wilson solicitor U. S. department of labor. In 1919 appointed State Superintendent of education by Governor Kilby. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Edwardsville, January 8, 1891, to Rosa, daughter of James Benjamin and Elizabeth (Faver) Merrill, and sister of Walter B. and Hugh Davis Merrill (q. v.). Children: 1. Myrl Elizabeth, m. Edward T. Thomas, of Baltimore, now with Du Pont powder company, stationed at Washburn, Wis.; 2. Sarah Clare, m. Charles H. Barnwell, jr., captain in the U. S. Army; 3. Ruth, m. J. C. Bondurant, of Jacksonville; 4. Rose. Residence: Anniston.

ABERNATHY, MILES WASHINGTON, planter and public official, was born July 21, 1801, at Mountain Creek, Lincoln County, N. C., and died July 22, 1877, at Jacksonville; son of John D. and Susan (Forney) Abernathy, a native of Virginia, but later resident of Mountain Creek, where he owned iron works and plantation lands; grandson of David and Nancy (Turner) Abernathy of Virginia, and of Jacob and Maria (Bergner) Forney of Mount Welcome, Beattie's Ford, N. C. He was well educated in the schools of his native county. His abilities were early recognized, and he was sent as a representative from Lincoln County, to the North Carolina legislature where he served two terms. He was then made county judge, and held that office until his removal to Alabama in 1837. He bought a plantation in Benton, now Calhoun County, and settled his slaves upon it, and also formed a partnership in the mercantile business with his brother-in-law, Col. John D. Hoke. In 1842 he was elected to the house of representatives of Alabama, and served for two terms. In 1855 he was elected to the senate, where he remained four years. It was because of his admiration for John C. Calhoun, to whose political opinions he subscribed, that he caused the name of the county to be changed from Benton to Calhoun. The monument to his legislative service however, is the State school for the deaf and dumb, located at Talladega, which under his leadership was established in 1857-58. He was one of a committee of three appointed by the legislature in 1847 to receive the new capitol building at Montgomery. At the outbreak of the War of Secession he tendered his service to the Confederate cause; was appointed major, and his home was turned into a receiving hospital for sick soldiers. He was a Lutheran, and Democrat. Married: June 18, 1835, in Lincolnton, N. C., to Ann, daughter of Daniel and Barbara (Ramseur) Hoke of that place; granddaughter of Jacob A. and Sabina (Swope) Ramséur whose parents emigrated from Alsace on the Rhine, settling first in Pennsylvania and later in North Carolina. Children: 1. Fannie E., m. T. W. Francis, Jacksonville; 2. Anna M., m. D. P. Loretz, Jacksonville; 3. Mary A., m. H. L. Stevenson, Jacksonville; 4. Macon, student University of Alabama, 1859, private in Co. G, 10th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, mortally wounded at Frazier's Farm, Va., June 30, 1862, d. at Richmond July 1, 1862; 5. Julia Swope, m. J. D. Smith. Last residence: Jacksonville.

ABERNATHY, NATHAN HUBERT, Methodist minister, was born September 29, 1882, at Lafayette; son of John Thomas and Dorthula Nelson (Cole) Abernathy, who lived at Buffalo, Chambers County; grandson of James W. T. and Joana Abernathy, and of Davis Lawson and Nancy (Rosenberry) Cole, all of Buffalo. He was educated in the rural schools of Chambers County, and spent one year at Southern university, Greensboro, and three years at Birmingham college. In 1911 he entered the North Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, and has since that date filled stations in north Alabama. Married: December 18, 1912, at Birmingham to Sarah Haskell, daughter of William Weaver and Leila (Hamlet) Betts, of that place; granddaughter of Albert Boardman Hamlet, who served as a sergeant in the Sixth Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army. Children: 1. Nathan Hoyt; 2. William Hubert. Residence: Dora.

ABERNATHY, ROBERT TOWNS, physician, was born November 22, 1824, in Lawrence County; son of John I. and Sarah (Ellett) Abernathy, both Virginians, the former a farmer and merchant, at Lunenburg Court House, Va., about 1806, removed to South Florence, and later to Tuscumbia, before the Mexican War; grandson of David Abernathy, of Scotch-Irish extraction, an early settler in Virginia, who served in the Revolutionary War, and who was one of the pioneers of Huntsville. Dr. Abernathy was reared on a farm; received his academic education at La Grange college; graduated in March, 1849, from the Medical department of the University of New York; located at New Orleans; removed to Macon, Miss., and in 1851 located at Tuscumbia. He was, for sometime prior to the war, and while in the active practice of medicine, editor of the "Tuscumbia Constitution." After the evacuation of Corinth, he enlisted as surgeon in the 5th Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army, with which he remained until the surrender of his regiment at Pond Springs. After the war he resumed the practice of his profession, and engaged in farming. He was a Presbyterian. Married: March 12, 1856, to Caledonia, daughter of George W. and Lucy H. Carrol. Children: 1. Lucy; 2. Willie; 3. Tracy; 4. George C., civil engineer; 5. St. Elmo. Last residence: Tuscumbia.

ABERNATHY, THOMAS SMITH, Methodist minister, was born March 26, 1803, in Brunswick County, Va., and died April 13, 1882, in Dayton; son of Henry and Rebecca (Firth) Abernathy, of Brunswick and Dinwiddie Counties, respectively; grandson of John Abernathy, a native of Scotland who emigrated to Virginia. Thomas Smith Abernathy, was one of five preachers to organize the First Methodist Conference in Alabama. He entered the ministry in 1872 and rendered great service to religion and to civilization during the pioneer period of the State. He was a Mason. Last residence: Dayton.

ABERNETHY, B. G., physician, was born April 13, 1844, in Marengo County; son of Rev. Thomas Smith and Ellen Abernethy, natives of Tennessee and Alabama, respectively. He was prepared for college but at the outbreak of the War of Secession, although but sixteen years of age, he volunteered and entered the C. S. Army, serving as a private until six months previous to the close, when he was appointed brigade assistant quartermaster, a position he held until the surrender. Returning home he taught school, later was a cotton buyer, and drug clerk. He began to read medicine, privately, becoming so well grounded in the principles that he began to practice the profession in Hale County. He took a medical course at the Southern university, Greensboro, later entered the College of physicians and surgeons, Baltimore, Md., from which he graduated in 1880. He located in Birmingham and in association with his brother, Dr. J. C. Abernethy (q. v.), continued the practice. Married: November 7, 1867, to Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John Cocke, of Hale County. Children: 1. Benjamin C.; 2. Thomas S.; 3. May J.; 4. John C. Residence: Birmingham.

ABERNETHY, HEUSTIS BARNETT, judge, was born December 11, 1872, at Yellow Bluff, Wilcox County; son of Dr. Jones C. and Caroline O. (Mobley) Abernethy; grandson on the paternal side of an Abernethy who was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, went from the Tennessee Conference to Alabama in 1823, preached to the Indians in Mississippi and Alabama, was the last surviving member of the original Methodist Conference organized at Tuscaloosa, and a planter, and of Col. Barnett H. Mobley, who was a colonel in the U. S. Army during the Indian war in Florida previous to the Civil war; great-grandson of Henry Abernethy who was a native of Dundee, Scotland, came to America and settled in Virginia, later removing to Pulaski, Tennessee of which town he was official for several years; great-great-grandson of John Abernethy who was also a native of Dundee, Scotland and came to America at the time his son Henry came to Brunswick, Virginia, and was a slave holding landowner. All connections of the Abernethy family since their coming to America have been representatives of the Methodist church, and its men have been professional, engaging in the practice of medicine, law, or entering the service of the ministry. Dr. Jones C. Abernethy, the father of the subject of the sketch, was born September 6, 1835, in old Spring Hill, Marengo County; was graduated M. D. from the University of Louisiana, now Tulane, in 1860; served in the Civil war; was elected surgeon of the Thirty-second Alabama regiment in 1862; was transferred to the Forty-third Georgia regiment, and was with this latter command at the time of Johnston's surrender at Greensboro, North Carolina; fought in every engagement of the army of Tennessee from Murfreesboro to end of war; practiced medicine in Birmingham from 1883-1915; was president of the Jefferson County Medical Association; commander of Camp Hardee of which he was one of the founders; elected president of the Association of Confederate Surgeons; married Caroline O. Mobley of Wilcox County in 1859; children: 1. Jones C., who is interested in and operating oil wells at or near Dallas, Texas; 2. H. B., the subject of this sketch; 3. Mrs. Marie A. Northington, who is the wife of Charles Northington of Tuscaloosa; 4. Tom S., operator and owner of oil wells in Kentucky; 5. Mrs. Ellen L. Parks, wife of Henry Parks, a merchant of Sylvestre, Georgia; 6. William H., who is now superintendent of the electric plant owned and operated by the city of Birmingham; d. in March, 1915.

Heustis Barnett Abernethy was educated in the public schools of Birmingham from which high school he was graduated in 1886; attended college at Auburn for two terms, 1887-1888, and then took a year's course at Howard college, Birmingham; ran a truck farm near Birmingham for two years; studied law in the office of William J. Cahalan and R. L. Thornton, attorneys-at-law, in Birmingham; was admitted to practice in 1894, and continued in this profession until 1900; then elected justice of the peace, which office he held until 1903 or 1904; was elected judge of the inferior court of Birmingham and held that office until 1908, when he was elected as one of the judges of the Birmingham Court of Common Pleas; in 1916, was appointed one of the judges of the Municipal Court of Birmingham, which office he filled until 1919, when the legislature created the Jefferson County Court of Misdemeanors, and he was appointed judge of this court. He is a Democrat and was twice elected chairman of the City Democratic Executive Committee, of which body he was a member for a period of fourteen years, being partly responsible for the change from the aldermanic to a commission form of government in Birmingham. Judge Abernethy was instrumental in having embodied in the last constitution of Alabama a provision wherein the legislature could provide for the abolishment of justices of the peace in all cities over 1,500 inhabitants and providing for the establishment of inferior courts in lieu of justices of the peace, thereby abolishing the old fee system of paying for their services. The first of these courts in Alabama was established in 1903 in Birmingham, and the bill creating this court was drawn by Mr. Abernethy. He attempts to cure those addicted to the use of narcotics by sentencing them to work on the county farm, for from six to twelve months, contending that absolute isolation from their former companions and habits, pure air, sunshine and moderate physical exercise will and has cured many victims of the drug habit. He is a student of the negro character, and in the trial of criminal cases looks more to the equity involved than to the technical side of the question at issue. Beside his connection with the Democratic party he is a Knight Templar, Shriner, Odd Fellow, a member of the Birmingham Civic Association, of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Married: September 20, 1912, at Birmingham to Ninette E. Wood, daughter of Hernando De Soto and Corinne Pierce (Girard) Wood of Huntsville, the former who was city auditor of Birmingham for a number of years prior to his death and was a descendant of Samuel Wood of Mecklenburg, the latter who is a descendant of the Girards who were followers of Napoleon, and upon their exile, came to America, and on her mother's side she is a descendant of Simon Chaudron, who five generations removed, wrote many French books and later is mentioned as one of the substantial citizens and one of the founders of Demopolis. Residence: Birmingham.

ABERNETHY, JONES CADWALADER, physician, was born September 6, 1836, at Old Spring Hill, Marengo County, and died February 28, 1915, at Birmingham; son of Rev. Thomas Smith and Martha W. (Lucy) Abernethy. He received his elementary education in the common schools of his native county and studied medicine in Nashville, Tenn., 1856-57. In 1859 he graduated from the medical department of the University of Louisiana, and entered upon the practice at once in Marengo County. In 1861, he entered the C. S. Army as surgeon of the 32nd Alabama infantry regiment; was transferred to the 43rd Georgia infantry regiment; was at one time surgeon of Gen. H. D. Clayton's brigade and was chief surgeon of Gen. Breckenridge's division during his Mississippi campaign. He resumed the practice of medicine in his native county but in 1882 he removed to Birmingham. He was elected president of the Jefferson County medical association, and commander of Camp Hardee, United Confederate Veterans, of which he was one of the founders. He was also president of the Surgeons of the Confederacy, United Confederate Veterans. He was a Democrat; a Methodist and a Mason. Married: August 31, 1858, at Lower Peach Tree, Wilcox County, to Caroline O., daughter of Thomas Barnett and Rebecca (Campbell) Mobley of that place. Children: 1. Jones C., jr., m. Cora Elizabeth Hughes, Houston, Texas; 2. Judge Heustis Barnett, m. Ninette Eugenia Wood, Birmingham; 3. Will H., Birmingham; 4. Thomas Smith, m. Grace Dyer, Birmingham; 5. Marie Antionette, m. Charles Worthington, Tuscaloosa; 6. Ellen Laudan, m. Henry Earle Parke, Sylvester, Ga. Last residence: Birmingham.

ABERNETHY, PAUL L., Methodist minister, member North Alabama conference. Now doing Y. M. C. A. work in Anniston.

ABERNETHY, THOMAS PERKINS, teacher, was born August 25, 1890, at Collirene, Lowndes County; son of William Heinz and Annie (Rast) Abernethy, of Birmingham, the former a Confederate soldier; grandson of Rev. Thomas Smith and Eliza (Heinz) Abernethy, jr., and of William and Eliza (Clarke) Heinz; great-grandson of Thomas Smith Abernethy, a pioneer Methodist minister, one of the founders of the Alabama conference. He attended the public schools of Birmingham, graduating in 1905, after which he entered the Fourth district agricultural school, Sylacauga; had one year at Marion institute, and was a student at the College of Charleston, Charleston, S. C., 1908-12, graduating A.B., and M.A., magna cum laude, the latter year winning a number of college honors. In 1914 he entered Harvard graduate school of arts and sciences, received the M. A. degree in history, 1915, continuing his studies through 1916 for a Ph.D. degree. He taught at Marion institute, 1912-14; Woman's college of Alabama, 1916-17; Marion institute, 1919. When the United States entered the European War, he joined the army as a private in the 81st division, December 28, 1917, and was discharged as second lieutenant of infantry, December 28, 1918. Married: December 6, 1917, at Marion, Ida Erckman, daughter of Taliaferro Caldwell and Charlotte Staton (Huger) Robertson, who lived at Asheville, N. C.; granddaughter of Alexander Calvin and Thomas S. and Elizabeth (Staton) Huger of South Carolina. Residence: Marion.

ABERNETHY, T. S., Methodist minister. Residence: Birmingham.

ABERNETHY, THOMAS YOUNG, Methodist minister, was born October 13, 1851, at Spring Hill, Marengo County; son of William Henry and Susan Rebecca (Grayson) Abernethy, the former also a native of Spring Hill, a practicing physician for sixty-three years, local medical examiner for the Confederacy, on account of being a cripple was debarred from active service; grandson of Thomas Smith and Martha (Lucy) Abernethy, and of Young and Emeline (Moore) Grayson, all of Marengo County; great-grandson of Henry and Rebecca (Frith) Abernethy, who with the former's father, John Abernethy, immigrated from Scotland to Brunswick County, Va., and of William James and Susan (Williams) Grayson. He received an old field school education and read medicine prior to hearing the call to preach. He taught school for three years in Wilcox County before receiving his license with the itinerant Methodist ministry, 1873, in which he has served for forty-three consecutive years. He was for fifteen years a circuit rider, fifteen years on stations and eight in districts. He has been secretary of the Conference mission board for a number of years; is a Mason and a Democrat. Married: April 19, 1876, to Lizzie, daughter of J. Leslie and Margaret Elizabeth (Bradley) Johnson, of Johnson's Wood Yard, Monroe County; granddaughter of John and Mary Ann (Leslie) Johnson, and of John and Margaret (Munierlin) Bradley. The Johnsons and Bradleys were of Irish origin and removed from South Carolina to Alabama in 1816. Children: 1. Thomas Young; 2. Lizzie J., m. Earnest Henry Archibald, Castleberry; 3. Mysie, m. William Ray Chesser, Pensacola, Fla.; 4. Florence Almira, m. Walter Richards Bennett, Pensacola, Fla.; 5. Mary Owen, Camden; 6. William Henry, m. Lilly Belle Triggs, Spring Hill; 7. Floyd Lamar, Flomaton; 8. Rufus Gautier, Tuskegee. Residence: Greensboro.

ABNEY, THOMAS HAMILTON, planter, was born in 1795, at Edgefield, S. C., and died January 8, 1870, at Randolph, Bibb County; son of Samuel and Mary (Kennedy) Abney. The emigrant ancestor came from England and settled near Raleigh, N. C. His descendants were staunch patriots in the Revolutionary War. Thomas Abney was a private in the Indian and in the Mexican wars. He came to Alabama in 1826 and engaged in farming upon land still owned by his descendants. He was an old line Whig, and a Methodist. Married: in 1817, in Richmond, Va., Mary Anne, daughter of Thomas Gausden. Mrs. Gausden's first husband was a Capt. Holmes of the British Army. Children: 1. Mary Cecil, d. unmarried; 2. Frances, m. Newton Woodruff, of Gadsden; 3. Alexander Hamilton, m. Marinda Camp of Rockport, Tex.; 4. Aurelia, m. George Washington Trammell, of Sardis, Miss.; 5. Virginia, d. unmarried; 6. Cincinnatus, m. Mahulda Thomason, of Franklin Parish, La.; 7. Amanda, d. unmarried; 8. Henry Clay, m. Leonora —, was a Confederate soldier, d. in the service in Virginia, 1863; 9. Samuel, born September 10, 1835, attended the University of Alabama, 1855-57, teacher at Montevallo, 1858, member of Morton's Battery, Forrest's Artillery, C. S. Army, m. Martha A. Walker, April 13, 1870, resides at Randolph; 10. Zachariah (q. v.), twin brother of above m. Victoria Doster; 11. Chesterfield, who resides in Franklin Parish, La., unmarried. Last residence: Randolph.

ABNEY, ZACHARIAH, lawyer, was born September 10, 1835, near Randolph, and died August 10, 1911, at Prattville; son of Thomas Hamilton and Mary Ann (Gausden) Abney (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of his home county, and at Brierfield. In 1855-57 he attended the University of Alabama; later read law in the office of Senator John T. Morgan at Selma; and was admitted to the bar there in 1859. He enlisted as a private in Co. F, 11th Alabama infantry regiment, served in the ranks for thirteen months, and promoted lieutenant and captain. After removing to Prattville he was appointed register in chancery, a position he held from 1883 to his death, or for twenty-eight years. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: March 31, 1867, near Prattville, to Alexandria Victoria, daughter of Absalom and Sarah (Alexander) Doster, formerly of Lowndes County. Children: 1. Annie Gausden; 2. Lina Cecil, m. Walter Robinson, of Grandview; 3. Samuel Houston, Prattville; 4. Zachariah, m. Marion Frances Bowen, Prattville, the latter from Clinton, Ga. Last residence: Prattville.

ABRAHAM, WILLIAM THOMAS, physician, was born May 29, 1834, at Newman, Ga.; and died September 17, 1898, at Mobile; son of James Armistead and Sara Truly (Ward) Abrahams. The former, who was born November 12, 1804, in Virginia and moved to Livingston, Sumter County, and the latter a native of Georgia; and grandson of — and Theodosia (Armistead) Abrahams of Virginia. Both the Abrahams and the Ward families are of English descent. The Abrahams came from London to America. William Thomas Abrahams took up the study of medicine at the University of Virginia and received the degree of M. D. from that institution and from the University of New York. He began the practice of medicine in McKinley, Marengo County, in 1857 and continued in this profession until the outbreak of the War of Secession. He volunteered as a private in the Fourth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, but was soon appointed surgeon. He served in that capacity until the close of the war. After peace was declared he became a merchant broker at Mobile. He was a Democrat, and a member of the Episcopal church, and a Mason. Married: November 24, 1868, at McKinley, Annie King, daughter of Henry Nicholas and Lucretia (King) Crocheron of McKinley, granddaughter of Mary Barton Wellborn of Georgia. The Crocheron family came to America from France with the Huguenots and settled in Staten Island. The Kings were early settlers in North Carolina. Last residence: Mobile.

ACKER, ELISHA DAVID, lawyer, was born February 14, 1861, at Lincoln, Talladega County; son of Albert S. and Elizabeth (O'Rear) Acker, the former of Williamston, S. C., a member of Co. C, 30th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and as a physician assisted in brigade hospital service; grandson of Amos and Ruth (Halbert) Acker of Williamston, S. C., and of William and Dorothy (Reed) O'Rear of Lincoln, but of Irish ancestry. The paternal great-grandfather, Peter Acker, came from Germany, settling near Jersey City, and was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. The maternal grandfather, William O'Rear, assisted in removing the Creek and Cherokee Indians, and held the rank of major in that service. Mr. Acker was educated in the public schools of Talladega County; graduated at Oxford college A. B., 1882; taught at Alexandria in 1882 and 1883, and in the latter year entered the law department of the University of Alabama, where he graduated, LL. B., 1884. He practiced law and edited "The Weekly Post" at Piedmont, June, 1884, to September, 1886; later taught in various schools; was a member of the county board of examiners for teachers in Cherokee county, 1889-90; and a magistrate at Lincoln for fifteen years. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Alexandria, December 3, 1884, to Lula Mattie, daughter of Rev. Robert G. and Mary A. (Easley) Ragan, of Oxford. Rev. Mr. Ragan was a Virginian, in early life moved to Alabama, was a member of the North Alabama conference from the date of its organization as long as he lived, and a teacher in Oxford college at the time of his death. Children: 1. Mae Belle; 2. Joseph Ragan; 3. Ruth; 4. Mary Elizabeth. Residence: Lincoln.

ACKER, PAUL JEROME MORRIS, physician, graduate of the Alabama medical college, Mobile, and entered upon the practice in 1892. Residence: Mobile.

ACKER, WILLIAM P., lawyer, legislator and banker, was born August 17, 1868, at Spring Garden, Cherokee County. He received his education at the public schools of the state and Oxford college, Oxford, from which he was graduated B. A. in 1886. He taught in the public schools of Alabama 1887-89; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1889, since located at Anniston and has been actively engaged in practicing his profession; was elected to the state senate in 1918; served as chairman of the judiciary committee and committee on rules during the session of 1919; is president of the Anniston National Bank; is a director of a number of industrial incorporations; and a member of the American Bar Association and the Alabama State Bar Association. He is a Democrat; a Knight of Pythias, and has served as a member of the Grand Tribunal of the Grand Lodge of Alabama; and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. He was appointed by the North Alabama conference as a member of the joint commission of the Alabama and North Alabama conferences to unify the educational institutions of the two conferences and is a trustee of the Birmingham-Southern college, Birmingham. Married: (1) July 2, 1902, at Perdue Hill, to Miss Mary Agee, who died in 1911; (2) to Mrs. Annie S. McElreath, at Bay Saint Louis, Miss., February 7, 1917. Children: 1. William P., Jr.; 2. Marie. Residence: Anniston.

ACKLAND, SAMUEL BLACK, early pioneer. Married: Elizabeth Hunt.

ACKLAND, THEODORE, lawyer, was born September 19, 1833, at Huntsville, Madison County; and died November 18, 1870, at Huntsville; son of William and Louisa (King) Acklen (q. v.); grandson of Samuel and Elizabeth (Hunt) Acklen, and of Edmund King; great grandson of Capt. John Hunt, founder of Huntsville. He received his early education at Huntsville and was graduated from the law school of the University of Alabama, after which he practiced law in Huntsville. He continued his practice in that city until his death. He was a private in the C. S. Army; was a Democrat and a Presbyterian. Married: at Summerville, Morgan county, July 21, 1856, Harriet Morton Gooch, daughter of Allen and Elizabeth (Morton) Gooch of Murfreesboro, Tenn. She died December, 1913. Children: 1. Louisa King, m. J. D. Raglan, Huntsville; 2. Kate, m. C. H. Halsey, Huntsville; 3. Theo, m. J. W. Tyler, Huntsville. Last residence: Huntsville.

ACKLEA, JOSEPH A. S., lawyer.

ACKLEN, JOSEPH ALEXANDER SMITH, lawyer, was born July 6, 1816, at Huntsville; and died September 11, 1863, at Angola Plantation, West Feliciana Parish, La.; son of Samuel Black and Elizabeth (Hunt) Acklen; grandson of Capt. John Hunt, the founder of Huntsville. He was United States Attorney of Alabama under Presidents Van Buren, Tyler and Polk. He served with the rank of colonel in the Mexican War, 1846-1848, and was promoted for personal bravery. He built the villa of "Belmont," near Nashville, Tenn., now Belmont College, which is said to have been the finest private residence in the Southern States prior to the War of Secession. He became a cotton planter in West Feliciana Parish, La.; was owner of seven plantations on the Mississippi River, and is said to have had 1,100 slaves.

Married: May 9, 1849, at Nashville, Tenn., Adelia (Hayes) Franklin, born March 15, 1817, daughter of Rev. Oliver Bliss and Sarah Clemons (Hightower) Hayes, who lived at "Rokeby," near Nashville, Tenn., the former a descendant through his mother of the Rev. Charles Chauncey, second president of Harvard University, and a relative of the Eyre family in England, the latter maternally descended from the English family of Clements; granddaughter of Dr. Richard Hightower. Children: 1. Joseph Hayes (q. v.), lawyer, representative in congress, m. Hattie Leonora Bethell; 2. William Hayes, lawyer, b. September 6, 1855, at Belmont, Davidson County, Tenn.; educated at Neuilly, France, at Montgomery Bell Academy, Nashville, Tenn., and a graduate of the Law School of Vanderbilt University, Tenn.; author of "Sterope," "Sketches of Travel;" translator, from the French, of "Essays on Bancroft, Longfellow, Sidney Lanier," resides in Nashville, Tenn.; 3. Claude, b. July 25, 1857, educated at Norwood, Va., and at Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn.; 4. Pauline, b. October 10, 1859. Last residence: Angola Plantation, West Feliciana Parish, La.

ACKLEN, COL. JOSEPH HAYES, lawyer, representative in congress, was born May 20, 1850, Nashville, Tenn.; son of Joseph Alexander Smith and Adelia (Hayes) Acklen (q. v.); grandson of Samuel Black and Elizabeth (Hunt) Acklen, and of Oliver Bliss and Sarah Clemons (Hightower) Hayes; great grandson of Dr. Richard Hightower. He received his early schooling from private tutors, was graduated in two foreign universities, from Burlington College, and from Lebanon Law School, Tenn. He began the practice of law in 1871; was elected to the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, and Forty-eighth Congresses from Louisiana; was elected president of the Bar Association of Tennessee, 1901-1902; became general insurance counsel for Tennessee; was appointed counsel for the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad in Tennessee; became state game warden in the Department of Game, Fish and Forestry, for ten years; and was appointed chief warden of the United States, 1913. He was chairman of the Davidson County Democratic executive committee for eight years; was a member of the state executive committee; was general counsel of the National Association of Game and Fish Commissioners of United States until 1912, when he was elected president.

He is author of "Game, Fish and Forestry Laws for Tennessee" and numerous articles on ornithology, fish culture, forestry and field sports. Married: (1) July 11, 1871, at Memphis, Tenn., Hattie Leonora Bethell, died at Columbia, Tenn., June, 1873, daughter of Pinckney Charles and Harriet Bethell; (2) January 30, 1890, Jeannette Tillotson, daughter of Richard M. Tillotson of New York. Children, by first marriage: 1. d. in infancy; by second marriage: 2. Jeannette; 3. Joseph H., d.; 4. Catherine; 5. Pauline; 6. Hayes, d.; 7. Claudia, d.; 8. Richard M.; 9. Robert L. Residence: Acklen Park, Nashville, Tenn.

ACKLEN, WILLIAM, lawyer, was born December, 1802, in Tazewell, Tenn.; and died May, 1872, at Madison; son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Hunt) Acklen, the former, at one time sheriff of Claiborne County, Tenn., who was born in Virginia, and died July 25, 1826, at Madison City, settled in Madison in 1808 with his family; grandson of Capt. John Hunt, the founder of Huntsville. He was a brother of John R. H. Acklen, who died June 14, 1846, Madison City; of Sarah McGee, who died in Texas; of Palmyra J. Coleman, who died April, 1860, Madison City; of Joseph A. S. Acklen (q. v.); of John Acklen of Huntsville; and of Christopher Acklen, of Texas. They are descendants of the Acklens of Virginia, a branch of an old Devonshire family, who spelled the name, originally, "Acalen," and now spell it "Acland." The cradle of the family is Ackland—Bolton, in Devonshire, and the founder was Hugh de Accalen. It was lately represented in England by Sir Thomas Dyke A. Bart, who died in 1875. The present head of the family is Sir C. Thomas Acland.

William Acklen was graduated at Greenville College, Tenn.; read law under Ebenezer Titus in Huntsville, and was admitted to the bar in 1823. He was law partner at different times to Caswell R. Clifton, afterwards a circuit court judge in Mississippi, Joseph Acklen, and Smith D. Hale. He represented Madison in the house in 1826, and was four times returned; was elected solicitor in 1832 and held this position for twelve years; defeated Hon. William Fleming for state senator in 1853 and served four years. Married: Louisa King, daughter of Edmund King of Shelby. Children: 1. Theodore, (q. v.), lawyer, m. Harriet Morton Gooch; 2. A son, killed at Gaines' Mill. Last residence: Madison.

ACREE, WALTER UPSON, farmer and State senator, was born June 28, 1860, at Echo, Dale County; son of Thomas H. and Caroline (Dell) Acree. He was educated in the common schools of Dale County; graduated B. S., 1881, from Agricultural and mechanical college, Auburn; from 1881 to 1887 he taught school; was superintendent of education of Chilton County, 1885-87; alderman of Newton, 1890-91; elected State senator from the twenty-third district, 1900, and again in 1902. He is a Democrat, and a Methodist. Married: December 24, 1884, at Verbena, Chilton County, to Jane R. Oliver. Residence: Newton.

ACTON, JOHN, planter, lieutenant-colonel of militia, justice of the peace, and commissioner, was born August 21, 1803, on his father's plantation on Flat Creek, Buncombe County, N. C., died on his plantation on the Cahaba River, in Shelby County, and is buried in the Acton cemetery; son, and fifth child, of Capt. John and Jane (Roberts) Acton, the former a native of Virginia, who later removed to Wayne County, Ky., and in 1816 to Alabama territory, locating in Shelby, his sons having preceded him and where he and his wife, who was born on a vessel crossing the Atlantic, are both buried; grandson of Captain James and Elizabeth (Mc-Craft) Acton, the former a representative of one of the first families of England, the latter a beautiful and gifted young woman of Scotch descent, who was kidnapped in the old country and brought to America to be sold, and was set free by Captain Acton, whom she later married; brother of Rev. William Acton (q. v.). Capt. John Acton received the rudimentary education of the pioneer country, and was a man of powerful physical and mental attainments. He taught school, having to prepare his own text books in manuscript form, as it was impossible to obtain them otherwise. His books, carefully written, were bound in sheep skin that had been tanned by his brother. Although the country was full of Indians, and he a mere youth he would ride on horseback a hundred miles, to a grist mill or to Tennessee, with his brother, Samuel, for corn when that staple food of the pioneer was exhausted. He was a planter, his father, brothers and himself owning adjacent lands of several thousand acres, on the Cahaba River. He built one of the first cotton gins ever erected in Shelby County; was a justice of the peace for more than forty years, and for many years a member of the commissioners court. From his eighteenth year, to his death, he held office, and such was the quality of his judgment that the people of the whole section sought his opinions on legal, political and agricultural matters. Owing to the state of society and the restlessness of the Indians under the advances of civilization, every man was a militiaman, and Captain Acton was lieutenant-colonel of his regiment, and served in the Seminole War. He was a Democrat; Presbyterian, and a Mason. He was a total abstainer from intoxicants, took a strong stand against intemperance, and helped to organize the Sons of Temperance in his county. He was also one of the organizers of the Farmer's Grange in Shelby County. Married: December 31, 1834, in Shelby County, to Martha Turner, daughter of Mrs. Louvina Boothe, who lived near the Capt. Jack Cross place, Cahaba Valley, a native of Buncombe County, N. C. His wife died in 1859, and he remained unmarried until his death at the age of eighty-six. Children: 1. Calvin H.; 2. Capt. Refus (or Rufus) McCraft; 3. Leonard M.; 4. John H.; 5. Virginia Ann; 6. Martha H.; 7. Lucy Louisa. Last residence: Shelby County.

HON. WILLIAM H. SIMS

ACTON, WILLIAM, Presbyterian minister, and planter, was born April 14, 1805, on a large farm near Monticello, Wayne County, Ky., and died in Shelby County; son of Capt. John and Jane (Roberts) Acton; brother of Captain John Acton (q. v.). His chances for securing an education were meagre, as he moved with his parents from Kentucky where there were few schools, to Alabama where at that pioneer period there were none. However, he learned to read, write and make simple calculations. He was a farmer. During the years that he farmed he was also busy preaching the gospel. He was one of the first men in Alabama, probably the first in Jefferson or Shelby Counties, to mine coal. For a number of years he had teams hauling coal to Montevallo, Tuscaloosa, and many other points. He never held civil or military office, though he was a life long Democrat. He was a Presbyterian minister and also a Mason. Married: On July 17, 1823, to Elizabeth, daughter of Needham and Susan (Bailey) Lee, the former came to East Tennessee from Virginia, about 1805, but soon removed to near Knoxville; granddaughter of Thomas Lee, and of Thomas and Mary Bailey. Thomas Bailey was killed in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Sarah, m. John Y. Townley; 2. infant son, deceased; 3. Susan Jane, m. (1) William A. Bailey, (2) Thomas N. Bailey, (3) Houston Bailey, three brothers, surviving all; 4. infant girl, deceased; 5. Mary Elizabeth, deceased; 6. John Vincent, m. (1) Elizabeth Watkins, (2) Ann Godden, (3) Margarette E. Wright, and by the three wives was the father of twenty-two children; 7. Zephaniah William Henry, m. Passey Drucilla Watkins; 8. Zilpha, m. Stephen Horton, (or Wharton) Watkins; 9. James Gaines, m. Mary Ann Byars, about 1858, deceased; 10. Rachel, m. Uriah Jordon Bailey. Last residence: Shelby County.

ADAIR, JAMES, Author: "History of the North American Indians," 1775.

ADAIR, WILLIAM IRVIN, lawyer, was born in Kentucky, and died in Madison County in 1835; son of William and Mary (Irvin) Adair; nephew of Gov. John Adair of Kentucky; and grandson of Baron William and Mary (Moore) Adair, the former a native of Scotland, who emigrated from Belfast, Ireland, in 1736, settled in Chester County, S. C., and later returned to Scotland. William Adair served in the War of 1812 as captain of the 17th Kentucky infantry regiment; was transferred to the Third infantry regiment, 1815, and resigned in 1817. He removed to Alabama in 1818 farmed for a while but soon took up the study of law, and opened an office in Huntsville where he became a man of prominence. He represented Madison County in the legislature of 1822 and 1823, and for the latter session he was elected speaker. He was elected, November 1832, to the circuit court bench and held that office until his death three years later. Married: to Miss Jones, of Franklin County. Children: 1. Jones, m. and has a son, Irvin Adair, living at Warren, Ark.; 2. William Arthur, m. Octavia, daughter of J. S. Jones, of Greenbrier, Limestone County, d. February 1857, several children, including W. A. Adair, of Marshall, Tex., and A. J. Adair, of Anniston, Ala.; 3. Maria, m. Pinkney Brooks, of Baltimore and Washington, D. C., and left descendants; 4. Kate, m. (1) Lieut. W. B. Cooke, U. S. Army, of Tusculumbia, and (2) Dr. W. H. Dial, of Marshall, Tex. Last residence: Madison County.

ADAMS, ALFRED NEWTON, physician, was born July 17, 1831, in East Alabama, and died December 13, 1901, at Dadeville. He was educated for a physician, and practiced his entire life in Dadeville. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: in 1854, at Dadeville, to Mary J. Lamb. Children: 1. Mrs. George Ramer, Atlanta; 2. A. L., Dadeville; 3. Mrs. Julia Brown, Dadeville; 4. Mrs. John Murth, Frost, Texas. Last residence: Dadeville.

ADAMS, BRYANT, soldier of the American Revolution, and a resident of Montgomery County, at date of granting pension; private, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on September 26, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $30; transferred to North Carolina, as appears from a letter of August 29, 1836.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

ADAMS, JAMES M., lawyer, came to Marshall County about 1838, probably from East Tennessee. He was elected a member of the legislature from this county in 1840, 1849, and 1850. In 1851 he was elected solicitor of the Huntsville circuit, a position he continued to hold until his death, which occurred August 10, 1856, through a collision of steamers. He had an extensive practice in Marshall County. He was married and left two daughters: 1. Mrs. Calvin R. Capshaw; 2. Catherine, m. Julius Lindsay Burke (q. v.). Last residence: Marshall County.

ADAMS, JOHN T., manufacturer and merchant, was born May 25, 1833, in Winchester, Tenn.; son of John M. and Frances (McLaughlin) Adams, of Scotland, who came to Canada, 1819, and to North Carolina 1821, in 1830 removed to Winchester, Tenn., where the son was born and the father, a few weeks afterward, died of a rattlesnake bite, in November, 1833, the widowed mother removed with her children to Talladega, where she lived and died. John T. Adams was forced to assist in the support of the family and had no opportunity for an education. He worked, saved money and finally educated himself. He engaged in the manufacture of wagons and carriages; served an apprenticeship in Montgomery two years and in Lowndes County two years, after which he returned to Talladega and established a permanent business. He engaged in merchandising, dealing in carriages and wagons, and farming. He served in the Confederate army as a member of Co. G, 31st Alabama infantry regiment, and rose to be captain of the company at the close of the war. For fifteen years he was a member of the city council of Talladega, and was president of the Talladega land improvement company. He was a Whig, but after 1865, a Democrat; a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: June 7, 1855, in Talladega, to Charlotte, daughter of William and Rebecca Miller, formerly of Pendleton District, S. C., early settlers of Talladega County. Children: 1. William J.; 2. Laura A., m. W. R. Huey; 3. Junius O.; 4. Frances R., m. Dr. W. F. Slaughter; 5. Virgil L.; 6. Marvin R.; 7. Renna I.; 8. John T., jr. Residence: Talladega.

ADAMS, JOSEPH A., editor and publisher, was born October 15, 1843, at Oak Bowery, Chambers County, and died February 4, 1887, at Ozark; son of William S. and Jane (Adams) Adams, the children of first cousins, the former a native of Dinwiddie County, Va., who later lived at Oak Bowery and Opelika, and at Columbus, Ga., and who was captain of Co. H, Sixth Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. The Adams family came from England. His great-grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary Army, and his grandfather was a soldier in the Creek and Mexican Wars. He was educated at Oak Bowery, and Opelika; established "The Southern Star" in 1867 at Newton, but two years later removed to Ozark, where the court house of Dale County had recently been located; was circuit court clerk, 1872 to 1884; and mayor of Ozark several terms. He enlisted in Co. B, 45th Alabama infantry regiment and served from the beginning to the close of the war. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Mason. Married: October 24, 1867, at Newton, to Annie Laurie, daughter of West Harris and Sophia Kirksey, who had removed from North Carolina to Randolph County, Ga., and thence to Dale County, and was a cotton manufacturer. Children: 1. William Robert; 2. Joseph Harris, dec. (q. v.), m. Eura Edwards; 3. Jesse Clayton, m. Elizabeth McCoy, resides in Montgomery, and was at one time chief clerk in the office of the commissioner of agriculture and industries; 4. Annie Laura; 5. Georgia Estelle, m. Frank S. Howell; 6. John Quincy, proprietor and editor of the "Ozark Star" on the death of his brother Joseph H., and assistant clerk of the house of representatives for several terms, m. Vivian Brantley; 7. Samuel Grady, deceased. Last residence: Ozark.

ADAMS, JOSEPH HARRIS, editor and business man, was born April 12, 1870, at Newton, Dale County, and died February 2, 1918, at Ozark; son of Joseph A. Adams (q. v.). He attended school at Ozark; succeeded his father as editor of the "Ozark Star" in 1887; continued in the newspaper field until his death; and was also actively interested in a commercial firm of fertilizer dealers. He was a Democrat and served on committees of the party; was a Methodist; and a Mason. Married: October 11, 1891, near Ozark, to Eura, daughter of Judge C. A. B. and Martha Edwards of that place. Children: 1. Bessie; 2. Charles H.; 3. Kirk; 4. Roger; 5. Annie Martha. Last residence: Ozark.

ADAMS, SAM, planter and merchant, was born April 17, 1834, at Chester, S. C., and died March 3, 1880, at Clanton; son of James and Mary (Giles) Adams, also of Chester. He was educated by William Lewis, who conducted a preparatory school in Talladega; in early life was a planter near Wetumpka; served in the War of Secession; was a traveling salesman with his residence in Tuscaloosa; and in 1873 located at Clanton, where he engaged in farming and in the mercantile business. He was one of the earliest residents of that town. He was a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and a Mason. Married: (1) in 1857, at Wetumpka, to Mattie Eliza Weatherall, whose mother was Isabel Saxon, of Laurens District, S. C.; and (2) in 1870, at Florence, to Ann, daughter of Rev. Dr. William H. and Anna (Byrne) Mitchell. Children, by first wife: 1. Horace Crittenden; 2. Sallie, m. Dr. W. E. Stewart, of Clanton; 3. Essie, m. Charles J. Duncan, of Nashville, Tenn.; 4. Amelia Estelle; by the second wife: 5. William, lawyer, a student of the University of Alabama, 1890-93, m. Annie W. Dennis, of Clanton; 6. Anna Byrne, a student at the University of Alabama, 1893-95, resides in Birmingham; 7. Samuel, graduate of the University of Alabama, A. B., 1896, taught in Birmingham, and now representative of Charles Scribner's Sons, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.; 8. David Bell, University of Alabama, A. B., 1897. Last residence: Clanton.

ADAMS, SAMUEL, lawyer and colonel, C. S. Army, was born, March 5, 1829, near Abbeville, S. C., and died July 21, 1864, at Atlanta, Ga. No ancestral data is available other than that his maternal grandfather, a Mr. Vann of Abbeville County was a Revolutionary soldier, who at the age of eighty cheered the Abbeville company as it was leaving for the Mexican War in 1847, and who expressed keen regret that he could not enroll for service. Col. Adams received his early education in the schools of his native county; was graduated from the South Carolina college in 1850; and removed to Greenville, where he taught two years as principal of the male and female academy. He read law under John K. Henry, and was admitted to the bar in Montgomery, 1852; first practiced his profession in Conecuh County, associated with a relative, James A. Stallworth, but in 1854 returned to Greenville, where soon afterwards he formed a law partnership with his brother-in-law, Hilary A. Herbert. He was twice chosen as a Whig to the house of representatives first in 1857, and again in 1859. In 1861 he enlisted in the C. S. Army, and was elected 2nd lieutenant of the "Jefferson Davis Rangers," Ninth Alabama infantry regiment, Army of Northern Virginia. In February 1862 he came home to recruit his company, and while there he was chosen colonel of the 33rd Alabama infantry regiment. He was wounded in the foot at Perryville while in command of a brigade; led his regiment from Murfreesboro to Atlanta; was fatally wounded by a sharpshooter at Kennesaw Mountain, July 21, 1864. He sustained an unimpeachable record as a brave and trustworthy officer, and at time of his death had been recommended for promotion by both Generals Hardee and Cleburne. He was an Episcopalian. Married: in Greenville, to Dora Eliza, daughter of Thomas E. and Dorothy (Young) Herbert, and sister of Col. Hilary A. Herbert (q. v.). No children. Last residence: Greenville.

ADAMS, SAMUEL MERNARY, Baptist minister, was born at Summerfield, Dallas County, December 10, —; son of Alford A. and Elizabeth (McGough) Adams; grandson of Samuel M. and Elizabeth Adams, the former coming when a small boy from South Carolina to Alabama, and of James McGough, of Irish descent, and who, after some years in Alabama removed to Arkansas. Alford Adams enlisted in 1863 in Capt. M. M. Burks' Co. F, Eighth Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army, and died in 1864. Rev. Mr. Adams had very limited educational advantages, attending the country schools and only a few weeks at Howard college. He entered upon the ministry in the Missionary Baptist church, by ordination in March 1881, preaching continuously and serving churches in Autauga, Bibb, Chilton, Dallas, Perry and Shelby Counties; was a representative from Bibb County in the legislature 1888-89 as a Democrat; removed to Chilton and elected probate judge of that county, August 1891, serving six years; joined in the organization of the Populist party, and became one of its leaders, 1890; was president Alabama State alliance, 1887-93; and a Mason. Married: December 24, 1873, at Montevallo, to Martha J., daughter of Elisha Whatley, and wife Epsa M., and granddaughter of Rev. Enoch Hays. Children: 1. John B. deceased; 2. and 3. daughters, deceased; 4. E. H. Adams, Thorsby. Residence: Clanton.

ADAMS, S. R., Baptist minister, was born June 18, 1849, near Dalton, Ga.; son of parents who were members of the Swamp Creek church, near Dalton. His school opportunities were poor; as he increased in age, he overcame his disadvantages by hard study, and became a profound student, especially of the Bible. He united with the Baptists in 1865; removed to Alabama; joined the Pleasant Hill church; and was ordained a minister in that church, August, 1875. In 1876 he was called to New Friendship church, Morgan County, and was pastor of other churches in that county, to 1880; missionary until 1884; he was pastor of the following churches: Enon, Mt. Pisgah Danville, Hope-well, Blue Springs, Mt. Nebo, Town Creek, Warrior, Trusville Dolomites, Pratt Mines; he located permanently, in charge of Woodlawn. Married: March 22, 1870, to Nannie C. Mitchell. Residence: Woodlawn.

ADAMS, THOMAS, farmer, merchant, and member of the constitutional convention, 1867, was born in Edgefield District, S. C.; spent his youth in South Carolina where he received a limited education, removed to Coweta County, Ga., where he resided for eleven years; located in Randolph County, about 1850, and after three years removed to Talladega County, and in 1865 to Clay County; was reared a farmer which occupation he followed all his life; in 1839 he became a merchant at Lineville, and served as lieutenant of militia. He was a Whig in 1860, supported Bell and Everett; was violently opposed to secession; antagonized the Confederate government; elected to the Constitutional convention in 1867 from the 28th election district, which included Clay County and in that body joined the extreme reconstructionists. Married: name of wife not ascertained. Last residence: Lineville.

ADAMS, WILLIAM YANCEY, teacher, was born February 4, 1848, at Gum Springs, Blount County; son of Barclay M. and Martha (Musgrove) Adams, the former born in Edgefield, S. C., came to Blount County, in 1846, served in 1st Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Jack and Elizabeth (Nicholson) Adams, of Edgefield, S. C., and of William Henry and Sallie (Fowler) Musgrove, the former a native of Georgia, served several times in that state's legislature, was a colonel in the Creek war, captain Co. C, 29th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, was a Baptist minister and died at Mobile; great-grandson of Rev. John Fowler, a cousin of William L. Yancey. Mr. Adams was educated in the common schools of Blount County; at Blountsville high school; Ruhama high school, East Lake; and graduated A. B. Howard college. He has taught schools at Hanceville, Walnut Grove college, Blountsville, and rural schools, beginning in 1866-67 and covering a period of fifty-two successive years; served two years as superintendent of education of Blount County. He represented Blount County in the legislature, 1919. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; Mason; and Odd Fellow. Married: (1) —; (2) in 1884 to Mary E., daughter of Job and Lydia Penny of Piedmont. Children: by first wife; 1. Noah Elbert, m. Arah Kiker; 2. William Arthur, m. Oria Pogue; 3. Elmer Thornton; 4. Lillie, m. Perry Clayton; by second wife; 5. Millard Godfrey; 6. Ruby, m. Dr. J. W. Morris, deceased; 7. Martha Pearl; 8. Beuna Opal; 9. Yancey Hawthorne, served in France with the A. E. F.; 10. Joe Hobson; 11. Ruth Garnet; 12. Mary Blanche; 13. Imogene. Residence: Garden City.

ADERHOLT, DAVID A., real estate dealer, was born in Lincolnton, Lincoln County, N. C., November 25, 1842; son of Frederick and Anna (Baker) Aderholt, the former a native of North Carolina, of German ancestry, and a farmer, who removed to Alabama. Mr. Aderholt was educated in St. Clair County, and enlisted in 1861 as a private in Co. H, 58th Alabama infantry regiment and was successively promoted to the captaincy of his company. From 1866 to 1870 he engaged in a general mercantile business, since which time he has been a real estate dealer; was mayor of Springville, 1878-85; member of the legislature, 1882-83; president of the Springville school board, six years; member of the town council, for three years; trustee of the State normal school, Jacksonville, 1883 to 1891. He is a Democrat; a Mason; and a Presbyterian. Married: in 1870, to Amanda Hester Cowden, of Blount County. Children: 1. Ula, m. Charles Crandall; 2. Ada; 3. Jennie, m. Frederick Fletcher; 4. Jessie; 5. Charles. Residence: Springville.

ADERHOLD, JACOB W., lieutenant-colonel, 1st Confederate infantry, C. S. Army.

ADLER, J. C., merchant, founder of one of the leading business houses of Selma.

ADLER, LOUIS J., merchant, was born June 24, 1856, in Milwaukee, Wis.; son of Jacob and Betty (Eckstein) Adler, natives of Austria, the former of whom came to the United States in 1844, settling at Milwaukee, where he organized the Adler clothing co., in 1857 removed with his family to New York City, where he became president of the Stonewall oil co., the first cotton seed oil company of the city, and where he died in 1872. Louis J. Adler was educated in the Chartier institute of N. Y., and at the University of Vienna; spent three and a half years on the continent of Europe in school and travel, visiting Egypt as well as various parts of Europe. In 1873 he returned to the United States and in the same year went to Uniontown, where he was bookkeeper in Ernest bros. bank until 1881; for one year clerked in a mercantile house of J. H. White & co., at Uniontown; 1883 to 1891 was in business for himself as a merchant at Uniontown; became a traveling salesman for Marks, Rothenberg & co., wholesale dry goods merchants and notion dealers of Meridian, Miss. He has been town counselor and city tax assessor of Uniontown. He is a Democrat; Mason; Knight of Pythias; American Legion of Honor; Ancient Order of United Workmen; Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, and Knight of Honor. In 1890 he was elected grand keeper of records and seal of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias of Alabama, which office he held until 1897. Married: in 1883, to Belle Strauss, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Children: two sons. Residence: Selma.

ADLER, MORRIS, coal mine operator, was born April 4, 1855, at Jonesboro, Washington County, Tenn.; son of Jacob and Sophie (Kahn) Adler; grandson of Meyer and Caroline (Rosengart) Adler, of Bittenhansen Village, Wurtemberg, Germany, and of Moses and Clara Kahn, of Altenstadt Village, Bavaria. He was educated in the common schools of Jonesboro; located in Birmingham; has engaged in various business enterprises, and with his brother, is the owner and operator of the Corona coal mines, and the Townley coal mines. He is a Democrat. Married: December 23, 1884, at Baltimore, Md., to Mary, daughter of Sleon and Theresa Hartman. Children: 1. Leon M.; 2. Julian E. Residence: Birmingham.

ADLER, MOSES, merchant, was born in 1821, at Henchelheim, Germany. He emigrated to New Orleans in 1850, engaged in merchandising; afterwards carried on business at Biloxi, Miss., Port Hudson, La., New Iberia, La., Vera Cruz, Mexico, returned to New Orleans where he remained until 1868, when he removed to Selma where he became a well known merchant.

AGEE, ALFRED PELHAM, lawyer, was born August 6, 1862, at Claiborne, Monroe County; son of Noah Alfred and Annie Caroline (Hunley) Agee, of Selma, the former represented Monroe County in the legislature, 1853-54, and was State senator from Monroe, Escambia and Baldwin Counties, 1857-58; and under the nom de plume of Senex, wrote for the "Montgomery Advertiser" a series of letters from 1900 to 1912, descriptive of early times in Alabama; grandson of William Raiford and Winnie (Hill) Agee, who lived at Claiborne, and of Ransom Gayle and Caroline (Forney) Hunley, who lived near Hayneville, Lowndes County; great-grandson of Noah Agee, who in 1810 migrated from Anson County, N. C., to Clarke County, and of Gen. Peter Forney, of Revolutionary fame in North Carolina. Through the Forneys Mr. Agee is related to the Forney, Johnston, Webb, and other Alabama families. The Agees were French Huguenots, early seated in Rockingham County, Va., whence members of the family migrated to North Carolina. Alfred Pelham Agee's early education was received in schools at Claiborne and the boy's school at Talladega; graduated from the United States naval academy in 1883, and his final graduation took place after two years' service in foreign waters, in 1885. In 1887, he graduated from the University of Alabama, receiving the degree of LL.B.; practiced law in Montgomery, and in 1888 moved to Anniston, in which city he has continued to practice; was city attorney of Anniston, 1888-90 and 1906-08; solicitor city court of Anniston 1893-97, and president of the city council, 1910-12. He was cadet midshipman in the United States navy, 1879-85, second lieutenant, "Montgomery True Blues," 1887-8, and captain of Co. E, Second regiment, Alabama State troops, 1888-91. He is a Democrat; and an Episcopalian. Married: April 6, 1899, at Montgomery, to Ellie, daughter of John W. and Mary (Sommerville) Shepherd, the former a graduate of Yale university, who removed from Huntsville, to Montgomery, was reporter for the supreme court, and author of Shepherd's Alabama Digest. Children: 1. Caroline Hunley; 2. Ellen Douglas. Residence: Anniston.

AGNEW, A. W., physician, was born September 17, 1824, in Abbeville County, S. C.; son of Andrew and Anna (Cowan) Agnew, natives of South Carolina, who came to Alabama in 1836, and were among the pioneer farmers of Pickens County; grandson of Isaac and Anna Cowan, also of South Carolina. Dr. Agnew was educated at Liberty academy; attended the Transylvania medical college, Lexington, Ky., where he graduated in 1844; at once located in Pickens County, and began the practice of medicine; there he remained for thirty-eight years; in 1883 removed to Fayette Court House, where he continued the practice of his profession. He was for some years surgeon for the old Georgia Pacific railroad. He was a Mason; Odd Fellow; and a Methodist. Married: (1) in 1850, to Amanda S., daughter of James I. Burdine, of Pickens County; (2) in 1871, to Mrs. M. R. Beckwith, of Mississippi. Children: by first wife: 1. James A.; 2. Lilly J.; 3. Louis A. Last residence: Fayette Court House.

AGNEW, GEORGE, soldier of the American Revolution, and a resident of Lauderdale County; private in cavalry, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on September 29, 1836, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $25.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

AIKEN, JAMES, lawyer and judge, colonel 13th Alabama infantry, C. S. Army, was born August 8, 1882, in Fairfield District, S. C., and died at Gadsden, June 22, 1908; son of William and Elizabeth (Stitt) Aiken, both of Scotch-Irish descent, the former was born about 1800, came with his parents from County Antrim, Ireland, to South Carolina, locating in Fairfield District. The Stitt family came from Ireland also, and were farmers in South Carolina. James Aiken was reared on a farm and educated in the common schools of Fairfield District, and at the South Carolina military academy, Charleston, where he graduated in 1851. After graduation he taught for one year in his alma mater, and in 1854 removed to Randolph County, where he taught school until 1856. In the meantime he read law and was admitted to the bar; practiced in Randolph and adjacent counties; and removed to Gadsden in 1869 where he practiced his profession until his death. He was a member of the legislature of 1861; of the constitutional convention of 1875; appointed judge of the ninth judicial circuit in 1885 by Gov. E. A. O'Neal; and appointed special judge of the circuit court of Marshall County, October 7, 1902. He entered the War of Secession as captain of Co. D, 13th Alabama infantry regiment, in 1861; promoted major, 1862; lieutenant colonel in January, 1863; and colonel in 1864, serving as such until he was captured and taken as a prisoner to Johnson's Island, Lake Erie, where he remained until the end of the war. He was a Democrat and a Presbyterian. Married: January 25, 1877, at Weavers, to Mrs. Lou N. (Weaver) McClelland, daughter of Linsey and Lucinda (Pace) Weaver, of Weavers, Calhoun County, the latter a granddaughter of Rev. Richard Pace, a Baptist minister of North Carolina. Children: 1. Lucy Alice, m. R. C. Comer, of Enterprise; 2. James, jr., d. young; 3. Robert Stitt, Gadsden; 4. Annie Elizabeth, Gadsden. Last residence: Gadsden.

AIKIN, JOHN GASTON, lawyer, was born November 29, 1803, in South Carolina, and died November 29, 1865, at Stockton, Baldwin County; son of Robert and Esther (Gaston) Aikin, who lived in South Carolina and later at Tuscaloosa, the former of Scotch and Puritan stock, and a manufacturer of cotton gins. His wife, Esther, was a descendant of Huguenot ancestry. He received his preparatory education in Tuscaloosa; and graduated at Yale college. He received his legal training at the latter institution also, and entered upon the practice at the age of twenty-one. In 1832 he was residing in Tuscaloosa; afterwards practiced law in Mobile some years; and later located at Stockton where he spent the remainder of his life. He had large land holdings, and many slaves. He saw service in the Mexican War. He was a man of fine physique, six feet four inches in height and weighed two hundred forty pounds. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Mason. In 1833 he compiled the second "Digest of the Laws of Alabama," and in 1836 it was reprinted with a supplement. In 1865 his home was burned by the federal soldiers. Married: in Mobile, Clarissa Amanda, daughter of Joshua and Susan (Kitchen) Kennedy, Sr., of that city, one of the largest land owners of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, granddaughter of William Mansfield Kennedy, a native of Scotland, and of royal connections, banished to America because of political conditions, and of Samuel and Mary (Smith) Kitchen, the father of German descent, and the mother of Welsh stock. The father of the latter was John Smith, an officer in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Alma, resides at Stockton; 2. Leila, deceased; 3. Norma, resides at Stockton; 4. Clara, d. in infancy; 5. Adelaide Augusta, deceased; 6. William Gaston, a physician, graduate of the medical department, University of Alabama, m. Katie May Brooks, of Century, Fla.; 7. John Gaston, graduated as captain, New York nautical school, 1882, licensed chief mate, ocean steamer, 1890, chief mate and captain sea vessels 15 years, inventor of various mechanical and nautical machines and instruments, m. Irma Belt, of Baldwin County, and has four children: John Gaston, Wm. Kennedy, Clara Alma, and Evelyn Esther Aikin. Last residence: Stockton.

AIREY, J. B., Methodist minister; member of the Alabama conference. Residence: Wetumpka.

AKERS, MEREDITH THOMPSON, farmer, was born March 9, 1831, at Redeville, Rutherford County, Tenn.; son of Meredith and Nancy Jane (Thompson) Akers, the former a native of Crab Orchard, Va.; grandson of Claiborne Akers, and of Meredith and Elizabeth Thompson. He received a common school education; and has always been a farmer. In 1868 he entered upon the duties of sheriff, tax assessor, and tax collector, of Marion County, in which he served for six years. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1875, from Marion County; and represented this county in the legislature of 1878-79. He is a Mason; Methodist; and a Democrat. Married: July 21, 1853, to Patience D., daughter of Elijah C. and Keziah Green, of Goldmine. Children: seven boys and seven girls. Residence: Guin.

AKIN, JOHN W., Methodist minister; member of the North Alabama conference. Residence: Boyles.

ALBRIGHT, JACOB AMOS, teacher, was born August 27, 1843, at Plains of Dura, Sumter County, Ga.; son of Oswell and Sara (Wheel-ess) Albright, the former a merchant and blacksmith, removing in 1846 to Alabama; grandson of Jacob Albright and wife, a Miss Dixon, of North Carolina, and of Amos Wheelers, a native of middle Georgia. Mr. Albright is of German and English descent. He was educated in the schools of Wacoachee Valley; was a teacher for over forty years; superintendent of education of Lee County, 1909-1917; and elected to the house of representatives of 1919 from Lee County. He served as a non-commissioned officer in Co. C, 2nd Georgia infantry regiment, C. S. A. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; and an Odd Fellow. Married: (1) Frances E., daughter of John F. and Susan (Florence) Williams; (2) Mrs. Leila Whitaker, daughter of William and (Ross) Trimble, both families came to Alabama from Georgia. Children, by first wife: 1. John O., m. Jessie Middleton, Mobile; 2. E. A., deceased, m. Ada Sherrod; 3. Dessa, m. E. B. Smith; 4. J. J., m. Fannie Monk; 5. Kate, m. Robert C. Patterson; 6. Bird, m. T. Hicks Foot; no children by second wife. Residence: Opelika.

ALBRIGHT, JAMES S., librarian, Alabama supreme court library, 1856-1860.

ALBRIGHT, ORANGE, farmer, was born August 15, 1822, at Danielsville, Madison County, Ga.; son of Jacob and Polly (Dixon) Albright, of Georgia, the former a native of Orange County, N. C., but whose life was largely spent in Madison County, Ga., and who was by vocation a gunsmith and blacksmith; grandson of Phillip Albright and William Dixon, the former a native of North Carolina and the latter a resident of Franklin and Habersham Counties, Ga. Orange Albright is believed to be in direct line from Hendrick Albright, who came to America about 1740, and settled near the present city of Albany, N. Y. He was educated in the common schools of his county, and filled position as overseer on different plantations before the war; later became a farmer and blacksmith, locating in Tuscaloosa in 1842. He enlisted in 1863, and served as sergeant in "Hurt's Battery," C. S. Army and surrendered at Petersburg, Va., in 1865. Returning from the war, he returned to the farm and forge. He is a Democrat; and a Missionary Baptist. Married: July, 1845, to Louise Minerva, daughter of Wiley and Sarah (Harbor) Skelton, at the home of her parents near Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. Marion Dodson, m. Almeda Smith, Cuero, Tex.; 2. Sarah Priscilla, m. Luther J. Thompson, Farill; 3. James Lewis, m. Mary Hamner, Duncanville; 4. Josephine, d. in infancy; 5. Harriet Augusta, m. John M. Smith, Duncanville; 6. Newton Thomas, m. Martha C. Brown, Tuscaloosa; 7. Alexander Vandiver, m. Abbie B. Hamner, Tuscaloosa; 8. Charles Wilburn, d. in infancy. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

ALDRICH, TRUMAN HEMINWAY, mining engineer, was born at Palmyra, Wayne County, N. Y., October 17, 1848; son of William Farrington and Louisa Eugenia (Klapp) Aldrich; grandson of Charles and Olive (Farrington) Aldrich of Menden, Mass., later of Palmyra, N. Y., and of John and Maria (Barker) Klapp of La Grange, Dutchess County, N. Y.; great-grandson of Samuel Augustus Barker, an adjutant-general in the Revolutionary Army, an aide-de-camp to Gen. Lafayette, a graduate of Yale and a member of the State senate of New York. The Klapps were Dutch people, John, his grandfather being raised by his guardian Stephen Van Rensselaer; was a soldier in the War of 1812, and later a member of the State senate of New York. William F. Aldrich was a lawyer, moving to New York city in 1865, where he was later county solicitor, State bank examiner and founder and first secretary of the Union Trust company of New York. Truman H. was educated in the public schools of Palmyra and graduated from the West Chester Pennsylvania military institute. He took his degree of M. E. at the Rensselaer polytechnic institute at Troy in 1869. He began the practice of his profession in New York, but after two years here and in New Jersey, he removed to Selma. He engaged in the banking business and after two years gave this up to take up coal mining, operating successfully for many years, the Montevallo, Pratt and several other mines. In 1892, he became vice-president and general manager of the Tennessee coal, iron and railroad company. He has long been interested in geology and conchology and has generously contributed to the museum of the State geological survey, the collection of shells alone comprising more than four thousand specimens. His contributions to the literature on scientific subjects have been many and have covered a wide field. He is a Republican and was nominated for the 54th congress from the 9th district by his party, being endorsed by the Populist party. The election was given to Hon. Oscar Underwood but after a contest he was seated two days before the close of the first session of the congress. He served from June 9, 1896, to March 3, 1897. He was appointed postmaster of Birmingham by President Taft and confirmed on December 11, 1911, serving until December, 1915. He is an Episcopalian. He was married to Anna, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Ogden) Morrison, of Newark, N. J. Children: 1. Georgia M., m. J. W. Herron, Jr., 3 children; 2. Truman Herbert, m. Louisa Bannister, 1 child; 3. Maria A. Residence: Birmingham.

ALDRICH, WILLIAM FARRINGTON, congressman and miner, born at Palmyra, N. Y., March 11, 1853, son of William F. and Louisa (Klapp) Aldrich, and brother of Truman H. Aldrich (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Palmyra and graduated in civil engineering at Warren's military academy, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1873. He moved to Alabama in 1874 and later founded the town of Aldrich in Shelby County, he having engaged in mining on his arrival in this State. He is a Republican and had the endorsement of both his own party and that of the Populist in 1894. His Democratic opponent, Hon. Gaston A. Robbins, was given the certificate of election but after a contest he was seated on March 13, 1896, and served until the close of the 54th congress on March 3, 1897. He successfully contested the election of Thomas S. Plowman to the 55th congress, being seated on February 9, 1898, and again contested the election of his former opponent Gaston A. Robbins to the 56th congress, being seated on March 8, 1900. He served until March 3, 1901. He was owner and publisher of the "Birmingham Times" for many years. He is a Knight Templar and a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason. Married: on April 16, 1889, to Josephine Cables, of Rochester, N. Y. Residence: Birmingham.

. HON. THOMAS H. WATTS

ALDRIDGE, ENOCH, major, 48th Alabama infantry, C. S. Army.

ALDRIDGE, JESSE J., lieutenant-colonel, 48th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

ALECK, CAPTAIN, Creek Chief. See Indian chiefs and associated characters.

ALEXANDER, ABRAM FRANKLIN, physician, was born April 1, 1802, at Charlotte, N. C., and died at Eutaw, April 11, 1866; son of Nathaniel and Jane (Harris) Alexander; grandson of Abraham and Dorcas (Wilson) Alexander, the former of whom came from Scotland about the time of the Revolution, settled near Charlotte, and was president of the Mecklenburg convention, of May 1775, and of Dr. Robert and Mary (Wilson) Harris, of Scotch descent. Dr. Abram F. Alexander was educated at Princeton university; moved about 1835, from Charlotte, N. C., to Eutaw, where he practiced medicine until his death. He was surgeon in a Confederate hospital at Richmond, Va., from July, 1861, and served there until his health failed. He was a Presbyterian. Married: (1) Caroline Elizabeth Chapman, of Cheraw, S. C.; (2) Kate Stokes; (3) Mrs. Henrietta (Bechley) Adams. Children, by first wife: 1. Jane Eleanor, m. John F. Clark; 2. Mary Emonica, m. Thomas H. Henderson; 3. Charles, d. young; 4. Elizabeth, m. Dr. Henry Young Webb; by second wife: 5. Kathrine, unmarried; by third wife: 6. Maria, m. J. K. Mayers. Last residence: Eutaw.

ALEXANDER, ASA, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Dale County; private Georgia Militia; enrolled on June 17, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $200.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

ALEXANDER, ———, soldier of the American Revolution, but particular service not disclosed; aged 98, and a resident of Mobile County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensions, 1841, p. 149.

ALEXANDER, CHARLES, lawyer, was born June 5, 1862, near Prattville, Autauga County; son of John Loftin and Martha Anne Rebecca (Hill) Alexander, the former born at Hayneville, Lowndes County, lived at Prattville, was a member of Co. K, 1st Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Peyton Smith and Mary P. (Minter) Alexander, who lived at Hayneville, and of Abner and Mary Spencer (Pegues) Hill, of near Prattville, the former a native of North Carolina, the latter born in Cheraw, S. C., her ancestors being Huguenots who settled in South Carolina early in the eighteenth century; great-grandson of Edmund Alexander, who came from Petersburg, Va., to Georgia and thence to Alabama, settled near Hayneville; and great-great-grandson of William Pegues, lieutenant in the command of Gen. Francis Marion, in the American Revolution. Charles Alexander received his early education in Prattville academy, and his collegiate education in Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y. In 1885 he was admitted to the bar; was deputy collector for the district of Alabama, 1889-1903; in 1904 appointed as U. S. commissioner at Attalla, and this position he has held for ten years. He is a Progressive Republican; in 1890 was the Republican nominee for attorney general of Alabama; was a delegate to the National Republican convention of 1896 and 1900 and to the Progressive national convention of 1912. He is an Odd Fellow; Knight of Pythias; and an Elk. Married: June 7, 1903, at Attalla, to Helen Mortimer, daughter of Robert Henry and Emelyn Johnson (Bray) Freman, of Attalla, the former a descendant of Robert Freman, one of the eighteen Englishmen who, in 1645, under Dutch authority, founded Flushing, Long Island, and great-granddaughter of Gen. Daniel Bray, who collected the boats in which Gen. Washington and his army, on the night of their attack on Trenton, crossed the Delaware River. Residence: Prattville.

ALEXANDER, G. L., Confederate soldier, probably a native of Alabama, and at the time of entrance into the C. S. Army a resident of Jackson County. He enlisted in Snodgrass's 16th infantry battalion, which was consolidated with Norwood's Sixth infantry battalion to form the 55th Alabama infantry regiment, of which he was appointed major, March 8, 1862. He was killed in an engagement at Baton Rouge, La., August 5, 1862. He is said to have been a fearless and gallant officer. Last residence: Jackson County.

ALEXANDER, JEREMIAH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 113 (apparently an error for 71), and a resident of Morgan County; private Massachusetts Militia, State Troops; enrolled on September 17, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $33.33; sums received to date of publication of list, $83.32.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Walker County, June 1, 1840, aged 76.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 150.

ALEXANDER, J. BELL, Author: "Malice: A Tale of Real Life in the South," 1862. Residence: Mobile.

ALEXANDER, J. L., member constitutional convention, 1867, representing the twentieth election district. Residence: Autauga County.

ALEXANDER, JOHN DAVIDSON, planter, was born September 15, 1829, in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and died February 24, 1901, at Faunsdale; son of Joseph McKnitt and Nancy Agnes (Cathey) Alexander, the former born February 3, 1793, in Mecklenburg County, N. C., who died March 13, 1865, in Marengo County, the latter a native of Mecklenburg County, born January 5, 1800, and died November 20, 1855; grandson of William Bain and Violet (Davidson) Alexander, and of Capt. John Archer and Agnes (Caldwell) Cathey; great-grandson of John McKnitt and Jane (Bain) Alexander, the former of whom, with his brother Hezekiah Alexander, and four others of the same name, was a signer of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence at Charlotte, N. C., May 20, 1775, and of James Alexander and Margaret McKnitt. The Alexander family tree contains more than eight hundred names, and has three crowns upon it. The family in this country has been traced back to Cecil County, Md. Mr. Alexander was related through blood and marriage to the Davidsons, the Wilsons, the Sharps, the Prices, the Hendersons and the Moores. J. G. M. Ramsey, a cousin, was historian of Tennessee. John Sharp Williams, senator from Mississippi, and Gen. Sterling Price, of the C. S. Army, were connected with the Alexander family.

Mr. Alexander moved from Mecklenburg County, N. C., with his parents, to Alabama, and settled in Marengo County. He became a planter and lived there for the remainder of his life. Married: (1) at McKinley, Rebecca Lawson Cathey, born January 2, 1836, and died January 21, 1894, the only daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth Anne (Miller) Cathey, of McKinley; (2) Livie Margaret Houston, daughter of Frank and Margaret (Woods) Houston, of Bibb County. Children, by first marriage; 1. Millard Lesueur, b. February 11, 1854, died November 26, 1887, in Faunsdale, m. Clara L. Eaton, d. November 11, 1887, left three children; 2. Andrew Clinton, b. August 3, 1855, d. October 25, 1856; 3. Florence Ephar, b. April 10, 1857, d. November 7, 1880, in Faunsdale, m. John F. Watkins; 4. John Davidson, jr., b. January 19, 1859, d. September 22, 1894; 5. William Lee, b. December 25, 1860, d. August 18, 1883, in Faunsdale; 6. Susan Elizabeth, b. December 4, 1862, d. March 19, 1864; 7. Mary Gray, b. October 26, 1864, d. November 16, 1892, in Faunsdale, m. J. T. McDonald; 8. Joseph McKnitt, b. August 29, 1866, m. Edna Earl Donovan, resides at Alexandria, La.; 9. Olive Rebecca, b. February 24, 1868, m. W. C. McKnight, resides at Faunsdale; 10. Ira Caldwell, b. October 13, 1869, d. November 17, 1890, m. Gaston Alexander Robins; 11. James Franklin, b. February 27, 1872, m. Gertrude Blackburn, resides at Ashland; 12. Roy Cathey, b. November 23, 1873, d. September 23, 1915, m. Laura Maude Donovan: by second marriage; 13. Houston Davidson, b. June 6, 1897. Last residence: Faunsdale.

ALEXANDER, OLIN M., broker, was born in Millville, Mo., February 8, 1868; son of Rev. Samuel and Isabelle (Rooker) Alexander, natives of Tennessee and Missouri, the former a Methodist minister who died at Marion, Va.; grandson of John Alexander and wife, who was a Miss Wood, who lived in Tennessee and Missouri and later in Virginia; great-great-grandson of William and Sarah Bruce (Casson) Alexander, and great-great-great-grandson of Robert and Ann (Fouke) Alexander. The family is of Scotch ancestry. John Wood, Quaker maternal grandfather of the wife of John Alexander, came from London to the colonies in 1635, and settled in Portsmouth, N. H. Olin Alexander was educated in Central college in Missouri, afterward taught school in Tennessee, Arkansas, St. Louis, Mo., and Nebraska; removed to Alexandria in 1897, and has since resided continuously in Calhoun County. He engaged in the hardware business in Anniston until 1912, and since that date in the farm loan and supply business. He is Mason; an Odd Fellow, and Woodman of the World. Married: in Anniston, July 28, 1898, to Mrs. Louise L. (nee Fullenwider), widow of W. P. Cooper, and daughter of Lavinia, a sister of Generals John H. and Wm. H. Forney (q. v.). Residence: Anniston.

ALEXANDER, WILLIAM ANTHONY, business man, was born December 21, 1837, in London, England; died May 13, 1914, at Mobile; son of William and Sarah (Graham) Alexander. William Anthony Alexander came to America in 1859 and located at Mobile. He was a machinist by occupation. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he enlisted in the twenty-first Alabama artillery, C. S. Army, and was assigned to Fort Morgan. He invented and built the first submarine torpedo boat used in the war and also the first used with destructive effect upon the enemy. A historical reference to the boat says, "The Hunley" (Alexander's boat) was a cigar-shaped iron vessel of some twenty-five or thirty feet in length armed with a long wooden pole at the bow, to which pole was attached a percussion torpedo. The boat was operated by a shaft with screw at the stern, the shaft crank being turned by hand, four men working in a shift. It could not remain under water any length of time with safety to the crew as there was no artificial air supply. The plan of operations was to proceed to a point as close to the enemy as possible, sink beneath the surface and approach until the torpedo exploded by contact with the enemy's hull. In practice, the Hunley proved a craft very fatal to its operators. It was taken to Charleston harbor where twice it sank, and remained at the bottom until raised by outside means, all the volunteer crew on board losing their lives. In 1864, the submarine passed down the bay, and attacked the U. S. steamer Housatonic at night. The bottom of the Housatonic was blown out and the vessel sank. The Hunley and her crew were likewise lost, being victims of the heroic action." After the war, Mr. Alexander was for many years superintendent of the Mobile fire alarm telegraph system. He also invented and built the first rotary dredge. He was past grand commander of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the State of Alabama, and was a member of the Baptist Church. Married: June 27, Margaret Spence, of Mobile. Children: five sons and one daughter. Last residence: Mobile.

ALEXANDER, WILLIAM BURFORD, farmer, member of the legislature, was born August 26, 1853, at Oak Grove, Perry County; son of Josiah and Elizabeth Angeline (Burford) Alexander, the former a native of Mecklenburg, N. C., resided a few years near Selma, later removed to Perry County, where he subsequently died, was a farmer and though too old for service in C. S. Army, served as colonel of county militia; grandson of James Sample Alexander, and of William Burford, of Prairieville, Perry County. Mr. Alexander was educated in the common schools of Perry County; at East Tennessee university, Knoxville, 1871-72; Howard college, 1872-73; and University of Alabama, 1874-75. He is a farmer; but from 1899-1905 was engaged in the real estate business in Selma. He has been a justice of the peace; one of the county commissioners of Perry County, and represented that county in the legislature of 1892-93, and of 1919. He is a Democrat; Baptist; Mason; Knight of Pythias; Odd Fellow, and Woodman of the World. Married: at Mulberry, Lincoln County, Tenn., Ella Bonner, daughter of George Hogue and wife, a Miss Alexander, of that place. Residence: Felix.

ALEXANDER, WILLIAM J., planter, was born in May, 1842, in Calhoun County; son of Arthur T. and Rebecca (Borden) Alexander, of Georgia, who removed to Calhoun County, in 1832, where they entered and improved lands. He received a common school education, and in 1859, began to farm; in 1861, he enlisted in Co. I, 25th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; saw service at Farmersville and Shiloh; took part in the Kentucky invasion; was captured and exchanged; was in the battles of Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge and the Atlanta campaigns. At Atlanta, he joined Wheeler's cavalry and served till the close of the war. He resumed farming; was appointed sheriff of Cleburne County, 1871; served as representative, 1878-82; member of the State senate, 1884-88. He is a Democrat; and a member of the Christian church. Married: in August, 1866, in Floyd County, Ga., to Sarah Cornelia, daughter of Henry A. Smith. Children: 1. William H.; 2. Bessie E. Residence: Cleburne County.

ALFORD, JOHN McRAE, business man, was born September 21, 1861, at Carolina, Marion County, S. C.; son of Paisley and Martha (McRae) Alford, the former served in the C. S. Army at Charleston; grandson of Sion and Catherine (McPhaul) Alford, and of John and Mary (McInnis) McRae of Richmond County, N. C. He was educated in the common schools of South Carolina, and the high school, Wallace, N. C. He first engaged in farming, but has since entered largely in the banking and mercantile business. He was a member of the house of representatives of 1907 from Geneva County. He is a Democrat; a Presbyterian; a Mason; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: February 18, 1894, at Claxton, Ga., to Lella, daughter of Mitchel J. and Annie Jane (Beasley) Green. Children: 1. Barney Millard; 2. Walter Paisley; 3. Nellie. Residence: Hartford.

ALFORD, JULIUS CAESAR, lawyer and member of congress, was born May 10, 1799, in Greensboro, N. C., and died January, 1863, near Montgomery; son of Ludwick and Judith (Jackson) Alford, the former of England who emigrated to America and located in Wake County, served as captain in the War of 1812, removed to Greene County, and later to Troup County, Ga.; grandson of Reuben Jackson, of North Carolina, who won distinction at the battle of New Orleans. Mr. Alford was educated in the common schools and an academy in North Carolina; studied law under Col. Foster of Greensboro, N. C., was admitted to the bar, and began the practice of law at LaGrange, Ga. He commanded a company in the Creek War of 1836; was elected as a States Rights Whig to the 24th congress to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George W. B. Towns; was defeated for re-election to the 25th congress, but was re-elected as a Harrison Whig to the 26th and 27th congresses. Because of his fearless and stormy declaration in popular assemblies, he was known as the "War horse of Troup." He moved to Tuskegee about 1850, resumed the practice of law and later settled near Montgomery; was a prominent member of the Union convention that assembled in Montgomery in 1852 and ran for re-election in congress, 1855, but was defeated, after which he retired from public life. Married: (1) to Eliza Cook; (2) Mrs. (Baldwin) Underwood; (3) Mrs. Martha (Herin) Boswell, widow of Thomas Coke Boswell, and daughter of Henry and Sally (McClendon) Herin. Children, by first wife: 1. daughter, m. A. E. Cox, of LaGrange, Ga.; 2. Antoinette Lafayette, m. Benjamin Baldwin; 3. George Cook, lawyer, died from wounds received while in C. S. Army; by second wife: 4. Julius Caesar, planter, student at University of Alabama, 1862-63, Corporal Rucker's escort, C. S. Army, m. Carolina Judith Ellsberry, d. 1871; 5. daughter, d. young; 6. Sallie, m. Cadwalader H. Beale, son of Jessie D. and Tremallah (Neale) Beale, of Suffolk, Va.; by third wife: 7. Mattie Belle, m. — Booth; 8. Cecile; 9. Ludwick H. Last residence: Montgomery County.

ALISON, SAMUEL BEEKMAN, physician, was born August 12, 1867, at Carlowville, Dallas County; son of Joseph Dill and Henrietta (Townsend) Alison, the former of whom was born December 23, 1828, at Summerville, S. C.; served as a surgeon in the C. S. Army with rank of major, fought at Corinth and Vicksburg, and lived at Carlowville after the war; grandson of Dr. Hugh Lee and Mary Catharine (Beekman) Alison, the former of whom was born June 8, 1796, and died December 21, 1882, in Carlowville, was a physician and practiced in the country around Charleston, S. C., until 1833 when he moved to Carlowville, and of Dr. William B. and Henrietta (Reynolds) Townsend, who lived in Dallas County near Selma; great grandson of Jacob and Margaret (Lockwood) Alison, and of Maj. Samuel and Ann (Lee) Beekman, the former an officer in the Revolution; great-great-grandson of Hugh and Dorethea (Smiser) Alison, the former a Presbyterian preacher on John's Island, S. C., who died during the Revolution, of Joshua and Mary (Lee) Lockwood, and of Col. William Lee; great-great-great-grandson of Paul Smiser. Dr. Alison attended village school in Carlowville, taught by Miss Annie Alison; studied medicine at the Kentucky School of Medicine, where he was graduated with first honor June 27, 1889; served eighteen months in the Louisville City Hospital; practiced medicine at Ashbrook, Anderson County, Ky., 1891-1893; then located in Carlowville where he has practiced since that time. He is a Democrat, and a junior warden in the Episcopal church. Married: November 27, 1902, at Carlowville, Emma Knox Lide, daughter of Thomas Evan and Kate Campbell (Knox) Lide, of Richmond; granddaughter of Robert Pugh and Martha Augusta (Savage) Lide, who moved from Darlington, S. C. to Dallas County, cleared and planted large tracts of land, and of William Spann and Sarah Goodwin (McCord) Knox, the former, who came to Dallas County from his home near Sumter, S. C. when quite young, fought in the Indian and Mexican wars, merchandised in Mobile, moved to Selma where he engaged in the cotton business, and died 1871; great-granddaughter of Col. Russell Paul McCord of Lowndes County. Children: 1. Thomas Lide, b. September 20, 1907; 2. Henrietta, b. August 5, 1909, d. November, 1909; 3. Benjamin Reynolds, b. March 10, 1911; 4. Emma Knox, b. March 21, 1913. Residence: Carlowville.

ALLAN, WILLIAM TEMPLE, Episcopal clergyman, for a number of years a resident of Alabama, was born December 15, 1855, at "Balclutha," the colonial home of his father in Clarke County, Va.; son of William Temple and Mary Elizabeth (Bailey) Allan, the former a native of Virginia, B. A. graduate of Princeton university later taking a post graduate course in topographical engineering, served as private secretary to Commodore Jones on the flagship Constitution, ornithologist and botanist; grandson of David Hume and Sarah G. Griffin (Taylor) Allan, the former a graduate of Princeton university, later graduating in law, who retired in order to manage his estates in Virginia, Kentucky, and other states, and of Samuel P. Bailey, of Fauquier County, Va.; great-grandson of Col. Griffin and Mary (Kenyon) Taylor, the former an officer in the Revolution; great-great-grandson of Lady Ann Maitland, of Lauderdale, Scotland. Dr. Allan is descended on his maternal side from Robert Green, of Culpeper County, Va., an immigrant from England in 1719, and on his paternal side from Robert Allan, who emigrated from County Armagh, Ireland, to Virginia, in 1736. He was educated in the country schools of Virginia; taught in West Virginia for one year; was a student at the Theological seminary of Virginia, 1876; removed to Texas where he taught, meanwhile pursuing the study of theology; ordained deacon, 1879; student at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1880-

82; ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Elliott, of Texas, 1883; served at Talladega, Jacksonville, Livingston, Boligee, Gainesville, Gadsden, and again at Jacksonville, 1906-15. He removed to Missouri and later to Texas. He has taken much interest in the work of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans and was chaplain general, 1912. He is an Episcopalian; Odd Fellow; and a Knight Templar. Author: "Episcopal church in politics and religion" and "Basic principles of the Episcopal church." Married: December 2, 1885, to Mrs. Ada (Weissinger) Petty, daughter of Jesse Weissinger, of Dallas County. Children: 1. d. in infancy. Residence: Guthrie, Oklahoma.

ALLDREDGE, ENOCH, farmer and Confederate officer, was born May 16, 1807, in Giles County, Tenn., and died November 22, 1879, in Brooksville, Blount County; son of Andrew and Leah (Chaney) Alldredge, the former a native of North Carolina, who lived in Brooksville at the time of his death in 1850; grandson of Nathan Alldredge, a Revolutionary soldier, and Jerry and May (Curby) Chaney. He came with his parents to Blount County in December, 1816, and was educated in the common schools of that county. He was elected justice of the peace about 1828; served in the Creek Indian War in Florida as a private in Capt. Musgrove's company, in 1836; was elected to the State legislature in 1836; and served in that body through twenty-six sessions. In 1862 he raised a company for the C. S. Army, and at the organization of the Forty-eighth Alabama infantry, was elected its major. He commanded the regiment at Cedar Run, and was seriously wounded, being disabled for further service. He returned to his farm near Brooksville, and resided there until his death. He had seven sons and two sons-in-law in the C. S. Army, and one of his sons was killed at second Manassas, another died in prison at Fort Donelson, and a third was permanently crippled. He was a Democrat, was a deacon and for fifty-eight years was clerk in the Primitive Baptist church. Married: November 18, 1826, to Amelia Pace, daughter of John and Ziffory Pace, who came from Virginia to Alabama and settled in Blount County. Children: 1. John P.; 2. Capt. Andrew J.; 3. Col. Jesse J. (q. v.); 4. William M.; 5. Hiram W.; 6. Garland S.; 7. Missouri A.; 8. Van B.; 9. Elizabeth; 10. James P.; 11. Taylor W.; 12. Clemons G.; 13. D. L. Last residence: Brooksville.

ALLDREDGE, JESSE J., lieutenant-colonel, C. S. Army and farmer, was born in Blount County, son of Enoch and Amelia (Pace) Alldredge (q. v.), both natives of Tennessee, the former came with his parents in December, 1816, to Alabama when a child and was reared on the farm, became a justice of the peace, represented Blount County in the Alabama legislature for sixteen years, State senator, 1851, retiring in 1876, a soldier of the Black Hawk and Seminole Wars, major in the 48th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, wounded, 1862, at the battle of Bull Run, and later in the war period, an aide on the governor's staff; grandson of Andrew J. and Leah (Chaney) Alldredge, the former a farmer, who came to Alabama in its earliest period of settlement, and was the first white man to drive a wagon into what is now Blount County, then inhabited by Indians only, being a religious man he administered to the spiritual welfare of the pioneer families, meetings being held in their cabins. Mr. Alldredge was a soldier in Captain Skinner's company, 19th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, under Colonel Wheeler, but, after six months service, was transferred to the 48th Alabama infantry regiment, and elected second lieutenant, promoted first lieutenant, and after the second battle of Manassas, where he was wounded, was promoted to lieutenant-colonel for meritorious conduct on that field. On account of his battle wounds he was pronounced unfit for further active field duty, and was appointed recruiting officer for northern Alabama, performing this duty until the close of the war. He was a farmer. Married: Manila, daughter of Patrick and Elizabeth (Berry) Scott, the former a native of North Carolina, who removed to Tennessee and thence to Alabama, settling in Blount County and elected first judge of the county, serving twelve years, an officer in the State militia for many years, a farmer, a man of great physical courage, who would step from the bench and flog bullies who came into the community and compel them to keep order. There were children to this union. Among these, P. G., a physician and merchant of Brooksville. Last residence: Blount County.

ALLEN, ARTHUR REDDING, physician, graduated at the Atlanta medical college, 1896, and entered upon the practice that year. Residence: Oswichee.

ALLEN, BASIL M., lawyer, was born December 20, 1858, in Carolina County, Va.; son of the Rev. Littlebury W. and Mary (Martin) Allen. The Allen family came from England to America early in the eighteenth century and located in eastern Virginia. Mrs. Allen was also of English descent. Her ancestors were early settlers in the colony of Virginia. The Rev. Littlebury W. Allen was one of the founders of Richmond College and one of the board of directors. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he was pastor of the Walnut Street Baptist Church of Louisville. Resigning his pastorate, he returned to Virginia and raised a regiment of which he was elected colonel. He served through the entire war, with the exception of ten months when he was held a prisoner at Johnson's Island, and was a witness of the surrender at Appomattox. He was at one time sergeant at arms of the lower house of Virginia legislature prior to the war. He was pastor of four churches at the time of his death which occurred in 1872.

Basil M. Allen was graduated at the age of seventeen from the Agricultural College of Virginia with the highest grade in his class. Soon after, he commenced the study of law in the office of E. C. Moncure, now judge of the county court at Bowling Green, Va. Two years later, in 1878, he went to Hale County where he continued his studies. He read in the law office of Thomas R. Roulhac at Greensboro, and, in 1880, was admitted to the Hale County bar, commencing to practice there in 1881. He was elected a member of the commissioners' court and also a justice of the peace. In January 1882, he moved to Birmingham where he has since practiced law. He was appointed justice of the peace there in March, 1882 and elected for a term of four years in 1884. He is owner of a plantation in the Canebrake region and is an extensive stockraiser. He is the present secretary of the Democratic committee; is chancellor commander of Phoenix Lodge, No. 25, Knights of Pythias; was first exalted ruler of the Elks in Birmingham in 1888 and has since become grand inner guard of the grand lodge of the United States, B. P. O. E. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the I. O. R. M. Married. Residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, CHARLES ALEXANDER, planter and public official, was born May 14, 1846, in Sparta, Hancock County, Ga., and died September 21, 1907 in Montgomery; son of William and Rebecca Ann (Williams) Allen, of Sparta, Ga., who removed, in 1849, to Union Springs, later settling in Montgomery County as a planter. He was educated in the private and public schools of his community; engaged in planting, and while under age, enlisted in the 51st Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army. He served, with six brothers, some of whom were killed, until the close of the war. He again engaged in farming; and also assisted his brother, Joseph, in the warehouse business. In 1884 he was made clerk of the board of revenue of Montgomery County, and served until 1901. He was a Democrat; Mason; a Ku Klux; and a Baptist. Married: (1) to Corinne, daughter of Mason Harwell of Cross Keys and Montgomery; (2) to Elizabeth Beatrice Smith, of Highland Home. Children: by the first wife: 1. Mason Harwell; 2. Fannie, m. Eugene Patterson; 3. George, m. Belle Meadows; 4. Charles A., jr., drowned in Alabama river; 5. Carry, m. J. T. Gartner; children by the second wife: 1. Warren, m. Sarah McCook; 2. Thomas, drowned in Alabama river; 3. Lila, m. John Chisholm; 4. Harry; 5. Sayre; 6. Ruth, m. Will Sankey, jr.; 7. Joe; 8. Edwin; 9. Edith; 10. Mary Hill. Last residence: Montgomery.

ALLEN, CHARLES HODGE, publisher, was born November 11, 1879, at Gainesville; son of Charles Horace and Sibella Auralia (Stewart) Allen, of Gainesville; grandson of Evan and Mary Allen, the former a native of Connecticut, later of Gainesville and Mobile, and of Wiley W. and Elizabeth Stewart, of Gainesville, later removing to Coahoma County, Miss.; great-grandson of Amasa Allen, a native of near Donaldsonville, Conn. The Allens are descended from Samuel Allen, who came to this country from Bridgewater, England, and are related to the same family as Ethan Allen, of Revolutionary fame. Charles H. Allen received his education in the public schools of Livingston, and at the early age of twelve entered as a printer and reporter the office of his father's newspaper, the "Sumter County

Sun," at Livingston. At the age of eighteen he was owner and editor of the "Demopolis Dispatch," a weekly newspaper, and two years later joined the staff of the "Birmingham Age Herald." He then accepted the position of advertising manager of the "Mobile Herald," later accepting the same position with the "Mobile Register" and finally became the general manager of the latter paper. On December 1, 1914, he came to Montgomery as advertising manager of the "Montgomery Advertiser." He and Captain Sheehan bought the entire interest of Frank P. Glass, at which time he became its vice-president, publisher and general manager. He is a Rotarian; member Southern newspaper publishers association, and the Admen's club of the world. Married: November 25, 1903, in Mobile, to Letitia Rundle, daughter of John F. and Lou Alma (Sossaman) Shearer, of Mobile; and fifth great-granddaughter of Richard Clark, who landed on the Mayflower in 1620. She is also a descendant of the Fisher, Grasty, Lightfoot, and Clark families. Children: 1. Charles S.; 2. John S.; 3. Letitia. Residence: Montgomery.

ALLEN, DAVID, soldier of the American Revolution, and a resident of Franklin County; private, but particular service not disclosed; enrolled on March 8, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from September 4, 1833; annual allowance, $60.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

ALLEN, DRURY, SR., pioneer, came with his family to Clarkesville from Edgefield district, S. C., in 1811 or 1812. He brought his household goods on two pack horses and in a rolling hogshead along the pathway through the Indian tribes. He soon removed south of Sugssville and found safety for his family during the Indian troubles in Fort Madison. He was in the expedition led by Capt. Dale connected with the Canoe Fight. Married: (1) Margaret Waite who died in 1818; (2) in 1820, Fannie Webb. Children, by first wife: 1. Josiah, Congregational Methodist minister, b. January 20, 1800, d. December 1891 in Jasper County, Miss., when thirteen years of age enlisted in Sam Dale's Company. 2. Henry, b. in 1801, d. 1893 in Jasper County, Miss., m. (1) Sarah Latham in 1826, who died in 1855, (2) in 1860, died in 1873, settled on Bassett's Creek near Salem; children, 1. William, m. Margaret Montgomery, 2. Margaret, m. William Champion, 3. Sarah, m. Robert Nettles, 4. Miriam, m. Jackson Hall, 5. Amanda, m. William McAddin, 6. Mary Ann, m. John Brown, 7. Martin Van, m. Emily Southall, 8. John Calhoun, d. at Richmond, Va.; in the C. S. Army; 3. Drury jr., b. May 20, 1807, settled in 1850, near Choctaw Corner, about three miles on the road to Claiborne where he still lives, has five sons and four daughters; 4. Nancy; 5. Barbara; by second wife; 6. Bettie; 7. Turner; 8. Susan; 9. Sarah; 10. Wade Hampton.

ALLEN, EDWARD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, and a resident of Franklin County; private N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on March 8, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $60; sums received up to date of publication of list, $180.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

ALLEN, EDWARD PATRICK, D. D., Roman Catholic bishop of the Diocese of Mobile, was born March 17, 1853, in Lowell, Mass.; son of John and Mary (Egan) Allen, the former a native of Edenderry, Kings County, Ireland; grandson of Edward and Mary (Egan) Allen of Philipstown, Kings County, Ireland, and of Matthew and Mary (O'Connor) Egan, of Philipstown, Kings County, Ireland. The Allen, Egan, and O'Connor families suffered severely through confiscation of their property because of their fidelity to the Catholic faith during the religious wars of the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries. The Most Rev. John Allen, Archbishop to Dublin, who was slain by Silken Thomas, son of the Earl of Desmond, in the council chamber of Dublin, in 1535, was a member of this family. The Egan family was hereditary guardian of the Brehon law. The only copy of these laws now in existence was preserved in the Egan household. The O'Connors, who claimed direct descent from the chieftans of that sept, were robbed of their patrimony during the religious wars. John Allen came from Ireland and settled in Lowell, Mass., in 1841. He lived there until his death in 1882. He was in business in Lowell until 1865 and then lived on his farm near the city.

Edward Patrick Allen received his early education in the public schools of Lowell, Mass., and in the Lowell commercial college. He entered Mt. St. Mary's college, at Emmitsburg, Md., and was graduated with honors A. M., 1878. In 1879, he entered the Mount St. Mary's Theological Seminary to study for the priesthood. He was initiated into minor orders in 1880, ordained deacon in September, 1881, and elevated to the priesthood, December 17, 1881, being ordained priest by Right Rev. Thomas A. Becker, of Savannah. He was immediately appointed professor in his Alma Mater, where he taught English and Greek until the spring of 1882. At this time he was called to the east by the bishop of Boston, Most Rev. John J. Williams, D. D., who appointed him an assistant in the cathedral in that city. Later he was assigned to assist Rev. J. S. Cullen at Farmingham, and was appointed chaplain of the state reformatory at Sherborn, Mass. In 1884, at the request of the president and faculty, Father Allen was returned to the staff of Mount St. Mary's college. He was elected vice-president and treasurer of the college in 1884, and president, June, 1885. During his administration, many improvements were made in the college and seminary, and the number of pupils in both departments was greatly increased. The college debt, amounting to sixty-five thousand dollars, was paid and new buildings were erected.

The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Father Allen by Georgetown college in 1889. He visited Europe in that year and Rome in 1892. He was elected fifth Bishop of Mobile in succession to Right Rev. Jeremiah O'Sullivan, D. D., and was consecrated May 16, 1897, in the cathedral at Baltimore, Md., by Cardinal Gibbons who was assisted by Bishop Fitzgerald of Little Rock, Ark., and Bishop Harkins of Providence, R. I. He was installed in his Cathedral Church at Mobile, May 30, 1897. Residence: 400 Government Street, Mobile.

ROBERT L. GLENN

ALLEN, G. C., lawyer. Residence: Gadsden.

ALLEN, HORATIO GATES, teacher, was born at Newburyport, Mass., January 6, 1792, and died August 24, 1862. His father served under Gen. Horatio Gates as sergeant major, and his mother was a Miss Brown. Horatio G. Allen and his brothers, Ephraim and William Brown, were the publishers of a New York paper. He and William removed to Alabama and located at Cahaba, then the capital, where they opened a printing establishment; were the publishers of the Alabama code of 1822 and also of a paper. Later he became a well known teacher of Dallas County. He lived in Marengo County about 1867, and in Clarke about 1871, having taught successfully in both of these places. He was a Democrat; a master Mason; and a Methodist. Married: October 6, 1835, in Dallas County, to Elisabeth, daughter of William and Edith (Rodgers) Stone, of that place. Children: 1. Mary Elisabeth, m. Oliver Perry Slater, of Thomasville; 2. William Brown, d. in 1887; 3. Catherine Josephine, m. (1) Thomas J. Davis; and (2) William H. Lewis; 4. Helen B. C., m. Edmund M. Vick. Last residence: Marengo County.

ALLEN, JOHN HARVEY, JR., jeweller, was born August 21, 1840, at Richmond, Va., and died July 8, 1913, at Anniston; son of John Harvey and Mary (McDonall) Allen, the former a native of England who came to Virginia when he was a young man, was married in Richmond and lived there until he moved to Wytheville, Va., the latter a native of Ireland. He was educated in the public schools of Richmond, Va., and later learned to be a watchmaker and diamond expert. Upon the outbreak of the War of Secession, he joined the C. S. Army in Virginia, and eventually attained the rank of major. He fought under Gen. Stonewall Jackson, and was on the "Alabama," the Confederate vessel which wrought so much destruction to the commerce of the United States, under Admiral Raphael Semmes. After peace was declared, Maj. Allen went to Anniston, then a mere woodland settlement, and for a number of years, was engaged there as a jeweller. He was a resident of Anniston for over thirty years, and during this time served as an alderman. He helped establish the Confederate Home in Alabama and accomplished much for the veterans. He was a Democrat and a Presbyterian, belonged to the Masonic order, to the Odd Fellows, and to the Knights of Pythias. Married: September 20, 1866, at Wilmington, N. C., to Rachel M. Thompson, daughter of James and Rachel (Murray) Thompson of Wilmington, N. C. Children: 1. Minnie T., Little Rock, Ark.; 2. Robert D., Anniston. Last residence: Anniston.

ALLEN, JOSEPH V., business man. Residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, MRS. JOSEPH V., fourth president, Alabama division, Daughters of the American Revolution. Residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, LANG C., member constitutional convention, 1861, from Marion County.

ALLEN, MATTHEW W., librarian, Alabama supreme court library, 1865.

ALLEN, ROBERT, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 66, and a resident of Madison County; Sergeant Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on January 29, 1824, under act of Congress of March 18, 1818, payment to date from October 26, 1823; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $213.54.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

ALLEN, T. M., dentist and author. Dr. Allen compiled a directory of the practicing dentists in the State of Alabama, 1889. He held the degree of D. D. S. Last residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, THURSTON HARVEY, lawyer, was born February 22, 1864, in Fincastle, Botetourt County, Va.; son of John B. and Nancy (Harvey) Allen; grandson of James S. and Rebecca Allen, and of Col. John and Nancy Harvey. His paternal grandparents were natives of Dundrod, north of Belfast, Ireland, while his maternal grandparents were born in Rathangan, County Kildare. The former were Orangemen and strong Protestants, but the latter were Catholics. On emigrating to America they located in Botetourt County. The family seat of the Allens was the "Stone-House," and that of the Harveys was "Cherry Lane." The father of Senator Allen was for years a representative in the Virginia house of representatives, and was for a long period a commissioner of revenue of his county. Col. John M. Harvey was a soldier in the War of 1812. James S. Allen, one of his grandfathers, was for many years president of the county court, holding a commission under George III. Mr. Allen was educated at Beaver Dam academy, the Fincastle high school, and the University of Virginia, LL. B., 1884. For a short period he practiced at Fincastle, but in 1888 he removed to Florence, and has since actively pursued his profession. Until elected to the State senate of 1911 he had never held public office. He is a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and an Elk. Married: Willie Frank, daughter of Dr. John M. and Sallie (Moore) Steele, of Fincastle. Dr. Steele was a prominent physician both in Augusta and in Botetourt Counties, Va. Children: 1. Grace Steele. Residence: Florence.

ALLEN, VASSAR LYLE, lawyer, was born at Tuskegee September 28, 1868; son of George W. and Margaret (Wheat) Allen. His parents resided for many years at Lafayette, but removed to Tuskegee in 1867, where his father engaged in cotton planting. His early boy-hood was spent in Opelika; at the age of fifteen he matriculated at the Agricultural and mechanical college (now the Alabama polytechnic institute), at Auburn, where he graduated, B. S. 1887; was instructor in English and mathematics in 1888, carried post graduate work, and acted as the commandant of cadets with rank of major; in 1888 received the degree of M. S.; from 1888 until the summer of 1893 was professor of English and science in the Georgia military institute at Atlanta; removed to Birmingham and began the study of law under W. R. Houghton; was admitted to the bar October 25, 1893, and has since practiced his profession in Birmingham. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: at Huntsville, June 14, 1899, to Sallie Ward, daughter of Henry S. and Dora (Hereford) Bradford. No children. Residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, VIOLA, actress, was born in Huntsville; daughter of C. Leslie and Sarah (Lynn) Allen, the former a character actor of an old Boston family, the latter of English descent. She accompanied her parents to Boston at the age of three; received her education in that city, at Wykham Hall, Toronto, and at a New York boarding school. At the age of fifteen she made her debut in "Esmeralda" at the Madison Square theatre, New York; later joined John McCullough company, playing Virginia, Desdemona, Cordelia, etc.; played classical, Shakesperean and comedy roles with Lawrence Barrett, Tommaso Salvini, Joseph Jefferson and William J. Florence. For one season she played the leading part at the Boston museum; one year at Empire theatre; spent four years creating and playing roles in "Liberty Hall", "Sowing the Wind", "The Masqueraders", "Under the Red Robe", etc. Starred as Gloria Quayle in "The Christian", 1898; produced "In the Palace of the King", 1900, and "The Eternal City", 1902. Under the management of her brother she began a series of Shakesperean revivals, 1903, and has also produced "The School for Scandal". Married: in 1906, to Peter Duryea. Residence: New York.

ALLEN, W. C., superintendent of education, 1864.

ALLEN, WADE HAMPTON, planter and business man, was born April 16, 1794, in Edgefield District, S. C., and died at Montgomery, June 21, 1851; son of Robert Allen, a Revolutionary soldier, of Edgefield; and grandson of Hezekiah Allen, also a Revolutionary soldier, who was killed by Indians and Tories near that town. He attended Charles Barrett's school in Edgefield; in 1817 came to Montgomery, and lived in the city or its vicinity until his death; possessed great energy and enterprise, having, besides large planting interests, a contract for carrying the mails between Montgomery and Mobile; established a stage coach passenger business between those points; and was interested in a line of steamboats on the Alabama River. He was a Methodist. Married: (1) Kate, daughter of Dennis and Margaret (Hahm) Carpenter, early immigrants from South Carolina to Montgomery County, and (2) Eliza, sister of William, Philemon D., and Daniel Sayre, (q. v.), and daughter of Calvin and Mary (Dickerson) Sayre, who lived at Morristown, N. J., the latter a niece of Gen. Philemon Dickerson, who served under Washington in the American Revolution. Children, by first wife: 1. Ann, m. Dr. Andrew McBryde, (q. v.); 2. Eliza, m. Thomas H. Watts (q. v.); by second wife: 3. William Wirt (q. v.), m. Susan Ball; 4. Wade Hampton, deceased; 5. George Edward, m. Sallie E. Given, lived and died in Montgomery; 6. Joseph Virginus, deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

ALLEN, WELDON GRAY, farmer and legislator, was born November 12, 1870, at Jefferson, Marengo County; son of William Caldwell and Julia (Finch) Allen, the former moved to Alabama from North Carolina early in life, was a farmer, and member of the C. S. cavalry; grandson of John Gray Allen, a native of North Carolina, and of Weldon Daniel and Mary (Simmons) Finch, who lived in Marengo County, and were of English ancestry. He was educated in the common schools of Marengo County; and at Southern university, but did not complete the course. He is a farmer and stock raiser. From 1896 to 1907 he was a notary public and ex-officio justice of the peace. He was a member of the Alabama legislature, 1919, from Marengo County. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Woodman of the World; and Knight of Pythias. Married: Annie Rhee, daughter of Augustus and Mary (Miller) Watts, of Wilcox County. Children: 1. Weldon Gray, deceased; 2. William Caldwell. Residence: Demopolis.

ALLEN, WILLIAM B., grand secretary, grand lodge, Masons, 1823.

ALLEN, WILLIAM WIRT, major-general, C. S. Army, was born in 1835, in New York City, and died November 24, 1894, at Sheffield; son of Wade and Eliza (Sayre) Allen (q. v.). He was educated in the schools of Montgomery and graduated from Princeton university; afterward began the study of law but preferring the life of a planter he never engaged in the practice. He entered the C. S. Army, in 1861, as first lieutenant of the cavalry company of which General Clanton went out as captain. He was elected and commissioned, March 18, 1862, major of the 1st Alabama cavalry, and later in the same year, was promoted to the colonelcy of the regiment. He was slightly wounded at Perryville and severely wounded at Murfreesboro. He was commissioned brigadier-general, February 26, 1864, and took command of a brigade composed of men from several states. At Marietta he was transferred to the command and the brigade composed of the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 9th, 12th and 51st Alabama cavalry regiments, Wheeler's corps, Army of Tennessee, and was in charge of this brigade in the Atlanta campaign. In August, 1864, Crew's Georgia brigade was added to his command and subsequently Anderson's Confederate brigade. He passed into the Carolinas, at the head of this brigade, the commission of major-general was conferred upon him in March, 1865, and he surrendered at Salisbury, N. C., May 3, 1865. He again resumed his planting interests and was appointed adjutant-general of the State in 1870. He removed to Sheffield in 1893. Married: August 13, 1857, to Susan, daughter of George Claiborne and Eliza (Pollard) Ball, sister of Colonel Charles P. Ball (q. v.). Children: 1. Wade; 2. Virginia Ball, m. Henry D. Clayton (q. v.); 3. Charles Ball; 4. Eliza, m. Sydney Lyons, of Mobile; 5. Joseph Virginius; 6. Bettie Lee; 7. Gus Ball; 8. William Sayre; 9. Macon Reynolds, m. Joseph Richard Coleman (q. v.); 10. Charles Pollard, m. Minnie Chitty; 11. Marion. Last residence: Sheffield.

ALLGOOD, MILES CLAYTON, State auditor and commissioner of agriculture and industries, was born February 22, 1878, at Chepultepec, now Allgood's Station; son of Dr. William Barnett Allgood and wife, who was Mrs. Mary Matilda (Ingram) Majors, the former born at Chepultepec, served as school trustee, justice of the peace, and postmaster, was a Confederate soldier, and has been a practising physician since 1870; grandson of Dr. Forest and Temperance (Clayton) Allgood, the former a native of Pickens District, S. C., moved to Murphrees Valley in Blount County in 1836, where he lived until his death in 1900, and was a Primitive Baptist minister for sixty years, and of Council Bruton and Sarah (Bostick) Ingram, the former lived successively at Chepultepec, and at Pulaski, Tenn., and after his death his widow married William Cornelius, and located in Murphrees Valley; and great-grandson of John B. Bostick of Tennessee. Miles C. Allgood was educated in the public schools of Chepultepec and Oneonta; attended the Florence normal school, and completed his course in 1908, with a life certificate to teach in the public schools of the State. He has taught at Chepultepec and at Liberty in Blount County; was elected tax assessor of Blount County in 1901, holding that office by re-election until 1909; and served on State executive committee from 1908 to 1910. In 1908 he was elected superintendent of the live stock department of the State fair at Birmingham; and in 1911 was appointed U. S. farm demonstration agent for Blount County, from which he resigned in 1913. He was elected State auditor 1915, and commissioner of agriculture, 1919. He is a Methodist, an Odd Fellow, and a Woodman of the World. Married: February 1, 1917, at Montgomery, to Willie Randall, daughter of David C. and Annie (Randall) Fox, of that place. Children: 1. Miles Clayton, jr. Residence: Montgomery.

ALLGOOD, STEPHEN CALVIN, teacher and member of constitutional convention of 1875, was born April 8, 1836, at Old Pendleton, now in Pickens County, S. C.; and died in 1915; son of Deforest and Temperance (Clayton) Allgood, the former born at the same place, January 23, 1815, lived in Pickens County until November, 1836, when he moved to Murphree's Valley, Blount County, was for sixty years a Primitive Baptist minister, and died at Oneonta, February 12, 1900; grandson of Barnett H. Allgood, who came from Virginia to South Carolina. He attended the county schools, taught from 1857 to 1861; enlisted in August, 1861 in Co. K., 19th Alabama infantry regiment, under Col. Joseph Wheeler and served until the fall of 1863; served in Lewis's cavalry battalion, 1864, and reached home in May, 1865. He is a Democrat; Primitive Baptist, in which church he has been a minister since 1867; a Mason and Odd Fellow. Married: (1) December 16, 1858, near Chepultepec, Blount County, to Martha Eldridge, daughter of Alva and Sarah Jones, who came about 1835 from South Carolina, and lived at or near Chepultepec; and (2) September 10, 1877, to Nancy M., daughter of Jonathan and Julety Nation. Children: 1. Louelle; 2. Georgiana, m. a Huffstuler, lives at Grandview, Tex.; 3. Miles Pennington, deceased; 4. May Wilick, deceased; 5. Leota Rebekah Ildagit, m. a Neely, lives in Colorado City, Tex.; 6. Clinton Francis, lives at North Birmingham; 7. Sarah Elizabeth, m. a Bowler, lives at Los Angeles, Calif.; 8. Mary Elvira Isadora, m. Tom Jenkins, lives at Oneonta; 9. Remus Marcellus Alfonso, deceased formerly of Yuma, Ariz. Last residence: Oneonta.

ALLSTON, BENJAMIN, Episcopal clergyman and colonel, C. S. Army, was born February 26, 1833, in Charleston, S. C., and died January 15, 1900; son of Robert Francis Withers and Adele (Petigru) Allston, the former a native of South Carolina, graduate of West Point military academy, surveyor general of South Carolina and governor of that State, 1856-57, member of the lower house of South Carolina, 1828, senate 1832; grandson of Benjamin and Charlotte Anne (Allston) Allston; great-grandson of William and Sabina (Atchinson) Allston, and of Capt. William and Anne (Simons) Allston, of South Carolina; great-great-grandson of Benjamin Simons, commanding general of South Carolina in 1769, of William and Esther (LaBruce) Allston, the former collector of customs for Georgetown, S. C., 1843-44, and of John and Deborah Allston, planter of English descent of Craven County, Parish of Prince George, S. C.; great-great-great-grandson of Dr. Joseph and Esther (Robins) LaBruce de Margeouf, of Bretagne, France. Rev. Mr. Allston entered West Point military academy at the age of sixteen and graduated June, 1853. He was assigned to the cavalry corps, served as lieutenant on a Trans-Mississippi expedition; resigned in April, 1858, and engaged in rice planting. At the beginning of the War of Secession he raised a company of cavalry; reported in Richmond; commissioned major of the 19th Mississippi infantry regiment; served as colonel of the 4th Alabama infantry regiment, while Colonel Law was recovering from wounds; appointed lieutenant colonel and sent to East Tennessee where he was wounded; transferred in January, 1863, to the Trans-Mississippi department as inspector general for General Kirby Smith and continued in this capacity as well as chief of the secret service, until the surrender. After the war he again became a planter; was a lay-reader of Plantersville, S. C.; took the order of deacon; began the study of theology and was later ordained. He hood was spent in Opelika; at the age of fifteen he matriculated at the Agricultural and mechanical college (now the Alabama polytechnic institute), at Auburn, where he graduated, B. S. 1887; was instructor in English and mathematics in 1888, carried post graduate work, and acted as the commandant of cadets with rank of major; in 1888 received the degree of M. S.; from 1888 until the summer of 1893 was professor of English and science in the Georgia military institute at Atlanta; removed to Birmingham and began the study of law under W. R. Houghton; was admitted to the bar October 25, 1893, and has since practiced his profession in Birmingham. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: at Huntsville, June 14, 1899, to Sallie Ward, daughter of Henry S. and Dora (Hereford) Bradford. No children. Residence: Birmingham.

ALLEN, VIOLA, actress, was born in Huntsville; daughter of C. Leslie and Sarah (Lynn) Allen, the former a character actor of an old Boston family, the latter of English descent. She accompanied her parents to Boston at the age of three; received her education in that city, at Wykham Hall, Toronto, and at a New York boarding school. At the age of fifteen she made her debut in "Esmeralda" at the Madison Square theatre, New York; later joined John McCullough company, playing Virginia, Desdemona, Cordelia, etc.; played classical, Shakesperean and comedy roles with Lawrence Barrett, Tommaso Salvini, Joseph Jefferson and William J. Florence. For one season she played the leading part at the Boston museum; one year at Empire theatre; spent four years creating and playing roles in "Liberty Hall", "Sowing the Wind", "The Masqueraders", "Under the Red Robe", etc. Starred as Gloria Quayle in "The Christian", 1898; produced "In the Palace of the King", 1900, and "The Eternal City", 1902. Under the management of her brother she began a series of Shakesperean revivals, 1903, and has also produced "The School for Scandal". Married: in 1906, to Peter Dur-yea. Residence: New York.

ALLEN, W. C., superintendent of education, 1864.

ALLEN, WADE HAMPTON, planter and business man, was born April 16, 1794, in Edgefield District, S. C., and died at Montgomery, June 21, 1851; son of Robert Allen, a Revolutionary soldier, of Edgefield; and grandson of Hezekiah Allen, also a Revolutionary soldier, who was killed by Indians and Tories near that town. He attended Charles Barrett's school in Edgefield; in 1817 came to Montgomery, and lived in the city or its vicinity until his death; possessed great energy and enterprise, having, besides large planting interests, a contract for carrying the mails between Montgomery and Mobile; established a stage coach passenger business between those points; and was interested in a line of steamboats on the Alabama River. He was a Methodist. Married: (1) Kate, daughter of Dennis and Margaret (Hahm) Carpenter, early immigrants from South Carolina to Montgomery County, and (2) Eliza, sister of William, Philemon D., and Daniel Sayre, (q. v.), and daughter of Calvin and Mary (Dickerson) Sayre, who lived at Morristown, N. J., the latter a niece of Gen. Philemon Dickerson, who served under Washington in the American Revolution. Children, by first wife: 1. Ann, m. Dr. Andrew McBryde, (q. v.); 2. Eliza, m. Thomas H. Watts (q. v.); by second wife: 3. William Wirt (q. v.), m. Susan Ball; 4. Wade Hampton, deceased; 5. George Edward, m. Sallie E. Given, lived and died in Montgomery; 6. Joseph Virginus, deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

ALLEN, WELDON GRAY, farmer and legislator, was born November 12, 1870, at Jefferson, Marengo County; son of William Caldwell and Julia (Finch) Allen, the former moved to Alabama from North Carolina early in life, was a farmer, and member of the C. S. cavalry; grandson of John Gray Allen, a native of North Carolina, and of Weldon Daniel and Mary (Simmons) Finch, who lived in Marengo County, and were of English ancestry. He was educated in the common schools of Marengo County; and at Southern university, but did not complete the course. He is a farmer and stock raiser. From 1896 to 1907 he was a notary public and ex-officio justice of the peace. He was a member of the Alabama legislature, 1919, from Marengo County. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Woodman of the World; and Knight of Pythias. Married: Annie Rhee, daughter of Augustus and Mary (Miller) Watts, of Wilcox County. Children: 1. Weldon Gray, deceased; 2. William Caldwell. Residence: Demopolis.

ALLEN, WILLIAM B., grand secretary, grand lodge, Masons, 1823.

ALLEN, WILLIAM WIRT, major-general, C. S. Army, was born in 1835, in New York City, and died November 24, 1894, at Sheffield; son of Wade and Eliza (Sayre) Allen (q. v.). He was educated in the schools of Montgomery and graduated from Princeton university; afterward began the study of law but preferring the life of a planter he never engaged in the practice. He entered the C. S. Army, in 1861, as first lieutenant of the cavalry company of which General Clanton went out as captain. He was elected and commissioned, March 18, 1862, major of the 1st Alabama cavalry, and later in the same year, was promoted to the colonelcy of the regiment. He was slightly wounded at Perryville and severely wounded at Murfreesboro. He was commissioned brigadier-general, February 26, 1864, and took command of a brigade composed of men from several states. At Marietta he was transferred to the command and the brigade composed of the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 9th, 12th and 51st Alabama cavalry regiments, Wheeler's corps, Army of Tennessee, and was in charge of this brigade in the Atlanta campaign. In August, 1864, Crew's Georgia brigade was added to his command and subsequently Anderson's Confederate brigade. He passed into the Carolinas, at the head of this brigade, the commission of major-general was conferred upon him in March, 1865, and he surrendered at Salisbury, N. C., May 3, 1865. He again resumed his planting interests and was appointed adjutant-general of the State in 1870. He removed to Sheffield in 1893. Married: August 13, 1857, to Susan, daughter of George Claiborne and Eliza (Pollard) Ball, sister of Colonel Charles P. Ball (q. v.). Children: 1. Wade; 2. Virginia Ball, m. Henry D. Clayton (q. v.); 3. Charles Ball; 4. Eliza, m. Sydney Lyons, of Mobile; 5. Joseph Virginus; 6. Bettie Lee; 7. Gus Ball; 8. William Sayre; 9. Macon Reynolds, m. Joseph Richard Coleman (q. v.); 10. Charles Pollard, m. Minnie Chitty; 11. Marion. Last residence: Sheffield.

ALLGOOD, MILES CLAYTON, State auditor and commissioner of agriculture and industries, was born February 22, 1878, at Chepultepec, now Allgood's Station; son of Dr. William Barnett Allgood and wife, who was Mrs. Mary Matilda (Ingram) Majors, the former born at Chepultepec, served as school trustee, justice of the peace, and postmaster, was a Confederate soldier, and has been a practising physician since 1870; grandson of Dr. Forest and Temperance (Clayton) Allgood, the former a native of Pickens District, S. C., moved to Murphrees Valley in Blount County in 1836, where he lived until his death in 1900, and was a Primitive Baptist minister for sixty years, and of Council Bruton and Sarah (Bostick) Ingram, the former lived successively at Chepultepec, and at Pulaski, Tenn., and after his death his widow married William Cornelius, and located in Murphrees Valley; and great-grandson of John B. Bostick of Tennessee. Miles C. Allgood was educated in the public schools of Chepultepec and Oneonta; attended the Florence normal school, and completed his course in 1908, with a life certificate to teach in the public schools of the State. He has taught at Chepultepec and at Liberty in Blount County; was elected tax assessor of Blount County in 1901, holding that office by reelection until 1909; and served on State executive committee from 1908 to 1910. In 1908 he was elected superintendent of the live stock department of the State fair at Birmingham; and in 1911 was appointed U. S. farm demonstration agent for Blount County, from which he resigned in 1913. He was elected State auditor 1915, and commissioner of agriculture, 1919. He is a Methodist, an Odd Fellow, and a Woodman of the World. Married: February 1, 1917, at Montgomery, to Willie Randall, daughter of David C. and Annie (Randall) Fox, of that place. Children: 1. Miles Clayton, jr. Residence: Montgomery.

ALLGOOD, STEPHEN CALVIN, teacher and member of constitutional convention of 1875, was born April 8, 1836, at Old Pendleton, now in Pickens County, S. C.; and died in 1915; son of Deforest and Temperance (Clayton) Allgood, the former born at the same place, January 23, 1815, lived in Pickens County until November, 1836, when he moved to Murphree's Valley, Blount County, was for sixty years a Primitive Baptist minister, and died at Oneonta, February 12, 1900; grandson of Barnett H. Allgood, who came from Virginia to South Carolina. He attended the county schools, taught from 1857 to 1861; enlisted in August, 1861 in Co. K., 19th Alabama infantry regiment, under Col. Joseph Wheeler and served until the fall of 1863; served in Lewis's cavalry battalion, 1864, and reached home in May, 1865. He is a Democrat; Primitive Baptist, in which church he has been a minister since 1867; a Mason and Odd Fellow. Married: (1) December 16, 1858, near Chepultepec, Blount County, to Martha Eldridge, daughter of Alva and Sarah Jones, who came about 1835 from South Carolina, and lived at or near Chepultepec; and (2) September 10, 1877, to Nancy M., daughter of Jonathan and Julety Nation. Children: 1. Louelle; 2. Georgiana, m. a Huffstuler, lives at Grandview, Tex.; 3. Miles Pennington, deceased; 4. May Willick, deceased; 5. Leota Rebekah Ildagit, m. a Neely, lives in Colorado City, Tex.; 6. Clinton Francis, lives at North Birmingham; 7. Sarah Elizabeth, m. a Bowler, lives at Los Angeles, Calif.; 8. Mary Elvira Isadora, m. Tom Jenkins, lives at Oneonta; 9. Remus Marcellus Alfonso, deceased formerly of Yuma, Ariz. Last residence: Oneonta.

ALLSTON, BENJAMIN, Episcopal clergyman and colonel, C. S. Army, was born February 26, 1833, in Charleston, S. C., and died January 15, 1900; son of Robert Francis Withers and Adele (Petigru) Allston, the former a native of South Carolina, graduate of West Point military academy, surveyor general of South Carolina and governor of that State, 1856-57, member of the lower house of South Carolina, 1828, senate 1832; grandson of Benjamin and Charlotte Anne (Allston) Allston; great-grandson of William and Sabina (Atchinson) Allston, and of Capt. William and Anne (Simons) Allston, of South Carolina; great-great-grandson of Benjamin Simons, commanding general of South Carolina in 1769, of William and Esther (LaBruce) Allston, the former collector of customs for Georgetown, S. C., 1843-44, and of John and Deborah Allston, planter of English descent of Craven County, Parish of Prince George, S. C.; great-great-great-grandson of Dr. Joseph and Esther (Robins) LaBruce de Margeouf, of Bretagne, France. Rev. Mr. Allston entered West Point military academy at the age of sixteen and graduated June, 1853. He was assigned to the cavalry corps, served as lieutenant on a Trans-Mississippi expedition; resigned in April, 1858, and engaged in rice planting. At the beginning of the War of Secession he raised a company of cavalry; reported in Richmond; commissioned major of the 19th Mississippi infantry regiment; served as colonel of the 4th Alabama infantry regiment, while Colonel Law was recovering from wounds; appointed lieutenant colonel and sent to East Tennessee where he was wounded; transferred in January, 1863, to the Trans-Mississippi department as inspector general for General Kirby Smith and continued in this capacity as well as chief of the secret service, until the surrender. After the war he again became a planter; was a lay-reader of Plantersville, S. C.; took the order of deacon; began the study of theology and was later ordained. He served the following churches in South Carolina: Prince Frederick, Prince George, Winyah, Georgetown, Union, and Winnsboro. Married: February 25, 1864, to Ellen Stanley Robinson, of Texas. Children: 1. Adele; 2. Mary D.; 3. Louisa D.; 4. Charlotte, m. Maurice Augustus Moore, of Union, S. C.; 5. Robert F. W., m. M. E. B. Holmes, of Tryon, N. C. Last residence: Winnsboro, S. C.

ALMON, CHARLES POMEROY, lawyer and circuit judge, was born at Moulton, Lawrence County, July 19, 1872; son of William Micher and Bettie (Wasson) Almon, the former a brother of Representative Edward B. Almon (q. v.). Judge Almon was educated in the public schools, and at the Southern university, Greensboro; read law at Moulton; was admitted to the bar, May 3, 1893; practiced at Moulton until September 1899, and at Hamilton until September, 1904, when he located in Russellville, where he continued the practice until he went on the circuit bench in November, 1906, and where he resided until October, 1910, when he located in Florence. He was a member of the house of representatives in 1903, from Marion County; was nominated as judge of the eleventh judicial circuit, in 1906, and elected to fill out an unexpired term of four years; was renominated and elected in 1910, without opposition, for six years; and again elected in 1916 for another term of six years. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; a Knight of Pythias; an Odd Fellow; a Woodman of the World, and a member of the Golden Cross. Married at Booneville, Miss., December 27, 1894, to Mattie Lou, daughter of Lewis and Sallie (Davenport) Greene, and the granddaughter of Robert Davenport, for many years sheriff of old Tishomingo County, Miss. Children: 1. Bessie; 2. William Lewis; 3. Fannie Lou, deceased; 4. Charles Henry; and 5. Martha Davenport. Residence: Florence.

ALMON, DAVID CALVIN, lawyer and member of constitutional convention of 1901, was born near Moulton, Lawrence County, February 11, 1867; son of William M. and Bettie (Wasson) Almon, of Moulton; grandson of John C. and Nancy Wasson of Landersville; and a nephew of Representative E. B. Almon (q. v.). Mr. Almon attended the common schools of Lawrence County, the Baptist institute at Moulton; graduated from the Florence State normal school 1886; studied law in the office of Judge William P. Chitwood, of Moulton; was admitted to the bar in 1887; began the practice at Moulton; was a member of the house of representatives, 1900-01; a member of the constitutional convention, 1901; and was appointed solicitor of the eighth judicial circuit, February 11, 1903. He is a Democrat; was chairman of the county Democratic committee; and has been a delegate to every State convention since 1890. He is a Methodist; a Mason, Knight of Pythias, an Elk, and a member of the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Married: December 25, 1888, at Booneville, Miss., to Annie, daughter of Thomas E. and Elizabeth Miller, of that place. Children: 1. George Curtis; 2. Thomas Clifton; 3. Helen Elizabeth; 4. Louise Kathleen; 5. Annie Fay. Residence: Decatur.

ALMON, EDWARD BERTON, lawyer, circuit judge and representative in Congress, was born April 18, 1860, at Moulton, Lawrence County; son of George Worsham and Nancy Berton (Eubank) Almon, the former brought by his parents from Pulaski, Tenn., to Lawrence County, in 1822; grandson of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Coleman) Almon, natives of Haywood County, N. C., who emigrated first to Pulaski, Tenn., and thence to Lawrence County, the former a soldier in the War of 1812, and of Thomas and Mary (Gibson) Eubank, of Bedford County, Va.; and great-grandson of an Almon immigrant who fought in the Revolutionary War, was captured and carried back to England, and after peace, returned to America and settled in North Carolina. Representative Almon was educated in the common schools of Moulton; the Florence normal school, graduating in 1881; and the law department of the University of Alabama, 1883. He began the practice at Bel Green, in 1884; in 1885 located at Tuscumbia, where in 1886 he formed a partnership with James T. Kirk, which lasted until Mr. Almon was elected judge of the eleventh judicial circuit; was State senator, 1892 to 1894; elected judge of the eleventh judicial circuit in 1898; re-elected without opposition in 1904; was presidential elector from Alabama in 1896; for many years chairman of Democratic committee of Colbert County, and was also chairman of a committee of the good roads association. In 1911 he represented Colbert County in the legislature, and was chosen speaker of the house of representatives. On November 3, 1914, he was elected to the 64th congress from the eighth district, as a Democrat, in opposition to W. E. Hotchkiss, Progressive, and Emil Boeglin, Socialist; re-elected successively to the 65th and 66th congresses. He is a Methodist; a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, a Knight of Honor, a Woodman of the World and an Elk. Married: December 13, 1887, in Tuscumbia, to Luie Clopper, daughter of George K. and Charlotte T. (Beeny) Clopper, of Courtland, but formerly of Philadelphia, Pa. Children: 1. Lottie, m. Walter H. Williams, lawyer, of Tuscumbia; 2. Louise, d. unmarried; 3. George Clopper. Residence: Tuscumbia.

ALMON, GEORGE C., lawyer and probate judge, was born in Lawrence County, March 27, 1852; third son of seven children of George W. and Nancy B. (Eubank) Almon, and a brother of Representative Edward B. Almon (q. v.). Judge Almon received his early education from private tutors; graduated from the University of Mississippi, 1873; has practiced at Franklin, Russellville, and Bel Green; was appointed probate judge of Franklin County, serving until 1887; served in the state senate 1886-87, and 1888-89. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Knight of Pythias.

Married: in 1876, to Modena Burgess, daughter of William Burgess. Children: 1. Susie B. Residence: Russellville.

ALSOBROOK, JESSE, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Greene County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on March 26, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $50; sums received to date of publication of list, $100.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Sumter County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

ALSTON, AUGUSTUS HOLMES, lawyer, and supernumerary circuit judge, was born in Bibb County, Ga., November 17, 1847, and died at Clayton, October 25, 1918; son of Willis and Elizabeth (Howard) Alston, of English descent, the former born in Hancock County, Ga., in 1806, married at Georgetown, S. C., in 1823, and died in Texas, 1849, and the latter a native of South Carolina, who died near Decatur, Ga., in January, 1866; grandson of Robert West and Henrietta (Green) Alston, the former who removed at an early day from Halifax, N. C., to Hancock County, thence later to Florida, but subsequently returned to Georgia, and died at Thomasville, in that State, and of Rev. Thomas Coke and Mariana (Hall) Howard, the former for many years a distinguished minister of the Methodist church; great-grandson of Capt. John and Ann Hunt (Macon) Alston, who lived and died at his home on Fishing Creek, Halifax County, N. C., of William and Mary (Christmas) Green, the former of whom married the widow of Capt. John Alston, and of John and Julia (Hill) Hall, of Wilmington; great-great-grandson of Joseph John and Elizabeth (Chancy) Alston, of Halifax County, and of Gideon and Priscilla (Jones) Macon, of Granville County, N. C., the latter the parents of Hon. Nathaniel Macon, long prominent in the public life of the country. Judge Alston while a native of Georgia, came to Alabama immediately after the War of Secession. He served a short time as a member of Co. C, Ninth Tennessee cavalry regiment, Gen. Basil Duke's brigade, Gen. John H. Morgan's command; was captured at Mt. Sterling, Ky., and remained a prisoner at Rock Island, Ill., until the close of the war. He read law under Cato and Baker at Eufaula; and served two terms as probate judge of that county, having first been appointed, and afterwards elected by a very large majority. When the office of supernumerary judge was created in 1899, he was elected by the legislature to fill the position; in 1904 he was, without opposition, re-elected by the people of the State at large, and again in 1910. He served as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of the 3rd district, and as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Barbour County; was a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: December 17, 1867, to Anna Maria, daughter of Col. Edward S. and Amanda (Alston) Ott, the former of whom commanded a South Carolina regiment in the War of Secession; granddaughter of William Hinton and Elizabeth (Rucker) Alston, of Columbus, Ga.; great-granddaughter of William and Charity (Alston) Alston, the former a member of the provincial congress which met at Halifax, N. C., in April 1776, and a lieutenant colonel of the Third regiment of continentals; and great-granddaughter of James and Christian (Lillington) Alston. Children: 1. Augusta, m. Lawrence Haygood Lee (q. v.); 2. Edward Ott, a business man of Denver, Colo., m. Marion LeSeur; 3. Robert Cotton, a leading lawyer of Atlanta, Ga., and senior member of the law firm of Robert C. and Philip H. Alston, m. Caroline Dubignon; 4. Annie Louise, m. Carl Adams, a stock broker at Prattville; 5. Unnamed infant; 6. Philip Henry, a lawyer in the practice with his brother in Atlanta, m. May Lewis; 7. William Ott, in the insurance business at Atlanta, m. Margaret Wright; 8. Elizabeth Drake, resides at Clayton, unmarried; 9. Augustus Holmes, a lawyer by profession, and lieutenant of infantry, U. S. Army, European War, unmarried; 10. Mildred, died unmarried. Last residence: Clayton.

ALSTON, JOHN M., farmer, was born June 16, 1850, in Georgia, and died in Barbour County; son of James A. and Rebecca J. (Norwood) Alston; grandson of John Alston, and of Caleb Norwood; great grandson of James Alston who married a Yancey, a member of the same family to which the southern statesman and orator belonged, and of John Norwood who came from Wales and settled in North Carolina. The Alstons are descended from an old Georgia family. Mr. Alston's father was born 1815, in Elbert County, Ga., was taken to Marengo County when a lad, and returned to Georgia, in Monroe County, where he lived with his family until his death, in 1853, which was due to a disease contracted during service in the Indian War of 1836. Mrs. Alston was born December 8, 1822, in Charlotte, N. C., lived in Tennessee, Talbot County, Ga., and in Monroe County, Ga., before her marriage, and after her husband's death moved to Sumter County, Ga., then to Barbour County, near Spring Hill, in 1874. After obtaining a fair English education, Mr. Alston began clerking at the age of twenty-one for an agricultural firm of Atlanta. Subsequently he moved to Sumter County, Ga., and farmed for five years; moved near Spring Hill, Barbour County, and became owner of a plantation of three thousand acres. He was a Democrat, attended every county convention during his residence in Barbour County; and was a steward in the Methodist church. Married: April 18, 1883, in Barbour County, Willie B., daughter of Rev. A. J. Briggs. Children: 1. James Briggs, deceased; 2. William B.; 3. Daisy McFarland; 4. Jane Norwood. Last residence: Barbour County.

ALSTON, JOSEPH JOHN, business man, was born May 15, 1835, at Grove Hill, Clarke County; son of William Williams and Mary Haywood (Burgess) Alston; grandson of Lemuel J. Alston; great grandson of Samuel Alston, one of three brothers who came from Wales and settled in Halifax, N. C., in colonial days. He moved to South Carolina and located near the little town of Greenville, the seat of a law school, where William Williams Alston received legal instruction preparatory to his graduation from the law school at Columbia. Two brothers of the English branch of the Alston family, cousins of their Welsh predecessors, were also early settlers of South Carolina. Among the South Carolina members of this family were Washington Alston, poet and artist, Gov. John Alston who married Theodosia Burr, and Gov. Robert Francis William Alston.

Joseph John Alston was prepared in the common schools of Clarke County. He established a boot and shoe manufactory at Selma which he conducted up until the outbreak of hostilities in 1861. He enlisted in an artillery company among the first volunteer troops of Alabama and was assigned to duty at Fort Morgan. He was subsequently given the command, with the rank of captain, of a company of infantry. At the close of the war, Mr. Alston whose property had been confiscated, entered the real estate business. He moved to Tuscaloosa and has continued his business there. Married: a Miss Jones, daughter of Charles B. Jones of Petersburg, Va. Children: 1. Josephine, m. Mr. Maxwell, of Tuscaloosa; 2. Caddie; 3. Samuel F., secretary and treasurer of the Tuscaloosa and Castle Hill Real Estate and Manufacturing Company; 4. George J., senior member of the firm of Alston & Maxwell, jewellers, of Tuscaloosa; 5. Mary Hamilton, a graduate of Tuscaloosa Female College; 6. Henry. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

ALSTON, LEMUEL J., pioneer, was born in 1760, and died in 1836, at Alston Place, near Grove Hill. He moved from Greenville, S. C., and settled on the Tombigbee River, opposite St. Stephens, in 1816. He owned two river plantations, one on the east, and one on the west side of the river. About the year 1827, he moved to a location, one mile and three quarters north east of where Grove Hill was afterwards founded, which became known as Alston place. Married. Children: Six sons and two daughters of which Col. W. W. Alston; b. in 1799, was the only child reared. He resided on the plantation near Grove Hill at the time of his father's death and continued there for several years. He married and after the death of his wife, September 21, 1841, made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Howze, until his death in 1859. Children: 1. Sarah, m. Samuel A. Fitts of Union Town, Perry County; 2. Mary, m. James A. Howze, of Clarke; 3. Laura, m. W. J. Howze of Enterprise, Miss.; 4. Cornelia, d. in 1852, m. J. J. Pegues, of Dallas County; 5. Anna; 6. Emma; 7. William, a resident of Lamar County, Tex.; 8. Thomas, d. in Lamar County, Tex.; 9. Joseph, a resident of Paris, Lamar County, Tex.; 10. Dr. Alfred A., b. in 1840, studied medicine, m. Miss Ulmer, made his residence in Paris, Lamar County, Tex.; 11. Dr. Lemuel L. Alston, settled at Grove Hill as a physician in 1852, later resided at Orrville; m. in 1854, Miss Jackson, daughter of James M. Jackson of Gainestown, had three children: Mary, m. Dr. B. P. Heryer, of Tuscaloosa; Lemuel, a business man of Tuscaloosa; and William W., who while a student in the state university, was shot, February 22, 1878, by a fellow student and almost instantly killed. Last residence: Alston place, near Grove Hill.

ALSTON, SAMUEL FITTS, business man, was born January 6, 1859, in Selma; son of Joseph J. and Louisa Josephine (Jones) Alston, both of North Carolina. When he was fourteen years of age, he moved with his parents to Paris, Tex., where he began work, and within two years had secured the position of deputy clerk in the district court of Lamar County, Tex. In 1879, he settled in Tuscaloosa where he was employed for several years in the express office. He purchased a bookstore with Charles Fitts as partner in 1881. Five years later he sold out his interest and entered with C. N. Maxwell in the jewelry business. He disposed of his interest in that undertaking in the spring of 1887 and became a member of the banking house of J. H. Fitts & Company, and one of the incorporators of the Tuscaloosa and Castle Hill Real Estate & Manufacturing Company of which he was elected secretary and treasurer, and subsequently general manager. In 1896 he was elected secretary and treasurer of the Tuscaloosa Cotton Mill and served in that capacity until the mill was destroyed by fire in 1897. For the next eight years he operated five vehicle and furniture stores in Tuscaloosa, Blockton, Brookwood, Cottondale, and Gordo. He was one of the promoters of the City National Bank and has served as vice president of that institution. He erected the Alston office building, known as "Tuscaloosa's first sky scraper" in 1910. He is a member of the Episcopal church. Married: in 1883, Fannie Fitts, daughter of J. H. Fitts, of Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. James Fitts; 2. Marilou, m. C. M. Rudolph. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

ALSTON, WILLIAM JEFFREYS, lawyer, was born December 31, 1800, near Petersburg, Ga. His parents moved to Abbeville district, S. C., soon after his birth, and resided there until they came to Alabama in 1818. He was a pupil of Dr. Moses Waddell. He taught school in St. Stephens while studying law there. In 1821, he began the practice of law at Linden with competitors such as F. S. Lyon, Ezekial Pickens, and John Rains. He served several years as judge of the county court. He entered the lower house of the legislature in 1836, was returned the next year, and in 1839 began a three years' term in the senate. In 1842, he again entered the house. He was the nominee of his party for congress and was elected in 1849, defeating his competitor, Hon. Calvin C. Sellers, of Wilcox. After his term in congress had expired he was again elected to the legislature in the lower house. After serving this term, he withdrew from public life and resided on his estate. He was a Whig until that party was absorbed in 1855. Last residence: Marengo.

DR. JAMES K. POWERS

ALSTORK, JOHN WESLEY, bishop, African Methodist Episcopal church, was born September 1, 1852, at Talladega; son of the Rev. Frank and Mary Jane Alstork. He attended Talladega college, received the degree of D. D. from Livingstone college, N. C., in 1892, and that of LL. D. from Princeton College, Ind., in 1908. He was ordained A. M. E. in the Zion ministry, in 1882. He became financial secretary of the Alabama conference from 1884 until 1892, was A. M. E., Zion connection, from 1892 until 1900; and was a presiding elder from 1889 until 1900. He was elected bishop, May 14, 1900. He served as a delegate to the Ecumenical conference held in London in 1901, and in Toronto in 1911. He is a trustee of the Livingstone college, of the Lomax-Hannon high and industrial school at Greenville, of the Langridge academy at Montgomery, of the Atkinson college at Madisonville, Ky., of the Censor medical college of Louisville, Ky., and is chairman of the trustees of the Hale infirmary at Montgomery. He is a member of the American Federation of Churches, of the Southern Sociological Congress. He is director of the Loan & Investment company of Montgomery. He is national grand master, F. and A., Ancient York Masons, Colored, and is lieutenant commander of the supreme council, Thirty-third Degree of Masonry. Residence: Montgomery.

ALTMAN, JOHN JASPER, lawyer, was born August 17, 1851, near York, Sumter County, and died January 21, 1905, at Birmingham; son of John Wilson and Sarah (Hitt) Altman, natives of Marion, S. C., and of Sumter County, Ala., the former of whom emigrated to Alabama in 1836, and settled on a farm in Sumter County; grandson of John and Olivia (Flower) Altman, and of John Hitt. The great-grandfather Altman came from Germany at an early day and settled in Marion, S. C. Mr. Altman attended the country schools of the neighborhood until he was sixteen years old, then taught school in the county to gain funds for further schooling. He attended Spring Hill college; Starkville, Miss.; and the University of Virginia, and was graduated in law from the latter place, B. L., 1871. He practiced law at Butler in association with Thomas Cobbs, afterward chancellor of the western chancery division of Alabama, 1871-1875; moved to Livingston, Choctaw County, entering into a partnership with Capt. Samuel H. Spratt which lasted until 1883 when Capt. Spratt was appointed judge of the sixth judicial district of Alabama; served as mayor of Livingston for six years; formed a partnership in Birmingham with Col. J. R. McIntosh, 1886-1899; with John McQueen, later solicitor of Jefferson County, 1889-1893; with Col. W. D. Bulger, 1893-1894; was elected alderman from the sixth ward of Birmingham, 1896, and represented that ward in the council continuously until his death; was elected to the State legislature, 1896-1897; entered into a law partnership with his son, John W. Altman, 1901; was elected chancellor of the northwestern chancery division of Alabama, November, 1904, and served in that capacity until his death. He was a Democratic presidential elector from the sixth congressional district when Cleveland was elected for his first term; was a member of the Baptist church; of the Masons, Knights of Pythias, Elks, and Beavers. Married: February 24, 1876, at Livingston, Cora Adela, daughter of William and Margaret Hulda (Brewer) Lockard, of Livingston; granddaughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Halsell) Lockard, who lived in South Carolina, and of William and Anna (Bates) Brewer, who lived near Greenville, S. C. Her grandparents all moved to Sumter County before Alabama was admitted as a state. Children: 1. Ida Lockard, m. January 26, 1905, A. D. James, resides in Birmingham; 2. John W., lawyer, m. December 20, 1904, Myra B. Webb, resides in Birmingham; 3. Adelaide Beatrice, m. September 26, 1905, John E. Peck, resides in Birmingham. Last residence: Birmingham.

ALTMAN, WILLIAM ALFRED, planter, merchant and member constitutional convention 1901, was born March 9, 1846, in Elmore County; son of John William and Sallie (Hitt) Altman, and brother of John J. Altman (q. v.). Mr. Altman served as corporal in Co. C, 40th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, from March, 1862, to the surrender, in 1865. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1901; for sixteen years, until 1900, was on the committee of roads and revenues of Sumter County, and a member of the house of representatives from this county, 1907. He is a Democrat, and for several years served on the Democratic executive committee of his county. He is a member of the Missionary Baptist church; is a Mason, and Knight of Pythias. Married: (1) to Roxie, daughter of Willis and P. E. Curl, of New York; (2) to Elizabeth S. and (3) to Lula, daughters of John G. and Martha Elizabeth (Colgin) Brown, of Tennessee and Greene County. Children, by first marriage: 1. Lula C., m. T. P. McGowan, deceased; 2. W. H., m. Emmie Owings; by second marriage: 3. J. A.; third marriage: 4. Martha Elizabeth. Residence: York.

AMASON, GEORGE, planter, was a native of this State, details of his birth and ancestry are not available. He represented Sumter County in the house, 1847. Garret says of him in "Public men of Alabama," p. 498, that he was "a bachelor, rather young on the list, had a well set figure, a pleasant face, and was always ready for fun and waggery. He was a Democrat of old stripe, without disguise, although he made no noise about his politics. He died in the zenith of his manhood many years ago."

AMERINE, EDWARD PORTER, druggist, was born in 1868 in Coffee County, son of Miles Henry and Lena (Lee) Amerine, the former a native of Georgia, a soldier in the 47th Alabama regiment, the latter a descendant of one of the Lee family of Virginia; grandson of J. P. W. Amerine, colonel of the 47th Alabama Regiment (q. v.) and captain of the "Montgomery Greys" from 1884 to 1889. He was educated in the schools of Butler and Montgomery Counties; and at the age of fifteen entered the wholesale grocery house of J. R. Warren and company, in Montgomery, where he remained for four years. He went later into the wholesale tobacco business with his father, and then entered the drug business which he carried on for some years. He is a Knight of Pythias and Odd Fellow. Married: Zadie, daughter of W. D. Brown (q. v.). Children: 1. Warren Miles. Residence: Montgomery.

AMERINE, JOHN P. W., major, 37th Alabama infantry; colonel, 57th, also called 54th, Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

AMERINE, MILESS HENRY, merchant and mineral land salesman, was born April 21, 1847, at Camp Hill, Tallapoosa County, died February 15, 1914, in Montgomery, and is buried at Greenville; son of John Porter Warner and Lucy Ann White (Meadows) Amerine, the former a native of Tennessee, probably Paris, removed to Troy where he practised medicine prior to 1861, was colonel of the 57th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, having risen to that rank through successive promotions from a captaincy; grandson of Henry H. and Jane (Porter) Amerine, who lived at White Plains, and of Miless Robley and Susan (Parker) Meadows of Upson County, Ga. The Amerine family were originally from Pennsylvania, whence descendants migrated to Tennessee and later to Alabama. The first American ancestor was John Henry Amerine coming upon the ship "Halifax," from Rotterdam, last from Cowes. His descendant, Abraham Amerine, served in the "Rangers on the frontiers," 1778-83, in Bedford County, Pa. Other descendants fought in the Revolutionary Army. Family tradition preserved the statement that the family was originally from one of the German speaking cantons of Switzerland. Captain Amerine received his education in the schools of Pike County, including a course in the Troy high school. He was for many years a prosperous merchant in Greenville, later removing to Montgomery, where in 1884 he became a member of the firm, J. R. Warren and company, wholesale grocers. Seven years later he entered the land business, specializing in the sale of mineral lands. He was captain of the "Greenville light guards," 2nd infantry regiment, Alabama State troops, from 1876 to 1883; lieutenant-colonel of that regiment, 1883-84; captain "Montgomery greys," of that regiment, 1884-88. During his command of the latter the company became nationally famous for excellence in drill, receiving competitive awards of handsome swords and medals. He was elected to honorary membership in some of the oldest military organizations in the nation. This celebrated old company at various times, while he was captain, was called upon to serve against rioters and strikers in the Birmingham district, including the famous Hawes riot, and also served to restore order during a negro uprising at Sandy Ridge. During the reconstruction disorders Captain Amerine was wounded while aiding in the restoration of white supremacy. He was a Democrat and an Odd Fellow. Married: May 21, 1867, in Elba, to Cynthia Selena, daughter of Charles Stephen and Mary Elizabeth (Broughton) Lee, of that place, the former a native of Virginia, soldier of the Indian Wars, and whose sons were officers in the Confederate Army, related to the distinguished Lee family of Virginia, the latter a native of Georgia, descended from a celebrated English line; granddaughter of Stephen D. Lee, of Virginia. Children: 1. Edward Porter (q. v.), secretary Georgia casualty company, m. Zadie Brown, Macon, Ga.; 2. Mary Elizabeth, m. William Henry Seymour (q. v.); 3. William Henry (q. v.); 4. John Lee, deceased; 5. Elizabeth, deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

AMERINE, WILLIAM HENRY, pharmacist, newspaper writer, commercial railway agent, author, and Red Cross officer; was born June 17, 1878, at Greenville, Butler County; son of Miless Henry and Cynthia Selena (Lee) Amerine (q. v.). Captain Amerine was educated in private and public schools of Montgomery, including the preparatory school of Prof. George W. Thomas, was a cadet at the U. S. military academy, West Point, N. Y., 1898-99; qualified by State board examination as pharmacist and held a position with Steiner and Gordon, of Montgomery. He was later with the Plant system of railway hospitals at Waycross, Ga., and Montgomery, serving with that company during the yellow fever epidemic in the latter city. He was a private in the "Montgomery greys," 1897-98; second lieutenant, "Montgomery true blues," 1908-09; captain, "First field company," Signal corps, Alabama National Guard, 1914-17, the latter being a wireless telegraph company organized and trained by him, the first of its kind in the national guard of the South. For practical service to his company, he erected in 1915, a wireless telegraph station in Montgomery, communicating six hundred miles, the first of its kind in Montgomery. When the government ordered American soldiers to the Mexican border in 1916, Captain Amerine, with his command served there for several months. During the early part of 1917 the company served to maintain communication with and between the U. S. troops while engaged in action with Mexican bandits in Arizona, receiving high commendation from General Plummer for efficiency. Owing to failure to meet the physical tests required for overseas service, Captain Amerine was rejected for active military duty upon America's entrance into the European war, but being desirous to offer his services to his country in some active service he joined the Red Cross and served as an officer in that organization in Italy, Sicily, France and Germany. He was attached to headquarters, Rainbow division, U. S. Army, on the Rhine, for several months after the armistice. He was a reporter on the "Montgomery Advertiser," for several years prior to 1916. Before this he had been a railway clerk and agent in Alabama and Georgia and upon his return to Montgomery from foreign service he resumed that calling, now being commercial agent for the Seaboard air line railway. Author: "Alabama's own in France," being war stories of the 167th infantry regiment, old 4th infantry regiment, Alabama national guard, Rainbow division, in the European War. This work was prepared under the authority of Col. W. P. Screws, commanding the regiment. He is a Democrat. Unmarried. Residence: Montgomery.

AMES, SILAS, physician, was born in Richmond, Va., and died in 1859, in Montgomery. He came to Montgomery County in 1830 and practiced his profession there. He was a contributor to the medical journals of the time, and his views on the fevers of the South, cerebro spinal meningitis, and diseases of this type had great weight with the profession. Married: Sarah Tarlton, who died in 1853. Children: 1. a daughter, m. Dr. G. McCarthy Oliver of Montgomery; 2. a daughter, m. Thomas N. LeBaron of Mobile; 3. Whiting Ames, b. December 31, 1853, in Montgomery. He was prepared in the Spring Hill College and at the Virginia Military Institute. He moved to Mobile in 1865 and has since made his home in that city. In 1870, he entered the employ of Tarlton, Ledyard & Company, cotton merchants of Mobile, and remained with that firm for several years. He was elected clerk of the circuit court of Mobile for a term of six years in 1886. He is a Democrat and has served as delegate to several democratic state conventions. He belongs to the order of Knights of Pythias. Married: April 26, 1883, Helena P. Maguire, of Mobile, daughter of P. G. Maguire. Last residence, Montgomery.

AMINET, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 81, and a resident of Madison County, private Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on January 5, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment received to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. The Democrat, Huntsville, April 11, 1833, contains the following obituary:

"Suddenly at his residence in this county, on the 30th of March, Mr. John Amonit (sic), in the Eighty-second year of his age—thus another revolutionary spirit has sunk into its rest—Rarely are we called to record the death of a more virtuous man.—He has been a citizen of this county upwards of twenty years. In the domestic circle, he was a kind and tender father, and affectionate companion, a social and obliging neighbor, much beloved by numerous friends, and enemies he had none. In youth, he boldly met the foe and nobly defended the cause of liberty—few have ever so well prepared for their last great change—he settled his earthly concerns—ate a hearty supper—called his family around him—addressed the throne of grace—lay down in perfect composure—fell asleep in the arms of his Saviour, and awoke in the Paradise of his God. Thus died Mr. Amonit, without a groan, and left a wife, four children and numerous friends to mourn their loss, which is his infinite gain, and he now reaps the just reward of his labors."

This name is variously spelled as will be noted. It is also found as Amonet, Ammonet, Amonnet, Amonnette, Ominett, Ominet.

AMOS, MILTON, physician and surgeon, was born in 1781, in Maryland, and died in Escambia County, in 1875. He was educated in Maryland and received his medical training at a college in Philadelphia, Pa. In 1818 or 1819 he came to south Alabama and located first on Cotton Bluff, about twenty miles below Brooklyn, whence a year later he removed to the latter place. In 1835 he changed his location to Belleville, finally removing to Milton, Fla., in 1850, which town was named for him. Married: in 1818 or 1819, in Jones County, Ga., to Miss Reese. Last residence: Escambia County.

ANDERSON, ALFRED, physician, was born in Rockville, Md., September 2, 1800, and died in Lowndesboro, November 29, 1849; son of Col. Richard and Anne (Wallace) Anderson, of Maryland; grandson of Richard, sr., and Priscilla (Briscoe) Anderson, and of William and Susannah (Young) Wallace, all of Maryland, both families furnishing revolutionary soldiers to the Maryland line. He was educated in the Rockville schools and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with the degree of M. D. He removed to South Carolina in the early thirties, and from there to Livingston. Later he acquired property in Lowndes County, and located in Lowndesboro, where he resided until his death. He was an Episcopalian. Married: in 1840, at Brewersville, near Livingston, Elizabeth Ann, daughter of Henry and Susannah (Brewer) Bolling, the latter the widow of Samuel Bolling, brother of Henry and both members of the distinguished Bolling family of Virginia. Children: 1. Richard Henry, deceased; 2. Susan Juliet, m. Dr. William Bonnell Hall, sr. Last residence: Lowndesboro.

ANDERSON, ALLIE CLETUS, teacher, was born August 9, 1886, at Watford, Geneva County; son of William Thomas and Mary Jane (Woodham) Anderson, of Georgia, who removed to Dale County, previous to the War of Secession; grandson of Leonidas and Cola (Gray) Anderson, the former a Confederate soldier, killed in the war, and of Robert Woodham, Confederate soldier; great-grandson of John Gray, an Englishman, who served in the Revolution, on the American side, also in the War of 1812. He was educated in country schools; the high school, at Hartford, graduating 1906; Howard college, graduated A. B., 1912; elected principal of Barbour County high school, July, 1912; has been teaching in country and graded schools of Southeast Alabama since 1904. He is a Democrat; a Mason; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; and a Baptist. He is unmarried. Residence: Clio.

ANDERSON, CALVIN PRICE, teacher and legislator, was born November 7, 1875, at Cloverdale, near Florence, Lauderdale County; son of John A. and Marguerite (Anderson) Anderson, of Cloverdale. He was educated in the common schools of his county, at the State normal college, Florence, graduating from advanced course in pedagogy, 1896. Engaged in teaching, August, 1896; representative in legislature, 1900; author of bill appropriating $10,000, for repairs and enlargement of the Normal college, Florence, approved December, 1900; tax commissioner for Lauderdale, 1901. He has since the expiration of that official service pursued the profession of teaching in Lauderdale and Madison Counties. He is a Democrat, and a Methodist. He is unmarried. Residence: Florence.

ANDERSON, CHARLES D., colonel, 21st Alabama infantry; major, colonel, 20th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

ANDERSON, DECATUR C., lawyer, came from Tennessee to Marengo County about the year 1840. He represented that county in the general assembly of 1843. He moved to Mobile several years later and was elected solicitor of the judicial circuit from 1851 until 1855. After his term of office expired, he practiced law in partnership with the Hon. James Bond, late circuit solicitor, in Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

ANDERSON, EDMUND, Presbyterian minister, was born in 1816, in South Carolina, and died in September, 1885. He graduated at Franklin college, 1838, and at Columbia theological seminary, 1844. He began preaching in Mississippi, removed to Alabama in 1850, serving Pisgah and Mt. Pleasant until 1865. He spent the rest of his life in active missionary work in North Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama.

ANDERSON, EDWARD BUIST, teacher, was born February 1, 1868; son of James Dorroh and Sarah Scarbrough (Dudley) Anderson. He prepared in the schools of Huntsville, and received the degree of B. M. E. in 1885, and that of A. M. in 1889. He was instructor in mathematics and post adjutant at the University of Alabama from 1888 until 1889, and teacher of mathematics in Marion military institute from 1891 until 1893. He was later employed in the United States Court of Appeals at New Orleans, La., and afterward engaged in farming. He recently returned to teaching at Marion institute. Married: July 24, 1901, May Murfee. Residence: Marion.

ANDERSON, GEORGE SMITH, Baptist minister, who retains his residence in Alabama but whose work is conducted from an office in Little Rock, Ark., was born February 5, 1847, at Tomahawk, Pittsylvania County, Va.; son of Wat Otey and Nancy (Smith) Anderson, both of Virginia; and grandson of Jesse and Polly (Arrington) Anderson, of Franklin County, Va., and of George and Susan (Atkins) Smith, of Pittsylvania County, Va. Rev. Mr. Anderson was educated in the country schools, Richmond college, Va., and Southern Baptist theological seminary, Greenville, S. C.; was licensed as a preacher in Virginia, 1867; ordained in Florida, 1872; has preached in Virginia, Florida, and Alabama, organizing or re-organizing churches at Demopolis, Lowndesboro, Hayneville, Newbern, and other places, and establishing Bible schools in Alabama and Mississippi; and is now field worker for the General association of Baptist churches of America. He was a corporal in Company C, 46th Virginia volunteers; later joined Gen. J. H. Morgan's cavalry; and in 1864 was in the secret service. He is a Democrat and a Mason. Author: "Sermon builder," 1892; "Sermon science," 1900; "Bible students primer," 1906; "Science of literature," 1912; "Adner Ward," 1910; and editor of the Landmark series of Sunday school publications and helps. Married: May 1, 1872, to Isabel Hunt, daughter of Rev. Daniel and Martha (Hunt) Speigner, at her parents' home in Orangeburg, S. C. Children: 1. George S., m. Margaret Winston, and is now deceased; 2. Daniel S., m. Alice Morris; 3. Paul O., m. the widow of his brother George; 4. Marion D., m. James Walker, of New Orleans; 5. Isabel S., m. Dr. J. C. Flippin, University of Virginia; 6. Mattie L., m. Wm. Hardie, jr., of Birmingham; 7. Benjamin N.; 8. James W., 9. William R. Residence: Newbern, Ala., and Little Rock, Ark.

ANDERSON, H. M., Presbyterian minister, died in October, 1888, in St. Louis; son of Rev. J. S. P. Anderson, a Presbyterian minister of St. Louis. He was educated in St. Louis; practiced law, 1861-69; entered the Union theological seminary; was licensed by Nashville presbytery, June 14, 1871; ordained by East Hanover presbytery, October 25, 1873; preached in Virginia and Florida; removed to Alabama and supplied churches at Prattville, Lowndesboro, and Hayneville. He was married and there were several children born of this union. Last residence: Prattville.

ANDERSON, JAMES THOMAS, chemist, was born December 1, 1850, at Allensville, Todd County, Ky.; son of Francis Asbury and Mary Jane (Magill) Anderson who lived at Allensville, Ky.; grandson of Thomas Anderson, of Dinwiddie County, Va., where his son Francis was born, later of Barren County, Ky., and of James Magill who lived near Stanford, Ky. He obtained his early schooling at Allensville, Ky., and near Bowling Green, Ky.; was graduated from Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., B. A., 1872; studied chemistry, botany, physics and astronomy at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., receiving the degree of Ph. D., 1879; attended Berlin university, Germany, studying organic chemistry by lectures and in the chemical laboratory under Prof. Dr. A. W. Hofmann. He taught in Goliad institute, Texas, 1875; was tutor in Vanderbilt university, 1876-1879; professor of chemistry, physics and astronomy in Central college, Fayette, Mo., 1879-1886; began service on the chemical staff of the Alabama agricultural experiment station of the Alabama polytechnic institute, April 1, 1888, first as first assistant chemist, then as associate chemist and finally as chemist in full rank; was acting state chemist during the absence of the state chemist in Germany, 1900-1901; acted as supply during temporary vacancies in the chairs of German and geology in the Alabama polytechnic institute; and was a member of the lecture staff of the farmers' summer school of that institute. He is a Methodist, for more than twenty years was a member and treasurer of the board of stewards of the Auburn Methodist church, for twelve years was a member of the board of district stewards of Montgomery district, Alabama conference, and was a lay member of the Alabama conference from the Montgomery district, 1903-1904. He is a Mason with all the degrees conferable by the blue lodge, the Royal Arch chapter, and the commandery, has been a representative in the grand lodge of Masons since 1909, and in the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons since 1911. He is also a Knight of Pythias, has served as chancellor commander several times, and was a member of the grand lodge in 1909 and 1913. Married: May 8, 1879, at Nashville, Tenn., Sallie Atkins Mizell, daughter of Rev. Alpheus and Mary Arabella (Atkins) Mizell of Nashville. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, entering on the Atkins' line. Her great-great-grandfather, Robert Atkins, sat in the House of Burgesses of Virginia. A paternal ancestor was one of Gen. Lafayette's aides. She is also a United Daughter of the Confederacy, three uncles having been killed in the War of Secession. Children: 1. James Edgar, b. September 26, 1880, d. September 18, 1881. Residence: Auburn.

ANDERSON, JOHN CRAWFORD, lawyer, circuit judge and chief justice supreme court of Alabama, was born at Burton's Hill, Greene County, August 5, 1863; son of Dr. John Crawford and Elizabeth (McAlpine) Anderson, the former a native of Spartanburg District, S. C., who removed in 1839 to Greene County; graduate of Jefferson medical college at Philadelphia; served in the Mexican War from Alabama as lieutenant, and promoted regimental surgeon; grandson of James Mason and Mary Vernon (Miller) Anderson, both of Spartanburg, and of William A. and Ann (Watson) McAlpine, of Greene County; great-grandson of Maj. David Anderson, a native of Pennsylvania, to which his parents had emigrated from Scotland, and by whom he was carried to Spartanburg, S. C., where he held both civil and military office under the Colonial government, and, after the Declaration of Independence, was a private soldier, captain and major in the Revolutionary Army, and whose wife was a daughter of Col. Mason, also an officer of the Revolutionary Army, and also great-grandson of Solomon McAlpine and of John Watson, who were among the first settlers of what is now Greene and Hale Counties. Judge Anderson was educated in the public schools, and academies of Greene County, and in the University of Alabama, but he did not graduate in the academic department. He took a course in the law department of the University, from which he graduated in 1883, with the LL.B. degree. He practiced his profession in Linden and Demopolis, 1886 to 1895; was appointed and served as judge of the first judicial circuit, 1895 to 1904; elected associate justice of the supreme court in 1904 for six years; re-elected November 8, 1910; on January 15, 1914, commissioned chief justice to succeed James R. Dowdell, who had resigned; elected November 3, 1914, to complete Judge Dowdell's term, which expired in 1916. He is a Democrat; was a member of the executive committee of Marengo County for four years; and alternate presidential elector in 1892. He is a Presbyterian; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: February 24, 1897, at Tuscaloosa, to Mary Bird, daughter of Capt. E. B. and Julia (Glascock) Martin, of San Marcos, Texas, the former a captain in the C. S. Army. Children: 1. Julia; 2. Elizabeth. Residence: Montgomery.

ANDERSON, JOHN MONROE, planter, was born March 3, 1834, in Monroe County, Tenn.; son of John, sr., and March (Coker) Anderson, the former a native of Virginia, the latter a native of Tennessee, who removed at an early date to Calhoun County, where he engaged in extensive planting with slave labor; grandson of William Anderson, a Revolutionary soldier. He was educated in the common schools of Calhoun County; engaged in planting, until 1861, when he enlisted in Co. E, 1st Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army, and was Gen. Wheeler's escort. He was made captain of Co. E, on the promotion of Captain Reese to regimental command; served through the Atlanta, South Carolina, into North Carolina campaigns, where the command was surrendered. He returned to Calhoun County, resumed farming, and in 1865, was elected sheriff, but resigned the office rather than levy on the property of the ruined people of his county, many of them his comrades-in-arms, or their widows. In 1867, he removed to Montgomery, where he located permanently. He was elected to the house of representatives in 1886. He was a Whig, but after 1865, a Democrat; a Mason. Married: in 1869, to Clementine J., daughter of Rev. Alexander A. and Ellen (Anderson) Wells, of Calhoun County, the former a minister of M. E. church, South. Last residence: Montgomery.

ANDERSON, ROBERT W., Methodist minister; member of the North Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal Church. Residence: Sylacauga.

ANDERSON, SVEN JOHN, merchant, was born in Sweden, in August, 1829; son of Peter and Margaret (Svenson) Anderson, natives of Sweden. He was reared on a farm, and received his education in the common schools of Sweden. In 1849 he came to America and located in Wayne County, Miss. whence he removed, in 1851, to Mobile. There he engaged in the grocery business for eleven years. He served in the home guards in the War of Secession. On close of hostilities he engaged in dealing in grain and feed, and removed to Montgomery in 1872, where he engaged in the mercantile business until his death. Married: in 1856, to Margaret H. O'Neal. Children: 1. Olivia E.; 2. Octavia, m. C. E. Whetstone of Montgomery; 3. John M.; 4. Jeannette, m. C.

R. Wescott; 5. Albert Massie; 6. Charles Frederick; 7. William O. Last residence: Montgomery.

ANDERSON, WILLIAM HENRY, physician, was born May 6, 1820, at Norfolk, Va., and died November 14, 1887, at Mobile: son of Leroy Hammond and Hannah (Southgate) Anderson, the former a classmate of John Randolph of Roanoke, Va., and Gov. Tazewell, at William and Mary College, and one of the founders of the University of the South, Suwanee, Fla.; grandson of James Anderson, who was King's armorer at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, and was taken prisoner by the British because of his services as artificer to the Americans; and of Wright Southgate, an officer in the British navy, who emigrated to America. The Andersons are of Scotch-Irish descent and came to this country about two hundred years ago. Robert Anderson, uncle of William Henry, and adjutant-general in the War of 1812, at one time made a gallant dash with three hundred men and put to rout three thousand British troops.

William Henry Anderson received his early education from private tutors under his father's direction. He was graduated from William and Mary college, 1841, and from the University of Virginia, M. D., 1842. He became resident physician at the Baltimore almshouse hospital, 1843, and later spent a year at the University of the City of New York, visiting Bellevue hospital daily with a private instructor. From 1846 until late in 1849, he studied medicine and natural history in Europe, spending a year in Paris attending the lectures of Roux, Velpeau, Jobert, Couveilhier, Andral, Magendie, and Claude Bernard. On his return to America, he practiced in Mobile. From 1853 to 1857, he was associated with Dr. G. A. Ketchum. He took an active part in the organization of the Medical college of Alabama, and was professor of physiology from its foundation in 1858, until he became dean of the faculty in succession to Dr. I. C. Nott, the first dean.

Dr. Anderson was a member of the original committee appointed by the State Medical Association to ascertain the number of insane persons in the state, whose report resulted in the establishment of the Alabama insane hospital, opened at Tuscaloosa, July, 1861. He entered the C. S. Army as surgeon of the Twenty-first Alabama regiment, and after three months service, was made medical purveyor of the military district commanded by Gen. Bragg. He established a chemical depot at Montgomery, and in 1865, when Gen. Wilson was threatening that city, moved twenty-eight carloads of medical stores to Macon, Ga., where he was overtaken when Gen. Wilson raided that city. He was a member of the State Medical Association of the Mobile Medical Society and of the American Medical Association. He is author of "A Detail of Experiments, by Magendie and Bernard, on Living Animals," American Journal of Medical Sciences; "Scarlet Fever," New Orleans Medical Journal; "A Biographical Sketch of the Late I. C. Nott," and numerous other articles. He was one of the medical directors and examiners of the Alabama gold life insurance co., and was an Episcopalian. Married: December 24, 1852, Ann Louisa Witherspoon, daughter of Dr. John Ramsey and Sophia (Graham) Witherspoon, of North Carolina, and a descendant of John Witherspoon, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Children: 1. Clara Southgate, Mobile; 2. Leroy Hammond, d. in infancy. Last residence: Mobile.

ANDERSON, WILLIAM M., Baptist minister, was born August 17, 1867, at Mt. Vernon, Ky.; son of Rev. Abijah and Margaret (Seale) Anderson, of Rockcastle, Ky.; grandson of Rev. William, sr., and Nancy (Cheek) Anderson, of East Tennessee. He was educated in the rural schools of Estill and Madison Counties, Ky.; received the B. S. degree from Carson college, Jefferson City, Tenn., 1895, and graduated from the Southern Baptist theological seminary, Louisville, Ky. He began preaching in 1892, while still a student; his first church call was to the First Baptist, Oklahoma City, Okla., where he remained nine years; Pater Park church, St. Joseph, Mo.; First church, Dothan; Fifty-sixth, Birmingham. He is a Democrat and a Baptist. Married: December 31, 1896, at Evergreen, La., to Mary Octavia, daughter of Joshua Burdett and Eugenia (Pearce) Kemper, descendants of Revolutionary soldiers. Children: 1. Paul Kemper; 2. Eugenia; 3. William Clark. Residence: Birmingham.

ANDERSON, WILLIAM STRUDWICK, lawyer and circuit judge, was born February 27, 1848, at Demopolis; son of Decatur C. and Rebecca (Strudwick) Anderson (q. v.). He had excellent educational advantages during his earlier years, four of which were spent under Prof. Henry Tutwiler at Green Springs school. About the close of the war, he entered the Virginia military institute at Lexington for one term; returned to Mobile to study law in his father's office; in 1872 graduated in law at Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn.; and in the same year was admitted to the bar. He immediately located in Mobile in practice with his father, and continued until 1895, when appointed circuit court judge to fill an unexpired term of Judge James T. Jones, and was elected in 1898, and served six years. He was a Presbyterian; a Knight of Pythias; an honorary member of the "Mobile Cadets" in which organization he was formerly first lieutenant. Married: February 7, 1882, to Warren, daughter of Warren P. and Martha Anderson, whose ancestors were of Virginia and Kentucky ancestry. Warren P. Anderson served in the Seminole War. Residence: Bay Minette.

ANDREW, EDGAR CECIL, druggist, was born October 3, 1853, in Snowdown, Montgomery County, and died in Montgomery, October 3, 1916; son of James Timothy and Harriet Mildred (Taylor) Andrew; grandson of William and Ann Scott (McGehee) Taylor of Snowdown, and of Dr. Moses and Ann (Walton) Andrew of Lowndes County, the latter a member of the noted Walton family of Georgia; great-grandson of Abner McGehee of McGehee's Switch (q. v.); first-cousin of Bishop James O. Andrew, M. E. church, South. He was educated in the private schools of Montgomery, headed respectively by Professors Savage, Sobieski, Lipscomb, Bragg and Miss Kellogg. He studied pharmacy, and received his certificate as a druggist, in 1867, beginning his career as a clerk in Metcalf's drug store. He entered business for himself on Commerce street, and later removed to Court Square, where he conducted a successful drug business until his death. He was a charter member of the Montgomery Greys, at their re-organization after the War of Secession; a Democrat; a Knight of Pythias; and an Episcopalian. Married: November 17, 1881, in Montgomery to Fanny Sayre, daughter Charles Henry and Fanny Adelaide (Sayre) Schroeder, the former of Baltimore and the latter of Mobile, a granddaughter of William and Frances Marsden (Baker) Sayre, of Connecticut Farms, New Jersey, among the early settlers of Montgomery, and one of the founders of the First Presbyterian church. He built the "First White House of the Confederacy," and here entertained Lafayette, on his visit to Montgomery in 1825. Children: 1. Edgar Cecil, jr., died in infancy; 2. Elizabeth, m. Richard Scott Goldthwaite; 3. Mildred Taylor, m. Dr. William Beverly Westcott. Last residence: Montgomery.

GENERAL EDMUND W. RUCKER

ANDREW, JAMES OSGOOD, bishop, Methodist Episcopal church south, was born May 3, 1794, in Wilkes County, Ga., and died March 1, 1871, in Mobile; son of Rev. John and Mary Overton (Cosby) Andrew, the former a native of Midway, Liberty County, Ga., and a soldier in the Revolutionary War, a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, and a school teacher; grandson of Benjamin Andrew of Midway, Ga., and of Charles and Mary (Overton) Cosby, of Covington, Ga.; great-great-grandson of Sir Robert Overton. The Andrew and Cosby families both came originally from England. The Andrews came to America with the Dorchester colony which settled in Massachusetts, moved later to Dorchester, S. C., and finally to Liberty County, Ga. The Cosbys first settled in Virginia.

James Osgood Andrew received his early education in his father's school. As he was the eldest of a large family, he was forced to leave school after a short attendance. He entered the ministry early in life; was licensed to preach in 1812; was appointed to the Salt Ketcher Circuit as assistant preacher, and a year later, to Bladen Circuit as preacher. At that time, Georgia was included in the territorial limits of the South Carolina Conference, and his ministry was for many years in that state. He was ordained deacon in 1816, and elected bishop in 1832 by the general conference at Philadelphia.

The holding of slaves by his wife was the immediate occasion of the division of the Methodist Episcopal church into the Northern and Southern branches. The long controversy over slavery in the church came to a head in 1844 when Bishop Andrew, who had recently married a lady who owned slaves, was asked to resign. His resignation was prevented by the Southern delegates who protested against the action of the general conference. The final decision of the matter resulted in the division of the church and property, and in May, 1846, the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was organized in conference at St. Petersburg, Va. Bishop Andrew was elected senior bishop of this body and presided over it until his death. In 1866, he retired from active duty at his own request, because of ill health.

He was a frequent contributor to the publications of the Methodist Episcopal church, published "Andrew's Miscellanies" and "Family Government." Married: May 1, 1816, in Charleston, S. C., Ann Amelia, daughter of Alexander and Katherine McFarland of Charleston, S. C., who were of Scotch descent and came from England to Charleston, S. C., early in life. Children: 1. Elizabeth Mason, d. near Oxford, Ga., in 1857, m. Robert Watkins Sovett; 2. Sarah Howard, d. in Auburn, 1895; 3. Henrietta Lucy, d. near Oxford, 1862, m. Thomas Meriwether; 4. Catherine Amelia, d. in Charleston, S. C., in infancy; 5. Ann Amelia, d. in Savannah, Ga., in infancy; 6. Mary Overton, d. in Augusta in infancy; 7. Mary Catherine, deceased; 8. Octavia Osgood, m. John Wesby; 9. Rush, Mobile; 10. James Osgood (q. v.), d. in Gadsden, May 27, 1907, m. Mary Gray, of Covington, Ga. Last residence: Mobile.

ANDREW, JAMES OSGOOD, Methodist minister, was born at Oxford, Ga., and died May 27, 1907, at Gadsden; son of James Osgood and Ann Amelia (McFarland) Andrew (q. v.); grandson of John and Mary Overton (Cosby) Andrew, of Covington, Ga., and of Alexander and Katherine McFarland of Charleston, S. C., who were of Scotch ancestry; great-grandson of Benjamin Andrew, and of Charles and Mary (Overton) Cosby; great-great-great-grandson of Sir Robert Overton. James Osgood Andrew, jr., prepared in a school in Oxford, Ga., then entered Emory college. He left without finishing his course in order to join the C. S. Army. He returned to Emory college after the war was over, and was graduated there. He served under Lamar in Cobb's Legion of Georgia troops and was wounded at the battle of Sharpsburg. He became a minister of the gospel, a member of the Alabama conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and filled several important stations until the failure of his health forced him to give up his work.

He was for four years editor of the "Alabama Christian Advocate," published in Birmingham by the Alabama conference. He also contributed many articles to current journals and wrote several poems which he never published. He was agent for the Southern University, Greensboro, for several years, was a Democrat and a Mason. Married: At Apple Grove, Ga., 1872, Mary Cynthia, daughter of Rev. Albert and Pamela (Thomas) Gray, of Apple Grove, near Covington, Ga. Children: 1. Annie Gray, deceased; 2. Elizabeth Howard, m. Walter Evans Striplin, has three sons, resides at Gadsden; 3. James Osgood, Gulfport, Miss.; 4. Albert Hilary, Birmingham. Last residence: Gadsden.

ANDREW, W. G., captain, C. S. Army. Residence: Montgomery.

ANDREWS, ALLEN SKEEN, Methodist minister, president of Southern university, was born August 18, 1824, at "Eden," the country home of his father in Randolph County, N. C., and died in Union Springs, December 4, 1898; son of Hezekiah and Delany (Dukes) Andrews, the former spending his life of seventy-two years as a farmer near Ashboro, N. C., and of maternal ancestry who served in the Revolutionary War, Capt. Brit Fuller of Gen. Greene's army being a near relative. He was reared on a farm in his native state; attended common schools; and graduated at Trinity college, being tutor as well as student, A. B., 1854; and received the honorary degree of A. M., 1857, from Centenary college, La. Before completing his college course he began teaching in 1845, and joined the North Carolina conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South; from 1850 to 1852 he was a professor in the Greensboro female college; after graduation he was transferred in 1855 to the Alabama conference, and was in charge of Glenville collegiate institute from 1855 to 1857; president Southern university at Greensboro, 1870-4, and 1883-1894; and a delegate in 1881 to the Ecumenical conference in London. Dr. Andrews served pastorates at Mobile, Eufaula, Dayton, again at Mobile, Montgomery, Opelika, Selma, and Union Springs. It was while at the last named place that he died and he is there buried. In 1881, the "Alabama Christian Advocate" was established at Birmingham, and Dr. Andrews became the first editor. The Southern university conferred the degrees of D. D., 1870, and LL. D., 1888, and the last degree was also conferred the same year by the Agricultural and mechanical college, now the Alabama polytechnic institute. Married: (1) to Margaret Claudia, daughter of William and Nancy (Brown) Leach, who lived at Lansdown, near Trinity College, N. C.; (2) to Virginia Frances, daughter of Llewellyn and Eliza Dandridge (Jarrett) Hudson, of Columbus, Ga., and granddaughter of Archelaus and Sarah Booker (Bibb) Jarrett, of Elbert County, Ga., the latter the half sister of Gov. Wm. Wyatt Bibb (q. v.). Children of first marriage; 1. Margaret Elizabeth, m. (1) Rev. Robert Taylor Nabors; (2) William W. Brandon (q. v.); 2. Julian Leach, d. young; by second marriage: 3. Rev. William Franklin, B. E., 1883, University of Alabama, and A. M., 1886, Southern university, m. Laura Seay; 4. Lila Lea, m. Arthur Peach, son of John H. Peach (q. v.); 5. Leigh, deceased; 6. Rev. Dr. Allen Llewellyn, graduate of Southern university, 1887, member Alabama conference, and transferred to the north Texas conference, m. Hassie Martin; 7. Julian Leigh, a lawyer at Sheffield, graduate Southern university, 1893, and in law at University of Alabama, 1895; m. Nona, daughter of William and Lou (Rogers) Banks of Hurtsboro; 8. John Holtzlaw, a teacher in Arkansas. Last residence: Union Springs.

ANDREWS, CHAMPE SEABURY, lawyer and soldier, as a young man resided in Alabama; was a student at the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1890-94, graduating with the degree of B. S.; captain of the Third Tennessee infantry, U. S. V., 1898-99; later the counsel for the Medical society for the county of New York; president of the New York Auburn alumni association; past commander of the New York Spanish War veterans; and a member of the law firm of Sturcke and Andrews. Residence: New York City.

ANDREWS, D. W., Primitive Baptist minister of west Alabama. Author: "The History of David, or The Preacher's looking glass, together with a short history of the rise of the North River Association," published in Tuscaloosa, 1885.

ANDREWS, ELIZA FRANCES, author and teacher, for many years a resident of Montgomery, was born August 10, 1840, at Washington, Ga.; daughter of Garnett and Annulet (Ball) Andrews, both of Georgia; and the sister of the late Maj. D. Marshall Andrews, of Montgomery. She was educated at the Girls' seminary, Washington, Ga., received the degree of A. B. from La Grange college, Ga., 1857; and the honorary degree of A. M. from Wesleyan college, Macon, Ga. She began her work first as a teacher in 1871 at Washington seminary; 1872-73, was principal of the girls' high school of Yazoo City, Miss.; 1874-1881, principal of Washington seminary; 1885-98, teacher at Wesleyan college; 1898-1903, teacher in the high school, Washington, Ga.; 1904, teacher, Patton seminary, Dallas, Tex. She is a botanist, lecturer and socialist; and a contributor to magazines and the newspaper press. She was on the staff of the "Augusta Chronicle," 1883-84, and of the "Sunny South," Atlanta, 1885-87. Author: "A family secret," 1876; "A practical course in botany;" "A mere adventure," 1879; "Prince Hal, or the romance of a rich young man," 1882; "The story of an ugly girl;" "Botany all the year round," 1903; "The war time journal of a Georgia girl," 1908; "How he was tempted," in "Detroit Free Press," 1878; and "The mistake of his life," in Chautauquan Magazine, 1898. The War time journal is of much historical value as a graphic and reliable contemporary record. The work of Miss Andrews in botany has brought her into wide general notice in the scientific world. Residence: Rome, Ga.

ANDREWS, GARNETT, major, lieutenant-colonel, 8th Confederate battalion infantry, C. S. Army.

ANDREWS, GLENN, physician, State prison inspector, was born March 7, 1862, in Tuskegee; son of Dr. Mark Samuel and Sarah Summerfield (Glenn) Andrews (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of Auburn and Selma; at the Alabama polytechnic institute; and at Vanderbilt university, from which he received the A. B. degree 1883. On March 6, 1886, he was graduated from the medical department of the University of the City of New York, and in April of the same year he began the practice at Montgomery, where he has since resided. He was president of the Montgomery County medical society, 1893; member college of counsellors, 1893; member county board of public health, 1896; member State board of censors; member American medical association; city physician of Montgomery, 1893-1899; president medical association of Alabama, 1902; county health officer, 1909; and surgeon of the "Montgomery True Blues" for a number of years. While serving as city physician of Montgomery, he systematized and reorganized the work of the health department; on September 1, 1918, he was appointed by State board of health as State prison inspector to succeed Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, resigned; and, on the reorganization of the office in 1919, whereby its duties were in part placed under the State board of control, he was continued in charge of the work. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and a member of the Knights of Pythias, and of the Knights of Honor; brought about the establishment of a union slaughter house; introduced a system of meat inspection; inaugurated the inspection of dairies, dairy products, and dairy cows for tuberculosis; and effected many other reforms in sanitation and public health. Married: in Montgomery, April 27, 1892, to Lucy Holt, daughter of James R. and Fannie A. (Leak) Warren, (q. v.) both of that city. Children: 1. Glenn, jr.; 2. James Warren; 3. Paul L.; 4. Mary Frances. Residence: Montgomery.

ANDREWS, H. M., Methodist minister; member of the Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South. Residence: Wetumpka.

ANDREWS, J. L., lawyer. Residence: Sheffield.

ANDREWS, MARK SAMUEL, teacher and Methodist minister, was born February 23, 1826, in Oglethorpe County, Ga., and died May 14, 1898, in Mobile; son of Mark and Mary (Smith) Andrews, the former a native of Prince Edward County, Va., who after his marriage removed to Oglethorpe County, Ga., where the larger number of his fifteen children were born, and in 1834 settled in Chambers County; grandson of John and Edith (Strange) Andrews, who lived in Prince Edward County, Va., the former a Revolutionary soldier, and of Robert and Hannah (Andrews) Smith, of Cumberland County, Va.; and the great-grandson of Mark Andrews, of Essex County, Va. The Andrews family, to which this branch belonged, came to America from Surrey County, England. He attended the schools of his native county, and of Oak Bowery, Chambers County, a town noted for its excellent school. He graduated from Emory college, A. B., 1848, and later the honorary degree of A. M. was conferred by his alma mater, during the presidency of Judge Longstreet. He taught school both in Oak Bowery and in Montgomery before beginning the study of law, which he had chosen as his profession. However, he early responded to the divine call of the ministry, and did not complete his law studies. He entered the Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, 1852 session, at Marion; was appointed to serve the church at Eufaula; and in 1854, was sent to Tuskegee. It was during that year that the Alabama conference female college at Tuskegee, forerunner of Woman's college of Alabama, was projected. He was appointed by the conference to raise funds for the college, and on the completion and the opening of the school, he was made dean of the faculty, with Dr. A. A. Lipscomb, president. At the close of the first session he was by request returned to the active ministry. During his long service he filled many prominent places, both stations and districts in the Alabama conference, namely: 1857, Dayton; 1858-59, Franklin Street, Mobile; 1860, Macon, Miss.; 1861-62, Tuskegee; 1862-63, chaplain in the C. S. Army; 1863, Opelika; 1864-66, Auburn; 1867-70, Montgomery district; 1871, Selma district; 1872-75, Selma Station; 1876-78, Montgomery district; 1879-1882, Court Street, Montgomery; 1883-84, Eufaula; 1885-88, St. Francis Street, Mobile; 1889-1892, Pensacola district; 1893-94, Prattville district; 1895-97, Eufaula; and 1898, Mobile district; was chairman of the board of missions for many years; was very active in the educational interests of both church and state; five times he was elected a delegate and three times an alternate delegate to the General conference; was sent as a delegate to the first Ecumenical conference of Methodist churches of the world, which met in London, 1881; and assisted in raising funds for the establishment of the East Alabama male college at Auburn, and the Southern university at Greensboro. He was chaplain of the 12th Alabama infantry regiment, 1861-62, Army of Northern Virginia, but served a time only. He was originally a Whig, but after the war he united with the Democratic party. He was a Mason. Married: December 6, 1854, at Auburn, to Sarah Summerfield, daughter of John Bowles and Maria (Allen) Glenn (q. v.). Children: 1. Mary Cornelia, deceased, m. Alfred G. Ward, of Mobile; 2. Julia Maria, d. unmarried; 3. Mark Samuel, m. Lura Lee Cameron, resides in Mobile; 4. Glenn, m. Lucy Warren (q. v.); 5. William Thomas, unmarried, resides in Washington, D. C.; 6. Paul, m. Elizabeth Grey Atkinson, resides in Salt Lake City, Utah; 7. Sarah, m. Herbert Counsell Williams, resides in Bay City, Calif. Last residence: Mobile.

ANDREWS, ROBERT, merchant and register in chancery, was born August 10, 1842, at Florence, and died June 10, 1918, at the same place; son of Robert and Martha (Jackson) Andrews, the former a merchant and farmer, a native of Pennsylvania who later resided in Florence, the latter a native of Tennessee; grandson of James and Sarah (Moore) Jackson (q. v.), the latter a descendant of Governor Moore of North Carolina. Captain Andrews was educated in Florence and in the Bingham and D. H. Hill schools in North Carolina. At the age of eighteen he entered the Confederate Army as a private and rose to a lieutenancy and finally to captaincy of Co. E, 27th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was wounded and captured at Fort Donelson and confined as a prisoner of war for seven months; was wounded at New Hope Church, May, 1864, and confined to a hospital six months; and surrendered at Jackson, Miss., September 16, 1865. He merchandised at Clinton, Greene County, one year, 1865-66, and then removed to Jonesboro, Jefferson County. He finally settled in Lauderdale County and engaged in the insurance business, 1872-1878; became mayor of Florence three terms, and register in chancery of the county more than twenty years; and served two years as U. S. commissioner. He was a Democrat; Presbyterian; Mason; Elk. Unmarried. Last residence: Florence.

ANDREWS, WILLIAM THOMAS, Methodist minister, was born September 28, 1838, near Athens, Limestone County; son of David and Eliza (Brown) Andrews; grandson of David Brown. He was educated in the schools of Giles County, Tenn.; studied for the ministry; and was licensed to preach in the Methodist Episcopal church, south, at Elkton, Giles County, Tenn., 1856; was local minister for fourteen years; joined the North Alabama conference in 1870, serving as itinerant minister for thirty-seven years; became superannuated minister in the same conference, 1907. He is author of "A Waif—A Prince," the story of the infant life of Moses, and of a pamphlet entitled "Interviews with Jesus." He compiled and edited "Memorial Sketches," giving a brief outline of the lives of the ministers who served in the North Alabama conference from 1870 to 1912. He is a Democrat, a Mason and an Odd Fellow. Married: 1856, in Giles County, Eliza Catharine, daughter of James C. and Margaret C. (Brown) Stevenson of that county; granddaughter of Duncan and Margaret Brown; niece of Neil S. Brown and John C. Brown, former governors of Tennessee. Children: 1. James David, m. Lula Maxwell, resides in Nashville, Tenn.; 2. John Beverly, m. Clem C. Canthern, resides in Silvan Springs, Ark.; 3. Charles Fletcher, m. Iva Moores, resides at Fort Worth, Tex.; 4. William Brown, m. Margaret Martin, resides at Waco, Tex.; 5. Milton, m. Maud Felten, resides at Blount Springs. Residence: Birmingham.

ANDREWS, WILLIAM THOMAS, banker, was born February 26, 1867, at Oakbowery, Chambers County; son of William Anthony and Mary (Harwell) Andrews, the former of Milledgeville, Oglethorpe County, Ga., who removed to Oakbowery in 1836; grandson of Mark S. and Mary (Smith) Andrews of Georgia and Alabama, and of Rev. Samuel and Emma (Slaughter) Harwell of Opelika, the former an itinerant Methodist preacher, a member of the North Georgia conference; served as many as twenty-eight different churches at one time, and removed to Opelika, late in life. The Andrews family is of Scotch stock. Representative Andrews was educated in the public schools, and attended the University of Alabama, 1885-6; began the mercantile business at Oakbowery in the fall of the latter year; removed to Gold Hill, Lee County, three years later; in 1907 located in Opelika where he assisted in organizing the Farmer's national bank, of which he was made active vice-president; was tax assessor of Lee County for two terms; treasurer of Lee County and of the Lee County high school funds; and a representative in the legislature from Lee County, 1915 and 1919. He is a Methodist; Mason; Knight Templar; Shriner; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; and an Elk. Married: October 25, 1892, at Gold Hill, to Addie Neal, daughter of Nathaniel M. and Rebecca (McCurdy) Robertson of that place; and granddaughter of Edward S. and Mary J. (Harris) McCurdy of LaGrange, Ga., and Daniel S. Robertson of Chambers County. No children. Residence: Opelika.

ANGLIN, THOMAS NEWTON, pharmacist, real estate and insurance dealer, was born October 14, 1832, at Shelbyville, Tenn., and died October 16, 1904, in Birmingham; son of John and Sarah (Hamilton) Anglin, natives of Tennessee, who later resided in Texas. He studied medicine and pharmacy, but never practiced the former; conducted a drug store in Jacksonville during the War of Secession, and later in Talledega; removed to Birmingham during the second boom in that city; and made such judicious investments in real estate, that he was enabled to retire from business several years before his death. On account of his profession he was excused from active military service, but was a strong Confederate sympathizer. He was a Presbyterian; a Democrat; and a Mason. Married: at Columbiana to Lucy Stone, sister of Judge James T. Leeper (q. v.), and daughter of Samuel and Ellen (Stone) Leeper, of that place. Children: 1. Mary, m. Frank White; 2. Thomas L., m. Elizabeth Enslin; 3. Ellen, m. Judge Samuel D. Weakley (q. v.); 4. Eula, m. Joseph P. Mudd, son of Judge Wm. S. Mudd (q. v.). Last residence: Birmingham.

APPLEBY, FLAVIUS THOMPSON, teacher, was born April 2, 1875, at Lewisburgh, Tenn.; son of Samuel Argyle and Rebeckah (Ewing) Appleby, the former a native of Verona, Marshall County, Tenn., who lived at Lewisburgh, and was a farmer and stock breeder; grandson of Samuel Bell and Emma Jane (Ewing) Appleby, of Verona, Tenn., and of Lyle A. and Rebeckah (Leiper) Ewing, who lived at Farmington, Tenn. His great-grandfather, John Appleby, came with two brothers from Appleby, Westmoreland County, England, to South Carolina soon after the Revolution, and from there moved to Tennessee. The brothers went one to Pennsylvania, and the other to Georgia. His great-grandfather, John Leiper, was the founder of the Leiper's Mill community in Tennessee, and one of the founders of the old Presbyterian Church Bethberei. Mr. Appleby attended the country schools near Lewisburgh, Tenn.; was graduated from the University of Tennessee, B. S., 1901; took graduate work in Columbia University, New York, and spent three summers at Winona Lake summer school, Indiana. He began teaching in a district school in Tennessee; then in a village school in the same state; became teacher of mathematics in Elmwood seminary for young ladies, Farmington, Miss.; was elected president of that school, and held the position for four years; came to Alabama as superintendent of Tuscumbia city schools, 1906-1910; served as president of LaFayette college; and was elected superintendent of city schools at Florence, 1919. Mr. Appleby succeeded in building up a library in four of the schools with which he has been connected, and instituted manual training in the schools of LaFayette. He is a member of the National educational association; of the Alabama text book commission; and vice-president of the Alabama educational association. He is a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and a Mason. Married: (1) December 23, 1902, at Campbellsville, Ky., Mary Grider Mourning; (2) January 6, 1909, at Tuscumbia, Ella Henry Johnson, daughter of Col. William A. and Kate (Barton) Johnson, who lived at Tuscumbia. Children, by first wife: 1. James Mourning. Residence: Florence.

APPLEGATE, ANDREW J., lieutenant governor of Alabama, 1868-1870; was born October 14, 1833, near Georgetown, Brown County, O.; and died August 21, 1870, at Mobile; son of Benjamin and Rebecca (Hall) Applegate, of Tuckahoe Ridge, Mason County, Ky. The Applegate family came from Holland and settled in Pennsylvania. Later one branch emigrated to Kentucky and from there Benjamin Applegate moved to a farm near Georgetown, O., where he reared a large family.

Andrew J. Applegate obtained his early education in the public schools of Georgetown, O., and later studied and practiced law there. He enlisted in the fourth Independent company, Ohio volunteer cavalry, July 9, 1861; was appointed sergeant and later quarter master sergeant. On the expiration of his term of service, July 16, 1864, he was mustered out at Cincinnati. On re-entering the service, he was commissioned captain, Co. H, 189th Ohio volunteer infantry, March 6, 1865, and was mustered out September 28, 1865. He began the practice of law in Huntsville in 1866, and the following year was elected a member of the constitutional convention called under the reconstruction acts to frame a new constitution for the state. In the ensuing election he became lieutenant governor of the state, August 13, 1868. He was a Republican and a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Married: September 7, 1858, at Bradysville, Adams County, O., Lucinda, daughter of James and Margaret (Boyles) Connor of Bradysville, O. She was of Scotch-Irish descent, her parents being among the first settlers of Adams County, O. Children: 1. Ida M., Manchester, O.; 2. Harry, Manchester, O. Last residence: Mobile.

APPLETON, JOHN BULOW, teacher, Baptist minister, was born April 13, 1827, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died October 18, 1908, at Collinsville; son of Grigsby and Eliza (Waller) Appleton, who lived at Greenwood, S. C., and later moved to DeKalb County, the former a native of England, and the latter of Virginia, a member of the Waller family of that state; great-grandson of Rev. John Waller of Virginia, the Baptist preacher. He attended the country schools of the Abbeville District, S. C.; and Greenwood academy; commenced the study of ancient languages in Lumpkin, Ga., under Alpheus Baker, Sr., and finished the course in the Hearn school, Cave Springs, Ga., with Alfred J. King and John S. Ingraham as tutors. After finishing his schooling, he taught for three years in Georgia; then taught in conjunction with his former preceptor, John S. Ingraham, for two years at Cave Springs, Ga.; came to Alabama and taught for several years at Collinsville. He was ordained to the ministry in 1855, and served at the First Baptist church of Collinsville for thirty-five years with but two or three years intermission; was elected to the State legislature, 1870-1872, and 1890-1892; and was county superintendent of education for six years. He was a Democrat, and a Mason, serving as secretary of his lodge for about forty years. Married: January 13, 1853, at Cave Springs, Ga., Martha Frances, daughter of James and Ollie Ellis, of that place. Her maternal grandmother was a Varner, of Scotch ancestry. Children: 1. Amelia Frances, m. W. P. Jones, Collinsville; 2. James Grigsby, Collinsville; 3. Lois, deceased, m. W. T. Watts of Macon, Ga.; 4. William Newton, Collinsville; 5. John Ellis, Collinsville; 6. Susan E., deceased, m. T. H. Stephens of Kurer; 7. Thomas Hayne, m. Emma Coker, Collinsville; 8. Charles Eugene, Alabama City. 9. Martha B., m. W. J. Wheeler, Commerce, Tex.; 10. Eliza Varna, m. B. N. Pierce, Valley Head. Last residence: Collinsville.

APPLING, DANIEL, soldier, was born August 25, 1787, in Columbia County, Ga., and died at Fort Montgomery, March 18, 1817. He entered the U. S. Army in 1808, as a lieutenant. On the outbreak of the War of 1812, he was a major in command of a detachment of 130 riflemen, sent from Oswego, N. Y., by way of a flotilla loaded with cannon, ammunition and naval stores, for the unfinished ship "Superior," at Sacketts Harbor. Unable to run the blockade of the British, Maj. Appling laid in ambush and captured the British force, landed his supplies and delivered them. His conduct won the thanks of congress, a handsome sword and promotion to lieutenant-colonel, later, he again distinguished himself at the battle of Plattsburg, and was made colonel. June, 1816, he resigned from the army, came from Georgia to the new settlement of Montgomery, where he resided until his death. "He left no male heir to inherit his name and his glory." His congressional sword, not delivered until after his death, hangs on the wall of the Georgia historical society, Savannah, Ga. Last residence: Montgomery.

APPLING, J. B., probate judge of Henry County. Republican.

APPLING, WILLIAM B., lawyer, was born December 18, 1841, in Chickasaw County, Miss., and died in Jasper; son of Richard and Jaley (Eurbry) Appling natives of Alabama; grandson of William and Elizabeth Appling, and of Britton and Catherine Eurbry, of Georgia. He was reared in Alabama and educated in private schools of that state; enlisted in Lumsden's battery of light artillery, C. S. Army, at the outbreak of the War of Secession, and served with that battery until the surrender. He fought at Corinth, Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, was with Joseph E. Johnston on his famous retreat, with Hardee, and with Hood. He studied law, was granted a license to practice and established himself at Jasper. He was appointed solicitor of Walker County in 1870; resigned that position in 1872; and for several years was register in chancery. He practiced law in Jasper until his death. He was owner of extensive tracts of land in Walker County as well as considerable town property in Jasper. He was a Democrat; a member of the Missionary Baptist Church; and a Mason. Married: 1868, Mattie W., daughter of Waller Cummins, of Tennessee. Children: 1. Etta; 2. Waller; 3. Myra; 4. William J.; 5. Mattie J.; 6. Newberne M.; 7. Edmund W. Last residence: Jasper.

ARBERRY, WILLIAM BUCHANAN, physician; graduate of the Vanderbilt university, 1882, and entered upon the practice at Macon that year. Residence: Jacksonville.

ARCHIBALD, JAMES H., planter, was born December 9, 1849, in Greene County; son of Samuel Stewart and Jane (Summerville) Archibald, the former a native of Eutaw, Greene County, born in 1826, died in 1872; the latter a native of South Carolina, born in 1825; grandson of James Hall and Mary (Steele) Archibald (q. v.); and of Robert and Mary Summerville, of Pickens County. His father was a veteran of the Mexican War and the War of Secession. He received his early education from Pleasant Ridge Academy. He was reared on a farm and raises Jersey cattle on his farm near Pleasant Ridge. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Married: In 1883, Mary E. Murphy, born in Greene County in 1858, a daughter of Dr. Samuel S. Murphy. She died July 18, 1887. Children: 1. Wilbert. Residence: near Pleasant Ridge.

ARCHIBALD, JAMES HALL, pioneer, died in 1864, near Pleasant Ridge, Greene County; came to Greene County from Iredell County, N. C., in 1819. His parents emigrated from England and settled in North Carolina. Married: in Greene County, 1821, Mary Steele, who died in 1844. Children: 1. Edwin Addison, b. July 11, 1822, d. August, 1870; A. B., A. M., 1849; was principal of the Pleasant Ridge high school from 1853 until 1870; m. Ellen Jane Hood, at Bethany; 2. Abner Alexander, b. December 10, 1824, d. April 9, 1861; A. B., A. M., 1851; was principal of the Eutaw high school, Pleasant ridge academy, 1853-61; m. April 10, 1856, at Eutaw, Anna B. Hatfield; 3. Samuel Stewart, b. 1826, at Eutaw, Greene County, d. September 12, 1872; was a soldier in the war with Mexico and a lieutenant in the C. S. Army, serving from 1863 until the close of the war; became a planter; m. in 1849, Jane Summerville, daughter of Robert and Mary Summerville of Pickens County; had six children; James H. (q. v.) planter; William Pratt (q. v.), teacher, m. Mary E. Patton; Robert S., merchant, Pleasant Ridge; Bettie S., m. J. J. Chiles; Andrew B., farmer, Pleasant Ridge; Mattie J.; 4. Andrew Brown, a merchant, who died while held a prisoner of war at Johnson's Island in 1864. Last residence: Greene County, near Pleasant Ridge.

ARCHIBALD, ROBERT MURRAY, Methodist minister, was born January 28, 1869, at Pleasant Grove, Pickens County; son of Robert Washington and Silena (Herndon) Archibald. The former a native of Iredell County, N. C., and later moved to Raleigh, Pickens County; grandson of Thomas Archibald, of North Carolina. The Archibald family came from Scotland to North Carolina and later removed to Alabama. They were rigid Presbyterians. He went to school at the age of six to Prof. S. H. Knox, and attended the country schools during his boyhood. At the age of eighteen he became a student under Joe Lovett, at Arkadelphia, and later attended the Southern university at Greensboro. He was licensed to preach at Greensboro, February 8, 1889, and joined the Alabama conference at Decatur, December 3, 1891. He served in the pastorate for sixteen years, his last pastorate being Alexander City. He has since served as conference missionary secretary for the North Alabama Conference. Married: at Brookwood, June 22, 1893, Loula, daughter of Samuel and Mary W. (Gothard) Freiley, of Dayton, Tenn. Children: 1. Miriam; 2. Julia Belle; 3. Robert Lambuth; 4. Elizabeth. Residence: Birmingham.

ARCHIBALD, WILLIAM PRATT, teacher, was born October 14, 1851, at Pleasant Ridge, Greene County; son of Samuel Stewart and Jane (Summerville) Archibald, the former who was born at Eutaw, Greene County, 1826, and died September 12, 1872; grandson of James Hall and Mary (Steele) Archibald (q. v.); and of Robert and Mary Summerville of Pickens County. His father was a veteran of the Mexican War and the War of Secession. He received his early schooling from his uncles, Abner and Addison Archibald, and in 1873, was graduated, A. B., from Davidson college, N. C. Following his graduation he taught school in his native county for thirty-nine years. He was appointed superintendent of education in Greene County in 1902 and served in that capacity continuously until 1917. He is a Democrat and an elder in the Presbyterian church. Married: October 16, 1880, at Knoxville, Mary E., daughter of Hon. T. J. and Jane Patton of Knoxville; granddaughter of Dr. William Patton who came to Greene County from Indiana in 1822. Children: 1. Jennie, m. Dr. Patton Bell, Northport; 2. Mary Ella, m. Lorgus Barnes, Northport; 3. Walter, farmer, Knoxville; 4. David Sanderson, attended the Presbyterian college, Anniston. Residence: Knoxville.

Thomas M. Dewey

ARD, ERASTUS BYRON, physician; graduate of the medical department of Vanderbilt university, 1887, and entered upon the practice that year. Residence: Ozark.

ARENDS, JOHN N., business man, was born April 14, 1824, at Aachen, Prussia, and died February 9, 1890, at Brewton. He received a fair education; was apprenticed to a machinist at an early age; moved from Germany to Paris, France, for three years, working in the latter place as a machinist; returned to Germany, and with his brother-in-law, started a machine shop of his own; emigrated to America, landing in New York in the spring of 1856; moved to Cincinnati, O., then to Mobile, where he conducted a machine shop for a number of years; became manager of a wire mill in Greenville, March, 1865; superintended the building of a mill at Brewton, 1867, engaged in the mercantile business at Brewton; served as postmaster of Brewton, 1870-1890; built part of the hotel property known as Hotel Arends, 1881; was a Republican and a Catholic. Married: (1) 1848, in Aachen, Prussia, Theresa Bouvet, of French birth, who died of yellow fever during the scourge of 1858, at Mobile; (2) December 26, 1864, at Mobile, Margaret (Brady) Farrell, born May, 1832, in County Cavan, north Ireland, daughter of Thomas and Bridget Brady, whose ancestors had been residents of that part of the county for centuries; who came to America in 1849 with the family of an uncle, lived in Springfield, Mass., for a year, then moved to St. Louis, Mo., where she was married, May, 1854, to Philip Farrell and bore two children to this marriage, Philip who died of yellow fever in 1883, and Annie who married John T. Hairston. Mr. Arends had born to him, by his first wife, four children; by his second wife, one child; Aloise, m. James Sowell. Last residence: Brewton.

ARMBRECHT, WILLIAM HENRY, lawyer, was born February 9, 1874, at Port Chester, N. Y.; son of Caesar and Annie (Kraft) Armbricht, respectively of Hamburg, Germany, and Portchester, N. Y., the former of whom came to America in 1861, was a soldier in the War of Secession, was wounded at Malvern Hill and Antietam, and after the war was a successful cigar manufacturer in New York until 1880, when he moved to Cumberland Plateau, Tenn.; grandson of Conrad and Johanna Armbricht, the former of whom was a noted German educator. He received his early education in the public schools of Knoxville, Tenn., and under the private tuition of his father. After graduation from high school in 1888, he studied stenography and from 1889-1897 was employed as stenographer, first by McIntosh & Rich, attorneys, Mobile, then by the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, and finally by E. S. Russell of Mobile. He studied law with the latter, and was admitted to the bar, June, 1897. He became personal injury attorney for the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, 1898-1900; was a member of the firm of Stoutz & Armbricht, Mobile, 1900-1902; and served as U. S. attorney of the southern district of Alabama, 1904-1911. Mr. Armbricht was special assistant attorney general of the United States in 1906, and again from 1909-1912. While serving in that position, he prosecuted the Honduras lottery company for the U. S. government, 1906, with the result that all the principals were convicted and fined sums aggregating two hundred seventy-six thousand dollars, the largest fine ever collected to that time by the government, and the lottery was completely broken up. He was a member of the law firm of Inge & Armbricht, 1904-1915, and since that time has been a member of the firm of Armbricht, Johnston & Mitchell. He reorganized and was vice president of the Meridian light & railway company, Meridian, Miss., 1901-1910, when his associates sold holdings to Henry L. Dougherty & company, of Wall Street, New York, N. Y., and reorganized and became director of the Robinson land & lumber company, Chicora, Miss., in 1913. Mr. Armbricht has served as president of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, and of the Business League. He is a Republican; an Episcopalian; and vice president of the Laymen's Church Extension Organization of Alabama; is a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner; and is a member of the Athelstan and Rotary Clubs of Mobile. Married: December 1, 1897, at Mobile, to Anna Bell Paterson, daughter of Alexander J. and Mary Paterson. Children: 1. Conrad P.; 2. Mary Bell; 3. Elizabeth Ann; 4. William H., jr. Residence: Mobile.

ARMES, ETHEL MARIE, author, was born in Washington, D. C.; daughter of George Augustus and Lucy Hamilton (Kerr) Armes, the former a native of Richmond, Va., in his seventeenth year volunteered for service as a private in the Union Army during the War of Secession, served throughout that struggle and at the close was an officer in the Second N. Y. heavy artillery, acted as aide-de-camp for several months to Gen. Hancock, was several times wounded; transferred to the regular army with the rank of lieutenant, served on the western frontier, was wounded several times in fights with the Indians and mentioned in general orders for bravery in the field; promoted captain, major and colonel; and is the author of "Ups and downs of an army officer;" the granddaughter of Josiah Orcutt and Caroline Olive (Older) Armes, of Goshen, Mass., later residents of Virginia, Washington City and New York State, the latter the daughter of a Mohawk Indian chief, and of John Bozman and Lucy Hamilton (Stevens) Kerr, who lived on the eastern shore of Maryland and in Washington, D. C.; great-granddaughter of John Leeds and Sarah Holiday (Chamberlain) Kerr, the former a representative in congress and a United States senator from Maryland, and of John and Cecelia Wynne (Brickell) Stevens, natives respectively of London, England, and Murfreesboro, N. C.; great-great-granddaughter of David Kerr, a native of Dumfries, Scotland, an early emigrant to Maryland, and his wife Rachel, sister of John Leeds Bozman, the first historian of Maryland. Miss Armes received her early instruction from her mother, and private tutors; attended the Holy Cross academy, the Mt. Vernon seminary, the public schools, all in Washington, D. C.; Gauquier female institute at Warrenton, Va., the Corcoran art school and Columbia college, now George Washington university. She began her professional career as a feature writer on the "Washington Post," 1898, and the following year became a reporter and feature writer on the "Chicago Chronicle" where she remained until 1900, after which she returned to the "Washington Post." During 1902-04 she devoted herself to special feature and magazine work; was on the staff of the "Birmingham Age-Herald," 1905-06; edited "Advance" in 1906; and in 1907 under the auspices of the Birmingham chamber of commerce she began the study of the industrial history of Alabama, out of which grew the preparation of "The story of coal and iron in Alabama," a monumental work, published in 1910. After one year of necessary rest she took up her literary work and became a sociological writer in the employ of the Alabama coal operators association. During 1912-14 she was sociological writer on the staff of the "Birmingham News," and for three years following did magazine and historical work in the Alabama and Massachusetts field as well as newspaper feature work. She has also published a "Midsummer in Whittier's country." She is a charter member of the Birmingham equal suffrage association, of the Alabama equal suffrage association, of the Birmingham association of social workers and the Alabama sociological congress. In 1913 she received a certificate from the U. S. Bureau of mines for completing a course in mine rescue work at the West End station, Birmingham, the only certificate ever given by that bureau to a woman. After a careful investigation into the living conditions of the miners of Alabama she advocated their improvement through the organization of miners' unions, and in January 1913, she addressed the United mine workers of America in Indianapolis, on that subject. She was among the early and most zealous advocates of legal reforms in Alabama in relation to child labor, the loan shark evil, fake damage suits, the smoke nuisance, and other social and industrial evils. Residence: Birmingham.

ARMISTEAD, EDWARD HERBERT, Confederate soldier, was born November 18, 1839, in Greene County, and died December, 1864, after the battle of Franklin; son of William and Lucy (Boyd) Armistead who lived at New Kent County, Va., until 1833, when they moved to a plantation in Greene County; grandson of Robert Burbage and Mary (Semple) Armistead of New Kent County, Va., and of Robert and Eliza (Rowe) Boyd, who lived at "Liberty Hall," King and Queen County, Va.; brother of William B. Armistead (q. v.) and of Robert Burbage (q. v.); brother-in-law of Judge Elmore J. Fitzpatrick (q. v.). William Armistead, the founder of the American branch of the family, emigrated from Kirk Deighton, Yorkshire, England, about 1635, to Virginia, and settled in Gloucester County where he received large grants of land. Col. Armistead received his preliminary education in Montgomery, but before he was ready for college, the War of Secession broke out. He enlisted in the Twenty-second Alabama infantry regiment, became its lieutenant, was appointed captain and assistant commissary of subsistence, November 1, 1861, and resigned February 11, 1862, having been elected captain of Co. D of that regiment, January 11, 1862. He was promoted to major of the Twenty-second Alabama regiment, February 11, 1864; was wounded at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 30, 1864, so severely, that he died from his wounds less than a week later. His commission of lieutenant-colonel was authorized by the C. S. A. war department January 19, 1865. He was a member of the Protestant Episcopal church, and was unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

ARMISTEAD, ELLIOTT S., merchant and farmer, was born in 1860, near Snowdown; son of Dr. William B. and Eliza C. (Scott) Armistead (q. v.); the former a native of New Kent County, Va., and the latter a native of Montgomery County; grandson of Col. William Armistead, and of Gen. Thomas B. and Martha G. (Marks) Scott, natives of Scottsboro, Ga., who came with their parents to Alabama, the former was a member of the legislature from Lowndes County when the capital was at Tuscaloosa, was a brigadier-general of state troops, and an active politician; great-grandson of Gen. John and Eliza (Coleman) Scott, the former a native of Virginia, a near relative of Gen. Winfield Scott, and one of the original contractors and founders of the Montgomery and West Point railroad, the first railroad in the state. Elliott S. Armistead received his schooling at Mount Meigs and Montgomery. He was reared on a farm and began life for himself at the age of seventeen years as a clerk and bookkeeper in Montgomery. In 1889, he established himself in the mercantile business. Six years later he moved to Pike Road where besides conducting his mercantile business, he owns a large farm and manages other farms besides his own. On August 1, 1892, he was elected tax collector of Montgomery County for four years. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, the A. L. of H., and was for a time an honorary member of Lomax fire company, and assistant chief of the fire department. He is a member of the Episcopal Church. Married: in 1881, Rosa L., daughter of Alexander and Mary Wilson, natives of Lowndes County, a graduate of Montgomery home college. Residence: Pike Road, Montgomery County.

ARMISTEAD, ROBERT BURBAGE, lawyer and Confederate soldier, was born November 16, 1826, in New Kent County, Va., and was killed at Shiloh, April 6, 1862; son of William and Lucy (Boyd) Armistead, the former a native of New Kent County, Va., where he lived until 1833, when he moved his family and slaves to Greene County, became a planter in that place and served as U. S. marshal of his district; grandson of Robert Burbage and Mary (Semple) Armistead, of New Kent County, Va., and of Robert and Eliza (Rowe) Boyd, who lived at "Liberty Hall," King and Queen County, Va.; brother of William B. Armistead (q. v.), and of Col. Edward Herbert Armistead (q. v.). The name Armistead was well known in England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. William Armistead, the emigrant and founder of the family in America, came to Virginia about 1635 from Kirk Deighton, Yorkshire, England, and settled in Gloucester County. He received large grants of land, and died before 1660. His son, John Armistead, was in 1680, lieutenant colonel of horse in Gloucester County, and one of the justices of the peace. His daughter, Judith, married Robert Carter, known as King Carter, and her tombstone is still standing. Maj. Armistead was prepared for college in the schools of Virginia, and was graduated from William and Mary college. He studied law, was admitted to the bar in Mobile, and practiced in that city. He was elected solicitor of the sixth district over Leonard F. Summers. At the beginning of the War of Secession, he enlisted as a private in the Mobile Cadets, April, 1861, and went with them to Virginia as a part of the Third Alabama regiment. After serving seven months, he was commissioned major, October 25, 1861, and returned to Mobile, where with Col. Deas and others, he raised the Twenty-second Alabama regiment. He received a mortal wound at the battle of Shiloh, April 6, 1862, went to the hospital unattended, called for pen, ink and paper, wrote his will, and calmly awaited death, which came twelve hours after he was struck. He was buried in Oakwood cemetery, Montgomery. He was a Roman Catholic, and unmarried. Last residence: Mobile.

ARMISTEAD, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, a native of Virginia was probably born in 1762 and died in Clarke County, March 1, 1842. He came with his sons, Robert, Westwood, and John, to Alabama and settled in Clarke County, where he is buried near Amity church, eight miles from Grove Hill. He was married twice and had three sons and three daughters. His second wife was named Elizabeth. One daughter married John Morriss, another Edmund Waddell and the third Dr. Neal Smith all of North Carolina whose families settled in Clarke County. Last residence: Clarke County.

ARMISTEAD, WILLIAM B., physician, was born January 18, 1830, in New Kent County, Va., and died in Montgomery County; son of Col. William and Lucy (Boyd) Armistead, whose ancestors were early settlers of Virginia. Col. William Armistead came to Alabama from Virginia in 1831 and settled in one of the western counties of the state. Later he moved with his family to Montgomery County and bought a plantation about ten miles south of the city. He was appointed United States marshal of the middle district of Alabama by President Tyler. Dr. Armistead was born while his parents were on a visit to Gen. Chamberlain in New Kent County, Va. The family home of the Armisteads was at this time "Liberty Hall," in King and Queen County, Va. He received his early education at William and Mary college, Va., and upon his graduation took up the study of medicine. He practiced his profession in Montgomery County until the War of Secession when he found it necessary to devote all of his time to his planting interests. He superintended the work of vast farms and numerous laborers and tenants. The act of manumission had little effect on the relations between Dr. Armistead and his negroes, and about the house and in the fields of Armistead, labor was always abundant. He was the first democratic tax collector of Montgomery County after reconstruction.

Col. Robert Armistead (q. v.) and Maj. Herbert Armistead (q. v.), brothers of Dr. Armistead, were killed in battle, upholding the cause of the south, the former at Shiloh and the latter at Franklin. Robert had been a lawyer at Mobile, and Herbert, a merchant. He had four sisters: Lucy, deceased, who married Capt. Richard Goldthwaite, formerly of Montgomery; Rosalie, who married the late Capt. Elmore J. Fitzpatrick (q. v.), of Montgomery; Mary, who married Phil H. S. Gayle; and Elizabeth, widow of the late Col. P. Tucker Sayre. Married: in 1858, Eliza Camilla (Scott) Knox, widow of Joseph Knox, daughter of Gen. Thomas B. and Martha G. (Marks) Scott, both born in Scottsboro, Ga.; grand-daughter of Gen. John Scott, of Va., who was a near relative of Gen. Winfield Scott. She died in 1880. Children: 1. Rosalie, d. in early childhood; 2. Elliott (q. v.), m. Rosa L. Wilson; 3. George Mathews, b. November 18, 1861, a planter. Last residence: Montgomery County.

ARMSTRONG, D. C., merchant, was born 1841, in Walker County, Ga.; son of Henry Holcomb and Elizabeth (Sloan) Armstrong (q. v.); grandson of Rev. James and Elizabeth (Giles) Armstrong, and of Adam and Rosa (Barry) Sloan; brother of Henry Clay Armstrong (q. v.). He received his schooling at Notasulga; at Ervin college, Tennessee; and at Rome, Ga.; enlisted in the C. S. Army, 1861, joining Co. B, Sixth Alabama reserves, in which he remained until after the first battle of Manassas; went to the front and took part in the fight of Seven Pines; participated in nearly all of the engagements of the Virginia campaign, including Antietam and Gettysburg, was severely wounded and captured at Gettysburg; was confined in Baltimore for a time, then released; went to Texas where he spent four years in the hide and wool business; returned to Alabama, becoming occupied as a merchant at Loachapoka, Lee County, for a few years; located in Florida for four years; and finally settled in Notasulga, where he became engaged as a merchant and farmer. He is a Mason, and has served as worshipful master of Loachapoka lodge. Married: 1872, Susie R., a native of Stewart County, Ga., daughter of Maj. H. E. J. Harris of Georgia. Residence: Notasulga, Macon County.

ARMSTRONG, HENRY CLAY, superintendent of education, grand secretary, Masonic grand lodge of Alabama, was born June 1, 1840, at LaFayette, Walker County, Ga., and died December 17, 1900, at Auburn; son of Henry Holcomb and Elizabeth (Sloan) Armstrong (q. v.), of Georgia and of Notasulga, Macon County; grandson of Rev. James and Elizabeth (Giles) Armstrong of Savannah, Ga., and of Adam and Rosa (Barry) Sloan, of Edgefield District, S. C.; brother of D. C. Armstrong (q. v.). He attended school in Notasulga, taught by William Lee and Fletcher Yarborough, and later by Joel Lee; entered Howard college, Marion, 1854, attending there for two years; studied law privately; enlisted in the C. S. Army; was elected captain of Butler's Rifles, at Garland; assigned to Gen. Holtzclaw's brigade; later was aide to Gen. Wirt Adams of Forrest's command; was brevetted major but retained the rank of captain. He practiced law at Tuskegee for three or four years; was elected to the legislature from Macon County, 1874; served as State superintendent of education of Alabama, 1880-1884, during which time he was influential in the establishment and location of Booker T. Washington's school; was elected to the State legislature from Lee County, serving as speaker of the house, 1884; was appointed by President Cleveland U. S. consul general at Rio de Janeiro, 1885-1889, and served as charge d'affaires during the later year of his consulship; and was a member of the board of trustees of the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1890-1898, and 1900.

Capt. Armstrong was a Mason; was raised to Master Mason, 1865; exalted to the Holy Royal Arch, 1866; Knight Templar and member of the council, 1868; was grand high priest of the grand chapter for three years; junior and senior grand wardens, deputy grand master, and grand master, respectively, for two years; and at the time of his death was grand secretary of the grand chapter, grand council, grand lodge, and grand recorder of the grand commandery. He was a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: Mary Hulda, daughter of Briton Dixon and Rebecca Ann (Kirk) Harris of Oak Bowery. The Harris family were of English ancestry, and came to Alabama from Troupe County, Ga. Children: 1. Briton Dixon, deceased, m. Mattie Mae Kimball, Atlanta, Ga.; 2. Henry Clay, jr., (q. v.); 3. William Kirk, deceased, m. Lyda Sutfield, Washington, D. C.; 4. Ralph Calloway, deceased; 5. Frank Harris, m. Bessie Tillman, Athens. Last residence: Auburn.

ARMSTRONG, HENRY CLAY, JR., teacher, was born January 7, 1870, at Notasulga, Macon County; son of Henry Clay and Mary Hulda (Harris) Armstrong (q. v.); grandson of Henry Holcomb and Elizabeth (Sloan) Armstrong (q. v.), of LaFayette, Ga., and Notasulga, and of Briton Dixon and Rebecca (Kirk) Harris, of Oak Bowery; great grandson of Rev. James and Elizabeth (Giles) Armstrong, and of Adam and Rosa (Barry) Sloan. He was prepared at Notasulga, by Miss Alice Armstrong, his only teacher before entering college; was graduated from the Alabama polytechnic institute, B. S., 1887; was a student in the historical and political department of Johns Hopkins university, studying under Dr. Herbert B. Adams, Dr. Richard S. Ely, and Woodrow Wilson. He became instructor in English and history, Alabama polytechnic institute, 1889-1892, and was librarian of the institution, 1890-1892; was the Alabama representative of Ginn & co., educational publishing house, 1892-1893; U. S. consul, Grenoble, France, 1893-1895; secretary of the U. S. legation, Madrid, Spain, 1895-1897, insurance broker, Paris, France, 1897-1898; captain of the Third regiment, Alabama volunteer infantry, July, 1898 to March, 1899, Spanish-American War; principal, Rome high school, Georgia, 1899-1900; founder and principal, Pensacola classical school, 1900. He is a Democrat and a Mason. Married: December 1900, at Rome, Ga., Janet Williams Penn, daughter of John Wilson and Nancy Liddell (Cleghorn) Penn, who lived at Trion, Ga. Residence: Pensacola, Fla.

ARMSTRONG, HENRY HOLCOMB, business man, was born March 7, 1810, at Savannah, Ga., and died October 20, 1886, at Notasulga; son of Rev. James and Elizabeth (Giles) Armstrong, of Savannah, Ga., the former a native of Hempstead, N. Y., a Baptist minister of eastern Georgia, whose father came to America from Scotland, the latter a descendant of French Huguenots who emigrated to this country. When Mr. Armstrong was two years old, his parents moved to Wilkes County, Ga., where he was reared and educated. He was elected to the Georgia legislature from Wilkes County, and served in the same session with Alexander H. Stephens. He moved to Clayton, Rabun County, Ga., where he followed the mercantile business, 1838; located at LaFayette, Walker County, Ga., some time later; came to Alabama in 1843, settling in Macon County as a farmer and merchant; and lived there until his death forty-three years later. He was a member of the Baptist church and a Mason. Married: 1835, in Wilkes County, Ga., Elizabeth S., daughter of Adam and Rosa (Barry) Sloan, of Edgefield District, S. C. Children: 1. Mrs. T. P. Harvey, Rome, Ga.; 2. James, Main City, Mo.; 3. Capt. Henry Clay (q. v.); 4. D. C. (q. v.); 5. Mrs. E. Dellridge; 6. A. S., deceased, served with Gen. Ross during the War of Secession; 7. R. D., deceased; 8. Mrs. Corrie Reese, Rome, Ga.; 9. R. T., Rome, Ga. Last residence: Notasulga, Macon County.

ARMSTRONG, JAMES, editor, was born September 7, 1855, at Hillsboro, Lawrence County, and died October 20, 1911, at Scottsboro; son of James and Lucy (McKissack) Armstrong; grandson of Andrew and Jane (Berry) Armstrong, and of Col. Archibald and Susan (Harrison) McKissack, the latter a member of the famous Harrison family which gave two presidents to the United States. The McKissicks were relatives of Gen. Winchester of the Revolutionary War. Mr. Armstrong was educated in the common schools of Scottsboro; and at the East Tennessee university, Knoxville. In 1877, he established the "Scottsboro Citizen," and was its editor and publisher continuously until his death. He was elected to the house of representatives, of 1907, from Jackson County; during the 53rd and 59th congresses he held a government position in Washington. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; a Knight of Pythias; and a Knight of Honor. Married: May 18, 1880, at Decatur, to Malie, daughter of Phil. H. and Lizzie N. (Moore) Henderson. Children: 1. Phil. H.; 2. Andrew; 3. Henry C.; 4. Marie. Last residence: Scottsboro.

ARMSTRONG, JAMES KING, teacher, was born October 18, 1824, and died August 28, 1878, at Grenada, Miss.; son of Harville and Mary White (King) Armstrong, of Pine Apple; grandson of Rev. James King, who preached the first sermon in what is now Montgomery. He augmented his early schooling by a college course, and was graduated, A. B., 1844, and A. M., 1849, from the University of Alabama. He was appointed professor at the Centenary institute in 1850, and served on the faculty of that institution for two years, when he became president of the Marion female seminary. He held that office for fourteen years, then was chosen to preside over the LaGrange female college, Georgia, from 1866 until 1868; was president of Union female college, Eufaula, from 1868 until 1870; of Athens female college for the next three years, and then of Grenada female college, where he remained from 1876 until his death. He was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Married: (1) at Uniontown, 1850, Lucy Bondurant; (2) June 16, 1864, Isabella (Fowlkes) Parish. Last residence: Grenada, Miss.

ARMSTRONG, JAMES M., lawyer, was born September 7, 1824, at Hillsboro, Lawrence County, and died at the same place, September 11, 1855; son of Andrew and Jennie (Berry) Armstrong, the former a native of Botetourt County, Va., who early removed to Jefferson County, Tenn., thence to Alabama Territory in 1812, finally locating in Lawrence County as one of its early settlers, where he lived until his death. James M. Armstrong was a lawyer, practiced in Moulton and Hillsboro; represented Lawrence County in the legislature of 1851-52; was an elector on the Pierce and King presidential ticket in 1852. He was a Democrat, but opposed the doctrine of secession, and was favorable to the compromise measures of 1851. Married: December 27, 1852, at Hernando, Miss., to Lucy, daughter of Archibald and Susan McKissack, of Pulaski, Tenn., and granddaughter of Thomas McKissack, a native of Scotland. Children: 1. Andrew, d. in infancy; 2. James (q. v.), m. Mary Lee Henderson. Last residence: Hillsboro.

ARMSTRONG, JAMES W., member constitution convention, 1819, from Montgomery County.

ARMSTRONG, SAMUEL, Methodist minister; pastor Court Street Methodist church, Montgomery, 1841.

ARMSTRONG, THOMAS KING, Methodist minister, was born September 29, 1832, in Wilcox County, and died June 21, 1912, at Birmingham; son of Harville and Mary W. (King) Armstrong, of Pine Apple, Wilcox County; grandson of Rev. James King, of Conecuh County, who was one of the pioneer preachers of two states, the first ordained preacher in Wilmington, N. C., and later the first resident minister of Montgomery. He gained his early schooling in Wilcox County and from his brothers, William and James King Armstrong, then attended Centenary college, Louisiana, from which institution he was graduated, A. M. Soon after his graduation, he began to teach near Hamburg, and in 1863, taught with his brother, James King Armstrong, in Marion female seminary, remaining on the faculty there until the spring of 1867. He farmed in the black belt of Alabama, between Greensboro and Demopolis, and, in 1871, bought from Foot & Malone of Mobile, a half interest in the plantations of the late Col. Barney. He farmed there until 1874, when he was elected president of Mansfield female college, Louisiana, and was licensed to preach while president of that college. He resigned from that position in 1880; taught in the Alabama central female college at Tuscaloosa, and in Birmingham, until 1884, when he entered the North Alabama conference as an itinerant Methodist minister. His first charge was at Tuscumbia, which he served for two years and three months, 1884-1886. At that time, Rev. Mr. Law, then in charge of the church at Decatur, resigned his position, and Bishop Wilson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, appointed Rev. Mr. Armstrong to succeed him. Mr. Armstrong was stationed at the Methodist church at Decatur during the scourge of yellow fever in 1888. He was in charge of Decatur Station, 1887-1889; of the Gadsden Station, 1890-1892; of St. Johns, 1896; of Lafayette Station, 1897-1898; of Elyton, 1899; and of Fayette Station, 1900. In 1901 he asked to be placed on the superannuate roll, in which relation he continued to the end of his life. He was editor of the "Christian Advocate," for three years, and was a Mason. Married: July 26, 1860, at Greensboro, Martha Louisa, daughter of Rev. John and Louisa (Williams) duBois of Greensboro, the former the inventor of the duBois cotton gin; granddaughter of Josiah and Judith (Elmore) Williams, and of Peter and Anne (Clarkson) duBois; great-grandniece of Gen. J. Elmore. Children: 1. Marielou, m. Chappell Cory, Birmingham; 2. Samuel du Bois, m. Kate J. Finn, Decatur; 3. Weemes Herndon, d. in infancy. Last residence: Birmingham.

ARMSTRONG, WILLIAM PARK, banker, was born May 7, 1843, at Knoxville, Tenn., and died January 5, 1901, at Selma; son of James H. and Anne Eliza (Park) Armstrong, of Knoxville, Tenn.; grandson of Robert Armstrong, and of William and Jane Crozier (Armstrong) Park. His early education was acquired in the schools of Knoxville and at the East Tennessee university, Knoxville. At the age of sixteen, he entered Princeton college,

New Jersey, with the class of 1862, and left the school in 1861 to enter the C. S. Army. He enlisted, was placed under Gen. Zollicoffer at Fishing Creek, and was beside that officer when he fell mortally wounded in that battle; was assigned to duty on the staff of Maj.-Gen. John P. McCown as aide-de-camp with the rank of lieutenant; and after the battle of Murfreesboro, was commissioned captain by the secretary of war, with instructions to raise a company of cavalry for independent and scouting service. He remained at the head of this command to the close of the war, his company being during the last year, a part of Gen. Vaughan's cavalry brigade. Capt. Armstrong surrendered with Gen. Warford at Kingston, Ga., May 1865. He had taken part in the battles of Shiloh, Perryville, Fishing Creek, Wildcat, Murfreesboro, and in numerous fights and skirmishes; was wounded so seriously at Wilsonville, Tenn., that he was left for dead on the battlefield; was under command of and in company with Gen. John H. Morgan, when that officer was assassinated. After the close of the war, Capt. Armstrong accepted a position as traveling salesman in the south of the wholesale shoe house of Ransom & Sons, New York City, and was occupied in that fashion until 1867, when he accepted a position in the banking house of Maj. Isbell, his father-in-law, at Talladega. He became cashier and secretary of the Selma fire and marine insurance company, then doing a general banking and insurance business, 1868. Two years later the insurance business was dropped and the City bank of Selma came into existence, with Maj. James Isbell as president and Capt. Armstrong as cashier; a year later that bank was merged into the City national bank, and on the death of Maj. Isbell in 1871, Captain Armstrong was elected president. He held that position until his death, and was at the same time, president of the Isbell national bank of Talladega. In 1886, Princeton college conferred upon him the degree of M. A. honoris causa. He was a Democrat, ruling elder in the Presbyterian church, and a Mason. Married: December 20, 1866, Alice, daughter of Maj. James and Rutelia (Houston) Isbell, of Talladega. Children: 1. James Isbell, d. in youth; 2. Naomi, d. in youth; 3. Rutelia, d. in youth; 4. William Park, minister, instructor in theology in the Princeton theological seminary, m. Rebecca S. Power, at Princeton, December 8, 1904, resides at Princeton, N. J.; 5. Houston Churchwell, formerly secretary of a mining company in Oregon, m. December 30, 1908, at Selma, Nina Gary Lamar, resides in Selma; 6. Margaret Hardie, m. June 3, 1903, at Princeton, N. J., Ainslie P. Ardugh, resides at Orillia, Ontario, Canada; 7. Anna Elizabeth, m. April 28, 1916, at Princeton, N. J., Thomas Sloo Johnson, resides in New Orleans, La. Last residence: Selma.

ARNOLD, GEORGE WEEDEN, Confederate soldier, was born at Summit, Blount County, and died August 6, 1864, at Notasulga; son of Absalom Weedon and Minerva (Moore) Arnold, the former a native of Spartanburg, S. C. He was prepared in Summit under private teachers and was graduated from Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., with the degree of LL. D. He spent little time in the practice of law as he entered the C. S. Army soon after he left college. He volunteered in the Fourth Alabama infantry under Capt. Jones, and served in that connection for about eighteen months. Then he raised a company at Summit of which he was made captain. His company formed part of the Sixteenth Alabama infantry under Bragg and Johnson. He was mortally wounded in the fighting around Atlanta, July 28, 1864, at which time he had attained the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. Married: At Jackson, Tenn., Mollie Spencer. Last residence: Summit.

ARNOLD, JAMES MASON, lawyer, chief justice Mississippi supreme court, was born October 21, 1838, in Elbert County, Ga., and died July 9, 1897, in Birmingham; son of Wilton J. and Ann E. (Bell) Arnold. His parents moved from Georgia to Mississippi during his infancy, and settled on a farm there. They were very poor, and were unable to educate their large family of children beyond the free schools of Mississippi. Judge Arnold attended the public sixteenth section school at Concord Church on the Starkville road, between Columbus and Mayhew; then through the interest of Hon. John T. Connell, Thomas Bell, and his son, James B. Bell, he was brought to the attention of John A. Foster, afterward chancellor of the Mobile chancery court district, who was teaching a high school at Montevallo, Miss. Mr. Foster offered to admit Judge Arnold to his school without compensation, and to pay him for teaching several hours of the day. After attending this school for a year, Judge Arnold took charge of the school at Concord Church, where he taught for a year; then entered the University of Mississippi in 1855, graduating in 1858. He returned to the school at Concord Church; taught there until the outbreak of the War of Secession, when he resigned to enlist in the C. S. Army; joined a volunteer company which was ordered into action the spring of 1861; and served as a private in the Columbus riflemen, Co. K, Fourteenth Mississippi regiment throughout the war, with the exception of a period of imprisonment at Camp Douglas, Chicago, after the fall of Fort Donelson. He was slightly wounded at that battle, and at the battle of Harrisburg, but was not, in either case, disabled for further service. In 1863, while he was serving in the army, Judge Arnold was elected to the Mississippi legislature from Lowndes County. He attended the sessions of the legislature, declining to accept the exemption from military service that the law provided for members of that body, and returned to the army when the sessions were over. He was re-elected to the legislature at the next session after the war; was admitted to the bar at Columbus, Miss., 1866; and practiced law until the spring of 1876, when he was appointed judge of the circuit court of the sixth judicial district of Mississippi. At the end of the term, he was re-appointed without opposition; and before the expiration of his second term, upon petition of the bar and citizens of the district, was appointed by the governor of Mississippi to the office of associate justice of the supreme court of the state. Two years later he was made chief justice of the supreme court; held that position until 1889 when he resigned because of failing health; moved to Birmingham where he formed a law partnership with George A. Evans, and continued to practice law in that city until his death. Married: (1) Orlene, daughter of Col. Robert Lowry of Baldwin, Miss.; (2) Florence Lowry, sister of his first wife. Children, by first marriage: 1. d. in infancy; 2. Orlene Lowry, m. Mr. Shipman; by second marriage, 3. Frances, m. Mr. DeBardeleben; 4. James Mason, Jr.; 5. Nellie Lowry, m. Jesse Lafayette Drennen; 6. Daniel Webster, d. in infancy; 7. Prentiss, d. in infancy. Last residence: Birmingham.

ERSKINE RAMSAY

ARNOLD, JOHN CLINTON, lawyer, business man and legislator, was born April 15, 1881, near Bass Station, Jackson County; son of James Clinton and Martha (Sells) Arnold, the former lived for a time in Crow Creek Valley, and in Winchester, Tenn., and served in the C. S. Army; grandson of William and Elnor (Champion) Sells and of James Jordon Arnold and wife, a Miss McVay. The Arnold family came from Virginia to Alabama. He was educated in the schools near Winchester and Cowan, Tenn.; attended Winchester normal college; and graduated in February, 1904, from the commercial college of the University of Kentucky. From 1904 to 1911, he followed different business pursuits; entered mining and mercantile business, 1912; admitted to the bar, 1916; and elected, 1918, to the house of representatives from Jefferson County; since 1909 he has been a justice of the peace. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; and Woodman of the World. Married: May, 1909, to Beatrice, daughter of Abner F. and Eula (Lee) Morton, of Mineral Springs, Jefferson County. Children: 1. Frank C.; 2. John C., jr. Residence: Morris.

ARNOLD, JOSEPH JOHNSTON, lawyer, was born June 27, 1869, in Jacksonville, Calhoun County; son of Dr. James Davis and Laura Evelyn (McAdams) Arnold; grandson of Lemuel N. and Sarah Walker (Nix) Arnold, and of Robert E. W. and Catherine (Teague) McAdams; great-grandson of Capt. William Arnold, a Revolutionary soldier who lived in the later years of his life at Elberton, Ga. The McAdams and Teague families lived in Abbeville District, S. C. Mr. Arnold attended the common schools; and was graduated from the State normal school at Jacksonville, in 1887. He was admitted to the bar in 1890; served as mayor of Jacksonville for three terms, 1892, 1893, 1894; was elected representative in the State legislature, 1902; was re-elected in 1902, 1906 and 1910. He is a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: January 21, 1903, at Jacksonville, to Gertrude, daughter of Dr. William B. and Mary A. (Goodwin) Arbery. Residence: Anniston.

ARNOLD, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Autauga County; private N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on Jan. 4, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $30; sums received to date of publication of list, $90.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

ARRINGTON, ASA, State senator and planter. He was a Whig and represented the counties of Butler and Pike in the Alabama senate 1842-43-44.

ARRINGTON, JAMES NICHOLSON, lawyer, circuit solicitor and captain, C. S. Army, was born January 10, 1835, in Nash County, N. C., and died August 12, 1894, at Ocean Spring, Miss.; son of Samuel Lewis and Eliza Ann (Nicholson) Arrington (q. v.). He was educated in private schools in his native county and attended the University of Alabama for two years. He left that institution with a hundred and fifty other young men on the occasion of an "insurrection" by the student body and completed his studies at the University of Georgia. He located at Troy and entered upon the practice of the law being soon after made solicitor for the Barbour County circuit, 1865-70. During the seventies he removed to Ft. Worth, Texas, but later returned to Alabama and settled in Montgomery, forming a partnership with Capt. E. A. Graham. He raised a company, the "Flem Freeman Guards," which formed a part of the 15th Alabama regiment infantry, commanded by Col. William Calvin Oates, and was made its captain. He took an active interest in politics and was for some time chairman of the second district Democratic committee. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias. Unmarried: Last residence: Montgomery.

ARRINGTON, RICHARD HENRY, lawyer and state senator, was born November 30, 1872, near Montgomery; son of Judge Thomas Mann and Mary Robins (Goldthwaite) Arrington (q. v.). He attended the public schools of Montgomery and Dr. Hall's high school at Culpeper, Va.; was admitted to the bar at Montgomery in April, 1896, but located in Elba to practice. In 1899 he was nominated as a delegate to the proposed constitutional convention of that year. He was a member of the Democratic State executive committee from 1898 for a number of years. In 1900 he was elected to the State senate and was a member of the house of representatives from Coffee County, 1907. In 1916 he removed to Montgomery where he formed a partnership with his brother, Archibald Hunter Arrington. Married: February 17, 1903, at Timmons ville, Florence County, S. C., to Pauline, daughter of Robert Alfred and Florence Elizabeth (Cole) White, of Chesterfield, S. C. Children: 1. Richard Henry, jr. Residence: Montgomery.

ARRINGTON, ROBERT GOLDTHWAITE, lawyer, was born June 2, 1878, at Montgomery; son of Thomas Mann and Mary Robins (Goldthwaite) Arrington (q. v.) and grandson of Samuel Lewis and Eliza Ann (Nicholson) Arrington (q. v.). He attended the public schools of Montgomery and J. M. Stark's University school. In 1898 he was a student at the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn. He graduated with the degree of LL. D. from the University of Alabama in 1901, and began the practice of that profession at Montgomery the same year. In 1909 he formed a partnership with Harry S. Houghton, (q. v.). He is a Democrat; Episcopalian; Mason; Elk; Red Man; and Knight of Pythias. Married: April 26, 1906, at Montgomery, to Olive, daughter of William Elias and Miriam (Olive) Pierce, formerly of Union Springs, a successful merchant and farmer; grand-daughter of Caleb Ruffin and Elizabeth Ann (Houghton) Olive and George Washington and Amanda (Devore) Pierce. Children: 1. Miriam Goldthwaite. Residence: Montgomery.

ARRINGTON, SAMUEL LEWIS, lawyer and planter, was born March 9, 1806, at Hilliards-ton, Nash County, N. C., and died December 15, 1878, in Montgomery; son of John and Elizabeth Ann (Nicholson) Arrington, the former for many years a member of the legislature of his native state and of the constitutional convention of 1836; grandson of Arthur and Mary (Sandiford) Arrington, and of James and Mary Jackson (Arrington) Nicholson of Nash County, N. C. The Arringtons are of English ancestry. Arthur and his brother, Joseph, came from that country to Southampton County, Va., and removed thence to North Carolina in 1764. Samuel L. Arrington read law with Chief Justice Leonard Henderson at Williamsboro, and was admitted to the bar in his twenty-first year, soon relinquishing the practice of his profession, however, to devote himself to agriculture. In 1833 he was elected to the State senate from his native county and held that position until 1843 when he declined re-election. In 1852 he removed to Montgomery County, Ala., and settled upon a plantation eighteen miles from the capital, later disposing of this place and buying one near the city. Married: December 19, 1826, in Nash County, N. C., to Eliza Nicholson. Children: 1. Mary Ann Eliza, b. November 26, 1827, d. July 9, 1833; 2. Thomas Mann (q. v.) m. Mary Robins Goldthwaite, Montgomery; 3. Laura Elvira; 4. daughter, d. in infancy; 5. James Nicholson; 6. John Richard, m. Nannie Dilliard, no children; 7. Samuel Lewis, b. January 2, 1839, lieutenant in the C. S. Army, died of typhoid fever at Tazewell, Tenn., September 14, 1862, and his remains brought home and interred beside his brother; 8. Eliza Ann, m. Foster Elsberry, Montgomery County; 9. Archibald Hunter, b. June 27, 1843, was wounded in the charge on Malvern Hill near Richmond, Va., returned to his home and died July 15, 1862, and is buried in Montgomery; 10. Mary Laura and Henry Lewis (twins), both deceased; 11. Infant, deceased; 12. Ellen Nicholson, m. Archibald Pitt Tyson (q. v.); 13. Martha Nicholson, m. Laban Warren Tyson, Montgomery. Last residence: Montgomery.

ARRINGTON, THOMAS MANN, lawyer, lieutenant-colonel 31st regiment infantry, C. S. Army, judge of the city court and planter, was born August 29, 1829, in Nash County, N. C., and died November 30, 1896, at Montgomery; son of Samuel Lewis and Eliza (Nicholson) Arrington (q. v.). He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1849 and was admitted to the bar in 1852; moved to Montgomery in 1856, where he practiced his profession until the outbreak of the War of Secession. In 1861 he volunteered in the "Metropolitan Guards," which company belonged to the Third Alabama infantry and with which he served for about eight months. While absent in Virginia with his regiment he was elected to the Alabama legislature which relieved him from military service, but he declined this legal privilege and helped to raise a company of which he was made captain, and which became a part of the 31st Alabama infantry, Col. Daniel R. Hundley, commander. He was later elected lieutenant-colonel of the regiment and retained this office until the close of the war. Owing to the absence of the colonel on account of wounds, he commanded the regiment at the battles of Tazewell, Baker's Creek, Franklin, Nashville and during the siege of Vicksburg and was commended for gallantry by Gen. Stephen D. Lee. His was one of the three regiments of Pettus' brigade that forced the passage of the river at Columbia and captured the enemy's rifle pits. In the spring of 1866 he resumed the practice of law and was shortly after elected judge of the city court by the white voters, but in 1868 was removed from office through the intervention of the reconstruction laws. In 1880 he was again elected city judge and re-elected in 1886. Married: December 18, 1861 at Montgomery, Mary Robins, daughter of George and Olivia Price (Wallach) Goldthwaite, (q. v.) Children. 1. George, d. in infancy; 2. Samuel Lewis, U. S. mail clerk, unmarried; 3. Olivia, unmarried; 4. Thomas Mann, (q. v.), 5. Richard Henry, (q. v.), m. Pauline White; 6. Archibald Hunter; 7. John, contractor, m. Jessie Lund, Chicago; 8. Robert Goldthwaite, (q. v.); 9. Eliza Nicholson, m. Lloyd Lyons, two children, Montgomery; 10. Mary, m. Archibald Campbell Goldthwaite, planter, two children, Montgomery. Last residence: Montgomery.

ARRINGTON, THOMAS MANN, lawyer and planter, was born July 4, 1870, in Montgomery; son of Judge Thomas Mann and Mary Robins (Goldthwaite) Arrington (q. v.). He received his preparatory education in the schools of Montgomery and attended the University of Alabama 1887-88 and 1890-91. He was elected to the Alabama legislature in 1902 as a Democrat. He is unmarried. Residence: Montgomery.

ASHBURN, J. O., Presbyterian minister, 1913. Residence: Leighton.

ASHCRAFT, ANDREW JACKSON, farmer, was born December 18, 1829, in Jackson County, Ga., and died March 24, 1902, in Florence; son of Thomas and Catherine (Abel)

Ashcraft (q. v.). He received his education in the common schools of his native county and spent one session in Cave Springs school, Ga. In February 1862, he enlisted in Co. I, 14th Alabama Regiment infantry, C. S. Army; and soon thereafter set out for Richmond, Va. Owing to his peculiar aptitude to the duties of hospital nurse he was assigned to that work. He served as first ward master, Camp Winder, later as general ward master division No. 1. He rejoined his company in March, 1863, but was immediately ordered to return to hospital service. He was detained by Gen. Lee at his receiving and forwarding hospital and was, by special detail, made chief steward. He surrendered at Appomattox with Gen. Lee's army, April 9, 1865, and was paroled. On returning to his home he lent his influence to building up school and church and to daily toil in the fields to support his family. His declining years were spent in quiet and comfort. He was a Baptist; Democrat; and Mason. Married: November 9, 1858, to Eleanor Eliza, daughter of John and Susannah (Faires) Wiley (q. v.). Children: 1. John Thomas (q. v.) m. Annie Augusta Hendrick; 2. Nancy, d. in infancy; 3. Elizabeth Jackson, graduated at Peabody normal college, Nashville, Tenn., 1885, m. Dr. M. L. Jones, who died in Texas; 4. Cyrus Washington, m. Janie Pharr Dunklin, deceased, daughter of the late Prof. J. T. Dunklin of Auburn; 5. Lou Emma, m. (1) Thomas Bryant, (2) Francis K. Bullard, deceased, resides in Whitesboro, Texas; 6. Susannah Catherine, d. in infancy; 7. Lee, graduated at Alabama polytechnic institute in 1893 with B. S. degree, resides in Florence where he is a manufacturer, m. Mrs. Mary (Baylers) Morgan, daughter of the late Capt. W. W. Baylers; 8. and 9. (twins) Erister, Florence, secretary treasurer Ashcraft cotton mills, graduated at Alabama polytechnic institute, 1897, with B. S. degree and edited the "Opelika Post," m. Marie Urquhart Weeden of Florence, daughter of Col. John D. Weeden and granddaughter of the later Gov. Robert M. Patton; Arthur, who died at eleven years of age at Ashland; 10. Abel Fletcher, assistant general manager of Laurel oil and fertilizer co. at Laurel, Miss., graduated at the Alabama polytechnic institute in 1900 with B. S. degree, m. Mrs. Emma (Bivings) Brown, of Dalton, Ga.; 11. Martha Street, graduate of Judson College, 1901, resides in Florence. Last residence: Florence.

ASHCRAFT, JOHN THOMAS, lawyer and member constitutional convention, 1901, was born October 15, 1859, in Clay County, and died February 9, 1920, in El Paso, Texas; son of Andrew Jackson and Eleanor (Wiley) Ashcraft (q. v.). He received preparatory education in the common schools and high school at Lineville, entered junior class, Alabama polytechnic institute, January, 1879, and graduated in 1880 with B. E. He taught school at Newton and Brundidge, 1881-85, Savoy and Bells, Texas, 1885-87, and at Lowndesboro, 1888-9. He then moved to Florence where he was admitted to the bar, September 19, 1889, and practiced law the remainder of his active life. He served two terms as member of the board of aldermen and many years as secretary of the board of education; was delegate from Lauderdale County to the constitutional convention, in 1901; secretary dispensary board and aggressive advocate of prohibition; member board of trustees Howard college; president board Florence university for women; was a Democrat; Knight of Pythias; Mason; and deacon of Missionary Baptist church. At the time of his death it was written of him "He was imbued to an unusual degree with the Christ spirit. We who knew him toward the end know how closely he must have knit himself as a teacher to his pupils, who spoke of him as 'Father-friend.' The words bring up the face that bore in every line the marks of sweet chivalry. He was always the same kind, self-sacrificing citizen contributing liberally of both means and talent to every worthy cause." He was a great influence in the industrial development of his community, where the climax in these efforts was his participation in the community activity that brought Governmental improvement in Tennessee river at Muscle Shoals. His endeavors to procure national legislation guaranteeing fullest use and complete governmental inspection of milk and its products and vegetable oils, has been appraised as his greatest legal undertaking. His greatest humanitarian work was as one of the first members of the State Anti-tuberculosis Commission, on which he served until his death. Married: December 21, 1886, at Brundidge, to Anne Augusta, daughter of the late Dr. Gustavus and Mary Frances (Copeland) Hendrick, of that place. She graduated from Judson college, Marion in 1883. Children: 1. Infant, deceased; 2. Mary Eliza, m. Henry Duncan Moore, major of engineers in A. E. F., now assistant superintendent Mid-West refining company of the Salt Creek Field, Wyoming; 3. Cyrus Andrew, lieutenant in field artillery, A. E. F.; now at Lago, Idaho; 4. Martha Ellis; 5. Estelle Hurt; 6. Anne Hendrick; 7. Gustavus Hendrick; 8. John Thomas, deceased; 9. Thomas; 10. Eleanor Lee, deceased. Last residence: Florence.

ASHCRAFT, THOMAS, farmer, machinist, inventor, was born August 6, 1786, in Sampson County, N. C., and died December 18, 1866, in Clay County; son of John Ashcraft, who with two brothers immigrated from England and settled in North Carolina. He passed his young manhood in Chester or York District, S. C., moved to Jackson County, Ga., about 1818, to Troup County, Ga., in 1834, to Randolph County, Ala., at the close of 1836, and in 1852 to Talladega County, now Clay. He reared his family on the farm, but was chiefly engaged in constructing various kinds of machinery. He patented a threshing machine, a house cotton press, a machine for the manufacture of combs and a torpedo for destroying vessels. He gave the model of the latter to the Confederate war department. During the War of Secession, though infirm and aged, he engaged in the manufacture of spinning wheels, reels and looms. He was a Whig until the outbreak of the war when he became a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: March 15, 1815, in Chester or York District, S. C., to Catherine, daughter of Ephraim and Elizabeth (Stringfellow) Abel, the former a Baptist preacher who lived at Culpeper Court House and Gordonsville, Va. Children: 1. Catherine, m. Washington Billingslea; 2. Thornton Stringfellow, m. Sophronia Robinson; 3. Nancy, m. Ned Cauley; 4. William, m. Alice Ritchie; 5. Sarah, m. Sterling Hesterly; 6. Anselm Malcom, m. Amanda Wiley; 7. Salina, m. Gideon Brown; 8. Andrew Jackson, (q. v.) m. Eleanor Eliza Wiley; 9. Harriet, m. Seaborn Jones. Last residence: Clay County.

ASHE, PASCAL PAOLI, coal operator, was born September 2, 1791, in North Carolina, and died at Green Springs, Hale County; son of Thomas and Sophia (Davis) Ashe, of North Carolina; grandson of Gov. Samuel Ashe and second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth (Jones) Merrick, the former born in 1725, lawyer, member of the provisional council, Revolutionary soldier, member of the state congress at Hillsboro, 1775-76, paymaster 1st continental regiment, judge of the supreme court, and elected governor of North Carolina, 1795; great-grandson of John Baptista and Elizabeth (Swann) Ashe, the former the first American ancestor, a younger son of the Ashe-Arcourt family of England, who emigrated to America with Lord Craven, and served as colonel in the Revolutionary Army; great-great-grandson of Samuel and Elizabeth (Lillington) Swann; great-great-grandson of Alexander Lillington and wife, a Miss Adams, of Massachusetts, the former deputy colonial governor of Albemarle Settlement, N. C., 1693-95. Pascal Paoli Ashe, after his removal to Alabama, was steward for several years after its opening, of the University of Alabama. Later he became a coal operator in Tuscaloosa, opening a vein of coal some miles from the city which is still known as the "Ashe Seam". Married: September 2, 1811, in North Carolina, to Elizabeth Jane Strudwick. Children: 1. Thomas Samuel, deceased; 2. Dr. William Cincinnatus, deceased, Demopolis; 3. Anne Eliza, m. Martin Pickett; 4. Julia, m. Henry Tutwiler (q. v.); 5. Dr. Edmund F., deceased, Wadesboro, N. C.; 6. Henretta Geraldine, d. unmarried; 7. Martha Lucia, m. Carlos Green Smith; 8. Ruffin Young, adjutant, 11th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, killed at Petersburg, Va., in 1864. Last residence: Green Springs.

ASHE, THOMAS PORTER, planter, was born December 27, 1830, at Greensboro, and died December 17, 1891, at Kimmswick, Mo.; son of Thomas Samuel and Elizabeth (Bell) Ashe, of Hillsboro, N. C.; nephew of Pascal Paoli Ashe (q. v.) and of Admiral Henry Bell, U. S. Navy; grandson of Thomas and Sophia (Davis) Ashe, of North Carolina. He was educated by private tutors and at Norwich military academy, Vermont. He was for a number of years clerk of the circuit court at Old St. Stephens, Washington County; a planter in the same county, and removed to Missouri about 1868, where he purchased a farm. During the War of Secession he served for a time as major, 32nd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was an Episcopalian; and a Mason. Married: at St. Stephens, to Margaret Zenobia Woodyard. Children: 1. Ida, deceased; 2. Ada, deceased; 3. Augusta, deceased; 4. Lissa, married, St. Louis, Mo.; 5. Harry Bell, married, Kimmswick, Mo.; 6. Mary Webb, Denver, Col. Last residence: Kimmswick, Mo.

ASHFORD, ALVA ELGIN, farmer, was born July 10, 1834, near Courtland, Lawrence County; and died July 7, 1904, at Courtland; son of Thomas and Jane (Elgin) Ashford (q. v.); grandson of John Ashford of Virginia, and of Hezekiah and Sinai Elgin of Jessamine County, Ky. Thomas H. Ashford, a native of Culpepper County, Va., moved with his family to Lawrence County, in 1819. He was a captain in the War of 1812 and served under Gen. William H. Harrison. Jane S. Elgin, who was born in Maryland, was descended from Robert Bruce, of Scotland. She was the great-granddaughter of Lord Elgin whose castle still stands in Scotland. Alva E. Ashford attended school in Murfreesboro, then entered Emory and Henry college, Va., and later the University of Virginia. He took up the occupation of farming until the outbreak of the war. He enlisted in Co. B, Sixteenth Alabama infantry, served for a year, was wounded and disabled for some time. He raised and equipped at his own expense, in 1862, Co. C, Thirty-fifth Alabama infantry, and became its captain. Eighteen months later he was promoted to major, and in a few months, to lieutenant colonel. He was complimented on the field at Corinth by Gen. Albert Russ, and his bravery was mentioned in the record of that battle. He was elected to the state legislature in 1866 by the largest majority ever given any man in the county. He was a Democrat, a Mason, and was an elder in the Presbyterian church. Married: February 15, 1871, near Mooreville, Carrie Fletcher, daughter of Dr. Nathan and Sarah (Smith) Fletcher, a descendant of Capt. John Cargill who was a member of the committee of safety of Sussex County, Va., during the Revolutionary War. Children: Two adopted daughters. Last residence: Courtland.

ASHFORD, FREDERICK A., pioneer, was born April 19, 1830, in Lawrence County, and died November 30, 1864, at Franklin, Tenn.; son of Thomas and Jane (Elgin) Ashford (q. v.), the former a veteran of the War of 1812 and one of the earliest settlers of Lawrence County; grandson of Hezekiah and Sinai Elgin, of Jessamine County, Ky. He raised and organized Co. B, Sixteenth Alabama Infantry and was appointed captain. He was promoted to major of the regiment, then to lieutenant colonel, and finally to colonel. He was distinguished for bravery at Murfreesboro, Lookout Mountain, Dalton, Kennesaw, and Atlanta.

He fell at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., leading a charge of his regiment. The Confederate veteran camp, Fred Ashford, at Town Creek, is named for him. He was a Baptist and a Democrat. Last residence: near Courtland.

ASHFORD, THOMAS, pioneer, died near Courtland, Lawrence County; came with his wife to Lawrence County in 1819, and settled near Courtland. They were among the first settlers of the county. He was a captain in the War of 1812 and served under Gen. William H. Harrison. He was in the regiment of Col. William R. Johnson, of Kentucky, and was near his command in the battle of Tippecanoe, in which Chief Tecumseh was killed. He was a member of the Baptist church. Married: Jane Elgin, daughter of Hezekiah and Sinai Elgin, of Jessamine County, Ky. Children: 1. Dr. Augustus Hezekiah, physician, b. July 6, 1817, d. September 15, 1843; 2. Col. Frederick A. (q. v.), b. April 19, 1830, Lawrence County, killed in the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 30, 1864; 3. Thomas H., m. Caroline Tate, died leaving a widow and two sons, Thomas T. (q. v.) and Frederick A.; 4. Col. Alva E. (q. v.), b. July 10, 1834, near Courtland, d. July 7, 1904, Courtland, m. Carrie Fletcher, served in C. S. Army; 5. Dr. Edward C., physician; 6. Lucilla, m. Rev. D. Bridenthall of Texas. Last residence: near Courtland, Lawrence County.

ASHFORD, THOMAS T., business man, was born September 27, 1857, in Limestone County; son of Thomas H. and Caroline (Tate) Ashford; grandson of Thomas and Jane (Elgin) Ashford (q. v.), early settlers of Lawrence County, and of Enos Tate, the first settler of Huntsville, who came to Alabama from Elbert County, Ga.; great grandson of Hezekiah and Sinai Elgin, of Jessamine County, Ky. He attended private schools until the age of seventeen; was graduated from East Tennessee University, Knoxville, Tenn., in 1877, and took the diplomatic course in the commercial college at Lexington, Ky. He became bookkeeper for the firm, Hendricks & Ables, Little Rock, Ark., for four years; traveling salesman for Cole Manufacturing Company, of Memphis, Tenn., for eight months; entered partnership with H. H. Mayberry at Birmingham in the paint, oil, glass, and wallpaper business, from 1885-1886; formed a stock company, the Birmingham Paint & Glass Co., and was elected president. Married: December 31, 1885, Susie Swoope, of Wheeler, daughter of Captain Charles C. Swoope. Residence: Birmingham.

ASHLEY, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, planter, was born November 18, 1822, at Montgomery, and died at Ashville, March 29, 1903; son of John G. and Margaret Ann (Johnston) Ashley (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of the county, and at La Grange college. He was a cotton planter in Montgomery County, and later moved to Ashville. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Mason. Married: (1) to Mary Nicholson, daughter of Alexander Nicholson of Coosa County; (2) September 17, 1858, at Wetumpka, to Elizabeth Fitzgerald, daughter of John McCaw and Theresa (Fitzgerald) Byers, and granddaughter of Dr. Reuben Fitzgerald, a native of Pittsylvania County, Va. Mrs. Ashley is still living at Oden-ville. Children, by first wife: 1. Preston, d. unmarried; 2. Benjamin F., m. Florence Farley, Bristol, Tenn.; by second wife: 3. Margaret Hughes, m. Judge James T. Greene (q. v.); 4. Ellen Rush, m. George W. Hodges, of Ashville; 5. Huger Gordon, unm.; 6. Reuben Fitzgerald, m. Ida Jarrett, of Beaumont, Tex.; 7. Marie Theresa, m. Charles Lansdell, of Paris, Tenn.; 8. Percy Ford, d. young. Last residence: Ashville.

ASHLEY, FELIX LEONARD, planter, was born in North Carolina; son of William and Mary Ashley; and brother of John G. Ashley (q. v.). He was a planter and owned much property in Montgomery County. Married: (1) Caroline, daughter of Rev. Samuel Johnson, a Protestant Methodist minister, who was a brother of Margaret Johnson, wife of John G. Ashley (q. v.). (2) Ellen Rush, sister of Dr. John W. Rush (q. v.). Children, by first wife: 1. Augustus, killed by Clay Williams, in a youthful quarrel at Tuskegee; by second wife: 2. Felix Leonard, m. Mary Sumner; 3. Charles Rush, planter, m. Ella Wyman, daughter of Dr. William S. Wyman (q. v.), of Tuscaloosa; 4. Robert Augustus, planter, m. Marion Myrick, of Montgomery; 5. William Andrew, d. unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

ASHLEY, JOHN G., planter and representative, was born June 20, 1792, at Lumberton, N. C., and died near Montgomery, February 13, 1844; son of William and Mary Ashley, natives of North Carolina, who emigrated to Alabama, while it was a territory, located at Montgomery, and later removed to a plantation near Catoma Creek, where they are buried. John G. Ashley became a planter and owned extensive properties on Catoma Creek. During the session of 1823, he represented Montgomery County in the house. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: January 3, 1813, in North Carolina, to Margaret Ann, daughter of Hugo Johnston, who with his brother, Gilbert, formed and financed a cavalry organization which served under Gen. Francis Marion in the Revolutionary War. He was born, lived, died and is buried in North Carolina. Children: 1. Benjamin Franklin (q. v.); 2. Hugh, married and emigrated to Arkansas; 3. William Pinkney, a captain in the C. S. Army, d. unmarried; 4. Margaret Ann, m. Stephen Hughes, of Coosa County; 5. Eliza Ann, m. Dr. Joseph Addison Cobb, of Connecticut, and had two children, one d. in infancy, and the other, Camotte Ashley Cobb, m. Lovey Anderson of Lebanon, Tenn., and had among others, Lila May, who m. Seth Boone Gordon, of Louisiana; 6. Harriet Ann, m. John McQueen, of Greenville; 7. John G. jr., born in Montgomery County, September 18, 1819, one of the first children born in the county, and died February 1, 1844, unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

ASHLEY, WILLIAM ADAM, planter and state senator, was born in 1822 at Hampden Ridge, Conecuh County, and died in the same county, February 12, 1870; son of Wilson and Mary Ann (McCreary) Ashley (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of the county, and graduated from the East Tennessee university at Knoxville. He represented Conecuh County in the house in 1849, 1851-52 and 1861-63, and was a member of the senate during the sessions of 1853-54, 1855-56 and 1865. While, in 1860, he voted for Bell, the Union candidate for president, and was opposed to secession in 1861, Mr. Ashley did not falter a moment in sustaining the Southern cause throughout the hard struggle. He was a Whig. In 1861 he was a Confederate presidential elector for Davis and Stephens. Married: Amanda, daughter of Major Thomas, of Conecuh County. Children: 1. William jr., m. Amanda Anderson; 2. John, d. unmarried; 3. Arthur, d. unmarried. Last residence: Hampden Ridge.

ASHLEY, WILSON, planter, was born in Barnwell District, S. C., in 1796, and died at Evergreen, in 1866; son of John Ashley who emigrated to New York from England about the middle of the eighteenth century, and later removed to Barnwell District, S. C. He enlisted as a private in the War of 1812, was promoted 1st lieutenant, and later captain. He removed to Alabama in 1820, and located in Conecuh County, where he resided until his death. From 1832 to 1835 he was sheriff of the county; and a member of the house of representatives, 1835. He was a Whig; and a Mason. Married: in 1818, in Barnwell District, Mary Ann, daughter of Adam and Mary (Odem) McCreary, natives of Barnwell District, the former when quite a boy endured the many hardships of the Revolutionary War and removed to Conecuh County in the pioneer period. Children: 1. Wilson jr., d. in infancy; 2. William Adam, m. Amanda Thomas (q. v.); 3. Caroline Elizabeth, m. Andrew Jay (q. v.); 4. James Wilson, d. in infancy; 5. Susan, m. Sanford Jones, and had one daughter, Mary, who m. Edmond Martin; 6. Nathaniel, student University of Alabama, 1847-48, private C. S. Army, and retired merchant, m. Polly Stillworth, and had seven children; 7. Mary Ann, m. Charles Thomas Taliaferro (q. v.). Last residence: Evergreen.

ASHURST, JOHN, pioneer, died in 1830, at Mount Meigs, came to Montgomery County in 1818 from Putnam County, Ga. Before his residence in Georgia, he came from Chesterfield County, Va. He bought a large tract of land from the government at the Milledgeville land sale in 1817 when that section of Alabama which is now Montgomery County was opened for settlement. He erected a house, the materials of which he hauled from Georgia, at the nine-mile post on the Mount Meigs Road. It is said to be the first frame house and the first house with glass windows in Montgomery County. The house is still standing on the plantation now owned by the Marks family at the nine-mile post. By his will he disposed of about one hundred slaves and several plantations.

Married: In Georgia, Frances Hill, a descendant of the Huguenots of South Carolina, whose family is intermarried with that of the Flournoys. Children: 1. Merrill, attorney; represented Montgomery County in the legislature in 1837 and again in 1840; moved to California and was appointed judge in one of the courts of that state, and to New Mexico where he became a lawyer and jurist; died in New Mexico, 1869; 2. Robert, planter, b. February 15, 1816; served as a private in the Indian War, 1836; director of the State Bank, 1840-1844; representative in the Alabama general assembly, 1863-1865; m. at Montgomery, March 15, 1836, Julia Frances Vickers, resided at Tallassee; 3. George Washington, planter, b. November 8, 1822, d. December 15, 1873, lived at Tallassee; 4. daughter, m. (1) J. J. Crayon, (2) Daniel Sheehan; 5. daughter, m. Hugh Caffey, of Montgomery. Last residence: Mount Meigs Road.

ATKINS, THOMAS, farmer, was born November 22, 1792, near Laurens Court House, Laurens County, S. C., and died at Warrenton, Ala.; son of Benjamin Atkins, a soldier in the Revolution, who lived near Laurens Court House, S. C. Family tradition is that the Atkins family came from England to America in the early part of the eighteenth century. Mr. Atkins was brother of Reed Atkins, whose son, Gen. J. D. C. Atkins, was for many years a distinguished citizen of Tennessee. He was great uncle of Bishop James E. Atkins, and of Dr. Weightman F. Melton of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Mr. Atkins was a corporal in Capt. Gray's company of Alabama militia in the War of 1812, and served in the Mexican War. He farmed all his life, and was universally known as "Uncle Tommie." He lived on what was called the Georgia Road, the main thoroughfare of emigration through that section in the early days. His home was a large, two-story, hewn log building that stood about half a mile south of Warrenton; and he owned many negroes whose cabins surrounded the residence. The residence and nearly all of the cabins were burned by Federal troops during the War of Secession. Mr. Atkins was an Andrew Jackson Democrat, and for many years was deacon of his local congregation in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Married: About 1814 or 1815, at Hazel Green, Madison County, Rebecca Tate, daughter of Abner Tate, who lived at that place, and was in 1814, a member of the county court. Children: Mary Ann, the only child who survived infancy, b. December 2, 1818, at Hazel Green, d. at the home of her son, Thomas Atkins Street, April 17, 1894, m. (1) Rev. Oliver Day Street of Winchester, Tenn., August 28, 1834, who died December 1840, (2) James Lawrence Sheffield, children, by first husband, 1. Thomas Atkins, 2. and 3. d. in infancy, by second husband, 4. Mary, 5. Lucinda, deceased, 6. Andrew Moore, 7. Rebecca, deceased, 8. James Bradley, deceased, 9. William Smith. Last residence: Warrenton.

ATKINS, VICTOR BOARDMAN, merchant and State senator, was born April 25, 1856, at Greensboro, died at Selma, September 18,

COLONEL THOMAS G. BUSH

1915, son of John and Florence Richard (Harrison) Atkins; grandson of John and Nancy (Harris) Atkins, and of Richard and Catherine (Sloane) Harrison. The Atkins family were residents of King and Queen County, Virginia, and the Harrison family of Columbia, S. C. John Atkins, Jr., was an emigrant from King and Queen, Va., to Greensboro, about 1830, was a druggist, later a farmer, and probate judge of Hale County, 1874 to 1876. The family springs from two brothers, William and John Atkins, who came to Virginia from Scotland early in the 17th century. The Harrison family are descendants of the historic family of the name in Virginia. Richard Harrison was a nephew of the first Gen. Wade Hampton. On removing to Alabama he settled seven miles above Greensboro. Senator Atkins received his education in the preparatory school of the Southern university at Greensboro; was a merchant from boyhood; in 1903 was a member of the city council of Selma; mayor of Selma for a term ending October 1, 1910; served two years as lieutenant in troop C, 1st cavalry, Alabama national guard; two years as captain of the same command; elected major of cavalry squadron, serving out one term and part of another. On the organization of the State highway department, April 7, 1911, he was appointed one of the commissioners, continuing to serve until January 11, 1915, when he was succeeded by Julian Smith, he having resigned on account of ill health. He was a Democrat; was at one time a member of the congressional committee of the 4th district; an Episcopalian; a Knight of Pythias, an Elk and a Woodman of the World. Married November 30, 1873, to Mary B. Martin, the daughter of Atlas Jones and Harriet (Shields) Martin, who lived at Old Homestead Shields, near Orrville. Children: 1. A. J. Martin, m. Carrie Wilkins; 2. Edward B. M., 3. Victor B. Jr., 4. Josiah Harrison. Last residence. Selma.

ATKINSON, CHARLES PRESCOTT, Methodist minister, was born August 31, 1867, at Newton, Dale County; son of Cornelius Vertillius and May (Eason) Atkinson, the former a native of Cuthbert, Ga., removed to Newton, 1850, private in the 15th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of William Maldree and Ursula (Griffith) Atkinson, of Cuthbert, Ga., and of Elizabeth (Smith) Eason, who lived at Newton; great-grandson of Judge Oliver Herrin Griffith, ordinary of Randolph County, Ga., and for some years a teacher there, later postmaster at Newton. Dr. Atkinson received his early education in the public and private schools of Newton; one year in the school of Ozark; attended the Southern university from which he graduated with the B. S. degree, 1888; tutored and took A. M. course during the 1899-90 session; completed graduate course in Christian Theism, Illinois Wesleyan university, and in 1910 received the Ph. D. degree; received honorary D. D. from Southern university, 1910; member summer school at Harvard, 1905. He was licensed to preach by the Methodist Episcopal church, South, 1886, at Ozark; was admitted on trial and ordained deacon by Bishop Granberry in Pensacola, Fla., 1890 and was received into full connection, 1892, by Bishop Fitzgerald; ordained elder, 1894, at Brewton, by Bishop Duncan. He has served pastorates at Mariana, Fla., Geneva, Montgomery, Camden, Dayton, and Uniontown; elected professor of philosophy at the Southern university, chairman of the Social service commission of the Alabama conference which he assisted in organizing. He returned to active itinerancy, and is now residing at Samson. He is an Independent in politics; a Knight of Pythias, and a member Alpha Tau Omega college fraternity. Author: article on "Clifford Lanier," in Library of Southern literature. Married: October 14, 1896, at Geneva to Jessie, daughter of Henry Wesley and Laura Luzine (Stoudenmire) Laird, who lived successively, at Montgomery, Elba and Geneva, the former a native of South Carolina, merchant in Montgomery, about 1850 and later in Geneva, a Confederate soldier, member constitutional convention 1875, representative in the legislature from Geneva County; granddaughter of Van and Martha (Jackson) Stoudenmire of Autauga, a veteran of the Seminole Indian War; great-granddaughter of Jeremiah Jackson of Independence, Autauga County. Children: 1. Arthur Laird, soldier in European War and served in the A. E. F., in France; 2. Erin. Residence: Samson.

ATKINSON, GEORGE FRANCIS, botanist, for about four years a resident of Alabama, was born at Raisinville, Monroe County, Mich., January 26, 1854; son of Joseph and Josephine (Fish) Atkinson, the former having removed from New Jersey to Michigan early in life. Prof. Atkinson was a student at Olivet college, Mich., 1878-83, and received the degree of Ph. B. from Cornell university, 1885. He held professorships at the universities of North Carolina and of South Carolina until 1889, when he came to Alabama to accept the position of professor of biology and biologist of the experiment station, Alabama polytechnic institute. He became a member of the faculty of Cornell university in 1892, where he is now at the head of the department of botany. Author: "Biology of ferns," 1894; "Elementary botany," 1898; "Lessons in botany," 1900; "Studies of American fungi," 1900; "Mushrooms, edible, poisonous, etc.," 1903; "First studies on plant life," 1904; "College text-book of botany," 1905. Married: August 1888, at Durham, N. C., to Lizzie S., daughter of W. C. Kerr, for many years state geologist of North Carolina and a resident of Raleigh. Children: 1. Francis Kerr; 2. Clara Packard. Residence: Ithaca, N. Y.

ATKINSON, JESSE MALDRIE, teacher, was born May 9, 1874, at Newton, Dale County; son of Cornelius Vantiluious and Mary (Eason) Atkinson, natives, respectively, of Randolph County, Ga., and Wilkerson County, Ga., the former of whom enlisted in the C. S. Army when he was sixteen years old, and served till the close of the war in Capt. Oates' company; grandson of William Maldree and Ursula E. (Griffith) Atkinson of Cuthbert, Ga., and later of Newton, and of Isaac and Elizabeth (Smith) Eason, of Wilkerson County, Ga. He was prepared in a school at Newton, under the supervision of G. S. Crim, now a merchant in Birmingham; and attended the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, graduating, B. S., 1899. Immediately after his graduation, he began to teach school, first as principal at Canton Bend, Wilcox County, 1899-1900; then at Eldridge, Walker County, 1900-1901; became professor of English, history and Latin in the Ninth district agricultural school, Blountsville, 1901-1904; served as superintendent of public schools, Alabama City, 1904-1907; became president of the Eighth district agricultural school, Athens, 1907, and has since held that position. He was lieutenant of a corps of cadets in college; is a Democrat, a Methodist and a member of the board of stewards of the Athens Methodist church; and has been worshipful master of his lodge of Masons. Married: September 3, 1900, at Camden, Amelia Ada Smith, daughter of Malcolm White and Virginia (Alford) Smith, who lived at Camden Bend, Wilcox County. Her great grandparents came from Scotland, and one of her great grandfathers fought in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Mary Irvin, b. 1902; 2. LeRoy Maldrie, b. 1904; 3. Elizabeth, b. 1905; 4. Dorothy, b. 1908. Residence: Athens.

AUSTILL, HURIEOSCO, lawyer, was born February 16, 1841, in Mobile; and died July 3, 1912, in Mobile; son of Col. Jeremiah and Margaret (Eads) Austill (q. v.) of South Carolina. He was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1861; immediately entered the C. S. Army; was appointed second lieutenant of the First Alabama battery of artillery, held a commission throughout the war in that command but during the Kentucky campaign, in December, 1862, was appointed to a captaincy in the Twenty-second Alabama infantry, in the way of a detached position. He was once slightly wounded; was captured at Fort Morgan, and until the end of the war was held a prisoner, spending four months at Fort LaFayette and six months at Fort Delaware.

He entered upon the study of law in the office of Dargan & Taylor, of Mobile, 1866; was admitted to the bar, 1868, and practiced in Mobile from that date until his death. He was elected to the Alabama house of representatives for one term in 1880; to the state senate for four years in 1882, served one term as chancellor of the southern division of Alabama from 1874-1882. He was one of the organizers of the Mobile & West Alabama railroad, of which he was president for a time; was also the promoter of the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City railroad and was president of that road until the contract for its construction was given to a new management. For some months prior to his death, he devoted much of his time to railroad development. He was a Democrat, a member of the State Bar Association and of the Baptist church.

Married: December 24, 1874, Aurora R. Ervin, daughter of Dr. Robert and Sarah (Tait) Ervin, of Wilcox County. Children: Three sons and three daughters. Last residence: Mobile.

AUSTILL, JEREMIAH, pioneer, was born in 1794, in Pendleton District, S. C.; died in 1881, in Clarke County; son of Capt. Evan Austill, an Indian fighter who died of exposure, October 18, 1818, while on an Indian campaign. He was a native of North Carolina. Mrs. Austill, whose maiden name was Files, was a sister of Col. David Files of Washington County; grandson of Isaac Austill, whose ancestors came from Saint Austill, England. He came to Clarke County with his father in 1813, and was one of its first settlers. He took part in the perilous border warfare of that day and won historic prominence at the age of nineteen years by his participation in the "Canoe Fight," a manuscript account of which, prepared by him, is in the collection of the Alabama Historical Society.

He moved to Mobile County and later to Clarke County, and was elected to represent the latter in the general assembly of 1845. He engaged in extensive planting, raising large quantities of farm produce as well as huge cotton crops. Married: Margaret Eads, of Welch ancestry, a relative of Captain Eads of Mississippi jetty fame. She died in 1890. Children: 1. Margaret Josephine, m. (1) John Marn, (2) Stephen Thompkins, a daughter of the first marriage married Turner Rice, a son of the second marriage, Stephen Austill, Newport News, Va.; 2. Hurieosco (q. v.), m. Aurora R. Ervin, daughter of Dr. Robert and Sarah (Tait) Ervin; 3. Kate, m. George Linnig, living at Spring Hill. Last residence: Clarke County.

AUSTILL, MARGARET, former member Alabama girls' technical institute and college for women faculty. Residence: Mobile.

AUSTIN, CONRAD WALL, chief law enforcement officer, was born, June 20, 1868, near Butler Springs, Butler County; son of David Washington and Amanda (Seals) Austin, of Butler County, the former a captain of a company in the Confederate Army, at the beginning of the war in 1861, but being a carpenter, was detailed to the navy yard, in which he remained until the close of the war, removed to Butler County, and in 1871, moved to Birmingham, engaging in business, until his death in 1902. Conrad W. Austin, was educated in the public schools of Jefferson County, at Highland Home academy, and at Howard college. He was on the police force of the city of Birmingham from 1888 to 1894, was chief of police, 1898 to 1901, city fire inspector, four years, chief of safety department, coal operators association one year. During the World war, he was supervisor of law and order at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee River. He was appointed by Governor Kilby to head the new law enforcement department, on the creation of this office, by the legislature in 1919, having served for a short time as examiner of public accounts, as well as state fire marshal. He is a Democrat, Presbyterian, and a Mason. Married. Children: Conrad W., jr. Residence, Birmingham.

AUSTIN, JAMES MAXWELL, physician, was born November 20, 1878, near Wetumpka, Elmore County; son of Judge William A. and Frances Susan (Simms) Austin (q. v.). Dr. Austin was educated in the public schools of Wetumpka, and attended the U. S. naval academy. He took his professional work at the medical department of the University of Alabama, Mobile, 1904, since which time he practiced at Wetumpka, until his appointment as physician member of the board of convict inspectors in April, 1913. He has been physician at the State penitentiary; physician to the tuberculosis hospital for convicts at Wetumpka, which he assisted in establishing; and he has for a long time been interested in prison reform. He was at one time 1st lieutenant Co. E, Second regiment, A. N. G.; is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Knight of Pythias, a member of the Elks, the Red Men, the Woodmen of the World, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the Phi Chi college fraternities. He is unmarried. Residence: Wetumpka.

AUSTIN, JASPER CALLAN, merchant, lumberman, farmer and legislator, was born March 9, 1876, at Rising Fawn, Dade County, Ga.; son of Henry Daniel and Rebecca (Burkhalter) Austin, the former a farmer and stock raiser; grandson of Jonathan A. and Elizabeth (Henry) Austin, the latter a direct descendant of Patrick Henry, and of D. Branson Burkhalter and wife, a Miss Newman, of Flat Rock and Dear Head Cave; great-grandson of John A. Austin, a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Mr. Austin was educated in the common schools of Flat Rock; Bridgeport training school; and at Pisgah male and female college. He is a merchant, lumberman, farmer; was justice of the peace 1911 to 1915; elected to the house of representatives of 1919, from Jackson County; local chairman liberty loan and war savings thrift stamps committees during the World War; chairman board of trustees Flat Rock high school. He is a Democrat; Methodist; and an Odd Fellow. Married: June 24, 1909, at Crossville, to Lola B., daughter of J. C. and Zemili (Morton) Crump, of Boaz. Children: 1. Edward C.; 2. Annie Ruth; 3. Jasper Leon. Residence: Flat Rock.

AUSTIN, WILLIAM A., farmer, probate judge, was born September 19, 1848, in Newton County, Ga.; son of Taliaferro L. and Elizabeth H. Loyall, natives of North Carolina and Georgia, respectively. He came to Alabama when a child with his parents who settled in that part of Coosa County now known as Elmore County; attended school in Elmore County until 1861, and in Newton County, Ga., to which place his father had returned, 1861-1864, returned to Elmore County and resumed his studies until he was nineteen years of age, when he took up the occupation of farming. He was a member of the Elmore County Democratic executive committee for several years following 1880; was justice of the peace of beat number twelve, 1884-1886; was appointed by Gov. Thomas Seay, probate judge of Elmore County to fill the four years' unexpired term of J. A. Lancaster; was nominated on the Democratic ticket, March, 1892, for the same office, but was defeated; and resumed his farming which he had relinquished in 1888 to assume the position of judge. He is a member of the Missionary Baptist church, is a Knight of Pythias and a Knight of Honor. Married: 1873, Susan F., daughter of Frank and Dera Simms, the former of whom was ex-treasurer of Coosa County. Children: 1. Taliaferro; 2. Frank S.; 3. Grace; 4. James Maxwell (q. v.); 5. William A.; 6. Bessie K.; 7. Ola G. Residence: Wetumpka, Elmore County.

AUTREY, ALEXANDER, pioneer settler, was born January 4, 1780, in North Carolina, and died September 22, 1857, in Conecuh County. He was of French and German ancestry. He removed to Georgia in 1810, later to Monroe County where he remained until the early part of 1816, when he removed to Conecuh County and founded Hampden Ridge. He was the second white man to settle in Conecuh County. Married: March 5, 1803, in North Carolina, to Parthenia B. Irvin. Children: among these, 1. Mrs. C. P. Robinson; 2. Mrs. Riley, mother of Rev. B. F. Riley (q. v.). Last residence: Conecuh County.

AUTREY, JAMES HENRY, farmer, member constitutional convention of 1867, was born in Alabama in 1819, a descendant from Irish and Dutch stock. His father removed from North Carolina to this state in pioneer days. Mr. Autrey represented Calhoun County in the constitutional convention of 1867, and was throughout his life a consistent union man.

AVERETT, SAMUEL WOOTEN, LL.D.; deceased, president Judson college, 1887-96.

AVERIETT, WILLIAM A., farmer, was born July 17, 1830, in Lowndes County; son of Benjamin and Sarah M. (Grubbs) Averiett, who moved from Autauga County to Lowndes County in 1828 and were among the first settlers of the latter place, the former a native of Georgia, was one of the early traders with the Indians and for several years conducted a store for that purpose; grandson of Benjamin and Elizabeth Averiett, pioneer settlers of Alabama who located in Autauga County. He was reared upon his father's farm, attended the public schools of the county, and later, college, at Selma. He began farming at the age of eighteen and continued on the same farm for fifty-nine years. He is a Mason and a Democrat. Married: (1) Margaret Hamilton, born in Lowndes County, died in 1860, daughter of Moses and Susan (Maul) Hamilton; (2) Mary A. Wallis, daughter of Daniel and Louisiana (Welch) Wallis. Children, by first marriage; 1. Ella J., m. D. R. Collier; by second marriage, 2. Lillian L.; 3. W. W.; 4. Ruby R.; 5. Mary F.; 6. Onela; 7. Benjamin W. Residence: Lowndes County.

AVERY, MOSES BROWN, minister, negro, was born November 22, 1833, in Pensacola, Fla.; son of Fred J. Avery, of Mobile, who purchased his freedom, and that of his mother; grandson of Col. Avery, a native Scot, who fought in the War of 1812. His great-grandmother was an Indian; his mother was stolen when a child and made a slave. He was taken to Mobile by his father where he was reared a freeman. He took up the study of theology; served on the Federal gunboat Clifton, was wounded in the battle of Galveston, January 1, 1863; was honorably discharged; entered the political field advocating universal suffrage for all classes; helped organize the "Union Brotherhood;" organized the first national convention of colored men, held in Syracuse, N. Y., 1864, which resulted in the organization of the "Equal Rights League;" was elected recording secretary of the Louisiana state executive committee which called the first state convention of colored men in Louisiana; was elected secretary of that convention; became assistant editor of the "New Orleans Tribune;" served as recording steward of St. James chapel and as secretary of the quarterly conference of that church; taught school in Wesley Chapel, the first school opened for colored children; entered the ministry in 1866, was appointed in charge of the Pass Christian Circuit, New Orleans District, Mississippi Mission Conference, M. E. Church; was appointed registrar of voters in Mobile by Gen. Pope; was a member of the first state republican convention in Alabama and elected a resident member of the state executive committee. Residence: New Orleans, La.

AVERY, W. C., physician and naturalist. His collection of bird skins is preserved in the Geological museum, University of Alabama.

AVERY, WILLIAM RICHARD, Baptist minister, was born October 8, 1848, in Chambers County; son of John Walton and Elizabeth (Tomme) Avery, the former a native of Lincoln County, Ga., who emigrated to Alabama, settling in 1846 in Chambers County, and in 1850 in Randolph County; grandson of Needham and Martha (Walton) Avery, and of Joseph and Zilpha (Vining) Tomme, of Putnam and Troup Counties, Ga. The Avery family, whose name was formerly spelled Avera, is of Welsh descent. The first emigrants of the name founded, in the seventeenth century, the town of Averysboro in North Carolina. The ancestors of the Tomme family emigrated from Holland to Pennsylvania prior to the Revolution, and after the war settled in Georgia. Mr. Avery was educated in the country schools of Randolph County. He farmed until 1882, then entered the ministry of the Primitive Baptist church, serving as pastor of the Wehadkee Church and moderator of the Beulah Baptist Association. He held the office of magistrate in Chambers County, 1893-1895; was elected to the State legislature, November, 1906; and was re-elected in 1910. He was a delegate to the Conference of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes, at Washington, December, 1912. He is a Democrat. Married: (1) December 15, 1870, in Randolph County, to Mary A. Jackson, whose ancestors emigrated from Ireland prior to the Revolutionary War, daughter of William and Mary (Knight) Jackson, of Randolph County; (2) January 19, 1896, to Martha Alice Lee, of Irish descent, daughter of Isom and Mary (Weathers) Lee of the same country. Children, by first marriage: 1. Mary E., m. Joseph O. Smith; 2. Charles Needham, m. Adla Nelson; 3. Green Jackson, deceased; 4. Wyatte Henderson; 5. Lucy, m. George W. Lee; 6. Willie Myrtle; 7. William Mitchell; by second marriage, 8. Olen Lee; 9. Jessie B.; 10. Ben Carter. Residence: Wehadkee.

AVERY, WILLIAM T., lieutenant colonel, 1st Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was a Tennessean.

AYRES, ALBERT M., farmer, probate judge, was born October 23, 1843, in Macon, Ga.; son of Asher and Mary (Cutter) Ayres, the former a native of Woodbridge County, N. J., who moved to Georgia and established himself there as a merchant; grandson of Asher and Fannie Ayres, of Woodbridge County, N. J., and of Henry S. and Anna (Herb) Cutter, natives, respectively, of Massachusetts and Georgia. He was educated in private schools, and in colleges at Yonkers and Cornwall, N. Y., from which latter place, he was graduated in civil engineering just before the outbreak of the War of Secession. He entered the C. S. Army, joining the First regiment, engineer corps, of the army of Virginia, and served throughout the war. After the close of the war, he farmed and engaged in the profession of civil engineer for twenty years in Marshall County. He was elected judge of the probate court of Marshall County, 1898; and represented the seventh district as member of the board of trustees of the Agricultural College at Albertville. He is a Democrat. Married: March, 1877, Nannie C. Forster, of Marshall County. Children: 1. Albert M., jr.; 2. Ira F. Residence: Marshall County.

AYRES, MILAN VALENTINE, electrical railway engineer, was born February 14, 1875, at Hamlin, Brown County, Kan.; son of Milan Church and Georgiana (Gall) Ayres. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, S. B., 1898; attended a course in electrical engineering at the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y., 1899-1900; was engineer with that company, 1899-1902; mechanical engineer with the Boston & Worcester Street Railway, South Framingham, Mass., 1902-1911; studied law with T. H. Innes in Boston, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar, 1909; became assistant general manager of the Rockland Light & Power Company at Nyack, N. Y., instituting methods of scientific management while in that position, July to November, 1911; and was made chief engineer of the Mobile Light & Railroad Company, November, 1911. He is a member of the Congregational church; of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; of the American Electric Railway Engineering Association; and is author of numerous technical papers and reports. Married: September 14, 1910, Emma Gertrude Stevens, of Newton Highlands, Mass. Residence: 982 Dauphin Way, Mobile.

B

BABB, MARY CYNTHIA MORRISON, teacher, and for many years a resident of Alabama, was born November 2, 1848, in Kosuth, Tishomingo County, Miss.; daughter of Robert Russell and Elizabeth Ann (Wheeler) Morrison, the former descended from a Scotch family of Cabarrus County, N. C., members of which early emigrated to Dallas County, and Mississippi, and the latter of North Carolina. Miss Morrison was educated in the rural schools of her native county; graduated from Chickasaw female college, M. E. L., 1873; in 1898 studied Bible and literature, and the following summer, 1899, experimental chemistry, at Chautauqua, N. Y.; and in 1903 took the course in experimental chemistry at Harvard university. She taught for several years in the rural schools at home and at Middleton, Tenn.; 1878-1882, at Leighs' chapel, near Arrington, Tenn.; 1883-89, instructor in science, Soule female college; 1890-95, Memphis conference institute, Jackson, Tenn., while at this institution received the honorary degree of LL. M.; 1895 presiding teacher, Huntsville female college; 1896, taught at Gadsden; for ten years 1897-1907, lady principal, Alabama girls industrial school, now Technical institute and college for women, at Montevallo. Married: August 31, 1877, to Rev. James A. Babb, of West Point and Tibbie, Miss. Residence: Kosuth, Miss.

BABER, E. F., Pioneer Missionary Baptist preacher; father of Recorder Baber of Montgomery, deceased.

BACON, JOEL SMITH, Baptist minister, while not a native of the State, spent several years in ministerial and educational work in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Virginia. His work in this field covered the period from 1844 to 1866. Dr. Bacon was born in Cayuga County, New York, September 3, 1802, and died at Richmond, Va., November 3, 1869; was well educated, graduating at Hamilton college, Clinton, New York, 1826; held various educational positions from 1826 to 1829; president of Georgetown college, 1829-1833; ordained to the ministry in 1831, and entered actively upon pastoral work; in 1843 elected president of Columbian college at Washington, D. C., where he remained until 1854. His influence in the educational life of Alabama was marked, and he is held in grateful memory by many of the older people of the State. Married: Miss Porter. There were children to this marriage, among these two daughters. Last residence: Richmond, Va.

BACON, RICHARD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 73, and a resident of Madison County; private and commissary Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on December 31, 1832, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $73.33.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAGBY, ARTHUR PENDLETON, lawyer and governor, was born in 1794, in Louisa County, Va., and died September 21, 1858, in Mobile, member of an old and aristocratic family of Virginia. He received a splendid education before coming to Alabama, settled in Claiborne, where he finished reading law and began the practice in 1819. He represented Monroe County in the legislature, in 1821, re-elected in 1822, and chosen speaker, being the youngest member that ever occupied that position in the State. He was again a member of the house in 1824, senate, 1825, re-elected to the house in 1834, 1835, and 1836, serving again as speaker during the latter year. In 1837 he was elected governor over Samuel W. Oliver, of Conecuh County, and in 1839 he was re-elected without opposition. He began his administration at a time of great financial distress which abated little during his four years of administration. During his term the Cherokees were peaceably removed from the State, the chancery court was reorganized, and the banking system was in a splendid condition. Governor Bagby was elected in 1841 to the United States senate to succeed Clement C. Clay, who had resigned, and was re-elected, serving in all from November 24, 1841, until June 16, 1848, when he resigned. In 1848, President Polk appointed him envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of St. Petersburg, resigning at the end of a year upon the election of President Taylor, and was succeeded by William Rufus King. He resided for a while in Camden, was on the committee with Judge Ormond and Governor Clay to codify the laws of Alabama and in 1856 removed to Mobile. He was originally a National Republican, but when General Jackson issued the anti-nullification proclamation, Governor Bagby supported him, and became a Democrat. He was a Baptist. Married: (1) Emily Steele, of Georgia; (2) in 1828, to Anne Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Simon and Mary Connell, of Darlington, S. C. Children: 1. Mary, deceased; 2. Adelaide, m. Thomas Hamlet Wilson; 3. Arthur Pendleton, graduate, West Point, brigadier-general, C. S. Army, of Hallettsville, Texas; 4. Virginia, d. young; 5. Anna, m. Dr. L. T. Hall; 6. Alabama, m. S. C. Thielgard; 7. Simon Connell, lieutenant, 3rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; 8. John Hampden, m. Susan Dossey; 9. Ellen, m. (1) O. P. Hall, (2) Joseph Beardslee. Last residence: Mobile.

BAGWELL, FREDERICK, soldier of the American Revolution, a resident of Fayette County; private; particular service not disclosed; enrolled on August 20, 1835, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $50.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile. He resided in Fayette County, June 1, 1840, aged 80.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BAILES, ELDRIDGE, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Madison County; private S. C. Continental Line; enrolled on January 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $75; sums received to date of publication of list, $225.—

Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAILEY, JAMES FRANCIS, lawyer, was born January 12, 1811, in Wilkes County, Ga.; died, April 18, 1889, at Marion, son of John Guinn and Mary Bailey, of Wilkes County, who removed about 1818 to Perry County, settled in the eastern part of the county not far from Perryville, then the county seat, and became a farmer. Judge Bailey graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1834; was a preceptor there the year following, and in 1838 received the honorary degree of M. A.; took a law course at University of Virginia; began practice at Marion, in 1837; was for seven years associated in the practice with John N. Walthall; was a soldier in the Mexican War; represented Perry County in the house of representatives, 1847-48; in 1850 elected first probate judge of the county and served until 1865; was a member of the secession convention, 1861; and "was the only one that voted for the ordinance of secession who was re-elected to the convention of 1865." (Brewer) Judge Bailey found time, in the midst of his professional duties to acquire a profound knowledge of meteorology, and he may justly rank as a pioneer scientific student and observer. He wrote and published much on the subject, and his theories largely prevail in the weather predictions of the present day. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: December 9, 1849, to Ellen Amanda, daughter of Middleton Augustus and Elizabeth Sellers (Coleman) Moseley, of Perry County. Children: 1. James Francis; 2. Henry Edmonds; 3. Unnamed infant; 4. Mary Elizabeth, m. George P. White, (q. v.); 5. Fannie Dorothy, m. J. L. Thompson, father of Capt. Herman W. Thompson; 6. Isabel, m. John D. Grantham, of Marion; 7. John Guinn, of Liverpool, Eng., unmarried. Last residence: Marion.

BAILEY, JONATHAN, discoverer and proprietor of Bailey Springs, Lauderdale County. Author: "A History and description of the Bailey Springs," published in Memphis, Tenn., by William M. Hutton, 1860.

BAILEY, NAPOLEON A., Baptist minister, was born September 5, 1833, in Lawrence County. His mother was a native of Maryland and his father of Virginia. He was baptized and united with the Liberty Baptist church, Lawrence County, in July, 1850; licensed in 1853; graduated from Union university, Murfreesboro., Tenn., July, 1859. His first charge was the church in which he was baptized; moved to Florida; later to Georgia where he preached and at the same time was acting president of Houston female college; served the churches at Milledgeville and Dalton; removed to California; returned to Alabama; subsequently removed to Georgia where he served the Quitman church. He was for six years assistant secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention.

BAILY, FRANCIS, president of the Royal astronomical society. Author: "Journal of a tour in unsettled parts of North America in 1796 and 1797." published in 1856.

BAILY, MOSES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 79, and a resident of Madison County; private Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on January 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAILY, REUBEN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 70, and a resident of Limestone County; private S. C. Continental Line; enrolled on April 25, 1825, under act of Congress of March 18, 1818, payment to date from March 4, 1825; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAINE, DAVID WILLIAM, lawyer, was born August 28, 1829, at Western Reserve, O.; and died June 30, 1862, at Frazier's Farm, Va.; son of John and Maria (Adkins) McBain, the former a native of Caithness, Scotland, the latter, of Connecticut. He was graduated from Transylvania University, Meadville, Pa., at the age of seventeen, and took first honors in law; taught school in Cherokee County, Ala.; was admitted to the Alabama bar in 1848; became partner of Hon. Thomas B. Cooper, at Centre, Cherokee County; moved to Lowndes County in 1856, where he was the law partner of S. P. Smith, at one time adjutant general of the state; was a delegate to the Charleston National Convention in 1860.

At the beginning of the war in 1861, he volunteered in the first company that left Lowndes County for Pensacola, Fla. Later he was a private in the First Alabama infantry; was chosen lieutenant-colonel at the organization of the Fourteenth Alabama infantry and accompanied it to Virginia. He left a hospital to lead the regiment at Seven Pines and on the second day, fainted from physical prostration, but on recovering, overtook the regiment and led it forward. He led his regiment at Gaines Mill where his bravery has been mentioned in the historical account of the battle. He was killed leading his regiment against a Federal battery at Frazier's Farm, Va., June 30, 1862. A county was named in his honor in 1866 but was changed by the de facto legislature in 1868. He was a Democrat.

Married: November 29, 1848, in Cherokee County, Mary Hogue, daughter of Jesse and Mildred Lewis (Powell) Hogue, who lived at Clarkesville, Habersham County, Ga.; great-great-granddaughter of Thomas and Mildred McCay (Lewis) Rowland, the former a soldier in the Revolutionary War; great-great-great-granddaughter of John and Sarah (Taliaferro) Lewis of Virginia, great-great-great-great-granddaughter of David Lewis of Hanover County, Virginia, who with his brother, Gen. Robert Lewis, emigrated from Wales and settled in Virginia about 1660. Children: 1. Mary, m. in 1864, Hon. Willis Brewer of Hayne ville; 2. Thomas Cooper, b. February 9, 1860, m. in 1884, Annie Lee Gilchrist, granddaughter of Archibald Gilchrist, of Lowndes County. Last residence: Lowndes County.

JUDGE WILLIAM H. THOMAS

BAKER, ALPHEUS, teacher, lawyer, brigadier-general, C. S. Army; born May 23, 1825, in Abbeville Court House, S. C., and died October 2, 1891, in Louisville, Ky.; son of Alpheus and Eliza (Courtney) Baker, the latter a native of Cork, Ireland, the former born November 3, 1780, at Athol, Mass., a student in Dartmouth college, N. H., graduating with Daniel Webster, he became eminent as a teacher and scholar in the south. Gen. Baker was so thoroughly educated by his father that he became a teacher himself at the age of sixteen, holding positions at Abbeville, S. C., Lumpkin, Ga., and Glenville, Barbour County, Ala., where he settled in 1848. While studying law he taught music and was admitted to the bar in 1849, practicing in Eufaula. In 1856 he accompanied Major Buford to Kansas, and returned to canvass the country to arouse the people to the importance of making Kansas a slave state. In 1861, he represented Barbour County in the legislature, but resigned and entered the C. S. Army as captain of the "Eufaula Rifles" which he led to Pensacola. In November, 1861, at Ft. Pillow, he was elected colonel of the Fifty-fourth Alabama regiment composed of Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama troops, the command participating in the siege of New Madrid. The regiment was captured at Island Number Ten, Mississippi River, April 19, 1862, and sent to Camp Chase, and from there to Johnson's Island, but the prisoners were exchanged in September, and four Alabama companies took the place of the four Tennessee companies in his regiment. During the engagement at Fort Pemberton, on the Yazoo River and at Baker's Creek, where he was severely wounded in the foot, his regiment fought valiantly. On March 5, 1864, he was promoted brigadier-general and assigned, March 19, to a brigade, which consisted of the Thirty-seventh, Fortieth, and the Forty-second Alabama regiments. A few weeks later his command was increased by the addition of the Fifty-fourth Alabama regiment. On July 28, 1864, he was wounded at the battle of Ezra Church. In the middle of September, his brigade was transferred to Mobile, and increased by the addition of the Third Alabama battalion reserves, and the Twenty-second Louisiana regiment. In January, 1865, his brigade left Mobile to join the C. S. Army in the Carolinas, and participated in the battle of Bentonville, March 19, 1865. At the close of the war he returned to his home in Eufaula and practiced law, leaving in November, 1878, for Louisville, Ky., where he became prominent at the bar. He was a Democrat, and a Roman Catholic. Married: (1) January 7, 1851, Louise Garvin, deceased; (2) December 4, 1866, Pheribee M., daughter of Robert and Eliza (Toney) Ricks, of Clay County, Ga. Children: 1. Pheribee May, deceased; 2. Eliza Toney, m. John A. Murray; 3. Robert Ricks, m. Miss Harton; 4. Parilee, m. James A. Edwards; 5. Julia, died in infancy; 6. Sterling Toney, died young. Last residence: Louisville, Ky.

BAKER, ALPHEUS ESTES, business man, was born March 24, 1834, near Tuscumbia, Franklin County; and died January 27, 1910, at Meridian, Miss.; son of John William and Martha Jane (Estes) Baker; grandson of John Baker who married a Miss Kavanaugh, and of Samuel and Martha Estes of Petersburg, Va., the latter a soldier of the Revolutionary War, who came to Tennessee from Ireland. He received his early schooling at Warsaw, Sumter County, and was graduated from the Chamberlain Commercial College, Baltimore, Md. He formed a partnership with his brother, R. H. Baker, in Selma, in the wholesale grocery business from 1859 until it failed in 1873; was elected cashier of the Selma Savings Bank in 1875, which position he occupied for twenty years; was mayor of Selma from 1882 until 1884. He enlisted in the C. S. Army, April, 1862, and was mustered out after serving ninety days. He was a Democrat, a Mason and a Presbyterian. Married: (1) In 1857, Mamie Strang, daughter of Gen. Strang of Mobile; (2) In September, 1883, Sallie Huntington Clancy, daughter of Thomas and Carolyne (Atwood) Clancy, of Marion. Children, by first marriage: 1. Mattie, b. July 29, 1858, d. July, 1860; 2. Strang, b. May 7, 1860, d. June 12, 1872; 3. Robert Harry, b. July 4, 1862, d. December 17, 1896; 4. Allie, b. October 4, 1864, m. Lizzie Pierce; 5. Mary Elizabeth, b. June 12, 1872, m. Eugene Butler; 6. Lizette, b. September 23, 1874, d. September 23, 1895; by second marriage, 7. James Clancy, b. June 24, 1884, m. Cora Huggins; 8. Carrie, b. September 3, 1885, m. Ramsey Bancroft; 9. John W., b. December, 1886; 10. Cecil, b. December 21, 1889. Last residence: Meridian, Miss.

BAKER, BENJAMIN HURT, lawyer, was born April 1, 1811, in Walton County, Ga.; died June 4, 1864, at Crawford, Ala. Little is known about his ancestry save that his mother was killed by lightning while rocking the cradle in which he lay. His early educational opportunities were very limited and he acquired his education by very large reading after his maturity. He moved to Russell County in 1836; was sheriff of Russell from 1840 until 1843; read law in the office of Mr. Heidenfelt; began the practice of law in 1844; was elected to the Alabama legislature, serving in the house in 1847; was re-elected to the house, 1849; succeeded Capt. Abercrombie in the senate, 1851, and continued there until the end of the session of 1855; represented the county in the constitutional convention of 1861. He was a captain in the early Indian wars; became lieutenant colonel of the Sixth Alabama infantry early in the War of Secession; served until he lost his health in 1863, was discharged and died at home the next year. He was a Bell and Everett Elector; debated with Yancey in eastern Alabama against Yancey's radical views; was a Mason and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

Married: (1) In 1830, Martha Oliver, an orphan, died six months later; (2) At Forsyth, Ga., 1833, Eliza Greer, daughter of Leonard and Elizabeth Greer, of Forsyth, Ga. Children: 1. Mary Ann Elizabeth Greer, m. Sidney Smith;

2. James Monroe; 3. Frances Marion, m. J. R. Holland; 4. Harrison; 5. Punch; 6. Albert Cornelius, lawyer, was chief justice of the supreme court of Arizona, resides in Phoenix, Ariz.; 7. Elisha Hunt, was in the Alabama legislature; 8. Benjamin Marbry, lawyer; served in three Texas legislatures; was state superintendent of public instruction, Texas; served as judge of the thirty-first judicial district of Texas for sixteen years; 9. Sidney Smith, merchant, was a member of the legislature, resides in Carthage, Tex.; 10. Helen Matella, m. W. A. McAlvey; 11. Lura Belle, m. H. H. Holland, resides at Houston, Tex. Last residence: Crawford, Russell County.

BAKER, BERTSIL B., teacher, was born November 2, 1875, at Harrod, Allen County, Ohio; son of John Newton and Mary Elizabeth (Doud) Baker, who lived at Harrod; grandson of Rev. Jacob L. and Mary Baker of Lima, Ohio, and Owen and Mary Doud, of Wyandot County, Ohio. The Baker family migrated from Germany to America about 1800, resided first at Germantown, Pa., and later located in Allen County, Ohio. Mr. Baker received his early education in the common schools of Hardin County, Ohio. Later attended the high school of Harrod; attended the Chesterfield, S. C., academy one year; graduated at Mt. Morris college; completed his professional course at McPherson college, Kansas, 1901, with the degree of M. S. D., and graduated at Ohio northern university, Ada, Ohio, 1903, and later A. M.; taught four years in rural schools, and has held principalships in the Pennville, Ind., high school, 1903-04; Whistler (Ala.) public schools, 1904-05; assistant principal boys' high school, Mobile, 1905-08; president, Daphne State normal, 1908-15. He is a Baptist and a Democrat. Married: July 24, 1905, to Bonnie M., daughter of Lewellyn M. and Martha A. White, of Pennville, Ind. Children: 1. Donnave. Residence: Daphne.

BAKER, CLAUDIUS AUGUSTUS, Presbyterian minister, was born October 27, 1839, at Walthourville, Liberty County, Ga., and died August 7, 1893, at Opelika; son of William Quarterman and Anna Lydia (Mallard) Baker; the former was born near Midway, Liberty County, Ga., December 8, 1800, lived at Walthourville, was a cotton planter; grandson of John Elijah Baker, who lived near Riceboro, Liberty County, came from Dorchester, England, and of John Mallard, who lived at Walthourville. Rev. Mr. Baker attended school at Walthourville; received degree of A. B. from Oglethorpe university, near Milledgeville, Ga., perhaps in 1859; attended Theological seminary at Columbia, S. C.; pastor at Orion, Pike County, Louisville, Barbour County; Tallahassee, Fla.; New Harmony, Chambers County, and, during twenty-three years, of the First Presbyterian church at Opelika. He was a Democrat. Married: May 22, 1851, at Orion, to Mary Eleanor, daughter of John and Jane (Bigham) Canning, of Orion. No children. Last residence: Opelika.

BAKER, C. ROSS, Missionary Baptist minister, 1913. Residence: Opelika.

BAKER, DANIEL ABSALOM, lawyer and State senator, was born June 9, 1853, at China Grove, Pike County; son of Abner and Margaret (Vaughan) Baker, the former a Methodist minister, removed from South Carolina to Alabama and later to Florida; served as captain of a company of Florida State militia from Holmes County, and helped greatly in suppressing the depredation of deserters and outlaws in that section of the South, was probate judge of Holmes County, Fla., one term, and also taught school for about twenty-five years; grandson of Willoby and Rachael (Copeland) Baker, and of James and Rachael Vaughan, from near Geneva, but originally from Virginia; great-grandson of Ripley Copeland, a Revolutionary soldier, who fought under General Wayne, participating in the storming of Stony Point, and of Jesse Baker, a Revolutionary soldier under General Marion in the Carolinas. Senator Baker received only a limited early education on account of the War of Secession; for two years was teacher in Florida; studied law and in 1890, at Troy, was admitted to the bar; admitted to the practice in the supreme court of Alabama, in 1891; was tax assessor of Pike County, 1882 to fill unexpired term; census enumerator 1880, 1890 and 1900; served as a member of the house of representatives of 1890 and of 1900-01 from Pike County; and was a member of the State senate from the twenty-fifth district. Married: January, 1871, to Margaret M., daughter of Thomas and Rachael Madison, of Pike County. Children: 1. Eugene A., m. Sallie Johnson; 2. Jessie Galena, m. James Madison; 3. Abner M., m. Pearl Wise; 4. William E., m. Lalia —; 5. Katie B., m. J. B. Vaughn; 6. A. L., m. Bessie —; 7. D. J. Baker, unmarried. Residence: Troy.

BAKER, DANIEL HARRIS, physician, was born January 17, 1861, in Coosa County; son of Dr. Neal H. and Mary J. (McAdory) Baker (q. v.). Dr. Baker received his elementary education in the public schools of Goodwater, and within six weeks of his graduation withdrew from the University of Alabama on account of the prolonged illness of his mother; studied medicine under Dr. J. B. Kelly of Coosa County; graduated at Vanderbilt university in 1881, with the degree of M. D. and located at Gadsden. He is a member of the Alabama medical association and has been health officer of Etowah County. He is a Democrat. Married: March 23, 1886, in Tuskegee, Fannie H., daughter of Col. Robert H. and Fannie R. (Gary) Abercrombie, of that place. Children: 1. Fannie May; 2. Annie Eliza; 3. Robert Hayden. Residence: Gadsden.

BAKER, ENOCH MARVIN, lawyer, teacher and member house of representatives, was born March 2, 1879, near Ft. Payne, DeKalb County; son of Andrew Tyler and Eliza Jane (McSpadden) Baker, the former served as a private in the C. S. Army; grandson of Rufus Morgan and Annie Elizabeth Baker, who lived in various counties in Alabama and Tennessee, and of Samuel Donaldson and Mary McSpadden, who resided in DeKalb County. He was educated in the public schools on Lookout Mountain; attended the North Alabama college at Ft. Payne one term, and a private school for teachers for a year and a half; read law in the office of Judge W. W. Haralson; admitted to the bar, August 17, 1912; entered on practice at Ft. Payne in 1913. Before engaging in the practice of law he was for seven years a teacher, in DeKalb, Cherokee and Etowah Counties. He represented DeKalb County in the general assembly of 1919. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: June 19, 1918, at Rising Fawn, Ga., to Mary Alma, daughter of William L. and Mary Ellen (Norwood) Allison, of that place. Residence: Ft. Payne.

BAKER, GEORGE OSCAR, mechanical and mining engineer, was born February 29, 1828, at Philadelphia, Pa., and died October 18, 1891, at Selma; son of George C. and Mary Anne (House) Baker, who lived at Philadelphia, the former, major of the second battalion of the Fourth regiment of militia, commonwealth of Pennsylvania; grandson of John and Barbara Baker, of Philadelphia. The ancestry of the family is English. Mr. Baker was educated in Philadelphia, and came south in 1855, settling in Alabama. He had passed examinations for entrance to the U. S. Navy, but resigned in favor of a friend who had made the same record. He was a mechanical and mining engineer and for some years he was connected with the Montevallo Coal Company, then moved to Selma and engaged in the grain business. During the War of Secession, he started from home to join the C. S. Army twice, but was recalled both times, as his coal mines were run mainly for the government, and his presence was a vital necessity. In 1870, with a Mr. Barker, he bought out the cotton-seed oil mill that had been established at Selma by some northerners, and became largest owner and president of the Central City Cotton Oil Mills Company. He was a successful planter and worked for years in conjunction with Prof. Riley, a government expert, to secure a remedy for the cotton worm, until their efforts were successful. The Mexican government, through its minister at Washington, sent two young Mexicans to spend a year with Mr. Baker, in order to learn cotton culture from the beginning. He set aside two acres on one of his plantations for their use, where they ploughed, sowed, and picked their two bales of cotton, saw them through the press and compress, and returned with their bales to their own country. Soon after that incident, Mr. Baker and his family were invited to visit Mexico as guests of the Mexican government, but the invitation was declined. Mr. Baker opened the Belzora gold mines in Virginia, and named them for his wife. He also owned and worked the Montevallo Coal Mines. He was president of the board of trustees of the public schools of Selma, and of the board of trustees of Dallas Academy. He was a member of a group of judges on cotton and cotton products at the Centennial Exposition, 1876.

During his youth, when he lived for a year in New York, he boarded in the same house with Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper, Elias Howe, inventor of the first sewing machine, and Joseph Jefferson. At one time, Mr. Baker wrote a play, "The Prairie Wolf," for Mr. Jefferson, who played the lead. In later years, Mr. Howe taught Mrs. Baker how to use the first sewing machine ever brought to Selma, and the chair that accompanied the machine, is in the possession of her descendants. The friendship with Mr. Jefferson continued until the death of Mr. Baker, who was to have been, with Grover Cleveland, executor of Mr. Jefferson's will. Mr. Baker declined the Democratic nomination for governor of Alabama, and declined an appointment as commissioner to Paris to the last exposition held there. He was a Democrat, and a member of the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Selma. Married: February 27, 1854, at Petersburg, Va., Belzora Miner, daughter of Elisha W. and Nancy (Latham) Miner, who lived at Poquetanuck, Conn.; a descendant of the Puritan, Thomas Miner, who came to America in the ship Arabella, and was identified with the early history of New London, and Stonington, Conn. and was noted as one of the few men of his day who could write. Children: 1. Nellie V., Selma; 2. Mary M., m. Albert G. Parrish, Selma; 3. Joseph Miner, m. Lillian Hall, Selma; 4. George Lippard, m. Franceska G. Ford, Columbia, S. C.; 5. Mabel, deceased; 6. Hattie, m. James Parrish, Nashville, Tenn.; 7. Grace, m. Joseph B. Evans, Selma. Last residence: Selma.

BAKER, JAMES NORMENT, physician and surgeon, was born April 11, 1876, at Abingdon, Washington County, Va.; son of James Biscoe and Sallie Claiborne (Barksdale) Baker, the former a native of Middleburg, Loudoun County, Va., who lived at Abingdon for a number of years, where he was principal of the Abingdon male academy, removed in 1884 to the University of Virginia where he became librarian and secretary to the faculty of that institution, a position he held until his death in 1902, was captain in First Virginia cavalry, C. S. Army, and seriously wounded at the first battle of Manassas; grandson of Edward Marcellus and Elizabeth Rogers (Biscoe) Baker, and of Dr. Claiborne W. and Sallie Norment (Whitlock) Barksdale, the former resided at Middleburg, Va., and the latter lived at Whitlock, Halifax County, Va. Dr. Baker attended the University high school, the Charlottesville high school, and graduated from the University of Virginia with the degrees of B. A., 1895, M. D. in 1898. He was demonstrator in histology and clinical instructor in surgery in the medical department, University of Virginia, 1897-98; interne, St. Vincent's hospital, Norfolk, Va., 1898-99; house surgeon, Plant system hospital, Waycross, Ga., 1899-1900; house surgeon, Plant hospital, Montgomery, 1900-02; surgeon-in-chief, Montgomery city infirmary, 1902-03; visiting surgeon, St. Margaret's hospital, Montgomery; secretary, Medical association State of Alabama, 1902 to 1915; president, Montgomery county medical society, 1908-09; president, Medical association of the State of Alabama, 1915-16. Author: one of the editors of annual Transactions of the Medical association Alabama, 1906-16. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; member American, Southern, and Alabama medical associations and of the Southern surgical and gynecological association. Married: April 29, 1908, at Montgomery, to Marguerite Wiley, daughter of Judge Samuel F. and Ellen (Fitzgibbon) Rice (q. v.) of that place. Children: 1. Samuel Rice; 2. James Norment jr. Residence: Montgomery.

BAKER, MOSELEY, lawyer, died in 1865, in Texas. He was one of the pioneer business men and lawyers of Autauga and Montgomery Counties. Married: daughter of William Raiford Pickett (q. v.). Last residence: Texas.

BAKER, NEAL H., physician, was born January 3, 1823, in Fayetteville, N. C., and died at Goodwater, Coosa County, April 22, 1877. His father was a Scotchman, who came to America in 1798 and lived in North Carolina until his death in 1830, a soldier of the War of 1812, and a musician who paid his passage to America by playing a flute and violin on the voyage. Dr. Baker was left orphaned at an early age and brought his younger brothers and sisters to Alabama where he supported them and secured an education. He studied medicine under Dr. James Kelly, of Coosa County, and graduated at the University of New York in 1849. He returned to Coosa County for the practice and there he spent the remainder of his life. Married: in 1852, in Coosa County, Mary J., daughter of Robert McAdory and wife, who was a Miss McKinney. Children: 1. Kate, m. W. A. Gamble; 2. Emma D., m. B. Z. Gamble; 3. Sallie A., m. W. M. Neighbors; 4. Celia E., m. A. S. Dean; 5. Daniel H. (q. v.); 6. Mary. Last Residence: Goodwater.

BAKER, NAAMAN RIMMON, teacher, was born February 2, 1868, at Alger, Hardin County, Ohio; son of John Newton and Mary Elizabeth (Doud) Baker, the father a native of Mt. Vernon, Knox County in that state; grandson of Jacob Leatherman and Elmina (Miller) Baker, who lived at Harrod, and of Owen and Harriet (Higbie) Doud, who lived at Westminster, and Lima, all in Ohio and the great-grandson of John Deal Baker of Allegheny County, Pa. Mrs. J. L. Baker's mother, a Miss Jackson, was a cousin of Gen. Andrew Jackson; and the tradition is that the grandfather of Mary Doud fought with the "Green Mountain Boys" at Bennington, and that his wife was a King. Mr. Baker attended rural schools in Labette County, Kan., and Hardin County, O., graduated in classical course at Mt. Morris college, Ill., 1890; received honorary degree of A. M. from Lineville (Ala.) college, 1909; principal Chesterfield, S. C. academy 1891-5; principal Citronelle school, 1895-99; principal Whistler high school, 1899-1903; assistant superintendent, Mobile County, 1903-8; superintendent Ensley schools, 1908-10; assistant superintendent, Birmingham schools, 1910-11; State supervisor elementary rural schools, 1911-15; member executive committee, Alabama educational association, 1906-10; president of that association 1909-10; organized a teachers' reading circle in Mobile County, 1903; and a member committee for State suggestive course for rural schools. For a time he was one of the editors of the "Educational Exchange," the official organ of the educational forces of the State. On retiring from work in the State department of education, he removed to Jefferson County, where he became county superintendent of education. He is a Democrat and a Baptist. Author: "Constancy and other poems," 1895, "Annual Report Ensley Public Schools," 1909; founded "Citronelle College Call," later the "Citronelle Call," a regular weekly publication. Married: June 4, 1891, at Hagerstown, Md., to Jessie Martin Stinson, daughter and Marion and Ruth Anna (Martin) Stinson, of Marion, Iowa; granddaughter of Isaac N. and Elizabeth (Reed) Martin, the former a brother of Benjamin Martin, paymaster general in the Federal Army, 1861-65, the latter an English Quakeress descended from William Penn. Children: 1. Paul Byrant, d. young; 2. Harold John; 3. Ruth Elizabeth. Residence: Birmingham.

BAKER, PURLEY ALBERT, Methodist minister, national superintendent, anti-saloon league; was born April 10, 1858, at Liberty Township, Jackson County, O.; son of Albert and Marinda (Byron) Baker, natives respectively of Carrollton, O., and Liberty Township, O.; grandson of John and Mary Byron, of Liberty Township, O. His father died before Rev. Baker was born, and he was reared on a farm in Ohio; received his early education from the public schools; and attended Xenia Normal School, Ohio. He taught school for two years; entered the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1883; and was a pastor and member of the Ohio Conference for thirteen years. During that time, he served on the Jasper Circuit for two years; at Racine, four years; at Gallipolis, five years; and at the Third Street Church, Columbus, O., two years. He then entered the work of the anti-saloon league as superintendent of the district of Cleveland, O.; held that position for one year; was elected state superintendent of the anti-saloon league and served for six years; was elected national superintendent of the league, and has held that position for seventeen years. He was three times a member of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church; is an Independent Republican, a Master Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: August 27, 1884, at Washington Court House, O., Lillie I. Greene, daughter of Patrick Joseph and Asenith (Dallison) Greene, of Roseville, O.; granddaughter of John and Mary Greene, of McGenery Grange Estate, County of Cavin, Ireland, and of James and Mahala Dallison of Pennsylvania. The Dallisons are of Scotch ancestry. Residence: Montgomery.

BAKER, ROBERT A., commission merchant, was born 1802, in Tennessee, and died in 1886 in Mobile. He came with his parents to Madison County when quite young; received a limited education; moved to Franklin County in 1826, where he became a planter; represented Franklin County in the legislature in 1834 and was four times successively re-elected; was elected speaker of the house in 1840 to succeed Hon. Samuel Walker; moved to Sumter and later to Mobile, where he became a commission merchant. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Married: (1) Miss Lampkin, of Madison County; (2) Mrs. (Mimms) Potts, daughter of Seaborn Mimms, esq., of Sumter. Children: Three sons, merchants of Mobile; a daughter who married Rev. T. C. Weir of the Mississippi Conference. Last residence: Mobile.

BAKER, SAMUEL, soldier of the American Revolution, private, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on February 19, 1835, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20; removed to Kentucky.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

BALDRIDGE, MILTON COLUMBUS, physician, was born May 12, 1832, in Cornersville, Marshall County, Tenn.; son of William and Elizabeth Caroline (Mitchell) Baldrige. The former a native of North Carolina born in 1809, the latter of Scotch-Irish descent. He was reared on a farm; received a common school education; followed the tanner's trade, the trade of his father, for several years; and began to study medicine in 1850, at Florence, under Dr. Jefferson P. Mitchell. He attended lectures in the Medical College of Ohio, at Cincinnati, and practiced medicine under a license from a state board of examiners until 1874, when he graduated in Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York. He enlisted in the medical department of the C. S. Army; served as assistant surgeon in the Twenty-seventh Alabama and the Forty-eighth Tennessee regiments, until failing health forced him to abandon the service. After the war he practiced in Madison County until 1871, when he moved to Huntsville. He was elected health officer of Madison County in 1882. He is ex-president of the State Medical Association; president of the Madison County Medical Society; chairman of the Board of Medical Examiners; member of the American Public Health Association; and fellow of the Southern Surgical and Gynecological Association. He has contributed several papers to medical journals and to the transactions of the State Medical Association. He is a member of all Masonic bodies, is an Odd Fellow, Knight of Pythias, and a Knight of Honor. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Married: (1) July 16, 1855, Miss N. C. Neely, daughter of Anderson P. and Eliza M. (Cannon) Neely, of Lauderdale County, died April, 1878; (2) In September, 1880, Ella M. Johnson, daughter of Andrew and Sarah E. Johnson of Huntsville. Children, by first marriage, 1. James Alexander, d. October 6, 1856; 2. Viola Beatrice, m. Bently H. Brooks, Paris, Tex.; 3. Mollie Bertie, d. March, 1866; 4. Felix Edgar, Huntsville; 5. Stella Corvin, Huntsville; 6. Percy, d. 1872; 7. Katie, Huntsville; by second marriage, 8. Milton C., Jr. Residence: Huntsville.

BALDWIN, A. M., banker. Residence: Montgomery.

BALDWIN, BENJAMIN JAMES, SR., planter, was born November 3, 1822, in Pike County; son of William and Celia (Fitzpatrick) Baldwin (q. v.); grandson of William and Elizabeth (Kimbrow) Baldwin and of William and Annie (Phillips) Fitzpatrick; great grandson of David and Sarah (Owen) Baldwin. He received his early education in the schools of Pike and Montgomery Counties, and studied law at the University of Virginia for two years. He read law in Montgomery and was admitted to the bar in 1845. He had practiced law for about one year when his health broke down and he moved to the country to take up farming. He became owner of farms in Montgomery, Bullock and Chilton Counties. In 1874 he moved from Bullock County to Verbena where he resided until his death. He was a Democrat and served as a delegate to many state and county conventions. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Married: (1) In February, 1845, Antoinette L. Alford, daughter of Col. Julius C. Alford (q. v.), of Georgia; she died in 1849; (2) Martha (Barnett) Jones, daughter of Frank and Sarah (Ponder) Barnett. Children: by second marriage, 1. Dr. Benjamin James (q. v.), a physician of Montgomery, m. (1) Hulit Morris, (2) Kate Sistrunk; 2. Frank, b. March 14, 1871, a lawyer, solicitor of the Fifth Judicial Circuit from 1891 to 1892, m. Mary Ellen Wingate, June 20, 1894, at Ensley, and has one daughter, Ellen; resides at Verbena. Last residence: Verbena.

BALDWIN, BENJAMIN JAMES, retired physician, was born November 16, 1856, in Bullock County; son of Benjamin James and Martha (Barnett) Baldwin (q. v.); grandson of William and Celia (Fitzpatrick) Baldwin (q. v.), and of Frank and Sarah (Ponder) Barnett, of Montgomery County; great-grandson of William and Elizabeth (Kimbrow) Baldwin, and of Annie (Phillips) Fitzpatrick; great-great-grandson of David and Sarah (Owen) Baldwin. He received his early schooling in the primary school of Bullock County and in Montgomery; attended Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., from 1883 until 1885; studied medicine in the office of Dr. R. F. Michel of Montgomery; and was graduated with the degree of M. D. from Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York City, in 1878. He was appointed physician to the New York Insane Asylum, then house surgeon in Charity Hospital, of the same city, for a year. In 1878, he began to practice medicine in Louisville, Ky., and soon formed a partnership with Dr. Preston B. Scott with whom he practiced for two years.

He became resident physician in the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital from 1882 to 1883; studied medicine in Europe for six months, and settled in Montgomery in 1884. He opened the Morris Eye and Ear Infirmary in that city in 1887. He is president of the Montgomery Gas Company, a director of the South & North Alabama railroad, and has been president of the board of education of Montgomery since 1890.

He is president of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama, and was a member of the Board of Health for ten years. He is editor of the eye and ear department of the "Alabama Medical Journal." He was surgeon of the Louisville Legion with the rank of captain. He is a Democrat, a Mason, and an Episcopalian.

Married: (1) In 1884, Hulit Morris, daughter of Hon. Josiah and Sarah E. Morris of Montgomery; (2) Kate Sistrunk, daughter of Walter E. and Mary (Wade) Sistrunk of Tallassee. Children, by first marriage; 1. Elizabeth Morris, m. Dr. James Fitts Hill of New York City; 2. Josiah Morris, m. Kate Steiner, Montgomery. Residence: Montgomery.

BALDWIN, JOSEPH GLOVER, lawyer and author, was born January, 1815, at Friendly Grove factory, near Winchester, Va.; died in 1886, in San Francisco, Calif.; son of Joseph Clarke and Eliza (Baldwin) Baldwin; grandson of Cornelius and Mary (Briscoe) Baldwin, the former a graduate of Princeton College and a surgeon in the Revolutionary War; great grandson of Col. Girard Briscoe of Winchester. He was a nephew of Judge Briscoe G. Baldwin, and a relative of Hon. John B. Baldwin. His ancestors, the Baldwins of Bucks County, England, were of ancient lineage. The name appears in the roll of Battle Abbey in the "Domesday Book" and on the pages of English history from the time of Alfred the Great until Henry VIII. The first settlement of the Baldwins in this country was made at Milford, Conn., where brothers and kinsmen of the name purchased lands in 1639. On the father's side, Joseph G. Baldwin was a descendant of Nathaniel; on his mother's, of John Baldwin. The exact relationship of John Baldwin to the other Baldwins is not certain, but the fact of settlement in the same town in the same year has seemed conclusive evidence of kinship. Nathaniel Baldwin was registered as a free planter, John Baldwin, as a settler. By way of New Jersey and Ohio the two branches found their way to Virginia. The grandfather on the father's side was born in Connecticut, moved to Ohio, then to Rockbridge County, Va., where he established the first woolen and cotton factory in the Valley of Virginia.

Joseph Glover Baldwin perfected a limited early education by years of study later in life. After serving as a scribe in a public office, he read law and moved to De Kalb, in Kemper County, Miss., to practice. He came to Sumter County, Ala., in 1839, and associated himself with Johnathan Bliss, living first at Gainesville, then at Livingston. In 1844 he represented the county in the Alabama legislature; was the unsuccessful candidate of his party for Congress in 1849; became the partner of Hon. Philip Phillips in Mobile in 1853; then moved to California. He was judge of the supreme court of California, 1858-1862; became chief justice, 1863-1864; then resigned to resume the practice of law. At his death, the supreme court, sitting in Sacramento, adjourned and went to San Francisco, accompanied by the entire bar, to attend his obsequies. He was author of "Flush Times of Alabama and Mississippi," in 1853, and of "Party Leaders," in 1855, both published by D. Appleton & Company of New York. The former is a description of persons and scenes in the section in which he resided, from 1833 until 1840, when speculation prevailed extensively. The latter compares and contrasts Jefferson, Hamilton, Adams, Randolph and Clay, who are introduced as representative men.

Married: Sidney White, daughter of Hon. John White, a judge of the circuit court previous to 1830, and sister of Hon. Alexander White of Dallas, Tex. Children: Six; one son, Alexander W., born in Sumter, became federal district judge in Nevada, and was killed in a railroad accident, December, 1869. Last residence: San Francisco, Calif.

BALDWIN, MARION AUGUSTUS, lawyer, was born August 13, 1813, in Greene County, Ga.; died August 16, 1865, in Montgomery; son of William and Celia (Fitzpatrick) Baldwin (q. v.); grandson of William and Elizabeth (Kimbro) Baldwin, and of William and Annie (Phillips) Fitzpatrick, great grandson of David and Sarah (Owen) Baldwin. He was graduated from the University of Virginia with the degree of A. M. in 1835. He read law in the office of John A. Campbell and George Goldthwaite, and at the home of his uncle, Mr. Fitzpatrick. He was licensed to practice in 1836, and opened an office in Montgomery in partnership with Col. James E. Belser. In 1843 he was chosen solicitor of the circuit court. He was elected attorney general of the state of Alabama in 1847. By successive elections, he occupied this position until the state government was overthrown in 1865, a service of twenty-two years, the longest term ever served by any man as prosecuting officer of Alabama. His briefs and arguments are found in twenty-six or twenty-seven volumes of the State Reports. He was a Democrat, a member of the Royal Arch Masons, and of the Presbyterian church.

Married: June 7, 1842, in Montgomery County, Celia Fitzpatrick, daughter of Hon. Joseph and Sarah (Cannon) Fitzpatrick of Troy, Ala., his first cousin. Children: 1. Marion Augustus; 2. Sarah Fitzpatrick, m. Alfred Bethea, resides at Fitzpatrick Station; 3. Celia Augusta, m. (1) Samuel Humphries, d. 1879, (2) Morgan Johnson; 4. Josephine Belser, d. 1848; 5. Annie Philips, m. in 1876, Henry Clay Tompkins, a lawyer; 6. Mary Eugenia, m. Algernon Mabson, d. 1912; 7. William Joseph, d. 1849; 8. Marion Augustus, III, d. 1873; 9. Frances Cannon, m. in 1873, Thomas Hill Mabson; 10. Elizabeth Harrison, m. in 1885, James Beems; 11. William Owen, d. 1872; 12. Benjamin James, b. 1860, m. in 1889, Ludia Baldwin. Last residence: Montgomery.

BALDWIN, MARTIN MORTIMER, lawyer and legislator, was born August 26, 1873, at Fitzpatrick, Bullock County; son of Philip B. and Sallie P. (Crews) Baldwin, who lived at Fitzpatrick. He was educated in the primary and high schools of Union Springs, and graduated A. B. 1894, and LL. B. 1895, from the University of Alabama. In 1894 was admitted to the practice at Union Springs, where he resided until his removal to Birmingham. In 1900-01, he represented his native county in the legislature. He is a Democrat, and a Presbyterian. He is unmarried. Residence: Birmingham.

HON. THOMAS GOODE JONES

BALDWIN, MARY JANE (MARTIN) patriotic worker, was born in Shelbyville, Tenn., and died in 1878, in Montgomery; daughter of Col. Abram and Jane (Patton) Martin (q. v.). She was the first secretary of the Montgomery, Confederate, Memorial association and on the death of Mrs. Phelan became first vice-president. Married: in 1843, to Dr. William O. Baldwin (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

BALDWIN, WILLIAM, planter, was born May 22, 1786, in Wilkes County, Ga.; and died in 1827, in Montgomery County; son of William and Elizabeth (Kimbrow) Baldwin of Wilkes County, Ga., the former a native of North Carolina and a soldier in the Revolutionary War; grandson of David and Sarah (Owen) Baldwin, who moved from North Carolina and settled in Columbia County, Ga., the former a Virginian, who joined the Revolutionary Army with his three sons soon after war commenced and died of a contagious disease contracted at the siege of Augusta. William Baldwin moved to Alabama in 1815 or 1816 in company with the Baldwins, Fitzpatricks and others, and settled within four miles of Montgomery. He became a planter there.

Married: Celia Fitzpatrick, daughter of William and Annie (Phillips) Fitzpatrick, of Troy, the former a member of the Georgia legislature for nineteen consecutive years; sister of Joseph Fitzpatrick, and Gov. Benjamin Fitzpatrick, who was governor of Alabama for four years, and was United States Senator when Alabama seceded. She died in 1839. Children: 1. Elmira Ann, m. Col. John W. Hinson of Mobile, and had two children; 2. Marion Augustus (q. v.), m. Celia Fitzpatrick, daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Cannon) Fitzpatrick, his first cousin; 3. Sarah Fitzpatrick, m. (1) Dempsey Underwood, (2) Col. Julius C. Alford (q. v.), who from 1839 to 1842 was a member of Congress from Georgia; had two children who both married and had families; 4. William Owen (q. v.), b. August 9, 1818, m. Mary Jane Martin; 5. Benjamin James (q. v.), m. (1) Antoinette L. Alford, daughter of Col. Julius C. Alford (q. v.), (2) Sarah (Barnett) Jones; 6. Elizabeth Celia, m. (1) Floyd Brown, (2) William Fitzpatrick, had two children by the first marriage, Benjamin Phillips, and Almira Ann, who married J. B. Powell; 7. Phillips Bernard, planter, studied medicine, m. (1) Mrs. (Thompson) Turner, (2) Mary Crews; had five children by first marriage and two by second; died in 1874 from poison supposed to have been given him by a negro servant. Last residence: Montgomery County.

BALDWIN, WILLIAM OWEN, physician, was born August 9, 1818, in Montgomery County; son of William and Celia (Fitzpatrick) Baldwin (q. v.); grandson of William and Elizabeth (Kimbrow) Baldwin, and of William and Annie (Phillips) Fitzpatrick; great grandson of David and Sarah (Owen) Baldwin. He received his early education in an academy in Montgomery County conducted by Adison H. Sample. He studied medicine in the office of Dr. McLeod, and was graduated from Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., in which institution he was the pupil of Dr. Charles Caldwell and Dr. L. P. Yandell, and later of Dr. B. W. Dudley, professors in that university. He received the M. D. degree in 1836. He began to practice medicine in Montgomery in 1837, and in 1840 entered into partnership with his former preceptor, Dr. McLeod, who died twelve months later. He formed a professional copartnership with Dr. William M. Boling in 1848, which continued in force for four years. During the War of Secession, he repeatedly declined offers of a commission in the C. S. Army, although he was frequently present on the field after action, attending the wounded as volunteer surgeon.

In 1868, Dr. Baldwin was elected president of the American Medical Association at the annual convention in Washington, D. C., the first meeting since the beginning of the war at which delegates from the South were present. He inaugurated and organized the First National Bank in Montgomery, and was elected president of that institution. He was author of a paper, "Observations on the Poisonous Properties of the Sulphate of Quinine," which appeared in the American Journal of Medical Sciences, April, 1847. This paper has been quoted as authority in English and French periodicals and standard works in toxicology, as well as in the United States Dispensatory and in the medico-legal works of this country. He contributed numerous other articles to medical and scientific journals. He was an associate fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, and honorary member of the Gynaecology Society of Boston, member of the American Medical Association, of the Medical Association of Alabama of which he has been president, and of the Medical and Surgical Society of Montgomery and several times its president.

Married: December 7, 1843, Mary Jane Martin, daughter of Col. Abram and Jane (Patton) Martin, of Montgomery County, the former a judge of the circuit court of Montgomery; granddaughter of Jean (Shaw) Patton who came to this country from Scotland and was married in Virginia. She died September 18, 1878. Children: 1. Capt. William O., b. November 23, 1845, left the state university at Tuscaloosa to enlist as a private in the Twenty-second Alabama Regiment, was appointed sergeant major, lieutenant, then captain, before he was eighteen years old, was known as the "boy captain" of Deas' brigade, killed in the battle of Franklin, November 30, 1864; 2. Marion Augustus, lawyer, b. February 20, 1851, graduated from the Law School of the University of Virginia, died in Montgomery, m. August, 1887, Mary James; 3. Mary Hinson, b. April 25, 1853, m. William Etheldred Williams of Knoxville, Tenn.; 4. Jennie Patton, b. October 5, 1855, m. January 27, 1875, G. W. Craik, had a son, Rev. James Craik, Rector of Christ Church, Louisville, Ky.; 5. Cecile Fitzpatrick, b. October 11, 1858, attended Chegary Institute, Baltimore, Md., m. January 2, 1889, William Christopher Maxwell of Charlotte, N. C.; 6. Abram Martin, b. October 29, 1860, m. June 8, 1887, Elizabeth Ewin of Nashville, Tenn.; 7. Almira Ann, b. August 3, 1868, m. June 6, 1894, Major Channing Moore Bolton of Charlottesville, Va. Last residence: Montgomery.

BALL, CHARLES P., deceased, colonel, 8th Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army; planter, and business man; associate railroad commissioner, 1881-85. Residence: Montgomery.

BALL, DORIC S., grand secretary, grand lodge, Masons, 1837-38; grand secretary, grand chapter, 1837-38.

BALL, FRED SAMUEL, lawyer, was born February 14, 1866, at Portsmouth, Scioto County, O.; is son of William Henry and Jane (St. Clair) Ball, the father a resident of Portsmouth, a farmer, and manager of a freight transfer line and the mother a native of Pennsylvania. Fred S. Ball attended primary, grammar, and high schools at Portsmouth during the prescribed twelve years' course; received the degree of Ph. B., Ohio State University, 1888; and attended the business college, Columbus, O. He located in Montgomery; read law in the office of Col. Henry R. Tompkins, was admitted to the bar by the supreme court of Alabama, and has since practiced at Montgomery. For a time he practiced with William H. Samford, now a judge of the court of appeals, and is now (1919) in the practice with Edmund R. Beckwith. He is a Democrat, Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Married: October 4, 1893 at Covington, Ga., Florence Carrine, daughter of Rev. Simon Peter and Mary (Arledge) Richardson. Children: 1. Frederick St. Clair; 2. Charles Arthur; 3. Richard Arledge. Residence: Montgomery.

BALL, GEORGE CLAIBORNE, business man, was born November, 1841, at Montgomery, and died March 8, 1910, in Atlanta, Ga.; son of George Claiborne and Eliza (Pollard) Ball and brother of Col. Charles P. Ball, (q. v.). He was educated in private schools, of his native city; entered the Confederate Army as sergeant-major, 10th Alabama cavalry regiment, commanded by Col. James H. Clanton; was transferred to the staff of Col. John H. Kelly, an Alabamian, who commanded the Eighth Arkansas regiment; and later he served on the staff of Gen. Wm. W. Allen, with the rank of major. In 1865 he returned to Montgomery and accepted a position with the Alabama and Florida R. R. with which he remained five years; was in the saw mill business two years; in 1872 returned to the railroad company which later became the Mobile and Montgomery railroad; in 1880 he removed to Eufaula where he built cotton-seed oil mills, and in 1886 he located in Birmingham, where he purchased an interest in the Wharton flour mill and was elected president; interested, also engaged, in the real-estate business; in 1888 was appointed general manager of the Elyton land company power works and machine shops; and later he conducted a steel commission business. Due to loss of health for some years before his death he was a semi-invalid. He was a Democrat; an Episcopalian and a Mason. Married: May 8, 1872, at Augusta, Ga.; Harriet Glascock, daughter of Judge Thomas Sumter and Elizabeth (Glascock) Mays (q. v.). Mrs. Ball was educated in the best private schools of Montgomery and at a young lady's seminary in Columbia, S. C.; was reared in an atmosphere of public affairs and was among the first women in Alabama to undertake professional newspaper work in which she has had a wide influence in behalf of culture and all public movements of especial interest to women. She held positions upon the Birmingham "Age-Herald," the Birmingham "Ledger," the woman's page of the "Georgian" in Atlanta, and the Montgomery "Journal." Children: 1. Sumter Mays, whose literary ability was pronounced, and whose death unmarried, in early manhood cut short a promising career; 2. Elise Glascock; 3. Fannie Munford, deceased; 4. George Claiborne, jr., deceased; 5. Sue Allen. Last residence, Montgomery.

BALL, HARRIET MAYS, was born in Montgomery; daughter of Thomas Sumter and Eliza Ann (Glascock) Mays, the former a native of Edgefield, S. C.; granddaughter of Gen. Jack and Elizabeth (Simkins) Glascock, who lived at Edgefield, S. C. She is a descendant of the Glascock, Simkins, Bacon, Mays and Butler families of South Carolina and Virginia, many of whom were prominently connected with military, political, and social affairs during the colonial and revolutionary periods, and held high offices while serving their country. She was educated in private schools in Montgomery, and in College at Columbia, S. C. She is an Episcopalian. Married: May 8, 1872, at Augusta, Ga., to Maj. George Claiborne Ball (q. v.). Children: 1. Sumter Mays, cashier, E. & W. Railway, 1893, vice president and treasurer, American Rail Trust Company, Atlanta, Ga., deceased; 2. Elise Glascock, Atlanta, Ga.; 3. Fannie Munford, deceased; 4. George Claiborne, deceased; 5. Sue Allen, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BALL, TIMOTHY HORTON, Baptist minister and historian, born at Agawam, Hampden County, Mass., February 16, 1826, and died November 8, 1913 at Crown Point, Ind.; son of Hervey and Jane Ayrault (Horton) Ball, of Holyoke and Agawam, Mass.; grandson of Charles and Merab (Miller) Ball, and of Dr. Timothy and Elizabeth (Hanner) Horton of Agawam, Mass. Col. Hervey Ball was an officer of militia in Georgia and later probate judge of Lake County, Ind. Lieut. Charles Ball, son of Charles Ball, Sr., was a representative in the Massachusetts legislature for nine years. Francis Ball, the original ancestor came from Wiltshire, England, and settled at Springfield, Mass., in 1640. Timothy H. Ball's early education was secured at Appling, Ga., and at Franklin college, Ind., from which he graduated with degree of A. B., 1850, and received the A. M. in 1853. He graduated from the Newton theological institution in 1863. His first work, which was as a teacher, was at Franklin Springs, in 1851. This point, now absolutely deserted, was at that time a fashionable watering place. He began preaching here a short while later. Much of his life was spent in Clarke County, but at the time of his death, his pastoral relation was in Lake County, Ind. He was a Mason. Author: "Lake County, Indiana, from 1834 to 1872"; "The Lake of the Red Cedars, or will it live?"; "A Glance into the great Southeast or Clarke County, Ala., and its surroundings from 1540 to 1877," 1882; "Northwestern Indiana from 1800 to 1900"; "The Creek War" (in collaboration with Henry S. Halbert), 1895; "Notes on St. Luke's Gospel"; "Poems and Hymns"; "Annie B."; "Immortality of the Human Soul"; "Principles of Church Government"; and numerous others. Married: April 19, 1855, in Clarke County, to Martha Caroline, daughter of Rev. Hiram and Mary (Thomas) Creighton, who lived near Grove Hill, the former a Baptist minister, son of John Creighton, who came to Clarke County, from South Carolina in 1818. The Creightons were Scotch Presbyterians who came to South Carolina in 1800. Children: 1. Herbert Laurin, St. Maries, Idaho; 2. Georgietta Ethberta, m. Rev. Isaac Walter Martin, Sheffield. Last residence: Crown Point, Ind.

BALLARD, ASA N., homeopathic physician, was born October 17, 1842, at Paintersville, O.; son of David F. and Priscilla (Lewis) Ballard of that State. Mr. Ballard graduated from the National university, Lebanon, O., B. S., 1871, and A. B., 1872; taught school in Harrisburg, Ill., and Indianapolis, Ind., ten years and while in the latter city began the study of medicine; attended Pulte medical college, Cincinnati, and graduated from that institution in 1876; located in Shelby, O., where he practiced medicine for eleven years. In 1886 he removed to Birmingham; is a member of the Alabama State homeopathic society, honorary member Ohio State homeopathic society, and member American institute of homeopathy. He was a member of the council and of the school board of Shelby County, O., for nine years. He enlisted, October 1861, in Co. D, 48th Ohio Infantry as a private, but was promoted captain before the close of the war. He was in numerous battles, and was captured by the Confederates at Sabine Cross Roads, and taken to Tyler, Tex., where he was held prisoner six months, and later exchanged and returned to the field. He is a Mason; and Methodist. Married: in 1874, in Pagetown, O., to Mary, daughter of George S. Harrison. Children: 1. Asa Elwyn; 2. Clarence Bingham, a private in Co. K., First Alabama regiment, Spanish-American War, 1898; 3. Florence; 4. Mary Pauline. Residence: Birmingham.

BALLARD, HERBERT WELDON, insurance agent and legislator, was born May 8, 1873, at Milo, Pike County; son of Thomas Weldon and Jane C. (Simmons) Ballard, the former was born in Fayetteville, Ga., and in 1854 removed to Milo, served eighteen months in C. S. Army, losing a leg in the battle of Murfreesboro, Tenn., later served two terms as tax collector of Pike County; grandson of John J. and Nancy (McKnight) Ballard, the former of Fayetteville, Ga., removed in 1854 to Milo, entered C. S. Army, and after serving eighteen months in

Army of Northern Virginia, died at Richmond, Va., of a fever, and of Isaac and Elizabeth (Fowler) Simmons, who emigrated about 1817 from North Carolina to Dallas County, and then to Milo. The Ballards are of Scotch descent, the first American ancestor settling in North Carolina. He was educated in the common schools of Pike County; at State normal school, Troy, 1892-94; and in 1895 took a course in the Atlanta business college. In 1901 he entered upon the life insurance business, in which profession he is now engaged. He represented Pike County in the legislature of 1907. He is a Democrat. He is unmarried. Residence: Troy.

BALLARD, JOHN RUSSELL, farmer, was born March 17, 1857, in Tallapoosa County; son of William and Frances Permelia (Russell) Ballard, the former who was born near Newnan, Coweta County, Ga., moved to Alabama with his parents when quite young, was elected justice of the peace in Tallapoosa County, served in the C. S. Army as private, lieutenant and captain of Co. C, Forty-seventh Alabama regiment, and spent the last year of the war as a prisoner in Fort Delaware. His paternal grandfather came from Indiana to Coweta County, Ga., about 1826 or 1827, was married there, and a few years later moved to Alabama, settling near Dadeville, in Tallapoosa County. His mother's parents emigrated from Henry County, Ga., to Chambers County, later moving to Tallapoosa County. He was educated in the common country schools of Tallapoosa County, and became a farmer. He was elected justice of the peace, 1892, 1896, and 1900; was beat chairman of the People's Party from the time of its organization until the party united with the Democratic party in Tallapoosa County, at which time he became beat chairman of the latter party. Mr. Ballard was chairman of a committee of citizens appointed to erect a school in his community, and after its erection was made president of the board of trustees of the M. I. academy. He is a Missionary Baptist. Married: December 21, 1882, near Youngs Ferry, to Dannie Hardy, daughter of Daniel and Julia Ann Elizabeth (Allen) Hardy, of Tallapoosa County; granddaughter of Robert Hardy, who came to Alabama from South Carolina about 1830. Residence: Alexander City.

BALLARD, WALTER EUGENE, lawyer, was born July 25, 1876, at Milo, near Troy; son of Thomas Weldon and Jane Catherine (Simmons) Ballard, the former born in Fayetteville, Ga., a Confederate soldier who lost a leg in the service and was tax collector of Pike County two terms; grandson of John J. and Nancy (McKnight) Ballard, and of Isaac and Elizabeth (Fowler) Simmons, who emigrated about 1817 from North Carolina to Dallas, and thence to Pike County. John J. Ballard's home was at Fayetteville, Ga., until 1854, when he emigrated to Pike County. He served eighteen months in the Army of Northern Virginia, and died of fever in Richmond. Herbert W., brother of Walter E. Ballard, represented Pike County in the legislature, 1907. The Ballards are of Scotch descent, the first ancestor settling in North Carolina. Mr. Ballard received his elementary education in the common schools of Pike County; graduated from the Troy normal college, 1898; was admitted to the bar in 1901, removed to Prattville, and represented Autauga County in the legislature, 1907; and later removed to Montgomery. He is a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: at Hayneville, 1902, to Laura Adele, daughter of William Thomas and Margaret V. (McLemore) McGaugh, Montgomery. Children: 1. Mary Elizabeth. Residence: Montgomery.

BALLENGER, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, and a resident of St. Clair County; private Maryland Militia; enrolled on September 20, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BALLENTINE, JAMES HAMILTON, lawyer, judge Madison County law and equity court, was born March 5, 1873, near Courtland; son of James Hamilton and Mary E. (Swoope) Ballentine; grandson of Andrew M. and Mary T. (Goff) Ballentine, the former an emigrant from Ireland to Giles County, Tenn., and of Rev. Edgar M. and Elmira C. (Watkins) Swoope, all of whom lived near Courtland; great-grandson of John T. Goff, from Scotland, and of Samuel Watkins, who located in Lawrence County from Virginia. Judge Ballentine was educated in Giles County, first in Giles college under Prof. Mason, then in the private school of Col. Abernathy; studied law, was admitted to the bar; entered the practice at Pulaski in February, 1895, but in May following, moved to Huntsville; was elected judge of the law and equity court of Madison County, November 8, 1910. He is a Democrat; a Mason. He is unmarried. Residence: Huntsville.

BALTZELL, FRANK, editor and Farmers' Alliance leader, was born June 3, 1850, at Oak Hill, Worthington County, Fla.; son of Gen. Frank and Rebecca H. (Long) Baltzell, natives of Kentucky and Georgia respectively. Frank Baltzell became editor and proprietor of the "Courier," at Marianna, Fla., upon leaving school, of which he continued in control until January, 1874; located at Rutledge, where he edited the "Lancet" for six months; removed to Troy, and established the "Enquirer," published until February, 1890; and removed to Montgomery and established the "Alliance Herald," which he conducted as the representative of the Alliance and the Populist parties for a number of years. He came to the bar September, 1871, in Marianna, and remained there three years; was admitted to practice in the supreme court of Florida, January, 1872; received a complimentary vote for U. S. senator in 1873, but being under age could not be a candidate; delegate to Democratic national convention in 1872, and alternate elector-at-large in that campaign; elected to the legislature of Alabama from Pike County, 1882; candidate for congress from 2nd district, as the candidate of the fusion convention held at Lakeview, Jefferson County, September, 1892, and unsuccessfully contested the election of Jesse F. Stallings, Democrat. Married: in 1877, to Ria, daughter of Maj. B. R. Harris of Mt. Pleasant, Tenn. Children: 1. William B.; 2. Meta C.; 3. Mary E.; 4. Thomas.

BALTZELL, WILLIAM BULLOCK, farmer, was born August 6, 1849, at Union, Greene County; son of Thomas and Panthea Mary (Bullock) Baltzell, the former born in Waynesboro, Greene County, Penn., graduated from the Louisville medical college, when twenty-two years old he emigrated South, and finally, after many years settled in Greene County; grandson of Thomas and Catherine Baltzell, of Waynesboro, Penn., the former a native of Pennsylvania, and the grandson of an emigrant from Alsace-Lorraine, and of William and Panthea Coleman (Burchett) Bullock, of Petersburg, Va. The Bullock family were of Scotch descent, and originally seated in Granville County, N. C. Mr. Baltzell was educated in the country schools; is a merchant and farmer. He was a member of the house of representatives from Greene County, 1907. He is a Democrat; and Knight of Pythias. Unmarried. Residence: Baltzell.

BANCROFT, GEORGE RAMSEY, teacher, and president State normal school, was born January 8, 1879, at Meridian, Miss.; son of James Ramsey and Evelyn (Smith) Bancroft, the former a native of Toomsba, Miss., later living at Meridian, Miss., Palatka, Fla., Mobile, and at Houston, Texas, a farmer, later a contractor and master car builder; grandson of George and Mary (Ramsey) Bancroft, the former a Methodist preacher in the Mississippi conference, and of James Rhodes and Roxanna (Sturdivant) Smith of Summerfield, Livingston, and Lauderdale, Miss. The Bancrofts came from England, settling in Massachusetts early in the 19th century, descendants locating in Mobile. Mr. Bancroft received his early education from Barton academy. He began teaching and by private study continued his education without a college course. He entered upon his profession in 1896, in a one room rural school in Mobile County, became principal of the Citronelle high school, and later of the public schools of Whistler. He was principal of the West rural school, Mobile, and did department work in Barton academy. He was president of the State normal school, at Moundville. He is a Methodist. Married: September 13, 1901, at Mobile, to Carrie, daughter of Alpheus Estes and Sallie (Clancy) Baker, of Selma. Children: 1. James Alpheus; 2. Clytie; 3. Carrie. Residence: Moundville.

BANCROFT, MARION JOSEPH, physician, graduated with the degree of B. S. at the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1896; graduated in the medical department of the University of Alabama, Mobile, 1899, and entered upon the practice in that city in 1900. Residence: Mobile.

BANISTER, JOHN MONRO, Episcopal minister, was born March 14, 1818, at Petersburg, Va., and died March 29, 1907, at Huntsville; son of John Monroe and Mary Burton Augusta (Bolling) Banister, of Petersburg and later of Sussex County, Va., the former a graduate of Princeton university; grandson of Col. John and Anne (Blair) Banister, who lived at his suburban home "Battersea" near Petersburg, educated in England and "bred to the law" at the Temple, returned to Virginia, and was elected to the house of burgesses from Dinwiddie County, 1765, and served until the end of the colonial period, was a member of the Virginia Revolutionary conventions, and after the formation of the State government was a member of the assembly, and of the continental congress, March 1778-1779, and was lieutenant-colonel, Virginia state troops under Gen. Lawson and actively engaged during the invasion of the state by Arnold and Phillips, and of Robert and Mary (Burton) Bolling, of "Center Hill," Petersburg, Va. Mr. Banister was educated in private schools near his father's plantation and in Petersburg, and graduated from Princeton university as valedictorian 1840. He studied law under Judge Lomax of Fredericksburg, Va., and was admitted to the bar in 1842, but did not practice. Under the influence of Rev. Nicholas H. Cobbs, later bishop of the diocese of Alabama, he studied for the Episcopal ministry, taking a course of theology at the Virginia seminary from which he was graduated in 1846; ordained deacon in that year by Rev. William Meade, D. D., bishop of Virginia, ordained priest in 1848 by the same bishop and became assistant minister of St. Paul's church, Richmond, 1846-48; removed to Alabama and became rector of Trinity church, Demopolis, 1849-50; rector St. Paul's church, Greensboro, 1850-60; rector church of the nativity, Huntsville, 1860-1906, rector emeritus of that church from 1906 until his death. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by William and Mary college, 1869. He was a Democrat. Married: February 1, 1848, at "Kingston," the country home of her parents, to Mary Louise, daughter of William Henry and Anne (Withers) Broadnax, the former a lawyer and planter who lived near Petersburg. Children: 1. Robert Bolling, m. Corrilla Nations; 2. John Monroe, jr., U. S. army, m. (1) Alice White; (2) Maude Edmondson, of Omaha, Neb.; 3. Anne Withers; 4. Mary Louise, m. Sterling S. Lanier, of Birmingham; 5. William Broadnax, surgeon U. S. army, m. Mary Caroline Noltenius, of Texas City, Texas; 6. Augusta Bolling, m. Robert Slaughter, of Lynchburg, Va.; 7. Blair, m. Marion Glass of Lynchburg; 8. Ellen Gordon, m. Gustav Stalling, of Lynchburg; 9. Reginald, resides at Woodward. Last residence: Huntsville.

BANKHEAD, HENRY McAULEY, U. S. Army officer, was born December 19, 1876, at Moscow, Lamar County; son of John Hollis and Tallulah (Brockman) Bankhead (q. v.). He received his early education in the public schools of Fayette, attended the University of Alabama 1894-97, inclusive, but desiring to secure a practical business course he withdrew from his alma mater and entered Eastman Business college. He was active in athletics at the University, being captain of the 'Varsity football team, 1896. Upon the completion of his business course he accepted a position in New York City. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war he volunteered for service and was commissioned by President McKinley as captain in the Fifth U. S. Volunteers, known as one of the "Immune" regiments, the designation having reference to immunity from tropical fevers, his commission being dated July 13, 1898. Captain Bankhead recruited his company, Co. F., from volunteers living in West Alabama and proceeded to Cuba with his regiment, being barely twenty-one years of age and one of the youngest officers of his rank in the war with Spain. After serving in Cuba from August, 1898, to April, 1899, he was honorably discharged with the mustering out of his volunteer regiment. While serving in Cuba he commanded the regiment for two months because of sickness of all of his superior officers; was appointed second lieutenant, Regular army, June 1, 1899, and assigned to the 20th infantry, then serving in the Philippine Islands and engaged in the suppression of the Philippine insurrection. He served with his regiment as a second lieutenant from June 1, 1899, to February 2, 1901, when he was promoted to a first lieutenant. He served three tours of duty in the Philippines before the war with Germany, covering a period of six years. During his last tour of duty which terminated in 1917 he was selected by the commanding general to command a battalion of Philippine scouts, which battalion was composed of the former wild head hunters of the mountain of Luzon; was promoted to a captaincy in July 1909; major, 1917; lieutenant-colonel, July, 1920. During the European war Colonel Bankhead was commissioned as lieutenant-colonel and colonel and assigned to the 81st Division, the soldiers of which were from Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina and Tennessee. He was appointed on the staff of the division commander as quartermaster and sailed for France on July 31, 1918. He served as division quartermaster in the field until October 16, 1918, when he was selected by the commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces to be quartermaster of the 2nd army corps, then serving with the 4th British army. After the armistice, Colonel Bankhead was selected to command the American leave area in the principality of Monaco, where soldiers were permitted to visit on furlough. While on this duty he was decorated by His Highness, Prince Albert of Monaco, the ruler of that country, and made a Commander of the Order of St. Charles of Monaco, the most coveted decoration in the gift of the Prince. Colonel Bankhead is now at the head of the educational and vocational training of all soldiers in the 2nd Corps area, embracing New York, New Jersey and Delaware, with headquarters at Governor's Island. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and member of the Phi Delta Theta college fraternity. Married: December 3, 1903, to Alice Buffington, daughter of John Buffington and Caroline (Rust) Stickney, of St. Augustine, Fla.; granddaughter of Jeremiah C. Stickney of Lynn, Mass. Children: 1. John Long; 2. Harriet Katherine. Residence: Governor's Island, N. Y.

BANKHEAD, JOHN HOLLIS, farmer, legislator, Confederate officer, member of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States, was born September 13, 1842, on his father's farm near old Moscow, Marion, now Lamar County, died March 1, 1920, in Washington, D. C., and is buried in Jasper; son of James Greer and Susan (Hollis) Bankhead, natives of Union District, S. C., the former a planter and soldier of the Creek Indian and Mexican Wars, both buried in the graveyard at Sulligent, a modern town built upon part of their original plantation; grandson of George and Jane (Greer) Bankhead, natives of Union District, S. C., who removed, first to Tennessee, and, in 1816, to west Alabama, locating near the present site of Russellville, going two years later to Marion County, where they settled at what is now Crew's depot, on the military road, and where he acquired lands, became a planter and stock grower, built a home and the first mill in the county, which was located on the Palm Spring branch, died and is buried in the Jarrett graveyard, his wife surviving him and some years later dying at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Duke, in Pontatoc, Miss., and of John and Letitia (Holliday) Hollis, who came to Alabama from Union District, S. C., and settled in Marion County, where he established a plantation home at the site of old Moscow, was a colonel of militia, standing six feet four inches, a progressive planter and sound scholar, bringing into his wilderness home a library of classics, died in 1867, and both are buried in the Armstrong graveyard; great-grandson of James and Elizabeth (Black) Bankhead, of Union District, S. C., where the former died about 1799, and of Daniel and Patsy (Knighton) Holliday, the former born on the "high hills of the Santee," in Kershaw District, S. C., where he was reared, entered the Revolutionary Army and became a sergeant, removed to west Alabama where he died in 1837, and is buried in the Armstrong graveyard, near old Moscow, and of John Hollis, born in Fairfax County, Va., removed to Fairfield District, S. C., where he died, was a captain in the Revolutionary War, serving with Gen. Francis Marion, with whom history says he was "a favorite young officer;" great-great-grandson of Daniel Holliday, of Kershaw District, S. C. The Bankhead family is of Scotch origin, while the Hollis family which migrated to Maryland, thence to Virginia, South Carolina and Alabama, is of English stock, as are the Hollidays. Senator Bankhead obtained the rudiments of an education in the country schools of his native county, and with this meager scholastic preparation, became, by wide reading and contact with the world, a man of solid and practical learning. Born and reared upon his father's plantation, located in a pioneer country, he enjoyed that freedom of action and close contact with the direct issues of life that early developed in him the qualities of mind and character that signalized his future career. At the outbreak of the war between the States, he enlisted as a private in Co. K, 16th Alabama infantry regiment, J. B. Powers, as captain and Col. William B. Wood, of Florence, as regimental commander. He was in the conflict from the beginning to the end, and took part in the battles at Fishing Creek, Perryville, Murfreesboro, and all the battles of the Western Army, in which his command participated, except when disabled from wounds received in action. After the battle of Fishing Creek he was promoted to third lieutenant and became captain after the battle of Shiloh. He led the 16th Alabama regiment in an impetuous and successful charge, at Chickamauga, where he was wounded. As he retired, with his wound, the sedge field on which a part of the battle had been fought, caught fire and burned rapidly. He stumbled upon the prostrate form of John Custer, a private, an elderly man who had fought the day through beside three sturdy sons, and who was now wounded by a gun shot through the hips and his life imperiled by the rapidly approaching fire. Captain Bankhead, with one arm useless, lifted himself from the ground with Custer clinging to his neck, and thus bore him to a spot of safety. The rescued man survived the war many years, and was always the devoted friend of his benefactor. In 1917, when the United Confederate veterans held their memorable reunion in Washington, D. C., Captain Bankhead appeared on the floor of the senate, of which he was a member, clad in the grey uniform worn by the brave Confederate soldiers a half century before. Immediately upon his entrance that august body rose as a mark of respect to the venerable old warrior and statesman, and to the glorious valor of the Southern army. As soon as order was restored, Captain Bankhead said: "Today the shattered remnants of the army of Lee and Jackson, and the navy of the Confederacy, are in Washington, and with their sons will march in review before the President of the United States. Think, Senators, of the significance of this spectacle! A little more than half a century ago these same men, in arms, were hammering at the gates of Washington. Today, marching with feeble body and faltering step, on a mission of peace and love, not of hatred and bloodshed, in a spirit of resolute reconciliation and absolute loyalty to our flag, they voice in vibrant tones to all the world, the indissoluble union of the United States. I am grateful that God has spared me to see this day when my comrades in arms are in the capital of this nation which they struggled to destroy, but which none in this great republic are now more anxious to preserve. For four years I marched under the 'stars and bars.' Six immediate members of my family are today enlisted under the 'stars and stripes,' a son, two grandsons, two nephews, and my daughter, Mrs. Louise Lund, a volunteer Red Cross worker overseas. They will even up our records." On his motion the Senate then adjourned as a mark of respect to the Confederate veterans holding their reunion in the city. A few moments later, Captain Bankhead, clad in grey, with his colleague in the senate, Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, clad in blue, marched at the head of the Confederate hosts, and, typifying the healing of the wounds of the sections, drew the heartiest and most stirring applause of the memorable day. On the occasion of the visit of Marshal Joffre to the senate, Senator Bankhead was presented to him by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts as the sole surviving Confederate soldier serving in that body. The great Frenchman embraced him, with a hearty "God bless you, Sir," and expressions of appreciation of the high military qualities of the Confederate Army. After the close of the War of Secession, Captain Bankhead returned to his parental home and resumed his agricultural pursuits. He was elected to the Alabama legislature from Marion County and served during 1865-66; represented the twelfth senatorial district in the Alabama legislature, 1876-77, at which time he supported Gen. John T. Morgan in his first election by the legislature to the senate of the United States, a position to which he succeeded that distinguished soldier and statesman thirty years later. In 1880, he again served as a member of the lower house. His native ability so impressed itself upon the chief executive, Gov. Rufus W. Cobb, that he offered to him the wardenship of the State penitentiary, an institution requiring humane, sympathetic and practical handling. Under his regime as head of the State prison system many reforms were instituted and his urgent recommendation that a reform school for youthful delinquents be established was later fulfilled under the leadership of the club women of the State. One of his first official acts was the abolition of the small cells as sleeping quarters, and the disuse of instruments of discipline that characterized the "dark ages" in prison life in the State. On September 13, 1886, at Fayette court house, he was nominated to congress by the Democratic convention of the sixth congressional district, and elected to that office in November, serving continuously from March 4, 1887, to March 4, 1907, a period of twenty years. He was a member of the committee on public buildings and grounds during his entire service in the national house of representatives, and chairman of that committee during the period of Democratic control, at which time the great and incomparably beautiful library of congress at Washington was built. He was able to secure for his own State, appropriations for a number of public buildings and was the consistent advocate of government owned buildings for post offices and other federal agencies. After March 4, 1897, he was appointed a member of the committee on rivers and harbors, and through his efforts, the Warrior River was made the longest canalized waterway in the world. In the early years of his labors for that stream it was of so little commercial importance, and held in such small esteem by some as a source of navigation that it was facetiously proposed by opposing congressional colleagues that the course be paved. But unmoved by ridicule or opposition he pushed steadily forward with his efforts. One of the gigantic locks, sixty-three feet high, now backs the water of the Warrior for a distance of seventy-five miles, and forms a splendid lake which was named in his honor, "Lake Bankhead." During the period of the European War, the Warrior River served as one of the arteries of trade which contributed to the defeat of the German empire. The government has made the Warrior River an integral part of its inland waterways system, and operates from the rich mineral, agricultural, manufacturing and wholesale district of Birmingham to the Gulf of Mexico, a line of self-propelled barges bearing a part of the commerce of the world, being one of the few inland trade arteries which the government is able to operate without an annual excessive appropriation to eliminate deficits. Concurrent with his efforts towards developing the Warrior River, Captain Bankhead worked for the deepening of the harbor channel in Mobile Bay, and soon that port became a deep sea shipping point.

GENERAL HENRY D. CLAYTON

In a primary election, held August 27, 1906, in contest with six other aspirants, Captain Bankhead was nominated in the Democratic primaries of Alabama to assume the first vacancy that might occur in the State's representation in the U. S. senate. On the death of Senator John T. Morgan, June 18, 1907, Senator Bankhead's nomination by the people was confirmed by the legislature then in session. Upon taking his seat in the senate, he immediately undertook to impress on congress the feasibility of government cooperation with the states in the construction of highways. His views by some were regarded as chimerical and by many as socialistic, but in this as in his waterways work, he was unmoved by opposition. His first reward came in a congressional appropriation of $500,000 with which to make a practical test of federal aid to good roads. Such test was entirely satisfactory, and congress very soon agreed to an appropriation of $75,000,000. Within ten years after his first good roads appropriation was made by congress the people of the United States had caught his enthusiasm and instructed their representatives in congress to vote for the Bankhead good roads bill carrying an appropriation of $275,000,000. In recognition of his services, the United States good roads association, elected him its first president, and retained him at the head of the organization until his death. His name was given by a grateful public to one of the transcontinental highways, the "Bankhead Highway," which begins at the "Zero Stone" in Washington, D. C., marking jointly the beginning of the Bankhead and the Lincoln Highways, and terminating in San Diego, Calif. Under orders of the war department, a motor convoy traversed the Bankhead Highway during the summer of 1920. Senator Bankhead was for twenty-five years vice-president of the Alabama good roads association. He was the author of the amendment to the constitution of Alabama, which permitted the State to engage in building good roads and creating a State highway commission.

Senator Bankhead collaborated and shared honors equally with Senator Underwood in securing congressional legislation which resulted in the development by the government of Muscle Shoals, in the Tennessee River, and the construction of plants for the filtration of atmospheric nitrogen, and the construction of Wilson Dam, destined to be when completed one of the greatest waterpowers in the world, involving in all the expenditure of more than $100,000,000. In both houses of congress Senator Bankhead played a conspicuous part in the development of the many waterway projects of the nation, rivers, harbors and water power development. He was chairman of the senate committee on post offices and post roads and of the committee on postal salaries, and was an earnest advocate of mail efficiency and adequate pay for postal employes. At the expiration of his last term in the house, President Roosevelt appointed him to membership on a commission to make a scientific study of national waterways and power sites, but he took his seat in the senate prior to the organization of the commission, which later was dissolved because of some legal technicality in the act creating it. In 1912, Senator Bankhead managed the presidential campaign of Senator Underwood, of Alabama, the latter at that time being chairman of the ways and means committee of the house. This effort to nominate a southern man for that high office was the first serious and organized attempt following the War of Secession. Senator Bankhead was essentially a practical man, straightforward in his dealings, despising hypocrisy and pretense. His ability to read character enabled him to avoid many entanglements that often beset a public man, and his rugged honesty was a tower of strength in the accomplishment of his life's work. On November 13, 1916, Senator and Mrs. Bankhead celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, "Sunset," in Jasper. The celebration also involved an appreciation of the election of their son, William Brockman, to membership in the house of representatives, U. S. congress. The election of the younger Bankhead to the house, while his father was serving in the senate was an unprecedented event in American history, and later it frequently happened that while the Senator was called by the vice-president to preside in his place in the Senate, the son would be presiding over the deliberations of the house at the request of the speaker. At the time of his death Senator Bankhead had served twenty years in the house and thirteen years in the senate, making a total of thirty-three years in the two houses of congress. He was a Mason, having at one time been grand master of the State; a Democrat; Methodist; Ku Klux during the reconstruction period, a member of the Sons of the Revolution and United Confederate Veterans. Married: November 13, 1866, at Wetumpka, to Tallulah James, daughter of James Henry and Mary Elizabeth (Stairley) Brockman, natives of Greenville District, S. C., the former a merchant and planter, who died at the age of twenty-two, while the latter lived to the age of ninety-three, and is buried in Jasper; granddaughter of Thomas Patterson and Mary (Kilgore) Brockman, the former a planter and merchant, colonel of the lower regiment, Greenville District, S. C. militia, member of both branches of the South Carolina legislature during a period of forty years, representing his district during some of the State's most crucial periods, member of the State conventions of 1832, called to nullify the act of congress imposing duties for protection, and in 1852, which convention was called for the purpose of seceding from the Federal union, he being all the while a firm and decided union man, but accepting the will of the majority, and later losing in the War of Secession his only remaining two sons, both high ranking officers, and of George and Parmelia (Lester) Stairley, of Greenville District, S. C.; great-granddaughter of Archibald and Elizabeth (Crymes) Lester, of Virginia, and of James and Keziah (Greer) Kilgore, of Spartanburg, S. C., and of Henry and Susannah (Patterson) Brockman, natives of Virginia who removed to South Carolina about 1790, settling in Spartanburg or Greenville District, a planter and slave owner; great-great-granddaughter of Col. Benjamin Kilgore, and wife, who was a Miss McRary, the former a captain in the Indian campaigns during the colonial period and major of cavalry under General Brannon in the Revolutionary War, and of John and Amelia (Martin) or (Edwards) Brockman, the founder of the family in America, natives of England, who located first in Virginia, probably in Orange or Albemarle Counties, their descendants going later to North Carolina and thence to South Carolina, and of George Crymes, of Virginia, son of Baronet Crymes of English parentage, born in Pockham, Wales, who inherited a barony and was made a knight of the garter by the King of England, migrated to America in the early colonial period, and settled in King and Queen County on the York River, where he built a home which he fortified with cannon against Indian attack; great-great-great-granddaughter of William Kilgore whose ancestors migrated from Carlisle, Pa., to Laurens and later Greenville Districts, S. C. The Brockman family was seated in Essex and Kent Counties, England, the homestead and estate "Beechborough," bought in the year, 1455, by Sir Henry Brockman, still stands, and is owned by members of the Brockman family. The church register shows an entry of the name in the year 1200, A. D. A further account may be seen in Burke's "Landed Gentry." Children: 1. Louise, m. (1) Col. William Hayne Perry, lawyer, planter, officer in Hampton's Legion, C. S. Army, member of congress, son of Gov. B. F. Perry, of Greenville, S. C., (2) Arthur Graves Lund, Washington, D. C.; 2. Marie Susan, (q. v.) m. Thomas M. Owen (q. v.); 3. John Hollis, jr., (q. v.); 4. William Brockman, (q. v.); 5. Col. Henry M., (q. v.). Last residence: Jasper.

BANKHEAD, JOHN HOLLIS, jr., lawyer, legislator and coal operator, was born July 8, 1872, at Moscow, Lamar County; son of John Hollis and Tallulah (Brockman) Bankhead (q. v.). His primary and preparatory education was received in the common schools at Moscow, Vernon, Wetumpka and Fayette. He entered the University of Alabama, in 1887 and graduated with the A. B. degree in 1891, president of the senior class and captain of the staff, the University at that time being under military discipline. He attended the law school of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., graduated in 1893 with the LL. B. degree, president of the senior law class. He entered upon the practice at Jasper, August 1, 1893, as the junior member of the firm of Coleman and Bankhead. Upon the death, in 1904, of Mr. Coleman, the firm became Bankhead & Bankhead, the junior member being William B., younger brother, who had been practicing in Madison County. He is the author of the Alabama election law under the constitution of 1901; in 1903 was elected to the State legislature from Walker County; captain of the Bankhead rifles, A. N. G., of Jasper, 1900-01; major of the 3rd infantry regiment, A. N. G., 1901-03. He is a Democrat and served as campaign manager for his father in his successful races for the U. S. Senate, and for his brother, W. B. Bankhead, in his successful race for congress against Capt. R. P. Hobson. He has not sought office for himself but has devoted his political efforts to his relatives and friends. Mr. Bankhead does a large private and corporation law practice and is president of the Bankhead coal mine and other coal mines in Walker County. Married: December 26, 1894, at Fayette, to Musa, daughter of Walter Worth and Lula (Burris) Harkins, of that place. Children: 1. Marion; 2. William Walter, graduate of the University in both the academic and law departments, member of the firm of Bankhead and Bankhead, having taken the place left vacant by his uncle upon his election to congress, m. Emelil Crumpton of Maplesville; 3. Louise. Residence: Jasper.

BANKHEAD, WILLIAM BROCKMAN, lawyer, member of Alabama legislature and U. S. congress, was born April 12, 1874, near Sulligent, Lamar County; son of John Hollis and Tallulah J. (Brockman) Bankhead (q. v.), brother of John H. Bankhead, jr. (q. v.), and of Mrs. Marie B. Owen (q. v.). He received his early education in the public schools at Wetumpka, and Fayette, being taught by Miss Susie Doby and Prof. M. B. Dubose; entered the University of Alabama, 1889, at fifteen years of age and graduated, A. B., June, 1893; captain, Co. C, Cadet corps, and winner of the trustees' oratorical prize. He at once entered the law department of Georgetown university, at Washington, D. C., from which he graduated in 1895, being president of the class, an honor borne likewise by his brother, John H. Bankhead, jr., upon graduating from the same institution, these young men being the first Southerners so honored after the War of Secession. He was admitted to the bar at Fayette, September, 1895, and entered upon the practice at Huntsville, in the office of Judge William Richardson, M. C. In 1905, he removed to Jasper to practice with his brother, John H. Bankhead, jr. He was city attorney of Huntsville, 1900-01; circuit solicitor fourteenth circuit, 1900-14; elected to the 65th and 66th congresses from the tenth district, and is a member of the education and merchant marine committees of that body; had charge of the legislation giving vocational training to disabled soldiers of the World War, and was author of the act to rehabilitate industrial cripples passed by the 66th congress. He is a Democrat, chairman of the Walker County committee, delegate to several state conventions, presidential elector, 1904. He is a Methodist; a Mason; Odd Fellow; Woodman of the World; Knight of Pythias and a member of the Phi Delta Theta college fraternity. Married: (1) January 31, 1900, in Memphis, Tenn., to Adelaide Eugene, daughter of J. Thomas and Evelyn Eugenia (Garth) Sledge, the former a native of Mississippi, the latter of North Alabama; (2) January 16, 1915, to Florence, daughter of Joseph H. and Saleta J. (Anderson) McGuire, of Jasper. Children: by the first wife, 1. Evelyn Eugenia, m. Morton Hoyt. 2. Tallulah Brockman, an actress, appearing first upon the screen at sixteen years of age, and later going on the legitimate stage where she played the leading female role in "39 East," and won success in "Foot-loose," both Broadway successes. Residence: Jasper.

BANKS, CHARLES PETER, physician, deceased. For forty years in the active practice of medicine at Newburgh, and a public spirited citizen.

BANKS, DUNSTAN MARION, teacher and planter, was born July 31, 1832, at Culloden, Ga., and died April 1, 1912, at Opelika; son of James Jones and Hannah (Alston) Banks, who lived at Culloden, Elbert County, Ga., and Enon, coming to Alabama as a pioneer planter; grandson of Ralph and Rachel (Jones) Banks, and of James and Grizel (Yancey) Alston, all natives of Elbert County, Ga. He received his early education at the village school at Enon and graduated at the State university, Athens, Ga. Prior to the War of Secession he was a planter and afterwards he taught school at Enon, Union Springs, and Opelika, and was for several years superintendent of education of Lee County. He was a Democrat and ardent prohibitionist; a local Methodist preacher; a Mason. Married: December 31, 1854, at Smith's Station, to Cordelia, daughter of John Warren and Florella (Glenn) Allen, of that place and Greenville; granddaughter of Rev. James E. Glenn, a native of South Carolina, a pioneer Methodist minister, serving the Keewee circuit, Edisto District, in 1812 and for whom Glennville, this State, was named. Children: 1. John James, deceased, m. Mattie Cotten, Opelika; 2. Bettie Benona, deceased, m. Henry Crawford Jernigan, Opelika; 3. Nettie, m. Walter N. Hurt, deceased, Phoenix City; 4. Mary Hannah, m. Albert Edward Barnett (q. v.), Opelika. Last residence: Opelika.

BANKS, E. A., deceased. At one time part owner of the "Montgomery Mail." A Confederate soldier.

BANKS, JAMES JONES, lawyer, was born April 27, 1861, at Enon, Bullock County; son of Jabez Benoin and Jane Rebecca (Harvey) Banks, natives of Georgia, and early settlers of Bullock County. He was reared on his father's farm; attended private schools; was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute with the degree of B. A., 1882, and from the law course in the University of Alabama with the degree of LL. B., 1885. He was admitted to the general practice of law before the supreme court of Montgomery; moved to Birmingham, where he became law partner with E. H. Cabaniss; was elected city attorney in 1890; elected judge of the tenth judicial circuit, from 1892 until 1898; and resumed the practice of law in the firm of Banks and Selheimer, formed October, 1889. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Methodist Episcopal church. Married: December 7, 1887, at Union Springs, Lee Frazer, daughter of Judge S. T. Frazer of Union Springs. Children: 1. Frazer; 2. James J. Residence: Birmingham.

BANKS, JAMES OLIVER, JR., business man, was born December 26, 1865, in Columbus, Miss.; son of James Oliver and Martha (Coleman) Banks, Sr., the former a native of Tuscaloosa, born in the old Banks residence, near the college grounds, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1847, and A. M., 1850, and from Jefferson Medical College, M. D., 1850, was lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-third regiment of Mississippi volunteers, C. S. Army, the latter a native of Greene County, born and reared in the old country residence, "Grassdale," near Eutaw; grandson of Willis and Mary (Gray) Banks, who moved in 1821 from Elbert County, Ga., to Tuscaloosa, and then to Columbus, Miss.; great-grandson of Ralph Banks, a Virginian, who left that state at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and settled on the "Broad Settlement," in Elbert County, Ga. He was educated in the schools around Eutaw, having as one of his early teachers, Miss Sallie Collier; was prepared for college in Dr. Henry Tutwiler's school at Green Springs; and was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1887. At graduation he was given the rank of captain in the corps of cadets. After leaving college, he embarked in the mercantile business at Eutaw. He is a vestryman in the Episcopal Church at Eutaw, and has been state treasurer for funds for widows and orphans of deceased clergymen for the Episcopal Church, diocese of Alabama. Married: June 6, 1889, in Eutaw, Julia Coleman, his cousin, daughter of Judge Thomas and Frances (Wilson) Coleman, a lineal descendant of John and Rhoda Coleman. Children: 1. Wilkes; 2. Willis; 3. Hampden; 4. Jack; 5. Ralph; 6. Ellen Gray. Residence: Eutaw.

BANKS, MARION, planter, was born 1813, in Georgia; and died January 16, 1886, at Tuscaloosa; son of Ralph and Rachael (Jones) Banks, of Jonesboro. He was educated in the University of Alabama, A. B., and A. M.; became director of the Alabama State Bank, in 1841; was elected representative in the Alabama General Assembly, by the largest vote ever given in his county, in 1842, and was again elected in 1851, after his term of office he retired from public life and devoted his attention to his planting interests. He was elected a trustee of the University of Alabama from 1876 until 1884, and later, president pro tem. of the board of trustees. He belonged to the Whig party. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BANKS, MICHAEL JOSEPH, physician, was born July 27, 1857, in Tallapoosa County; son of Dr. Wilson L. and Parmela (Bulger) Banks, the former a native of Chambers County, born March 24, 1832, and died September 30, 1890; grandson of Joseph and Mary (Briscoe) Banks, the former, born June 6, 1811, in Dublin, Ireland, came with his parents to America in 1818, settling in Georgia, moved to Alabama in Tallapoosa County, and died in 1863, and of Gen. M. J. and Parmela (Donald) Bulger, the former a native of Columbia, S. C., born February 13, 1806; great-grandson of Joseph and Margaret Banks, Sr., the former was born in Ireland in 1779, and died in Alabama in 1856, and of Pierce and Annie (Adams) Bulger; great-great-grandson of John and Jane Banks, the former, born 1758, in Dublin, Ireland, died in 1833, and was buried in Bride's Churchyard, Dublin, Ireland, and of Mike Bulger, a native of Ireland, and the brother of Lord John Bulger. The progenitor of the family in America, Mike Bulger, came to this country with Baron DeKalb to join the Revolution, remained a member of his staff as long as DeKalb lived, and was by his side when the latter was killed at Camden. Dr. Banks was reared in Tallapoosa County, attending the common schools there, and later took up the study of medicine in the Atlanta Medical College. He was graduated M. D., 1889, and began to practice medicine the following year at Jackson's Gap, where he has continued a successful practice. He is a Democrat, and a Missionary Baptist. Married: (1) in 1880, Beulah Henderson of Jackson's Gap, who died in 1893; (2) in 1895, Vada Burroughs of Dadeville, who died in 1899; (3) January, 1903, Linnie Shank, of Glass. Children, by first marriage; 1. Lula; 2. Esther; 3. Graves, deceased; 4. Ruth; 5. Joseph T.; 6. Wilson L.; 7. Beulah: by third marriage; 8. Dona. Residence: Jackson's Gap.

BANKS, NEWTON PALEY, physician, was born September 24, 1824, in Elbert County, Ga., and died May 1, 1901, at Opelika; son of James Jones and Hannah (Alston) Banks, the former a native of Elbert County, Ga., and a prominent farmer; grandson of Ralph and Rachel (Jones) Banks, who lived in Granville County, N. C., later removing to Elbert County, and of James and Grizel (Yancey) Alston, of Elbert County; great-grandson of James and Christian (Lillington) Alston, of Thomas and Sarah (Chandler) Banks, of Granville County, N. C., and of James and Charity (Alston) Jones, the former a member of the provincial congress of North Carolina, 1776, and captain of third company of first regiment of light horse cavalry of North Carolina; great-great-grandson of Solomon, sr., and Nancy (Hinton) Alston, of James and Mary (Clarke) Alston; great-great-great-grandson of John and Anne (Wallis) Alston; great-great-great-great-grandson of John and Dorothy (Temple) Alston, the former was in 1725 appointed revenue collector for the king, served from April 3, 1738, to 1747, as a vestryman of St. Paul's parish, Cowan County, N. C., and in 1746 served as sheriff of Cowan County. Dr. Banks was educated in Culloden, Ga., and upon removal to Enon, in 1844, continued his studies, and later graduated in medicine at Louisville, Ky. He entered upon the practice of his profession at Enon, where he continued many years, but finally gave up his profession to enter business. He was a Democrat; Methodist, and Mason. Married: January 16, 1851, at Enon, to Frances Ann, daughter of Henry W. and Caroline (Gachet) Jernigan, of Glennville; granddaughter of Dr. Charles and Ann (Stubbs) Gachet, the former a native of Bordeaux, France, who had been educated for the priesthood, but came to America before entering that service. Children: 1. Henry Jernigan, deceased, m. Sallie Kate Tarver; 2. Sallie Hannah, m. James B. Tarver, Charlotte, N. C.; 3. Jasper, d. in infancy; 4. Caroline, d. in infancy; 5. Jabez B., m. widow of Henry J. Banks; 6. Pearl, m. Warren Byers Watkins, Edmond, Okla. Last residence: Opelika.

BANKS, ROBERT WEBB, planter and Confederate soldier, for some time a resident of Alabama, where he was educated in part and where he married, was born in Columbus, Miss., in 1843; son of Col. Dunston and Lucretia (Webb) Banks, the former one of the earliest residents of Columbus, Miss.; grandson of Ralph and Rachel (Alston) Banks, natives of Virginia and North Carolina, who removed to the Broad River settlement, Elbert County, Ga., and of Thomas and Martha (Dickens) Webb, of North Carolina. Mr. Banks was a cadet in the University of Alabama, 1861-62; in the latter year enlisted as a private in Co. B, 43rd Mississippi infantry regiment; was sergeant major, 37th Mississippi infantry regiment, and later transferred and promoted adjutant, 29th Alabama infantry regiment. After the war he engaged in planting; during 1866-90 was a warehouseman; 1870-90 was in newspaper editorial work; 1889-92 collector of internal revenue in President Cleveland's first administration; and receiver of public moneys during his second term. He was lieutenant-colonel of the Third Mississippi volunteer infantry in the Spanish-American war; and was at one time in the employ of the Tennessee planters company at Memphis. Author: "The battle of Franklin," 1908. Married: November 18, 1869, to Alice Clay, daughter of Col. Felix and Sarah Anne (Parrish) Sherrod, of Lawrence County. Children: 1. Sarah Felix, m. Charles David Hill, of Louisville, Ky.; 2. Lucile Webb; 3. Robert Webb; 4. James Oliver; 5. Alice Sherrod. Residence: Columbus, Miss.

BANKS, WILLIAM, merchant, moved from Brunswick County, Va., about 1808, to Franklin, Tenn., and later to Courtland, Madison County, where he entered the dry goods business and became a successful merchant. Married: in Virginia, a Miss Jenkins, a daughter of Dr. Jenkins, a surgeon in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Minerva J., m. Judge J. J. Ormond (q. v.); 2. Cassandra, m. Watkins Leigh Harris, a lawyer of Courtland; 3. Mary, m. a Mr. Robinson, and after his death his brother; 4.

Amanda, m. Richard Norfleet Harris, sr. (q. v.); 5. Elizabeth, m. Judge Bowling C. Baker; 6. William, physician, m. a Miss O'Connor, of Chicago; 7. Cornelia, m. Andrew S. Nicholson. Last residence: Madison County.

BANKS, WILLIAM HARVEY, merchant, farmer, and legislator, was born August 11, 1842, at Talbotton, Talbot County, Ga.; son of Jabez B. and Jane Rebecca (Harvey) Banks, of Enon. He was educated in the common schools of Enon, and at Auburn, but did not graduate. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. C, 45th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, serving with this unit during the War of Secession. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1901 from Russell County. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: December 10, 1868, at Enon, to Mary Louisa Rogers. Residence: Hatchechubbee.

BANNISTER, JAMES W., author. Residence: Montgomery.

BAPTIST, EDWARD, Baptist minister, was born in Mecklenburg County, Va., May 12, 1790, and died in Marengo County, March 31, 1863. At the age of eighteen years he joined the Presbyterian church, of which his mother was a member. His father was an Episcopalian. He graduated at Hampden Sidney college. Becoming dissatisfied with his religious affiliations, after investigation of the subject of baptism, he united with the Baptists. He then returned to Hampden Sidney college, and graduated in theology. He was ordained to the Baptist ministry, 1815; settled in Powhatan County, Va.; was the prime mover in the organization and drafted the constitution of the General association, 1822; and was the originator of the Baptist educational society and seminary. He "had a brilliant ministry of twenty years in Virginia," (Cathcart); removed to Marengo County in 1835; and was pastor of many country churches. He was the author of many articles in the "Religious Herald," and other church papers. Married: to Eliza J. C. Eggleston, about 1815. Children: (order conjectural): 1. Edward Glanville, A. B., University of Alabama, 1848, long a Baptist minister of Virginia, m. (1.) Maria E. Duerson, of Spottsylvania, Va.; (2.) Sarah A. Duerson, of the same place; 2. Powhatan Richard, student at the University of Alabama, 1856-57 (unmarried), turned his attention to literary pursuits, private Fourth Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, wounded in battle, and died soon afterwards at his home in Faunsdale; 3. Eliza E., m. Benjamin C. Gay; 4. William H.; 5. Ann; 6. Margaret Hill; 7. Laura. Last residence: Marengo County.

BARBER, ROBERT, register U. S. land office, was born December 29, 1840, in Utica, N. Y.; and died at Montgomery; son of Milo G. and Mary A. (Addy) Barber of Oneida County, N. Y.; great-grandson of Robert Barber, a captain in the Revolutionary war. Robert Barber was educated in the public schools and graduated in the high school of his native city. He entered in the drug business, but in 1860 he enlisted in the 22nd. New York volunteer infantry, Union Army, and served two years; was wounded at Antietam; re-enlisted in New York cavalry and was mustered in as adjutant; was mustered out of the service at Talladega, 1865, as assistant adjutant general of the field forces of Alabama. He opened a drug store at Talladega which was destroyed by fire and he removed to Montgomery in 1866 to take the position of chief clerk in the civil bureau at military headquarters; was secretary of the constitutional convention, 1867, and first sheriff of Montgomery County after the war; clerk of the house of representatives, Alabama legislature, 1874; U. S. commissioner and law clerk for fifteen years; chief deputy U. S. marshal at Huntsville, four years; office deputy at Birmingham, four years; register U. S. land office 1897. He was an Odd Fellow and a Mason. Married: July, 1866, at Talladega, to Alice B., daughter of Frank and Elizabeth Hall, residents of that place, but natives of Virginia. Children: 1. Thomas Milo; 2. Mary, m. a Mr. Arnold. Last residence: Montgomery.

BARBIERE, JOSEPH, major, 4th Confederate infantry, afterwards 54th Alabama; major, Barbieri's Cavalry battalion Alabama reserves. Residence: Memphis, Tenn.

BARBOUR, T. M., Baptist minister and planter, was born in February, 1830, in Tuscaloosa; son of Richard W. and Priscilla (Lee) Barbour, the former a native of Virginia, the latter of Tennessee. He was educated in the public schools of his native city; enlisted in the army at the age of seventeen, serving in Mexico and receiving his honorable discharge in 1848. He returned to Tuscaloosa, entered the house of Chancellor and Sheldon as clerk, continuing with this firm for ten years, and after that time entering the cotton mill as an employee. In April, 1862, he entered the Confederate service as captain of Co. D, 43rd Alabama infantry regiment, attaining the rank of major of the regiment in the latter part of 1863. He fought in the battles of Fort Morgan, Perryville, Drewry's Bluff, where he commanded the regiment, Petersburg and Richmond. At the close of the war he began farming. He was ordained a minister of the Baptist church in 1864 and has served churches in Tuscaloosa County. In 1892 he was elected a member of the State legislature. Married: in 1851, to Caroline Atkins, a native of South Carolina. Children: 1. Cullen; 2. Dollie, m. H. W. Reynolds; 3. Emma, m. Malone Hill; 4. Lee; 5. Carrie, m. W. H. Beatty; 6. Benjamin. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BARBOUR, WILLIAM WALLACE, teacher, banker and legislator, was born August 19, 1876, near Collinsville, Dekalb County; son of William Henry and Margaret (Witherow) Barbour, both natives of this state; grandson of John and Nancy Barbour, early settlers in Marshall County, of South Carolina stock, and of John and Mary (Morris) Witherow, of Virginia ancestry. He was educated in the public schools of Alabama; and in June, 1895, graduated from Collinsville high school. Since 1895 he has been a teacher, having taught at Portersville, Collinsville, Brewton, and at Ft. Payne. He has served on the Dekalb County board of education; has been secretary of the Dekalb County teachers association, and vice-president of the Escambia County teachers association, but is now engaged in the banking business. He was a member of the State senate in 1907 from the twenty-ninth district. He is a Democrat; a member of the Christian church; Mason; Knight of Pythias; and an Odd Fellow. Unmarried. Residence: Fort Payne.

BARCLAY, A. R., member, constitutional convention, 1861 from Talladega County.

BARCLAY, ROBERT, soldier of the American Revolution. "Departed this life on the 26th July, 1848, Robert Barclay, aged 85 years; born Nov. 1763, in Ireland; came with his father to South Carolina in 1769; served as a private soldier under Sumter towards the close of the War of the Revolution, and emigrated to Tennessee in 1802, and afterwards to Morgan County, Alabama, in 1816, where he died; being one of the first pioneers who crossed the Tennessee River in Alabama. He was remarkably healthy, never having any sickness until worn out with age; even retaining his eyesight to the last, never using a pair of spectacles; he professed religion and joined the Baptist Church after coming to Morgan County, and has left three sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. Thus has fallen the last revolutionary patriot that we are acquainted with; tho' there are doubtless many more; but the time is close at hand when the last patriot that bared his bosom to the enemies of American freedom, will cease to live on earth; but the time should be long before a memory of their deeds should be lost to their survivors."—The Democrat, Huntsville, Ala., August 9, 1848. He resided in Morgan County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BAREFIELD, JOSEPH HARRIS, lawyer and member of the constitutional convention of 1901, was born January 20, 1875, at Prairie Point, Noxubee County, Miss.; son of Dr. Henry L. and Lollie (Eddins) Barefield, the former of Gosport, Miss., the latter of Tuscaloosa; grandson of Capt. Benjamin F. Eddins, who was killed while guarding the bridge at Tuscaloosa during the War of Secession. He was educated in private schools at Gosport, Miss., and Suggsville, Clarke County; graduated from Howard college in 1895; and took a law course at the University of Virginia; entered on the practice at Monroeville, Monroe County, July 27, 1896. For a short time he served as county solicitor, and in 1901 was a member of the constitutional convention. He is a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: May 15, 1898, at Monroeville, to Mattie Bannette Harrington. Residence: Monroeville.

BARGANIER, MATT EUGENE, machinist, president Alabama State federation of labor, secretary of the International association of machinists, was born June 22, 1879, at Ft. Deposit, Lowndes County; son of James Madison and Mamie Sulzer (Burt) Barganier, of Lowndes County; grandson of James Franklin and Ruth Ann Barganier, of Ft. Deposit, and of John J. and Laura Burt, of Lower Peach Tree. Both grandfathers served in the C. S. Army, John J. Burt dying at Atlanta of wounds received at the battle of Kenesaw Mountain. Mr. Barganier was educated in the schools of Montgomery. He is a machinist and has been employed in different parts of the South; was president of the Alabama state federation of labor, May, 1916, to May, 1918; secretary for the last sixteen years of the International association of machinists, was elected a representative from Montgomery County to the house of representatives, 1919. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; and an Elk. Married: November 26, 1902, to Zadie Jeanette, daughter of James Andrew and Clara Rebecca LaPrade, of Montgomery. Children: 1. Clara Angella; 2. Mary Frances; 3. William Michel; 4. Zadie Louise, deceased; 5. Laura Bell. Residence: Montgomery.

FRANK STOLLENWERCK, SR.

BARKER, BAYLOR B., grand master, grand council, Masons, 1845.

BARKER, PRELATE DEMECK, U. S. internal revenue collector, postmaster at Mobile and business man, was born September 29, 1835, in Branford, Conn.; son of Jonathan Brooks and Frances J. (Appell) Barker, the former a sea captain, also a native of Branford; grandson of Jacob Barker, descended from Edward Barker who came to America from England in 1665 and was a merchant in the West Indies trade at New Haven, Conn., and of Pierre and Lois (Baldwin) Appell of Branford, the former a native of Marseilles, France, who came to this country with Gen. Lafayette, and served through the Revolutionary War. Branford was the home town of his second ancestors in America. He received a public school and academic education in New Haven, Conn., and at the Stratford academy of that State; at seventeen he left school and for two years read law in a private office in New York City; removed to Galena, Ill., and later to Madison, Wis., and in 1857 came to Alabama and located at Claiborne, Monroe County, an historic town on the Alabama River, where he was employed in a mercantile establishment. In 1861 he entered the Confederate service as assistant to Maj. C. E. Thomas, post quartermaster at Selma, at which post he served during the entire war. From 1865 to 1883 he was engaged in the cotton seed oil and petroleum business; and was secretary-treasurer of the Selma and Meridian railroad 1869-71. He affiliated with the Republican party after the war, and has been high in local party councils. In 1871 he was named by President Grant as collector of internal revenue for the second district of Alabama, and for the entire State after consolidation, in which position he served six years. He was again appointed to the same position by President Arthur in 1883. He removed to Mobile from Montgomery, 1885, and engaged in the cotton compress and storage business with which he had been connected since 1878. He resided in New York City with his family, holding the position of secretary of the Empire refining company, a petroleum concern from 1879 to 1883. In 1890 he was named postmaster of Mobile by President Harrison, and was successively re-appointed by Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. He was a delegate from the first congressional district of Alabama in the Republican national conventions of 1876, 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900, 1908, and 1912; was chairman of the Alabama delegation to the National Republican convention at Philadelphia, in 1900, and represented the State upon the committee that notified President McKinley of his re-nomination for the Presidency. He is a Mason and Knight Templar. Married: August 1, 1865, at Selma, to Joanna Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Hugh and Caroline (Minter) Ferguson (q. v.), and granddaughter of Anthony Minter. Children: 1. Ellis Carson; 2. Florence Jane, m. Harry G. Wales, New York; 3. Joan Elizabeth, m. Maj. Harry Lee Pettus, U. S. Army; 4. Olive Louise, m. Hon. Edward M. Robinson, (q. v.) Mobile, deceased. Residence: Mobile.

BARKSDALE, WILLIAM H., Baptist minister and farmer, was born February 19, 1827, in Rutherford County, Tenn.; son of Randolph and Susan C. (Williams) Barksdale of Tennessee, but losing his mother at an early age he was reared by his grandmother Williams at whose death, soon followed by that of his father, he was thrown on his own resources. He began his Christian labors at the age of fourteen by giving religious instruction to his father's servants. He entered Union university, negotiating all expenses through a personal note which was paid in full after the completion of his studies and temporary entrance into the teaching profession and was, later in life, given the M. A. degree by this school. He matriculated at Georgetown college, Kentucky, and remained as long as his finances admitted. He preached and taught at Middleton, Tenn., Florence and Mt. Pleasant, serving other churches also in the latter neighborhood; was pastor of Courtland church, 1855-57, and the following year was called to Helena, Ark., where he remained until after the war. When his church was taken for a hospital he erected a building in his own yard and gave secular and religious instruction to the youth of the town. After the close of hostilities he served churches at Shufordville, Miss., Spring Creek and Forest Chapel, Ark., holding his residence at Helena. Later he moved to Memphis, Tenn., and from this point served the Baptist church at Tusculumbia. He was elected clerk of the Alabama Muscle Shoals association in 1855, and a short while prior to his death wrote a circular letter on "Close Communion" which made a strong impression upon the members of his faith. Married: (1) July 31, 1846, at Murfreesboro, Tenn., to Mary F., daughter of Dr. William Bashette of that place; (2) July 1, 1867, to Lucy Donoho, of Tennessee. Last residence: Memphis, Tenn.

BARNARD, FREDERICK AUGUSTUS PORTER, professor of mathematics, natural philosophy and astronomy, at the University of Alabama, 1837-49, and of chemistry and natural history, 1849-54.

BARNARD, TIMPOOCHEE, Yuchee Chief. See Indian chiefs and associated characters.

BARNARD, WILLIAM HARRISON, merchant and legislator, was born March 22, 1864, at Forney, Cherokee County; son of William Marion and Amanda Caroline (Wharton) Barnard, the former a native of Georgia, who moved to near Key, Cherokee County, where he resided the remainder of his life; a soldier in the Confederate Army; grandson of Jacob and Nancy (Lott) Wharton, of Forney. He was educated in the public schools of Cherokee County; is a merchant, undertaker, and liveryman; deputy sheriff of Jefferson County, 1889-90; chief of police of Pratt City, 1895-1905; and was one of the representatives from Jefferson County in the legislature of 1911. He is an Episcopalian; a Democrat; Knight of Pythias; Elk; Red Man; Odd Fellow; Knight of Honor; and a Maccabee. Married: December 25, 1890, at Adairsville, Ga., to Lula, daughter of Robert H. A. and Matinza (Turner) Ellis of that place. Children: 1. Lillie Mabel; 2. Charles Ellis; 3. Willie; 4. Jewell, deceased. Residence: Pratt City.

BARNES, ELLY RUFF, teacher, was born August 12, 1871, at Strata, Montgomery County, son of Justus McDuffy and Louisiana Rutherford (Ruff) Barnes (q. v.). Elly Ruff Barnes received his entire education at the hands of his father whose schools he attended at Strata and Highland Home, graduating from the latter college June, 1891. He spent four summer vacations in normal study under distinguished specialists. He began teaching immediately upon graduation, assisting his father for seven years in his Alma Mater, and removed to Montgomery in 1898 where he taught one year in the city boy's high school. He again joined his father and together they conducted the Barnes school for boys in Montgomery, founded in 1898 and became principal of the school after his father's retirement. He is a Democrat and member of the Church of Christ. Married: June 9, 1897, at Highland Home, to Ula, daughter of Temple and Ladie (Anderson) Bowling who lived at Russellville, and formerly in Adairville, Ky.; granddaughter of Judge Robert C. Bowling of Logan County, Ky., and a descendant of Jonathan Clark who was the brother of George Rogers Clark both of whom were heroes of the northwest territorial history. The Andersons lived at Lebanon, Tenn., and were of Revolutionary ancestry. Col. Paul Anderson, uncle of Mrs. Barnes, commanded a Confederate regiment known as "Paul's People." She had five uncles who were officers in the C. S. Army. Children: 1. Justus Mac, jr.; 2. Robert Bowling. Residence: Montgomery.

BARNES, JAMES COLEMAN, farmer, merchant and legislator, was born May 15, 1852, near Barnes Cross Roads, Dale County; son of Edward and Sarah (Dean) Barnes, the former a native of Georgia, who resided in Dale County; grandson of James Dean of Dale County. He was educated in the common schools of his native county. He is a farmer and merchant. He represented Dale County in the legislature of 1903. He is a Democrat and a Universalist. Married: to Phebia Mary, daughter of John H. and Phebia Weed, natives of South Carolina. Residence: Ariosto.

BARNES, JUSTUS McDUFFIE, teacher and Christian minister, was born February 10, 1836, near Ada, Montgomery County, and died April 28, 1913, in Montgomery; son of Elkanah and Mary (Lumpkin) Barnes of Prince George County, Md., lived at Edgefield District, S. C., came in 1818 to Pintlala section, Montgomery County, and accumulated wealth by carpentry and acquired lands by entry, a farmer, merchant, surveyor, militia man, and one of the escort that received and attended General Lafayette during his visit to Montgomery; grandson of Henry and Ann (Lanham) Barnes, of Edgefield, S. C., and of Thomas and Jane (McIlwaine) Lumpkin of Lancaster, S. C., who located near Strata, Montgomery County. His great-grandfather Barnes was a native of Holland who fought as captain in the Revolutionary War; great-grandfather Lanham was a relative of William Lanham who came to Maryland with Lord Baltimore, and great-grandfather Lumpkin was of English stock. The McIlwaines were of Scotch origin. The Guinns were Irish. Justus McDuffie Barnes was well educated, having received his preparatory training from Felix Tankersley at Strata, Professor Mangum, a native of Ireland and graduate of the University of Dublin who taught at Rocky Mount, now Highland Home, and from George C. Freeman who taught near Pine Level. He attended Bethany college, Virginia, now West Virginia, 1854-56, and graduated with the degree of A. B. during the presidency of Alexander Campbell who founded the college. He began teaching at Strata, in 1856, on his father's plantation, with thirteen pupils, but his school quickly grew in favor and soon developed into the Strata high school with an enrollment of nearly two hundred students, of which his two brothers-in-law, Samuel Jordan and M. L. Kirkpatrick became joint proprietors. The location was changed to Highland Home, with a change of name in 1881 to Highland Home institute, changing again in 1889 to Highland Home college which remains as a monument to the vision and labors of its founders. He resigned the presidency of this school in 1898 and removed his family to Montgomery where he established the Barnes school for boys, conducted for the past twelve years by his son, Elly Barnes. He was one of the greatest community forces of his state and organized numerous civic and patriotic associations. By giving the people clean pleasures, music, public speaking and social gatherings, he fought and helped destroy the liquor interests of his county and section. In 1861, he assumed charge of his father's estate and conducted all the farming interests thereafter. In 1862, he was ordained to preach by the Church of Christ, and during the remainder of his life engaged actively in the ministry, having organized many congregations in Alabama and other states. He was director of the old Montgomery southern railroad now part of the Atlantic coast line. He was conscientiously opposed to war, believing it antagonistic to the principles of Christianity and was, on this account excused from military service during the war between the states by the governor of Alabama. He was a Democrat in sympathy but took no part in politics even declining to vote on the grounds that a Christian should be about "his Father's business," and not entangle himself with politics. He was a contributor to the press for fifty years, mainly in church papers, and in early manhood wrote under the pen name of "The Little Man." At the time of his death, which was occasioned by an automobile accident, he was running several series of articles in "Word and work," New Orleans, La., and "The firm foundation," Austin, Tex. For many years he wrote for the "Gospel advocate," Nashville, Tenn., and made contributions to books of sermons; and also wrote occasional articles for the Montgomery papers on social, economic and religious topics. Married: (1) May 23, 1869, near Strata, to Louisiana Ruff, widow of W. B. Culler, daughter of John Hayney and Harriet (Graham) Ruff, who lived near Lapine; the Ruffs came to Alabama about 1864 from Newberry District, S. C.; the ancestry was from Holland and were Lutherans; great-granddaughter of Rev. Meetze, a Lutheran minister who emigrated from Germany to South Carolina; (2) October 26, 1879, near Childersburg, to Ethel, daughter of John Potts and Sarah (Cleveland) Rawdon, the former a Missionary Baptist preacher. Children: by first wife: 1. Elly Ruff, m. Ula Bowling (q. v.); by second wife: 2. Mary Cleveland, m. J. M. Garrett, of Montgomery; 3. Frank Kirk, m. J. J. Campbell, Montgomery; 4. Justus Rawdon; 5. Kanah Jordan, m. M. J. Bray, Montgomery; 6. Lanham (Lannie) Lumpkin; 7. Ethel Kathleen, m. H. V. Bell, Ramer; 8. Jean McIlwaine; 9. Lucy Berna; 10. Harry McGuinn; 11. Halleen Quen; 12. John Potts. Last residence: Montgomery.

BARNES, WALTER HERBERT, business man, was born October 4, 1864, at Lowndesville, Abbeville County, S. C.; son of James Theophilus and Emma Josephine (Moseley) Barnes, a native of Barnes' Mills, Abbeville County, who lived at Barnes' Station on the Savannah Valley railroad of which he was a director for a number of years; grandson of Christian and Susan Barnes, the former a native of Virginia, later a resident of South Carolina, and of J. M. Moseley of that state a descendant of the Montague family of Virginia. Walter Herbert Barnes was educated at Anderson, Lowndesville, and Fair Play, S. C., and graduated at Lexington, Ky., 1888, with honors. He clerked in a dry goods store in Anderson, S. C., for five years and in 1889 removed to Anniston, from which point he acted as the traveling salesman for two years, later accepting a similar position for the Daniel Pratt gin company. Two years later he was made manager of that company's factory at Memphis, Tenn., with the direction of the sales department in five Southern states. He is a Methodist, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: November 26, 1895, at Prattville, to Dora Adelaide, daughter of Merrill E. and Julia Adelaide (Smith) Pratt (q. v.) Children: 1. Julia Adelaide; 2. Emma Josephine; 3. Walter Herbert, jr. Residence: Memphis, Tenn.

BARNES, WILLIAM HODGES, lawyer, was born April 21, 1824, in Monroe County, Ga., and died July 29, 1887, in Opelika; son of Isaac and Ruth (Mobley) Barnes who lived at Dudleyville; grandson of Jethro Mobley and of Isaac Barnes. The Barnes family is of Irish origin, and its earlier American representatives lived prior to the Revolution in Maryland from whence the paternal grandfather removed to Meriwether County, Ga., and later to Lafayette, Chambers County. William Hodges Barnes received a common school education in his native county and at the age of nineteen began to read law in a private office in Lafayette. He was admitted to the bar in his twentieth year and began the practice at Dadeville, where he remained until 1857 when he removed to Lafayette. He represented Chambers County in the senate eight sessions and was in 1865 chairman of the judiciary committee. He later removed to Opelika, where he remained until his death. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1861 and a trustee of the Agricultural and mechanical college. At the time of his death the Montgomery Advertiser said: "The news of the death of this eminent and useful citizen will be read with profound regret in every portion of Alabama. None of her citizens was more patriotic, or more devoted to the public weal. No man ever stopped to question 'Where stands Col. W. H. Barnes?' He bore a large and useful part in the public life of the state. He was always at the call of his party, and his people. While he cherished the worthy ambition for public station to which his abilities and service made him naturally an aspirant, there was nothing of the schemer about him—nothing cold and calculating. He was by nature, patriotic, impulsive, warm-hearted. He was one of the few men in Alabama who aspired to the highest honors, who boldly took sides with the doubtful prohibition issue. It was not a part of the man to stop and count the cost where his convictions led. The loss of Col. Barnes will be severely felt in Opelika, where he was so largely a part of the life and character of the town. But no man in Alabama will fail to pause and pay some kindly tribute to one of the State's best sons, and to the happy possessor of the broadest, purest, happiest humor that ever charmed an audience of Alabama's sovereign voters." He was a Mason and a Methodist. Married: April 21, 1847, at Rock Springs, Lee County, Ann Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Cotton and Mary Elizabeth (Doggett) Rawles, the former sheriff of Tallapoosa County. Children: 1. William Walter, m. Mary Ingram, Opelika; 2. Joseph Cotton, m. Lula Myrick, Opelika; 3. Charles Henry, m. Mary Belle Tichenor; 4. Augustus, graduate of the University of Virginia, 1872, lawyer, mayor of Opelika several years, m. Lillie Belle Barnett; 5. Reid Boylston m. Mrs. Lillie Belle (Barnett) Barnes; 6. Mary E., m. Dan Frazer; 7. Annie Octavia; 8. John Rawles; 9. Ione. Last residence: Opelika.

BARNETT, ALBERT EDWARD, lawyer, was born November 11, 1860, at Glennville, Russell County; and died March 25, 1915, at Opelika; son of Patrick Edward and Ellen (Glenn) Barnett, the former a native of Washington, Ga., colorbearer in the Forty-fifth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, who lost his right leg in the battle of Atlanta; grandson of Patrick and Nancy (Beall) Barnett, of Washington, Ga., and of Massillon McKendree and Barbara (Herndon) Glenn of Glennville. The Barnetts were of Scotch-Irish descent and settled in Wilkes County, Ga., in the very early history of the country. The Glenn family is descended from Rev. James Elizabeth Glenn, one of the pioneer preachers who helped establish the Methodist Episcopal church in the south. Albert Edward Barnett attended night school, Vanderbilt University, and the University of Alabama from which he was graduated with the degree of LL. B. in 1892. He began to practice law in Birmingham; moved to Opelika in 1883; was appointed register in chancery in 1894; was editor of the Opelika Post, 1898-1900; was city attorney of Opelika, 1901-1905, and judge of the court of law and equity when it was first established in Lee County, 1907. He was a Democrat, a Mason and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Married: (1) April 11, 1888, at Eufaula, Julia Young, daughter of Augustus and Maria McRea Young, died March 2, 1889; (2) January 6, 1892, in Opelika, Mary Hannah Banks, daughter of Rev. Dunstan Marion and Cordelia Allen Banks. Children: 1. Mary Elizabeth; 2. Albert Edward; 3. Sarah Antoinette; 4. Marion Banks; 5. Ellen Glenn. Last residence: Opelika.

BARNETT, FRANK, planter, was born in the early half of the nineteenth century, and was a representative of one of the earliest families of Montgomery County. He was brother of Charles Barnett, a planter of the same county, who married a Miss Gresham, and was regarded as one of the most religious men in all the county. In describing Frank Barnett, a biographer says, "He was strictly a farmer with all that the name implies. He made an abundance of home supplies and was surrounded with every home comfort. He was fond of hunting and kept a pack of hounds. Deer were plentiful in those days and Mr. Barnett was very fond of the sport and was always ready to go driving, as it was called, which was done in the following manner: Deer were accustomed to have certain runs or routes, which they never failed to follow when pursued by dogs, and a day would be appointed to have a drive and hunters would meet at some specified place. A part of the company would station themselves at places along these runs, called stands, while others would take the dogs and go driving. When the deer were jumped or started, they would invariably follow one of these runs at full speed, the dogs and hunts-men after them, and as they passed the stands the reports of the guns would be heard, and usually a fine buck and sometimes two or three would be killed. Mr. Barnett, when in pursuit of deer, would never stop for a broken stirrup or girth." Married: Sarah Ponder. He had several children, among them, Hon. Joel Barnett. He was grandfather of Dr. B. J. Baldwin, of Montgomery.

BARNETT, FRANK WILLIS, lawyer and editor, was born October 23, 1865, at Glennville, Barbour County; son of Augustus William and Celeste (Treutlen) Willis, the former a physician, merchant and Methodist minister, who was born August 24, 1825, at Washington, Ga.; grandson of Samuel and Elizabeth (Worsham) Barnett of Washington, Ga., and of Gabriel and Anna (Comm) Treutlen; great grandson of Capt. William and Jean (Jack) Barnett, the former a native of North Carolina, born in 1747, of Lieut. Richard and Mary (Wingfield) Worsham of Washington, Ga., of John A. T. and Margaret (Miller) Treutlen, Jr., and of George and Anna (Woolfork) Comm; great great grandson of John and Ann (Spratt) Barnett, the former who was born in Ireland, 1717, and died in North Carolina, 1804, of Capt. Patrick and Lillian McAdough, the former who was born in Ireland, 1700, and died in Charlotte, N. C., 1871, of Thomas and Elizabeth (Turrell) Wingfield, of Gov. John Adams Treutlen, who was elected first governor of the State of Georgia in 1777; great-great-great-grandson of John and Sarah (Garland) Wingfield.

Frank Willis Barnett prepared in the public schools of St. Louis, Mo.; private school in Paris, France; University of Alabama; Vanderbilt University; The Sorbonne, Paris; University of Vienna; University of Berlin; New York Law School; and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He read law with the Hon. H. D. Clayton of Eufaula; practiced law at Birmingham, 1889-1892, in New York, 1892-1894, and in Atlanta, 1894-1895. He was ordained in the Baptist ministry, September 23, 1895; became pastor at Johnson City, Tenn., 1895, assistant pastor in the First Church of Nashville, Tenn., 1897, and pastor at Forsyth, Ga., 1898-1900; headed a department in the law firm of Frederic de Peyster Forster, 1902; and became editor and owner of the "Alabama Baptist," the organ of the Baptists of Alabama, January, 1902. He was appointed Chaplain of the Second Regiment of Georgia, for the Spanish American War, but did not accept. He is a Democrat, a Mason, and a member of Kappa Alpha college fraternity.

Married: At Forsyth, Ga., June 21, 1899, Maud Proctor, daughter of David Jesse and Eileen Proctor of Forsyth, Ga.; granddaughter of Judge Simmons, a lawyer and author, of Lawrenceville, Ga. Residence: Birmingham.

BARNETT, MERCER J., president, Barnett lumber co. Residence: Birmingham.

BARNETT, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 70, and a resident of Perry County; private S. C. Militia; enrolled on November 4, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20; sums received to date of publication of list, $60.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BARNETT, WILLIAM, planter, was born in Amherst County, Va., March 4, 1761, and died in Montgomery County, about 1830; son of Nathaniel and Susanna (Crawford) Barnett, the former of English descent, a native of Amherst County, who removed to Columbia County, Ga., about the beginning of the Revolutionary War and where he and his two sons, William and Joel, and two of their young kinsmen, the Crawfords, determined to remain and resist the attacks of the British and the aggressions of the Tories. Nathaniel, the father, was made a captive, and was imprisoned in Augusta. William Barnett and his brother Joel left Georgia and returned to Virginia, joined a militia company from Amherst County, under the leadership of Marquis Lafayette, and were with the Americans at the siege of Yorktown. They went back to Georgia after the close of the war. William Barnett lived for a short time in Columbia County, and settled on Broad River in Elbert County; was sheriff of the latter county, about 1780; served in the legislature; was president of the State senate; elected as States' Rights Democrat to the 12th congress, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Howell Cobb and was re-elected to the 13th congress, serving from November 27, 1812, to March 3, 1815; and removed to Alabama where he spent his last years. Married: (1) Mary, daughter of Francis and Martha (Jamison) Meriwether, the former a native of Albemarle County, Va., who removed to Georgia in 1784 or 1785, and was one of the pioneer Broad River settlers, the latter the sister of Col. Jamison of the Revolutionary Army; granddaughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Thornton) Meriwether, of "Clover Fields," Albemarle County; great-granddaughter of David and Anne (Holmes) Meriwether, of Virginia; and great-great-granddaughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Meriwether, the former an emigrant from Wales, who died in Virginia in 1744; (2.) to Mrs. Sally (Wyatt) Bibb, mother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb, (q. v.). No issue by the second marriage. Children: 1. Martha Jamison, m. Francis Meriwether Gilmer; 2. Thomas Meriwether, planter and slave owner, purchased the waterpower of what was known as the Falls of the Tallapoosa, built a large cotton factory, and named it Tallassee, m. Margaret Micou, and had three children: Thomas, m. a Miss Micou, his cousin; Nicholas, m. Sallie Powell, and Lucy, m. Benjamin Micou, her cousin; 3. Nathaniel, m. Miss Hudson; 4. Mary, m. David M. Taliaferro, (q. v.); 5. Lucy, m. George E. Matthews, grandson of Gov. George Matthews, of Georgia; 6. Frances, m. Isaac Ross. Last residence: Montgomery County.

BARNWELL, CHARLES HEYWARD, dean of the University of Alabama, was born November 15, 1858, in Midway, S. C.; son of Charles and Charlotte (Thomson) Heyward. He was graduated from South Carolina College, Columbia, S. C., with the degree of B. S., 1887, and of M. S., 1888, and from Harvard University, with the degree of M. S., 1893, and of Ph. D., 1898. He was appointed professor of modern languages in the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Alabama in 1889, and held this position until 1892, when he attended Harvard University as Shattuck scholar from 1892 until 1894. Following his attendance at Harvard, he was appointed professor of English in Hollins Institute, Hollins, Va., for three years until, in 1897, he returned to Harvard and resumed his study for a year. He became instructor of English at Western Reserve University, from 1898 until 1899, when he was appointed professor of English at the University of Alabama. He held that position until 1907, when he became dean of the University. He was president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools in 1911. Married: September 6, 1893, at Dalton, Ga., Lucile G. Pou. Residence: University, Tuscaloosa County.

BARNWELL, ROBERT WOODWARD, bishop of the Diocese of Alabama, Protestant Episcopal church, was born December 27, 1849, at Beaufort, S. C.; and died July 24, 1902, at Selma; son of John G. Barnwell of Rome, Ga. He is brother of Rev. Stephen Elliott Barnwell of Louisville, Ky.; Rev. William Haversham Barnwell of Paris, Ky.; and of Rev. Robert Haversham Barnwell, all ministers of the Episcopal church. He was graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., with the degree of B. A., 1872, and spent two years in preparation for the Episcopal ministry at the General Theological Seminary, New York. He was ordained deacon at Middletown, Conn., in 1873. He located at Griffin, Ga., in the spring of the following year and was ordained priest in Atlanta, Ga., by Bishop Beckwith, in 1875. From Griffin, in the fall of 1876, he removed to Demopolis and was rector of Trinity Church at Demopolis from 1876 until 1880, when he moved to Selma. He was rector of St. Paul's Church at Selma from 1890 until 1900. He was consecrated Bishop of Alabama in 1900. Married: at Demopolis, November 6, 1879, Margaret C. Blair. Children: Two sons and two daughters. Last residence: Selma.

BARR, EDWARD N., Presbyterian minister, was born in 1871, in Washington County, Pa., and died in 1898, in Decatur. He was licensed by the Cumberland Presbyterian church; served for a year at Huntsville; received into the Presbytery of North Alabama, in June, 1897; served at Jasper Field; ordained in October, 1897; and installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Decatur, in December, 1897. Last residence: Decatur.

BARR, JOHN GORMAN, lawyer, was born November 22, 1823, at Milton, Caswell County, N. C.; and died May 18, 1858, at Tuscaloosa; son of Thomas and Mary Jane (Gorman) Barr, natives of Scotland who settled at Milton, N. C. He was reared in Raleigh, N. C., where his mother moved after the death of his father in 1826. His mother died when he was twelve years old and to support himself, he immediately became apprenticed in a printing office, and spent his spare moments in study. He attracted the attention of Daniel M. Boyd, a merchant tailor of Tuscaloosa, who sent him to the University of Alabama. He was graduated there, A. M., 1841, with first honors. He studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839 and began the practice of law in Tuscaloosa at that time. He served as a tutor in mathematics at the University of Alabama from 1844 until 1846, then resumed the practice of law. He was captain of the first company of Alabama troops in the Mexican War and was promoted to colonel of his battalion. He was appointed elector for his congressional district in 1856 by the state Democratic convention at Montgomery for the ensuing presidential canvass and his district gave Buchanan and Breckenridge a majority of over six hundred votes over Fillmore and Donelson, whereas a year previous the district had given a two thousand majority to the American party. He was appointed United States consul to Melbourne, Australia, in 1858 and died at sea while on his passage. He edited the "Flag of the Union," the organ of the Democratic party, from 1847 to 1848, and later edited the "Tuscaloosa Observer." He was a regular contributor to several periodicals and papers and wrote under the nom de plume "Omega." He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity and of the Protestant Episcopal church. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BARR, JOHN HANNA, banker, was born July 28, 1857, at Columbia, Maury County, Tenn.; son of Algeron and Rachel (Kilcrease) Barr; the former born at Mt. Pleasant, Maury County, lived at Columbia; grandson of James H. and Jane (Miller) Barr, who lived near Prairie Sea, Tex., and of John and Harriett Kilcrease, who lived near Columbia, Tenn. John H. Barr attended private schools in Columbia; clerk First national bank of Columbia, 1873; held positions, clerical and official with banks in Birmingham, November 1886 to June 1902; since, vice-president First national bank, Birmingham. Unmarried: Residence: Birmingham.

BARR, ROBERT N., president or president protem Alabama State senate, 1869-70.

BARRETT, EDWARD WARE, president of the "Birmingham Age-Herald" Co. and editor, was born September 4, 1866, in Athens, Ga.; son of Thomas Glasscock and Grace Arrington (Ware) Barrett. He received his early schooling in Augusta, Ga.; was graduated from Richmond Academy, and later from a three year course in civil engineering at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. In 1885, he was persuaded by Patrick Walsh, editor of the "Augusta Chronicle," and later United States senator from Georgia, to learn the newspaper business. He set type on the "Chronicle" for a year, was made proof reader, later telegraph editor, and finally, city editor. He became correspondent of the "Charleston News and Courier" at Augusta; was appointed Washington correspondent of the "Atlanta Constitution" in January, 1888; remained in Washington from 1888 to 1897, and during this time was for four years political secretary of the speaker of the House, Hon. Charles F. Crisp of Georgia.

In the early part of 1895 he went to Japan and China to handle the war news of the Chinese-Japanese war for the "Atlanta Constitution" and for the "New York World," and spent four months in the Orient. In 1897 he moved to Birmingham and purchased a controlling interest in the "Birmingham Age-Herald" of which he is editor. He was elected in 1892 a delegate from Georgia to the Democratic national convention in Chicago, and in 1896, a delegate from Alabama to the national convention in Kansas City. Married: December 18, 1895, Janie Southerlin Smith, daughter of Francis L. and Janie (Southerlin) Smith, of Virginia. Residence: Birmingham.

BARRETT, NATHANIEL A., physician, was born January 16, 1861, near Moulton, Lawrence County; son of David B. and Charlotte (Wilson) Barrett, grandson of William Wilson, one of the early settlers of Lawrence County. He gained his early education in the public schools of Lawrence County, then entered the Baptist Male and Female Institute in Moulton, teaching for six months of the year to defray his expenses. He attended the Medical College of Alabama for a year, and was graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1886, with the degree of doctor of medicine. He practiced medicine in Danville, Morgan County, for five years; moved to East Lake in 1891 where he was elected the first mayor and served for a number of years as chairman of the board of education. He moved to Birmingham where he is president of the Birmingham City Commission. He is a member of the American Medical Association, of the Medical Association of Alabama, and of the Medical Society of Morgan County, serving as president of the latter in 1890.

He has served as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Morgan County, and as a member of the committee of Jefferson County. He is a Baptist, a Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: May 5, 1891, Annie P. Troup, daughter of Frank J. Troup of Danville, who was superintendent of education of Morgan County. She is a graduate of Huntsville Female College. Residence: Birmingham.

BARRON, JOHN, lawyer and legislator, was born October 5, 1793, in York District, S. C. and died near Marion, Perry County, December 1878; son of John Barron, and grandson of Archibald Barron, both of York District, and of Scotch ancestry. He was a cousin of Dr. William R. Barron (q. v.). He moved to Alabama in 1818 and lived one year in Jones' Valley. In 1820 he settled in Perry County, eight miles west of Marion. He received his early education in the neighborhood schools of South Carolina, and showed a taste for good reading by the library which he collected. Beginning with limited means he accumulated a fortune. He was a Whig and a member of the Alabama legislature from Perry County for nine sessions, the latter thirties and forties. For more than forty years he was an elder in the Presbyterian church. He took an active part in the early development of his section and State and died in his eighty-sixth year. Married: (1) Louisa, (2) Nancy Caroline, daughters of Elias and Louise Wallace of Perry County. Children: By first wife, 1. T. Jefferson; 2. William, m. Mary Craig; 3. Louisa m. Col. William S. Phillips of Dallas County, member of the Alabama state senate; 4. Emily, m. W. M. Lapsley, Cahaba; by second wife, 5. Elizabeth Virginia, m. William Rowan Barron (q. v.). Last residence: Marion.

HON. RUFUS W. COBB .

BARRON, JOSEPH DAY, editorial writer, legislator and State officer, was born March 19, 1833, in Upson County, Ga., and died June 11, 1910, in Montgomery; son of Elder Hiram and Pheriby (Pool) Barron; the former born in 1800 in James County, Ga., lived near Columbus, was for forty years a minister in the Primitive Baptist church, died in 1872, in Randolph County; grandson of John and Frances (Garrard) Barron, who lived in Warren County, Ga., and of James Pool; great-grandson of William Barron who came from Waterford County, Ireland, in 1766, and settled in Warren County, Ga., was captain in the Revolutionary War, and the British offered a large reward for his head; wounded and captured in Augusta, he was beheaded by Indian allies of the British. "His head was placed upon a pole in the center of the town, where it remained until the place was recaptured by the Americans." Joseph D. Barron attended the common schools of Russell County; at the age of sixteen he began to write for newspapers; in 1856 was editor of the "Louisa Eagle," afterwards "Southern Mercury;" from 1878 to his death, was connected with the editorial department of the "Montgomery Advertiser;" representative from Clay County, in legislature 1874-76; chief clerk, 1878, in office of secretary of State, Maj. W. W. Screws, and held this position for nine years; secretary of State, 1889-94; and sergeant Sixth Alabama cavalry, War of Secession. He was a Jeffersonian Democrat; and a Primitive Baptist. Author: of many poems, essays and short stories; well-informed student of Indian law, traditions and characteristics, and wrote on these subjects, many articles of great value, historically. Married: in 1854, to Rebecca, daughter of Allen and Rebecca (Pearson) Wood, who lived at Forsyth, Ga. Children: 1. Oscar Percy, m. Mrs. Emma Zimmerman; 2. William Yancey, m. Lillian DeVore; 3. Florence Nightingale, m. Fillmore N. Bunn; 4. John Sidney, m. Rosa Lee Fountain; 5. Theodora Blanche; 6. Lizzie Lu, m. William R. Greene; 7. Norah Linda, m. James Long Jackson; 8. Minnie Eldorado, m. Allen S. Rankin; 9. Wallace Screws, m. Margaret McAllister. Last residence: Montgomery.

BARRON, WILLIAM ROWAN, physician, was born March 21, 1836, near Rock Hill, York County, S. C.; son of Archibald Ingram and Mary Adams (Pressley) Barron, the former a native of Ebenezer, York County, S. C., a physician and planter, member of the State convention in 1861 and signed the South Carolina ordinance of secession, sent four sons to the Confederate army; grandson of William and Frances (Stewart) Barron, also of York County, and of William and Anna (Adams) Pressley of Charleston, S. C.; great-grandson of Archibald Barron who immigrated to America prior to the Revolutionary War. The family traces its origin to James Barone, one of the two lay commissioners, who with John Knox attended the first general assembly of the Church of Scotland which met in Edinburgh, December 20, 1560. William Rowan Barron received his elementary education in the neighborhood schools of his native state and later attended Griffin's academy, Society Hill, Darlington, S. C. He graduated in 1859 with the degree of A. B. from Furman university, Greenville, S. C. His professional education was secured at the South Carolina medical college, Charleston, and at the Virginia medical college, Richmond, from which latter institution he graduated in 1863. He entered the Confederate Army as assistant surgeon, Fifth South Carolina regiment and at the close of hostilities was acting surgeon of the third division, Jackson hospital. In 1866 he settled in the western part of Perry County, and practiced his profession and engaged in planting until 1901 when he retired from his active career and removed to Marion. He was a member of the Alabama legislature, 1894-96. He was a Democrat, a Presbyterian, and a Mason. Married: (1) November 27, 1866, to Elizabeth Virginia, daughter of John and Nancy Caroline (Wallace) Barron (q. v.); (2) November 19, 1872, to Mrs. Mary J. (Foster) Moore, widow of Andrew C. Moore of Spartanburg County, S. C., daughter of Dr. Robert and Juliet (Moore) Foster; granddaughter of Charles Hamilton and Mary J. (Barry) Moore of Spartanburg County, niece of Gov. Andrew Barry Moore of Alabama; and great-niece of Gen. Thomas Moore who represented the Spartanburg District in congress for twenty years. Children: by second wife, 1. Julia Moore, m. Joseph Whitt Arbuthnot, Marion; 2. Elizabeth Virginia. Residence: Marion.

BARROW, DAVID S., planter and lumberman, was born in 1828, near Pensacola, Fla.; son of John G. Barrow and wife, who was Mrs. Catsie Ann (Dunn) Gainer, the former a native of Georgia who removed to Pensacola, Fla., early in life, going to Covington County about 1831, locating near old Montezuma, a farmer, mill owner and stock raiser, the latter a native of South Carolina. On account of the conditions at that time he received no educational advantages. He engaged in farming and merchandising and for some years ran a ferry. He was an extensive land owner and followed farming and milling all his life. During the War of Secession he put a substitute in the field, later he entered the service and was commissioned a captain by the state. He recruited a company of seventy men, took them to Mobile as their captain and continued in the recruiting service until the close of the war. He served for six years as county commissioner. He was a Mason and a Missionary Baptist. Married: in 1849, to Sarah K., daughter of Ransom L. and Sarah Dean, both natives of Georgia, who came to Conecuh County at an early date. Children: 1. Zenobia, m. E. McKeever; 2. Sarah, m. S. A. Jones; 3. Jephtha D.; 4. John Julian; 5. Ella G.; 6. Eldora D., and three others died in infancy. Last residence: Covington County.

BARTLETT, HENRY S, lawyer and teacher, was born June 13, 1841, at Petersburg, Va., and died _____; son of Charles L. and Emma (Morton) Bartlett, natives respectively of Connecticut and New York, the former a descendant of one of the "pilgrim fathers," the latter of English ancestry. He received his early education in the local schools of his native city and at the age of fifteen entered Hampden-Sidney college, Prince Edward County, Va., from which he graduated, 1859. He located in Dayton, Marengo County, the same year, and began the study of law in the office of Judge William C. Clark, teaching school at the same time and place. He enlisted in the Confederate Army as a private in Co. D, 11th Alabama infantry regiment, was promoted 1st lieutenant, Co. B, Petersburg battalion, 1863, and served until the close of hostilities. He returned to Dayton, and in 1866 began the practice of law, which profession he relinquished in 1875 on account of an accident that impaired his health. He resumed teaching in 1876 in the Park high school, Tuskegee, and held that position five years; was made principal of the public school at Scottsville, but resigned to become principal of the high school at Columbus, Ga. In 1885, he accepted the task of organizing the high school of Montgomery and was chosen principal. The year following, he was elected superintendent of the public school system of that city. He was a Presbyterian. Married: July 16, 1867, in Marengo County, to Julia, daughter of Col. John H. Prince, a large planter of that county. Children: 1. Charles H., deceased, m. Bessie Hill, of Montgomery, one child; 2. Belle M., m. A. L. Bennett, of Birmingham, one child; 3. Henry T., m. May Rice, of Montgomery, one child; 4. Oliver P., m. May McQueen, of New York City; 5. Robert L., unmarried, Richmond, Va.; 6. John Edmund, m. Carrie Washburn, of Montgomery, two children; 7. William Vann, m. Gladdis Allison, of Birmingham, one child. Last residence: Montgomery.

BARTLETT, WILLIAM HENRY, farmer and merchant, was born August 1, 1864, at Aurora, Etowah County; son of George Washington and Rebecca (Wesley) Bartlett, the former a native of Cowpens, Ga., who moved to Aurora in 1856, and lived there until his death in 1893, serving through the War of Secession as a member of Co. C, Forty-eighth Alabama regiment; grandson of Blake Bartlett, of Cowpens, Ga. He attended the common schools at Aurora; became a merchant at Boaz, 1885-1894; engaged in farming until 1905; in the buying of cotton until 1911; and since then has been occupied in the mercantile business. He was postmaster of Boaz, 1890-1893; justice of the peace, 1896-1900; was elected to the State legislature from Marshall County in 1900; represented that county in the constitutional convention of 1901; and was mayor of the town of Boaz, 1908-1912. He is a Republican, a Methodist Episcopalian, a Mason and an Odd Fellow. Married: June 17, 1884, in Aurora, to Susan E. Fowler, daughter of Jackson S. and D. Fowler, who lived at Wedowee until 1880, when they moved to Aurora, and later moved to Boaz. Children: 1. Willie Neoma, m. M. O. Byers, Boaz; 2. John Robert, m. Gertrude McGowan, Boaz; 3. Bulah, m. John Patterson who died February 28, 1912. Residence: Boaz.

BARTLEY, ROBERT, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Morgan County; private S. C. Continental Line; enrolled on July 2, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $36.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $109.98.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BARTON, JOHN KEYES, pioneer, was born March 12, 1812, Wilkes County, Ga.; and died February 20, 1886, at Deatsville; son of Thomas and Sarah (Keyes) Barton, the former a native of Fairfax County, Va., who moved to Morgan County, Ga., in 1794, came to Alabama territory in 1817, was the first white settler to locate north of Tallapoosa River, cleared the first plantation and built the first grist mill in that locality; grandson of David Barton who commanded a company in the Continental Army, was colonel of Virginia troops, and served with Washington at Valley Forge, and of John and Susan Keyes who lived first at Fairfax Court House, Va., and later settled at Madisonville; great-grandson of David Barton who went with Daniel Boone to Kentucky and was killed in Harrodsburg in 1767 by Indians, and whose five sons served in the Revolutionary War. The Barton family is descended from David Barton, who, with his brother Abraham, came to America from England in 1672. Abraham settled first in Maryland, and subsequently in New England. David settled on the James River, Virginia, and his descendants continued to live in northern Virginia. The ancestors of the Keyes family were early settlers of Virginia of Revolutionary stock.

John Keyes Barton was meagerly educated in the old Augusta field school, on the Tallapoosa River, Montgomery County. He moved to Tuckabatchiee Creek Indian Town and took up farming there. He was a farmer all his life. He was a Democrat and a deacon in the Baptist church. Married: Elizabeth Chappell Sledge, daughter of Chappell and Jane (Harris) Sledge, who lived near Wetumpka; granddaughter of Absolom and Clara (Jeter) Harris; great-granddaughter of Henry Harris, who moved to Georgia soon after the Revolution and settled in Troup County; great-great-granddaughter of Britan Harris; great-great-great-granddaughter of Henry Harris; great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Henry Harris who came to America in 1692 and located on the James River in Virginia. She died in March, 1885. Children: 1. Sarah Emma, 2. Col. John Keyes (q. v.), m. Clara Jane Trimble. Last residence: Deatsville.

BARTON, JOHN KEYES, Jr., lawyer, was born September 3, 1847, at Tallassee; son of John Keyes and Elizabeth Chappell (Sledge) Barton (q. v.); grandson of Thomas and Sarah (Keyes) Barton, and of Chappell and Jane (Harris) Sledge; great grandson of David Barton, of John and Susan Keyes, and of Absolom and Clara (Jeter) Harris; great-great-grandson of David Barton, whose ancestor, David Barton, came from England in 1672 and settled on the James River in Virginia, and of Henry Harris, whose ancestor, Henry Harris, settled on the same river in 1692.

He was prepared in the old field schools of Tallassee, attended Howard College at Marion, and was graduated from the University of Alabama with the degree of A. B., 1864. His diploma was conferred by special act of the legislature in 1867 to all who were graduated during the war. He read law with Judge David Clopton; was admitted to the bar, January 7, 1867; appointed assistant clerk of the legislature the same year; practiced law with Stone, Clopton & Clanton, later with Gen. James Holtzclaw in Montgomery until 1883 when he retired from practice. He became principal of Deatsville Academy, 1884-1886; was president of the Georgia & Alabama Mining Company, 1881-1891; moved to Cedartown, Ga., in 1886, and resumed practice for two years. He organized the Commercial Bank of Cedartown, the Cedartown Land & Improvement Company, and established five cotton mills there.

He was captain of Co. E, Sixty-third Alabama volunteers under the command of Col. J. A. Law; was assistant adjutant general on the staff of Maj.-Gen. D. H. Maury, commander of the Army of the Gulf, from December, 1864, to March, 1865, when he joined his command at Spanish Fort, near Mobile. He was secretary of the Democratic executive committee when the Conservative party was first organized after the war, and was a member of every Democratic convention held in the state until he moved to Georgia. He was a delegate to the national Democratic convention in 1892. He was chairman of the school board of Polk County for many years. He is a Baptist. Married: April 29, 1868, Clara Jane Trimble, daughter of James and Clara (Bigelow) Trimble, of Wetumpka; granddaughter of Moses Trimble and of Aaron Bigelow; great-granddaughter of William Trimble of Georgia. Her ancestors were early settlers in Virginia. Children: 1. Libbie, m. Charles Niles, Vonore, Tenn.; 2. Clara, d. when twenty years old; 3. Mary, m. Horace W. Howard, of Cartersville, Ga., two children; 4. Willie Trimble, m. Arch C. Gibson, Birmingham, one child; 5. Charlotte Bigelow, m. Beverly P. Head, Tuscaloosa, two children; 6. Charles Conway, Memphis, Tenn. Residence: Birmingham.

BARTON, SETH, lawyer, was born in Virginia, and died in 1850 in Washington City. He received his early education in Virginia and read law in that state. He came to Tuscaloosa in 1821; began to practice law; was elected to the legislature in 1825 by the casting vote of the sheriff as there was an equal number of votes for each candidate, one of which was Hon. H. W. Collier. In 1829, he was candidate for the twenty-first congress from Tuscaloosa district, but was defeated by Robert E. B. Baylor (q. v.) of Tuscaloosa. He moved to New Orleans, La., in 1830 and practiced law there. He was appointed minister to Venezuela under President Polk. Last residence: Washington City.

BARTON, W. S., editor and author. Author: "A new system of English grammar," see "Alabama Educational Journal," April, 1857, p. 26; "Practical exercises in English composition," see the same source; "Easy lessons in English grammar for young beginners," referred to in the "Southern Teacher," November, 1859. Editor: "The Southern Teacher," 1859-61.

BARTON, WILLIAM MARION, member of the legislature, was born August 17, 1856, at Gainesville, Hall County, Ga., son of Jonathan and Hannah (Blackstock) Barton, the former lived in Georgia until 1858 when he removed to Winston County, served one year in 1st Alabama regiment, Federal Army; grandson of Willis and Peggie (Martin) Barton and of Daniel and Patsy Blackstock. He was educated in the common schools of Winston County. He was a member of the 1907 legislature from Winston County. He is a Republican; a member of the Christian church; an Odd Fellow; and a Mason. Married: at Haley, Marion County, to Martha J., daughter of William and Martha (Ramsey) Lambert. Residence: Lynn.

BARTRAM, WILLIAM, naturalist, was born February 9, 1739, at Kingsessing, now part of Philadelphia, Pa., and died July 22, 1823, at that place; son of John Bartram, founder of the first botanical gardens in the United States, which were located on his estate at Kingsessing, Pa.; grandson of John Bartram, who was killed by Indians in North Carolina; great-grandson of Richard Bartram who accompanied William Penn to America in 1682. William Bartram was bred in an atmosphere of natural science. He entered the mercantile business abandoning this work upon his removal to the St. John River, Florida, with his father, where he raised indigo. Returning to his father's home, 1771, he took up the study of botany and natural history, and two years later was engaged by Dr. Fothergill to visit a few of the Southern States in order to collect their natural products. His first and only stay in Alabama lasted from July 5, 1777, to January 5, 1778, at which time he traveled from Uchee Town, in what is now Russell County, through the lower and upper Creek nations thence to Mobile and some towns in the present Mississippi, returning over the same route. His observations on the flora and fauna of the region through which he traveled mark the starting point of natural history science in the south. In 1778 he returned to Philadelphia where he spent the remaining days of his life. He was a member of the Society of Friends and of the American philosophical society. Author: "Anecdotes of a crow;" "Description of Certhia;" "Memoirs of John Bartram;" "Observations on the Creek and Cherokee Indians;" and a list of American birds. He was unmarried. Last residence: Philadelphia.

BASANIER, French explorer and author. He wrote an account of the three voyages of Jean Ribault, first published in 1586.

BASHINSKY, ELI HARDES, cotton factor, was born March 8, 1857, at Powidz, Province of Posen, Germany; son of Ignace and Henriette (Bashinsky) Bashinsky, the former born in 1812 at Orchow, in Posen. On their retreat through Russia the French troops passed through the village (Orchow) and so great was the dread of them that the infant was hidden, and at the close of a Polish uprising, in 1863, he, though always loyal to the Prussian government, would not, when he had the opportunity, betray Polish friends in whose territory he previously had large interests in business; wife was his cousin, lived until 1879 at Powidz, in this year came to Troy; grandson of Elias and Amalia Bashinsky, who lived at Orchow, and of Eliezer and Samantha Bashinsky, who lived at Zadowa, Posen. E. H. Bashinsky received early education until 1869 in the public school at Powidz, and in a private institute at Pudenzitz, Germany. Two years afterwards he went to Berlin, in 1875 went to Koenigsberg, after one year returned to Berlin, continued therein until 1875. Here and in Koenigsberg he studied English, German, French and Italian, the literatures of these languages, and the peoples to whom they belong. He is yet devoted to these studies and to writings of German philosophers. In 1879 he came to America. After spending two years in Montgomery, he went to Troy, where he remained for some time engaged in the cotton business. He is at present president of the Bashinsky cotton company with headquarters in Birmingham. Is a Democrat, a Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. Author "A Sketch of Pike County, Ala." Unmarried. Address: Birmingham.

BASS, HARTWELL, planter, was born November 10, 1797, on his father's plantation in Greenville County, Va., and died on his plantation, ten miles west of Ft. Mitchell, on Old Federal Road, in Russell County, March 11, 1843; son of Sterling and Elizabeth (Dupree) Bass, sr., the former, an only son, originally from England to Greenville County, Va., prior to the American Revolution and the latter of South Carolina. Sterling Bass after his first wife's death, married a Miss Gregory and Mrs. Sarah Toney Oates, of Montgomery, wife of former Gov. William C. Oates, is a granddaughter of this union. Hartwell Bass' grandparents on the maternal side were Daniel and Elizabeth Dupree, French Huguenots who came about 1700 to South Carolina. Daniel Dupree, jr., a son, married Fannie Calhoun of the famous family of that name in that state. The parents of Hartwell Bass were well educated for that day, and it was from them that most of his education was secured. He was a planter, mill man and large slave holder. He was a Whig and a Methodist. Married: April 21, 1825, in Hancock County, Ga., to Elizabeth, daughter of Turner and Rebecca (Sledge) Mooreland, formerly of Dinwiddie County, Va., who had lately come to Georgia, and who about 1830, moved to Russell County. Children: 1. Elizabeth Dupree, born, 1828, m. Patrick Henry Perry, five children, died 1889; 2. Joseph Allen, born 1831, died 1841; 3. Demetrius Mooreland, born, 1834, died from wound received while member of Texas cavalry, C. S. Army, 1862; 4. Rebecca Ann Sledge, born 1836, died, 1843; 5. Mary Rivers, born 1839, died 1843; 6. Martha Turner, born 1841, m. first Stephen Clements Greene, one child, second Peter Alexander Greene, no children, died in 1902. Last residence: Russell County.

BASS, HERSCHEL WINSTON, physician, graduate of the Alabama polytechnic institute, B. S. degree, 1901. M. S., 1902; M. D., Johns Hopkins institute, 1906, and located in St. Clair County. Later he was a graduate student at the University of Berlin and of Munich. Residence: Gadsden.

BASS, JOHN B., physician, was born January 7, 1845, in Jefferson County; son of Andrew Bass, who lived on a farm near Birmingham until his death in 1854; grandson of Burrell Bass, of English descent, who served with his father in the Revolutionary War, emigrated from North Carolina to Alabama in 1813, and settled near what is now the city of Birmingham, when Alabama was yet a territory. His maternal grandparents were of Irish lineage and came from South Carolina to Tennessee, then to Alabama. He obtained his early schooling at Ruhama; studied medicine at the University of Virginia, where he was graduated in medical jurisprudence in 1869; was granted a diploma of M. D. at Washington University, Baltimore, Md., in 1870; has practiced medicine in Ashville since 1870. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he enlisted in the C. S. Army in Co. B. second engineer corps, and operated with Gen. Leonidas Polk, and later in the Army of the Tennessee. He has held every official position in the Saint Clair County Medical Society. Married: February, 1875, Annie E. Gunn, of Georgia. Children: 1. Herschel Winston, b. June 25, 1881; was graduated from Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., B. S., 1901, M. S., 1902. Residence: Ashville.

BASS, J. LOREANE, physician, was born February 4, 1864, in Marion County, S. C.; son of Dr. Thomas R. and Mary R. (Carter) Bass, the former a native and life long resident of Marion County, S. C., who practiced his profession in this county for fifty years, a graduate of the University of South Carolina, Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia, and the Medical college of South Carolina, at Charleston, and who represented his county in the state legislature for two terms; grandson of Joseph Bass, a native of England who emigrated to America, locating in South Carolina and there married. Dr. Bass was educated in the schools of his native county; graduated in 1883 from the University of South Carolina; attended the South Carolina medical college for one year; received the degree of M. D. from the Medical college of Louisville, Ky., in 1887; took post graduate courses at the Louisville medical college and Bellevue hospital, New York City. He began the practice of his profession with his father, removing at the end of a year to Brewton where he has since remained. Married; in June, 1887, to Emma Lucas, of Charleston, S. C. Residence: Brewton.

BASSETT, JOHN YOUNG, physician in America and France, was born June 12, 1805, at Baltimore, Md., and died at Huntsville, November 2, 1851, son of Dr. Isaac and Nancy (Davidson) Bassett, the former born March 8, 1763, in the State of Delaware, was a physician, served as ensign in company from Delaware, in American Revolution; ancestor, Richard Bassett, was member of constitutional convention, 1787, Federal senator from Delaware, 1789-93, governor of Delaware 1798-1801, died in 1815; mother was first cousin to Robert Fulton; her parents lived in Baltimore. John Y. Bassett was a graduate of Washington medical college; settled in Huntsville; in 1836 went to Paris, was attached to Clinic of Velpeau at La Charite, appointed externe, July, 1836. He was a Mason. Author: contributed to Fenners' Southern medical reports, vols. 1 and 2, 1849-51, articles on "Topography, Climate and Diseases of Madison County, Ala." and in "Condemnation of Doubtful Remedies." Married: April 21, 1831, at Huntsville, to Isaphoena Thompson, born in 1816, daughter of Dr. Asa and Polly (Watkins) Thompson, who lived in Elbert County, Ga., and Huntsville, the former died in 1832, granddaughter of James and Jane (Thompson) Watkins of Elbert County, Ga. Children: 1. Dr. Henry Willis, m. Carrie Neal, died in 1882; 2. Watkins Thompson, killed at Shiloh, April 6, 1862; 3. Alice Lee, m. D. B. Young, died in 1876; 4. Laura; 5. Lenore; 6. Bettina, died in 1844; 7. John Young, died in War of Secession; 8. William Davidson, died in 1897. Last residence: Huntsville.

BATE, HENRY C., major, 1st, also called 12th Confederate cavalry regiment, C. S. Army. A Tennessean. A history of the regiment may be seen as written by him in Lindsley's military annals of Tennessee.

BATEMAN, R. J., Missionary Baptist minister living in Troy in 1913.

BATES, CALEB, Methodist minister, was born February 25, 1862, in Barbour County; son of James and Sarah Jane (Cox) Bates, the former a native of Lumpkin, Stewart County, Ga., who served in the C. S. Army; grandson of Allen and Tillie Bates, the former an Englishman, who came to America and settled in South Carolina, and of Caleb and Eliza Cox, the former an Irishman who settled in Georgia. He attended school for about three years at Postoak, Bullock County, but gained most of his early schooling through his own efforts. He was a student at Southern university at Greensboro, 1888-1890, and was ordained to the ministry, joining the Alabama Conference in December, 1890. He was a pastor for some time at Sweet Water, and is now stationed at Autaugaville. He is a Mason and a Knight of Pythias. Married: December 13, 1893, at Postoak, Bullock County, to Alice Alie Casby, daughter of Henry and Sallie Casby, of Birmingham. Children: 1. Joel Leanty; 2. Emily Louise, d. October 30, 1910; 3. Robert Lomax; 4. Alice Lorena; 5. Caleb Lamar; 6. Spain Lesay. Residence: Autaugaville.

BATES, FRANCIS ASBURY, physician, was born February 14, 1819, at Springfield, Hampden County, Mass., and died April 29, 1889, at Marion; son of Elizur and Rachel (Owen) Bates, the former lived at Springfield until his death in 1860, was employed by the Federal government as inspector of arsenals; grandson of David and Elizabeth (Burt) Bates, who came from Wales, and of Abigail and Rachel (Brooks) Owen, who lived in Vermont, the latter came from England. Francis A. Bates attended schools in Springfield, and received his preparation for college at Wilbraham academy, Conn.; attended Wesleyan university, graduating in 1838; in 1841 received degree of M. D. from Louisiana medical college, New Orleans; practiced during two years in Charity hospital there; practiced near present Massillon, Dallas County; in 1850, moved to Marion; resided nearly forty years there; filled different positions in governments of city and county; in the War of Secession was surgeon in hospitals at Corinth and Okolona, Miss., and Richmond, Va. He was a Whig, then a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and a Mason. Married: May 28, 1850, near Marion, to Julia Rachel, daughter of Harwood and Rachel M. Jones, who lived at Marion; the former was from Virginia, son of Signal Jones, who came from England, and whose wife was Rachel Maria Crenshaw from Wales. Children: five sons and one daughter; Francis H., eldest son, m. December, 1875, Adie L. Phillips of Selma, lives at Bates Farm, Perry County, the other sons died in early childhood; daughter, Lula, m. April, 1890, C. D. Williams, deceased, of Bolton, Miss.; lives in Jackson, Miss. Last residence: Marion.

BATES, FRANCIS HARWOOD, planter, was born November 9, 1851, in Marion; and died February 26, 1917, at San Antonio, Tex. He received his elementary education in the public schools of Marion and was graduated from the University of Mississippi in June, 1872. Soon after his graduation he moved to Jackson County, Miss., but returned to Alabama in the fall of 1895. He engaged in farming and the raising of blooded stock near Hamburg, and continued to reside in that place until shortly before his death, when failing health prompted him to journey to San Antonio, Tex., where he died.

He was initiated into the Masonic order December 15, 1891, passed January 14, 1892, and raised February 16, 1892, in Temple Lodge, No. 425, in Marion, and was elected master of that lodge in 1900. He was exalted June 3, 1896, in Marion Chapter, No. 12, and was high priest of that chapter in 1902, 1903 and 1904. He was received and greeted as a royal and select master in Tuscaloosa Council, No. 4, on August 7, 1907. He received the Order of Red Cross, April 5, 1904, and the Orders of the Temple and Malta, April 29, 1904. He was appointed grand master of the second veil of the most excellent Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Alabama in 1898 and 1899, grand royal arch captain in 1900 and 1901, was elected grand scribe in 1902 and 1903, deputy grand high priest in 1904, and grand high priest in 1905. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. Married: December, 1875, Addie L. Phillips, of Dallas County. Last residence: San Antonio, Tex.

BATES, JOSEPH, business man, for a number of years a resident of Alabama, was major-general of the Sixth division of Alabama militia; served as the representative from Mobile in the legislature 1829, 1836, 1837 and 1840, and was defeated for the senate in the district composed of Mobile, Baldwin and Washington counties. Though not a lawyer by profession, he was a practiced speaker, and was often the principal figure in the political discussions of the sessions. He moved to Texas and was appointed United States marshal under the administration of Mr. Fillmore. Last residence: Texas.

BATES, NEWTON WHITMARSH, teacher and Congregational minister, a resident of Alabama, 1886-92, was born at Cummington, Hampshire County, Mass., December 25, 1859; son of Isaac and Florintha (Whitmarsh) Bates, both of Massachusetts, of Revolutionary stock. He received his early education in the public schools at Cleveland, O.; received the degrees of A. B. 1882, and A. M., 1885, from Oberlin college, Oberlin, O., and the B. D. degree from the Theological seminary, at the same place, in 1894. He was superintendent of schools, at Mt. Sterling, O., 1882-85, and principal at Madison, O., 1885-6; came to Alabama and was principal of Case institute, Shelby iron works, near Columbiana, 1886-7; professor of languages and literature, Florence State normal college, 1887-92; pastor of Congregational church, West Bloomfield, N. Y., 1894-1908; and pastor of the First Congregational church, Austinburg, O., 1908 —. Author: "History and civil government of Alabama," 1892; "Whitmarsh genealogy;" and "Bates genealogy." Married: August 17, 1887, at Mount Vernon, O., to Gertrude, daughter of Bascom and Emaline (Norton) Cassell, of that place; and has three children. Residence: Austinburg, O.

BATRE, MRS. HORTENSE, president, Alabama Colonial Dames. Residence: Mobile.

BATTE, JUNIUS MARCUS, minister and teacher, was born near Sardes, Panola County, Miss.; son of Richard Baugh, and Mollie Louise (Fitzgerald) Batte, of Jackson, Miss., the former a native of Richmond, Va., and a veteran of the C. S. Army; grandson of Col. Henry and Anne (Boling) Batte who lived in Prince George County, Va., before moving to Hanover County, Va., and of Benjamin and Sarah (Ward) Fitzgerald of Nottaway County, Va. The Batte family originally came from Yorkshire, England, where their ancestors built and owned the Mansell Castle, occupied by the English branch of the family at present. The Fitzgeralds are of Scotch-Irish descent and came from the north of Ireland. The two families are connected with the Epps, Meade, Eggleston, Boling, Randolph, Page and Lee families. "Light Horse Harry" Lee is an ancestor.

Junius Marcus Batte was educated in private schools at Jackson, Miss., under Cornelia Whiting and Maj. W. H. Babb; at French Camp Academy; at the University of Clarksville; and was graduated from the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., 1895. He became a minister in the Presbyterian church; was a chaplain, U. S. C. V., Mississippi, and assistant chaplain, U. S. C. V., Southern States. He became president of Marion Seminary in 1911. He has written several tracts on education. He is a Democrat, a Mason, and a member of the Woodmen of the World.

Married: (2) December 24, 1902, Katherine Alice Shipman, daughter of Alexander Monroe and Willie Anna (Smith) Shipman, a descendant of the Washington, Hogue, Tyler, Mickleborough and Edwards families of Virginia, and of Capt. W. M. Smith of Virginia. She is presiding teacher at Marion Seminary. Children, by first marriage; 1. Lee-Roy Junius, m. Bessie Hall of Brooksville, Miss.; 2. Benjamin Leslie Howard, Brooksville, Miss.; 3. Idyllette Evelyn, Marion; 4. Mary Ruth, Marion; 5. Marguerite Elizabeth, Marion; 6. Fleming Hobson, Marion. Residence: Marion.

BATTLE, ALFRED, planter was born 1801, near Nashville, Nash County, N. C., and died January 4, 1877, near Carthage; son of Capt. William and Mary Ann (Williams) Battle, the former a native of Nansemond County, Va., and a soldier in the Revolutionary War; grandson of William and Mary (Capell) Battle who lived on a plantation in Halifax County, N. C., and of Maj. John and Frances (Bustain) Williams of Halifax County, N. C., the former a commissary officer in the Revolutionary War; great-grandson of Joseph and Martha (Drake) Williams; great-great-grandson of Richard Drake, of Isle of Wight County, Va. He was educated in the country schools of Nash County, N. C.; moved to Alabama and settled at Tuscaloosa where he became owner of extensive plantations. He was influential in securing the first railroad through Tuscaloosa. He moved to his plantation in Hale County, in 1872 and resided there until his death. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

Married: January 10, 1822, Millicent Bealle of Georgia, who died June 23, 1872 in Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. William Augustus, b. 1823 in Tuscaloosa, d. 1909, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clay, in Huntsville, m. Susanna Clay Withers of Huntsville, a niece of Gov. C. Clay, had one son, Alfred, m. Jennie Bealle and had three children; 2. Willie, b. July 16, 1853, d. December 5, 1908, in Birmingham, m. Mattie Battle, a distant cousin, had one child, Kate Harrison; 3. Millicent Bealle, b. 1854, d. July 30, 1884; 4. Katie Withers, d. July 23, 1884; 5. Susanna Clay, m. June 26, 1906, William

GENERAL JESSE W. GARTH

Lewis Clay of Huntsville, who d. September 5, 1911, had one child, William Lewis. Last residence: Hale County.

BATTLE, ARCHIBALD JOHN, educator and Baptist minister, was born September 10, 1826, at Powelton, Hancock County, Ga., and died September 30, 1907, at Macon, Ga.; son of Dr. Cullen and Jane Andrews (Lamon) Battle, natives of North Carolina, who later resided in Powelton, Ga., and Eufaula and Tuskegee, one of the founders of Mercer university and widely known for his wealth and benefactions. Archibald John Battle received a sound preparatory education and entered the University of Alabama where he graduated in 1846. He at once accepted the position of principal of the Eufaula academy. He was tutor of ancient languages at the University of Alabama, 1847-52, and held a chair in the East Alabama female college, 1852-55. He entered the Baptist ministry in 1853 in charge of the Tuskegee Baptist church and in 1855 assumed the pastorate of the Tuscaloosa Baptist church. In 1856, he returned to educational work as professor of Greek at the University of Alabama. He founded the Alabama central female college, Tuscaloosa, of which he was president in 1860. At the close of the War of Secession, he became president of Judson female institute, Marion, which he re-established, and held that position from 1865 to 1871. The presidency of Mercer university, Macon, Ga., was then offered him and he served in that post from 1871 to 1889. This service was followed by his presidency of the Shorter college, Rome, Ga., and the presidency of Anniston female college, Anniston, which latter work closed his useful career. The honorary degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Howard college, Columbian college, Washington, D. C., and the University of Georgia, all in 1872. The following year, the Mississippi college conferred the LL. D. degree upon him. Author: "The human will;" "Lectures on memory;" "Imagination;" "Man the image of God;" "The Sun;" "The Sabbath of creation." He was a Democrat and a Mason. Married: December 7, 1846, at Tuscaloosa, to Mary, daughter of Dr. James and Mary (Williams) Guild of that place. Children: 1. Mary, m. T. S. Lowry; 2. Katie; 3. Virginia Andrews; 4. Cullen Guild, m. Annie M. Maitland of Pennsylvania; 5. Archibald John, jr., m. Mary Currie Donnan, Richmond, Va. Last residence: Macon.

BATTLE, CULLEN ANDREWS, lawyer and major-general, C. S. Army, was born June 1, 1829, in Powelton, Ga., died in 1905, in Greensboro, N. C., and is buried in Petersburg, Va.; son of Dr. Cullen and Jane A. (Lamon) Battle, natives of North Carolina, who removed to Irwinton, now Eufaula, in 1836. He attended the University of Alabama, 1849-50; read law in the office of Gov. John G. Shorter; was admitted to the practice in 1852, and practiced law in Tuskegee for the following ten years. He was a presidential elector in 1856, canvassing the State for Buchanan, and in 1860 he was on the electoral ticket of Breckenridge and Lane, speaking throughout the State and visiting Charleston, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, in company with William L. Yancey. In 1861, he raised and organized the Tuskegee light infantry, which company became part of the 3rd Alabama infantry regiment, of which Tennant Lomax became colonel and Cullen A. Battle, lieutenant-colonel. At the battle of Seven Pines, Colonel Lomax fell and Lt.-Col. Battle took command. This regiment was under fire at Drewry's Bluff, and at the seven days' fight around Richmond, he was promoted to the colonelcy. He received a slight wound at Boonsboro and was injured seriously at Fredericksburg by his horse falling on him. In the battle of Chancellorsville he served on the staff of General Rodes. At Gettysburg, Colonel Battle attached his regiment to General Ramseur's command, was promoted brigadier-general on the field and assigned to command of Rodes' brigade, which brigade was the first to encounter General Grant in the Wilderness. He served conspicuously at Spottsylvania and Winchester, and at the battle of Cedar Creek, he received a severe wound in the knee necessitating his withdrawal from active duty. He was rewarded however, with a commission of major-general, the commission bearing the date of his wound, October 19, 1864. He returned to Alabama after the war and resumed the practice of law. In 1870 he was elected to congress by his party, but the majority in congress would not permit him to take his seat, and soon after disfranchised him. Married: in 1851, to Georgia F. Williams, of LaGrange, Ga. Children: 1. Henry W. (q. v.); 2. Jennie L. Last residence: Greensboro, N. C.

BATTLE, HENRY WILSON, Baptist minister, was born July 19, 1857; son of Gen. Cullen A. and Georgia (Williams) Battle (q. v.). He was educated at Pinckard's academy and Park's high school, Tuskegee, and Mercer university, Macon, Ga. He was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty by a special act of the Alabama legislature and practiced law at Eufaula for three years. In 1880 he graduated from the Southern Baptist theological seminary, and Wake Forest college, N. C., conferred upon him the degree of D. D. He was ordained into the Baptist ministry, in 1880; has served churches in Mississippi, North Carolina, and Virginia; since 1907, serving the High street church, Charlottesville, Va. He has delivered many special addresses, sermons, etc., and has conducted evangelistic meetings with great success at numerous places. He is chaplain-in-chief, Sons of Confederate veterans. Author: of many sermons and religious articles. Married: June 11, 1889, to Margaret, daughter of Rev. J. L. Stewart, of Clinton, N. C. Residence: Charlottesville, Va.

BATTLE, HERBERT BEMERTON, chemist, was born May 29, 1862, at Chapel Hill, N. C.; son of Kemp Plummer and Martha Ann (Battle) Battle, the former president of University of North Carolina 1875-1890; grandson of Judge William Horn and Lucy Martin (Plummer) Battle, and of James Smith and Sally (Westray) Battle; great-grandson of Joel Battle and of Jacob and Penelope (Langley) Edwards Battle, both of Edgecombe County, N. C. He was educated in the primary schools of Raleigh, at Prof. J. M. Lovejoy's and the Raleigh high school, graduated at the University of North Carolina, B. S. 1881, and Ph. D., 1887. He was assistant chemist in the North Carolina agricultural experiment station, 1881-1887; state chemist and director of the station, 1887-1897; chemist North Carolina State board of health, chemist North Carolina geological survey; professor of chemistry Leonard Medical school, 1886-1897; organized the Southern chemical company, Winston, N. C. 1897, and president until 1901; associated with Savannah district, Southern cotton oil company, 1902-1903, and with the Montgomery district of the same company, 1903-1906; president of the Battle laboratory corporation, analytical and consulting chemists, Montgomery, since 1906. Author: numerous papers in the publications of the North Carolina agricultural experiment station; co-author of Battle and Dancy's "Chemical conversion table," 1885, and of Battle and Gascoyne's "Chemical conversion tables," 1909, has contributed to various chemical journals; and has several papers in the proceedings of the Alabama anthropological society. He is a member of the American chemical society; fellow of the American association for the advancement of sciences; honorary member of American official agricultural chemists; charter member North Carolina society of the Sons of the Revolution, one of the original members of the Alabama anthropological society and a member of the Montgomery Rotary club. He is a Democrat; and an Episcopalian. Married: November 26, 1885, at Morganton, N. C., to Alice Matilda, daughter of Major James W. and Louise (Irwin) Wilson, the former president of the Western North Carolina railroad and chairman North Carolina railroad commission. Children, 1. Nell, m. John Manning Booker, of Baltimore, assistant professor of English, University of North Carolina. 2. Wilson, member of the American expeditionary forces in France. Residence: Montgomery.

BATTLE, WILLIAM AUGUSTUS, planter. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BATTLES, NOEL, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 80, and a resident of St. Clair County; private Virginia Continental Line and Militia; enrolled on September 29, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in St. Clair County, June 1, 1840, with William Battles; aged 100.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BAXLEY, JAMES ANGUS, teacher, was born March 9, 1871, at Dothan, Henry, now Houston, County; son of James and Martha Jane (Newton) Baxley, who lived in what is now Houston County for more than sixty-five years, the former, a native of White Pond, Barbour County, fought in the War of Secession; grandson of

John and Harriet (Ayres) Baxley, who came from near Wilmington, N. C., and settled in Geneva County, and of Constantine and Elizabeth (Sykes) Newton, who also came from near Wilmington, N. C., to Alabama, and settled in Henry County, the former who served as a private in the Mexican War. His early schooling was obtained in and around Dothan, from John Richardson, W. S. Neal, and A. M. Scott; and he was graduated from Southern University, Greensboro, A. M., 1898. He attended Harvard University during the summer of 1900. Mr. Baxley began to teach school in 1899, in Greensboro, and has continued in that profession, now occupying the position of principal of a grade school in that city. He is a Democrat; a Methodist, serving as steward in the church; a Knight of Pythias; and a member of Phi Delta Theta college fraternity. Married: November 6, 1900, in Greensboro, Loula Virginia Hosmer, daughter of Rev. S. M. and Frances Luvenia (Parsons) Hosmer, D. D., (q. v.), who lived in Jefferson and Tuscaloosa Counties; granddaughter of Silas and Esther Anne (Cowley) Hosmer, and of Louis and Susan (Rogers) Parsons, both grandfathers serving in the War of Secession. Her paternal grandparents came from Massachusetts. Children: 1. Frances Virginia. Residence: Greensboro.

BAXTER, G. L., major, Baxter's Confederate cavalry battalion; merged into Jeffrey Forrest's Alabama cavalry.

BAXTER, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, age not disclosed; a resident of Dallas County; private Irwin's Regiment; date of enrollment not stated; payment to date from September 4, 1818; annual allowance, $36.80; sums received to date of publication of list, $460 transferred from N. C. March 4, 1821. Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAYLES, OSCAR OTTIMUS, lawyer and legislator, was born September 17, 1875, at River Ridge, Monroe County, and died at Monroeville; son of Travis Polk and Lonella (Mellard) Bayles, the former a native of that county and a prosperous farmer; grandson of Jeremiah and Clarisca (Wiggins) Bayles, and of James and Margaret L. (Fisher) Mellard, who lived at Gullett's Bluff, Wilcox County. The Bayles family came from Edgefield District, S. C., to Alabama about 1819. He was educated in the public schools of Monroe County, and took a business course at the Southern normal university, Huntington, Tenn., graduated in 1894; received LL. B. from the law department of the same institution in 1896. He began his practice of law March 1, 1897, at Monroeville, and his practice continued at this place. He was a member of the legislature of 1898-99; a member of the State senate in 1907 from the twenty-first district; and deputy solicitor of Monroe County 1898. He was a Democrat; a Missionary Baptist; and a Mason. Married: February 23, 1896, at River Ridge, to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Allen and Rebecca (Norwood) Wiggins. Children: 1.

Otis Osceola; 2. Escar Leonidas; 3. Allen Travis; 4. Dovie Irene; 5. Ina Mae. Last residence: Monroeville.

BAYLIES, JAMES, commandant at the University of Alabama; first lieutenant, 10th infantry U. S. Army, 1895-98.

BAYLIS, HEZEKIAH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 77, and a resident of Madison County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on January 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831, annual allowance, $20.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv., Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BAYLOR, ROBERT EMMETT BLEDSOE, lawyer, representative in Congress, was born May 10, 1793, in Lincoln County, Ky.; and died January 6, 1874, at Gay Hill, Tex. His father, a Virginian, was an aid-de-camp to Gen. Washington. He was a nephew of Judge Jesse Bledsoe and a cousin of Hon. W. P. Chilton of Montgomery. He studied law in Kentucky until the outbreak of the War of 1812, in which he served under Col. Boswell, and took part in the battle near Fort Meigs. Upon the restoration of peace, he resumed his studies, and was admitted to the bar in Kentucky. He was elected to the Kentucky legislature in 1819, but resigned in 1820 when he moved to Alabama. He settled in Tuscaloosa and opened a law office. In 1824, he was elected to the Alabama legislature, and from 1829 until 1831, he represented Tuscaloosa district in the twenty-first congress, defeating Seth Barton (q. v.) of Tuscaloosa and Richard Ellis of Franklin, but was defeated in the election two years later. In 1833, he moved to Dallas and became law partner of Col. Gayle. In 1836, he commanded a regiment of Alabamians in quelling the disturbances on the state borders during the Creek War. He was converted in Talladega County in 1839 and was licensed to preach. Soon after, he moved to Texas, then a republic, and settled in Fayette County, where he practiced law and preached the gospel.

He took part in the struggles against the Mexicans and Indians from 1842 to 1844. He served in the Texan congress and was appointed judge of the circuit court. He was one of the judges of the supreme court of Texas from 1841 until Texas was annexed to the Union. He preached wherever he held court, often deciding cases on the bench during the day and holding religious services at night. After the annexation, he was a member of the convention of 1845 which framed the first constitution of the state. He was reappointed to the bench of the state, which position he held, in all, twenty-five years.

Baylor County, Tex., and Baylor University were both named in his honor. He was instrumental in drawing up and procuring the enactment of the charter of Baylor University, was donor of a large tract of land and of its first five thousand dollars. He lies buried on the campus of the old university at Independence, a short distance in the rear of the first edifice erected for the institution named for him. He served for a time as professor in the law department, giving a gratuitous series of lectures. He was moderator of the Union Association, president of the Baptist state convention, and president of the board of trustees of Baylor University at different times. He was prominent in the movement to form the Baptist Educational Society. Last residence: Gay Hill, Tex.

BAYLOR, WALKER KEITH, lawyer, was born about 1800, in Kentucky; and died in 1845. He was a descendant of revolutionary stock. His father, a Virginian, was an aide de camp to Gen. Washington. He was a brother of Hon. R. E. B. Baylor (q. v.), and a nephew of Judge Jesse Bledsoe. He was related to Dr. Bledsoe, the editor of the "Southern Review," and to Hon. W. P. Chilton of Montgomery. He was educated in Kentucky; admitted to the bar; came to Alabama in 1830, and opened a law office in Elyton. In 1825 he represented Jefferson County in the legislature. He served for several years as judge of the county court and was re-elected to the legislature as a senator in 1838, taking his seat in the senate at the beginning of the session of 1841.

He served through the session of 1842 and the following year was appointed judge of the third judicial circuit by Gov. Fitzpatrick to succeed Hon. Peter Martin of Tuscaloosa, to which office he was elected at the ensuing session of the legislature. He continued on the bench until the summer of 1845, when he visited his brother in Texas, and where, in examining the workmanship of a newly invented pistol, he was killed by its accidental discharge.

He was a Democrat and was chairman of the educational committee in the senate. He was greatly interested in philosophy and astronomy and spent much of his time at the University Observatory where he studied the planetary system with Prof. Barnard. Last residence: Elyton.

BEALE, CAROLINE (PHELAN), patriotic worker, daughter of John Dennis (q. v.); and Mary Ann (Harris) Phelan (q. v.). She was chairman of the White House committee, Alabama division, United daughters of the Confederacy; regent, White House association; and prominent member of the Memorial association of Montgomery. Through her efforts the bedroom furniture and some of the personal effects of Jefferson Davis were obtained for the Daughters of the Confederacy. Married: Jesse Beale. Residence: New York.

BEALL, T. S., major, Beall's battalion, Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army.

BEALLE, ALFRED BATTLE, author, was born September 5, 1879 in Pickens County; son of Alfred Battle and Rosa (Wood) Bealle, of Tuscaloosa; the former a tropical fruit grower, and a member of the board of education of Lee County, Fla.; grandson of Dr. Benjamin Bradley and Elizabeth (Bonner) Bealle. He came when a child with his parents to Tuscaloosa; was apprenticed to a printing office in that city when he was thirteen years old; remained at that trade for five years, and in 1898, became employed by a firm of cotton brokers with whom he is at present connected. Though he made verses at an early age, his first printed poem appeared in the "New Orleans Times-Democrat," in 1898. Since that time his poems have appeared at different intervals, the major part of his work being included in his recently published volume. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BEALLE, JOHN THOMAS, editor and State senator, was born January 29, 1859, at Caledonia, Lowndes County, Miss.; son of James Caddell and Sarah Jane (Brown) Bealle, the former was a member of Wheeler's cavalry C. S. Army; grandson of John W. and Nancy (Doughty) Bealle, and of Rev. John and Rachell (Norris) Brown, all of Northport, Ala. Senator Bealle received his education in the common schools of Tuscaloosa County, and in Prof. William D. Fonville's school in Tuscaloosa. He was ordained by the Northport Baptist church, July, 1891, and for twenty-three years served pastoral charges in numerous localities in the vicinity of his place of residence. He was superintendent of education of Tuscaloosa County, 1896-1904; edited "The West Alabama Breeze," April, 1899-1917. In 1915 he was a member of the house of representatives from Tuscaloosa County, and in 1919 a member of the State senate. He is a Democrat; and a Mason. Married: (1) at Northport, December 20, 1882, to Mary, daughter of Capt. S. T. and Caroline Palmer; (2) September 20, 1899, to Ella, daughter of William and Ann (Farley) Pool. Children: by first wife, 1. Katie Dare, m. Rev. C. J. White of Parrott, Ga.; 2. James Samuel, M. D., m. Hattie Booth, physician at Holt; 3. Jennie Clements; 4. John Rufus, lawyer at Tuscaloosa; 5. Thomas Brown; 6. Mary; 7. Broadus; 8. Annie Dodson; by second wife, 9. Sarah Ella; 10. Nannie Sue; 11. William; 12. Lola Louise. Residence: Northport.

BEANE, C. J., division manager of the sales department, Virginia-Carolina chemical company. He was president of the Montgomery chamber of commerce, 1918-19. Residence: Montgomery.

BEARD, ARTHUR CAMPBELL, merchant and farmer, was born March 18, 1810, at Cumberland Gap, Knox (now Bell) County, Ky., and died at Guntersville, January 17, 1877; son of William Thomas and Mary Hamilton (Campbell) Beard, the former a native of Rockbridge County, Va., who later lived at the western end of Cumberland Gap, Tenn., at that time the greatest thoroughfare to the West, where he farmed and kept a tavern; grandson of Thomas Beard, a Revolutionary soldier of Rockbridge County, and of Arthur and Margaret (Campbell) Campbell, who lived at Abingdon, Va., the former was the ranking officer of militia in southwestern Virginia in the Revolution and distinguished in civil life; great-grandson of Charles Campbell, a surveyor, and member of Col. James Patton's party in 1748, the first white explorers to penetrate northeastern Tennessee; grand-nephew of William Campbell, commander of the American army at the battle of King's Mountain. Mr. Beard was educated in the old-field schools of the period; was a merchant and farmer; and a large slave owner. He was a member of the Secession convention, 1861, from Marshall County, Ala.; representative in the legislature, 1863-65; major of the Fourth Alabama infantry regiment, but on account of ill health resigned April 22, 1862, and served as aide in the staff of Gov. John Gill Shorter for the remainder of the conflict. Prior to the war he was a Whig, but after the close became identified with the Republican party, though he was independent and occasionally voted the entire Democratic ticket. He was a Methodist. Married: (1) September 4, 1832, to Pherriba Jane, daughter of Ezekiel and Mary (King) Moore, of Hazel Green, Madison County, the latter a cousin of William R. King, vice-president of the United States, and related to the family of Gov. Gabriel Moore (q. v.); (2) May 9, 1854, at Liberty, DeKalb County, to Mrs. Letitia Ellison (Beeson) Macfarlane, widow of William Wallace Macfarlane of DeKalb County, daughter of John and Priscilla Beeson of DeKalb County. Children: all by first wife—1. Mary Helen, m. William D. Clack of Collierville, Tenn.; 2. William Thomas, m. Mary Word; 3. Caroline Moore, m. James W. Fennell, of Seguin, Texas; 4. Jane Elizabeth, d. in infancy; 5. Arthur Hopkins, of Memphis, Tenn.; 6. Julia Ann, m. Thomas Atkins Street, (q. v.); 7. Silas Parsons, m. Elizabeth May, Manchester; 8. James Pickett of Guntersville, for many years treasurer of Marshall County. Last residence: Guntersville.

BEARD, JOSEPHUS SIMMONS, physician; graduated from the medical department of the University of New York, 1876, and entered upon the practice of his profession in 1879. Residence: Troy.

BEARD, THOMAS JEFFERSON, Episcopal minister, was born March 8, 1835, at Lowndesboro, and died in Birmingham, June 19, 1916; son of Edward Derril and Caroline Videau (Rembert) Beard, the former a native of Columbia, S. C.; grandson of Thomas Beard of Columbia, and of Abijah and Sarah (Gayle) Rembert, of South Carolina. The Beards migrated from Pennsylvania to South Carolina after the Revolutionary War, and the Remberts were French Huguenots who early located in Charleston, S. C. Rev. Dr. Beard was educated in private schools in Wilcox and Marengo Counties, Ala.; prepared for college by tutors in the home of Col. Andrew Calhoun, near Faunsdale; entered the University of Alabama, 1852, as protege of Col. Calhoun, remained through a part of the third year, when illness required withdrawal. He engaged in teaching in Demopolis in 1854, later became a tutor in the home of Dr. Henry Reese near Demopolis, and remained there for six years, in the meantime preparing by private study for the ministry. He was ordained deacon, June 20, 1860, in Lowndesboro by Bishop Nicholas Hammer Cobbs, and priest in May, 1864, at St. John's church, Montgomery; and had charges in Demopolis, Opelika, Eufaula, Mobile, and Helena, Ark. From 1867 to 1870 he served as general missionary in north Alabama with headquarters at Huntsville; was rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, 1882-96; dean of the Birmingham convocation, 1896; general missionary of the convocation, 1896, continuing active up to the date of his death. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him in 1895 by the University of the South, at Sewanee. Married: September 9, 1864 at Eufaula, Margaret Riche, daughter of Dr. John H. and Elizabeth (Page) Chandler, of Norfolk, Va., the former having been a surgeon in the U. S. navy who died before the War of Secession. The Page family came from Massachusetts. Children: 1. Elizabeth Page, m. Henry Nevins; 2. James Wilmer, m. Minnie Shotwell, residence New York. 3. Edward Calhoun, m. Anna Hooper; 4. Harry Newton, m. Frances Clarke, resides in New York; 5. Thomas Beverly, d. unmarried; 6. Mary, unmarried. Last residence: Birmingham.

BEASLEY, CECIL ACMOND, lawyer, was born December 20, 1876, four miles west of Kennedy, Lamar County; son of William Luther and Susan Frances (Howell) Beasley, both of whom were natives of that section of the State; grandson of Gabriel and Mary (Appling) Beasley, the former moved to Fayette County, from middle Tennessee in the early thirties, located in Lamar county, and his wife moved with her parents from Georgia in 1830 to Tuscaloosa County; and of Elijah and Abigail (Shepherd) Howell, the former a Baptist minister, was born near New Lexington, Tuscaloosa County, his parents having removed from South Carolina, and his wife came from South Carolina with her parents to Fayette County. His ancestors were all farmers. He was educated in the public schools of Lamar County; at the Florence normal college, from which he graduated in 1896; and graduated at the University of Alabama, LL. B., 1900. He had however, previously read law at Florence in the office of Emmet O'Neal, later governor of Alabama, and was admitted to the bar in 1900. He practiced in Florence for two years before he located in Fayette, October, 1903. He was clerk of the committee on suffrage and elections of the constitutional convention of 1901. He was private secretary to United States Senator John H. Bankhead, a position he held from 1907 until the death of Senator Bankhead, in March 1920, when he was retained by Senator B. B. Comer. He is a Democrat; a Missionary Baptist; a Mason; Odd Fellow; Knight of Pythias; and a Red Man. Married: January 18, 1910, in Fayette, to Mrs. Louise (Renfroe) Robertson, daughter of A. J. and Sarah (Freeman) Renfroe, both of Fayette. Children: 1. Cecil A., jr. Residence: Fayette.

BEASLEY, STEPHEN H., grand commander, grand commandery of Alabama Masons, 1880 and 1881.

BEATTY, WILLIAM HENRY, physician, was born at Richmond Hill, Rowan County, N. C., in 1824, and died in Birmingham, in 1898; son of William Gibbs and Eliza (Pearson) Beatty, of North Carolina. Dr. Beatty was educated at Bingham school, later attended the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill; graduated from the New York medical college and the University of Pennsylvania. He began the practice of medicine in North Carolina, removed to Alabama in 1858; served as a surgeon with Gen. Chalmers, in Mississippi, was taken prisoner and paroled at Memphis. After the war he removed to Mobile, practiced in this city for ten years, and moved to Birmingham. Married: to Rebecca, daughter of Alexander and Frances Eleanor (Shipman) Troy, the former a soldier of the American Revolution, and granddaughter of Michael and Rachel (Potts) Troy, the former a native of Ireland, who emigrated to America, settled in Pennsylvania and removed to Salisbury, Rowan County, N. C. Children: 1. William Gibbs, physician, student at the University of Alabama, 1864-65; M. D., Mobile; m. Mary Alice Cotton, of Macon, Miss.; d. Sept., 1889; 2. Fanny Troy, m. Dr. Sid Smith; 3. I. Croom, m. Marianna Dubutye; 4. Lizzie Pearson, m. P. M. Morris, of Texarkana; 5. Rachel London, member of All Saints sisterhood of Baltimore; 6. Douglas P., engineer, m. Rebecca Calhoun, of Carbonville; 7. Troy, Episcopal clergyman of Athens, Ga., graduate of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., m. Freddie Mayhew, of Sewanee, Tenn.; 8. Nicholas Cobb, d. in infancy; 9. Sarah Croom, d. in infancy; 10. Alexander Troy, d. in infancy. Last residence: Birmingham.

BEAUCHAMP, GEORGE ALLAN, grand secretary Masonic grand bodies of Alabama, was born, March 16, 1855, at Eufaula; son of Andrew Hamil and Margaret Euphemia (Allan) Beauchamp, the former born near White Oak, Barbour County, lived in Eufaula, was a member of Co. F, First Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, captured at Island No. 10, sent to Camp Douglas prison, exchanged, took part with his old command in the siege of Port Hudson; grandson of William and Nancy (Perkins) Beauchamp, and of Dr. George L. and Janet (Stewart) Allan, of Eufaula; and great-grandson of Littleton Beauchamp, who came, with his three sons, Green (q. v.), William and Laban Beauchamp, to Baldwin County, Ga., in 1780. The Allan family in 1840, came from Hilbeechee, Scotland, directly to Alabama. George A. Beauchamp was educated in the city schools of Eufaula; in 1871 he entered the drug business as a clerk, became proprietor in 1889, but disposing of his interest in 1912; in 1897-99, was cashier of East Alabama national bank at Eufaula; in 1899-1900 was secretary and treasurer of the Eufaula grocery co., resigning January 9, 1901, to accept the position of grand secretary of the Masonic grand lodge of Alabama. He is grand secretary of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, grand recorder of the Grand Council Royal and Select Masters, and grand recorder of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar. He is a Democrat and a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is the author of a "Masonic Manual of Alabama," which has passed through five editions, 1903 to 1913. Married: January 15, 1903, to Julia Fauntleroy, daughter of Dr. William Robert and Victoria Adelaide (Moore) Crowder, of Accomac County, Va. In Scotland, the original form of the name was Crother, which became changed in America to Crowder. Some of her ancestors, notably Col. William Ramsey, were soldiers in the American Revolution. Children: 1. George Allan, jr.; 2. Virginia Rose; 3. Margaret Stewart. Residence: Montgomery.

BEAUCHAMP, GREEN, pioneer citizen and legislator, was born in 1800, in Baldwin County, Ga., and died December 11, 1883, at White Oak, Barbour County; son of Littleton Beauchamp of English ancestry. The family located in Maryland, whence members in 1780 removed to Baldwin County, Ga. In 1818 Littleton Beauchamp and three sons, Green, William and Laban, came to what is now Barbour County. Green Beauchamp served in the Indian war; was a farmer; was for two terms, 1836 and 1837, a member of the house of representatives from Barbour County; a member of the constitutional convention of 1865 from the same county; a Democrat; and a Mason. Married: at Fort Gaines, Ga., Caroline, daughter of Richard Kennon, of that place. No children. Last residence: White Oak, Barbour County.

BEAVERS, JOHN ROBERT, lawyer, was born at Easonville; son of Maj. John and Mary Elizabeth (Allen) Beavers, who lived at Easonville, St. Clair County, the former who was a captain in the Thirtieth Alabama regiment, and was killed at Vicksburg in the battle of Baker's Creek; grandson of Henderson Beavers, and of Russell Allen. His grandmother was a direct descendant of Johnathon Meigs, of Revolutionary fame. He attended the common schools of St. Clair and Shelby Counties; was graduated from Oxford college, A. B., 1886; and from Southern university, A. M., 1888. He was principal of the high school at Childersburg, 1889-1892; was admitted to the bar in the latter year; and since that time has practiced law at Columbiana. He was a delegate from Shelby County to the constitutional convention of 1901; is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: December 3, 1896, at Wallace, to Sarah Victoria, daughter of Maj. Wales W. Wallace. Residence: Columbiana.

BECK, ANDREW, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 79, and a resident of Perry County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on September 29, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BECK, FRANKLIN KING, lawyer, was born May 21, 1814, in Duplin County, N. C., and died October 12, 1864, at Reseca, Tenn.; son of Hon. John and Margaret (King) Beck, the former a member of the North Carolina legislature who settled in Alabama in 1819, and subsequently represented Wilcox in the general assembly; grandson of Capt. William Beck, a planter and an officer in the Revolutionary War. His great-grandfather came from Wales and was a colonel in the British service in colonial times. He settled in Duplin County, N. C., previous to the Revolutionary War, where he resided until his death. Col. William R. King (q. v.) was a brother of Margaret King.

Franklin King Beck was matriculated at the University of Alabama, among its earliest students, but finished his course in the college at Georgetown, D. C. In 1837, he attended the law course at Yale college, and having been licensed to practice in 1841, opened a law office in Camden. In 1843 he was elected solicitor of the second circuit over Hon. T. J. Judge of Lowndes, for a term of four years. He represented Wilcox County in the state legislature in 1851 on the union or compromise ticket and was re-elected in 1855 on the democratic ticket. During his service in that body he was chairman of the committee on federal relations.

He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1861, and voted for secession. Soon after, he was elected colonel of the Twenty-third Alabama infantry regiment. He led his regiment with Gen. Bragg into Kentucky, and took part in the battles of Fort Gibson and Bakers Creek. The day after the latter battle the regiment was left, through failure to receive the order to retire, at Big Black Bridge, where Col. Beck held Grant's army in check for twelve hours with his single regiment. He shared in the defense of Vicksburg, when that post was captured by the enemy in July, 1863, and just after being paroled, had his leg fractured by the kick of a horse. As soon as he recovered, he joined the command and began the march with Gen. Hood into Tennessee. At Resaca, while making a reconnaissance, a cannon ball struck the limb of a tree, glanced downward, passed through his thigh and killed his horse. He survived this wound but a few moments.

Married: Martha Jefferson, daughter of James Tait, of Wilcox; and a sister of Robert and Felix Tait (q. v.). Children: 1. John James, b. September 12, 1846, d. May 16, 1848; 2. Daughter, d. in infancy. 3. William Rufus King, b. April 5, 1849, d. December 7, 1885, m. February 8, 1883, Mary Erwin Tait, two sons, Franklin K. and W. R.; 4. James Tait (q. v.), b. February 26, 1851, d. May 6, 1906, m. Charlotte Vass Tait; 5. Mary Martha, b. July 20, 1853, d. October 20, 1904, m. Edward Nathaniel Jones, May 25, 1876, five children, Katherine Ellis, Sallie, Paul Everett, Mary Beck and Edna Natalie. Last residence: Wilcox County.

BECK, JAMES TAIT, lawyer, was born February 26, 1851, in Camden, Wilcox County, and died May 6, 1906, at Selma; son of Col. Franklin King and Martha Jefferson (Tait) Beck (q. v.); grandson of Hon. John and Margaret (King) Beck, and of James Tait; great-grandson of Capt. William Beck, an officer in the Revolutionary War; grand-nephew of Col. William R. King (q. v.). He was graduated from the Virginia military institute at Lexington, July 4, 1873; read law under Col. R. H. Dawson, and under Jones & Jones; and was admitted to the bar in 1875. He opened a law office in Camden; was elected to the lower branch of the state legislature in 1880, and re-elected two years later. While in the body, he was chairman of the committee on local legislation and introduced the bill providing that a defendant might testify in his own behalf.

MICHAEL CODY

He was chosen alternate presidential elector of the Democratic party in 1884; was elected judge of probate for Wilcox County in 1886, and was re-elected in 1892. He served as solicitor for Wilcox County, and was for three terms superintendent of education. He was a Mason and held important offices in that fraternity, being thrice illustrious grand master of the Grand Council of the State of Alabama, and later grand high priest of the council. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, and of the Episcopal church. In 1867, he organized the first military company in Wilcox County after the war closed for the state troops, and was commissioned its captain by Gov. George S. Houston. He was later captain of the Wilcox mounted rifles, First regiment, Alabama state troops.

Married: May 24, 1898, Charlotte Vass Tait, great-granddaughter of Charles Tait, of Alabama. Children: 1. James Tait, Jr.; 2. Helen Louise, deceased. Last residence: Selma.

BECK, JOHN, lawyer. Married: Marguret, sister of William R. King.

BECK, JOSEPH HUGUENIN, planter, was born at Parisburg, Beaufort District, S. C., and died in 1862, at San Antonio, Tex.; son of Rev. John and Anne (Huguenin) Beck; grandson of David Beck, and of Pieré and Marie Huguenin. The Beck family came from England to Beaufort District, S. C., settling Beck's Barony, a tract of twelve thousand acres granted by the lords proprietors of South Carolina. The Huguenin family are descended from Huguenots who were driven out of the north of France, and settled in Beaufort District, S. C. Joseph Huguenin Beck was educated in Dr. James Waddel's academy at Edgefield, S. C. He devoted himself to farming and plantation interests. He was appointed captain of a force raised in Montgomery County, Ala., in 1838 to fight the Indians near Tallassee, and after moving to Texas, was again made captain of citizens to defend Victoria, Tex., from the Indians. He was elected mayor and alderman of San Antonio, Tex., in 1859, and served until the outbreak of the War of Secession. He was an Episcopalian.

Married: June 11, 1836, in Montgomery County, Sarah Jane, daughter of Chappell and Jane (Harris) Sledge of Montgomery County. Children: 1. Mary Louise, m. April 19, 1859, John Cook Stratford, of Montgomery; 2. Joseph Harold, d. 1867, m. in Brenham, Tex., 1862, Hettie Shepard; 3. Josiah Edwin, d. May 23, 1912, m. in Bexar County, Tex., Lee Erwin; 4. John Chappell, m. in Bexar County, Tex., Leonora Yelvin, San Antonio, Tex.; 5. Lucien Pink-ston, d. in San Antonio, Tex., 1880, m. in Pensacola, Fla., Louise Beck; 6. Eugene Huguenin, d. in San Antonio, Tex., June 5, 1881, m. 1873, Elizabeth Baley; 7. Walter Barton, m. in Bexar County, Tex., Jane De Armand, Brownwood, Tex.; 8. William Edgar; 9. Augustus Maverick, d. March 5, 1916, in Bexar County, Tex. Last residence: San Antonio, Tex.

BECK, WILLIAM GREEN, planter, was born in 1815, in Wilkinson County, Ga.; son of John and Mary (Strong) Beck, the former a native of Barnwell District, S. C., the latter of Virginia, who removed from South Carolina to Georgia in 1818, later to Alabama, locating first in Montgomery County, later in Pike, and finally in Covington; grandson of Elijah Beck, a native of South Carolina, who removed to Montgomery in 1821, a soldier of the War of 1812, and probably in the Revolutionary War. The Strongs were of English descent. William G. Beck was reared on a farm, principally in Montgomery County, and received only a common school education. He began farming at the age of twenty in Bullock County, later removing to Covington County, in 1844, and in 1882 elected a member of the State legislature. He has worked for a number of years at blacksmithing, woodworking and mill building. He is a Mason; and a Missionary Baptist. Married: (1) in 1835, to Louisa, daughter of John Smith of Bullock County, (2) to Mrs. Sarah (Johnson) Tane. Children: by the first marriage, 1. Oliver, soldier, C. S. Army, died in Mobile in 1863; 2. Mary Ann, m. Reuben Diamond; 3. Sarah J., m. Henry Williams, of Texas; 4. Washington, deceased; 5. Robert J., deceased; 6. William, d. young; by second wife, 7. Elizabeth, m. James M. Smith; 8. Wilson; 9. Eliza, m. W. Brooks; 10. Annanias, m. William Cobb; 11. Nancy, m. George Cooper; 12. Charles; 13. John W. Residence: near Andalusia.

BECKETT, JAMES M., physician, was born probably in 1804 or 1805 in South Carolina, and died probably in Mississippi. In 1836 he removed from Fairfield District, S. C., to Pickens County, Ala. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the house of representatives in 1840; served in 1847-48 and 1849-50 as senator from the district of which Pickens was a part; elector from 4th congressional district on the Cass and Taylor ticket in 1848; and served as a trustee of the University of Alabama, 1840-53. He removed from Alabama in 1853, and located in Mississippi. He was a State Rights Democrat, and a Presbyterian. Name of his wife unknown. Children: 1. Newton Johnston, b. September 9, 1834, student University of Alabama, 1852-53, probate judge, Monroe County, Miss., 1859-61, captain Co. G., 41st Mississippi infantry regiment, d. at Shelbyville, Tenn., January 14, 1863, m. Olivia Watlington, Aberdeen, Miss., August 10, 1855. Last residence: Mississippi.

BECKWITH, CHARLES MINNIGERODE, bishop of the Diocese of Alabama, Protestant Episcopal church, was born June 3, 1854, at

"Woodbourne," Prince George County, Va.; son of Thomas Stanley and Agnes (Ruffin) Beckwith of Petersburg, Va., the former a native of Newberne, N. C.; grandson of Dr. John and Margaret Wright (Stanley) Beckwith, and Edmund Ruffin of Prince George County, Va. He received his early schooling in Petersburg, Va., under the instruction of Gordon McCabe; was graduated from the University of Georgia, Athens, with the degree of A. B., 1873; and from the theological course at Berkeley divinity school, Middletown, Conn., in 1881. He was granted the honorary degree of D. D. from the University of the South, 1902, and of S. T. D. from Berkeley divinity school, 1903.

Bishop Beckwith was assistant professor of mathematics at the University of the South from 1874 until 1876, when he was appointed to the position of master of grammar schools at the same university, occupying that position for three years. He was ordained to the ministry in the Protestant Episcopal church in 1880, was appointed deacon in 1881, and priest the following year; served as assistant rector of St. Luke's Cathedral, Atlanta, Ga., from 1880 until 1886 and as rector of the Christ church, Houston, Ga., for the six years following. He was appointed general missionary of the Diocese of Texas in 1892 and held that office until 1895 when he became rector of the Trinity church at Galveston, Tex.; remaining in that position for six years, and in 1902 he was consecrated bishop of the Diocese of Alabama.

Author of "Trinity Course of Church Instruction," published in 1898, of "The Teachers' Companion to the Trinity Course," published in 1901, and of "Rightly Instructed in God's Holy Word," published in 1902. Married: May 11, 1897, Mary Belle, of Galveston, Texas; daughter of John Fraser and Mary Ann (Meyers) Cameron, of Memphis, Tenn. Children: 1. Edmund, m. Susan B. Foster. Residence: Montgomery.

BEDDOW, CHARLES PETER, lawyer, was born January 17, 1860, at Whiteside, Marion County, Tenn.; son of Peter and Mary (Pratt) Beddow, natives of Worcestershire, England, who came to the United States and settled at the place of his birth in 1850. His father was a coal mine operator. Mr. Beddow received his early education in the common schools of his native state; graduated from Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., LL. B., 1880; was admitted to the bar at Chattanooga, Tenn., 1881; one year later accepted the superintendency of the Aetna coal company, Whiteside; and later still the superintendency of the Soddy coal company, Rathburn, Tenn. In 1885 he was a representative in the legislature of Tennessee. He removed to Alabama in 1890, and became general manager of the Alabama Connellsville coal company, and later superintendent of the Sloss iron and steel company, and of its mines at Coalburg. In 1895 he entered actively upon the practice of the law, and became a member of the firm of Bowman, Harsh & Beddow. He was a delegate from Jefferson County to the constitutional convention of 1901, and was among the conservative members of that body. He is a Mason; a Knight of Pythias; Odd Fellow; and a Methodist. Married: November 6, 1881, at Wildwood, Ga., Elizabeth Russell (q. v.), a native of Tennessee. Children: 1. Helen; 2. Agnes; 3. Noel; 4. Roderick; 5. William; 6. Mary E. Residence: Birmingham.

BEDDOW, ELIZABETH (RUSSELL), author, was born February 19, 1860, at Winchester, Franklin County, Tenn.; daughter of Aaron and Mary (McDonald) Russell, the father born in Grayson County, Va.; granddaughter of Phillip and Rebecka (Russell) Russell (not related), both of Grayson County, and of Archibald and Elizabeth McDonald. Her paternal great-grandfather was killed at the battle of King's Mountain, and her great-uncle, Donald McDonald, was with Gen. Andrew Jackson at the battle of New Orleans, and was a descendant of the McDonalds, Scotch Highlanders. Mrs. Beddow was educated at Prof. Van Buren Livingston's school in Chattanooga, Tenn. She is keenly interested in literary work; and is the author of "Oracle of Moccasin Bend," short poems, including "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Possum Hunt," "Uncle Tom's Affinity," "New Dixey Land," and others. Married: Charles Peter Beddow (q. v.). Children: 1. Helen; 2. Agnes; 3. Noel Russell; 4. Roderick; 5. William; 6. Mary Elizabeth. Residence: Birmingham.

BEDSOLE, TRAVIS JESSE, lawyer and State senator, was born May 27, 1885, at Tallahatta Springs, Clarke County; son of Travis Linyer and Martha (Goodman) Bedsole; brother of Mrs. Loraine Bush (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Tallahatta Springs; at the Thomasville high school, and graduated A. B., 1907, and LL. B., 1909, from the University of Alabama. During 1907-08, he taught school at Geneva. On June 8, 1909, he entered upon the practice of law at Grove Hill. He served as solicitor of Clarke County from 1914 until the court was abolished; was a member State Democratic executive committee four years; and was elected a member of the State senate from the nineteenth district in 1918, and served as president. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Mason; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; and a member of the Kappa Sigma college fraternity. Married: June 20, 1913, to Mary Ellis, daughter of John Duncan and Leona (Ellis) Carmicheal, and granddaughter of George and Martha (Currie) Ellis, of Greensboro. Children: 1. Martha Nell; 2. Massey Preston. Residence: Grove Hill.

BEECHER, L. T., secretary and treasurer, Tennessee coal, iron and railroad company. Residence: Birmingham.

BEEENE, JESSE, judge, was a native of Tennessee, and died near Cahaba, March 4, 1845. He was a self educated man as his early life was spent in poverty and ignorance. He came to Dallas County about 1819 and became extensively engaged in the practice of law; was judge of the county court, 1821; district solicitor, 1832; a member of the house of representatives, 1833; and president of the senate, 1837. He was also the editor of a newspaper in Cahaba for a short time. In December, 1839, he attended the democratic convention as a delegate from Dallas County and was made president of this body. He was looked upon with general favor as an aspirant to gubernatorial honors, but his name was not submitted to the nominating committee on account of the violent speech made by him, on taking the chair at the convention, against the Whig party. Married: to Catherine, daughter of Col. William and Catherine (Dalton) Bird, the former an officer in the Continental Army, a native of Pennsylvania who removed to Alexandria, Va., and finally settled at the Shoals Ogeechee, Warren County, Ga., where he built the first iron works in Georgia; sister of William E. Bird (q. v.); aunt of William Lowndes Yancey (q. v.); and granddaughter of Col. William and Bridgett (Huling) Bird, the former of English birth who emigrated to America, settled and founded the town of Birdsboro, Penn., and built one of the earliest, if not the first, iron works. Children: 1. William Anderson, lawyer, student at the University of Alabama, 1841-44; sergeant C. S. Army; killed in the battle of Cold Harbor, Va., June, 1862; m. Miss Cone, of Cahaba; 2. Benjamin Yancey, lawyer; student at the University of Alabama, 1845; graduate of the University of N. C., A. B., 1849; d. 1856; 3. Jesse, d. 1858; 4. Catherine, d. young. Last residence: Cahaba.

BEERS, OLIVER STURGES, foreign correspondent, grand lodge, Masons, was born January 27, 1819, in Augusta, Ga., and died on November 10, 1882, in Columbus, Miss., where he had gone on business. He was initiated into the Mobile lodge, February 1, passed February 23, and raised March 11, 1848. He served as foreign correspondent, grand lodge, 1875-1881. Last residence: Mobile.

BEESON, EDWARD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, and a resident of St. Clair County, captain and lieutenant, N. C. State Troops, enrolled on September 29, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $180; sums received to date of publication of list, $540.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BEESON, WILLIAM BAKER, farmer, was born October 2, 1829, in Jackson County; son of Alford and Fannie (Baker) Beeson, who lived at Scottsboro, the former of whom fought with Gen. Andrew Jackson in the War of 1812, in his campaign against the Indians in Alabama and in the battle of New Orleans against Gen. Packingham, and after the war settled in Blount County. His ancestors came from England to North Carolina before the Revolutionary War. His early schooling was restricted by the death of his parents, but later in life much of his time was devoted to study. He became a farmer and stock raiser. He entered the C. S. Army in December, 1861, as a first lieutenant, was promoted to captain of the Forty-ninth Alabama regiment, and served until the end of the war. He fought at Shiloh, at Port Hudson, and was wounded in the left arm, captured, and sent to Johnson's Island. After his exchange, he took part in all the fighting around Atlanta, was at the battles of Kinston and Bentonville, and surrendered at Greensboro, N. C.

After the war, he resumed farming and continued to raise blooded stock. He was at one time a member of the state legislature from Etowah County, and was the candidate of the alliance party for congress in 1892. He was a Master Mason, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Married: December 2, 1857, Mary Frances, daughter of David and Elizabeth (Cook) Sibert, early settlers of the state. Children: 1. David Marcus, b. September 25, 1858, was mayor of Gadsden in 1882, d. July 18, 1882; 2. Julia E., m. S. A. Conger; 3. Naomi J., m. Dr. H. P. McWhorter; 4. John Wesley, b. March 31, 1866, received the degree of A. B., 1881, of A. M., 1888, from the University of Alabama, president of Arcadia college, Louisiana, 1886-1891, of Marengo female institute, 1891-1896, of East Mississippi female college, 1896, m. (1) at West Point, Miss., August 31, 1887, Annie Foster Pauline, (2) at McKinley, June 8, 1893, Rosa Laura Foster; 5. Jasper Luther, b. August 30, 1867 at Keener, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1889, A. M., 1890, and from Johns Hopkins university, Ph. D. in chemistry, 1893, became instructor in physics at the University of Alabama and chemist of the Alabama geological survey, 1889-1890, research chemist at the Louisiana experiment station and professor of chemistry in the Louisiana school of sugar, 1893-1897, professor elect of chemistry at the Kansas agricultural college, 1897, professor of chemistry and physics at the Georgia normal and industrial college, 1897, also chairman of the faculty, member of American Chemical Society, fellow of Association for the Advancement of Science, Democrat—a Presbyterian, author of "Doctor Dissertation," Johns Hopkins, 1893, "Notes on the Estimation of Fiber in Sugar Canes," "A Study of the Constituents of the Nodes and Internodes of the Sugar Cane," which publications were reviewed by the principal chemical journals of Europe, "Effects of Fertilizers upon Sugar Cane," "Pedigreeing Sugar Cane," "Occurrence of Amines in Sugar Cane," "A Study of the Clarification of Cane Juice," "The Physical Effects of Fertilizers upon Soils as Modifying the Soil's Power to Maintain a Supply of Moisture," "Effects of a Crop of Peas upon the Nitric Nitrogen of the Soil," a sketch of research work in chemistry is given in the two editions of "American Men of Science," edited by J. McKeen Cottell, inventor of chemical apparatus, some of which is used both in America and Europe. m. September 13, 1894, at Powder Springs, Ga., Leola, graduate of Shorter college, daughter of James Wilson and Katherine (Riley) Selman, of Powder Springs, whose father was lieutenant in Co. A, Thirtieth Georgia regiment, C. S. Army, great-grandfather, James Selman was scalped while a Revolutionary soldier; great-great-grandfather Jeremiah Selman, served in Roebuck's regiment in the Revolution; great-great-great-grandfathers, Thomas Camp and Benjamin Camp, fought in Capt. Walsh's company, Second Virginia regiment in the Revolution; maternal great-great-grandfather, Capt. William Scott, served in the Third Georgia battery, Revolutionary Army; one child, Catherine Selman, residence Milledgeville; 6. Fannie C., teacher; 7. Martha A., attended Marengo female college; 8. William James, was graduated, B. S., 1896, and M. S., 1897, from Alabama agricultural and mechanical college, was principal of the Ninth District agricultural school at Blountsville, 1897-1899, occupied the chair of history and economics in the State normal school at Jacksonville, 1899-1905, was appointed head of the department of English and history at the Meridian male college, Meridian, Miss.; 9. Elenor C., attended Marengo female college; 10. Malcolm Alfred, B. S., 1900, Alabama polytechnic institute, attended Johns Hopkins University, occupied the chair of science in Meridian female college, 1900-1901, was president of the Meridian male college, 1903, Meridian, Miss.; 11. Mary Summers, deceased. Last residence; Big Wills Valley, north of Gadsden.

BEGGS, HAMILTON T., manufacturer, was born in 1830, in Liverpool, England, and is of Scotch-Irish descent. He learned the iron business in his native country, serving an apprenticeship in a foundry for four years. At eighteen he came to America, working as a journeyman in several different states, locating in Virginia in 1855. Four years later he removed to Knoxville, Tenn., where he worked in a foundry, and cast the first gun and first bomb shell made in Tennessee for the Confederate government. He came to Alabama in 1862, and was employed in the Shelby iron works, where he made munitions for the Confederacy until the end of the war. He removed to Birmingham in 1872 and purchased a lot on Fifth avenue and Sixteenth street, where he erected the first foundry and machine shop built in that city. Later he established a stove factory. He was a Mason and an Episcopalian. Married: in 1855, to Susan R. Dunnavent, a native of Virginia. Children: 1. George W.; 2. Hamilton T., jr.; 3. John P.; 4. Josiah; 5. Elizabeth R.; 6. Virginia L.; 7. Mary M.; 8. Ida. Last residence: Birmingham

BELL, ALEXANDER RATCLIFF, merchant, was born September 7, 1816, at Falmouth, Stafford County, Va., and died in Montgomery, February 3, 1885. He came from Virginia to Alabama about 1839, and established himself as a merchant, forming a partnership with his brother, William B. Bell (q. v.). He built a home on the corner of Alabama and Decatur streets, where he lived and died. He was a Democrat and an Episcopalian. Married: June 15, 1848, at "Society Hill," to Rebecca Mitchell, daughter of Thacker Brock and Sarah Griffin (Thweatt) Howard, of Russell County, niece of Mrs. William B. Bell, and great-granddaughter of Gen. Micajah Williamson, Revolutionary soldier of North Carolina. Children: 1. Sarah Elizabeth; 2. Annie Ratcliff; 3. Rebecca Warren, m. Thomas Jefferson Rutledge, their children: (1) Paul Howard; (2) Alexander; (3) Rebecca Shepherd; 4. Thacker Howard, m. Emma Inman, daughter of Shadrack

Inman of Atlanta, their children: (1) Shadrack Inman; (2) Sarah Elizabeth; (3) Thacker Howard, jr.; (4) John Inman; (5) Hugh Inman; 5. Alexander Ratcliff, jr. Last residence: Montgomery.

BELL, BETTIE, patriotic woman, was born in 1843, in Montgomery, and died at the same place, November 14, 1917; daughter of William Browne Bell and Mary Jarrett (Thweatt) Bell (q. v.). Although a school girl during the war she was one of the most enthusiastic workers of the Memorial association. She was the third secretary of the Montgomery memorial association. Last residence: Montgomery.

BELL, HOLLAND M., probate judge, was born June 25, 1839, in Tuscaloosa County; son of Anthony F. and Elizabeth (Middleton) Bell, the former a native of South Carolina who emigrated to Fayette County, in 1816, was among the earliest pioneers, a tanner by trade, elected to office of county commissioner a number of times prior to the War of Secession, and was county treasurer 1874; grandson of John and Amelia (Heard) Bell, of Pennsylvania and South Carolina, respectively, and of Zachariah Middleton, an early settler of Alabama. Judge Bell was educated in public and private schools until his twenty-first year when he entered the LaGrange military academy, Franklin County, where he remained fifteen months. He then enlisted, April 14, 1862, in Co. H, 41st Alabama infantry regiment, as a private, was promoted to sergeant-major, later to first lieutenant, and promoted captain, 1864, and served until captured, March 29, 1865, at Hatcher's Run. He was taken to Washington City and later to Johnson's Island, and was paroled following two months' imprisonment. He was elected circuit clerk of Fayette County, in 1874; probate judge in 1880, an office he held for a number of years. He was a Democrat and a Baptist. Married: in 1866, Margarette, daughter of Robert P. Miles, of Georgia. Children: 1. John M., deceased; 2. Edna, deceased; 3. Ethel, deceased; 4. Ernest S.; 5. Claude; 6. Lucy. Residence: Fayette.

BELL, J. T., farmer, was born June 10, 1841, in Barbour County; son of John and Laney (Hurst) Bell, who were married in 1828 in South Carolina, and moved to Baldwin County, Ala., in 1832, on a plantation four miles southwest of the town of Clayton, the former was a native of South Carolina, born in 1806, was a farmer and a soldier in the Indian War of 1836, and died in 1890, his wife preceding him by fifteen years. The Bell family came from England and settled in South Carolina at an early period. Mr. Bell received a practical English education in the schools of the county. He enlisted in the C. S. Army early in the spring of 1861, in the Barbour Grays, later part of the Fifth Alabama infantry regiment, and served through the entire war, from the first battle of Bull Run, to the final surrender at Appomattox. He saw service in the campaigns of Virginia, and took part in all of the bloody battles of the war including Seven Pines, Seven day's fight near Richmond, South Mountain, Sharpsburg, Wilderness, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Winchester, Strasburg, and from May 4, until June 9, 1864, was in nine battles other than those enumerated. He was wounded in the hand about half an hour before Stonewall Jackson met his death, and was taken to the same hospital in which the general died; was wounded in both legs at the battle of Strasburg; and barely escaped capture at the Wilderness, when he and a single comrade were the only ones who broke through the ranks of the surrounding enemy. After peace was established, Mr. Bell returned home and engaged in farming on his plantation in Barbour County. Married: March 7, 1861, Sallie, daughter of Jimsey and Rachel Cox. Children: 1. John; 2. Mack; 3. William A.; 4. Sarah, m. W. O. Stallings; 5. Edward; 6. Kervin; 7. Thomas; 8. George; 9. Mary; 10. Benjamin. Residence: Barbour County.

BELL, JOHN, pioneer settler, was an immigrant from Ireland, who located at "The Ponds," Conecuh County, about 1819. The name of this enterprising little village was changed to Belleville in his honor. He was of a quiet, unobtrusive, energetic disposition. Last residence: Belleville.

BELL, JOHN ROGERS, teacher, merchant, and legislator, was born May 3, 1871, at Gordo, Pickens County; son of William Robert and Senith Etta (Kirk) Bell, of Lancaster, S. C., the former was a Confederate soldier; grandson of Robert and Martha (Brown) Bell of Ireland, and of Robert and Anna (White) Kirk, of Lancaster, S. C. He was educated in the common schools; at the State normal college, Florence; and graduated B. S., 1902 from the University of Alabama. He has been a teacher, but is now a merchant. He represented Pickens County in the legislature of 1911. He is a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: June 10, 1910, to Frances Marion, daughter of James Alexander and Annie (Shirley) Thornton of Eutaw. Residence: Gordo.

BELL, JOSEPH BENNETT, business man, was born in Greenville, November 18, 1859; son of Jonathan Ezekiel and Georgia Anna (Bennett) Bell; grandson of Edward and Eliza H. (Veasy) Bell, the former born in Sumter District, S. C., removed to Montgomery County, Ala., in 1820, and later to Butler County, and of Sylvester and Louise (Clark) Bennett; and great-grandson of John Bell, of Virginia, a soldier of the Revolution, who after the war was granted a tract of land in Sumter District, on which he lived and reared a large family. Mr. Bell was educated in the common schools at Greenville, and after leaving school clerked in a hardware store at Montgomery. In 1890 he removed to Prattville and became interested in, and connected with the Daniel Pratt gin company, now the Continental gin company. He is a stockholder and a director in this company, and has financial interests in several other institutions at Prattville, among them the Autauga banking and trust company, and the Prattville mercantile company. He has served as a member of the Prattville city council and was a member of the legislature from Autauga County, 1911-15. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Odd Fellows. Married: at Prattville, November 20, 1889, to Mary Vaughn, daughter of Merrill Edward and Julia Adelaide (Smith) Pratt (q. v.) of Prattville. Children: 1 and 2. Marie and Julia, twins; 3. Adelaide; 4. Daniel Snow; 5. Jonathan Edward; 6. Henry Pratt; 7. Myra Ellen. Residence: Prattville.

BELL, MARY JARRETT (THWEATT) patriotic worker, was born November 30, 1831, in Sparta, Ga., and died in Montgomery; daughter of Peterson and Elizabeth (Williamson) Thweatt; granddaughter of Micajah Williamson, a colonel in the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Bell removed to Claiborne, Ala., at the age of four after the death of her mother and made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Tait. After her marriage she removed to Montgomery. She was one of the most untiring workers for the Memorial association and opened her home as a hospital for Confederate soldiers during the War of Secession. Married: William Brown Bell (q. v.), of Falmouth, Va., later of Montgomery. Children: 1. Sarah; 2. Bettie; 3. William Peterson, m. Phedora Lois Harris, Madison, Ga. 4. Margaret. 5. Maggie Rebecca; both deceased; 6. Samuel Marks, died in childhood. Last residence: Montgomery.

BELL, ROBERT LEE, Presbyterian minister, was born July 6, 1870, at Due West, Abbeville County, S. C.; son of Francis Marion and Jane E. (Hawkins) Bell, of that place, the former an architect and builder, and a Confederate soldier who served in the Ninth South Carolina regiment, Kershaw's brigade. Mr. Bell attended primary department of the Due West female college, then preparatory department of Erskine college at Due West, from which he graduated, A. B. 1889; taught for two years as principal at Montgomery; and then took his divinity course at Erskine theological seminary. He was ordained to the ministry in 1895, and served pastorates at Hopewell, Ga., McDonough, Ga., Union Springs, and Handley Memorial Presbyterian church, Birmingham. He is a Democrat; a Mason and a member of the Odd Fellows. He has been a frequent contributor to magazines. Married: October 12, 1898, at Louisville, Ga., Effie Louise, daughter of James and Eliza (Alexander) Dawson, and a descendant of Lieut. Hugh Alexander of the Revolutionary Army. Children: 1. Edgar Woods; 2. Mary Lee. Residence: Birmingham.

BELL, ROBERT NEELY LEE, lawyer, U. S. district attorney, was born November 17, 1862, at Gaylesville; son of Thomas Montgomery and Hannah Ann (Henderson) Bell of Gaylesville, the former a farmer and a colonel of State militia; grandson of Samuel and Sallie (Parks) Bell, of Asheville, N. C., the former who came from the north of Ireland, and was married in Asheville, the latter a native of that place, of English ancestry, and of David and Althea

Henderson, of Greenville, S. C. He was graduated from the State university at Tuscaloosa, June 11, 1884, with the degree of LL. B.; was admitted to the bar in that year, and entered into a law partnership with Hon. Solomon Palmer in Guntersville; was elected mayor of Guntersville in 1886, and re-elected the following year. He was editor of the Guntersville "Democrat" from November, 1885, to March, 1886, when he withdrew from the newspaper business to resume his law practice. He formed a partnership with C. F. Hamil and John A. Lusk, in 1886, under the firm name of Hamil, Lusk & Bell. Mr. Hamil withdrew from the firm soon after, leaving the others to continue as Lusk & Bell. Mr. Bell remained in this association until he moved to Birmingham. He opened his practice in that city and was appointed United States district attorney for the northern district of Alabama under President Wilson. He died while holding that office. He was a Democrat, an Episcopalian, a Mason, an Elk, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: May 4, 1887, Lillie Bell, of Guntersville, daughter of Solomon and Virginia (Law) Palmer, the former a major in the Nineteenth Alabama regiment, Co. K, C. S. Army, who founded a women's college and was three times elected state superintendent of education. Children: 1. a boy, d. in infancy; 2. Virginia Ann, m. William Arthur Jenkins, lawyer; 3. Mary Lee; 4. Robert Neely, jr.; 5. Palmer Henderson; 6. Lillie Maud. Last residence: Birmingham.

BELL, WILLIAM BROWNE, merchant, was born January 17, 1811, in Falmouth, Stafford County, Va., and died in Montgomery, January 1, 1879. He was educated in the schools of his community and chose merchandising as his life work; removed to Montgomery from Richmond Va., 1834, and formed a partnership with his brother, Alexander Ratcliff Bell, (q. v.) founding the great dry-goods firm of W. B. and A. R. Bell, whose store was on the north side of Dexter Avenue, near where the Montgomery Fair is located. The firm were factors for the great planters down the Alabama River, handling cotton and slaves for them and shipping them goods. This firm held its place from 1842 to 1875, when they sold their business to Francis and co., of New York. He was a Presbyterian; a Democrat and Secessionist and gave largely of his means to the Confederate cause. Married: January 17, 1839, in Claiborne, at the home of her uncle, Judge Charles Tait (q. v.), to Mary Jarrett, daughter of Peterson and Elizabeth (Williamson) Thweatt, and granddaughter of Gen. Micajah Williamson, Revolutionary soldier of North Carolina. She presented a stand of colors to Gen. Moore's brigade of Alabama troops, previous to their departure to the Creek war. She was a charter member of the Ladies memorial association and of the Soldiers home, the first Confederate hospital established in the War of Secession; actively engaged in nursing, using her own servants and provisions. Among those nursed by her and ministered to until death, was Col. Morehead of Kentucky, son of the governor of the State, whom she buried on a part of her own plot in Oakwood cemetery. Children: 1. Sarah Tait; 2. Elizabeth Howard, d. unmarried; 3. William Peterson, m. Phedora Harris, of Atlanta, Ga., their children, (1.) Gustave, d. unmarried, soldier of Spanish-American war; (2.) Maggie, m. John Randolph; three children, (1.) Phedora, m. P. Nicrosi, (2.) Julia; (3.) John, jr.; (3.) Mary Petrie, m. William B. Kelly, three children, (1.) Mary Petrie, (2.) William, (3.) Sarah Bell; 4. Margaret Campbell, d. unmarried; 5. Maggie Rebecca, d. unmarried; 6. Samuel Marks, d. unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

BELLAMY, ELIZABETH WHITFIELD, author and teacher, was born in Gadsden County, Fla., April 17, 1837, and died April 13, 1900, in Mobile; daughter of William Whitfield and Julia (Stephens) Croom, natives of North Carolina, who removed to Florida prior to the War of Secession; granddaughter of Gen. William and Elizabeth (Whitfield) Croom of Lenoir County, N. C., and of Cicero Stephens. She was educated at Pelham priory, Philadelphia, and Springer institute, New York, and was an accomplished musician and linguist. Upon the death of her husband and children she began teaching in Mobile, 1863, and continued to be a monument to that profession until her death. However, it is as an author that she will have a more enduring name, writing under the pseudonym, "Kamba Thorpe," she gave to the world her first novels, "Four Oaks," 1867, and "The Little Joanna," 1876, besides numerous short stories. In 1888, under her own name she published "Old Man Gilbert," and "Benny Lancaster" in 1890. She was a frequent contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, Appleton's Magazine, The Cycle, Youth's Companion, and many other periodicals. Married: in 1858, Dr. Charles E. Bellamy, her cousin, a native of North Carolina, who had located in Florida. He was a Confederate surgeon, and died in the service in 1863. Children: 1. Bryan, d. at the age of four; 2. daughter who d. in infancy. Last residence: Mobile.

BELLAMY, RICHARD HENRY, lawyer and Confederate soldier, was born August 18, 1829, near Enfield, Halifax County, N. C., and died August 28, 1907, at Fort Mitchell, Russell County; son of William and Evelina Belmont (Benton) Bellamy of Nash County, N. C., and Russell County, the former born June 9, 1802, in Nash County, N. C.; grandson of James and Elizabeth (Crowell) Benton, who lived near Enfield, N. C. Richard H. Bellamy attended the public schools of Russell County, and Prof. John M. White's academy at Uchee; graduated, 1849, at University of Georgia, Athens; obtained professional education at Columbus, Ga., and Crawford, Russell County; began, 1851, practice of law in Crawford; after the War of Secession went to Carthage, Panola County, Tex.; engaged in merchandising; between 1870 and 1880, member of legislature of Texas, in 1885, returned to Fort Mitchell and engaged in farming. He was captain Co. B., Waddell's battalion artillery, Army of Tennessee, and was wounded in siege of Vicksburg. He was a Democrat, and a Mason. Married: January 8, 1885, at Fort Mitchell, to Martha Elizabeth (Benton) Cantey, daughter of Samuel Crowell and Mary (Hunter) Benton, who lived near Enfield, N. C. No children. Last residence: Fort Mitchell.

HON. EMMET O'NEAL

BELLENGER, WILLIAM CLINTON, merchant, was born April 15, 1850, in Fulton County, Ga.; son of John Nelson Bellenger and wife who was Mrs. Sarah Ann (Collier) Patey, the former a native of South Carolina who became one of the pioneer settlers of Georgia, was a prominent attorney, served several terms as judge of the superior court, and also as a member of the house of representatives. William C. Bellenger was educated in the schools of Decatur, Ga. He followed railroading for about six years and in March, 1874, located in Gadsden where he established a supply store. He is also interested in agriculture. Married: October 12, 1882, to Sallie S., daughter of Dr. John P. Ralls (q. v.). Children: 1. Mary; 2. Harry. Residence: Gadsden.

BELLINGER, CARNOT, physician, teacher, and planter, was born March 5, 1806, at Beaufort, Beaufort County, S. C., and died July, 1876, in Montgomery; son of William and Harriott S. (Fields) Bellinger, the former a native of Lemon Island, Beaufort District, S. C., who lived on his plantation on the Ashley River, joined the Revolutionary Army at the age of nineteen and was a member of the South Carolina legislature; grandson of Edmund and Mary Lucia (Bull) Bellinger, who lived on their plantation on the Ashley River, and of John Cato and Elizabeth (Perry) Fields of Walterboro, Calston District, S. C. The Bellinger family of South Carolina is descended from the Bellinghams of Bellingham, England, in the days of William the Conqueror. They have kept their identity distinct since 1475, when Walter Bellinger was created king of Ireland at Armes and granted the following coat of arms: "Argent, a Saltire engrailed sable, entre 4 roses, Gules." crest, a stag's head; motto: "Amicus, amico, hostis, hostis." Dr. Bellinger was a direct descendant of Capt. Sir Edmund Bellinger of Westmoreland County, England, who arrived in the colony of South Carolina and settled upon James Island in 1674. He was in the royal navy and commanded the ship Blake on August 16, 1697, was appointed surveyor general for the two Carolinas, April 1, 1698, and created landgrave, May 7, 1698. Carnot Bellinger received his early education at home under the tutelage of Count Sobiesky, who had been exiled from Poland and was the guest in the home of his father, William Bellinger. He was sent at an early age to South Carolina college, headed at the time by Sir Ashly and Prestly Caper. He studied medicine at the Philadelphia medical college and received the degree of M. D. about 1830, returned to his home state and practiced his profession for a while in Charleston and later settled on his plantation in Montgomery County, where he practiced. His wife, Sarah Bozier Hails Bellinger, founded the first soldier's home during the War of Secession, and the medical services of her husband were freely given to the wounded and sick patriots. After the close of hostilities, before a public school system was organized and while the people were too exhausted in resources to resume a system of private schools, Dr. Bellinger opened a free school for boys and gave of his learning to the youth of the land. He was offered the chair of Latin and Greek at the University of Alabama, but declined it. So kind had he been to his slaves that they remained upon his plantation after they were emancipated. Married: February 1, 1832, at "Hails House," Columbia, S. C., to Sarah Bozier, daughter of Capt. Robert and Sally (Bozier) Hails, of Columbia, who lived part of the year on their Santee plantation, the former a captain under Light Horse Harry Lee during the Revolutionary War, the latter a descendant of Jean Boschiere, a Huguenot who, after the massacre of St. Bartholomew, fled, with his brother Pierre, to America, secreted in the hold of the vessel. A price was placed upon their heads, "dead or alive," but after a tedious voyage they landed off the coast of South Carolina where they prostrated themselves, kissed the ground and exclaimed: "We are free!" Children: 1. Sallie Harriott, m. Maj. Augustus Massillon Allen of Columbus, Ga., and Montgomery; 2. Mary Augusta, m. Edward Rowell Holt of Montgomery; 3. Charles Edward, d. at college at the age of sixteen; 4. Robert Hails, m. Sallie Janney, Montgomery; 5. William; 6. Mary, m. Capt. Bushrod Washington Bell; 7. Georgette, m. Brown W. Janney; 8. Ellen C., m. Richard Patton Dexter. Last residence. Montgomery.

BELLINGER, SARAH BOZIER (HAILS) patriotic worker, was born June 10, 1808, in Columbia, S. C., and died in Montgomery; daughter of Robert and Sarah (Bozier) Hails, the former a captain in the Revolutionary War under Light Horse Harry Lee. She was the first president of the Hospital association of Montgomery. Married: Dr. Carnot Bellinger (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

BELSER, JAMES E., lawyer, representative in congress, was born December 22, 1805, in Charleston, S. C.; and died January 16, 1859, at Montgomery; son of William Belser of Charleston. His mother was a Miss Yvervant of South Carolina. The Belsers are descendants of a titled German family, and the South Carolina branch came to America in colonial times. When he was fifteen years old, James E. Belser's parents moved to Sumter District, S. C., where he was educated by the Rev. Jacob McWhorter. He moved to Montgomery, Ala., in 1825, read law in the office of Henry Goldthwaite and Benjamin Fitzpatrick and began to practice. He represented Montgomery County in the state legislature in 1828, and soon after became clerk in the county court. For several years he was one of the editors of the "Planter's Gazette," but later returned to the practice of law. In 1838 he was appointed solicitor, and was later elected to the position, from which he resigned after a few years. In 1842, Gov. Fitzpatrick appointed him commissioner of the state to visit Washington City, and procure a settlement of the claims of Alabama on the general government for moneys advanced in the Indian war of 1836. He succeeded in obtaining such legislation by Congress as led to the reimbursement of the state for its expenditures.

He was nominated by the Democratic party of Montgomery district for congress in 1843, and was elected over Hon. John W. A. Petit of Barbour, the Whig nominee. He served out his term, and declined re-election. While he was in congress, he supported strongly the annexation of Texas to the Union, the termination of the joint occupation of Oregon by United States and Great Britain, and the admission of Iowa and Florida into the Union as states. In 1853 he was elected to the state legislature to represent Montgomery County in the house, and was re-elected in 1857. He was an advocate of a system of internal improvement which included the present concentration of railroads in Montgomery, and the connection of North and South Alabama.

He was an adherent of the Democratic party until 1848, from which time he became allied politically with the Whig and Know-Nothing parties. Married: (1) in 1825, Jane Falconer, a relative of Col. J. R. Dillard, who died a few months after her marriage; (2) Adeline Jane Stokes, of Washington Court House, Ga. Children: 1. Martha Artemesia, m. James M. Dillehay, had two daughters, Mrs. A. M. Spong of Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. E. C. Maye of Newton; 2. Edwin James, was graduated from the University of Georgia, 1851, m. (1) Harriet Belser of Columbia, S. C., his cousin; (2) Josephine Abercrombie, of Columbus, Ga. Last residence: Montgomery.

BEMAN, SAMUEL S., lawyer, was the son of Rev. Nathan S. S. Beman, a scholar and educator of Georgia, who married Mrs. Yancey, the widowed mother of the late Hon. William Lowndes Yancey. He was thrown by a colt on a heap of rocks when he was twelve years old and his spine was injured by the fall. He grew no more in height but was otherwise well matured. He received his early education from his mother, then went to western New York, where his father had returned in 1824, and completed his education. In 1843 he came to Wetumpka and began to practice law with his half-brother, Hon. William L. Yancey.

He became interested in politics and canvassed with brilliant effect in 1844. Two years later he was the candidate of his party for Congress but was defeated by Hon. J. LaF. Cottrell of Lowndes, by twenty-nine votes. He canvassed the state in 1848, for Taylor. He moved to New York in 1849 and was a member of the New York legislature in 1853, but his speech in favor of the fugitive slave law during the session was his political death-knell. After serving his term, he retired temporarily from politics and became a temperance lecturer in Ohio. In 1856 he moved to Minnesota, and in 1859, was a member of the first legislature of Minnesota. He was again elected in 1871, to the senate from Winona County. Married. Children: 1. Nathan S., Seattle, Wash.; 2. Katherine, m. D. D. Olds, Wenatchee, Wash.

BENAGH, GEORGE WILLIAM, lawyer and teacher, was born August 24, 1824, at Lynchburg, Campbell County, Va., and died July 22, 1863, at Tuscaloosa; son of Maj. James and Elizabeth Mitchell (Richardson) Benagh, the former a native of County Down, Ireland, who emigrated to America with his parents at the age of seven and located in Virginia; was a major in the war of 1812, lawyer and clerk of the court at Lynchburg for 30 years; grandson of Samuel and Elizabeth (Robertson) Benagh, the former a native of Ireland who located in Virginia, 1790, and of William Miller and Sallie (Mitchell) Richardson of Gouchland County, Va. Other family lines of descent were, the Woodsons, and Lees of Virginia. James Benagh, a brother of Prof. Benagh, resided at Athens, where he was a planter and lawyer. George William Benagh was educated at a private school in Lynchburg, Va., and graduated in 1843 with the degree of A. M. from Randolph-Macon college. He read law under Judge Leigh, of Lynchburg, and practiced successfully until 1850, at which date he was elected professor of mathematics at the University of Alabama, a position he held with distinction until the time of his death. He left several finished, unpublished mathematical works on calculus and mechanics which were destroyed when the family home burned in 1873. He was the author of the almanac calculated for use in the South during the war when the blockade of the enemy left the section without a supply from the usual sources. He was a Methodist and a Democrat. Married: October 14, 1852, in Tuscaloosa, Mary Williams, daughter of Gov. Henry W. and Mary Ann (Battle) Collier (q. v.). Children: 1. Henry Watkins, m. Josephine Hollman Stratton and lives in Nashville, Tenn.; 2. Mary Collier, m. Ethelred Philips, of Columbus, Ga.; 3. Elizabeth Richardson, resides in Nashville. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BENAGH, JAMES, lawyer, was born February 23, 1828, at Lynchburg, Va.; son of James and Elizabeth (Richardson) Benagh; brother of George William Benagh (q. v.). He was educated at Lynchburg, Va.; studied law, was admitted to the bar, but did not practice. He served in the U. S. Army as captain and assistant adjutant general on Gen. Kirby Smith's staff. He returned to Virginia after the war, later removed to Athens where he was a planter until 1875 when he took up the practice of his profession. In 1886 he was appointed register in chancery. Married: in 1872, to Miss Ryan of Baltimore, Md. Residence: Athens.

BENHAM, VINCENT M., business man, secretary of state of Alabama, died in Lauderdale, in 1865. He was sheriff of Coosa County for several years, and was a business man. In 1851 he represented Lauderdale in the house and was elected secretary of state after sixteen ballots were taken. Mr. Benham's vote of sixty-four elected him over his principal opponent, Mr. Clitherall, who received fifty-eight votes. He was re-elected secretary of state, defeating John H. Caldwell, Esq., and Gen. Higgins, in 1853, but resigned before his term had expired. In the reorganization of the government in 1865, he was appointed judge of probate in his county, by Gov. Parsons, and died not long after receiving his commission. He was a Democrat. Last residence: Lauderdale.

BENNNERS, ALFRED HATCH, lawyer and chancellor northwestern division, was born February 22, 1849, at Greensboro, in Greene, now Hale County; son of Augustus and Jane (Hatch) Benners (q. v.). He was educated in the schools of Greensboro, and graduated A. B., 1868, from the Southern university. He entered upon the practice of law in 1870 at Greensboro, remaining there until 1874, when he removed to Dallas, Tex., 1875-85; returned to Greensboro, 1885-90, and in 1890 removed to Birmingham, where he continued to reside. In 1888-89 he represented Hale County in the legislature. Upon the death of John J. Altman, he was on January 26, 1905, appointed to be his successor as chancellor of the northwestern division; on November 8, 1906, he was elected to complete his unexpired term, and re-elected November 8, 1910, for a term of six years. He has practiced his profession in Birmingham since 1916. He is a Democrat, and an Episcopalian. Married: February 2, 1871, to Margaret Chadwick, daughter of Allen Cadwallader and Katherine (Erwin) Jones (q. v.). Children: 1. Augustus (q. v.); 2. Allen C., St. Louis, Mo.; 3. Margaret Erwin, m. John Talbert Morgan, Memphis, Tenn.; 4. Helen Jane, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BENNNERS, AUGUSTUS, sr., lawyer and legislator. Residence: Greensboro. See Addenda.

BENNNERS, AUGUSTUS, lawyer and legislator, was born May 13, 1872, at Greensboro; son of Alfred Hatch and Margaret (Jones) Benners (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools; and at the Southern university, graduating A. B., 1890. Mr. Benners began the practice of law at Birmingham in 1893, in partnership with his father, and is now a member of the firm of Percy, Benners and Burr. He served in the legislatures of 1900, 1903, and 1919. He is a Democrat. Married: July 30, 1908, at Morganfield, Ky., to Wilma, daughter of Oren and Frances Yarbrough, of that place. Residence: Birmingham.

BENNNERS, HAMILTON GRAHAM, lawyer and editor, was born May 8, 1868, at Greensboro, Hale County; son of Augustus and Jane (Hatch) Benners, the former a lawyer, and at one time a member of the State legislature from Greene County; grandson of Lucas Jacob and Fanny Benners of North Carolina, and of Alfred and Elizabeth (Vail) Hatch, of Arcola, Marengo County. Mr. Benners was graduated from Southern university, Greensboro, A. M., 1888. He located in Greensboro; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1890; became editor of the "Alabama Beacon" in 1892. He was elected to the State legislature in 1907. He is a Democrat and an Episcopalian. Married: February 25, 1897, to Annie LeVert, daughter of Charles Augustus and Mary (LeVert) Poellnitz, of Greensboro. Residence: Greensboro.

BENNNERS, I. H., justice of the peace. Residence: Birmingham.

BENNETT, ALBERT GALATIN, physician and major 12th battalion Alabama partisan rangers, was born in St. Clair County, and died February, 1882, at Ft. Payne; son of Vincent Bennett of St. Clair County. He was a member of the Alabama legislature, 1854-56; entered the Confederate service, 1862, as captain in Wheeler's battalion; was promoted major 12th battalion Alabama partisan rangers and discharged from the service on account of failing health. He removed to Texas but returned to Alabama; read law and was admitted to the bar, but did not practice; studied medicine and practiced that profession. He located in Gadsden, and was made a member of the examining board of physicians and was also connected with the government commissary at that place. He was a Democrat; a Methodist, and a Mason. Married: May 1, 1856, in Gadsden, to Sarah Frances, daughter of Turner and Nannie (Walker) Persons of Coweta County, Ga.; granddaughter of Jones and Randal (Robinson) Newnan, also of Coweta County. Children: 1. Alta, m. (1) Andrew Moody, (2) William C. D. Cook of Ft. Payne; 2. Laura Galatin, m. (1) Richard Stringer, (2) Stephen Earl Dobbs, Ft. Payne; 3. Nannie Alberta; 4. Albert Turner; 5. Eulalia Adaline, m. Stanton Walter McDonald, of Dayton, Tenn. Last residence: Ft. Payne.

BENSON, JAMES STOCKTON, merchant and legislator, was born October 4, 1883, at Langston, Jackson County; son of Newton Wesley and Susan (Middleton) Benson; grandson of James and Susan Benson. He was educated in the schools of his native town and at Jacksonville State normal college; taught one year after which he engaged in the mercantile business. He represented Jackson County in the legislature of 1907. He is a Democrat; Presbyterian; Mason; and a Woodman of the World. Married: June 5, 1906, to Mary Ethel, daughter of John and Mary Downey, of Jackson County. Residence: Langston.

BENSON, NIMROD EARLE, lawyer, was born May 10, 1794, in Spartanburg, S. C., and died September 28, 1854, in Montgomery; son of William Henry and Eleanor (Keys) Benson of South Carolina. He graduated at South Carolina college, Columbia, and there prepared for the law; was admitted to the bar in South Carolina and settled in Montgomery before the period of territorial government, the second lawyer to locate at that place. In 1821 and 1823, he was an intendant of the town; in 1825 and 1826 he was a member of the house of representatives, from Montgomery County; was appointed receiver in the land office when the last Creek cession was thrown on the market and retained this office until 1849; was elected judge of the county court, 1827; was mayor of Montgomery, 1846. A number of men who afterwards became distinguished read law under him, notably, Gov. Benjamin Fitzpatrick, Judge Henry Goldthwaite, Gov. George W. Towns, of Georgia and Senator George Goldthwaite. He was the receiver of public moneys in the Alabama land office for twenty-five years, and contracted the yellow fever on a trip to south Alabama in connection with his official duties and upon reaching home died of the malady. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and an Episcopalian. Married: Catherine Louise, daughter of Thomas and Anne (Wilson) Goldthwaite who lived at Woodbridge, England. Children: 1. Anne Golthwaite, m. John James Scott; 2. Mary, m. Col. Thomas O. Glascock, a prominent citizen of Montgomery; 3. Eleanor Keys; 4. William Henry, M. D., University of Maryland, assistant surgeon, C. S. Army, editor, died in Philadelphia, October 3, 1888; 5. Louise, m. Hugh William Henry; 6. Olivia, m. Philip Henry Trout. Last residence: Montgomery.

BENSON, WILLIAM WARDLAW, educator, was born March 13, 1868, at Oak Hill, Wilcox County; son of Joseph Preston and Mary Eliza (Ramsey) Benson, the former born near old Fort Bibb, not far from the present town of Forest Home, Butler County, lived there until grown, spent a while in Mobile, then became a merchant and a planter at Allenton, Wilcox County, lived at Forest Home, at which he was postmaster during twenty-four years, was second lieutenant, Co. B, First Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, was stationed at Pensacola, Port Hudson, and elsewhere, and was a prisoner on Johnson's Island; grandson of James Key and Lucy (Drake) Benson, who lived near old Fort Bibb, the former one of twelve children, another of whom was Nimrod (q. v.), was a pioneer in the settling of Montgomery; migrated from Virginia to South Carolina, was a soldier in the War of 1812, three years thereafter moved to Alabama, he and Lucy Drake having married in South Carolina, was a member of the small colony which settled in the "Flat" in Butler County, built the first house in the county, helped to build Fort Bibb, hunted and trapped with Thomas Hill, grandfather of Gov. Thomas Hill Watts, named Cedar, Wolf, Bear, Sturdivant, Pine Barren, and Breastwork creeks, was a member of the small party who found and buried the body of Capt. William Butler, slain by Indians, 1818, and of Abiezer Clark and Elizabeth (Wardlaw) Ramsey, the former moved in territorial time from Georgia to Mississippi, became a Methodist minister, his "appointment" including several counties in Alabama, wrote reminiscences of his time, the value of these being indicated by extended quotations in Rev. Anson West's "History of Alabama Methodism," and had three brothers and a sister, Anne, who became Mrs. Longino, mother of Gov. Andrew H. Longino of Mississippi. W. W. Benson obtained early education at Rosebud, Wilcox County, and received preparation for college at Forest Home academy. He attended Southern university, Greensboro, receiving in 1890 the degree of A. B., was class prophet, challenge debater, and winner of essayists medal; in summer of 1892 studied law under the direction of Dr. John B. Minor at the University of Virginia; in 1893 received from Southern university the degree of A. M., and spent six summers at School of the South, Knoxville, University of Chicago, and Columbia university. He taught, first at Bragg's, 1887; after graduation he taught in Fairview college, Binnsville, Miss.; at Ozark, and Orion; was superintendent of schools of Brundidge, 1893; Bolling, 1895-98; Fort Deposit, 1898-1904; Geneva, 1904-1908; Elba, 1908-10; president, 1910-13, of the Southeast Alabama agricultural school and experiment station, Abbeville, Henry County, and in 1913 was elected to, and began the work of director of the rural school course in the State normal college at Florence. In 1902 he was president of the South Alabama educational association, and in 1903 was a member of the first State text-book commission to select a uniform system of school books. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason, Odd Fellow, Red Man, and Woodman of the World, and a Knight of Pythias. He is unmarried. Residence: Florence.

BENTLEY, CHARLIE JULIAN, Baptist minister, was born September 14, 1866, near Wetumpka, Elmore County; son of Oliver Callaway, and Donna Maria (Mann) Bentley, who lived in Elmore, Coosa, and Tallapoosa Counties, the former a native of Chambers County, born November 7, 1841, near Lafayette, teacher and lawyer, was county superintendent of Elmore County about the time of the formation of that county; grandson of Hiram and Levicy Bentley, who came from Wilkes County, Ga., to Alabama in 1839, the former of whom served as a justice of the peace, and of John Henry and Donna (Ellis) Mann, who came from Georgia to Alabama in the thirties and settled in Elmore County. He received his early education in the public schools, taught principally by his father, at Alexander City, Rockford, and the country schools in Tallapoosa, Coosa and Elmore Counties. He began teaching when he was seventeen years old in Coosa County, studying medicine in his spare time. The death of his father three years later broke up his plans, and he continued to teach, going to San Saba County, Tex., for three years. He returned to Alabama, and began preaching in 1894. He taught for one year more, then gave up that profession entirely to enter the ministry. He attended the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1895-1896, and received a certificate of graduation the latter year. He has been a pastor of the Missionary Baptist church since 1895, doing evangelistic work and travelling much for the state board of missions. In 1913, he was stationed at Avondale as pastor of the Baptist church there. While teaching at Buyck, Elmore County he was postmaster of that place; and for several years was a member of the board of education of Elmore County. He has been a trustee of schools in several towns while a resident. He is a Democrat, and has served several times as a delegate to party conventions. He has been prelate and chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias, and is a member of the Golden Cross. Married: (1) August 8, 1886, at Central, Elmore County, Nannie Elizabeth, who died May 4, 1908, at Sylacauga, daughter of William Swepston and Sallie I. (Thomas) Wall, of Central, granddaughter of Thomas

Wall, sheriff of Coosa County, who farmed near Aixburg, and of William Thomas; (2) Mrs. Ada Jerome (Pruett) Bailey, daughter of Capt. Robert Pruett, of Mt. Olive. Children: 1. Charlie Swepston, m. Exa Crew, graduate of the University of Alabama, 1911, and of Howard College, 1910, Goodwater; 2. Bennie Oliver, graduate of Howard College, 1911, druggist, Birmingham; 3. William Covey, attended Howard College, two years, with Continental Gin Company, Birmingham; 4. Upshow Cranfill, attended Howard College, salesman Lake Clothing Company, Birmingham; 5. Grace Trumon, Birmingham; 6. Frances Willard, deceased; 7. Nannie Olivia; 8. John Broadus; 9. Mary Esther. Residence: Birmingham.

BENTLEY, EFFORD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Madison County; private and sergeant Virginia Militia; enrolled on May 2, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $44.10; sums received to date of publication of list, $110.25.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BENTLEY, JOHN S., probate judge and physician, grew to manhood in Coosa County, and died January 25, 1892, at Rockfield; son of Hiram and Levisa (Bentley) Bentley, natives of Elbert County, Ga., who settled in Chambers County, and later at Nixburg, Coosa County, where they passed the remainder of their lives. John S. Bentley was educated in the common schools of Alabama and taught in Central institute, Elmore County, and at Hanover, Coosa County. He took up the study of medicine alone and practiced the profession at Robinson Springs, Elmore County, for some years, being a "cold-water physician." He was justice of the peace, tax collector and tax assessor; served as clerk of the circuit court of Coosa County three terms and was elected probate judge of Coosa County 1874, 1880-1886. Married: (1) November 1, 1850, to Sarah C., daughter of I. M. Suttle, a merchant and later Probate judge of Coosa County; (2.) Mrs. E. Phillips, of Opelika. Children: 1. Mary L., m. T. J. Pennington; 2. Emma L., m. Rev. W. T. Stewman; 3. William H., a farmer of Coosa County; 4. Rufus A., Birmingham; 5. Archie D., probate judge of Coosa County; 6. Sinclair M., Montgomery; 7. John S.; 8. Oscee; 9. P. S., lawyer, Goodwater; 10. Sarah Belle. Last residence: Rockford.

BENTLEY, O. P., Missionary Baptist minister, living at Enterprise in 1913.

BERKOWITZ, HENRY, rabbi, a resident of Alabama from 1883-88, was born at Pittsburgh, Pa., on March 18, 1857; son of Louis and Henrietta (Jaroslowski) Berkowitz, both of foreign birth. He received his early education in the public schools of Pittsburgh, attended Cornell university, 1872-73; read law in Pittsburgh, 1873-77; from 1877-83 attended both the University of Cincinnati and the Hebrew union college, receiving the degree of B. C. from the former in 1883, and the postgraduate degree of D. D. from the latter in 1877. He became rabbi of the Congregation Shaarai Shamayin (Gates of Heaven), Mobile, September 1, 1883, removing to Kansas City, Mo., and later to Philadelphia, Pa. While in Mobile he published, "Bible Ethics," "First and Second Union Hebrew Reader," the latter in conjunction with Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, and "Judaism and the Social Question." The first humane society in Mobile was organized through the efforts of Rabbi Berkowitz. Married: October 28, 1883, to Miss Flora Brunn, of Coshocton, Coshocton County, Ohio. Residence: Philadelphia, Pa.

BERNEY, JAMES, physician and legislator, was born September 15, 1812, in Charleston, S. C., and died July 9, 1880, in Montgomery; son of John and Mary (Martin) Berney, the former a native of London, England, who emigrated to Charleston; grandson of Rev. ——— Martin, of Charleston. Dr. Berney received his preparatory education in his native city, and graduated from the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania, and from the Medical college of Paris, France. He located at Hayneville, in 1839, but later removed to Montgomery, where he successfully practiced his profession until his death. He represented Lowndes County in the State legislature, 1843, was originally a Whig, but later united with the Democratic party. He was appointed honorary commissioner to the Universal exposition, Paris, France, 1878. Dr. Berney was a Presbyterian and a Mason. Married: January 21, 1840, at "Belvoir," Dallas County, to Jane Elizabeth, daughter of Reuben and Mary (Phillips) Saffold (q. v.). Children: 1. John, deceased, unmarried; 2. Mary, deceased, m. Charles Smith, Mobile; 3. Saffold (q. v.) m. Mary Clifton, Mobile; 4. William, m. Elizabeth Witten Taylor; 5. Chollet, m. Brookie Barnett; 6. Phillippa, m. Dr. G. M. Rousseau, Montgomery; 7. Sophia, m. Joseph A. White, Richmond, Va.; 8. Robert, m. Anne ———, Richmond, Va.; 9. James, deceased, unmarried. Two other children of this union died in childhood. Last residence: Montgomery.

BERNEY, SAFFOLD, lawyer and jurist, born June 25, 1844, in Montgomery; son of James and Jane Elizabeth (Saffold) Berney (q. v.). He received his early education in private schools in Montgomery and later attended the Baltimore (Md.) academy; studied law in the office of his uncle, Judge Milton Jefferson Saffold (q. v.), Montgomery, and in 1866, admitted to the bar by the supreme court of Alabama. He practiced in Montgomery, at Eutaw, and in Mobile; for eighteen years one of the attorneys of the Mobile and Ohio railroad company. From March, 1903, to March, 1906, he was alderman of Mobile, being chairman of the committee of laws and ordinances. In August, 1907, he was appointed, by Gov. B. B. Comer, judge of the law and equity court of Mobile, and subsequently elected to this position. He enlisted as a private in Semple's Battery of Light Artillery, C. S. Army, March, 1862, and served in the Army of Tennessee to the close of the War of Secession, acting during 1864-65, as adjutant of Hallonquist's regiment of reserve artillery, in 1911 lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gen. Horatio Austill, commanding 2nd Brig., U. C. V. Author: "Hand Book of Alabama; a complete index to the State, with a geological map and an appendix of useful tables," published in 1878, in Mobile; a revised edition published in 1892; after which the State purchased the copyright, and all remaining copies of the book. He was a Democrat and Episcopalian. Married: May 27, 1868, at Eutaw, to Mary Clifton, daughter of James Innes and Henrietta Catherine (Bickley) Adams, who lived in Mobile, the former of Welsh descent, a native of Richmond, Va., whence he removed to Mobile. Children: 1. Henrietta, m. Paul Roberts, Nashville, Tenn.; 2. James Chandler, died, 1878, in Mobile; 3. Jane Elizabeth; 4. Clifton; 5. Robert, all unmarried and living in Mobile. Residence: Mobile.

BERNEY, WILLIAM, banker, was born May 27, 1846, in Montgomery and died Oct. 20, 1905, in that city; son of James and Jane Elizabeth (Saffold) Berney (q. v.). He received his early education in private schools in Montgomery and in Baltimore, Md. He enlisted in the Confederate Army, in the spring of 1864, at the age of eighteen years, at Dalton, Ga., serving as ordnance sergeant in Hallonquist's regiment of reserve artillery, and was in the battles of Dalton, Resaca, Atlanta, and other engagements. After the war he was deputy collector of internal revenue of the second district of Alabama, having charge of large amounts of money. He was afterwards cashier for Lehman, Durr and company, a commission house, dealing in cotton, Montgomery. In 1871 he removed to Birmingham, in which city he was agent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company. During 1875, he farmed, and was bookkeeper for the First National bank of Birmingham. Later he was made cashier and finally president of that institution. He was also president of the Central bank of Birmingham, and of the Berney National bank. Returning to Montgomery, he became vice-president of the bank of Montgomery; president of the Fourth National bank, and in 1899, president of the American National bank. He was commander of Camp Lomax, United Confederate Veterans, major on the staff of Gen. George P. Harrison, commander of the U. C. V. He was a Democrat and Presbyterian. Married: (1) April 29, 1868, in Montgomery, Lizzie J., daughter of Dr. Witten P. and — Taylor, who lived in Montgomery, (2) September 30, 1902, Florella, daughter of Angus Robertson and — McDonald, of Montgomery, the former a native of Moore County, N. C., his parents being natives of Scotland, where the father held a military office, teacher, author of an unpublished English grammar, and died at the age of ninety-five, in Montgomery, buried in Union Springs beside his wife, both Presbyterians. Children: by the first wife, 1. Rebecca Durr, m. Richard Evans, lawyer, Birmingham; 2. Lizzie Witten, m. Tunstall B. Perry, merchant and broker, Birmingham; 3. Mary Chollet. Last residence: Montgomery.

BERRY, B. E., principal of the Madison County high school in 1913. Residence: Huntsville.

BERRY, JAMES HENDERSON, lawyer and U. S. senator, was born at Bellefonte, Jackson County, May 15, 1841, and died at Bentonville, January 30, 1913; son of James M. and Isabella (Orr) Berry, of that county. He removed to Arkansas with his parents in 1848 and was educated in the private schools of that state; served as 2nd lieutenant 16th Arkansas infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and lost a leg at Corinth; returned to Alabama and taught school at Ozark at the same time studying law; admitted to the Arkansas bar, 1866; served as a member of the Arkansas house of representatives three terms, and was speaker one term; governor of the state, 1882, and U. S. senator, 1889, 1895, and 1901. Until his death, he practiced his profession at Bentonville. Married: October 1865, at Ozark, to Lizzie Quaile, of that place. Last residence: Bentonville, Ark.

BERRY, OBEDIAH, mayor of Tuscaloosa, 1864-65; 1873, 1877-78. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BERRY, RANDALL DUCKWORTH, lawyer, was born December 27, 1842, at Portland, Dallas County; son of Alfred and Nancy (Duckworth) Berry, the former a native of Morgan County, who lived later in Tuscaloosa, Marion and Selma, a Confederate soldier; grandson of John and Jane (Weeks) Berry, of Morgan County, and of Randall and Patsy (McCormic) Duckworth of Portland, Dallas County, a relative of Admiral Sir J. T. Duckworth who was in command of the English naval squadron that forced the narrow channel of the Dardanelles in 1808, against the Turkish fortifications and drawings of the engagement are in the possession of the subject of this sketch. Randall Duckworth Berry received his early education in the primary department of the old Howard college, Marion, and later attended a private school in Selma, taught by Prof. E. M. Holloway. He studied law in Selma under the tutelage of Fellows and John, attorneys, and received his license on examination by the supreme court of Alabama. He has practiced his profession in Selma ever since being admitted to the bar. On motion of Gen. E. W. Pettus he was admitted to practice in the U. S. district court; was a member city council of Selma, 1872-73; city attorney of Selma, 1905; member of legislature from Dallas County 1882-83, and introduced the bill to create a department of immigration; member legislature 1886-87, and aided in creating the department of agriculture. He entered the Confederate Army as corporal in Co. A, Fourth Alabama regiment infantry, was promoted to lieutenant in Capt. Jas. A. McCaw's Co., 62nd Alabama infantry regiment, was wounded at Bull Run, July 21, 1861, and at the battles of Seven Pines and Malvern Hill. He was a member of the "Lightning Committee" of Dallas

GENERAL JOHN COFFEE

County that helped destroy the Republican party in the blackbelt. He is a Democrat, a Baptist; and a member of the Grange at Burnsville at one time. Married: April 25, 1878, at Riderville, Chilton County, to Sallie Marsh, daughter of German and Mary Carson (Brantly) Burns of that place; granddaughter of Adam Carson, a Revolutionary soldier, from Wilkes County, Ga., and who also served with Gen. Andrew Jackson in the Seminole and Florida War. Children: 1. Paul Burns, m. Ida Cramer, Selma; 2. Alfred, m. Ida Hendricks, Pensacola, Fla.; 3. John Heflin, m. Dee Mann, Selma; 4. Jefferson Clay, m. Cemira Mann, Selma; 5. Burnise, m. Theron R. Yates, Lockhart. Residence: Selma.

BESTOR, DANIEL PERRIN, sr., Baptist minister and teacher, was born February, 1797, in Suffield, Conn., and died April 9, 1869, in Mobile; son of Daniel Perrin Bestor of Connecticut, a major in the Revolutionary War. The family were French Huguenots. After a thorough classical preparation he went to Lexington, Ky., when a very young man and studied law, but under the preaching of the celebrated Dr. Fishback he was converted and began preaching at twenty-two years of age. He removed to Athens, about 1819; settled at La Grange several years later where he was at the head of a school and preached to several churches. He was one of the presbytery that constituted Courtland church, May 5, 1827, and held that pastorate six years. He removed to Greensboro in 1833 and established a female school which at once sprang into statewide popularity. In 1846 he settled in Sumter County where he devoted himself to farming and preaching. In 1856, he removed to Mississippi and bought a plantation which he conducted for many years, making his residence in Mobile a part of the time. He served the pastorate of the Baptist church at Columbus, Miss., in his later life, and held this charge at the time of his death. In addition to the foregoing he served pastorates at Spring Hill, Gainesville, Sumterville, Livingston and Mobile. His ministerial labors were always without remuneration. He was a member of the legislature in Alabama and in Mississippi; a member of the board of trustees of the Alabama university during the administration of Dr. Manly. He was frequently invited to assume the presidency of colleges and high schools, and called to the pastorates of churches in the North, but declined them all to remain in the section of his adoption. Married: (1) in 1826, to Elizabeth J., daughter of Maj. John L. Townes, a native of Amelia County, Va., a soldier of the War of 1812, who located in Madison County, and was a member of the State constitutional convention, 1819; (2) Mrs. Bledsoe, daughter of Maj. Thomas G. Blewett of Columbus, Miss. Children: two sons killed in battle in the War of Secession; 3. Frank Egglestin, lieutenant in Ball's cavalry regiment, C. S. Army, killed in battle April, 1864; 4. Daniel Perrin, (q. v.). Two daughters are dead; (7) Alma B., m. Col. J. C. Brown, East Lake. Last residence: Columbus, Miss.

BESTOR, DANIEL PERRIN, jr., lawyer, mayor of Mobile, was born March 27, 1840, in Greensboro, Hale, then Greene County, and died June 6, 1911, in Mobile; son of Rev. Daniel P. and Eliza (Townes) Bestor (q. v.). Daniel Perrin Bestor after receiving a thorough preparatory training, graduated at the University of Mississippi with the A. B. degree, 1860, and after the summer vacation spent on his father's plantation in Mississippi, began the study of the law in the office of Robert H. Smith, Mobile. His legal education was interrupted by the War, but resumed in the same office at the conclusion of hostilities. He volunteered in 1861 with the 37th Mississippi regular infantry, and in 1862 became a member of the signal service. He served in Gen. Stonewall Jackson's corps until the latter was killed at Chancellorsville; after which he was in Ewell's and in Early's command until the close of the War. He was admitted to the bar in Mobile in the spring of 1867; mayor of Mobile, 1877; delegate to the National Democratic convention that nominated Grover Cleveland for president, 1884, and again delegate in 1888. He was a member of the State bar association; a Baptist; a Prohibitionist; Democrat and Mason. In 1907 the degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by Howard college, East Lake. He was president of the board of trustees of the Medical college of Alabama, Mobile. Married: December 23, 1873, to Nellie Tarleton, of Mobile. Children: 1. Daniel Perrin, Jr.; 2. George Tarleton; 3. a daughter. Last residence: Mobile.

BETHEA, HENRY, planter, was born in 1836, in Wilcox County; son of Tristram B. and Eugenia (Bethea) Bethea (q. v.); grandson of David Bethea. He was educated in a preparatory school at Charlottesville, Va., and was graduated in medicine, at New Orleans, 1861. Immediately after his graduation, he enlisted in the Third Alabama infantry, C. S. Army, as a private. He was soon made assistant surgeon and, as such, left the state with the regiment, which was the first from Alabama to reach Virginia. He participated in all the battles in which his regiment was engaged, and was never wounded, taken prisoner, or sick. He left the medical department of the army in December, 1861, and was for some time with Semple's battalion. During the battle of Murfreesboro, he was promoted to second lieutenant of Hawkins's battalion of sharpshooters. In 1863, orders were issued that all detailed privates should return to their commands, and he was sent to northern Alabama as commander of a company of scouts. Afterward, he was commissioned assistant adjutant general on Gen. Dan Adam's staff, and served in this capacity until the end of the war. Soon after the war, in the spring of 1865, he settled on a plantation in Marengo County, where he farmed until his death. He never practiced his profession of medicine. He was a Democrat, and a member of the order of Elks. Married: Ida E. Rice, daughter of Judge Samuel F. Rice, of Montgomery. She died in 1865. Children: 1. Samuel Rice, planter, m. the daughter of Capt.

William M. Selden, of Faunsdale. Last residence: Marengo County.

BETHEA, SUMTER, business man, was born June 17, 1861, in Marion County; son of John and Elizabeth Ann Bethea, the former a lieutenant in the C. S. Army who died at the siege of Vicksburg, 1863; the latter a writer of fiction, author of several books that attained local note; grandson of John and Hannah (Walker) Bethea, of Marion County, S. C. He is a descendant of John Bethea who emigrated from England to Virginia in 1675. His son, John, great-great-grandfather of Sumter Bethea, was an officer in Gen. Sumter's army, and his grandson, John, was a lieutenant in the War of 1812. The Bethea family, descended from French Huguenots, who settled in England before coming to America, are still in possession of a large part of the land ceded to them in South Carolina by the crown of England. Sumter Bethea was educated in the district schools of Marion, S. C., and later in Bingham School, North Carolina. He located in Birmingham in 1888 when he engaged in his present business of real estate broker. He is owner of many city lots in Birmingham. He is a Democrat, a Presbyterian, and is past chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, and a member of the grand lodge of that order. Married: March 7, 1887, Miriam Woodward, daughter of Col. Joseph A. and Minerva (Rice) Woodward, of Talladega, both descendants of old English settlers in Virginia. Col. Woodward spent several years in the state legislature and represented Winnsboro district in congress for ten years. He was a personal friend of John C. Calhoun, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, and was with Morse when he sent the first telegraphic message. Children: 1. Agnes; 2. Ellen, d. in infancy; 3. Elizabeth; 4. Estelle; 5. Malcolm; 6. Mary; 7. Roderick. Residence: Birmingham.

BETHEA, TRISTRAM B., planter, was born April 12, 1810, in Marion district, S. C.; and died, 1879, in Montgomery. He is descended from an early French Huguenot family of that state which was first represented in this country by three brothers who settled in South Carolina long before the Revolutionary War and played a conspicuous part in that war. He came with his parents to Claiborne, Monroe County during his childhood. The death of his father, following soon after, deprived him of many early advantages. He received a plain education, read law under Gov. Bagby and under Hon. C. M. Conrad at New Orleans. After a short residence in that city, he moved to Wilcox County and engaged in planting and in the practice of law there from 1832 until 1850. He was on the electoral ticket for Cass and Butler in 1848 and voted for them in the electoral college.

He moved to Mobile in 1850 and was elected to the senate on the democratic ticket from that city three years later. In 1855, he was again elected to the legislature, this time as representative of the Know-Nothing party. Soon after he became a planter in Montgomery County and was sent to the legislature from there for two terms. Under an act of the legislature providing for a commission to adjust the state debt, Mr. Bethea, with Gov. Houston and Levi W. Lawler, made the required adjustment, greatly to the satisfaction of the people of the state. Married: Eugenia Bethea, of Wilcox, daughter of David Bethea, an early settler of South Carolina. Children: 1. Henry (q. v.); 2. Alfred, deceased, served in the C. S. Army; 3. Theodore B., a lieutenant in the C. S. Army, who fell while fighting at Cheha; 4. A. J., served in the C. S. Army, resides in Marengo County; 5. Mary, deceased, m., Dr. Philip Fitzpatrick; 6. Cornelia, m. Hon. Malcolm Graham, of Alabama. Last residence: Montgomery.

BETHEA, WILLIAM MARION, lawyer, was born June 16, 1857, near Raleigh, Smith County, Miss.; son of John and Elizabeth Ann Bethea, the former a native of Marion County, N. C., who moved to Mississippi about 1850, was commissioned lieutenant in the C. S. Army, and died at the siege of Vicksburg, 1863, the latter a writer of fiction; grandson of John and Hannah (Walker) Bethea, of Marion County, S. C. The ancestors on both sides were among Marion's men in the Revolutionary War. They were descended from French Huguenots, who fled from Alpine, France, to England, settled near the border of Scotland for two generations and came to America after the battle of Culloden. They acquired about twenty thousand acres of land in Marion County, S. C., most of which is still held by their posterity. There were over two hundred of the name who enlisted in the War of Secession. After his father's death, William Marion Bethea went with his mother back to Marion County, S. C., where he received his early schooling. He attended Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., but did not graduate. He taught school in Talladega for six years and in his leisure, studied law. In 1884, he was admitted to the bar, moved to Birmingham later in the year, and began to practice law. He was a partner of Judge Charles A. Senn for several years, but since 1890 has practiced alone. He is a Democrat and has been a delegate to all the state and county conventions, is a Methodist, and a Master Mason. Married: December 19, 1889, Cora, of Birmingham, daughter of Rufus and America (Walker) Hagood. Children: 1. Rufus H.; 2. William M., jr.; 3. Helen W.; 4. Philip. Residence: Birmingham.

BETHUNE, DAVID S., lawyer, State senator, and member constitutional convention, 1901, was born in Sumter County, S. C.; son of John and Frances (Shaw) Bethune, of Pike and Bullock Counties. He graduated from the Oglethorpe university, Midway, Ga., in 1858. He began the practice of law at Union Springs, was State senator, 1896-97, and a member of the constitutional convention of 1901. During the War of Secession he was a member of the 1st Alabama volunteers, 1861, lieutenant, Co. B, 51st Alabama cavalry regiment, and later adjutant of the latter company. He is a Democrat and a Presbyterian. Married: (1) in November, 1864, to C. F. McLean; (2) in September, 1891, to M. V. McLean. Last residence: Union Springs.

BETHUNE, WILLIAM C., lieutenant-colonel, 57th, also called the 54th, Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BETTS, EDWARD CHAMBERS, lawyer, planter and commissioner of agriculture was born August 13, 1820, ten miles from Huntsville in Madison County, on his father's plantation, and died September 18, 1891, at Huntsville; son of Charles Edward and Martha Cousins (Chambers) Betts, the former a native of Lunenburg, Mecklenburg County, Va., who later lived at Boydton, finally locating in Madison County, the latter a sister of U. S. Senator Henry C. Chambers for whom Chambers County is named; grandson of Elisha and Mary (Parrot) Betts. Edward Chambers Betts received his elementary education in private schools in Madison County and under private tutors. He attended the University of Virginia and studied and traveled abroad and in the east. After practicing law for some years he retired to his plantation. He served several terms in the Alabama legislature; was judge of the county court of Madison County; first commissioner of agriculture of Alabama; and trustee University of Alabama, a number of years. He was a Democrat and an Episcopalian. Married: in 1854, at Courtland, to Virginia Augusta, daughter of John M. and Cynthia (Early) Swope of that place; granddaughter of Peter and Ann Adams (Smith) Early; great-granddaughter of Joel Early; great-great-granddaughter of Jeremiah Early and wife, a Miss Buford, the former who immigrated from Donegal County, Ireland to Virginia about 1702. Gen. Jubal A. Early and Bishop John Early were among his descendants and he was a lineal descendant of Carbri Lifichar, an ancient king of Ireland, born A. D. 225 and the name was Anglicised as Early during the reigns of the Henrys and Edwards. Children: 1. Rostan, m. Mattie Minor Meriwether; 2. Tancred, m. Maude Minor Brown, (q. v.); 3. Victor, m. Lucy Lee Winston; 4. Augusta Ada Kortrecht; 5. Chambers. Last residence: Huntsville.

BETTS, TANCRED, lawyer and circuit judge, was born September 16, 1861, at Huntsville, Madison County; son of Edward Chambers and Virginia Augusta (Swoope) Betts (q. v.). Mr. Betts received his early education in the public schools of Huntsville; graduated senior captain, Alabama corps of cadets, University of Alabama, M. A., 1881; editor-in-chief "University Monthly," 1880-81; studied law at the University of Alabama and completed his course by private reading in his father's office; and was admitted to the bar at Huntsville, 1886. He was appointed solicitor of Madison County by Gov. Joseph E. Johnston, November 21, 1898; succeeded himself by election; trustee Alabama polytechnic institute; appointed judge of the law and equity court of Madison County, March 1, 1907, by Gov. B. B. Comer; chairman Democratic executive committee of Madison County, 1890-96, and 1898-1902; member state and congressional committees. He is an Episcopalian. Married: April 2, 1888, at Auburn, Maude Minor, daughter of Dr. William LeRoy and Sallie (Fleming) Broun (q. v.). Children: 1. Sallie LeRoy, m. James Harvey Pride; 2. Edward Chambers, captain in U. S. Army. Residence: Huntsville.

BETTS, WILLIAM FRANKLIN, physician, was born November 7, 1870, at Burnt Corn, Conecuh County; son of William Hopkins and Virginia E. (Morley) Betts, the former a native of Burnt Corn, who lived at that place all his life, and served in the C. S. Army as a private in the Fifth Alabama infantry regiment, Riley's company, participating at Gettysburg, first and second Manassas, Sharpsburg, and other places; grandson of Isaac and Nancy Betts, of Burnt Corn, and of Richard and Eliza Morley, of Burnt Corn; great-grandson of Sam Betts, who moved to Monroe County from Delaware. He received his early education at Burnt Corn; attended Southern University at Greensboro, 1886-1888; the university of Virginia, 1888-1890; and was graduated from Tulane university, M. D., 1892. He practiced medicine at Jennings and Vinton, La., a short time in 1892; moved to Meridian, Miss., and continued his profession there for two years; practiced at Burnt Corn for six years; and since 1900 has been conducting his practice at Evergreen. He was coroner of Conecuh County for two years; county physician, two years; county health officer, two years; is health officer of Evergreen; is a junior counsellor of the Alabama State Medical Association; secretary of the Conecuh County Medical Society; member of the pension board of examiners of Confederate veterans; is a Democrat; a Methodist; Knight of Pythias; and a Royal Arch Mason. Married: (1) October 14, 1893, to Fannie Young, of Meridian, Miss., who died soon after her marriage; (2) November 6, 1895, to Daisy Frazer, of Mobile, daughter of Rev. J. S. and Ella Frazer, of Mobile, the former who is presiding elder of the Mobile district of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, who had filled the same position on the Pensacola, Selma, and Montgomery districts, is a trustee of the Southern university and of the Auburn college of agriculture; granddaughter of Mrs. Fanny Chapman, of Evergreen. Residence: Evergreen.

BETTS, WILLIAM J., major, lieutenant-colonel, 13th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BEVERS, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 73, and a resident of Limestone County; private Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on December 11, 1823, under act of Congress of March 18, 1818, payment to date from October 20, 1823; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $275.08. Died December, 1826.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BEVILLE, EDWARD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Madison County; private Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on January 5, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $36.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $91.65.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 513, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Madison County, June 1, 1840, aged 78.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

"DIED—On the 15th of March, 1847, at her residence in Madison County, Ala., Mary Beville, in the 84th year of her age. And on the 20th of September, 1847, Edward Beville, Sen., her husband, died at the same place, in the 88th year of his age. They emigrated from Virginia, Mecklenburg County, to North Carolina, about the year 1805, and from there to this county about 1823. Edward Beville, Sen., was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and drew a pension at the time of his death; he was a great lover of liberty, and often spoke of the prosperity of his country. The writer has been acquainted with him for the last 15 or 20 years—he was strictly honest and a great lover of truth, respected and esteemed by all who knew him. O. R."—The Democrat, Huntsville, Ala., Oct. 27, 1847.

BIBB, BENAIAH SMITH, planter, legislator, and judge, was born September 30, 1796, in Elbert County, Ga., and died February 17, 1884; son of William and Sally (Wyatt) Bibb; brother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.); Gov. Thomas Bibb (q. v.); John Dandridge Bibb (q. v.); and of Rev. Peyton Bibb (q. v.). He came to Montgomery in 1822 as a planter and in 1825 was elected judge of the county court. He removed to Morgan County in 1827 and represented that county in the legislature of 1828. Returning to Montgomery County he was again elected judge of the county court in 1832, remaining in this position for twelve years, and serving as senator from this county, 1834-35. In 1845 and 1847 he was elected as representative in the legislature and in 1851 was elected over General Fair to the senate. He was elected judge of the criminal court for the city and county of Montgomery in 1864 but was deposed in 1865 by Governor Smith for having taken an active part in the War of Secession. Before the war he was an old time Whig and afterwards a Democrat. He was a Methodist Protestant. Married: January 19, 1822, in Elbert County, Ga., to Sophia Lucy Ann Gilmer (q. v.). Children: 1. William Joseph, m. Ann Rogers, of La Grange, Ga.; 2. George R., m. Mary E. Lipscomb; 3. Louisa S.; 4. Sarah E., m. (1) Dr. William T. Eldridge, (2) John Hutcheson; 5. Martha Dandridge, m. her cousin Joseph B. Bibb (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, JOHN DANDRIDGE, lawyer, legislator, judge and planter, was born March 10, 1788, in Prince Edward County, Va., died May 9, 1848, in Carroll County, Miss., and is buried in Montgomery; son of William and Sally Wyatt Bibb; brother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.); Gov. Thomas Bibb (q. v.); Rev. Peyton Bibb (q. v.); and of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.). He studied law in the office of Judge William H. Crawford, of Georgia, and later entered into a partnership with him. He removed to Madison County, Mississippi Territory, in 1814, where he became a planter. In 1818, he removed to Montgomery, was judge of the territorial court, a member of the constitutional convention of 1819, and State senator from Montgomery County in 1822. He then located above Decatur, in Morgan County, later returned to Montgomery, and finally settled on his plantation on the Yazoo River, Carroll Parish, Miss. Married: May 6, 1812, at Petersburg, Ga., to Mary Xenia, daughter of John and Frances (Thompson) Oliver, the former a native of near Petersburg, Va., who removed to Petersburg, Elbert County, Ga., where he became an extensive planter and merchant and who owned the point of land from which plied a ferry to both the South Carolina and Georgia side; granddaughter of Dionysius and Mary Ann (Winfrey) Oliver, the former a native of Petersburg, Va., who removed to Broad River settlement, Ga., when he served in the Revolution as captain of a privateer, was with General Lincoln at the sieges of Savannah and Augusta, in the battles of King's Mountain and Kettle Creek, in Wilkes County, captured by the British, a most successful planter and slave holder, and of William and Mary (Wells) Thompson, the former a native of Chesterfield County, Va.; great-granddaughter of Valentine Winfrey, of Virginia, of Thomas and Mary (McCartie) Oliver, of York County, Va., who sometime before the Revolution removed to Petersburg, Va., and of Thomas and Mary Wells, the former a native of Bristol Parish, Chesterfield County, Va., of Robert Thompson, who married twice, his second wife being Sarah Farley, and who accumulated great wealth and is thought to have been a goldsmith; great-great-granddaughter of John Oliver of York County, Va., of Florance and Mary (Wright) McCartie, of York County, Va., the former son or nephew of Dennis McCartie, the Irish immigrant, who was a lawyer of Virginia, of Robert and Elizabeth (Stewart) Thompson, the former a goldsmith and planter of Henrico County, Va., and of Thomas and Grace Wells, the former a planter of Chesterfield County, Va., and holder of several land grants of Virginia; great-great-granddaughter of Dionysius Wright, justice of James County, Va., in 1702. Children: 1. Charles Sydney; 2. Elvira Antionette, m. Dr. Samuel B. Malone, of Columbus, Miss.; 3. Sarah Frances; 4. Mary Dandridge; 5. William Crawford, m. (1) Priscilla E. Sims, of Tuscaloosa, (2) Rebecca Lanier Harries, parents of William Crawford Bibb, jr., (q. v.); 6. Edwin Augustus; 7. Lavinia Arabella; 8. John Dandridge; 9. Dandridge Asbury, m. Emma Taylor; 10. Algernon Sydney, m. (1) Mary Carraway, (2) Miss Hoard, of Murfreesboro, Tenn.; 11. Mary Cornelia; 12. Laura Angerona, m. Henry L. Rogers, of LaGrange, Ga., and Tuskegee. Last residence: Carroll County, Miss.

BIBB, JOSEPH BENAIAH, lawyer and colonel, C. S. Army, was born in 1822, at "Spring Hill," Elmore County, and died September 14, 1869, in Montgomery; son of Rev. Peyton and Martha (Cobb) Bibb (q. v.). He was without a college education but studied law and located in Montgomery for the practice. At the same time he carried on his planting interests. In the old "Montgomery True Blues" he held the office of second lieutenant, having received his commission March 23, 1847; was inspector, with rank of major, 15th brigade, Alabama militia, commissioned March 19, 1850; captain, "Montgomery Rifles," organized as minute men at the call of Gov. A. B. Moore, to take Fort Morgan in time to prevent federal reinforcement, January-March, 1861. After his return he raised six companies which formed part of the 23rd Alabama infantry regiment, of which he became lieutenant-colonel. This regiment fought at Vicksburg where Col. F. K. Beck was wounded, Lieut. Col. Bibb acting as commanding officer, at Missionary Ridge, Resaca, from Atlanta to Jonesboro, Columbia, Nashville, and at Bentonville, Tenn. He was wounded at Nashville. Col. Bibb was retained as colonel of the 23rd regiment with which the 46th Alabama infantry regiment was consolidated. He was recommended by Gen. Joseph E. Johnston for appointment as brigadier-general but the war closed without action. He declined the nomination for the position of representative in the general assembly because of unwillingness to serve in a body containing negroes. His death was caused by tuberculosis resulting from the wound received at Nashville. He was an Odd Fellow. Married: January 10, 1849, in Montgomery, to Martha Dandridge, his first cousin, daughter of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.) and Sophie Lucy Ann (Gilmer) Bibb (q. v.). Children: 1. Dr. William G. (q. v.), m. Susie Dunlap, daughter of Gov. James D. Porter, of Tennessee; 2. Peyton Benajah (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, PEYTON, planter and Methodist minister, was born May 26, 1784, in Prince Edward County, Va., and died October 13, 1840, at his home near Robinson Springs, Elmore County; son of William and Sally (Wyatt) Bibb; brother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.); Gov. Thomas Bibb (q. v.); John Dandridge Bibb (q. v.); and of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.). He removed to Alabama from Abbeville District, S. C., in 1820, settling in Autauga, now Elmore County, and built a residence called "Spring Hill," about eight miles north of Montgomery. He built a tanyard and on a nearby creek a grist mill and navigated the Alabama River to Mobile for supplies by means of flat-boats. He placed on the river two steamboats, the Monroe and the Caroline, the first is thought probably to have been the second boat to ascend the river as high as Montgomery. For a time he lived in Montgomery and for the last fifteen years preceding his death was a Methodist Protestant minister. Married: about 1818, to Martha Cobb, niece of William Cobb. Children: 1. Nancy, m. James Terry; 2. Edna, m. Zachariah Watkins; 3. Harriet, m. Dr. Albert Gallatin Goodwyn, parents of Albert Taylor Goodwyn (q. v.); 4. Peyton Dandridge; 5. Joseph B. Bibb (q. v.); 6. Caroline, m. Walter L. Coleman (q. v.); 7. Frances, m. (1) Joseph P. Saffold, (q. v.); (2) Dr. Walter Jackson (q. v.). Last residence: Robinson Springs.

BIBB, PEYTON BENAHAH, naval officer, was born March 11, 1857, in Montgomery, and died July 30, 1906, in New York City; son of Joseph Benajah and Martha Dandridge (Bibb) Bibb (q.

v.); brother of William George Bibb (q. v.). He was educated in the private schools of Montgomery, at Virginia military institute, and graduated from the United States military academy, Annapolis, in 1878. He made one cruise to Europe, one to the Pacific Coast, spent two years in the United States coast survey, and in 1883 was made an ensign. He resigned, locating in Montgomery in 1884, when he took up civil engineering. In 1886 he accepted the general managership of the Montgomery iron works and in 1895 was master of the dock yard at Port Royal, S. C. He resigned because of ill health and went to reside on a farm near Cartersville, Ga. He was captain of the "Montgomery True Blues," 1886-90; lieutenant colonel and aide on the staff of Gov. Thomas G. Jones, 1890-94; and colonel and inspector general on the staff of Gov. William C. Oates, 1894, resigning in 1895. Married: November 10, 1887, at Clarendon, Ga., to Josephine Martin, of Augusta, Ga., great-granddaughter of Gen. Elijah Clark. No children. Last residence: New York City.

BIBB, PORTER, captain, C. S. Army, was born in 1839, and died February 8, 1915, at Belle Mina; son of Porter and Mary P. (Betts) Bibb, the former a graduate of the University of Virginia and a planter of Limestone County; grandson of Thomas and Permelia (Thompson) Bibb (q. v.) and of Elisha and Martha (Chambers) Betts, both natives of Virginia, who early settled in Madison County, the former a soldier in the War of 1812. He was reared on a farm, attended the common schools of his county, and later Greene academy, at Huntsville. He went to Memphis, Tenn., in 1859, where he took up the study of law. He came home in 1860, organized a company, and entered the Confederate Army as first lieutenant in 1861, in Co. E, 40th Tennessee regiment. This company offered their services to Alabama but the quota was full and they were rejected. They enlisted for twelve months and when the term of enlistment had expired they were prisoners of war at Johnson's Island, remained in prison for six months and were exchanged at Vicksburg. After his release he served until the end of the war as brigade quartermaster to Brigadier General Alpheus Baker. He returned to Belle Mina, after the war and engaged in farming. He represented Limestone County in 1883-84, in the State legislature, was notary public and ex-officio justice of the peace. He was a Mason and a Knight of Honor. Married: 1864, in Marengo County, to Amelia, daughter of Nathan and Amanda (Taliaferro) Bradley, of that place; granddaughter of Maj. Benjamin B. and Martha (Watkins) Taliaferro, of Marengo County; great-granddaughter of Gen. Benjamin and Martha (Meriwether) Taliaferro, the former a native of Virginia, appointed a lieutenant in one of the Virginia regiments, which was afterwards placed upon the continental establishment, commanded a company under General Washington in the Jerseys, in 1777-78, later joined the southern army under the command of Generals Lee and Lincoln, captured at Charleston, paroled, removed to Broad River settlement, Elbert County, Ga., in 1784, president of the State senate, member of the United States congress, member of the legislature which passed the Yazoo act, voted against it, and later judge of the superior court, and of James and Jane (Thompson) Watkins, the former a native of Prince Edward County, Va., who removed to Elbert County, Ga.; great-great-granddaughter of Zach Taliaferro, who emigrated from Italy to Virginia, settling in Williamsburg and later removing to Amherst County, Va., of James and Martha (Thompson) Watkins, the former a native of Amelia County, Va., who removed to Georgia about 1796, of David and Mary (Harvie) Meriwether, the former of Amherst County, Va., who removed to Elbert County, Ga., and of Isham and Mary Ann (Oliver) Thompson; great-great-great-granddaughter of Robert Thompson, of Chesterfield County and Branch's Creek, a planter and goldsmith, of William and Martha Watkins, of Chesterfield County, Va., the former's father the progenitor of the family that came from Wales and settled between the York and James Rivers, in Virginia, of Thomas and Mary (McCartie) Oliver, of Bruton Parish, York County, Va., of Thomas and Elizabeth (Thornton) Meriwether, and of John Harvie and wife, a Miss Gaines, the former a native of Gargunnock, Stirlingshire, Scotland, who emigrated to Virginia, settling in Albemarle County where he died, his wife removing after his death to the Broad River settlement, Elbert County, Ga.; great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Florence McCartie, son or nephew of Capt. Dennis McCartie, the Irish immigrant to Virginia, and related to the distinguished Florance family in the south of Ireland, of John Oliver, planter who lived in the parish of Hampton, York County, Va., and of David and Anne (Holmes) Meriwether; great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of George Holmes, of King and Queen County, Va., of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Meriwether, of New Kent County, Va., the former a native of Wales and from whom the Meriwethers of the south and west trace their ancestry; great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of David Crawford, of Asasquin, New Kent County, Va., and of Nicholas Meriwether, of Wales. Children: 1. Bradley, m. Josephine S. Ashford; 2. Mary P., m. Benjamin D. Lindsays, of Belle Mina; 3. Augusta, m. (1) Edmond P. Garrett, (2) George Duncan, of Belle Mina; 4. Robert C., m. Camilla Madding, of Huntsville; 5. Benajah A., m. Berrlee Jacoway, of Mooresville; 6. William Joseph, unm. Last residence: Belle Mina.

BIBB, RICHARD J., planter, was born in 1812, in Boone County, Mo.; son of Richard and Charity (Hinkson) Bibb, the former a native of Virginia who moved to Missouri where he married, later, 1818, removing to Alabama, locating in what is now Elmore County, in 1835 going to Washington County, Texas, where he died; first cousin of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.) and Gov. Thomas Bibb (q. v.); grandson of Robert Hinkson, an early settler of Missouri, of Irish descent, and familiar with warfare in the northwest, and of James Bibb, a native of Virginia, who removed to Elbert County, Ga., where he died and left many descendants. Richard J. Bibb was the eldest of nine children and was reared on his father's Elmore County farm. He began farming for himself at the age of eighteen and in 1847 removed to Montgomery County where he lived until 1855. He then moved to Lowndes County where he remained until the War of Secession, returning at that time to Montgomery County. He was a Methodist Protestant. Married: in 1835, to Elizabeth, daughter of Ephraim and Mary Spivey, both natives of North Carolina, who came to Alabama, locating first in Elmore and later Coosa County; granddaughter of Aaron Spivey, a Revolutionary soldier. Children: 1. John M.; 2. William, d. young; 3. Mary C., d. young; 4. Thomas, d. young; 5. Richard, cadet at University of Alabama, 1862, first lieutenant, Gracie's brigade, C. S. Army, killed in battle at Chickamauga; 6. Peyton, m. Isabel Tharpe, of Hope Hull; 7. Mattie, m. David Graves, parents of David Bibb Graves (q. v.); 8. Walter, d. young; 9. William. Last residence: Montgomery County.

BIBB, SOPHIA LUCY ANN (GILMER), patriotic worker, was born March 11, 1801, in Oglethorpe County, Ga., and died January 9, 1887, in Montgomery; daughter of Thomas Meriwether and Elizabeth (Lewis) Gilmer, the former a native of Virginia, who removed to Georgia shortly after marrying, settled on the Broad River, where he became a successful planter, justice of the peace, member of the state legislature, and who, in his youth, performed a tour of militia duty under Marquis de Lafayette; sister of Gov. George R. Gilmer, of Georgia; granddaughter of Peachy Ridgway and Mary (Meriwether) Gilmer, the former a native of Williamsburg, Va., a planter and slave owner who after marriage located at Lethe, Rockingham County, and of Thomas and Jane (Strother) Lewis, the former a native Virginian, colonial surveyor of Augusta County, delegate to the colonial convention held at Richmond, in 1775, commissioner of the Confederation, in 1777, member of the Virginia legislature, and of the Virginia convention which ratified the constitution of the United States; great-granddaughter of John and Margaret (Linn) Lewis, the former a native of County Dublin, Ireland, who having had difficulties with the lord under whom he held his freehold lease, fled to Portugal, but finding his life still in danger, escaped to America, where he was joined by his wife, pushed into the interior of Pennsylvania, and finally located east of Staunton, Va., where he surveyed many tracts of valuable land and built a fortified house, the latter of Loch Linn, Scotland, of Dr. George and Mary Peachy (Walker) Gilmer, the former a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, a physician by profession, who was employed by the London land company to look after their interests in Virginia, later settling in Williamsburg where he practiced his profession, the latter a sister of Dr. Thomas Walker, a distinguished citizen of the Virginia colony, of William and Margaret (Watts) Strother, of Stafford, Va., and of Thomas and Elizabeth (Thornton) Meriwether, the latter the sister of Col. John Thornton, of Virginia; great-great-granddaughter of David and Anne (Holmes) Meriwether, the former of Louisa County, Va., and a planter, who is buried on the east bank of the Rappahannock River, near Charlottesville, Va.; great-great-great-granddaughter of George Holmes, of King and Queen County, Va., and of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Meriwether, the former the first of the Meriwethers of Wales to emigrate to America locating in New Kent County, Va., great-great-great-granddaughter of David Crawford, of Assasquin, New Kent County, Va., and of Nicholas Meriwether, of Wales. Shortly after her marriage they removed to Montgomery County and located on a large estate. During the War of Secession she ministered to the sick with her own hands throughout the four years. As president of the Hospital association she proved herself a skilled leader and manager. She organized the Society for the burial of the dead, which later became the Ladies memorial association, of which she was unanimously made president and held this office until her death twenty-one years later. Under her management this association erected headstones over eight hundred soldiers buried in Oakwood cemetery, built a monument and chapel on the spot, assisted liberally in the interment of soldiers on distant battle fields and erected the Confederate monument on Capitol hill. She was buried with every honor in Oakwood cemetery. She was a Methodist Protestant. Married: January 19, 1822, in Elbert County, Ga., to Judge Benajah S. Bibb (q. v.). Children: 1. William Joseph, m. Ann Rogers, of La Grange, Ga.; 2. George R., m. Mary E. Lipscomb; 3. Louisa S.; 4. Sarah E., m. (1) Dr. William T. Eldridge, (2) John Hutcheson; 5. Martha Dandridge, m. her cousin, Joseph B. Bibb (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

CHARLES HENDERSON

BIBB, THOMAS, planter, merchant, member constitutional convention of 1819, president State senate, and acting governor of Alabama, was born in 1784, in Amelia County, Va., and died September 20, 1839, in Huntsville; son of William and Sally (Wyatt) Bibb; brother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.); Rev. Peyton Bibb (q. v.); John Dandridge Bibb (q. v.); and of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.). He received a good education in Elbert County, Ga., where he grew to manhood. In 1811 he removed to Madison County, then in the Mississippi territory where he became a planter and merchant, later removing to Limestone County. He represented the latter county in the constitutional convention of 1819 and the same year was elected to the senate of the new State. He was chosen as president of this body and thus succeeded his brother upon his death. He held this office until December, 1821, and in 1828 and 1829 was elected a representative to the State legislature. Married: Parmelia, daughter of Robert and Sarah (Watkins) Thompson, cousins, the former a native of Amelia County, Va., who removed to Elbert County, Ga., later to Belle Mina, Madison County, a merchant and planter; granddaughter of James and Martha (Thompson) Watkins, of Amelia County, Va., later of Georgia, and of Robert Thompson, of Chesterfield County, Va.; great-granddaughter of William and Martha Watkins of Chesterfield County, Va., and of Robert Thompson, goldsmith and planter, of Henrico, now Chesterfield County, Va. Children: 1. Adeline, m. Maj. James Bradley; 2. Emily, m. James Jay Pleasants; 3. Thomas, m. Anna Pickett; 4. William Dandridge, m. Mary Mitchell; 5. Porter, m. Mary Betts, parents of Capt. Porter Bibb (q. v.); 6. Elmira, m. Archibald E. Mills; 7. Robert Thompson, m. Anne Bradley; 8. Eliza Parmelia, m. Arthur Mosely Hopkins; and three who died in infancy. Last residence: Belle Mina.

BIBB, WILLIAM CRAWFORD, jr., lawyer, was born February 27, 1854, in Montgomery and died May 5, 1903, in that place; son of William Crawford and Rebecca Lanier (Harris) Bibb, the former a native of Montgomery, who was in charge of the Confederate arsenal and factory for making munitions of war at Montgomery, president South and North railroad, president Alabama insurance company, inventor of agricultural machinery, and introduced the use of the iron cotton tie in Alabama; grandson of John Dandridge and Mary Xenia (Oliver) Bibb (q. v.) and of Gen. Jephtha V. and Sarah (Hunt) Harris, the former of Athens, Ga., and an officer in the Confederate Army; great-grandson of Walton and Rebecca (Lanier) Harris, of Brunswick County, Va., and of Richardson and Nancy Hunt, of Virginia who lived in Elberton, Ga.; great-great-grandson of Nathan and Catherine (Walton) Harris, of Brunswick County, Va., and of Sampson Lanier of Surrey County, Va.; great-great-great-grandson of Edward Harris; great-great-great-great-grandson of Henry Harris, who came from Glamorgan, Wales, to Virginia, and became a Dissenter and Baptist preacher. William C. Bibb was educated in the private schools of Montgomery and graduated in 1872 from the University of Georgia with the degree of B. S. He studied law in the office of Col. J. A. Billups, of Madison, Ga., and was admitted to the bar, locating in Montgomery, in 1885. He laid out and founded Vesuvius and Highland Park, which have since become a part of Montgomery. He was the first mayor of Highland Park, now known as Oak Park. He was a member of the house of representatives in 1898 and was a lieutenant in Troop A, Alabama National Guard. He was a Mason; Knight of Pythias; Elk; Red Man. Married: November 9, 1887, to Martha, daughter of John W. and Mary Elizabeth (Somerville) Shepherd (q. v.). Children: 1. Evelyn Somerville, m. Junius Galt, Montgomery; 2. John Dandridge, m. Phoebe Caldwell, of Anniston; 3. Rebecca Lanier, m. Julius King, Cleveland; 4. Mary Ellen, killed in automobile accident. Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, WILLIAM GEORGE, physician, was born January 25, 1854, in Montgomery, and died May 31, 1902, in that city; son of Joseph Benajah and Martha Dandridge (Bibb) Bibb (q. v.), and brother of Peyton Benajah Bibb (q. v.). Dr. Bibb received his early education in the private schools of Montgomery; attended the University of Georgia; student, University of Alabama, 1871-72; medical student, Uni-

great-great-granddaughter of David and Anne (Holmes) Meriwether, the former of Louisa County, Va., and a planter, who is buried on the east bank of the Ravanna River, near Charlottesville, Va.; great-great-great-granddaughter of George Holmes, of King and Queen County, Va., and of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Meriwether, the former the first of the Meriwethers of Wales to emigrate to America locating in New Kent County, Va., great-great-great-granddaughter of David Crawford, of Asasquin, New Kent County, Va., and of Nicholas Meriwether, of Wales. Shortly after her marriage they removed to Montgomery County and located on a large estate. During the War of Secession she ministered to the sick with her own hands throughout the four years. As president of the Hospital association she proved herself a skilled leader and manager. She organized the Society for the burial of the dead, which later became the Ladies memorial association, of which she was unanimously made president and held this office until her death twenty-one years later. Under her management this association erected headstones over eight hundred soldiers buried in Oakwood cemetery, built a monument and chapel on the spot, assisted liberally in the interment of soldiers on distant battle fields and erected the Confederate monument on Capitol hill. She was buried with every honor in Oakwood cemetery. She was a Methodist Protestant. Married: January 19, 1822, in Elbert County, Ga., to Judge Benajah S. Bibb (q. v.). Children: 1. William Joseph, m. Ann Rogers, of La Grange, Ga.; 2. George R., m. Mary E. Lipscomb; 3. Louisa S.; 4. Sarah E., m. (1) Dr. William T. Eldridge, (2) John Hutcheson; 5. Martha Dandridge, m. her cousin, Joseph B. Bibb (q. v.). Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, THOMAS, planter, merchant, member constitutional convention of 1819, president State senate, and acting governor of Alabama, was born in 1784, in Amelia County, Va., and died September 20, 1839, in Huntsville; son of William and Sally (Wyatt) Bibb; brother of Gov. William Wyatt Bibb (q. v.); Rev. Peyton Bibb (q. v.); John Dandridge Bibb (q. v.); and of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.). He received a good education in Elbert County, Ga., where he grew to manhood. In 1811 he removed to Madison County, then in the Mississippi territory where he became a planter and merchant, later removing to Limestone County. He represented the latter county in the constitutional convention of 1819 and the same year was elected to the senate of the new State. He was chosen as president of this body and thus succeeded his brother upon his death. He held this office until December, 1821, and in 1828 and 1829 was elected a representative to the State legislature. Married: Parmelia, daughter of Robert and Sarah (Watkins) Thompson, cousins, the former a native of Amelia County, Va., who removed to Elbert County, Ga., later to Belle Mina, Madison County, a merchant and planter; granddaughter of James and Martha (Thompson) Watkins, of Amelia County, Va., later of Georgia, and of Robert Thompson, of Chesterfield County, Va.; great-granddaughter of William and Martha Watkins of Chesterfield County, Va., and of Robert Thompson, goldsmith and planter, of Henrico, now Chesterfield County, Va. Children: 1. Adeline, m. Maj. James Bradley; 2. Emily, m. James Jay Pleasants; 3. Thomas, m. Anna Pickett; 4. William Dandridge, m. Mary Mitchell; 5. Porter, m. Mary Betts, parents of Capt. Porter Bibb (q. v.); 6. Elmira, m. Archibald E. Mills; 7. Robert Thompson, m. Anne Bradley; 8. Eliza Parmelia, m. Arthur Mosely Hopkins; and three who died in infancy. Last residence: Belle Mina.

BIBB, WILLIAM CRAWFORD, jr., lawyer, was born February 27, 1854, in Montgomery and died May 5, 1903, in that place; son of William Crawford and Rebecca Lanier (Harris) Bibb, the former a native of Montgomery, who was in charge of the Confederate arsenal and factory for making munitions of war at Montgomery, president South and North railroad, president Alabama insurance company, inventor of agricultural machinery, and introduced the use of the iron cotton tie in Alabama; grandson of John Dandridge and Mary Xenia (Oliver) Bibb (q. v.) and of Gen. Jephtha V. and Sarah (Hunt) Harris, the former of Athens, Ga., and an officer in the Confederate Army; great-grandson of Walton and Rebecca (Lanier) Harris, of Brunswick County, Va., and of Richardson and Nancy Hunt, of Virginia who lived in Elberton, Ga.; great-great-grandson of Nathan and Catherine (Walton) Harris, of Brunswick County, Va., and of Sampson Lanier of Surrey County, Va.; great-great-great-grandson of Edward Harris; great-great-great-great-grandson of Henry Harris, who came from Glamorgan, Wales, to Virginia, and became a Dissenter and Baptist preacher. William C. Bibb was educated in the private schools of Montgomery and graduated in 1872 from the University of Georgia with the degree of B. S. He studied law in the office of Col. J. A. Billups, of Madison, Ga., and was admitted to the bar, locating in Montgomery, in 1885. He laid out and founded Vesuvius and Highland Park, which have since become a part of Montgomery. He was the first mayor of Highland Park, now known as Oak Park. He was a member of the house of representatives in 1898 and was a lieutenant in Troop A, Alabama National Guard. He was a Mason; Knight of Pythias; Elk; Red Man. Married: November 9, 1887, to Martha, daughter of John W. and Mary Elizabeth (Somerville) Shepherd (q. v.). Children: 1. Evelyn Somerville, m. Junius Galt, Montgomery; 2. John Dandridge, m. Phoebe Caldwell, of Anniston; 3. Rebecca Lanier, m. Julius King, Cleveland; 4. Mary Ellen, killed in automobile accident. Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, WILLIAM GEORGE, physician, was born January 25, 1854, in Montgomery, and died May 31, 1902, in that city; son of Joseph Benajah and Martha Dandridge (Bibb) Bibb (q. v.), and brother of Peyton Benajah Bibb (q. v.). Dr. Bibb received his early education in the private schools of Montgomery; attended the University of Georgia; student, University of Alabama, 1871-72; medical student, University of Virginia, 1876; graduated July 5, 1877, with the M. D. degree from Vanderbilt university and from Bellevue hospital medical college, 1878. He spent the summer of 1877 visiting hospitals in Paris and was professor of materia medica and therapeutics, University of Tennessee, 1881, and Nashville medical college, 1882. While residing in Nashville he was surgeon of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. He returned to Montgomery, was city physician, 1890-98, and surgeon of the "Montgomery Greys," 1887. He was a Democrat; Methodist; and a Woodman of the World. Married: June 25, 1878, in Nashville, to Susie Dunlap, daughter of James D. and Susanna (Dunlap) Porter, of that city, the former chief of staff of Major General B. F. Cheatham, C. S. Army, governor of Tennessee, 1876-80, first assistant secretary of State during the first administration of President Cleveland, and minister to Chile during Cleveland's second term; granddaughter of Dr. Thomas Kennedy and Geraldine (Horton) Porter, the former a physician of Paris, Tenn.; great-granddaughter of William and Hannah (Kennedy) Porter, the former a descendant of John Porter, of Warwickshire, England, who with his wife, Rosa, emigrated to America, settling in Massachusetts in 1628 and in Windsor, Conn., in 1639, and of Josiah and Nancy (White) Horton, the former ancestors having emigrated from England to America in 1638. Children: 1. James Porter, physician, Montgomery; 2. Mattie Gilmer, m. W. T. Edmundson, Montgomery; 3. William George; 4. Frederick Lilienthal. Last residence: Montgomery.

BIBB, WILLIAM WYATT, only governor of Alabama Territory and first governor of the State, was born October 2, 1781, in Amelia County, Va., and died July 10, 1820, in Autauga County, from the effects of a fall from his horse, which became frightened in a violent thunder storm; son of William and Sally (Wyatt) Bibb, the former of Hanover County, Va., who removed to Prince Edward County in 1774, served as a member of the convention in 1774-75, and of the committee of safety, Prince Edward County, 1775, captain in the Revolutionary Army, sheriff in 1789, removed to Elbert County, Ga., the same year, the latter a sister of Col. Joseph Wyatt, of Charlotte, Va., a relative of Mrs. Washington through the Dandridge family, a descendant of Sir Thomas Wyatt, of England, and of Gov. Francis Wyatt, of Virginia; brother of Gov. Thomas Bibb (q. v.); Rev. Peyton Bibb (q. v.); John Dandridge Bibb (q. v.); and of Benajah Smith Bibb (q. v.); grandson of John and Susannah (Bigger) Bibb, of Goochland County, Va.; great-grandson of Benjamin Bibb, a Huguenot who fled from Wales after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, locating in Hanover County, Va. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, graduated as a physician in 1801, and located at Petersburg, Ga., for the practice of his profession. He served in both the house and senate of the Georgia State legislature and was elected as a Democrat to the Ninth United States congress to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thomas Spalding. He was re-elected to the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth congresses, serving from January 26, 1805, to November 6, 1813, when he resigned. He was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of William H. Crawford and served from November 6, 1813, to November 9, 1816, when he resigned because of his failure to receive the election for the next term of the senate. President Monroe appointed him governor of the newly formed Territory of Alabama and in April, 1817, he entered upon his duties at St. Stephens. When the territory was admitted into the union as a State he was elected the first governor. He was inaugurated governor in Huntsville, November 9, 1819, but died a few months later. Married: to Mary, daughter of Col. Holman Freeman, of Wilkes County, Ga., of Revolutionary fame being a Whig leader under Gov. Elijah Clark, and sister of Fleming Freeman, an early Baptist minister in Montgomery. Children: 1. George Bailey, unmarried; 2. Mary, m. Alfred Vernon Scott, of Montgomery. Last residence: Fort Jackson.

BICKLEY, ELBERT LAFAYETTE, merchant, was born June 30, 1843, in Clinch Valley, Scott County, Va.; son of Charles Wesley and Mary P. (Burdine) Bickley of Virginia, the former a veteran of the War of 1812; grandson of Charles Bickley, a Revolutionary soldier, and of Rev. Ezekiel Burdine, an itinerant Methodist preacher who from 1809 to 1812 traveled a circuit, the territory of which now constitutes the whole of the Holston conference; great-grandson of William Bickley, of Williamsburg, Va., a knight of the garter, of Northamptonshire, England, the first of the family to settle in America, arriving in 1670. Mr. Bickley received his early education in a log school house three miles from his father's home. He attended the Stony Point academy, 1861-62, and in the spring of the latter year joined the Confederate Army, going as special courier with Maj. Ben F. Brantley, Humphrey Marshall's brigade, and was with Gen. John H. Morgan at Perryville and Hickman, Ky., and in Bragg's campaign the following fall. He was transferred to the 54th Virginia cavalry regiment in 1863, and was with Gen. Joseph Wheeler through his Tennessee and Alabama campaigns; served as adjutant 34th Virginia cavalry regiment. He was presented with a handsome sword for bravery in action. After the close of hostilities Maj. Bickley returned to his home and during 1865 engaged in farming. He again entered school, at Rye Cave academy, in 1865-66. The two following years he clerked in a store in Russell County and in 1869 entered the live stock business. He removed to Spring Valley, Colbert County, and began merchandising and farming in 1872, and was also appointed postmaster. In 1888 he removed to Tuscumbia. He was a Mason, and Knight of Pythias. Married: Feb. 14, 1871, at Spring Valley, Sue, daughter of James and Sarah (Hodges) Jackson of that place. Residence: Tuscumbia.

BIEDMA, LUYA HERNANDEZ DE, factor of the DeSoto expedition, traveler, chronicler, explorer. Except his brief account of his participation in the DeSoto and DeLuna expeditions, in his travels through this State, 1539-41, and 1565, nothing is known of his personal history. On leaving the country, Biedma was a captain in the second caravel, after the death of DeSoto, and in the DeLuna expedition we find a Captain Biedma, whom it is safely assumed is the Luys of the DeSoto company. The Biedma account of the DeSoto trip was first published in a French version by Ternox, in 1841, and later the Hakluyt Society published an English version, Buckingham Smith translated it from original Spanish, and it was published by the Bradford Club in 1866. The Bourne edition of the DeSoto Narratives, 1904, also carries this account.

BIENVILLE, JEAN BAPTISTE LE MOYNE, SIEUR DE, explorer and colonist; was born February 23, 1680, in Montreal, Canada, and died March 7, 1768, in France; son of Charles Le Moyne, Sieur de Longueuil and Catherine (Tierry) Primot Le Moyne; grandson of Pierre and Judith (Duchesne) Le Moyne; brother of Pierre Le Moyne Iberville (q. v.). In 1690, on being left an orphan, he made his home with his brother Charles, Sieur, later Baron of Longueuil, on whose death in 1691 he succeeded to the title, then being known as de Bienville. He saw service both in the French army and navy, and as early as 1697 was midshipman serving under his brother Iberville. He accompanied him later to France, and in 1699 they took part in the expedition to the mouth of the Mississippi River, having left Brest, October 24, 1698, and established a camp at Biloxi, in February, 1699. After some exploration work among the Indians, and in the Gulf country, on August 22, 1701, he took command of the camp at Biloxi, and December of the same year, was ordered to Mobile, where he made a settlement, serving under his brother Iberville, the first governor of Louisiana. Mobile was continued as the seat of government until 1723, and during that time Bienville was active in the service of the colony over which he was governor on more than one occasion, but on account of having charges preferred against him, in 1708, 1713, 1724 and 1740, he was returned to France. On each occasion, he was restored to favor, and in each case returned with a higher rank. In 1714, the expedition under him, ascended the Alabama River, and established Fort Toulouse. In 1716, while lieutenant governor of the colony under Cadillac, who had been made governor in June, 1713, he quarreled with the new governor and was sent among the Natchez Indians to make a settlement. He established a fort and provoked a war, but in August of the same year, a treaty was made. He returned to Mobile in October and was in command of the colony until the arrival of De l'Epinay, the new governor, in March, 1717. At this time he was decorated with the Cross of St. Louis. He served as lieutenant governor under De l'Epinay, until the latter was recalled in 1718, when Bienville was made commandant-general. He founded the city of New Orleans in 1718, and transferred the seat of government of the colony from Mobile to this point in 1723. On February 16, 1724, he had charges preferred against him and was summoned to France. Although he returned to Louisiana as governor, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, January, 1733, he had no further association with Alabama. He returned to France in 1743, and spent his last years in retirement. His body rests in Montmartre cemetery, Paris. Last residence: Paris.

BIG WARRIOR, Creek Chief. See Indian chiefs and associated characters.

BILBRO, JAMES ANDREW, lawyer, was born February 20, 1844, at Tuskegee, Macon County; son of John Berryman and Anne Lumpkin (Rutledge) Bilbro, the former born in Surry County, Va., removed to Talbotton, Ga., where he married, and in 1842 located in Tuskegee, was clerk of circuit court of Macon County about eighteen years, was treasurer of the county twenty-five years, which office he held at the date of his death, December 24, 1908; grandson of Benjamin Bilbro, of Virginia, and of William Owen and Elizabeth (Partridge) Rutledge, the former a member of the noted Rutledge family of South Carolina, who was born May 30, 1790, in Harris County, Ga. Judge Bilbro was educated at the Tuskegee institute under noted teachers, one being E. M. Law, afterward a distinguished Confederate general, and who with his brother, had charge of the military department of the institute. Judge Bilbro was captain of one of the companies in 1860 and 1861. He studied law in 1868-1870, in Tuskegee, under David Clopton, afterwards associate justice of the supreme court; began the practice, 1870, removed to Gadsden in 1889; six years county solicitor of Macon County from 1872; mayor of Tuskegee, 1882-83; a member of the legislature, 1884-85; judge of the 9th judicial circuit from August 1, 1894 to January 19, 1905; elected judge of 16th circuit under "Lusk bill" but did not serve, as it was declared unconstitutional; judge of the city court of Gadsden, 1910-16; was a member of the board of trustees, Alabama polytechnic institute at Auburn for 10 years. In April 1861, he joined the Tuskegee light infantry, which became a part of the famous Third Alabama infantry regiment, under Col. Tennent Lomax; was in the Army of Northern Virginia until May 1862, when he was discharged on account of ill health; was then appointed lieutenant in camp of instruction and held this position until close of the war. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason, an Odd Fellow, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: April 24, 1866, at Tuskegee, to Francis A., daughter of Chancellor Wylie Washington and Matilda Warren (Catchings) Mason, the latter was born at the homestead of her grandmother, Mrs. Wilfred Catchings, in Washington, Ga., was twice married: first to Col. John C. McNeil; and after his death to Chancellor Wylie W. Mason; granddaughter of John Clarke Mason, a Welsh nobleman of Guston Hall, Wales. Children: 1. James Early; 2. Mathilde; 3. John B.; 4. Wiley Mason. Residence: Gadsden.

BILLING, FAY McCULLOCK, banker, was born October 26, 1846, at Columbus, Muskogee County, Ga.; son of Dr. Samuel Aydelotte and Mary Hulit (Cook) Billing, natives of South Carolina and Georgia respectively, who resided in Columbus, Ga.; grandson of Samuel and Elizabeth (McCullock) Billing of Charleston, S. C., the former a native of Bennington, Vt., and of Samuel Cook of Clinton and Eatonton, Ga. The paternal great-grandfather Billing was a major in the Revolutionary War, and his widow, Beulah Billing resided at Bennington, Vt., after her husband's death. Fay McCullock Billing received his preparatory education in Columbus, Ga., and attended the University of Alabama, 1862-64. In 1865, he removed to Montgomery and entered the banking house of Josiah Morris and company. After the retirement of Mr. Morris from active business he became president of the bank. He is a Democrat, an Episcopalian and a Mason. Married: (1) August 12, 1873, to Lucy Noble, of New Orleans, La., daughter of John Irby and Martha Summerville Noble; (2) October 31, 1894, at Montgomery, to Sarah Swope, daughter of John McGehee and Amelia Catherine (Forney) Wyly, of that place; granddaughter of John and Sarah Swope (Hoke) Forney and of Benjamin Cleveland and Ann (McGehee) Wyly; great-granddaughter of Gen. Peter Forney and of Gen. John Sevier, both of Revolutionary fame. Children: By the first marriage: 1. Samuel Aydelotte, physician, Montgomery; 2. Lucy Noble, m. William R. Cathcart of South Carolina, resides in Hackensack, N. J.; 3. Josiah Morris, m. Ethel Harwell, Montgomery; 4. Noble Irby; by the second marriage: 5. Wyly McGehee; 6. Fay McCullock. Residence: Montgomery.

BILLINGSLEA, CLEMENT, physician, was born in Greene County, Ga., April 24, 1794, and died in Marion, while on a visit to his daughter, July 5, 1870; son of William and Sarah (Turner) Billingslea, the former a pioneer settler of Georgia, who built his house in Greene County as a fort for protection against the Indians; grandson of James Clement and Mary (Smith) Billingslea, who moved from Maryland in 1773, to Georgia, settled in Wilkes County, later in Jones County; owned land in Wilkes, Jones, Macon and Oglethorpe Counties, and was an extensive planter; and a descendant of Francis Billingslea, who emigrated to America from England before 1657, and settled on the eastern shore of Maryland. His parents having died while he was a young boy, he and his half sister, Sarah Foster, who married Judge Graham, of Prattville, were taken into the home of their uncle, Francis Billingslea, of Wilkes County. Dr. Billingslea was educated in the schools of Washington, Ga., and later received the degree of M. D. from the Philadelphia medical college. He began the practice of medicine in Washington, Ga.; removed to Montgomery about 1819, and resumed his practice there. Later he purchased a plantation of three thousand acres on the Tallapoosa River, near Montgomery. Here he built a colonial home, the Mt. Ararat, and built up a large practice embracing Montgomery, Wetumpka and the adjacent country. He represented Montgomery County in the legislature 1845; was a member of the State medical board, and a trustee of the University of Alabama. He removed with his family to Marion in December 1847, in order that his children might have the educational advantages offered by Howard college and Judson institute. He bought the practice of Dr. Reid, and enjoyed a large and lucrative patronage. He spent a few years in Selma; purchased a home on the coast, near Mobile, and resided there for a few years, finally removing to a plantation near Galveston, Tex. He was a Baptist. Married: (1) March 6, 1816, at Washington, Ga., to Lucy Bolling Anthony; (2) May 13, 1819, to Sarah A. Lane, a first cousin of his deceased wife, and a descendant of Sir Ralph Lane, an early Colonial governor; (3) March 21, 1844, to Mrs. Martin Louisa (Byrd) Faulkner; and (4) October 15, 1851, at Selma, to Mrs. Elizabeth D. Douglas. The nine children of Dr. Billingslea were born at Mt. Ararat, and two sons, two daughters, and their mother, the second wife, were buried there. Only one child survived Dr. Billingslea. Children: 1. William Bibb, lawyer of Montgomery; graduate of the University of Alabama, A. B., 1840; m. Keturah Guild, of Tuscaloosa; d. December 11, 1844; 2. James Clement, physician of Augusta, Ark., student at the University of Alabama, 1843, private in Mexican War, M. D. (college unknown), m. Mary Wooley, of Fosters, d. December 25, 1869; 3. Lucy Bolling, m. Dr. Joshua Hill Foster (q. v.); 4. Emily, m. Judge John Moore (q. v.), mother of John Trotwood Moore (q. v.). Last residence: Galveston, Texas.

BILLINGSLEY, CLEMENT, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 84, and residing in Autauga County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BINFORD, HENRY ARTHUR, physician, was born February 17, 1811, in Virginia, and died April 15, 1875, at Huntsville; son of Peter and Grace Dameron (Lee) Binford, who removed from Virginia to Indian Creek, Madison County, seven miles from Huntsville. He was a member of the distinguished Lee and Binford families of Virginia, and was closely related to Gen. Robert E. Lee, C. S. Army. He received his academic education in Huntsville, and graduated in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania, in 1835, his professional career proving eminently successful and extending over a period of forty years. He was a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: October 20, 1836, at Huntsville, to Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Eliza (Sample) Brandon. Children: 1. Cornelia C., m. Dr. J. J. Dement, (q. v.) Last residence: Huntsville.

BINGHAM, ARTHUR, cabinet maker, collector internal revenue and State treasurer, was born July 22, 1819, in New York City, and died May 29, 1894, at Talladega; son of Samuel and Margaret (Archer) Bingham, the former a native of County Down, Ireland, who emigrated to New York about 1796. Arthur Bingham first came South in 1841 but returned to New York and the following year removed to Philadelphia and became a cabinet maker. He finally located in Alabama, where he passed the remainder of his life. He was educated in New York. He was appointed assistant assessor of internal revenue by President Andrew Johnson, 1866; was member of the Alabama constitutional convention, 1867; State treasurer, 1868-70-72-74; and was appointed collector internal revenue, 1886, serving one term. He was originally a Whig, but as he was unalterably opposed to secession, he joined the Republican party. He was an Episcopalian. Married: (1) in 1842, in Delaware County, Pa., to Jane, daughter of Robert and Rachael (Winter) McKibbon of that place, of ancestry that came to America from Paisley, Scotland, 1831; (2) Elizabeth ————. Children: 1. Mary Josephine; 2. Henry C.; 3. Samuel R.; 4. Thomas C.; 5. John A.; 6. Julian H. Last residence: Talladega.

BINGHAM, SAMUEL, farmer, was born April 12, 1780, in Marion County, S. C., and died February 21, 1844, at his home in Sumter County. He came to America from Ireland with his parents soon after the Revolutionary War, settling in Georgetown District, S. C., and was on both lines of his ancestry of Scotch-Irish stock. He secured his education in the common schools of his adopted country and became a liberal scholar. He was a successful farmer and a citizen of wide influence. He was sheriff of his county in South Carolina for a term of years. During the war of 1812, he was a colonel of a regiment and rendered valuable service on the South Carolina coast. He was a man of handsome physique, being six feet two inches in height. He removed to Sumter County, 1837. He was a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: April 1, 1813, in Marion District, S. C., to Mary Muldrow, a Presbyterian, of Scotch descent. Children: 1. Elizabeth J.; 2. Agnes; 3. Mary Elizabeth, m. Abner Haile, Greene County; 4. Margaret Caroline, m. John Boone of Choctaw County; 5. Sophronia Imogen, m. William Peteet of Sumter County; 6. Robert M., U. S. soldier in Mexican War and died at Vera Cruz; 7. Elizabeth Agnes, m. Rev. W. C. Emerson; 8. John Muldrow; 9. Samuel James, (q. v.); 10. Matthew Ellison; 11. Louisa Jane, m. (1) Rev. Robert W. Hadden; (2) Rev. James H. Alexander; 12. William Boyd, m. E. E. Turnipseed. Col. Bingham was the progenitor of a sturdy line of scions and patriotic offsprings. Two of his sons and one grandson became Presbyterian ministers, and two of his daughters became wives of Presbyterian ministers. Six grandsons are ruling elders in as many Presbyterian churches. Last residence: Elizabeth, Sumter County.

BINGHAM, SAMUEL JAMES, Presbyterian minister, was born December 6, 1829, in Marion District, S. C., and died July 28, 1881, at Healing Springs, Washington County, and was buried at Enterprise, Miss.; son of Samuel and Mary (Muldrow) Bingham (q. v.). He received his early education in the country schools of Sumter County, and was graduated from Oglethorpe university, Ga., July 1852. He was trained for the ministry at Columbia theological seminary, S. C., from which he was graduated, June 1856. He was licensed to preach by the Tuscaloosa Presbytery at Livingston, June 1856, and served a group of churches in Sumter County for twelve years. He then served a group of churches in Jasper County, Miss., ten years. His last pastorate was at Mosspoint, Miss., where he served three years. He built up many weak churches and was the instrument of many conversions. Married: April 12, 1853, Martha Jane, daughter of Reverend Isaac Hadden, a Presbyterian minister, native of S. C., who removed to Sumter County about 1835. Children: 1. William Ellison (q. v.), m. Nannie Hendricks, of Tuscaloosa; 2. Mary Laura, m. P. D. Noah of Kosciusko County, Miss.; 3. Linnie Stillman, m. Robert W. Cowan; 4. Robert Hadden, m. Charlotte Scott; 5. James Alexander. Last residence: Mosspoint, Miss.

BINGHAM, WILLIAM ELLISON, druggist, was born December 16, 1853, in Sumter County; son of Rev. Samuel James and Martha Jane (Hadden) Bingham (q. v.). He attended school at Garlandville and Meridian, Miss., and graduated with the degree of A. B., at the University of Mississippi 1876. He taught school, 1876-77; entered the drug business at Moss Point, Miss., removed to Northport, 1883, and conducted a drug business there until 1888 at which time he removed to Tuscaloosa where he now resides. He was a member of the board of aldermen, 1908-09; president city council, 1910-1911; appointed member of State pharmacy board for two years by Governor B. B. Comer and reappointed by Governor Emmet O'Neal for five years, and was chairman of the committee that drafted the present pharmacy laws of the state, looking to the abolishment of the sales of narcotics, and placing the handling of drugs and medicine in hands of competent licensed druggists only. He is a Democrat, a Presbyterian, a Mason, Knight of Pythias and Odd Fellow. Married: December 3, 1878, at Talladega, to Nannie Harding, daughter of William Yancey and Julia Ann (Hardy) Hendrick, of that place. Children: 1. James Yancey; 2. Raymond McInnis; 3. Ellison Harding, m. Rosemary Hairston, Tuscaloosa; 4. Estelle Hendrick, m. E. Greer Wilson, Charlotte, N. C. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BIRCH, ALEXANDER CLITHERALL, lawyer, was born January 21, 1876, at Opelika; son of George Anthony and Allie Bergwynne (Clitherall) Birch, the former a native of Macon, Ga., and a wholesale grocer in Montgomery; grandson of Edmund Pendleton and Margaret McCree (Douglass) Birch, of Georgia and Alabama, the former a Methodist minister and the author of poems extensively published during the War of Secession, the latter a native of Scotland, and a descendant of the famous "Red Douglas" family; and of Judge Alexander B. and Kathryne (Hayes) Clitherall, of Montgomery, the former was the son of Admiral Clitherall of the U. S. Navy, and of a Miss Bergwynne, of French nobility. He was assistant secretary to the Confederate congress, register of the treasury, C. S. A., and colonel in the C. S. Army. Alexander Clitherall Birch was educated in the public schools of Montgomery, was graduated from the University of Alabama, B. S., 1896, and from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., cum laude, LL.B., 1897. He began to practice law at Montgomery, 1898, in association with Thomas G. and Charles P. Jones. He moved to Birmingham, and after practicing law there for some time, became U. S. Commissioner at that city from 1903 to 1905. He resigned to accept the office of referee in bankruptcy, which position he still holds, under joint appointment of Judges Jones and Grubb. He is a Republican, a member of the state executive committee, and was a delegate to the national convention in 1912. He was recently the nominee for attorney general. He is an Episcopalian and a member of Sigma Nu college fraternity. Married: November 6, 1907, at Birmingham, George Weatherly, daughter of James and Florence (Milner) Weatherly; granddaughter of Col. James J. Milner, one of the founders of Birmingham. Children: 1. Florence Milner, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BIRD, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, private, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on January 10, 1837, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; annual allowance, $23.33; no record of any payments having been made.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

BIRD, WILL E., lawyer, of old Cahaba. Author: "A general index of the statute laws of the State of Alabama," printed at the office of the "Southern Democrat," 1838. Last residence: Cahaba.

BIRNEY, JAMES GILLESPIE, abolitionist, was born at Danville, Ky., February 4, 1792, and died at Eagleswood, N. J., November 25, 1857; son of James and Martha (Read) Birney, the former born near Cootehill, County Cavan, Ireland, who in 1783 emigrated to America when a lad of sixteen, spent several years in Philadelphia, finally locating in Danville, Ky., where he became a most successful banker and merchant; grandson of John and Letitia (Wilcox) Read, the former a native of Londonderry, Ireland, who emigrated to America as early as 1779, as a consequence of the discovery of some political intrigue of his against the British government, and who settled near Danville, Ky., where he built a fort and became one of the leading men of that section. Mr. Birney received his early education under the direction of his father, his mother having died when he was only three years of age; at the age of eleven, was sent to Transylvania University, Lexington, where he remained until the fall of 1806, at that date returning to Danville and entering the seminary conducted by Dr. James Priestly. He remained in Danville for two years; entered the college of New Jersey, now Princeton university, where he graduated with second honors, A. B., 1810; returned home for a few months; and later was received as a student in the law office of Alexander J. Dallas, a celebrated lawyer and the United States district attorney of Philadelphia, where he remained for three and a half years. He began the practice of law in Danville, May, 1814, deriving his income from settling claims and as attorney for the Danville bank. In August 1816, he was elected a member of the Kentucky house of representatives. At the end of the session he decided to move with his family to Alabama, having visited that State and having bought a plantation in Madison County, near Triana and on the Tennessee River, and within two hours' ride of Huntsville. Soon after he reached the territory the Constitutional convention convened in 1819, and he was instrumental in causing the incorporation of provisions in the constitution which empowered the general assembly to free slaves by purchase, forbidding the bringing of slaves into the State for sale, and in securing more humane treatment for slaves. He was one of the representatives from Madison County in the first State legislature, 1819. By his opposition to the adoption of a joint resolution incident to the visit of Gen. Andrew Jackson to Alabama, his promising political career in this State was closed. In 1823, having proved unsuccessful as a planter, he took up his residence in Huntsville, and began the practice of law. The general assembly in 1823 elected him as solicitor for the fifth circuit, an office he held until 1826, when he resigned and entered into partnership with Arthur F. Hopkins. He served as mayor of Huntsville for two terms; was a trustee of the Greene academy, Huntsville; in 1823, organized the Huntsville library company, and in 1826 became attorney or legal protector of the Cherokee nation, which at that time occupied the northeastern part of the State; about the same date becoming interested in the American colonization society; and was president elector on the Whig, or Adams and Rush, ticket. In the summer of 1830 he was unanimously requested by the board of trustees of the University of Alabama to visit the Atlantic States in order to select a president and four professors for the new institution. He accepted the commission, and as soon as this was known, his co-trustees of the Huntsville female seminary requested him to act for them in the selection of teachers. He spent some time in the North, extending his trip to Massachusetts and succeeding in securing many well known educators, among these, Rev. Dr. Alva Woods, as president, and Henry Tutwiler, professor for the university. On August 23, 1832, he accepted a commission as agent of the American colonization society for the southwestern district and about November 15, of that year he returned with his family to his native county in Kentucky and purchased a farm near Danville. Hardly had he reached his new home when he began the organization of a State society for emancipation, but public opinion, influenced by Henry Clay, had changed during his absence and he found few supporters. He freed his slaves in 1834, and the following year succeeded in establishing an anti-slavery society in Kentucky and desired to publish his paper "The Philanthropist," in Danville, but the citizens being so violently opposed he removed to Cincinnati, where the first issue appeared January 1, 1836. In 1837, he was appointed secretary of the American anti-slavery society and this necessitated his removal to New York, where he became the real leader of the "constitutional" abolitionists. In 1840 and 1844 he was abolition nominee for president on the Liberty party ticket, in the first instance receiving 7,369 votes and in the second 62,263. He purchased a large tract of land on the Saginaw River, Mich., 1840, where he removed in 1844 and where in 1845, he suffered an unfortunate accident resulting in paralysis and causing his withdrawal from public life. He removed to Eagleswood, near Perth Amboy, about 1853, and made this his home until his death in 1857. He was a Presbyterian and a Mason. Author: "Ten letters on slavery and colonization," 1832-33; "Six essays on slavery and colonization," 1833; "Letter on colonization," 1834; "Letter to the Presbyterian church," 1834; "Addresses and speeches," 1835; "Vindication of the abolitionists," 1835; "Letter to Colonel Stone," 1836; "Address to slaveholders," 1836; "Argument on fugitive slave case," 1837; "Letter to F. H. Elmore," 1838; "Report on the duty of political action," 1839; "Political obligations of abolitionists," 1839; "American churches the bulwarks of American slavery," 1840; "Speeches in England," 1840; "Examination of the decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Strader et al v. Graham," 1850; and many newspaper and magazine articles. Married: (1) February 1, 1816, to Agatha, daughter of Judge William and Mary (McClung) McDonnell, the former United States district judge, the latter, a niece of George Madison, governor of Kentucky, and of Bishop Madison of Virginia; (2) November 1841, to Elizabeth Fitzhugh. Children: 1. James, teacher at Miami university, 1837-38; lawyer, Republican, senator in Michigan legislature, 1858, lieutenant-governor, 1860, circuit judge, editor of the "Bay City Chronicle," U. S. minister at the Hague, m. at New Haven, Conn., to Miss Moulton, step-daughter of Nathaniel Bacon, of that city; 2. William, lawyer, anti-slavery lecturer, professor of the English language in the University of France, 1848, captain, later brevetted major-general, U. S. volunteers, War of Secession, founder and editor of "The Register," collaborator in Waiters' history of the church, for the first two centuries of the Christian era, author of "James G. Birney and his times, the genesis of the Republican party," 1890; 3. Dion, physician, captain U. S. volunteers, War of Secession, d. 1862; 4. David Bell, lawyer and publisher, recruited the 23rd Pennsylvania volunteer regiment, appointed lieutenant-colonel, brigadier and major general, d. 1864; 5. George, d. in early manhood; 6. Florence, m. Charles Jemison, of Bay City, Mich.; 7. Fitzhugh, major U. S. volunteers, War of Secession, d. 1863. Last residence: Eagleswood, N. J.

ALEXANDER T. LONDON

BISHOP, JAMES LEWALLAN, lawyer, was born October 4, 1864, in Howard County, Mo.; son of James Lewallan, and Evelyn Anvil (Crews) Bishop, the former a native of Winchester, Ky., lived at Glasgow, Howard County, Mo., and enlisted in the U. S. Army, in the War of Secession, was shot by accident at Memphis, Tenn., June 21, 1864, and died a month later; grandson of Levan and Judith (Boothe) Bishop, of Boone County, Mo., and of Daniel and Matilda (Maupin) Crews of Howard County, Mo.; great-grandson of James L. and Elizabeth (Hill) Bishop, of Bishopville, Md., and of David and Elizabeth (Maupin) Crews, who were first cousins and grandchildren of Daniel and Elizabeth (Gentry) Maupin, direct descendants of Gabriel and Marie (Spencer) Maupin, the former a French general who escaped to England and emigrated to Virginia in 1700. James Lewallan Bishop was educated in the public schools at Trenton, Mo., in Central University, Richmond, Ky., and was graduated from the University of Missouri, LL.B., 1886. He was admitted to the bar in Grundy County, Mo., 1886, and moved to Selma the next year, where he began to practice. He has continued to practice in that city, and served a term as city attorney in 1896. He is a Democrat and a Presbyterian. Married: October 30, 1889, at Selma, Agnes Wickfield Ware, daughter of Dr. Edward Alexander Oglethorp and Sarah Jane (Hooper) Ware, of Vann's Valley, Ga. Children: 1. Jennie Hooper, d. in infancy; 2. James Lewallan, d. at age of nine; 3. Mary Hooper, d. at age of fourteen; 4. Evelyn Penn, b. May 20, 1904. Residence: Selma.

BISHOP, JOHN WEBSTER, circuit solicitor, judge city court and mayor, was born December 19, 1831, and died in Talladega, October 10, 1900; son of Lewis and Susan (Mynatt) Bishop, of Knoxville, Tenn., early settlers of Talladega County. Judge Bishop worked his way through the University of Alabama, graduating with the A. B. degree, 1854. He began the practice of law at Talladega; was a member of the house of representatives, 1842-43, from Talladega County; a member of the 51st Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army; circuit solicitor, 1866; judge of the city court, 1893-97; and later mayor of Talladega. He was a Baptist and a Democrat. Married: (1) August 1860, to Olivia, and (2) December 30, 1867, to Ophelia, daughters of James and Sarah (Orr) Montgomery, both natives of South Carolina, but later residents of Alabama. Children: 1. Wallace Reverdy, graduate Alabama polytechnic institute, B. S., 1893; Tulane university, M. D., 1895, practiced one year in Talladega; certificate from New York post graduate medical school, 1896, certificate from New York polyclinic, 1900, practicing physician, Talladega, since 1900, m. in January 1901, to Virginia, daughter of L. A. Camp, a prominent railroad official of Columbus, Ga.; 2. Susie Olive; 3. Sarah James, m. Frank Clarke McAlpine; 4. d. in infancy. Last residence: Talladega.

BISHOP, WYATT, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 76, and a resident of Franklin County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on November 15, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $36.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $109.98.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BIZE, MARSHALL LEONARD, chemist, graduate of the Alabama polytechnic institute, B. S. degree, 1903. In 1913 he was in charge of the pharmaceutical laboratory of Doster-Northington drug company of Birmingham.

BLACK, DAVID, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 80, resided in Fayette County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BLACK, GEORGE HENRY, merchant, was born in 1838 in County Cavan, Ireland, the birthplace of Gen. Phil Sheridan, cavalry leader of the U. S. Army during the War of Secession. He was brought to America in 1839 by his parents who settled in Chambers County. He received his education in such schools as the country afforded in those days, and at the outbreak of the War of Secession, enlisted in Co. A., Seventh Alabama regiment, of which he was commissioned second lieutenant. This regiment was organized in June, 1861, and served with distinction at the bombardment of Pensacola, October 9, 1861. Mr. Black is said to have fired the first shot at the battle of Chickamauga. After the war he returned to his home in Lafayette, and went to work to retrieve his fortunes and aid in the reconstruction of his country. He was at one time the leading merchant of his section, and has contributed many interesting articles to the local press regarding past events and the history of his county. Married. Children: Two daughters and three sons, the youngest of whom is agent for the Central Railroad of Georgia, at Lafayette. Residence: Lafayette.

BLACK, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Greene County; private N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on July 2, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $60.80; sums received to date of publication of list, $180.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BLACK, WILLIAM HENRY, business man, was born March 4, 1838, at Springfield, Clark County, O., and died June 30, 1901, at Union Springs; son of Robert and Sarah (Deffenbaugh) Black, the former born on the way to America from Ireland; grandson of John Black of Springfield, O., and of Solomon Deffenbaugh of Zanesville, O. He received his schooling in Wittenburg College, Springfield, O., but did not graduate. When he was sixteen years old, he moved to Ottawa, Ill., where he was living at the beginning of the War of Secession. He enlisted in the Seventy-second Illinois infantry regiment, U. S. Army, as a private, August, 1862. He was promoted to a second lieutenantcy and later was made first lieutenant. He served throughout the remainder of the war, and at the surrender, was captain of Co. B of the Seventy-second regiment. After the close of the war, he moved to the South, and located at Union Springs, where he became engaged in planting. He represented the seventh election district of Macon, now Bullock County, in the constitutional convention of Alabama of 1867. He also served as probate judge of Bullock County. He was a Republican and a member of the Presbyterian church. He continued to devote his attention to his planting interests until his death.

Married: Elizabeth Florida, daughter of Judge John and Emily Rea, who lived at Tallahassee, Fla. She is a descendant of General John Rea, who fought in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Sadie Emily, m. John R. Caine, resides at Thorsby; 2. William Forbes, m. Landis Prince, resides at Montgomery. Last residence: Union Springs.

BLACKBOURN, CLEMENT, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 80, resided in Madison County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BLACKBURN, BENJAMIN, soldier of the American Revolution, age not stated, and a resident of Tuscaloosa County; private Lewis's regiment; date of enrollment not given, payment to date from April 1, 1810; annual allowance, $60; sums received, $363.90; transferred from Tennessee September 4, 1819; or April 24, 1816, rate increased to annual allowance of $96, under which the sum of $1,715.18 received to date of publication of list.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BLACKBURN, FELIX EDWARD, lawyer, was born at Hamburg, Perry County, August 24, 1867, son of Edward and Lorena Mildred (Howard) Blackburn; and grandson of Asa J. and Elizabeth Howard, of Oglethorpe County, Ga. He entered the University of Alabama in 1885, and graduated, A. B., 1888. In 1889 he matriculated in law at the University, but did not graduate. Since 1891 he has practiced law at Birmingham. He was elected a member of the legislature of 1903. In the European War he held appointment in the judge advocate general's department. He is a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: April 21, 1897, at Elyton, Ala., to Katherine, daughter of Dr. Alfred and Sarah E. (Brown) Eubank, one of the oldest families of Jefferson County. Children: 1. Felix Edward, jr.; 2. Mildred; 3. Katherine. Residence: Birmingham.

BLACKBURN, JOHN NELSON, Presbyterian minister, was born September 3, 1809, in east Tennessee, and died September 2, 1886, at Athens; son of Edward and Margaret (McGirk) Blackburn who lived at Dandridge, Tenn., the former a native of east Tennessee, born June 3, 1780, the latter born October 19, 1779; grandson of John and Jenett (Mathews) Blackburn, natives of Virginia, both of Scotch-Irish parentage, the former born in 1741, the latter July 20, 1747. The Blackburn family was prominent in the Presbyterian church in the days of Mary, Queen of Scots. According to tradition, a part of the family went to the north of Ireland, and from there a number went to Virginia, and settled on Black River. From that place they scattered all over the United States. Rev. Blackburn passed his early life in Tennessee, and secured his education through many difficulties. After the death of his first wife, he entered Maryville College and Seminary, November 1, 1844, and was graduated in 1850, from the theological course. He was licensed to preach in the year of his graduation by the Union Presbytery at Ensebia Church in Blount County, Tenn., and was ordained October 5, 1850, at Rutledge, Tenn. His first charge was in Benton and St. John's churches, Polk County, Tenn. He began to preach there July 1, 1850; in 1853, bought a farm near Benton; and began teaching in Benton Female Academy, October 1856, in addition to his work as a minister. He resigned from the academy in 1859, and moved to Green County, Tenn., in 1861, to assume the pastorate of Mt. Zion church. In 1865 he moved to Cornersville, Tenn., and the following year, to north Alabama, locating at Athens, where he did mission work until his death. He organized the only Presbyterian church in Limestone County. He was a Democrat. Married: (1) in 1831, in east Tennessee, Martha J. C. Morrow; (2) 1850, in Benton, Tenn., Eliza Jane Armbrister; (3) 1869, at Athens, Mrs. Eliza Sloss Jones. Children, by first marriage; 1. Calvin C., b. 1832, deceased; 2. Sarah P., b. 1833, m. Rufus McClary, Cicero, Tex.; 3. Edward A., b. 1840, m. Annie Crenshaw, both deceased; by second marriage; 4. John Armbrister, b. 1851, deceased; 5. Martha Jane, b. 1853, deceased; 6. James Caswell, b. 1854, deceased. 7. George Andrew, b. 1861, Presbyterian minister in charge of Arsenal Hill Presbyterian church, at Columbia, S. C.; 8. Daniel Asa, b. 1864, deceased. Last residence: Athens.

BLACKFORD, EUGENE, major, 5th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BLACKMON, FREDERICK LEONARD, lawyer and representative in Congress, was born September 15, 1873, in Polk County, Ga.; died February 8, 1921, at Bartow, Fla., and is buried in Anniston; son of Dr. Augustus Young and Sallie Ann (Ross) Blackmon, of Bowdon, Ga., the former a practicing physician in Gwinnett County, Ga., and during the War of Secession had charge of powder manufacture for the Confederate government; grandson of James and Sarah Ann Blackmon, and of Frederick and Nancy A. (Scurry) Ross of Calhoun County. The Blackmons were long residents of Scriven County, Ga., while the Ross family came from Scotland to Edgefield, S. C. Representative Blackmon was educated in the public schools, Jacksonville State normal school, 1888-89; Douglasville college, Georgia, 1890; Mountain city business college, Chattanooga, Tenn.; and the law school of the University of Alabama, LL. B., June 20, 1894. He at once entered upon the practice of his profession in association with John B. Knox; from November 1, 1898 to 1903, he was attorney for the city of Anniston; in 1900, served in the State Senate, and re-elected to the session of 1907; in 1910 he was elected to the 62d congress, entering upon his term March 4, 1911; re-elected to the 63d, 64th, 65th and 66th congresses. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; Knight of Pythias; Elk; and a member of Junior Order of American Mechanics. Married: December 31, 1908, Mrs. Mary (Bellenger) Cox. Children: 1. Frederick L., jr.; 2. Sara Bellenger. Residence: Anniston.

BLACKSHER, URIAH, lumber manufacturer and exporter, was born March 19, 1848, in Escambia County; son of Jephtha and Martha (Mayo) Blacksher, the former a native of Georgia and a justice of the peace in Escambia County for many years, the latter a native of Escambia County. He was reared on a farm until he was nineteen years old, when he entered the timber business, felling and sawing lumber at intervals, in connection with farming. During the War of Secession he devoted his time exclusively to farming, but after peace was restored, he gradually merged his agricultural interests with those pertaining to the manufacture of lumber for exportation and domestic use. In 1889, he purchased large tracts of land in Baldwin County, and located near Montgomery. Here he secured the establishment of a post-office, which was named for him. He erected a saw mill and store and began the manufacture of all grades of merchantable lumber, later entering a co-partnership with P. E. McGowan and John McGowan. In 1892 he moved to Mobile, buying and rebuilding the mill three miles above the city, where he manufactures large quantities of lumber. He is owner of twenty-six thousand acres of land in Escambia and Baldwin Counties. He is a Democrat, a Mason, and a member of the Gulf Lumber Association. Married: January 5, 1870, Martha, daughter of Samuel McGowan, a native of Georgia and an early settler of Escambia County. Mrs. Blacksher had seven brothers in the C. S. Army, five of whom were killed. Children: 1. E. Manford, b. August 4, 1879; 2. Maggie E., b. in December, 1881. Residence: Mobile.

BLACKWELDER, WILSON MONROE, Baptist minister, was born October 18, 1857, at Dudleyville, Tallapoosa County; son of David and Emily Elizabeth (Brooks) Blackwelder, the former a native of Charlotte, N. C., who moved to Georgia when a boy, and later settled in Alabama; grandson of Jacob Blackwelder, and of Aaron Brooks. He received his early schooling at Dudleyville from such instructors as E. B. Langley, W. L. Lebow, L. L. Miller, and Tom Parker, and later attended Auburn Seminary, Auburn, Ky. He entered the Southern Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and was graduated there, 1889. He had begun to preach in the Baptist ministry in 1880, and from that time until the present, has been pastor of churches at County Line; Rock Springs, Chambers County; Decatur; Livingston; Eutaw; Greenville; Woodlawn; West End and Birmingham. Married: (1) in 1890, at Tuscaloosa, Flora Belle Findley; (2) in 1896, Antonette Stantenborough. Children, by first marriage; 1. Earle E., b. August 10, 1890; 2. Wilson Dean, b. November 27, 1893; by second marriage: 3. David Lee, b. September 16, 1896. Residence: East End, Birmingham.

BLACKWELL, DANIEL CAMP, lawyer, was born at Kowaliga, Tallapoosa County; son of F. M. and Louisa (Espy) Blackwell, the former a native of North Carolina, who located in Cherokee County, while still a young man; grandson of Daniel and Lydia (Camp) Blackwell of Cherokee County, and of Robert and Elizabeth (Watt) Espy. Lydia Camp was descended from a Virginia family of that name members of which fought in the Revolutionary War. Representative Blackwell was educated in the common schools, and in the high school of Lawrenceville, Henry County; read law in the office of Seals, Wood and Roquemore, at Eufaula; engaged in the practice of his profession; located in Anniston, April, 1887, where he has since resided; served as circuit judge by special appointment; represented Calhoun County in the legislature, 1915, and was a member of a special recess committee on the judiciary. He is a Democrat. Married: December 28, 1881, at Cuthbert, Ga., to Annie Laurie, daughter of Dr. James B. and Elizabeth (Greer) Smith, of that place. No children. Residence: Anniston.

BLACKWOOD, JAMES ELLIS, lawyer and circuit judge, was born December 5, 1872, in Blount County; son of John and Elzie (Easley) Blackwood, the former at one time a justice of peace and postmaster, too young for service in the C. S. Army; grandson of Alfred L. and Nancy Blackwood, and Daniel and Eudoxo Easley; great-grandson of Isaac Stevens, a Revolutionary soldier who was with the Continental Army at Valley Forge. He was educated in the common schools of Blount County; graduated from Blount college, Blountsville, 1891; read law in the office of Emory Hall; was admitted to the bar in 1892; and entered upon the practice at Blountsville. He was secretary of the Etowah Democratic County committee, and county campaign manager in 1898; commissioner to the World's fair, 1903; campaign manager for prohibitionists in Etowah County, 1907, and again in 1909 when the prohibition amendment was defeated; elected judge of the sixteenth judicial circuit, November 8, 1910, and reelected, 1916. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Odd Fellow; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: June 19, 1892, at Blountsville, to Nannie J., daughter of Clinton and Eliza (Barclift) Montgomery, granddaughter of George W. Montgomery and H. H. Barclift, both of Blountsville. Residence: Blountsville.

BLAIR, ALGERNON, contractor and builder, was born August 6, 1873, Brooklyn, N. Y.; son of Alexander and Hannah (Farnell) Blair; grandson of Alexander and Elizabeth (Carson) Blair of Devonshire, England, and of William and Sarah (Siddal) Farnell of Sowerby Bridge, West Riding, England; great-grandson of Francis Farnell. Alexander Blair came with his family to America in 1863, settled first in New Haven, Conn., and moved to Macon, Ga., in 1880, where he became an architect. Algernon Blair received his first schooling from Rev. R. H. Weller, in a suburb of Jacksonville, Fla.; was graduated from high school in Macon, Ga., in 1888, with first honor; became a contractor and builder, making a specialty of government work; constructed the national guard cantonment, Camp Sheridan, Montgomery. He is a Democrat, a Mason and an Episcopalian. He is author of a series of articles pertaining to the commercial development of Alabama. Married: (1) June 15, 1898, at Sylvania, Ga., Caroline Livingston Singellton; (2) July 14, 1908, at Macon, Ga., Adele Blue, daughter of William Fletcher and Mary (King) Blue, the former a veteran of the War of Secession. Children: 1. Alfred Farnell; 2. Elizabeth; 3. Carolyn. Residence: Montgomery.

BLAIR, FRANK G., mayor of Tuscaloosa, 1904. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BLAIR, HUGH W., physician, was born October 2, 1862, at Savannah, Ga., and died at Sheffield; son of Hugh A. and Maggie A. (Howard) Blair. He received his early schooling at Knoxville, Tenn., and was graduated from Cumberland University with the degree of A. B., 1885. After a short interval, he entered the medical department of Vanderbilt University, and was graduated as valedictorian of his class, 1885. Soon after leaving college, he began to practice medicine at Carthage, Tenn. He was chosen president of the county board of health while located there, and served in that capacity until he moved to Sheffield, March, 1887. He formed a successful partnership with Dr. W. H. Blake in that city, which terminated only with his death. He was a member of the state and county medical societies, and a member of the American Medical Association. Last residence: Sheffield.

BLAIR, JOHN JAMES, merchant, was born at Waxhaw, Lancaster County, S. C., April 12, 1793, and died in Marshall County, Miss., January 13, 1844; son of James and Mary (Cantzon) Blair, of Waxhaw Settlement, Catawba River, Lancaster County, S. C., the former a planter of that district; grandson of James Blair, a Scotch-Irish emigrant from County Antrim, Ireland, who settled in Lancaster County, S. C., and of Dr. John and Sarah (Dickie) Cantzon, the former a native of La Rochelle, France, who located at Waxhaw, S. C., where he was a prominent physician; great-grandson of Jean Jacques and Margery (Witherspoon) Kaantson, the former a Huguenot who fled after the Revolution to America, the latter the sister of John Witherspoon, president of Princeton college and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. John J. Blair removed to Camden, S. C., when a youth; was clerk of the court; became an extensive merchant, and was cashier of the Camden bank. He removed to Mobile in 1838; engaged in the grocery business with James Harrison, and founded a Presbyterian church at Spring Hill. He died while on a visit in Marshall County, Miss., and was buried at Spring Hill, near Mobile. Married: November 5, 1822, at Camden, S. C., to Martha Couturier, daughter of Capt. Peter and Mary (Flint) Ray, of Charleston County and Camden, S. C., granddaughter of William and Martha (Couturier)

Flint, of St. John's, Santee, Charleston County, S. C. Children: 1. Mary E., d. young; 2. James Ray, d. in infancy; 3. Henry Dickenson, m. Mary Lou, daughter of Col. James E. Saunders (q. v.); 4. Emily L., d. young; 5. James Douglass, merchant and planter of New Orleans, lieutenant colonel Fourth Louisiana regiment, C. S. Army, m. Parthenia Rugely, of South Carolina and Alabama; 6. Martha Shannon, m. Charles Farwell, captain in C. S. Army; 7. Ellen Charlotte, m. Alfonzo Irvine Rugely, a Confederate soldier who was mortally wounded at Baton Rouge, La.; 8. John James, Jr., m. Julia Rowe, of Mobile; 9. Thomas McMillian, lieutenant, Fifth Co., Washington artillery, C. S. Army, killed in battle of Chickamauga, Tenn.; 10. William Ray, d. young. Last residence: Spring Hill, Mobile County.

BLAIR, THOMAS, farmer, was born in 1836, on Terrapin Creek, Cherokee County; son of Ezekiel and Jane Blair, who lived at that place on a farm purchased from the state, having moved to Alabama from Tennessee in 1832, and settled among the Indians, the former a native of Monroe County, Tenn., and the latter of Blount County. He received a common school education, and worked on his father's farm. In September, 1861, he entered the C. S. Army, as fourth sergeant of a company in the Nineteenth Alabama regiment, and served until the close of the war, at which time he was a prisoner. After the war was over, he returned to his native home on Terrapin Creek. He was justice of the peace in Cherokee County for eight years, and preached the gospel of peace for many years. He was elected to the State legislature in August, 1900, as a representative from Cherokee County. He is a member of the Peoples' party, and of the Missionary Baptist church. Married: August, 1868, at Center, to Nannie Elizabeth Newberry. Children: six.

BLAKE, PRESTON, Missionary Baptist minister residing in Birmingham, in 1913.

BLAKE, SAMUEL MORGAN, public official, was born January 5, 1870, at Fayetteville, Lincoln County, Tenn.; son of George Washington and Eliza Hansell (McCord) Blake, who lived at Fayetteville, Tenn., the former a native of Petersburg, Lincoln County, Tenn.; grandson of John and Mary (Morgan) Blake, of Petersburg, Tenn., and of Samuel Handley and Martha Willa Elmina (Hansell) McCord, who lived at Moulton; great-grandson of Capt. John Walker Hansell, born in Greenville, S. C., who was commissioned second lieutenant in the War of 1812 by James Madison, and rose to the rank of captain; a descendant of Col. John Blake, of Nasmond County, Va., a member of the council of that state, 1656-1666, and of Joseph Blake, colonial governor of South Carolina, and of Martha Blake, who married William Washington, the grandson of Col. William Washington, brother of George Washington. Robert Cowan, an ancestor on the maternal side served under Capt. John Neville of Virginia, in the Revolutionary War. Other ancestors of the same name, and kinsmen of the name of Wood, fought in the army of independence. Mr. Blake obtained his education in the public and private schools at Fayetteville, Tenn. He was assistant postmaster at Fayetteville, Tenn., under Cleveland's first administration; moved to Birmingham, May, 1890; served as deputy clerk and register of the city court of Birmingham for several years; was chief clerk to Judge S. E. Green, probate judge of Jefferson County, during his incumbency; and was elected clerk and register of the city court of Birmingham, April, 1910. He is a Democrat; a Methodist, serving as steward in the church; a Mason, secretary of the Jefferson County Masonic Conference; an Odd Fellow; and a Knight of Pythias. Married June 14, 1893, in Birmingham, Turner Hearne, daughter of Marshall Harrison and Mary (Hawkins) Wells, of Birmingham, the former a Methodist preacher for nearly sixty years, chaplain in the C. S. Army; granddaughter of Thomas Simmons Wells, an extensive planter in Mississippi and Arkansas, and of Judge Wiley Turner Hawkins, a native of Dinwiddie County, Va., who was probate judge of Lauderdale County for twenty years or more. Residence: Birmingham.

BLAKE, SAMUEL R., planter, lawyer, State senator, was born in North Carolina, and died in Texas. His father lived in the vicinity of Wilmington, where Samuel R. was probably educated. Mr. Blake was a lawyer and early removed with his father to Macon, Ga., where he opened an office and engaged in general practice; removed to Alabama, locating in Dallas County, and became a planter of considerable means. In 1853, he represented the district of which Dallas is a part, in the State senate, and served as chairman of the judiciary committee of that body. In 1860 he removed to Texas. Last residence: Texas.

BLAKE, WYATT HEFLIN, physician, was born June 21, 1856, at Blake's Ferry, Randolph County; son of John and Marietta J. (Heflin) Blake, the former a native of Carroll County, Ga., who located at Blake's Ferry, was a private in the Twenty-third Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, was captured at the battle of Nashville, and held a prisoner at Camp Douglas until the end of the war; grandson of Thomas and Delana (Young) Blake, natives of Gainesville, Ga., who settled near Arbacoochee, Cleburne County, while that section was still inhabited by Creek Indians, the former being the first member of the state legislature from Randolph County, and of Wyatt and Sarah (Still) Heflin, of Louisa, Randolph County. The old homestead at Blake's Ferry was originally the site of an Indian village, on a reservation owned by a Creek Indian. The original Indian deed is in the possession of Dr. Blake at the present time.

Wyatt Heflin Blake received his early education in the country schools near his home, at Lineville, Clay County, and at Newnan, Ga. He was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, B. S., 1879, taught school in Roanoke for the next two years, and was graduated from Vanderbilt University, M. D., 1883. The following year he spent as interne in the Medical College Hospital, Nashville, Tenn., and began to practice medicine in 1885. He located in Blake's Ferry, 1885-1888, in Lineville, 1888-1897, and moved to Sheffield, where he has continued his practice, since 1901. The honorary degree of M. S. was conferred upon Dr. Blake by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1894. He served on the Alabama State Convict Commission from 1897 to 1901, and was one of several physicians who were active in procuring state aid in an effort to combat tuberculosis. He urged the isolation of tubercular convicts and was one of the first to insist on the state's establishing a sanatorium. He is author of several pamphlets and articles on the subject of tuberculosis. He is a Democrat, was a member of the state executive committee, 1894-1896, and chairman of the Democratic executive committee for the fifth Congressional district of Alabama, the same years. He has been a member of the Board of Trustees of the Department of Archives and History, State of Alabama, from its organization; has been president of the Clay County Medical Society, of the Colbert County Medical Society, of the Alabama State Medical Association in 1911; and is a member of the American Medical Association. He is a Baptist and a member of Chi Phi fraternity.

Married: July 26, 1885, at Roanoke, Martha Lee Shaffer, daughter of John P. and Margaret E. Shaffer of that city. Children: 1. John, Selma; 2. Jephtha Hill, Sheffield; 3. Margaret Erin, Sheffield; 4. Maretta Rosa, Sheffield; 5. Jefferson Davis, Sheffield; 6. Wyatt Heflin, jr., Sheffield; 7. Shaffer Booker, Sheffield; 8. Gravis Blair, Sheffield; 9. Thomas Henry, Sheffield. Residence: Sheffield.

BLAKELY, AQUILLA, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 94, and a resident of Blount County; private and sergeant Virginia Militia; enrolled on July 2, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $35; sums received to date of publication of list, $105.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Part 3, vol. xiii, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BLAKENEY, LEWIS COLUMBUS, physician, was born November 7, 1851, in Chesterfield County, S. C.; son of Lewis and Elizabeth (Funderburk) Blakeney, the former a native and life long resident of Chesterfield County, S. C.; grandson of John Blakeney, a soldier of the Revolution, of Chesterfield County, S. C., and of Irish descent, and of Jacob Funderburk, of Lancaster District, S. C., and of Dutch descent. Dr. Blakeney received his early education in the public schools of South Carolina and Alabama, and graduated with the M. D. degree from the University of Alabama, in 1874. He practiced in Pickens County for three years, removing from that place to Millport, Lamar County. He has served as county commissioner of roads and revenue and as justice of the peace. He is a Baptist; Democrat; Mason; and an Odd Fellow. Married: in 1876, to Rachel Rebecca, daughter of Hiram Vail, of Lamar County. Children: 1. William Waller; 2. Elizabeth Mariliza; 3. Lewis Oscar; 4. Myrtle May; 5. Thomas Columbus; 6. Trannie. Residence: Millport.

BLAKEY, DAVID TALIAFERRO, lawyer, planter, colonel First Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army, was born August 12, 1833, at Mt. Meigs, Montgomery County, and died June 27, 1902, in Montgomery; son of Dr. Bolling A. and Mary Elizabeth (Taliaferro) Blakey, the former a native of Augusta, Ga., who removed to Alabama in 1818 and located at Mt. Meigs from which place he removed to Montgomery in 1835, and to Macon County in 1841, where he remained until his death in 1873; grandson of David M. Taliaferro (q. v.); great-grandson of Col. William D. Barnett, an officer of the Georgia troops in the War of the Revolution, afterwards a member of congress from that state, and of Ben Taliaferro, also a Revolutionary officer and Georgia congressman. The Blakey family came originally from England, settled first in Virginia and thence into Georgia, where they formed a part of the Broad River Colony. David Taliaferro Blakey graduated with honors from the University of Georgia in 1851 with the degree of A. B., and at once began the study of law in the office of Judge John M. Chilton in Tuskegee and was admitted to the bar. In 1861, at the outbreak of the War of Secession, he enlisted as a private in the 3rd Alabama infantry regiment and in September of that year was promoted to ordnance officer under Gen. Jones Mitchell Withers. He later raised a cavalry company in Mobile of which he was made captain, Co. E, 1st Alabama cavalry regiment. He was promoted major of the regiment in August, 1862, lieutenant-colonel in October following and in March, 1863, was made colonel. He was in command of the brigade to which his regiment was attached at the close of the war. At Dandridge, Tenn., he received his first and only wound, a gunshot through the body. Immediately following the close of the war, he engaged in planting but in 1867 he settled in Montgomery and entered upon the practice of the law. Married: December, 1866, at Union Springs, to Mary S., daughter of Dr. William S. Mabson. Children: (1) Bolling Anthony, graduate of the University of Alabama, 1886, with the A. B. degree and of the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1887, with the M. S. degree, instructor, mechanical department, A. P. I., 1887-92, manager electric machine works, 1892-98, superintendent water works and electrical plant of Union Springs, 1898-99, city electrician, Montgomery, 1900; 2. William M.; 3. David Taliaferro, jr. Last residence: Montgomery.

BLANDIN, ISABELLA MARGARET ELIZABETH, author, was born in Alabama, and died June 30, 1912, at Houston, Tex.; daughter of Joseph Reid and Rosa Jane (Smith) John, the former a native of North Carolina, a lawyer who lived in Union Town and Selma. Her father with other men of means of Union Town subscribed the money to employ teachers to conduct a school in the town, and Mrs. Blandin received her early education there. She never attended college but gained an equivalent education by private instruction and study. She was left a widow in 1866 with three children and, in order to support them, began, in 1870, to teach school. She taught first in the city schools of Selma, then in Montgomery, and later in Houston, Tex.

GENERAL LEROY P. WALKER

She instituted settlement work in the latter place and organized the first city mission board of which she was president for several years. This board later built and equipped a cooperative home for working girls. Her work among the foreigners resulted in the establishment of free kindergartens, day-nurseries, and the employment of several deaconesses to carry on her work. She organized several Sunday schools in Houston, which have since grown into self-sustaining churches. She is author of "History of Higher Education of Women in the South, Prior to 1860," The Neale Publishing Company, 1909; "History of Shearn Church, 1837-1907," published 1908; "A History of Alabama," incomplete at the time of her death; a pamphlet, "From Gonzales to San Jacinto, a Historical Drama of the Texan Revolution," 1897; and a number of short stories published in various periodicals.

Married: At Selma, April 30, 1860, John Wirt Blandin. Children: 1. John Joseph, m. Corinne Chérbonnier, was graduated from the Naval Academy, Annapolis, from Johns Hopkins University, Ph. D., was first lieutenant in the U. S. Navy, and officer of the day on board the "Maine" when it was sunk in Havana harbor, died of injuries received in that explosion, left four children, John Joseph, Victor Chérbonnier, Marie and Eugenie, who live with their mother at Glen Arm, Md.; 2. Mary Blandin, a graduate of the Tuskegee Female College, m. A. G. Howell, resides at Houston, Tex.; 3. Belle, m. W. W. Seals of Georgia, resides at Bellaire, Tex. Last residence: Houston, Tex.

BLANKENSHIP, REUBEN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 69, and a resident of Shelby County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on May 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $23.31.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Coosa County, June 1, 1840, aged 73.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149. He was buried at Poplar Springs church in that county.—D. B. Oden, of Childersburg, Ala., in Alabama Historical Society Transactions, vol. iv, p. 533.

BLASINGAME, WYATT CHILDS, educator, was born July 9, 1874, at Culloden, Monroe County, Ga.; son of John William and Amanda (Jackson) Blasingame, the former a native of Thomaston, Pike County, Ga., who fought in Co. C, Thirty-second Georgia regiment, C. S. Army, under Gen. George Harrison of Opelika; grandson of Wyatt and Nancy (Adams) Blasingame, and of Burwill Jackson, all of Thomaston, Ga.; great-grandson of Benjamin Blasingame; great-great-grandson of Gen. John Blasingame, a French Huguenot who settled in South Carolina, and had four sons, three of whom, Gen. John A., Col. Thomas, and Col. James, were officers in the Revolutionary Army. He was prepared in Culloden, Ga., in the first brick church and school erected in that state, later in Normal College, Knoxville, Tenn., 1894-1897; was graduated with first honors, University of Tennessee, A. B., 1899; attended and took several courses by correspondence at the University of Chicago. He served as instructor in the Normal College, 1895-1898, and as president, 1898-1902; became teacher of mathematics in the high school at Fort Smith, Ark., 1902-1904; superintendent of public schools of East Lake, 1904-1906, and of Demopolis, 1906-1911; and teacher in Marengo County high school, 1911. He is now in the U. S. Public Health Service and is attached to the Alabama state board of health. He was elected to the board of education of Marengo County, 1910-1912, and was chairman of the library committee of A. E. A. He is a Baptist and a Mason. Married: July 17, 1901, at Livingston, Maud Harmon Lurton, daughter of Edmond B. and Clara (Brown) Lurton, of Clarksville, Tenn.; granddaughter of Leonidas L. Lurton, whose son Horace Harmon Lurton, was a justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. Children: 1. Edmond Lurton, b. 1904, at Fort Smith, Ark.; 2. Wyatt Rainey, b. 1909, at Demopolis. Residence: Thomaston, Ga.

BLASSINGAME, WILLIAM EASLEY, planter, was born near Greenville, S. C., 1798, and died in Perry County, 1841; son of Gen. John and Elizabeth Nancy (Easley) Blassingame, the former a private soldier in the Revolution and also in the war of 1812; and grandson of Maj. John Blassingame and wife, who was a Miss Westfield, the former also a soldier of the Revolution, buried at the Old Stone Church, near Seneca, S. C. Mr. Blassingame was educated in South Carolina, graduating from the South Carolina college in 1817; about 1830, he removed to Perry County where he became an influential citizen, a member of the state legislature, 1838, one of the founders of the Marion female seminary, and of Judson college. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: Eliza Townes, of South Carolina. Children: 1. Maria, m. John Chambers; 2. John; 3. Elizabeth, m. Sam McLaughlin; 4. William, m. Martha Simmons; 5. Aurelia, m. Gov. Benjamin Fitzpatrick (q. v.), his second wife; 6. Mary, m. Robert James Glenn (q. v.). Last residence: Marion.

BLEDSON, JOHN F., Missionary Baptist minister. Deceased. Father of W. C. Bledsoe, Lafayette.

BLEDSON, NATHANIEL MACON, physician, was born April 13, 1835, in Butts County, Ga.; son of Morton and Mary J. (Bailey) Bledsoe, natives respectively of Orange County, Va., and of Oglethorpe County, Ga., the former being of English descent, a Whig in politics, a planter, a man of means and influence, the father of twelve children, nine of whom reached maturity. Nathaniel M. Bledsoe received a sound academic education preparatory to acquiring his profession. He began to read medicine in the offices of his brother and brother-in-law at the age of eighteen, and graduated from the medical department of the University of Nashville, Tenn., in 1857. He located in a rural settlement east of Union Springs, where he remained for seventeen years; in 1884, he removed to that town, opened a drug store, and continued to practice his profession. At the opening of the War of Secession he was detailed to remain at home to give medical attention to the community, and the families of the soldiers at the front. For the latter service he would accept no pay. He was noted for his charity and especially his helpfulness to ambitious young people seeking an education. In this one form of benevolence he expended large sums of money. He was a Baptist and Mason and vice-president Bullock County Medical Society. Married: in 1857, to Amanda, daughter of James R. Pickett, a pioneer of what is now Bullock County. No children. Last residence: Union Springs.

BLEDSON, WILLIAM CAREY, Baptist minister, was born October 11, 1847, at Lafayette, Chambers County; son of John Francis and Mary Upson (Birdsong) Bledson, the former a native of Edgefield District, S. C., who came to Lafayette in 1854, a Baptist preacher and president of Lafayette Female College for twenty-one years; grandson of William Bledson of Fluvanna County, Va., who moved with his family to Chambers County, about 1830, and of James and Sarah Birdsong of Roanoke; great grandson of William Bledson, who moved from Virginia to Edgefield District, S. C. The Bledsons are of English descent, the progenitor of the family being William Bledson, who came from England and settled in Virginia just prior to the Revolutionary War. The Birdsongs are of Scotch ancestry.

William Carey Bledson was prepared in the common schools of Lafayette, and was attending an academy at Dalton, Ga., when the War of Secession broke out and the school was disbanded. He returned to his home, and in 1864, when seventeen years old, enlisted in the C. S. Army, joining Co. F, Sixty-first Alabama regiment, Battle's Brigade, Gordon's division of the army of Virginia. He served until the close of the war, surrendering with Gen. Lee at Appomattox. During a short furlough spent with the Bledsons of Fluvanna County, Va., in the fall of 1864, he was converted and united with the Old Fluvanna Baptist church. After the surrender, he was employed by John K. Spence, and issued the initial numbers of the "Greensboro Herald," at Greensboro, Ga. In the winter of 1866-1867, he entered the university of Mt. Lebanon, La., but after one session entered Georgetown College, Ky. He was graduated from the theological course there with the degree of A. M., 1868. He was ordained by the Baptist Church at Georgetown, Ky., July, 1886, and was assigned to his first pastorate at Cane Run near Georgetown. He was in charge of the Baptist church there for two years when he moved to Lafayette. He has been pastor of the Baptist church in that city for more than a quarter of a century.

The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. Bledson by Harvard College, 1886. He was elected secretary of the Alabama Baptist State Board of Missions in 1895, and occupied that office for three years. He was superintendent of education of Chambers County for several years. For thirty-six years he has served as grand chaplain of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Alabama. He is author of "History of the Liberty (East) Baptist Association of Alabama." Married: (1) August 12, 1868, Rena Carson, d. August 6, 1869; (2) October 1, 1870, at Higginsville, Mo., Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Henry Higgins, of Lafayette County, Mo. Children, by first marriage; 1. Rena, d. at Dawson, Ga., m. William E. Rior-dan, had one son, Emmette, who lives at Dawson, Ga.; by second marriage; 2. John Harvey, physician, d., m. Berta Edwards of Macon, Ga., left three children, William, Annie and John, who live at Macon Ga.; 3. Mary Susan, a graduate of Lafayette Female College, m. L. W. Payne, jr., Ph. D., professor of English at the University of Texas, Austin, Tex. Residence: Lafayette.

BLINN, GEORGE, ANDERSON, JR., business man, was born in Covington, Ky. His parents moved to Cincinnati, O., during his childhood, and he received his education there, graduating from Hughes high school and Nelson's Business College. In 1887, with his father, he came to Birmingham and purchased the Excelsior laundry. The business has grown steadily, until it now occupies twenty-one thousand feet of floor space in its own building. Mr. Blinn is president of the company, and J. W. Donnelly, who has been associated with him since 1906, is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Blinn was one of the organizers of the Jefferson Fertilizer Company, and has served as its secretary and treasurer for many years. He has operated extensively in the real estate field; is director of the Business Men's League; vice president of the Alabama State Fair Association, a Mason, a member of the Rotary club and of several social clubs. Residence: Birmingham.

BLISS, JONATHAN, lawyer, was born July 15, 1799, at Randolph, Vt., and died July 27, 1879, at Cleveland, Ohio; son of Shubael and Martha (Mastin) Bliss, the former a native of Rehoboth, Mass., who removed to Vermont in 1798; grandson of Jonathan and Lydia (Wheeler) Bliss of Rehoboth; great-grandson of Thomas Bliss of Rehoboth, and great-great-grandson of Jonathan Bliss of Belstone, England, who immigrated to Boston, Mass., in 1736. Jonathan Bliss was graduated from Dartmouth college, 1824, and devoted himself to the profession of law in that State prior to removing to Gainesville, Sumter County, in 1836. He was a member of the constitutional convention of Alabama, 1875; for some years he was the law partner of Joe G. Baldwin, author of "Flush Times in Alabama and Mississippi," and figures in that humorous picture of the pioneer period as "Mr. Bliss." He afterwards removed to California, where he became chief justice of the supreme court of that State. The correspondence that was conducted between these two early Alabamians was destroyed by fire when the family home was burned shortly after the death of Mr. Bliss. He was a Democrat and a Presbyterian. Married: October 13, 1831, to Lucretia A. C., daughter of William and Lucretia (Hallam) Leverett of Windsor, Vt., and granddaughter of Gov. John Leverett of Massachusetts. Children: 1. Martha, m. (1) Robert Washington, lawyer, (2) Dr. John A. Warren, Mobile; 2. Mary E.; 3. Elizabeth L., twin with Mary, both of whom died in infancy; 4. Mary Elizabeth, m. David Moor Russell, Jonestown, Miss. Last residence: Cleveland, Ohio.

BLOCH, SOLOMON DANIEL, editor and publisher, was born in Camden, January 16, 1855; son of Daniel W. and Jannette (Kahn) Bloch, the former was born in Floss, emigrated to the United States, and was one of the first settlers in Camden, a merchant and planter, and served in the War of Secession in Co. H 23rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and later on the staff of Gen. B. Y. Ramsey; and the grandson of Wolf Samuel Bloch of Floss, Bavaria, and of Solomon and Agatha Kahn, of Grossbockenheim also in Bavaria. Mr. Bloch received his early education in Camden, and later attended the Barton academy in Mobile. He afterwards studied law, and was admitted to the practice, but his business interests required his time so completely that he was compelled to relinquish the law for an active business career. He was mayor of Camden two terms, 1882, 1884; and alderman many terms and for a time was county commissioner of Wilcox County. He served as a captain on Major James T. Beck's staff, Alabama State troops, retiring in 1902. In 1892, while a senator from Wilcox County, Mr. Bloch prepared and introduced the bill establishing the Alabama girl's industrial school, now the Alabama technical institute and college for women, which after some opposition, became a law, in 1896. Mr. Bloch was appointed one of the first trustees, a position which he has held under every administration to the present time. He was chairman of the finance committee for eight years, and aided in bringing the school through its financial troubles, but would accept no compensation for his services as trustee and committeeman. In recognition of these services, however, the board of trustees ordered that his life size portrait be permanently displayed on the walls of the chapel of the institution at Montevallo. Mr. Bloch is recognized as the founder of the school, and takes a constant interest in its welfare. He was elected from Wilcox County to the senate in 1890 and to the house of representatives in 1906. He is a member of the National geographic society; of the State good roads association; was the prime mover in the Montgomery, Hayneville and Camden railroad, a projected road from Atlanta and Montgomery to New Orleans, and was its president. The parents of Mr. Bloch were Israelites, and while he has never connected himself with any congregation or church, he is a regular attendant upon all temple and church services. He is a Democrat; a Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. He is the founder of the "Wilcox Progress" and from 1887 until 1897, he was its editor and proprietor. He now owns and edits the "Wilcox Progressive Era," a consolidation of the "Progress," "New Era," "Banner" and the "Camden News." He is a member of Camp I. G. W. Steedman, S. C. V., at Camden, and was elected camp historian, a position which he now holds. He is unmarried. Residence: Camden.

BLOCKER, JOHN RUFUS, cotton factor, planter, was born November 12, 1810, at Edgefield, S. C., and died February 16, 1869, in Greene County; son of Abner and Amelia (Kennedy) Blocker, natives of Edgefield, S. C., the former of whom was a colonel of South Carolina troops in the War of 1812, and was one of the early settlers of the Tennessee Valley; grandson of John and Juliana Blocker, of Edgefield, S. C., the former of whom was a captain in the continental army. The ancestors of the Blockers came from Mecklenburg, Germany, and settled in South Carolina. The name was originally spelled Blucher. Mr. Blocker gained his early schooling in South Carolina, and attended the University of South Carolina. He settled in Mobile as a cotton factor, but later moved to a plantation in Greene County where he lived for the rest of his life with the exception of the period during the War of Secession when he lived in Tuscaloosa. He raised a company to go to the Mexican War, but did not see any active service; was a member of the state senate during Gov. Chapman's administration; enlisted in the C. S. Army, joining the Eleventh Alabama, but was too old for active service. All during the war, he took care of the wives and children of the soldiers at the front, and served as a member of the Tuscaloosa home guards. He was a Democrat, and voted for Stephen A. Douglas. He was opposed to secession, but supported the Confederacy when the state went out of the Union. He was a steward in the Methodist church, and was a Mason. Married: in Greene County, Amanda Albany (Watson) Brown, daughter of John and Mary (Hays) Watson, of Farland, Greene County. Her father came from Fairfield, S. C., to Alabama about 1819, and was of Scotch stock. Her mother was born in the north of Ireland, and lived in South Carolina. Children: 1. Sallie Amelia, m. Harry I. Thornton, resides in Watsonia, child, J. Blocker Thornton (q. v.); 2. Bettie Cooper, deceased, m. Norfleet Harris of Tuscaloosa; 3. Annie McAlpine, m. Dr. T. J. Turpin (q. v.), both deceased, child, Alice, m. James D. Webb city engineer of Birmingham; 4. Julia Watson, m. Dr. A. H. Byrd, resides at Eutaw; 5. John Watson, b. February 7, 1857, was registrar of Colbert County, 1891-1894, manager for Southern Express Company at Jackson Tenn., now resides in Chattanooga, Tenn., m. (1) October 10, 1883, at Forkland, Nettie M. Glover of Forkland, (2) November 29, 1887, at Pine Bluff, Ark., Bolling Lawton of South Carolina. Last residence: Greene County.

BLOUNT, ROBERT P., lieutenant-colonel, 9th battalion, Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BLUE, ERNEST LEE, lawyer, was born October 31, 1870 at Inverness, Bullock County; son of Patrick and Sarah Agnes (Boyd) Blue; grandson of Hector and Mary (McKinnan) Blue who lived at or near Bethel Church, Bullock County, and of Robert and Mary (McMurray) Boyd, who lived in the same community. His father was born in Moore County, N. C., was graduated from the Charleston Medical College, South Carolina, and practiced medicine at Geneva from 1856 until the outbreak of the War of Secession, when he became assistant surgeon of the Forty-third regiment of cavalry, C. S. Army. The original ancestor of the Blue family in America, came to this country from Scotland in 1745, settling in Moore County, N. C. The Blues are of Highland Scotch descent. Mr. Blue was prepared in private and public schools at Union Springs; was graduated from South Western Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., A. B., June 1890; and from the University of Alabama, LL. B., 1891. He was admitted to the practice, June 30, 1891, and has been engaged in the general practice of law since that date. He served as register in chancery of Bullock County, 1891-1896; was secretary and chairman of the Democratic county executive committee two terms; and secretary of the Democratic executive committee of the third congressional district, 1896-1914. He was lieutenant and later captain of Co. G, Third Alabama infantry regiment, Alabama national guard, 1894-1898. He is a Presbyterian; has been a Mason since December 1892; and is a member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. Married: February 26, 1896, at Union Springs, Harriet Zenobia, daughter of Isaac Ball and Sarah J. Feagin (q. v.), of Union Springs. Children: 1. Sarah, graduate of Judson College, Marion, national inspector of Kappa Delta sorority, Union Springs; 2. Ernest Lee, jr., law student, University of Alabama, Union Springs; 3. Ike Feagin, student, University of Alabama, Union Springs; 4. Harriet, high school student, Union Springs. Residence: Union Springs.

BLUE, JOHN HOWARD, physician, was born August 31, 1877, at Montgomery; son of Dr. John Howard and Mary Wood (Cook) Blue, the former a native of Mobile, a physician, who lived at Montgomery; grandson of Dr. Oliver R. and Ann E. (Howard) Blue (q. v.) of Montgomery, the former a Methodist minister, the latter a native of Georgia, and of John and Sallie Cook of Elmore County. His great-grandfather was one of the original settlers of Montgomery and was one of the first men who located the town. John Howard Blue received his first schooling in Montgomery from Miss Augusta Woodruff, and later attended the University of Alabama from which he was graduated, B. S., 1896, and the following year became instructor in chemistry at that institution. He entered Columbia University and was graduated, M. D., 1901. He served as interne in the Roosevelt Hospital, New York City, from 1901 until 1904, then located in Montgomery where he has practiced his profession as physician and surgeon with eminent success and distinction. He is a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: April 20, 1910, Anna, daughter of William Keller and Elizabeth Pelzer of Montgomery. Residence: Montgomery.

BLUE, MATTHEW POWERS, public official, was born September 24, 1824, in Montgomery, and died December 20, 1884, in that city; son of Neil and Eliza (Powers) Blue (q. v.). He was educated by his father and in the schools of Montgomery and from January, 1845, to April, 1846, taught in the old Montgomery academy, having before this assisted his father in the post office. He returned to the post office in 1846 as a clerk and was the only one of the employees retained by Martin Pond when he became postmaster in 1849. In 1853 he received the appointment of postmaster and in 1870 he served as secretary of the State senate. Author: "Churches of the city of Montgomery, Alabama," 1878; "Brief history of Montgomery," 1878; "Genealogy of the Blue family," 1886. He married and left many descendants. Last residence: Montgomery.

BLUE, NEIL, public official, was born December 9, 1793, in Richmond County, N. C., and died June 23, 1877, in Montgomery; son of Dugald and Mary (McLaughlin) Blue, the former a native of Cumberland County, N. C., a farmer, who later lived at Goose Pond, Richmond County, N. C., and died in Montgomery; grandson of Malcolm and Sarah (Smith) Blue, both natives of Cantyre, Scotland, who in 1748 came with a large colony from the highlands of Scotland, settled near Wilmington, N. C., later moved to the Longstreet settlement, near Fayetteville, N. C., bearing the name of "Blue Place" where he cleared land and became a farmer, and of Duncan and Margaret (Ray) McLaughlin, the former a native of Knapsdale, Argyleshire, Scotland, who emigrated to America in 1767, landing at Wilmington, N. C., locating first in Cumberland County, later at Mount Pelier, Robeson County, N. C., the latter a native of the Island of Jura, Argyleshire, Scotland. The Blues are of Celtic origin, descendants of the hardy highlanders of Scotland who were Presbyterians, Covenanters, and followers of Charles Stuart, having participated in the battle of Culloden, April 16, 1746, and who emigrated to America shortly after in order to escape persecution. Neil Blue received his education at Shoe Heel and Spring Hill academies, working on his father's farm between times. In 1811 was thrown from his horse receiving injuries which forced him to abandon his farming interests. He took up the profession of teaching in 1813, procuring a school in Anson County, N. C., later teaching in Rowan, Moore, Montgomery and Robeson Counties. In 1819 his elder brother, Daniel, returned to North Carolina from Pearl River, Mississippi Territory, in order to remove his younger brothers and sisters to their new home. Daniel persuaded his brother, Neil, to accompany them. They left their home in the middle of February, 1819, and reached Alabama Town, now a part of the city of Montgomery, on March 15, 1819. Here Neil separated from his brothers and sisters having decided to open a school in that town. He was the second teacher in the place and served at the same time as jailor. Early in 1820, he located in Rocky Mount, Autauga County, and here he taught Col. Bolling Hall, Dr. S. P. Smith, and Albert J. Pickett, historian. In 1822, he taught the 16th section school, in township 16, range 18, southeast of the city of Montgomery, and on Catoma Creek. At the close of the year he decided to give up the profession of teaching, which afforded him only a meagre support for his family, and with them removed to Montgomery. In March, 1823, he was elected constable serving in this office for three years, and in 1826 he accepted from John Falconer, the first postmaster of Montgomery, the position of clerk in the post-office, a place he held for the next eight years. He was elected discount clerk in the Branch bank of the State of Alabama, November 13, 1833, resigning at the expiration of seven and one-half months in order to enter upon the duties of postmaster, July 1, 1834. He was town councillor in 1837; was elected a member of the first board of alderman, in January, 1838, also served as city treasurer, and was re-elected during the next two years. On July 1, 1849, he was removed from the office of postmaster on account of his political affiliations, and a short while afterwards was beaten for sheriff. He was persuaded to remove to Texas, locating in Bastrop County, where he remained until the spring of 1854, returning to Montgomery at that time. His son, Matthew P. Blue, was at that time the postmaster at Montgomery, and he accepted a clerkship under him. He also held this position under postmasters Thomas Welsh and E. M. Burton, served for a while in 1865 under W. J. Bibb, and was delivery clerk during 1871 under Joseph Dimmick. He resigned during the latter year as he found that his presence in the post office was likely to embarrass Captain Dimmick on account of the difference in party affiliations. In all he had given thirty-seven years of faithful service to the Montgomery postoffice. He spent the last few years of his life with his children in Montgomery. He was a Methodist and a Democrat. Married: January 8, 1818, near St. Paul, Robeson County, N. C., to Eliza, daughter of Matthew and Olive (Reagan) Powers, of that place; granddaughter of Ralph and Milly Reagan, of Robeson County, N. C., and of John Powers, a native of Ireland who emigrated to America, locating first on the Cape Fear River, above Wilmington, N. C., afterwards removing to Marion District, S. C., a farmer and a Whig. Children: 1. Harriet, m. ——— Fort; 2. Rufus O. (q. v.); 3. Matthew P. (q. v.); 4. John; 5. Albert W., m. Irene Chambers, of Robinson Springs; 6. Robert Donovan, d. young; 7. Allen, m. Timothy Jones; 8. Nellie, m. Milo Barrett; 9. Olivia, m. John N. Browder. Last residence: Montgomery.

BLUE, OLIVER RUFUS, Methodist minister, was born March 24, 1822, in Montgomery, died January 8, 1893, in Greensboro, and is buried in Oakwood cemetery, Montgomery; son of Neil and Eliza (Powers) Blue (q. v.). He was educated in Montgomery, and when seventeen years of age joined the Methodist church in that city. "His conversion, October 9, 1839, was of that positive, clear, and joyous type so often found among the older Methodists." (General Conference Minutes, 1893.) He was licensed to exhort, March 23, 1843, and to preach, October 12, 1843. On January 6, 1844, he was "admitted on trial" into the Alabama conference. His first appointment was the Lafayette circuit, but before the end of the year he was transferred to the Montgomery station. While still an undergraduate he served the Montgomery, Mobile, Talladega, and Eufaula stations, and in 1850 was appointed presiding elder of the Montgomery district. He served as a minister for forty-nine years filling "the most prominent stations and districts in the conference." "During that long period he maintained his prominence in the conference, and his life and labors contributed as much as those of any one man to the progress of Methodism in Alabama, both in its spiritual work and in the institutions, educational and benevolent, which it established and maintained." (Minute, supra.) He represented the Alabama conference in seven General conferences. Twice, in the absence of the bishop he was elected to preside over the Alabama annual conference. Married: in 1848 at Columbus, Ga., to Ann Eliza Howard, born December 3, 1825, and died October 22, 1891. Children: 1. John Howard, m. Mary Wood Cook, parents of Dr. John Howard Blue (q. v.); 2. Annie Judy, d. at the age of 18; 3. Marie, d. young; 4. Eliza, d. in infancy. Last residence: Greensboro.

BLUNT, RICHARD EUGENE, merchant and farmer, was born July 31, 1852, near Laneville, Hale County; son of Alexander Pete and Margaret Ann (Davies) Blunt, the former a native of Sussex County, Va., who removed to Hale County, in the early forties, and became a farmer, the latter of Surry County, Va.; grandson of Thomas Alexander and Agnes (Archie) Blunt, of Surry County, but the former was a native of England. Mr. Blunt was reared on a farm, received his education in the common schools of his county, and also attended the old East Alabama male college at Auburn, 1863. He served on the board of registrars of Washington county in 1901; was superintendent of education for twelve years; and represented the county in the house of representatives, 1915 and 1919. For a time he resided at Sunflower, but later removed to St. Stephens. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Mason. Married: (1) January 7, 1873, at Spring Hill, Marengo County, to Sallie Agnes, daughter of Arnett W. and Louisa (Strong) Harrell, who lived at Old Wakefield, Washington County; and (2) to Mrs. Laura (Collins) Walker, daughter of John H. and Cornelia (Skipworth) Collins, of Jackson, Clarke County. No children. Residence: St. Stephens.

BOARDMAN, VOLNEY, jeweler, silversmith and circuit clerk was born August 22, 1810, at Worthington, Richmond county, O., and died

May 29, 1890 at Greensboro; son of Jeremiah and Jemima (Church) Boardman of Hartford, Conn. The Boardman family is of English stock. Volney Boardman received his education in the common schools of Worthington; was apprenticed by his father at the age of eighteen to learn the business of a jeweler and silversmith, and entered upon the practice of his profession in Greensboro, in 1832; one year later he removed to Tuscaloosa, but in 1835 he returned to Greensboro where he made his permanent residence; was circuit clerk of Hale County for twenty years and resigned in 1889 on account of ill health; was major in a militia regiment prior to 1861. He was an old line Whig until the beginning of hostilities, after which he was a Democrat. He was a Presbyterian and a Mason. Married: (1) in 1840, at Greensboro, to Margaret, daughter of James and Catharine (Cowan) Locke, who lived near Statesville, Rowan County, N. C.; (2) June 8, 1846, to Harriett Earle, daughter of Richard and Catherine (Sloan) Harrison, the latter related to the noted Williams, Daniel and Earle families of the South. Children by first marriage: 1. James Locke; 2. Margaret E.; by second marriage: 3. Henry; 4. Laura, m. W. S. Askew, Decatur, Ga.; 5. Kate Sloan, Greensboro; 6. Elena; 7. Emma, a missionary to Hangchow, China; 8. Florence Lee; 9. Richard Isam. Last residence: Greensboro.

BODDIE, JOHN B., business man, was born at Dayton, Marengo County, in October, 1849, and died in Birmingham prior to 1890. His father's ancestry was of French extraction, his mother of Scotch-Irish descent; great-grandson of Gen. Winchester of Revolutionary War fame, and nephew of Gen. E. W. Rucker, of the Confederate Army. He entered business in 1883 and amassed a large amount of real estate property; owned interest in Sloss steel and iron company; North Birmingham land company; North Highlands company; Coalburg coal and coke company; and Central land and improvement company. He was a Methodist, and member of several social clubs. Married: (1) in 1879, to Annie Perryman, of Mobile; (2) January 21, 1885, to Jennie Cleves of Memphis, Tenn. Children: by first wife, 1. John B., jr.; by second wife, 2. Mary. Residence: Birmingham.

BODLY, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Jackson County; private S. C. State Troops and Militia; enrolled on January 22, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BOGART, WILLIAM HENRY, business man and legislator, was born September 27, 1833, at Athens, McMinn County, Tenn.; son of Charles and Caroline (Breazeale) Bogart, the former a native of Roane County, Tenn., the latter lived near Loudon, Tenn.; grandson of Franklin and Mattie Breazeale. He was educated in the common schools. He is a merchant and a farmer; was justice of the peace at Bass Station, Jackson County, removed by Federal authorities in 1867; elected to same office in 1874; and held it until 1884, when he removed to Stevenson. He represented Jackson County in the legislature of 1884; re-elected 1888; and again in November, 1902. He was senator from fifth district, 1892. He is a Democrat. Married: February 14, 1872, to Nancy Octavia, daughter of Thomas E. and Talitha A. McMahan, of Jackson County. Residence: Stevenson.

BOGGS, WILLIAM L., professor of chemistry at the University of Alabama, 1862-63.

BOLAND, JEREMIAH M., Methodist minister, was born July 12, 1835, in Georgia; son of David and Mary (Jones) Boland, natives of South Carolina who settled in Georgia in 1827 and farmed in Muskogee County. His grandfather Boland came from Germany to South Carolina prior to the Revolutionary War and took part in that struggle. The Jones family were of English descent. Two of Mr. Boland's brothers were ministers in the Methodist Episcopal church, South; Rev. Elijah Boland, who for years was a member of the Georgia Conference, and Rev. Josiah A. Boland, a member of the Northwest Texas Conference; and two brothers were soldiers; William Boland, who fought in the Mexican War under Gen. Winfield Scott, and James F. Boland, of the C. S. Army, who was killed at the battle of Gettysburg. John Boland, his uncle, was a captain in the Seminole War in Florida.

Jeremiah M. Boland spent the early years of his life at Columbus, Ga., and moved with his parents to Alabama during his boyhood. He was educated in the male department of Centenary College, Summerfield, and in Hiawasse College, Sweetwater, Tenn., from which he was graduated with the degree of A. M. He was licensed to preach and joined the Alabama Conference in 1859. The first ten years of his itinerant life were spent in south Alabama, and the next decade in north Alabama, during which time he was presiding elder of the Huntsville district, and station preacher at Talladega and Tuscaloosa. He was in the bishop's cabinet which organized the North Alabama Conference in 1870, and was the delegate of the conference to the General Conference in 1874 and 1878. He took an active part in the establishment of the "Alabama Christian Advocate," the official organ of the two Alabama conferences. He returned to south Alabama at the close of 1878 and has served as presiding elder of the Pensacola, the Union Springs, and the Selma districts. He is pastor in charge of Livingston and Eutaw Stations. He is author of "The Problem of Methodism," Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., and of various articles and pamphlets. He is a Royal Arch Mason. Married: (1) In 1860, Salie E. Pennington, died January 1881; (2) May 1882, Hattie John, daughter of Chancellor John, of Selma. Children, by first marriage; four daughters and one son. Residence: Livingston.

COLONEL WILLIAM D. CHADICK

BOLAND, R. W., president Birmingham iron and foundry company.

BOLLING, JAMES M., lawyer and legislator, a native of Virginia, who died, 1850, in Hayneville; resided in Conecuh County, which he represented, 1838, in the legislature, later removing to Hayneville, Lowndes County, where he won distinction at the bar. Married: about 1843, Mary Anne, daughter of Reuben and Mary (Phillips) Saffold (q. v.). Children: 1. Bessie, m. John S. Holmes, a business man of Mobile; 2. Reuben Henry, student and cadet at the University of Alabama, 1864-65, clerk of the custom house, 1867-69, Mobile, and superintendent of the cotton exchange, 1872-1912. Last residence: Hayneville.

BOLLING, SAMUEL J., member constitutional conventions of 1861 and 1875, from Butler County.

BOLLING, WILLIAM McFARLAND, physician, was born July 14, 1811, at Elicotts Mills, Montgomery County, Md., and died March 4, 1858, at Montgomery; son of George and Margaret (McFarland) Bolling. He was a graduate of Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia. In 1852 he was made president of the Medical college of Lexington, Ky., and later located in Montgomery, where he practiced his profession. He was at one time in partnership with Dr. Marion Sims, and assisted that eminent physician and surgeon in experiments that led to the invention of the speculum. He was a surgeon in the Confederate Army. He was an Episcopalian, Mason and an Odd Fellow. Author: Numerous papers on medical subjects. Married: October 24, 1837, in Autauga County, to Mary, daughter of Manoah and Nancy (Dunn) Vincent, natives of Lunenburg County, Va. Children: 1. Helen McFarland; 2. Amelia Donne, m. Eliodora de Campi, Chicago, Ill.; 3. William McFarland; 4. George. Last residence: Montgomery.

BOLTON, BENJAMIN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 69, and a resident of Dallas County; private N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on January 21, 1822, under act of Congress of March 18, 1818, payment to date from September 15, 1820; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $1,245.32.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BOMAR, PAUL VERNON, Baptist minister, was born September 9, 1863, at Spartanburg, S. C.; son of John Earle and Louisa Nancy (Bomar) Bomar, of Spartanburg, S. C., the former a member of the South Carolina legislature, a captain in the C. S. Army, major of the militia, member of the firm of Evins, Bomar & Simpson, lawyers, and a judge of probate; grandson of Elisha and Amaryllis (Earle) Bomar, of Spartanburg, S. C., and of John and Mary (Vernon) Bomar, of the same place; great-grandson of John Earle, a captain in the Revolutionary War, afterwards a colonel; great-grandson of John Bomar, a soldier in the Revolution who was captured in the battle of Trenton. The Bomars came from England and probably are of Swedish origin. The Earles are of English descent, and the Vernons emigrated from the northern part of Ireland.

Paul V. Bomar received his early education in private schools and attended Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., while James H. Davis, LL. D., was president of the college. He studied under J. H. Kirkland, who was later chancellor of Vanderbilt University and was graduated, A. B., 1882. He entered the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville, Ky., and was graduated, Th. M., 1888. John A. Brodus instructed him in theology there, and James P. Boyce was president of the institution. He was ordained a minister in the Baptist Church, Spartanburg, S. C., June 1888. He immediately was placed in charge of the pastorate in Camden, S. C., and held this position from 1888 until 1891, when he became pastor of the Baptist church at Versailles, Ky. He remained there for five years, then came to Marion and took charge of the pastorate in 1897. At the same time he taught in Judson College of that city. He has remained in the pastorate in Marion since that time. He is a Mason and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

Married: September 6, 1888, near Landrum, S. C., Nannie Elizabeth, daughter of Oliver Perry and Rachel Katherine (Davis) Earle of Landrum, S. C., the former at one time a member of the South Carolina legislature; great-granddaughter of Baylis Earle, who held a civil position during the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Harriet E., resides in Orrville; 2. Mary Earle; 3. John Earle; 4. Louisa Nancy; 5. Paul Vernon. Residence: Marion.

BOND, JAMES, lawyer and legislator, was born in 1836, at Baltimore, and died January 5, 1886, at Mobile. At an early age he moved with his parents to Mobile. He served as deputy clerk of the city court, then began to study law in the office of Anderson & Boyles. He was admitted to the bar in Mobile in 1858, and became a law partner in the firm of Anderson & Boyles, his former preceptors. He was elected solicitor of the Mobile circuit in 1861, and later, to the Alabama state legislature and to the city council of Mobile. For a number of years before his death, he represented the first ward of Mobile in the police board, and was for some time chairman of the finance committee. He rendered valuable legal service in connection with the legislation necessitated by the dissolution of the old City of Mobile. He was a member of the Episcopal church, was for a number of years the chancellor of that Episcopal diocese, and the legal adviser of Bishop Wilmer. He was a member of the Alabama State Bar Association. Last residence: Mobile.

BONDURANT, ALEXANDER J., professor of agriculture, 1891-96, at the Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn. Deceased.

BONDURANT, EUGENE DUBOSE, physician, was born January 26, 1862, at Gallion, Hale County; son of James William and Evelyn (DuBose) Bondurant, the former a native of Andersonville, Buckingham County, Va., who lived in Baltimore, Md., moved to Perry County in 1860, enlisted in the Jeff Davis artillery, was promoted to captain, then colonel, and finally became chief of artillery in Hood's corps; grandson of William Fisher and Sarah Yates (Flood) Bondurant of Buckingham County, Va., and of James Henry and Harriet Evans (Pegues) DuBose, of Gallion; great-grandson of James Henry DuBose who emigrated to Alabama from South Carolina in 1833, and became owner of several cotton plantations in Marengo and Hale counties; great-great-great-grandson of Elias DuBose, a captain in Marion's brigade during the Revolution, and of Col. Lemuel Benton, commander of one of the three regiments in Marion's brigade and later, a congressman from South Carolina. The Bondurant family is derived from Jean Bondurant, son of Jean Pierre Bondurant, a Huguenot refugee from Lyons, France, who came to Virginia in 1700, and settled in what is now Henrico County. The DuBose family is descended from Louis DuBosc, who came with other Huguenots from Dieppe, Normandy, to South Carolina in 1869. The original name, DuBosc, has been corrupted to DuBose. A paternal ancestor, Mathieu Agé, now spelled Agee, was a Huguenot settler in the Virginia colony, and, in the maternal line, Christopher Claudius Pegues, a Huguenot refugee of South Carolina, had a son of the same name who was a captain in the Revolution. John Kimbrough, captain in the Revolution, and Josiah Evans, senator from South Carolina, are other ancestors.

Eugene DuBose Bondurant attended Avery School and Southern University at Greensboro. He was graduated from the University of Virginia, M. D., 1883, and took post graduate work for one year in Heidelberg, and for six months in Vienna, 1890-1891. He also studied in London and Edinburg for four months in 1911. He was appointed assistant physician in the New York City Insane Hospital, Blackwells Island, 1884-1885; assistant physician, Alabama Insane Hospital, 1885-1890, and assistant superintendent of the latter, 1892-1897. He became professor of neurology and psychiatry in the medical department of the University of Alabama, 1897, and has since held that position, in addition to becoming dean of the school of medicine at the same university in 1912. He has been established as a neurological specialist in Mobile, since 1897. He was associate editor and a contributor of Sajon's "Encyclopedia of Practical Medicine," and is author of numerous monographs on neurological topics published in current medical literature during the past twenty years. He was president of the Mobile County Medical Society in 1893-1894, and again in 1903; president of the Alabama State Medical Association in 1895, and again in 1905; trustee of the Alabama Insane Hospital since 1901; and was a member of the Alabama State Epileptic Commission in 1910. He is a Democrat, and Episcopalian.

Married: April 19, 1899, at Mobile, Annie Laurie, daughter of Maj. Sydney T. and Helen (Rhodes) Prince of Mobile. She was a great-granddaughter of Gen. James Rhodes of North Carolina, and a great-great-granddaughter of Dr. Andrew Bass who emigrated to North Carolina from Wales about twenty years before the Revolution, was a member of the North Carolina assembly which passed the resolution of secession from the British empire in 1774, and took an active part in the Revolution. Residence: Mobile.

BONDURANT, GEORGE PERKINS, lawyer, B. S., graduate of the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1895; B. L. graduate University of Mississippi, 1898. Residence: Birmingham.

BONFILS, SAUVEUR F., professor of modern languages at the University of Alabama, 1832-36, Tuscaloosa.

BONNER, JOHN MILLER, lawyer and State senator, was born December 3, 1878, at Rosebud (now a discontinued post office), Wilcox County; son of Maj. James and Julia (Newberry) Bonner of that place, the former serving in the C. S. Army for four years; grandson of William and Ann (Joel) Bonner; residents of Little River, S. C., until 1818, when they removed to Wilcox County, and of Isaac and Sophia (Taylor) Newberry, also natives of South Carolina, who emigrated to Wilcox County early in the history of the State; great-grandson of James Bonner, a native of Scotland, who removed to Ireland, thence to South Carolina, and of Thomas and Elizabeth Lee, of Charleston, S. C., Maj. James and Julia (Newberry) Bonner were the parents of a large and aspiring group of sons, including William Joel, lawyer of Camden, m. Ida Marlow; Samuel Robert, physician of Camden, m. Carrie Woodward, of Grovehill; James Lee, planter of Rosebud, m. Eula Dale, Oakhill; Ernest, physician of Stewards' Mills, Tex., m. Eliza Bonner, Corsicana, Tex.; Sherwood, editor at Camden, adjutant Second Alabama regiment, Spanish-American War, m. Nannie Miller, Statesville, N. C., and John M. above. Senator Bonner was educated in the schools at Rosebud, Oak Hill and Camden, all in Wilcox County; was at the University of Alabama 1894-95; Erskine college, S. C., 1895-96; University of Virginia, 1896-98; and entered the law school of the University of Alabama in 1898, and graduated with highest honors in 1900. He began the practice of his profession July 4th following, and has continued at the Camden bar since, with the exception of eighteen months spent in Mobile. He served as solicitor of Wilcox County, for a part of a term in 1907, and in the legislature of 1915; as State senator from the 22nd district. He is a Democrat and at the age of twenty-two was elected chairman of the Wilcox County democratic executive committee, which position he held for seven years until his resignation. He is a Presbyterian; a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and a Columbian Woodman. Married: April 18, 1901, at Camden, to Sarah, daughter of Joseph Neely and Minnie (Bonner) Miller (q. v.) of that place. Children: 1. Ida Marlow; 2. Joe Miller; 3. Sara Miller. Residence: Camden.

BOOKER, EDMUND WEBSTER, farmer and member board of convict inspectors, was born in Madison County, April 14, 1837; son of Parham N. and Mary Marion (Pool) Booker, and a younger brother of Parham N. Booker (q. v.). E. W. Booker was reared in Uniontown, and completed his education at the University of Alabama, 1858. After the war he lived for twelve years in Hale County, of which he was tax collector; in 1879 he settled in Uniontown as a farmer; in 1885 he was appointed by President Cleveland internal revenue collector for the district of Alabama, resigning with the incoming of President Harrison's administration; and was a member of the board of convict inspectors of Alabama, 1897-1901. He enlisted as a private in Co. D, Fourth Alabama infantry regiment, April 25, 1861; remained with the regiment until February, 1863; in the summer of that year he enlisted in the Eighth Alabama cavalry regiment, of which he was quartermaster, serving until its surrender at Gainesville in May, 1865. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; a Knight of Pythias, and a Knight of Honor. Married: March 5, 1863, to Miss Martha Frances Knight, of Greene County. Twelve children were born of this union. Among these: 1. William Edmund, B. E., University of Alabama, 1886, d. unmarried; 2. Parham Nicholas, bookkeeper, student University of Alabama, 1887-88, m. Ella Russ Vason, died at Albany, Ga., February 22, 1916; no issue.

BOOKER, PARHAM N., U. S. internal revenue officer, was born in Madison County, in April, 1832, and died in Perry County; son of Parham N. and Mary Marion (Pool) Booker, both of English descent, and natives of Virginia, the former of Richmond County. They came with their parents to Alabama, married, settled in Madison County, and became the parents of eleven children. The senior Booker represented Madison County in the legislature in 1836; removed later to Uniontown, Perry County, where he became a planter and hotel keeper; served as postmaster and mayor of the town, was a Democrat, and died in 1861. P. N. Booker, jr., received his education in Uniontown, where after attaining manhood he was for five years engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed to Greensboro, and five years later to Sunflower Creek in Mississippi. Owing to a permanent physical disability he did not serve in the C. S. Army, but served the government in a civil department. While living on Sunflower Creek he was appointed by President Cleveland, chief deputy of the internal revenue collector's office, Montgomery. Unmarried. Last residence: Perry County.

BOONE, B. BOYKIN, member of the constitutional convention of 1901, from Mobile County.

BOONE, WILLIAM J., member of the constitutional convention, 1865, from Tallapoosa County.

BOOTH, DANIEL BOON, public official, was born May 15, 1839, at Booth, Autauga County; son of Charles and Elizabeth Ward (Boon) Booth, the former a native of Darlington District, S. C., a justice of the peace, who was known as "Squire" Booth, and the latter a native of Nash County, N. C. The ancestors of the Booths came from England and settled in South Carolina. The village of Booth was named after the family. The Ward family were also of English descent. Daniel Boon Booth received his early education from Joseph Goodrich and C. Whitford Smith, in the country schools of Autauga County. He taught school for a short time in order to obtain money for a college course, and was attending Mossy Creek College, Tenn., at the outbreak of the War of Secession. He left college early in 1861 to join the C. S. Army, and enlisted as a private in the Prattville dragoons, Third Alabama cavalry. He was wounded for life at Corinth, Miss., May 1862.

He read law and was licensed to practice in 1870, by the supreme court, but never made law his profession. He was elected tax collector of Autauga County in 1863, and in 1864, clerk of the circuit court for a period of six years, but resigned in 1868 to accept the appointment of clerk of the supreme court, which he held until 1875. He represented the eighteenth senatorial district in the constitutional convention of Alabama of 1875; and was the Republican candidate for congress from the fifth district of Alabama, 1876, against Ex-gov. Ligon, and although defeated, received a much larger vote than the Republican candidate for president. He was appointed collector of internal revenue for the second district of Alabama by President Grant, from 1877 to 1879; was Republican presidential elector for the fifth district in 1880; and was appointed collector of customs at Mobile by President Harrison, from 1890 to 1894. After this time, he retired from public life and devoted his attention to his farming interests in his native county. He was opposed to the secession of Alabama in 1861, and has been a Republican since the war. He was chairman of the county and district executive committees, and a member of the Republican state executive committee. He is an Episcopalian and a royal arch Mason.

Married: April 18, 1867, at Kingston, Sarah Emily, daughter of Judge Grandison Walker and Mary Emily (Jorden) Benson, of that city, the former a probate judge of Autauga County; granddaughter of Reuben Jorden, who came to Alabama from South Carolina before the state was admitted into the Union. She was a grand-niece of Gen. John Elmore for whom Elmore County was named. Children: 1. Mary, d. 1910; 2. Knox, b. October 14, 1870, in Autauga County, attended Alabama Polytechnic Institute and business college at Lexington, Ky., was appointed inspector of customs at the port of Mobile, 1891-1895; headed a department of the Prattville Mercantile Company, 1892-1902; was appointed United States revenue agent for Tennessee, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, m. Ella Eastburn of Mobile, daughter of Theodore L. Eastburn, resides at Nashville, Tenn.; 3. Charles, postmaster at Prattville, m. Sarah Lou Fitzpatrick; 4. Daniel Boon, jr., an engineer on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, m. Lela Martinez, resides at Mobile; 5. Douglas, lawyer, m. Mamie Weir, resides in Prattville; 6. B. W., physician, resides at Shorter; 7. Myra, teacher in the Prattville Academy; 8. Alice, resides at Prattville. Residence: Prattville.

BOOTH, JOHN P., lawyer, was born in 1806, in Elbert County, and died May 23, 1851, at Eufaula; son of Col. David and Elizabeth (Posey) Booth, the former a soldier under Gen. Jackson in the Revolutionary War. He was graduated from Franklin College, and was licensed to practice law in 1826. The following year he settled in Woodville, Henry County, and opened a law office, but spent his winters in Apalachicola. In 1832 he located permanently in Apalachicola, and the next year served as president of the territorial council. After three years' residence in that town, he moved to Conecuh County and settled there dividing his time between farming and practicing law. While escorting his family to Georgia, a year later, he was warned not to pass through the hostile Creek nation. He stopped in Pike County, recruited one hundred fifty men and led them to Columbus, Ga., where he was slightly wounded in a skirmish.

He was elected solicitor of the judicial district, November 22, 1836, and major-general of the sixth division of Alabama militia, April 1837. About this time he moved to Eufaula and made his home there. Having resigned the solicitorship he was elected to the legislature from Barbour County, and by that body was elected judge of the sixth circuit, defeating Nathan Cook of Lowndes, and H. W. Hiliard of Montgomery. In 1843 he resigned, and left the bench. He appeared no more in public life, but continued to practice law until his death. He had served as the second of Thomas D. Mitchell, Esq., a solicitor general of Georgia, who was killed in a duel by Dr. Ambrose Baber, of Macon, Ga., in 1826.

Married: (1) Miss Dewitt, of Georgia; (2) Miss Hodges, of Florida. Children: 1. a son, graduate of West Point, 1848, d. in North Carolina in 1863 while serving as an officer in the C. S. Army; 2. a daughter, d., m. Mr. Wallace; 3. Jerome, Needles, Calif.; 4. Dr. James P., settled in Texas, then in Needles, Calif., m.; 5. Paul, Needles, Calif.; 6. a daughter, m. James Lawlor, Humboldt, Ariz. Last residence: Eufaula.

BORDERS, SAMUEL K., farmer, was born January 12, 1822 in Jackson County, Ga., and died December 26, 1881, at Oxford; son of John and Cynthia Borders, the former a native of Virginia, who moved to Tennessee, then to Georgia, and later to Mississippi where he engaged in planting, and finally came to Calhoun County in 1833, and located near Oxford, becoming one of the most extensive planters in the neighborhood. He received his early schooling in Athens, Ga., and began to study medicine. At the request of his father, he gave up the idea of a professional life, and turned his energies to farming. He served through the Mexican War in Co. I, First regiment, Alabama Volunteers, and through the War of Secession in the Fifty-first Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army. Married: March 1851, Sallie Williams, daughter of Dr. John Williams. Children: 1. Georgia, m. Mr. Christian; 2. Mary, m. Mr. Waters; 3. Hattie, m. Mr. Wilson; 4. Annie; 5. Sallie; 6. Lillie; 7. John. Last residence: Oxford.

BORLAND, ERASMUS J., farmer and public official, was born November 15, 1837, in Randolph County, Ga.; son of Quintilian and Rachel (Stephenson) Borland, the former a native of Randolph County, Ga., born in 1814, moved to Alabama in 1856, settling on a plantation near Newton, Dale County, entered the C. S. Army in 1861, fighting until near the end of the war, when he was taken sick and died, the latter born in Abbeville district, S. C., 1825, was taken to Georgia by her parents in her early youth, was married in her fourteenth year, and died in 1875. Mr. Borland was reared on the home plantation, and equipped himself to be a farmer. In 1861, he enlisted at the crossroads near his father's homestead, in a company of infantry being raised for the C. S. Army by Asch Griffin. The company was sent to Savannah, and disbanded. Shortly afterward, Mr. Borland enlisted in Co. C., Thirty-first Georgia infantry, Gordan's brigade, Jackson's corps, Ewell's division, under Gen. Lee. He saw service in Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania, and May 12, 1864, was captured at Spottsylvania, Va. and sent to Fort Delaware, where he was detained until March 1865, when he was discharged on his parole. He returned to his home in Georgia and resumed farming for three years, then moved to Alabama, where for seven years, he taught school in Dale and Geneva Counties. He finally settled in the latter county in 1880. He served for several years as justice of the peace of Geneva County, and in 1880 was elected probate judge of that county. He is a Mason. Married: (1) December 13, 1837, Mary S. Rigell, born in 1821, in Russell County, died March 13, 1881, daughter of Judge Rigell, who moved from Russell County to Dale County with his family; (2) May 3, 1882, Mrs. Drusilla Renfro, born in Georgia and reared in Florida, widow of Elisha Renfro, who died in 1863, while in the C. S. Army, daughter of J. Wallace, and mother of Robert A. Renfro of Campbellton, Fla., and of Elisha A. Renfro, a farmer of Geneva County. Children, by first marriage: 1. James R., a resident of Texas; 2. Mary L., m. Thomas Britt, Eufaula; 3. Georgia L., Geneva County; 4. Columbus Q.; 5. William T.; 6. Cora C. Residence: Geneva.

BOROUGHES, BRYAN, physician, was born May 14, 1847, in Clarke County; son of Thomas and Rebecca (Morris) Boroughs, the former a native of North Carolina; the grandson of Bryan Boroughs of North Carolina. He received his preparatory schooling in the common schools of the neighborhood and completed his academic education at the University of Alabama. He entered the medical department of Tulane university, New Orleans, where he took a course, and in 1869, graduated from the Louisville medical college, Louisville, Ky. He began the practice of his profession at Grove Hill, later locating at Vashti where he remained until 1897, at which time he removed to Jackson. He has served a number of years as health officer of Clarke County. He is a Democrat; Mason, and a Baptist. Married: October 9, 1871, at Grove Hill, to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Col. James S. Dickinson (q. v.). Children: 1. Imogene; 2. James Dickinson; 3. Bryan Morris; 4. Bessie; 5. Edwin Armistead; 6. Lillian; 7. Frederick. Residence: Jackson.

BOROUGHES, S. F., Missionary Baptist minister, in active service in 1913, and living at Newton.

BOSSU, F., French explorer and author. He was a captain in the French marines and was ordered by Governor Kerlerec, December 20, 1758, to depart from New Orleans with a detachment for Fort Toulouse. He spent some time in Mobile on this voyage. The voyage up the Alabama and into the Coosa took fifty days. He was ordered to return to Mobile and proceed to Fort Tombeche. He was later attached to the forces that were posted in Illinois spending twelve years in all in the colonies. Author: "Nouveaux voyages aux Indes accidentals," 1768; "Nouveaux voyages dans l'Amérique Spetentrionale," 1777.

BOSSU, N., French traveler and chronicler, born in Baigneux-les-Juifs, about 1725. He was a captain in the French Navy, one of the first travelers to explore Louisiana. He made three journeys to this country, by order of his government, and published an account of his explorations in two volumes, entitled, "Nouveaux voyages aux Indes occidentales, etc.," 1768. An English edition was published in London in 1771, and a Dutch and German edition in Paris in 1777.

BOSTICK, FLOYD ALEXANDER, lawyer and State senator, was born December 31, 1866, at Princeton, Jackson County; son of J. R. and Elizabeth (Clay) Bostick, who lived at Princeton. He was educated in the common schools; at Scottsboro college; also at Winchester and Dechard, Tenn., leaving the last place in June, 1896; graduated LL. B., 1897, from the University of Alabama; entered upon the practice at Scottsboro, July, 1897. He was elected a member of the State senate in August, 1900. He is a Methodist. Unmarried. Residence: Scottsboro.

BOSTICK, FRANCIS W., public official, was born December 8, 1797, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died January 22, 1855, at Carrollton, Pickens County; son of John and Mary (White) Bostick, the former a planter and slave owner of Abbeville District, S. C.; grandson of John Bostick, of English descent. He came to Alabama at the age of eighteen, and joined relatives in Madison County; removed to Old Erie, Greene County, 1822, and in 1825, to Pickens County, locating in the vicinity of Pickinsville and finally, 1832, settled in Carrollton. He was elected clerk of the county court, 1828, and held the office continuously until 1848, when he became county administrator. In 1844 he was elected major of the second division of the Alabama militia. During his whole life he was prominently identified with the interests and history of the county. He was a Democrat of the Andrew Jackson school, and in the days of nullification was a Union man. Married: 1819, in York District, S. C., to Candace M., daughter of Aaron and Dorothy (Morland) Wood. Children: 1. Dorothy M., m. William A. Mustin; 2. Aaron W., d. unmarried; 3. Elizabeth Araminta, m. Dr. Benjamin F. Wilson, brother of Jason and Dr. William Wilson; 4. Emily Katherine, m. (1) Alfred Austrill, (2) E. T. Croxton; 5. Charles Binley, d. unmarried; 6. Mary Ann Durrett, m. Jason Wilson, member of the "Pickens County Guards," C. S. Army, for four years; 7. Candace Mentora, m. Elbert Decatur Willett (q. v.); 8. Rebecca Francis, m. Dr. William C. Wilson, physician of Carrollton; 9. Andrew Jackson, d. unmarried, member of the "Pickens County Guards" C. S. Army, and was killed in the battle of Gettysburg; 10. infant. Last residence: Carrollton.

BOSWELL, HARRY RIVES, physician, was born December 12, 1849, near Talladega, Talladega County, and died February 5, 1896, at that town; son of John Williamson and Demaris (Cox) Boswell, natives respectively of Jasper and Lee Counties, Ga., who settled in Talladega County in 1850, a planter; grandson of Harry and Eliza (Roby) Boswell, natives of Wilkes County, Ga., and of Jesse and Elizabeth (Cock) Cox, the former surveyor general of Georgia 1838-1839. The Boswell family were of English descent and settled in Virginia. The Cox family were of French stock and emigrated to South Carolina. Dr. Boswell received his academic education in the schools of his community, Asbury Stockdale being among his early teachers. He graduated in Louisville medical college, Ky., 1870, and at once entered upon the practice of his profession in Talladega, where he afterwards remained. He was a Democrat; and Knight of Honor. Married: June 27, 1877, at "Highland," Talladega, Celia McDowell, daughter of Gov. Lewis Eliphalet and Jane (Christman) Parsons (q. v.). Children: 1. Celia Parson Rives, m. Harry Graybill Simmons, Mumford; 2. Mary Jean, m. Simeon Augustus Shadie, Mumford. Last residence: Talladega.

BOSWELL, JAMES DANIEL, farmer, merchant, lumberman, and legislator, was born August 30, 1868, at Old Pleasant Valley, now known as Bigbee, Washington County; son of William Harrison and Laura (Rain) Boswell, of that place, the former emigrating from Georgia to Washington County in 1858, served 1861-65 in army of the Tennessee, C. S. Army; grandson of Dr. Daniel and Ferebee (Cato) Rain, of Old Pleasant Valley. He was educated in the common schools of Washington County; is now a farmer; has been a lumber, mercantile and turpentine man; postmaster of Leroy, and justice of the peace; represented Washington County in the legislature of 1911. He is a Democrat; Baptist; and a Columbian Woodman. Married: April 14, 1897, to Fannie Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Clay and Mary (Mosley) Atchison, of Bigbee. Children: 1. William Martin. Residence: Leroy.

BOUCHELLE, EZRA FISK, physician, was born December 16, 1818, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died February 6, 1873, at Boligee; son of Jesse and Rebecca Caroline (Cummings) Bouchelle the former a native of Delaware who later located in Athens, Ga.; grandson of Francis Cummings and wife, who was a Miss Davis, of Athens. The father of Jesse Bouchelle came from France and located in Abbeville District. Mr. Bouchelle attended the private school conducted by Alexander H. Stevens at Athens, Ga.; graduated from the Medical college at Lexington, Ky.; practiced his profession in Lowndes County, Miss., and in Marengo, Pickens and Greene Counties, Ala.; surgeon in the Confederate Army, 1861-65; and was superintendent of education of Pickens County, 1870-71. He was a Whig; a Presbyterian, and a Mason. Married: February 6, 1845, at Tuscaloosa, to Maria Tillinghast, daughter of Henry and Frances (Barbour) Minor of that place. The Barbours came from Scotland and settled in Virginia. Children: 1. Frances Minor. 2. Maria Barbour; 3. Henry Minor; 4. Ezra Fisk, m. Sallie Gondey Gould; 5. Philip Minor; 6. Benjamin Rush; 7. Lucie Amanda; 8. John Friend; 9. Henry Tutwiler, m. Innes Brown Gould. Last residence: Boligee.

BOULDIN, VIRGIL, lawyer, was born October 20, 1866, in Jackson County; son of John and Mary (Collins) Bouldin, the former a native of Tennessee, who located in Jackson County, in 1855, a farmer, and a Confederate soldier. He received his early education in the common schools of his native county, attended Burritt college, Spencer, Tenn., 1881, and the following year entered Winchester normal school from which he graduated, 1886; taught school in Jackson County one year and in Texas one year; graduated in law at Cumberland university, 1889; was admitted to the bar in Scottsboro in the same year and in 1890 formed a partnership with Wm. L. Martin, attorney general. He was a Democrat, chairman of the Jackson County Democratic executive committee and member of the congressional committee of the 8th district; and was delegate to the state convention, 1890-92. He is a Baptist and member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Married: June 12, 1895, to Irene, daughter of Judge W. D. Jacoway, of Dardenell, Ark., and sister of H. M. Jacoway, member of congress from Little Rock, Ark. Children: 1. Lizzie D.; 2. John J.; 3. Walter G. Residence: Scottsboro.

BOULDIN, WILLIAM GRAVES, pioneer farmer in Madison County, who later moved to Washington County, Texas; descended from Col. Thomas Bouldin, of the Colony of Virginia; grandfather of Judge David Shelby of Huntsville.

BOWCOCK, ROBERT L., physician, graduate of the medical department, University of Virginia, 1886, admitted to the practice by the county board of Calhoun, 1888. Residence: Anniston.

BOWDON, FRANKLIN WELCH, lawyer, representative in congress, was born February 17, 1817, in Chester District, S. C., and died June 15, 1857, at Henderson, Rusk County, Tex.; son of Samuel Bowdon, a planter, who came with his family to Alabama about 1820, and lived and died in Shelby. The mother was a daughter of Thomas Welch, for many years a citizen of Dallas. He was graduated with distinguished honors from the University of Alabama, 1838, and studied law under Chief Justice Chilton, and under Daniel E. Watrous at Montevallo. He was admitted to the bar, came to Talladega in 1838, and was successively the law partner of Thomas and William P. Chilton, and of Tignall W. Jones.

In 1844 he represented Talladega in the general assembly of the Alabama legislature, and in 1846, by special election, succeeded to the seat in congress vacated by the death of Gen. Felix G. McConnell, defeating Gen. T. A. Waller of Calhoun, and Benjamin Goodman of Chambers. He was re-elected for the full term, the next year, defeating Gen. J. T. Bradford, his Whig opponent, and again in 1849, defeating Samuel F. Rice, Esq., a Taylor Democrat. After the expiration of his term, he withdrew from public affairs and moved to Tyler, Tex., where he became the partner of George W. Chilton, Esq. He was presidential elector from the state at large, Texas, on the Buchanan ticket, 1856. Mr. Bowdon was a staunch Democrat, and is said to have been the most gifted orator the state has produced. His briefs were pronounced by Chancellor Bowie to be models of legal acumen. Bowdon College, Carroll County, Ga., is named in honor of him.

Married: in 1840, at Talladega, Sarah Elizabeth Chilton, daughter of Rev. Thomas and Frances (Stone) Chilton of Elizabethtown, and later of Talladega. Her father was at one time congressman from Kentucky. Children: 1. Florence, d., m. Frank McClellan; 2. Georgia C., d., m. Marcus McElderry, had a daughter Fannie C. of Talladega; 3. Franklin Welch, jr., lawyer, b. September 17, 1854; served as representative in the general assembly, Alabama legislature, 1878-1879; was presidential elector, 1884; was elected state senator, 1886; d. September 8, 1886; m. Bessie Jeffries. Last residence: Henderson, Rusk County, Tex.

BOWEN, CAWTHON ASBURY, Methodist minister, was born December 25, 1885, at Holly Springs, Marshall County, Miss.; son of James Asbury and Alice (Cawthon) Bowen (q. v.). He received his primary and preparatory education at Water Valley, Columbus and Tupelo, Miss., graduating as class orator from the latter school; attended Millsaps college, Jackson, Miss., through the freshman and sophomore years, and graduated A. B., from Emory college, Oxford, Ga., cum laude, June, 1906. During his attendance at that institution his services conducting religious activities, and as college organist, were recognized by a medal. He also edited "Emory Phoenix," did two years post-graduate work at Vanderbilt university, graduating A. M., June, 1908, and was a member of the Calumet club and the Y. M. C. A. cabinet at that institution. He entered the North Alabama conference as supply, 1907, and was stationed at Stevenson; admitted to trial, 1908; returned to Stevenson, 1909, and 1910; admitted into full connection, and stationed at Trinity church, Birmingham, 1911, and returned there by the bishop; elected president, North Alabama conference Epworth league, ordained elder and returned to Trinity church, 1912; sent to Dadeville, 1913; elected professor of religious education, Woman's college, Montgomery, 1914, and still holds his connection with that institution. He is conference superintendent of the teacher-training school of the church, and a member of the religious education association. He is a Democrat and a Mason. Married: June 16, 1910, at Birmingham, to Nellie Virginia, daughter of Fred and Jennie (Every) Sloss, of that place; granddaughter of James Sloss (q. v.). Children: 1. Sarah Virginia, deceased; 2. Cawthon Asbury. Residence: Montgomery.

HON. WILLIAM D. JELKS

BOWEN, JAMES ASBURY, Methodist minister, was born December 18, 1850, near Waterford, Marshall County, Miss.; son of Randall Asbury and Sarah Ann (Lewis) Bowen, the former a native of Mississippi, the latter of North Carolina; grandson of John Bowen who lived in Bedford and Rutherford Counties, Tenn. Mr. Bowen attended private schools in his native county, and was for two years a student at New Middleton academy, Smith County, Tenn. He was licensed to preach in 1872 and was admitted to the North Mississippi Methodist conference in 1876, serving that connection for thirty years, with pastorates in Corinth, Aberdeen, Columbus, Macon, Tupelo, Water Valley, Greenville, Winona and several smaller towns. He was for two years agent of the Grenada female college, Mississippi; was transferred to the North Alabama conference, 1908, with a charge in Huntsville; was appointed by the bishop as conference evangelist, 1910; was previously chairman of the committee of nine that projected plans for prohibition in Mississippi. He is a Democrat; a Knight of Pythias and a Mason. Married: (1) July 9, 1887, at Holly Springs, Miss., to Alice, daughter of Nathan W. and Martha Cawthorn of that place; (2) May 9, 1889, at Center, to Mrs. Sarah Emma Horn, of Rome, Ga., daughter of James and Susan McGee of Center. Children by first wife: 1. C. A. Bowen (q. v.), Methodist minister, m. Nellie Sloss, of Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BOWIE, ALEXANDER, lawyer and chancellor, was born near Abbeville, S. C., December 14, 1789, and died in Talladega, December 30, 1866; son of Maj. John and Rosa (Reid) Bowie, the former an emigrant from Scotland, who landed in Virginia, but later settled near Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C., raised a company of militia, February 5, 1776, was commissioned captain of the Fifth South Carolina regiment, later acted as brigade-major for

Gen. Williamson, elected clerk of the Abbeville County court and was also at one time justice of the peace; grandson of James and Margaret (Tyre) Bowie, of Dumbartonshire, Scotland, and of Col. George Reid, a native of Cecil County, Me., and a resident of Virginia. Chancellor Bowie graduated from the South Carolina college; studied law under his brother, Maj. George Bowie, and was admitted to the Abbeville bar in 1813, where he practiced with success for a number of years; was commissioned a colonel of the Eighth regiment, South Carolina militia, and later was commander of the "Abbeville Nullifiers." He served several times as a member of the South Carolina legislature. In 1835, he removed to Alabama and located in Talladega, where he resumed the practice of law. In 1839, he was elected, over Elisha W. Peck, as chancellor of the northern division of Alabama, a position he held for six years. He was a trustee of the University of Alabama, possessed fine conversational powers, legal ability and sound judgment. He assisted in founding the Alabama historical society, and was its first president, 1850-52. He was a Baptist; and a member of the States' rights party. Married: in January 1814, to Susan Barnett, daughter of John and Mary (Barnett) Jack, natives of North Carolina, the former having with his brother James, participated in the adoption of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence; granddaughter of Col. Patrick and Lillie (McAdough) Jack, of Charlotte, N. C., and of John and Ann (Spratt) Barnett, the former an emigrant from Ireland, who settled in Mecklenburg County, N. C. Children: 1. Rose, d. in infancy; 2. Mary Jane, m. Dr. T. C. Knox; 3. Amanda Ann, d. young; 4. Laura Lillas, m. Rev. Mr. Turpin, of Virginia; 5. Andrew William (q. v.), m. Nancy M. Bowden; 6. Susan Jack, d. in infancy; 7. Margaret Ross, m. William M. Knox, of Talladega; 8. Ann Alexander, m. Jabez L. M. Curry (q. v.); 9 and 10. Thomas Samuel and Alexander John, twins, d. young. Last residence: Talladega.

BOWIE, ANDREW, physician, was born in 1830, in Edgefield, S. C., son of Dr. Samuel W. and Julia R. (Bonham) Bowie; the former a native of Abbeville, S. C., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, a planter, and a physician, who practiced medicine in South Carolina until 1835, then settled in Lowndes County; the latter a native of Edgefield District, S. C. The Bowies were of Scotch ancestry and were first represented in this country by three brothers who settled in Virginia, South Carolina, and Maryland. Gen. M. L. Bonham, an uncle of Andrew Bowie, was a brigadier general in the Virginia army until he resigned to become governor of South Carolina. After the war, he was a member of congress. James Bowie, a Virginia relative, was the inventor of the bowie knife, and was killed in a duel in Louisiana with a knife of the kind he had invented. His son, Col. James Bowie, was killed at the Alamo with Col. Crockett in the Texas revolution. Andrew Bowie was the brother of James S. Bowie who joined a squad of Alabamians for the settlement of Kansas and died en route; of Capt. Malachi Bonham Bowie, leader of a Tennessee cavalry company, C. S. Army, who had four horses killed under him while holding in check Gen. Grierson's forces during a raid on Vicksburg; and of Capt. Milledge L. Bowie, of Co. M., Sixth Alabama Infantry, who was wounded at Antietam, in the Wilderness, and at Spottsylvania, making necessary the amputation of his leg above the knee joint.

Andrew Bowie attended the University of Georgia for six years, and later was graduated from the Charleston Medical College, S. C., 1854. He began to practice medicine at Bragg's Store, and remained there until the outbreak of the War of Secession when he joined the C. S. Army. He spent two years in the hospitals around Richmond, then was made surgeon of the Third Alabama infantry, and served in the field until the close of the war, at which time he was a brigade surgeon. After the war, he located in Benton and has practiced medicine there since that time.

Married: (1) in 1856, Mary Ann Arthur, who died in 1863, daughter of Dr. Adam Arthur of Dallas County; (2) in 1865, Sarah Turnley, who died in 1873, in Virginia, daughter of Edward Turnley, a farmer; (3) in 1878, Mrs. Anna Bowling Keener, daughter of Col. John Walker, a native of Georgia. Children, by first marriage; 1. James S., of Tuscaloosa County; 2. Samuel E., of Wilcox County; 3. Mary Julia: by second marriage; 4. Ira M.; 5. Edmond Peake, an orange grower of Florida. Residence: Benton.

BOWIE, ANDREW WILLIAM, lawyer, was born February 5, 1822, at Abbeville, S. C., and died in Talladega; son of Alexander and Susan Barnett (Jack) Bowie (q. v.). He removed in his early youth to Talladega with his parents; graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1842, and began the practice of law at Talladega. He served as a volunteer during the Mexican War and at the beginning of the War of Secession raised the first military company in East Alabama, Co. A, 8th Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army, of which he was commissioned captain. Later he raised two other companies and served during the entire four years of the war. After the war, he returned to Talladega and resumed the practice of law until 1875, when he retired to private life, and devoted himself to farming and other interests. Married: in 1849, to Nancy M., daughter of Samuel and Sarah (Welsh) Bowden, of Montevallo. Children: 1. Samuel Jack, d. unmarried; Talladega; 3. Sue Eva, m. R. D. Orr, of Lineville; 4. Fannie Louis, m. W. R. Golden; 5. Alexander Yancy; 6. Andrew William, d. unmarried; 7. Jabez Curry, cashier First national bank, Talladega, treasurer, B. and A. R. R., treasurer of the city of Talladega, secretary and treasurer of the Light and waterworks company; 8. Sydney Johnston (q. v.); 9. Leroy Wiley. Last residence: Talladega.

BOWIE, SAMUEL WATT, physician, was born May 10, 1802, at Charleston, S. C., and died October 29, 1881, in Lowndes County; son of Andrew and Rosey Anne (Watt) Bowie, the former a native of Abbeville, S. C., who was a wholesale dry goods merchant of Charleston; grandson of Maj. John and Rosa (Reid) Bowie, the former a native of Scotland, who emigrated to America and located in Virginia where he engaged for several years in traffic with the Cherokee Indians, later removing to Long Cane Creek, Abbeville County, S. C., where he became a prominent planter, captain in the 5th South Carolina regiment, Revolutionary Army, and after the war, justice of the peace, of Abbeville County, S. C., and of Samuel and Janet (Lesley) Watt, the former a native of Ireland, who emigrated to America, located in South Carolina and served at Ft. Ninety Six, S. C. Dr. Bowie was graduated from the Medical college, Philadelphia, and began the practice of his profession at Abbeville, S. C. He removed to Lowndes County in 1837, and continued the practice of medicine until his death. Married: May 6, 1829, to Julia R., daughter of James and Sophia (Smith) Bonham, of South Carolina; granddaughter of Lieut. Malachi Bonham, a native of Frederick County, Md., who served in the Revolutionary Army, and sister of Gov. M. L. Bonham, of South Carolina. Children: 1. Andrew, physician, surgeon 3d Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, m. Sarah Miller, daughter of Ira P. and Mary (Duer) Turnley, and great-granddaughter of John Bowie, the progenitor of the Bowies of Virginia; 2. James Sheridan, jr., d. 1856 at Brunswick, Mo., while emigrating to Kansas with Buford's company; 3. Malachi Bonham, served in the Confederate Army, emigrated to Carlton, Hamilton County, Texas, m. Teressa Brooks; 4. Millidge Langdon, served in Confederate Army, tax collector Lowndes County, m. Clemmes L. Safford, of Dallas; 5. Sarah Elizabeth, m. Dr. John S. Peake, of Selma; 6. Sophia Smith, m. Thomas Riggs, of Dallas County; 7. Rosa Elizabeth, m. Joseph R. Dudley. Last residence: Lowndes County.

BOWIE, SYDNEY JOHNSTON, lawyer and representative in Congress, was born in Talladega, July 26, 1865; son of Capt. Andrew W. and Nancy M. (Bowden) Bowie (q. v.). He attended public schools until sixteen years of age, and graduated from the law department of the University of Alabama, LL. B., June 20, 1885. He was admitted to the bar the next month, and has since been continuously engaged in the practice of his profession; was town clerk of Talladega, 1885-86; alderman, 1891; was for six years a member of the State Democratic executive committee of Alabama, and chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Talladega County from 1896 to 1899; never until 1900 a candidate for any position of more than local importance; in 1898, as a member of the legislative committee of the commercial club of Alabama, assisted in the preparation and passage through the legislature of a bill to provide for holding a constitutional convention, and was made chairman of the Democratic executive committee having in charge the ratification of the new constitution in Calhoun County, 1901; in November, 1899, was appointed chairman of the committee to investigate the sale of about 4,000 acres of mineral lands belonging to the university of the State, alleged to have been improperly made, and the report of this committee declaring the sale illegal was sustained by an overwhelming vote of the university alumni and the trustees of the university; was elected to the Fifty-seventh congress from the fourth congressional district, without opposition, receiving 10,821 votes, taking his seat March 4, 1901; and re-elected to the Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth congresses; and declined a renomination. On January 1, 1899, he removed to Birmingham where he was associated in the practice with E. H. Cabaniss. In 1919 he was appointed by Gov. Kilby a member of the newly established State board of education, of which he was elected chairman. Mr. Bowie has taken much interest in education and in all social welfare activities. Married: April 29, 1891, to Annie Foster, daughter of Mr. Etheridge, of Ocala, Fla. Children: 1. Elizabeth Sue; 2. Alice Toole. Residence: Birmingham.

BOWLES, EDMUND D., real estate and insurance agent and negotiator of loans, born September 4, 1855, at Wytheville, Virginia, is the son of Zachariah H. and Mary F. (Pettit) Bowles, who in 1862 removed to Selma. Here at the age of fourteen, he became connected with the Selma Savings Bank, now the Commercial Bank of Selma, with which he remained until 1885, when he resigned his position as first bookkeeper to engage in business under the firm name of Bibb and Bowles. This partnership continued one year. In addition to the real estate and insurance business, Mr. Bowles, by means of his wide knowledge of business and the people, succeeded in distributing among the farmers in Central Alabama, during the last year, nearly a quarter of a million of foreign capital in farm-land loans. He was married December 30, 1880, to Miss H. L. Brown, daughter of Josiah R. Brown. They have one child, Bessie Garland.

BOWLES, LLEWELLYN H., Baptist Minister, college president, born September 3, 1845; son of Isaac and Emily (Holloway) Bowles, and brother of General Pickney Downie Bowles (q. v.). He was reared on a farm and received a good academic education in the schools of the neighborhood. In 1861, he joined Company G, Third Georgia Infantry, C. S. A., and saw his first fighting at Sawyer's Lane, N. C., and then in numerous skirmishes in the vicinity of Richmond. At Malvern Hill, he lost his left arm. He went home after a short stay in a private house in Richmond. After recovering from his wound, he attended Erskine college, S. C., for nearly two years, then a private school in his county until the close of the war, when he entered the State university, South Carolina, graduating therefrom in 1867. Then studying law, he was licensed by the Supreme Court of South Carolina, and in 1876 went to Troy, Alabama, where he successfully practiced his profession for ten years, when he engaged in merchandising. He was for four years a member of the State senate, and during both sessions was chairman of the military committee and was on the committee on the revision of the law. He introduced several local measures, which became laws. He was the author of the amendment regarding the carrying of concealed weapons, and the measure to prohibit gambling in futures, which passed the senate but did not become a law. He continued merchandising until August, 1889, when he became the secretary of the Troy Fertilizer Company. In July, 1888, he was ordained as a minister of the Baptist church, and during 1901 was pastor of the second Baptist church of Troy. On February 15, 1892, he completed the organization of Troy business college, of which he became president. Rev. Mr. Bowles is a member of the Knights of Honor, and of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. He was married December 24, 1874, to Julia, daughter of Judge J. McCaleb and Cornelia Wyly. Mrs. Bowles was born in Troy, and was graduated from the Southern female college, of La Grange, Georgia. The family of Rev. Mr. Bowles and Mrs. Bowles consists of three daughters.

BOWLES, PINKNEY DOWNIE, lawyer and colonel, C. S. Army; was born July 7, 1835, in Edgefield District, S. C.; son of Isaac and Emily (Holloway) Bowles, both of Edgefield District, S. C., the former a planter, civil engineer, major in the state militia and captain of a minute company in 1832; grandson of Isaac Bowles and wife, a Miss Dupree, the former a native of Virginia who removed to South Carolina where he became an extensive cotton planter, and of Jordan and Mary (Reardon) Holloway, the latter the daughter of an Indian agent in the employ of the English government. The Holloways were of Scotch-Irish descent and were among the earliest settlers of Brunswick County, Va. The Bowles and Reardons were of English descent. Colonel Bowles was educated at the Citadel of Charleston, S. C., and at the University of Alabama, graduating from the latter in 1857. He then entered the law office of Judge Samuel McGowan and was admitted to the bar in December, 1858. He removed to Alabama in April, 1859, locating at Sparta, Conecuh County, and practicing his profession with James A. Stallworth. In January, 1861, he enlisted in a company of Alabama volunteers recruited for the purpose of capturing Fort Pickens. Returning home he assisted in the reorganization of the company and was elected its captain. This company which had been given the name of the "Conecuh Guards" left for the seat of war, April 24, 1861, as Co. E, 4th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. On August 22, 1862, upon the resignation of Maj. Charles L. Scott, he was promoted to that position; in September, of the same year, promoted lieutenant colonel, three days later became colonel, and on April 3, 1865, he was placed in command of five regiments and a full brigade staff ordered to report to him although he did not receive his commission as brigadier. At the close of the war he resumed his practice at Sparta; removed to Evergreen in 1867 where for ten years he served as prosecuting attorney for Conecuh County, resigning in order to return to his private practice. He was an Episcopalian; Democrat; and a Mason. Married: February 24, 1862, at Sparta, to Alice Irene, daughter of Judge H. F. and Anna C. Stearns (q. v.). Children: 1. Catherine E., m. Dr. L. M. Fink, of Tampa, Fla.; 2. Mary Ella, m. J. M. Cobb, of Tampa, Fla.; 3. Minnalula H. Last residence: Evergreen.

BOWLES, WILLIAM AUGUSTUS, Indian agent, was born in 1763, in Frederick County, Md., and died December 23, 1805, in Moro Castle, Havana, Cuba. He was the son of an English school teacher and the nephew of Carlington Bowles, who kept a famous print shop in London. He entered the British army at the age of fourteen; sailed with a British regiment to Jamaica in 1777; later went to Pensacola where he was dismissed from service for insubordination. He joined a company of Creek Indians; lived upon the Tallapoosa for several years; led a party of Creeks to Pensacola, in 1781, and on account of his services on this occasion was reinstated in the British Army. He went to New York where he alternately acted upon the stage and painted portraits. Lord Dunmore, governor of the Bahamas, appointed him trading agent for the Creeks and established for him a commercial house upon the Chattahoochee, but he proved unsuccessful and was ordered to leave the country. He returned and was made chief of the Creeks and became a terror to all interests against which he acted. He was taken a prisoner in February, 1792, sent to Madrid; deported to Manila; obtained permission to go to Europe but after a time returned to America renewing his relations with the Creeks. In 1804 he was betrayed into the hands of the Spaniards, carried to Havana, Cuba, where in a short while he died in the dungeons of Moro Castle. He married the daughter of an Indian chief.

BOWLING, WILLIAM BISMARCK, lawyer, was born September 24, 1870, in Calhoun County; son of William E. and Sarah (Elston) Bowling, natives of Tennessee and South Carolina, respectively, the former moved from Tennessee to Wedowee, Randolph County, where he taught school, and later located in Calhoun County, where he practiced medicine until his death in 1899; grandson of Allen and Elizabeth Elston, who came from South Carolina to Alabama about the year 1840, and of Samuel Bowling, a native of Virginia, who moved to Tennessee where he resided for many years, and died in Georgia while on a visit. He received his early education in the public schools of Calhoun County, and was graduated from the state normal school at Jacksonville, 1892. He taught school until 1899, when, having read law in his spare time, he was admitted to the bar. He began to practice law at Lafayette, but later moved to Dadeville and has remained there in the practice of his profession. He was nominated as the Democratic candidate for the office of solicitor for the fifth circuit, April 11, 1904. He is a Baptist, a Mason, and a member of the Knights of Pythias. Married: June 2, 1896, Frances Collins, of Lafayette, daughter of George E. and Janie (Craig) Collins, both of whom were born in England. Children: 1. George Randolph; 2. Marion; 3. Sarah Frances; 4. Elizabeth. Residence: Dadeville.

BOWRON, JAMES, manufacturer, was born November 16, 1844, at Stockton on Tees, Durham, England; son of James and Mary Hannah (Moss) Bowron, the former a native of Darlington, Durham, England, who lived at Stockton on Tees, South Shields, and London, and in 1874 emigrated to South Pittsburg, Tenn.; became successively managing partner of Close, Bowron & Company, wholesale grocers, Stockton on Tees; of the Tyne & Tees Glass Company, South Shields; of the Tees Bottle Company, Stockton on Tees; managing director of the Tyne Chemical Company, South Shields; and of the Southern States Coal, Iron & Land Company, South Pittsburg, Tenn., was the inventor of the process of pressing glass tiles instead of bending them from flat glass; was one of the promoters of the Ungerer wood pulp process; and in 1874-1875 acquired the properties for the Southern States Coal, Iron & Land Company, which in 1883 were merged into the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company; grandson of Joseph and Ann (Hedley) Bowron of Darlington, County of Durham, England, and of Gilbert and Hannah (Laws) Moss of Sunderland, England. The Bowron family, originally called Bolron, was founded by a Norman man-at-arms who settled on the banks of the river Tees and engaged in the milling business. In 1415, Thomas Bolron was a man-at-arms and William Bolron was an archer with Lord Fitz Hugh at the battle of Agincourt. After the battle, the grant to bear arms developed, and the Bolron miller adopted the sails of his windmill, and as the village on the Tees had then become Boldrun, in perhaps a spirit of punning on the pronunciation, he selected for crest a springing greyhound, a bold runner, with the motto, "Vigilans, Agilis et Fidelis." John Bolron, who changed the spelling of the name to Bowron, lived from 1627 until 1714, and was the first Quaker missionary to come to America. The Bowrons have been a Quaker family from the organization of the Society of Friends in the seventeenth century down to the present.

James Bowron received his early education from Mistress Cosier at a day school in Stockton on Tees, from a private boarding school conducted in Sutherland, England, by Joseph Special, and at a grammar school conducted by the Society of Friends at Ackworth in Yorkshire, Thomas Pumphrey being superintendent. This was the school at which John Bright, the orator and Quaker tribune, received part of his education. He was unable to attend college, because at that time, the universities were not open to dissenters, but were restricted to members of the Church of England. He entered the Tees Bottle Company, Stockton on Tees, in 1858, as office boy, and advanced until he was managing director of the company; from 1865 to 1877, he served successively as auditor, director, and vice chairman of the board of the Forcett Limestone Company, and of the Forcett Railway Company; was agent for the Crown Life Insurance Company, London, 1864-1877; auditor of the Tyne Chemical Company, South Shields, England, 1870-1871; senior partner in the importing and exporting house, J. Bowron & Company, Stockton on Tees and Carthagen, Spain, 1872-1877; honorary secretary, Stockton on Tees Chamber of Commerce, 1872-1877; general manager, Southern States Coal, Iron & Land Company, 1877-1882; successively treasurer, secretary and treasurer, general manager, treasurer, third vice president and treasurer, first vice president and treasurer, Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, 1882-1901; vice president, South Pittsburg Pipe Works, South Pittsburg, Tenn., 1886-1895, and president, 1895-1898; director, American Pipe & Foundry Company, South Pittsburg, Tenn., 1899; chairman of the finance committee, Birmingham Trust & Savings Bank, Birmingham, 1895-1900; vice president, American Foundry Association, 1900; director, then vice president, Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, 1900-1910; vice president, Dimmick Pipe Company, Birmingham, 1900-1910; vice president, Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Company, 1900-1913; chairman of the finance committee, American Trust & Savings Bank, Birmingham, 1901-1913; president, Look-out Mountain Iron Company, 1902-1903; successively vice president and treasurer, president, receiver and trustee, Southern Iron & Steel Company, 1910-1913; president, Standard Steel Company, 1913; president, Gulf States Steel Company, 1913.

Mr. Bowron was chairman of the citizens committee to investigate and report on the water supply of Birmingham, and was a member of a similar committee to investigate the street pavement being laid. He represented the city of Birmingham on the board of public welfare, charged with supervising charitable expenditures. He is a Republican, a thirty-third degree Mason, a Presbyterian and was temporary chairman of the Alabama state republican convention, 1900-1911. He has held various positions in different societies and organizations. He assisted actively in shaping the policy which led to the first manufacture of basic open hearth steel on a commercial scale in the south, at Ensley; and was one of the first in the United States to utilize waste coke oven gas in the plant at Victoria, Marion County, Tenn., where the waste gas was used for raising steam for fire brick work, and the exhaust steam was used for heating the drying floors of the brick works. Mr. Bowron has contributed articles on political, industrial, and scientific subjects to many newspapers, including the "New York Times," "Bradstreets," "Chattanooga Times," "Tradesman," "Baltimore Manufacturers Record," "Nashville American," and "Birmingham Age Herald."

Married: (1) June 20, 1870, at Redcar, England, Ada Louisa, daughter of William and Mary Anne (Reeve) Barrett, of Norton, England; (2) June 14, 1887, at Nashville, Tenn., Adah Secesh, daughter of Leroy T. and Josephine F. (Beaty) Cunningham. Her father was superintendent of the Vicksburg & Meridian railway. Children, by first marriage:

1. Charles Edward, chief engineer of the Standard Steel Company, Birmingham, m. at Tracey City, Tenn., 1897, Adelaide Reilly; 2. Kathleen Mary, d.; 3. Francis James, d.; 4. Frederick William, with Crane & Company, Seattle, Wash.; 5. Arthur John, Crescent Road, Birmingham, m. Lillian Roden, 1904; 6. Thomas Whitwell, assistant cashier, First National Bank, Birmingham, m. December 2, 1908, at Ellisville, Miss., Mamie Shelby; 7. Mary Ellen, d.; 8. Ada Mary, m. 1903, Dr. James S. McLester, Mountain Terrace, Birmingham; by second marriage; 9. Edith Josephine, Birmingham; 10. Richard Louis, night superintendent, open hearth, Ensley Steel Works, Birmingham; 11. James Edgar, attended University of Alabama; 12. Harold Alfred, attended University of Alabama; 13. Robert Henry, Birmingham; 14. Paul Joseph, Birmingham. Residence: 1401 South Twentieth street, Birmingham.

BOX, FRANKLIN LEROY, lawyer and judge, was born April 9, 1837, on his father's farm near the Coosa River, St. Clair County, and died March 26, 1895, while holding circuit court at Edwardsville; son of Allen and Mary (Box) Box, second cousins, the former a native of Charleston, S. C., who moved to Sequatchie Valley, Tenn., then to St. Clair County, near the Coosa River, where he farmed until his death; grandson of Henry and Cassandra Box of St. Clair County, and of Seth and Margaret Box, of the same county. An uncle, Henry Box, fought in the War of 1812, and in the Seminole War. The ancestors of the Box family came to America from Kent, England. There were members of the family in the Revolutionary War, in the War of 1812, and in the Seminole War.

He received his early education in the county schools from Lelus Law and Benjamin Franklin Pope, and taught school for several years. He served as superintendent of education of St. Clair County until the outbreak of war in 1861, then resigned to enter the C. S. Army. He was commissioned lieutenant of Co. A, Tenth Alabama regiment, Wilcox's brigade, and acted as major general at times. He remained with the army of northern Virginia until the surrender at Appomatox Court House. He studied law all during the war while he was in winter quarters, and carried his law books with him when the army moved to other quarters. After the war was over, he continued the study of law in Jacksonville, Calhoun County, teaching school at the same time. After he obtained his license to practice law, he returned to his home town, Ashville, and formed a partnership with Judge John W. Inzer. He was elected to the legislature, 1870-1871, and was at the capitol in Montgomery at the time of the Court House embroglio.

Mr. Box was elected state superintendent of education of Alabama and served two terms. Before his second term had expired, he was nominated and elected circuit judge of the seventh district, was re-elected, and was serving his third term at the time of his death. He was a Democrat; a steward in the Methodist Episcopal church, south; a member of the board of trustees of that church; and a Mason.

Married: April 22, 1866, near Ashville, Sarah

Isabella, daughter of William Amberson and Susan (Hardwick) Van de Grift, of Irish and Scotch-Irish descent respectively; granddaughter of Christopher Columbus and Rebecca (Amberson) Van de Grift, and of James and Violetta (Elder) Hardwick, the former a member of the Alabama legislature from Tuscaloosa at the same time his brother Mac Hardwick was serving in the state senate. Mrs. Box's mother was related to Gov. Fitzpatrick, and her grandfather and great grandfather Hardwick came from England and were of the royal family of that name. Children: 1. Lula Eugenia, graduate of Tuscaloosa Female College, m. James Alden Embry, circuit solicitor of the seventh district, Ashville; 2. Albert Eugene, student at the University of Alabama, d. of malarial fever at the age of eighteen; 3. Stella Irene, graduate of Tuscaloosa Female College, m. Thomas Jefferson Hodges, cotton buyer and commission merchant, Birmingham. Last residence: Ashville.

BOYD, ALFRED, physician, was born at Prosperity, Newberry District, S. C., and died September 21, 1882, at Troy, Pike County; son of Capt. Archibald Boyd, a successful merchant and farmer at Prosperity, Newberry District, S. C., his native state. He was of Scotch-Irish ancestry. Alfred Boyd received his early schooling at Prosperity, S. C., and completed his education at Lexington, S. C. In 1835, he went with his wife to Fayette County to visit relatives for a few months, but because of the outbreak of Indian hostilities, was compelled to remain much longer than he had intended. He began teaching as principal of the school at Somerville, Tenn., with his wife as assistant, and was occupied in this way for two years. After the Indians were driven west of the Mississippi River, he moved, in 1837, with his family to Pike County, and taught school at Orion and Troy until 1844. He began to study medicine, attended the medical college at Charleston, S. C., and was graduated 1846. He returned to Alabama, located at Dublin, Montgomery County, taught school and practiced medicine for a year. By this time his practice had become so extensive that he dropped teaching and devoted all his time to medicine. He practiced in Dublin until 1862, moved to Ramer and practiced until 1869; then to Troy, Pike County, where he practiced until his death. He was a Baptist and a Royal Arch Mason.

Married: December 1834, Carrie A. Jones. Children: 1. Casper W., enlisted in the C. S. Army, was ordered into Virginia with the Fifteenth Alabama infantry, and fought in Jackson's army until the battle of Port Republic, June 8, 1862, in which he fell mortally wounded; 2. James P., enlisted in the C. S. Army, August 1862 and died at home, 1864, from exposure and disease contracted in the army; 3. Joseph A. E., enlisted November 1862, d. at Chattanooga, Tenn., of injuries and exposure in the early part of 1865; 4. Hansford D., enlisted at an early age in the C. S. Army April 1865, but was soon discharged because of the termination of the war, has been a practicing dentist at Troy for more than twenty-five years, was one of the founders of the Alabama Dental Association in 1869; 5. Milton P., d. at the age of eighteen; 6. William P., a successful merchant and planter at Nevada, Tex.; 7. Archibald J., practiced dentistry for several years, d. May 1891 at Chipley, Fla.; 8. Clary L., dentist, b. February 11, 1860, was graduated from Vanderbilt University, president of the Alabama Dental Association, m. October 13, 1886, Willie L. Crow, daughter of William L. and Mattie E. Crow, three children, Molena, d., Willie Wray, and Artie Lynn resides at Eufaula. Three daughters died in infancy. Last residence: Troy, Pike County.

BOYD, ANDREW, physician, was born June 11, 1866, in Jackson County, and died June 22, 1901; son of Dr. J. H. and Johnason (Moore) Boyd, the former a native of Wytheville, Va., who removed to Madison County, Tenn., entered the C. S. Army, April 29, 1861, as a member of Co. K, 4th Alabama infantry regiment, in 1862, detailed as assistant surgeon at Chimborazo hospital, Richmond, Va., established a hospital at Jerusalem, on Nodaway River, Va., and served as assistant surgeon, transferred to hospital service at Petersburg, Va., sent to Raleigh, N. C., returned to his regiment and remained with it until it surrendered at Appomattox, and of Andrew Moore, of Jackson County. Dr. Boyd was educated in the schools of Jackson County; graduated from the University of Alabama, 1884; received the M. D. degree from the College of physicians and surgeons, Baltimore, Md., 1887; and spent one year as resident hospital physician, Baltimore, Md., 1888-89. Returning to Alabama he located in Larkinsville, where he practiced for one year with his father, later removing to Scottsboro where he formed a partnership with Dr. J. P. Rorex. He was a member of the county and state medical associations; vice-president, 1890, Tri-State medical association; surgeon, 3rd regiment, Alabama State troops; and a Knight of Pythias. Author: contributor of articles to New York medical news, Alabama medical and surgical age, and the Southern medical journal. Unmarried. Last residence: Scottsboro.

BOYD, BENJAMIN HARTWELL, teacher, was born December 9, 1864, near LaPlace, Macon County; son of Charles LeRoy and Sarah Angelina (Mason) Boyd, the former a native of Edgefield District, S. C., who moved with his parents to Macon County in 1838 or 1839, was graduated from Oglethorpe University at the time that the father of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage was president, and Dr. James Woodrow, grandfather of Woodrow Wilson, was a professor, was graduated, M. D., 1856, and practiced medicine in Macon County; grandson of Rev. Charles LeRoy and Mary E. (Mathews) Boyd, who lived at Charleston, S. C., and of William and Sarah Angelina (Smith) Mason, who lived in Lowndes and Montgomery Counties. The Boyds are of Scotch-Irish descent, coming to America from Ireland. The Masons are of French descent. Mr. Boyd, with his brother LeRoy, was prepared for college principally on the front porch of the Boyd country residence, first under the instruction of his mother, and after her death, of his father. The two boys received the full Latin and Greek course in that fashion, and entered the Alabama Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Auburn, in 1881. They were graduated, A. B., 1884, taking the last A. B. degree given by that institution. His Alma Mater conferred the degree of A. M. on Mr. Boyd in 1892. He began to teach as principal of China Grove High School, Pike County, in 1885, and held that position five years. He moved to Ramer, Montgomery County, remaining there twelve years, for the greater part of the time conducting a private high school; then went to Brundidge, Pike County, where he remained nine years, intermitting one. In 1911, he was elected principal of the Geneva County High School. He is a Democrat, an elder in the Presbyterian church, has been secretary and Master of Masons, and chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias, is an Odd Fellow and a Woodman of the World. Married: June 20, 1886, at China Grove, Maud Cottrell, daughter of Dr. Andrew C. and Laura Luvenia (Freeman) Townsend, who lived at China Grove, the former twice a member of the State legislature from Pike County, a member of the Twelfth Alabama regiment, Rhode's old brigade, in Co. K, who was severely wounded May 31, 1862, in the battle of Seven Pines; granddaughter of Albert W. and Mary (McNeil) Townsend, who lived near Pine Level, Montgomery County, and of Maj. Levi and Mary Elizabeth (Townsend) Freeman. Children: 1. Charles Andrew, d. at Ramer, at the age of four years; 2. James Leroy, a graduate of Davidson College, North Carolina, 1912, attended the law school of the University of Alabama; 3. Laura Lucile, attended Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.; 4. Minnie Clare, attended Geneva County High School; 5. Benjamin Hartwell, jr.; 6. Maud Townsend; 7. Miriam Annie, b. 1909. Residence: Hartford.

JOSEPH NORWOOD

BOYD, CHARLES MORGAN, Presbyterian minister, was born April 25, 1875, at Cayce, Marshall County, Miss.; son of William Balbridge and Frances Ann (Carrington) Boyd, the former a native of Chester County, S. C., served in War of Secession in 16th Mississippi cavalry under Gen. Forrest, lived after the war at Cayce, Miss., and later at Atoka, Tenn.; grandson of William and Mary (McDaniel) Boyd, and of Nathaniel Robert and Eliza (Petty) Carrington, of Victoria, Marshall County, Miss. Mr. Boyd was educated in the county schools and was prepared for college at Robinson high school, Atoka, Tenn.; graduated from Erskine college, S. C., with the degree of A. B., June, 1900, and A. M., June, 1902; won intercollegiate oratorical contest of South Carolina in 1900, graduated B. D., Erskine college, 1902. He entered the ministry at Prosperity, S. C., in 1906, and was called to Anderson, S. C. In 1910 he became pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Tuscaloosa. He is a Democrat. Married: November 4, 1904, at Due West, S. C., to Ella Jane, daughter of Joseph Francis and Martha (Brice) Lee, of that place. Children: two died in infancy. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BOYD, DAVID FRENCH, educator, was born October 5, 1834, at Wytheville, Wythe County, Va., and died May 27, 1899, at Baton Rouge, La.; son of Col. Thomas Jefferson and Minerva Ann (French) Boyd, the former a native of Charlottesville, Albemarle County, Va., born in 1804 and died in 1893, who was admitted to the bar in 1828, moved to Wytheville, 1829, was a member of the town council of Wytheville, Va., for fifty-five consecutive years, was in the commissary department of the C. S. Army, 1861-1865, a member of the Virginia legislature, and a member and president of the board of public works of Virginia; grandson of Thomas Duckett and Mary (Magruder) Boyd, born in 1767 and 1766 respectively, natives of Prince George's County, Md., who lived at Boyd's Tavern, Albemarle County, Va., the former fought with Capt. Carr's Co. of cavalry, Albemarle County, Va., in the War of 1812, was captured at Norfolk and held a prisoner at Bermuda, West Indies, for eleven months; and of David and Mary (Dingess) French, of Pearisburg, Giles County, Va., the former born in 1772 and died in 1833, the latter born in 1779 and died in 1829; great grandson of Thomas and Charity (Duckett) Boyd, the former, born in 1734, died in 1797, was first lieutenant and adjutant of the famous Fifth Maryland regiment in the Revolution; great-great-grandson of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Harwood) Boyd; great-great-great grandson of John and Eleanor (FitzRedmunds) Boyd, jr., the latter a kinswoman of Charles Carroll, 1st; great-great-great-great-grandson of John and Mary Boyd, who emigrated from Ayrshire, Scotland, and settled at Boyd's Chance, near Annapolis, Anne Arundel County, Md., in 1684, moved to Queen Anne Town, Prince George's County, Md., 1694, and purchased "Ample Grange," one thousand acres. John Boyd was a "Planter and Inn-Holder," the inn being about three miles from the plantation at old Queen Anne Town, now Hardesty, on the Patuxent River. The inn was conducted by members of the family until 1797.

David Boyd French was educated in the classical school of Prof. Pike Powers, Staunton, Va., and was graduated from the University of Virginia, A. M., 1856. During the next three years he taught school in Wytheville, Va., and in academies at Homer and Rocky Mount, La. In 1859, when the Louisiana State Seminary was opened at Alexandria under the presidency of William Tecumseh Sherman, Boyd was elected professor of ancient languages. When the War of Secession began, he enlisted as a private, and rose to the rank of major in three arms of the service—infantry, engineers and cavalry. His first service was with the Ninth Louisiana regiment in Stonewall Jackson's army. In 1863, at the request of Gov. Moore of Louisiana, and on order of President Jefferson Davis, he was commissioned to re-open the Louisiana Seminary and Military Academy, but on discovery that the region about the institution was subject to invasion, he was assigned to duty as captain of engineers under Gen. Richard Taylor in Louisiana. He was promoted to major and to chief of engineers under Gen. Taylor. He constructed Fort De Russey on the Red River, December 1863, and early in 1864 was captured by jayhawkers and sold for one hundred dollars to the federals. He was imprisoned at Natchez, Miss., and in the Cotton Compress prison in New Orleans. Through the friendship of Gen. Sherman, he was exchanged in July 1864. At the time of his capture he had on his person thirteen thousand dollars, Confederate money, to pay off the soldiers, which he succeeded in secreting and later turned over to the army. While in captivity and crossing the Black River, the canoe capsized and he saved the lives of two of his captors. During his imprisonment at Natchez, Miss., Gen. Sherman called on him and offered to send him through the lines to Leavenworth, Kas., provided he would not rejoin the C. S. Army, and with the understanding that they form a law partnership upon the cessation of hostilities, which offer was declined. He rejoined the C. S. Army, and in December 1864, became adjutant general, with rank of major, of Brent's Louisiana cavalry brigade.

After the close of the war, Maj. Boyd was elected to the superintendency of the Louisiana State Seminary, later the Louisiana State university, then located at Alexandria, and later at Baton Rouge. For nearly thirty years he was closely connected with the fortunes of the institution, as president and as professor. By his own personal efforts and financial sacrifice he maintained it through the days of reconstruction, and is therefore considered the father of the state university. From 1872 to 1876, all state aid was withdrawn from the university by the carpetbag Republican legislature, principally because it would not admit negro students. In 1875, through the influence of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, the first president of the institution, who always gave it every assistance in his power, giving orders through the war that its buildings should not be destroyed by the U. S. Army, Col. Boyd was appointed superintendent of the Royal Military College at Cairo, Egypt, with the rank and pay of brigadier general in the Egyptian army, but the financial crash in Egypt, followed by the occupation of that country by the British and the abdication of the Khedive, prevented his assuming the new position, and he remained at the head of the state university. In 1876, he secured the passage of the legislative act uniting at Baton Rouge the state university with the Agricultural and Mechanical College of New Orleans. In 1886, he secured from the United States government the abandoned military post and grounds at Baton Rouge as a permanent home for the university, largely through the influence of General Sherman and Congressmen Irion and Robertson of Louisiana.

Col. Boyd was president of the Louisiana State university from 1865 to 1880, and from 1884 to 1886; and at the same institution was professor of ancient languages, 1860-1861, 1865-1867; professor of mathematics, 1867-1877, 1880, 1886-1888; and of philosophy and civics, from January, 1897, until his death in 1899. He conducted Locust Dale military academy, Madison County, Va., 1881-1882; and Greenwood military academy, Albemarle County, Va., 1882-1883. He was president and professor of astronomy and physics at the Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn, during the session of 1883-1884, resigning to return to Louisiana; superintendent of Kentucky military institute, near Frankfort, 1888-1893; professor at the Michigan military academy, Orchard Lake, Mich., 1894-1896. The honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by the Louisiana State university in 1890. The honorary title of colonel was conferred by act of the legislature of Louisiana, as head of the state university which has the military feature. He was buried with military honors. In 1904 the alumni of the Louisiana State university laid the cornerstone of a fifty thousand dollar memorial building dedicated to his memory, which has been completed and is now used as the administration building of the university.

Married: October 5, 1865, at Cheneyville, La., Esther Gertrude Wright, born September 26, 1844, near Cheneyville, La.; died November 17, 1915, at Baton Rouge, La.; daughter of Dr. Jesse Durastus and Sarah Robert (Grimball) Wright of Cheneyville, Rapides Parish, La.; natives of Saybrook, Conn., and of St. Peter's, Beaufort District, S. C., respectively; granddaughter of Benjamin and Hester (Chapman) Wright, of Saybrook, Conn. Children: 1. Thomas Jackson, b. April 29, 1869, at Pineville, La., a merchant, Washington, La.; 2. Edward J., b. April 29, 1869, at Pineville, La., d. in 1871; 3. Arthur, b. October 7, 1891, at Baton Rouge, La., accidentally shot and killed at Auburn, November 24, 1883; 4. Leroy Stafford (q. v.), b. December 21, 1873, at Baton Rouge, La., a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 1892, librarian of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C.; 5. David French, jr., b. September 18, 1876, at Baton Rouge, La., a graduate of the Naval Academy, Annapolis, a survivor of the "Maine," lieutenant commander, then captain, U. S. Navy; 6. Mary Wright, b. August 16, 1878, a graduate of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 1898, m. Dr. Walter Lynnwood Fleming, professor of history, Louisiana State University, then professor, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.; 7. Guy French, b. July 23, 1880, at Baton Rouge, La., Baptist preacher, a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 1900, of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Ill., first lieutenant, U. S. Army, during Great War, 1914, Vinton, La.; 8. Jesse Wright, b. February 27, 1882, at Baton Rouge, La., a graduate of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 1900, first lieutenant, Twenty-fourth infantry, Manila, P. I., 1913, major, U. S. Army. Last residence: Baton Rouge.

BOYD, GEORGE ELIAS, Methodist minister, was born May 22, 1859, at Ensley, Talladega County; son of William Marcellus and Susan Clementine (Sondley) Boyd, the former a native of Newberry, S. C., who was married in that place, moved with his family to Talladega County in 1852 where he lived until he enlisted in the C. S. Army, and was killed in the war; grandson of John Boyd of Newberry, S. C., and of William Sondley. His ancestors emigrated to America from Scotland. He received his early education from Pleasant Hill Academy, Jefferson County, conducted by Prof.

I. W. McAdory. He took up the study of theology in preparation for the ministry, and was licensed to preach in the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in 1887. For more than a quarter of a century he has served his church as pastor, presiding elder and in other offices. He is at present located in the Methodist Episcopal church at Ensley. He is a Democrat, a Mason, a member of the Knights of Pythias, and of J. O. U. R. M.

Married: (1) Emma Pickens Wiggins; (2) April 28, 1903, in Huntsville, Bessie Lee, daughter of Henry and Ann Elizabeth (Ware) Delp of that city. Her father was a native of Germany, and her mother a Virginian. Children, by first marriage: George Edward, Ensley. Residence: Ensley.

BOYD, HUGH, physician, graduate of the Memphis, Tenn., hospital, 1899, licensed to practice by the county board of Jackson. Residence: Scottsboro.

BOYD, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, a resident of Jefferson County; private, particular service not shown; enrolled on September 17, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $23.33.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

BOYD, LEROY STAFFORD, librarian and author, was born December 21, 1873, at Baton Rouge, La.; son of Col. David French and Esther Gertrude (Wright) Boyd (q. v.). He was prepared in the private school of Miss May Thomas, at Baton Rouge, La., and in the public schools at Auburn, under Miss Alicia Milton and Miss Mary Anderson; and was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, B. S., 1892, M. S., 1895; from Tulane university, New Orleans, La., LL. B., 1899; and from the School of Comparative Jurisprudence and Diplomacy, George Washington university, Washington, D. C., D. C. L., 1901, and M. Dip. (first honor), 1902. He was admitted to the bar of Louisiana, June 1899, but has never practiced. He became secretary to President William Leroy Broun, of the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1894-1895; assistant librarian, Alabama polytechnic institute, 1895-1896; read law under Judge William F. Kernan, Clinton, La., 1896-1898; was appointed deputy clerk, Thirteenth Louisiana judicial district, 1897-1898; librarian, Louisiana Bar Association, New Orleans, La., 1898-1900; assistant librarian, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., 1900-1904; private secretary to Hon. W. W. Kitchin, M. C., 1904-1905; librarian, U. S. Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., 1905-to date (1920). He is a member of the Maryland Historical Society, of the Columbia Historical Society, of the American Library Association, of the American Association of Law Libraries, of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and of the Sons of the American Revolution. He was a member of the historical committee, 1904-1905, and commissary general, 1905-1906, of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. He was a delegate to the Republican state convention, Alexandria, La., 1900; alternate delegate to the Republican national convention, Philadelphia, June 1900; and a member of the Republican state central committee of Louisiana, 1900-1902. He is a Democrat, a Baptist, a Knight of Pythias, and a member of Kappa Alpha college fraternity. Mr. Boyd is author of "Alexander Hamilton a Secessionist, judged by his actions in New York State Convention of 1786," and a "History of St. Barnabas Church, Queen Anne Parish, Prince Georges County, Md.," 1907. He is also a contributor to newspapers. Residence: Washington, D. C.

BOYD, ROMAINE, judge, was born November 19, 1873, at Selma, Dallas County; son of William G. and Sara Pollard (Tarver) Boyd, the former served as a private in the Magnolia cadets, 4th Alabama infantry regiment, later Russell's 4th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Hugh and Mary (Knox) Boyd, and of Benjamin and Louise (Capel) Tarver. The Boyds are of Scotch-Irish descent, removing from Pennsylvania to Chester County, S. C. The Tarvers removed from Milledgeville, Ga., to Montgomery. He was educated in the public schools of Talladega and Selma; at the U. S. naval academy, but did not graduate; received the LL. B. degree from the University of Alabama; began practice in Birmingham in 1899, in the office of Hon. Robert J. Lowe; was later associated with ex-Justice James B. Head, under firm name of Head and Boyd; city attorney of Ensley, 1903-1908; city attorney of Birmingham, 1910-1916; appointed judge Tenth judicial circuit, 1917. He served as captain Co. M, 1st Alabama U. S. infantry, during the Spanish-American War. He is a Democrat; Mason; and a Knight of Pythias. He is unmarried. Residence: Birmingham.

BOYD, RUFUS KING, lawyer, secretary of state of Alabama, was born in 1831, in Williamson County, Tenn., and died May 10, 1883, at Gunterville; son of Marcus Boyd, who lived in Williamston County, Tenn., where he was married to a Miss Hamilton, mother of Rufus K. Boyd, and moved to Springfield where his first wife died, married a Miss Price, sister of William C. Price, United States treasurer during Buchanan's administration, was a member of the Missouri legislature several times, colonel in the Missouri state militia, U. S. Army, and grand master and grand high priest of Missouri Masonry. The maiden name of the paternal grandmother of Rufus K. Price was Edmiston, and her parents, as well as those of her husband, came from Ireland. Her father was killed at King's Mountain during the Revolutionary War. She was a cousin of Adam Clark, author of "Clark's Commentaries." The Edmiston, now spelled Edmundsen, and Buchanan families, ancestors of Mr. Boyd, were prominent in southwestern Virginia prior to and during the Revolution. The Buchanans came from the southeastern part of Pennsylvania to Virginia, and were of the same family from which President James Buchanan was descended. Sempronius Hamilton Boyd, brother of Rufus K., twice represented the Springfield, Mo., district in congress, and was minister to Siam under President Benjamin Harrison. Another brother, Audley Shanklin Hamilton Boyd, was a physician at Carrsville, Ky.

Mr. Boyd received little education other than that obtained in the common schools of his neighborhood, and in 1849, when he was eighteen years old, he went to California and joined William Walker in his Nicaragua Enterprise. He probably escaped execution with Walker by being on a temporary recruiting mission in New Orleans, La., at the time of Walker's capture. When the War of Secession began, he joined Stewart's cavalry as a private, and served until 1863, then returned to his home for the first time since leaving it in 1849, in order to organize a regiment of volunteers for the C. S. Army. Circumstances frustrated this attempt, and soon he left home again. For several years his family received no tidings of him, and of this period of his life nothing definite is known, but it is certain that he was a member of Quantrell's band of guerrillas during the remainder of the war. Frank James, the noted outlaw, when in prison in Huntsville, so stated, and said that he knew Boyd well. Dr. W. C. McCoy, later a Methodist minister in the northern Alabama conference, and father of Bishop McCoy, was a member of the same band. How Mr. Boyd received the knowledge of law that he possessed when he came to Alabama is unknown.

In December 1865, he located at Guntersville and formed a law partnership with the late Judge Louis Wyeth, under the firm name of Wyeth & Boyd. This partnership continued until Mr. Wyeth went on the bench as circuit judge. In 1872, Mr. Boyd was elected to the legislature from Marshall County and became a leader in that body. In 1874 he was nominated and elected secretary of state on the democratic ticket headed by George S. Houston, which redeemed Alabama from the carpet-bag rule; and was reelected for two years in 1876. He was an uncompromising Democrat, one of the acknowledged state leaders of his party, a Methodist Episcopalian, and a Master Mason. Married: March 15, 1866, at Guntersville, Amanda, daughter of Grandison and Martha Ann (Hampton) Greenwood, natives of Georgia and Tennessee respectively, who lived at Guntersville; granddaughter of John Hampton of the same place. Last residence: Guntersville.

BOYDSTON, SAMUEL, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Perry County; private Tennessee Militia; enrolled on September 17, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $46.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $116.65.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Vol. xiv, Sen. Doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BOYKIN, BURWELL, commission merchant, was born in 1813, in Kershaw District, S. C., and died July, 1857, on his plantation in Dallas County; son of Frank Boykin, of Conecuh County, formerly of South Carolina. He was graduated at Tuscaloosa and practiced law a short time at Cahaba; served as colonel in the Indian wars, 1836-1837; was appointed secretary to one of the European legations; became a commission merchant, in partnership with Gen. Colin McRae, at Mobile; engaged in planting at Portland; represented Dallas in the general assembly of Alabama legislature for two terms; and died on his way to University to deliver the Annual Address before the literary societies. Married: (1) Maria Shortridge, sister of Judge Shortridge of Shelby; (2) Elizabeth McRae, sister of Gen. Colin McRae. One of his sons is an attorney at the bar of Dallas. Last residence: Dallas County.

BOYKIN, FRANK, JR., planter, was born March 3, 1842, in Dallas County; son of Frank Boykin, a native of South Carolina. He was attending the University of Virginia at the outbreak of the War of Secession, and left that institution to enter the C. S. Army in April, 1861. He joined the Alabama mounted rifles as a private in Wilcox County, where his family was at that time residing, but was discharged after a few months because of ill health. As soon as he had sufficiently recovered, he joined the Second Alabama cavalry, and at the organization of that regiment in the spring of 1862, was made sergeant-major. Early in the next year, while campaigning in northern Georgia, he was promoted to lieutenant for gallantry on the battlefield. The promotion was in compliance with an act of congress and an order of the war department—the order setting forth, among other things, that the commission was issued in consideration of "particular skill and valor upon every battlefield upon which he was engaged." Lieut. Boykin was assigned to the staff of Col. Earle, with the rank of regimental adjutant, and was with Earle, who was afterwards a brigadier-general, until the death of the latter, late in 1864. Following this event, he was assigned to the staff of Gen. Ferguson, and with him, surrendered at Washington, Ga., to which point they had escorted President Davis from South Carolina. Lieut. Boykin, under special orders from Gen. Ferguson, had escorted John C. Breckinridge, secretary of war, to Washington, Ga. While in the service, he participated in all the cavalry engagements from Resaca to Savannah. At the close of the war, he returned to Alabama, taking charge of his father's plantations in Dallas County, and gave his attention to cotton raising until 1880. In 1878, he was the unanimous choice of the democratic convention for representative to the legislature, and was one of the first members returned as a Democrat, from Dallas County, after the war. He was elected tax collector in 1882 and re-elected in 1884. He was chairman of the delegation in the interest of Col. N. H. R. Dawson for governor in the campaign of 1886, and during the days of Republican rule, was a member of the "Lightening Committee." Married: In Dallas County, 1865, a daughter of Burwell Boykin (q. v.) Children: Two sons and one daughter. Residence: Dallas County.

BOYKIN, JAMES OWEN, physician, was born August 7, 1821, in Baldwin County, Ga.,

where Milledgeville now is located, and died May 6, 1901, in Portland; son of James and Clara B. (Owens) Boykin, the former a native of Baldwin County, Ga., and a veteran of the War of 1812, who moved to Columbus, Ga., where he died, 1846; grandson of Maj. Francis and Catharine (Whitaker) Boykin. Dr. Boykin was a graduate of Transylvania Medical College, Lexington, Ky., and of the Kentucky School of Medicine at Louisville. He practiced at Tilden, exclusively, for fifty-five years. Married: Ann Mary, daughter of Samuel G. and Catherine C. (Maguire) Swift, of Mobile. Children: 1. Samuel Swift (q. v.). Last residence: Portland.

BOYKIN, SAMUEL SWIFT, physician, was born February 2, 1868, at Tilden, Dallas County; son of James Owen and Ann Mary (Swift) Boykin (q. v.); grandson of James and Clara B. (Owens) Boykin, the former a native of Georgia and a veteran of the War of 1812, and of Samuel G. and Catherine C. (Maguire) Swift of Mobile; great grandson of Maj. Francis and Catharine (Whitaker) Boykin. Dr. Boykin gained his early education in the public schools of Dallas County, and later attended the medical department of the University of Alabama, at Mobile, from which he received the degree of M. D., April 10, 1896. After his graduation, he located at Portland and began to practice medicine, and has continued his practice in that city. He is a member of the county executive committee, is a Democrat and a Catholic. Married: June 29, 1892, at Portland, Lodie E. LaPointe, daughter of Napoleon B. and Toinette E. (Niolon) LaPointe, of Portland. Residence: Minter, R. R. No. 2

BOYKIN, WILLIAM JOHNSON, lawyer, was born November 8, 1861, at Oswichee, Russell County; son of James William and Athalie Annett (Johnson) Boykin, the former a native of Columbus, Ga., who came to Alabama, lived in Oswichee, Glennville and other places in Russell County, where he farmed and was a mechanic, joined Co. I, 34th Alabama regiment, C. S. Army in 1862, and served throughout the war, being wounded several times; grandson of Francis E. and Fannie (Hudson) Boykin of Pike County, near Perote, and later of Union Springs, the former treasurer of Bullock County for two terms of four years each, and a member of both houses of the Alabama legislature; and of Isaac and Bettie Johnson who lived near Hamilton, Harris County, Ga., great-grandson of James Boykin who fought in the War of 1812; great-great-grandson of Francis Boykin, who served as captain and later, major, in the Revolutionary War, and fought with distinction at Ft. Moultrie. Edward Boykin, the first American ancestor, came from Caernarvonshire, Wales, in 1685. The parents of Mr. Boykin moved to Glennville during his childhood, and he attended private school there under Hon. William H. Chambers and Rev. John Dyer, and later under Rev. George W. Fuller, at Seale. He entered South West Georgia Agricultural College of Cuthbert for one term, then devoted his attention to farming until 1889, when his health broke down and he was forced to seek a change in occupation. He began to read law under the direction of Col. L. W. Martin and Hon. John V. Smith at Seale, and in 1890 entered the law school of the University of Alabama, where he was graduated, LL. B., 1891. He was admitted to the bar, July, 1891, and began practice at Seale. In 1894, having been nominated without opposition on the Democratic ticket, he was elected to the house from Russell County. Two years later, he was elected state senator from the twenty-seventh district by nearly a two thousand majority vote over his opponent, who was endorsed by the Populist and Republican parties. He served in the house as chairman of the committee on commerce and common carriers, and was a member of the judiciary committee; in the first session of the senate, he was a member of the judiciary committee, and chairman of the committee on commerce and common carriers; and in the second session of the senate, was chairman of the judiciary committee, and member of the rules committee. He moved to Gadsden in 1898 where he has since continued his practice. He was appointed solicitor for Etowah County by Gov. B. B. Comer. He was a member of the state Democratic executive committee which nominated W. C. Oates for governor, is a Baptist, a Royal Arch Mason, a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Order of Elks. Married: October 5, 1882, at Villula, Russell County, Bessie Allen Ware, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Nuckolls) Ware, of Villula, the former a planter and land owner in Russell County; granddaughter of Nathaniel Nuckolls. She died May 23, 1902. Children: 1. Nita, Gadsden; 2. Alice, m. H. C. Kilgore, Gadsden; 3. Bessie, Gadsden; 4. Willie, d. 1909; 5. Benton, Gadsden. Residence: Gadsden.

BOYLES, WILLIAM, lawyer, was born in 1818, near Mt. Airy, N. C., and died March 29, 1882 at Mobile; son of Joseph and Nancy (Boyles) Boyles, first cousins. His parents moved to Little River, Monroe County, during his early childhood, and he was reared there. He was educated in the common schools of the county and entered the mercantile business in his early manhood. Some time later he began to study law under Edmund S. Dargan, afterward chief justice of the supreme court of Alabama, and was admitted to the bar, February 23, 1843. He practiced law in Mobile from that time until the outbreak of war in 1861. He raised a battalion of cavalry at Mobile called the "First Alabama Partisan Rangers," and was placed in its command. After several months' training, his command was ordered to Tupelo, Miss., where the battalion was consolidated with Street's Mississippi battalion, and was organized as the Fifty-sixth Alabama regiment of cavalry, with Mr. Boyles as colonel. Under generals Stephen D. Lee, Ruggles, Hardee, Joseph Wheeler, and Joseph E. Johnston, this regiment took part in many battles in Mississippi, northern Alabama, Tennessee, and in Georgia where it was active in harrassing Gen. Sherman in his march to the sea. After the fall of Savannah, the regiment retreated in the Carolinas with the balance of Johnston's army and was surrendered in the articles of capitulation between Johnston and Sherman in April, 1865, with one hundred fifty-four men left out of the thousand who first composed it. It was always in the hottest of the fight, and was conspicuous on many occasions for its heroic conduct on the field. Col. Boyles was created a brigadier-general, but his commission failed to reach him before the close of hostilities. After the war was ended, he returned to his home in Mobile and resumed the practice of law. From 1877 until his death five years later, he was the law partner of his nephew, James M. Cloud. At one time, he represented Mobile County in the state legislature. Last residence: Mobile.

BOYNTON, WILLIAM NATHAN, merchant, was born July 28, 1831, at New Haven, Addison County, Vt., and died August 22, 1896, at Talladega; son of Rev. Henry and Abigail (Barton) Boynton the former a Presbyterian minister, born in 1799 and died in 1882, who reared a family of four sons and three daughters, all of whom received college educations. The Boyntons originally came from Scotland, in the persons of three brothers who settled, one in Connecticut, another in Georgia and the third in Ohio. The one who settled in Connecticut is the progenitor of this line of Boyntons. The family was introduced into Vermont by John Boynton, a soldier in the Colonial Army during the Revolution. Mr. Boynton was graduated from Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., 1854, and from the law department of the New York University, 1857. He moved to Alabama in 1854, taught school one year in Wilcox County, and in 1857 located at Cahaba where he practiced law. In 1862, he enlisted in the First Alabama regiment, C. S. Army and served until the end of the war. After leaving the army, he located at Selma, where, in partnership with Alexander White, he practiced law until 1882. The next year he moved to Talladega and engaged in the mercantile business. He was a Freemason and a Presbyterian. Married: June 28, 1859, Fannie A. Isbell, daughter of Maj. James and Rutelia (Haston) Isbell, of Talladega. Her father was founder of the Isbell Bank, the oldest bank in the state, and of the City National Bank at Selma, and was one of the organizers of the Presbyterian Church at Talladega. Children: 1. William Hardie, b. February 23, 1868, at Selma, was graduated from Cornell University, served as city treasurer of Talladega, is past exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, m. Maud Camp, daughter of Judge J. E. and Annie Camp, one daughter, resides at Talladega; 2. Theodore Dwight; and four other children who are now dead. Last residence: Talladega.

BOZEMAN, NATHAN, physician, was born near Greenville, Butler County, March 26, 1825, and died in New York, N. Y., December 21, 1905; son of Nathan and Harriet (Knotts) Bozeman, the former a farmer, a Democrat, and a Primitive Baptist, a native of North Carolina, made a trip in 1806 with his father to Illinois, removed in 1819 with his family to near Montezuma, Covington County, located in 1825 in Butler County, lived in Lowndes, Tallapoosa, and Coosa Counties, served as a magistrate many years, and at the time of his death in 1848, resided at Nixburg; grandson of Joseph Bozeman and wife, who was a Miss Wood, the former a native of Bladen County, N. C., a farmer, served in the Continental Army, removed to Georgia, thence to Illinois, returned to Georgia, in 1818 located in Alabama where he died in 1821, and of Nathaniel Knotts, of Scotch extraction, a native of South Carolina, who served as a captain in the Continental Army, removed later to Georgia; great-grandson of Samuel and Ann (Richardson) Bozeman, of Bladen County, N. C. It is thought that the Bozeman family came from Holland, probably locating in New York whence members emigrated to Maryland and to North Carolina. Dr. Bozeman had limited opportunities for securing an education, but by diligent application educated himself, and when eighteen was a surveyor. After a season in the office of Dr. James A. Kelly, of Coosa County, in 1846 he entered the University of Louisville, Kentucky, and graduated in 1848. For a brief period he was a private assistant to Dr. Samuel D. Gross; demonstrator of anatomy in the college under Dr. Tobias G. Richardson, and also served as an assistant in the Louisville marine hospital. Soon after his graduation Dr. Bozeman administered chloroform in an operation of ovariectomy, performed by Prof. Henry Miller, of Louisville, said by the "Medical Record," June 7, 1879, to be "the first successful one of its kind performed under anesthesia in the United States." In June 1849 he located at Montgomery; at first did a general practice; soon he began to specialize in the diseases of women; for a brief period he was a partner of Dr. J. Marion Sims; was most noted at this period as well as later for his successful operations for visico-vaginal fistula. On May 12, 1855, at Montgomery, Dr. Bozeman performed the first operation in which a button suture was used, and by the solution of this problem he was enabled to effect cures without endangering the organs involved. In June, 1858, he visited Europe, where he performed visico-vaginal fistula operations in London, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Paris. Returning to America the same year he opened a private hospital in New Orleans for the treatment of women; and was appointed attending surgeon to the charity hospital there in 1861. He served as a surgeon in the C. S. Army, was at the first battle of Manassas, and was on the medical board for the examination of surgeons. In 1866 he located in New York, and there he resided until his death. The years 1874, 1875, and 1876 were spent in Europe where he demonstrated the practicability of his theories, by successful operations in Germany and France. Returning to New York in the spring of 1877, he took up again his usual line of work; and upon the death of Dr. E. R. Peaslee, was appointed in February, 1878, to the attending staff of the New York State women's hospital. Becoming interested in ovariectomy he advocated a system of preparatory treatment, performing two successful operations in May, 1878. In 1889, after eleven years service with the attending staff of the Woman's hospital, he retired and opened a private sanitarium. The degree of doctor of laws was conferred on him by the University of Alabama, 1891. Dr. Bozeman published between thirty-five and forty monographs, and contributed very frequently to the medical press. Married: (1) October 25, 1852, to Fannie, daughter of Rev. B. B. Lamar, and granddaughter of John Lamar, a soldier of the Revolution, and a first cousin of Justice L. Q. C. Lamar. (2) a cousin of the first wife, of Macon, Ga. Children, by first marriage: 1. Geraldine, d. young; 2. Nathan Gross, physician, educated abroad, University of Virginia and at Yale; and graduated from the College of physicians and surgeons, New York. 3. Fannie Lamar, m. Joseph H. Ry-lance, parents of Joseph Bozeman Ry-lance (q. v.). Last residence: New York, N. Y.

COLONEL WILLIAM W. GARTH

BRADFIELD, JOHN, physician, was born May 12, 1815, in Rockingham County, N. C.; son of Louis and Mary (Farrar) Bradfield, natives respectively of Virginia and North Carolina. He was prepared in Smith's high school, Rockingham County, and was graduated from the medical college in Charleston, S. C., 1845. He began to practice medicine at Uniontown, and continued his practice there for half a century. He was a member of the Perry County and Alabama Medical Societies, and held the office of president of the former and of censor in both; is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and is a Mason. Married: November, 1845, Emily F. Perkins, daughter of Dr. Archibald and Frances (Ware) Perkins, of Madison, Ga. Children: 1. George Hamilton, lawyer, b. August 31, 1853, d. March 3, 1893, was graduated from the State university, A.B., 1872, A.M., 1874; 2. John Warren, physician, was graduated from college, A.B., m. Elizabeth Davidson, Uniontown, resides in Charlotte, N. C.; 3. Louis Thomas, business man, was graduated from the State university, A.B., A.M., 1879, m. July 21, 1886, at University, Lizzie Lewis, daughter of Hon. Burwell Boykin Lewis (q. v.). Last residence: Uniontown.

BRADFORD, DANIEL MORGAN, public official, was born September 2, 1793, near Warrenton, Fauquier County, Va., and died October 14, 1869, at Huntsville; son of William and Catherine (Morgan) Bradford, natives of Fauquier County, Va., the former who entered the Revolutionary War in his fourteenth or fifteenth year, was present at the surrender of Charleston, S. C., to the British by Gen. Lincoln, and was confined to the N. J. prison ship, was married three times, first to Mary Steele, then to Catherine Morgan, lastly to Nancy Boyles, moved to Sumner County, Tenn., about eighteen miles from Nashville in 1800, and died in 1831; grandson of Joseph Bennett Bradford of Fauquier County, Va., who later located in Burke County, N. C., served in the Revolution under Gen. Thomas Sumter, who presented him with a mahogany clothesbrush after the battle of Guilford Court House for his gallant services, was married three times, first to a Miss George, who became mother of William Bradford, then to Margaret Wilson, and finally to a Mrs. Jones; great grandson of John and Mary (Marr) Bradford, natives of England and Scotland, respectively, who emigrated to America and settled in Fauquier County, Va. A cousin of Mr. Bradford's father served in the Light Horse Harry Brigade during the Revolution.

Gen. Bradford served in Carrol's Life Guards during the Creek War, first as lieutenant, then as captain, under Gen. Jackson at New Orleans, and was complimented, May 13, 1815, by Gen. Carrol for personal bravery during the campaign. He was located in Huntsville as a dry-goods merchant for many years; was appointed during the late years of his life to be receiver of the land office by President Andrew Johnson, and was general of the militia of Alabama at the time of his death in 1869. He was a member of the Baptist church. Married: February 28, 1822, in Madison County, Mary Booker Lamkin, daughter of Col. Griffin and Elizabeth Lamkin of Alabama, formerly of Botetourt County, Va. Children: 1. Charles Napoleon, deceased; 2. Henry Clay (q. v.); 3. Jane Gray, m. Hyman Hilzheim, both deceased, last residence, Jackson, Miss.; 4. William Lamkin, was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., 1856, resigned his lieutenancy in the service, April, 1861, joined the C. S. Army and served till the end of the war, returned to his home with a shattered arm, went to South America, 1866, m. November 29, 1866, in South America, Helen J. Sanchez, daughter of the American Consul to Carthage, S. A., both deceased; 5. Ellen Douglas, m. John M. Fariss, residence, Dallas, Tex.; 6. nephew, adopted as son by law, Joseph Morgan, midshipman in the U. S. Navy, m. July 15, 1857, Georgietta Goodwin, daughter of Ex-gov. Ichabod Goodwin of New Hampshire, one son, Frank. Last residence: Huntsville.

BRADFORD, HENRY CLAY, lawyer, was born July 27, 1829, at Huntsville, and died April 3, 1879, at Scottsboro; son of Daniel Morgan and Mary Booker (Lamkin) Bradford (q. v.); grandson of William and Catherine (Morgan) Bradford and of Col. Griffin and Elizabeth Lamkin of Fauquier County, Va.; great-grandson of Joseph Bennett Bradford. Col. Bradford was educated in the schools of Huntsville, and at the age of eighteen enlisted for service in the Mexican War. He was first lieutenant in Co. H, and Co. D, Thirteenth regiment, U. S. infantry, and served in the battles of Monterey, Vera Cruz, Resaca de la Palma, and the City of Mexico, under command of General Zachary Taylor. After the war, he attended law school at Lebanon, Tenn., during the presidency of Judge Carothers, and was graduated as valedictorian of his class, 1850. He practiced law in Huntsville; was elected to the State legislature; moved to Bellefontaine and practiced law there until the beginning of the War of Secession. He enlisted in the C. S. Army, organizing Co. H, Fifty-fifth Alabama regiment, of which he was captain. He was promoted to colonel and served with distinction until the end of the war. He resumed his profession at Scottsboro and practiced there until his death. He was a Democrat and was known as the "silver-tongued orator of North Alabama." Married: October 19, 1854, at "Oakwood," near Huntsville, Annie Watkins, daughter of William and Harriet (Anderson) Watkins of Huntsville; granddaughter of William and Susan Watkins of Georgia and of John and Mary Anderson who lived near Baltimore, Md., before moving to Alabama, the latter a descendant of John, brother of Sir William Wallace of Scotland. The Watkins family is descended from one of three Welsh brothers who settled in the Chickahominy Valley, Va. Children: 1. Eva, m. Dr. James L. Timberlake of Stevenson, resides in Blue Mountain, Ark., one son, Lester P.; 2. Annie, m. R. LeRoy Newton, resides in Houston, Tex., three sons Roy, Percy, and Clifford; 3. Percy, Blue Mountain, Ark.; and three sons who are deceased. Last residence: Scottsboro.

BRADFORD, JACOB TIPTON, public official, was born in 1807 near Morristown, Jefferson County, Tenn., and died March 4, 1866, at Talladega; son of Benjamin and Mary (McFarland) Bradford, the former a planter who moved to Tennessee from North Carolina; grandson of Joseph Bennett and Margaret (Wilson) Bradford, the former a soldier of the Revolution under Gen. Sumter; great grandson of John and Mary (Marr) Bradford, natives of England and Scotland respectively, who emigrated to America and settled in Fauquier County, Va. The name Bradford is found in the Domesday Book of William the Conqueror. Mr. Bradford is a direct descendant of William Bradford, governor of Plymouth Colony, who was born in England, but joined the Pilgrims in Holland and came to Plymouth on the Mayflower in 1620. Gen. Bradford was reared on farms in Morristown and McMinnville, Tenn. He was well educated, and settled in Jackson County as a merchant in 1827. In 1832 he was appointed register in the land office at Montevallo for the Tallapoosa Land District, by President Jackson, and was still holding the position when the office was moved to Mardisville. He was elected major-general of the Eighth division of Alabama militia in 1836. By act of the general assembly, passed that same year, Gen. Bradford and Gen. Crabb were appointed to digest and prepare a military code which they submitted in the fall of 1837. The code was adopted and was known as Bradford's and Crabb's Digest. When the land office was transferred to Lebanon in 1842, he made the transfer also, but returned to Talladega County in 1845. Four years later he was the Whig candidate for congress, but his party was defeated. He represented Talladega in the senate from 1853 to 1857, and was appointed commissioner of public lands for Alabama, C. S. A., in 1861, and held this position until the dissolution of the Confederacy in 1865. He was a Whig until 1851, when he transferred his allegiance to the Democratic party. In 1860 he was a delegate to the national convention at Charleston, S. C. Married: Louisiana Taul, daughter of Col. Micah and Dorothy (Gholson) Taul of Kentucky. Her father served with a Kentucky regiment in the War of 1812, and was a member of congress from Kentucky. She was a sister of Micah Taul, who was elected secretary of state in 1866. Children: 1. Col. Taul (q. v.); 2. Tipton (q. v.). Last residence: Talladega.

BRADFORD, JOSEPH MORGAN, naval officer, was born November 4, 1824, in Sumner County, Tenn., and died April 14, 1872, in Norfolk, Va. He was appointed a midshipman from Alabama, January 10, 1840; warranted as passed midshipman, July 11, 1846; promoted to lieutenant, September 14, 1855; lieutenant commander, August 5, 1862; in 1863 assigned to service on the South Atlantic blockading squadron, as fleet captain; promoted to commander, July 25, 1866; placed on retired list March 16, 1872, and promoted captain on the retired list, March 16, 1872. He left many descendants in Alabama. Last residence: Norfolk, Va.

BRADFORD, LAVINIA, teacher, a woman of exceptional qualities and a teacher of great merit. Deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRADFORD, TAUL, lawyer, representative in congress, was born January 20, 1835, at Mardisville, Talladega County, and died October 20, 1883, at Talladega; son of Gen. Jacob Tipton and Louisiana (Taul) Bradford (q. v.); grandson of Benjamin and Mary (McFarland) Bradford and of Micah and Dorothy (Gholson) Taul. In his youth, Mr. Bradford attended the public school at Mardisville, and later was prepared for college by Gen. William F. Perry. He entered the sophomore class of the University of Alabama, 1851, and was graduated, A. B., 1854. Later he received the degree of A. M. from the same institution. He read law in Talladega and was admitted to the bar in 1855. He practiced law in Talladega until the outbreak of the War of Secession. He enlisted in the C. S. Army, was made major of the Tenth regiment, Alabama volunteers, and later was promoted to lieutenant colonel of the Thirtieth regiment, Alabama volunteers. He was elected to represent Talladega County in the general assembly, 1870-1872; and was elected representative of his district to congress for one term in 1874. He lost his seat in the house in 1876, by the redistricting of the state. He was a Democrat. Married: February 13, 1856, at Thornhill, Mary Isabella Hardie, daughter of John and Mary Meade (Hall) Hardie, of Thornhill, natives of Scotland and Virginia, respectively; granddaughter of Rev. Isaac and Mary (Meade) Hall. Children: 1. Sidney, b. December 30, 1856, d. November 5, 1865; 2. Chapman, b. October 28, 1858, Brownwood, Tex.; 3. Mary Hardie, b. November 22, 1860, d. June 9, 1892, m. Marcus Duncan; 4. Louisiana, b. January 30, 1863, d. September 13, 1864; 5. Ann, b. February 5, 1865, d. January 4, 1866; 6. Helen, b. July 4, 1867, d. November 21, 1867; 7. Taul, b. January 15, 1871, d. June 15, 1871; 8. Belle, b. January 30, 1872, d. February 23, 1912, m. Alex Coke of Dallas, Tex.; 9. Fannie, b. June 26, 1874, m. J. Harry White, Uniontown; 10. Hardie, b. February 8, 1877, m. Charlotte Morgan, Uniontown; 11. Alva, b. July 10, 1878, m. Hardeman T. Meade, Birmingham; 12. Kenneth, b. January 19, 1882, m.

Tillie Camp, Staunton, Va. Last residence: Talladega.

BRADFORD, THOMAS, lawyer, was born July 18, 1851, near the present Alexis, Cherokee County, and died at Centre; son of James and Margaret Ann (McRae) Bradford. Mr. Bradford attended the country schools, was at the University of Alabama, 1869, and attended the Southern university in 1870-71. He was graduated from the law school of Cumberland university, LL. B., 1872. He is a lawyer by profession, admitted to the practice in 1874; was register in chancery for Cherokee County, 1884-89, and 1893-98; was judge of probate for that County, 1889-92; has been a member of the board of control for the Seventh district, agricultural school, 1901, and mayor of Centre in 1899-1901. In 1901 he was appointed, an associate on the board of convict inspectors. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: May 19, 1874, at Fayette, Mo., to Louisa Caroline, daughter of Rev. Dr. John C. and Kate E. (Duffey) Wills of Alexandria, Va. Dr. Wills was a native of Isle of Wight County, Va., a minister in the Methodist church, a teacher in the Southern university, at Greensboro, 1859-71, and president Center college, Fayette, Mo., 1871-1878. Children: 1. Kate Wills; 2. Margaret McRae, m. W. B. Armstrong, Morristown, Tenn.; 3. James Edward, m. Katherine Hornbaker; 4. John Howard; 5. Tom Watts; 6. Fannie Lou, m. W. R. Blount, Munford; 7. Lucile Webb, m. A. H. Ferrell, Seale; 8. Richard Courtland. Residence: Centre.

BRADFORD, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution. "Not so many miles north of Amity church, on this same Choctaw line, stands the grave and memorial stone of another Revolutionary soldier.

"Thomas Bradford.—A slight enclosure surrounds this lone burial spot, and the headstone, with its few and simple words, reminds every passer-by of man's mortality, and also that the dust is sleeping there of one of the soldiers of '76, the Immortal Band of whom a South Carolina patriot, and eloquent Christian lawyer, asks the touching, the thrilling question, 'Shall they meet again in the amaranthine bowers of spotless purity, of perfect bliss, of eternal glory?'"

"Thomas Bradford had two sons, Brasil and Nathan."—Rev. T. H. Ball, Clarke County, Alabama, p. 476.

BRADFORD, TIPTON, lawyer, was born April 22, 1839, at Mardisville, Talladega County, and died January 21, 1892, at East Lake, Birmingham; son of Gen. Jacob Tipton and Louisiana (Taul) Bradford (q. v.); grandson of Benjamin and Mary (McFarland) Bradford, and of Micah and Dorothy (Gholson) Taul. Captain Taul received his early education in the First School, Southwood, Talladega; entered the University of Alabama in 1856 for one year; attended Central University of Kentucky at Danville, from 1857 to 1859; and was graduated from the law school of the University of Virginia, LL. B., 1860. He was licensed to practice law by the supreme court of Alabama, June, 1860, and located at Talladega, where he remained until the outbreak of the War of Secession, enlisting in Co. A., Brewer's battalion of cavalry, afterwards known as the Eighth Confederate cavalry, Wheeler's corps. He was commissioned captain, was wounded by a shell, and discharged in 1862. He reentered the service in the ordnance department, and was quartermaster at Selma when the war closed. He resumed the practice of law at Birmingham for a time, later moving to Florida; was admitted to the bar in that state, 1886, and opened law practice at Leesburg. Later he returned to Birmingham to practice, and was a resident of that city at the time of his death. It was largely through Capt. Bradford's efforts that the Cincinnati Southern railroad, now known as the C. R. O. & T. P. railway, part of the Q. & C. route, was built. He first brought the building of this road to the attention of business men of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Cincinnati, O. He was a Democrat, a Presbyterian, and a Mason. Married: February 9, 1864, at Selma, Jennie Adelia, daughter of Jabez and Anne Robinson, of Oxford, N. Y. She was a direct descendant of John Robinson, who collected the party of pilgrims in Holland to come to America on the Mayflower, and because of sickness, sent his son in his stead. There is now in the family the log book which was kept on the Mayflower, and which, at the death of the owner, will be turned over to the Continental Hall in Washington. Children: 1. Annie Maria, m. W. F. Fitts, jr., Tuscaloosa; 2. Louisiana, m. W. R. Trimble, Milford, Neb.; 3. John Tipton, m. Elisabeth Emma Smith, Tuscaloosa. Last residence: East Lake, Birmingham.

BRADLEY, ALEXANDER QUAY, physician, was born April 1, 1808, at Chester, S. C., and died in Marion; son of Gen. Henry and Charlotte (Anderson) Bradley, the former a native of Ireland, who came to this country with his father, Charles Bradley, when he was eight years old and settled in York District, S. C., moved to Chesterville, S. C.; was commissioned major in the state troops during the War of 1812, served in the state legislature from Chester, S. C., in 1816, and was subsequently elected colonel of the Twenty-sixth regiment of S. C. militia, brigadier-general of the Sixth brigade, major-general of the Third division, and lieutenant governor of the state in 1822. Dr. Bradley's maternal grandparents were residents of London, England. He received his early schooling at Chester, S. C., and Lincolnton, N. C.; entered the South Carolina college in 1824 and withdrew from the college the next year, because of his father's death. He immediately began to study medicine at his home in Chester, S. C., attended lecture courses at Transylvania university, Kentucky, and at the medical college of Charleston, S. C., from which latter college he was graduated with honor in 1828. He practiced medicine in Chester, S. C., for two years, and in 1830, moved to Marion, Ala., where he practiced until 1857. He was elected to the State legislature from Perry County, in 1839, served through the sessions of 1840 and 1841, and was defeated for the senate by Col. Richard B. Walthall, in 1842. He was again elected to the house in 1859, where he opposed the adoption by the legislature, in view of the election of an abolition candidate for president of the United States, of the resolution authorizing the governor to call a convention to take such steps as might be necessary to preserve the rights and honor of the people of the state, believing that such a resolution would amount to revolution. With the beginning of the War of Secession, and immediately after the fall of Fort Sumter, Dr. Bradley enlisted as surgeon of the Fourth Alabama regiment, and remained with the regiment until it was ordered to Virginia, when owing to the failure of his health, he was compelled to withdraw from the service. He was a Whig, later a Democrat; a Presbyterian; and a Mason. He had strong antiquarian tastes and had collected around him many rare books, publications and manuscripts, among the latter an autographed report of the celebrated leader of British cavalry, Tarleton. Last residence: Marion.

BRADLEY, JOHN, Sen., soldier of the American Revolution, aged 83, resided in Clarke County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BRADLEY, JOHN GURLEY BANKHEAD, public official, was born September 3, 1867, at Fayette Court House; son of Richard Carrington and Sarah (Gurley) Bradley (q. v.), the former a native of Cumberland County, Va., served as clerk of the circuit court of Marion and Jefferson Counties, and was a leader of a successful movement to exterminate a band of tories during the reconstruction period, who preyed upon and terrorized the people of Marion County; grandson of William Royal and Ellen Sarah (Carrington) Bradley, who lived at "Auburn," fifty miles above Richmond, Va., and of Rev. Jeremiah Godi and Mary Ann (Stokes) Gurley, of Detroit, Marion County, and later of Jefferson County. Mr. Bradley received his education in the public schools of Birmingham, and at Bellevue academy, a private school located on the North Highlands of that city. He served as chief clerk in the office of the criminal court from 1887 until 1900, when he was appointed clerk, which office he held until 1912. He is a Democrat; a Shriner; a Knight Templar; a Knight of Pythias; an Odd Fellow; a Woodman and an Elk. Married: April 2, 1890, at Birmingham, Erin, daughter of Dr. Nathan Hobbs and Elizabeth (Torrence) Miller, who lived in Danville, Morgan County, until 1881, when they moved to Birmingham. Her mother is of Scotch-Irish ancestry, a descendant of Adam and Grizelle Caroline (Matthews) Torrence, of North Carolina. Her father is a descendant of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Hobbs) Miller, the former a native of North Carolina and of German ancestry, the latter a native of Virginia, and of Scotch-Irish and Welsh lineage. Children: John Miller, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BRADLEY, LEE CARRINGTON, lawyer, was born November 12, 1871, at Elyton, Jef-fereson County; son of Richard Carrington and Sarah (Gurley) Bradley (q. v.); grandson of William Royal and Ellen Sarah (Carrington) Bradley, who lived at "Auburn," fifty miles above Richmond, Va., and of Rev. Jeremiah Godi and Mary Ann (Stokes) Gurley, of Detroit, Marion County, and later of Jefferson County. His father who was born at the homestead, "Auburn," near Cartersville, Cumberland County, Va., moved to Pikesville, Marion County, Ala., enlisted in the C. S. Army, was commissioned captain of his company but saw little service, led a successful movement during the reconstruction period for the extermination of a band of tories who preyed upon and terrorized the people of Marion County; was appointed clerk of the circuit court of Marion County and later of Jefferson County, moved to St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1887, and died there, March 20, 1902. Mr. Bradley was educated in the public schools of Jefferson County, with Prof. Henry, Prof. Brittain, and Miss Mary Calahan as his early teachers. He entered the Southern University at Greensboro, and was graduated with the degree of A. B., 1890, and A. M., 1891. He began to practice law in Birmingham in 1892; served as assistant solicitor of Jefferson County from 1893 until 1896, and as solicitor pro tem of the same county for the following year. He has since practiced law in Birmingham. Married: June 24, 1896, at Charlottesville, Va., Eleanor, daughter of Thomas Barton and Mary Amanda (Norwood) Lyons of Charlottesville, Va., natives of East Feliciana Parish, La. Judge Lyons was a member of the reconstruction constitutional convention of Louisiana, and with Chief Justice White and Edgar H. Farrar, constituted the committee which formed the provision of the constitution that established the judicial system of that state. He was also a parish judge. Children: 1. Lee Carrington, jr.; 2. Thomas Lyon. Residence: Birmingham.

BRADLEY, L. M., Missionary Baptist minister, living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

BRADLEY, RICHARD CARRINGTON, public official, was born in 1839, at "Auburn," near Cartersville, Cumberland County, Va., and died March 20, 1902, at St. Petersburg, Fla.; son of William Royal and Ellen Sarah (Carrington) Bradley, natives of Virginia who emigrated to Alabama in 1848, settled in Marion County, and followed farming. Mr. Bradley was reared in Marion County, and attended the public schools there. In 1860, when he was twenty-one years old, he was elected clerk of the circuit court of that county, and was re-elected in 1864. He enlisted for service in the C. S. Army, and was made captain of his company, which was soon after mustered out because it was not needed at the time. He enlisted again, later, but was rejected on account of his health. During the war, the country about his home was infested with bands of robbers and stragglers from demoralized armies. On the night of April 9, 1865, when he was returning home from a call upon a neighbor, the house in which he boarded was attacked by three robbers. He was the only man about the place except a very old one, and being unarmed, was forced to stand and see them, unresisted, carry off the plunder and march him with it to a neighbor's house. They were in the act of robbing that, when Mr. Bradley seized a shot gun, lying on a bed by him, and shot the captain of the squad dead. The others escaped, but were subsequently caught and executed by lynch law. Following this event, Mr. Bradley was the leader in a movement to rid the county of these bands of tories, and was successful in their extermination. In 1868 he moved to Elyton, and in 1872, to Oxmoor, where he resided until appointed county clerk for a term of six years. Following the expiration of his term of office in 1886, he moved to St. Petersburg, Fla., and engaged in fruit culture. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Married: September 6, 1866, Sarah, of Pickens County, daughter of Rev. Jeremiah Godi and Mary Ann (Stokes) Gurley, of Detroit, Marion County, and later of Jefferson County. Children: 1. John Gurley Bankhead (q. v.); 2. Lee Carrington (q. v.). Last residence: St. Petersburg, Fla.

BRADLEY, ROBERT LUTHER, dentist, State treasurer, probate judge, and State senator, was born October 8, 1853, at Palmetto, Pickens County; son of John and Barbara (Vail) Bradley, the former a native of Virginia; grandson of Hobbs Bradley, of Virginia, and of Jeremiah and Mary Vail natives of South Carolina who later located at Palmetto. Judge Bradley was educated at the Center Hill academy, Palmetto, where he was taught by A. M. Nuckels, Montgomery Bell and Miss Julia Propst. Later he attended the Vernon institute. He attended a school of dentistry in Chicago; entered upon the practice in 1874 at Vernon, Lamar County, and practiced that profession for twenty years. In 1886 he was elected to the legislature from Lamar County, and again elected two years later. In 1890 he was elected to membership in the State senate. He served Lamar county as probate judge for eighteen consecutive years; captain, "Thomas G. Jones riflemen," State troops, for eight years; elected state treasurer, November 1918. He is a Democrat; chairman of Lamar County Democratic executive committee, of which he was a member for twenty-two years; and steward in the Methodist Church at Vernon for thirty years. He is a Mason and Odd Fellow. Married: in 1883, at Vernon, to Amanda Lee, daughter of Louis Monroe and Dorcas (Reynolds) Wimberly of that place. Although Judge and Mrs. Bradley have no children of their own they have raised six orphans who are now all married. Residence: Vernon.

BRADLEY, THOMAS BIBB, author and poet.

BRADSHAW, CALDWELL, lawyer and business man, was born December 22, 1853, near Pelham, Grundy County, Tenn.; son of Rev. Joseph and Martha Lawrence (Aylor) Bradshaw, the former a Methodist minister and wheelright by trade; grandson of Samuel and Dorcas (Prigmon) Bradshaw of Tracy City, Tenn., and of Anthony and Martha (Lawrence) Aylor of Grundy County, the former a native of Buncombe County, N. C., U. S. surveyor and was awarded a large land warrant on account of services rendered the government, which he located at the present site of Tracy City; great-grandson of Christopher Columbus Bradshaw, a native of Montpelier, Vt., who removed to North Carolina, locating at Asheville, a mechanic by trade, and a Presbyterian minister, was first pastor of the Presbyterian church in Asheville, which he largely built by his own labor, and the father of twelve children, eight of whom were sons, six of these became Presbyterian ministers; great-great-grandson of Oliver Cromwell Bradshaw, a native of England, who came to New England from Belfast, Ireland; great-great-great-grandson of Robert Bradshaw, a general under Cromwell and brother of John Bradshaw, chief justice of England, known as the "Regicide." Anthony Aylor was of German descent, son of a Revolutionary soldier, born in America, and served in the War of 1812. Mr. Bradshaw was educated at Cowan, Tenn., and at the University of the South, Sewanee, 1872-73, but did not graduate. He studied law in Little Rock, Ark.; admitted to the practice there in 1880, where he remained six years, and then removed to Birmingham where he now resides. For eighteen years was resident attorney for the Corbin banking co., of New York, and eight large English investment corporations for Alabama, Mississippi and parts of Georgia, and for the past several years he has been engaged in the industrial development of the Birmingham section. He is a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: (1) in 1882, at Little Rock, Ark., to Ann Hannah, daughter of Rev. I. L. and Catherine A. Gray, and great-granddaughter of Gov. John Adair of Kentucky; (2) April 16, 1890, at Birmingham, to Minnie Elizabeth, daughter of Ben and Margaret A. (Wolfe) Plosser of that place, the former a native of Hungary, educated for the Catholic priesthood, but became a Presbyterian, was a soldier under Louis Kossuth in the War of 1848-49, fighting for Hungarian independence from Austria, later became Kossuth's private secretary, located in Clarksville, Tenn., 1852, engaged in merchandising until the beginning of the War of Secession, when he entered the C. S. Army, removed to Birmingham in 1871, entered the mercantile business, passed through the cholera epidemic of 1873, and served later as city marshal and tax collector. Children: by first wife: 1. Katie Gray, m. Clarence Bingham Ballard, lawyer; by second wife: 2. Caldwell, jr., d. in infancy; 3. Mary Elizabeth; 4. Martha Lawrence; 5. Margaret Josephine; 6. Grace. Residence: Birmingham.

BRADSHAW, HENRY A., lawyer, was born January 10, 1883, at Fayetteville, Lincoln County, Tenn.; son of C. S. and Sarah (Caldwell) Bradshaw of Shelbyville and Fayette, the former a teacher, and for many years principal of the "Dick White college," grandson of Robert Samuel and Margaret (Appleby) Bradshaw of Bradford County, and of John C. and Sarah Ann (Martin) Caldwell of Shelbyville, all of Tennessee. The Bradshaws are of Scotch origin. The Caldwells are of Danish stock. The Martin ancestor married the daughter of a French Huguenot who emigrated to Georgia. Mr. Bradshaw received his early education from his father and later attended the public schools in Huntsville, but at fifteen years of age, 1898, discontinued school and entered into the office of Mr. Lawrence Cooper where he worked and studied law; admitted to the bar, February 1904, and practiced with Mr. Cooper in Huntsville until December 17, 1906, when he removed to Florence and formed a partnership with John T. Ashcraft. He was admitted to practice in all State and Federal courts, and in January 1910, to the supreme court of the U. S. He is a Presbyterian; Mason; Knight of Pythias; and Elk. Unmarried. Residence: Florence.

BRAGG, JOHN, lawyer, representative in congress, was born January 14, 1806, at Warrenton, Warren County, N. C., and died August 10, 1878, at Mobile; son of Thomas Bragg, an architect and builder, of English ancestry. His mother, whose maiden name was Crossland, was a descendant of English colonists who settled in America before the Revolution. The Bragg family of Norman origin, was first represented in this country by three brothers who came with Sir Christopher Newport in the seventeenth century and settled one in Virginia, another in Maryland, and the third, the progenitor of this family, in North Carolina. Judge Bragg was a brother of Gen. Braxton Bragg, of Capt. William Bragg who died in the C. S. Army, of Hon. Thomas Bragg, governor of North Carolina, and of Alexander Bragg. He was prepared in the Warrenton Academy, then entered the sophomore class of the University of North Carolina, and was graduated with highest honors in a class of which James W. Bryan, Thomas Dews, W. A. Graham, and Matt E. Manley were members. After his graduation, he assisted two of his brothers, Ex-gov. Thomas Bragg of North Carolina, and Gen. Braxton Bragg, C. S. Army, through that university. He read law with Judge Hall, was admitted to the bar in 1827, and began to practice law in Warrenton, N. C. He was elected to the legislature of North Carolina in 1830, and was re-elected for four consecutive terms. In 1835, Judge Bragg, together with Joseph Holt, afterwards distinguished as judge advocate, were appointed by President Jackson as visitors to West Point. At this time, he became interested in the southwest, and in the fall of that year, he drove in a surrey, with small valise attached, and a negro body servant following on horse back, from Warrenton to Mobile, where he located and practiced his profession.

In 1836, with the presidential election of that year coming on, he received his opportunity to introduce himself to the people of the state, when the editor of the "Register" fell ill, and he was invited by Mr. Sandford, the proprietor of the paper, to take editorial charge during the canvass. In 1839, he was elected attorney of the branch bank at Mobile; in 1842, was appointed by Gov. Fitzpatrick to fill a vacancy upon the circuit bench until the meeting of the legislature, at which time he was elected by a large majority over Gen. George W. Crabb, for a term of six years. Later he was re-elected by the people over A. B. Cooper, esq., of Monroe, presiding in the circuit court in all, for nine years. In 1851, he was invited by the States Rights Democratic party to become a candidate for congress from the Mobile district, and was elected over the Whig Leader, Hon. C. C. Langdon, by a large majority. He served during the two sessions of 1852 and 1853, then declined re-election. He retired from professional as well as political pursuits, and did not reappear in public affairs until his election to the constitutional convention of 1861 as representative of Mobile County. Physically disqualified for service on the field, he remained on his plantation in Lowndes County during the war, and was subjected to the grossest indignities by the army of Gen. Wilson during his raid through Alabama, in the spring of 1865. The officers of this army, knowing him to be a brother of Gen. Bragg, besides being active in the councils of the state, destroyed all his available property, burning his residence, destroying his crops, and carrying off all the stock. At one time, only the entreaties of his wife and children prevented him from being actually hanged. He was author of many influential letters written during the War of Secession to those in high authority at that time. He was a States Rights Democrat of the uncompromising type, and was a member of the Episcopalian church.

Married: April 18, 1847, at Lowndesboro, Lowndes County, Mary Frances, daughter of Henry M. and Dorian (Bonnell) Hall, of that place; granddaughter of William and Mary Bell Bonnell, natives of Georgia, who were among the first settlers of Alabama. Children: 1. Braxton, deceased, m. Virginia Evans, of Mobile, youngest sister of Augusta (Evans) Wilson; 2. Dora, m. Oliver Sturgess Beers, resides at Fort Deposit; 3. Shirley, physician, deceased, was head of the convict medical service of Alabama, m. Isabella Norvelle Murray of Montgomery; 4. William B., resides at Fort Deposit; 5. Mary, m. Henry C. Parker of London, England, resides at Greenville; 6. John, m. Kate Morris, resides at Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

BRAGG, PETER N., SR., soldier of the American Revolution—"OBITUARY"—Departed this life, at his residence in Lowndes county, Ala., on the 21st of May, Mr. Peter N. Bragg, Sr., A SOLDIER OF THE REVOLUTION, at the advanced age of 78 years.

"Mr. Bragg was a native of Virginia, born in Fauquier County March 4th, 1763; he entered the American Army under command of Gen. Greene, at the early age of 16; and was in two distinguished battles—that of Guilford Court House, N. C., and the one near Camden, S. C.

"At the close of the war, Mr. Bragg removed to Spartanburg District, S. C., where he resided about forty-six years, and moved thence, in December, 1829, to Lowndes County, Ala., where he continued till his death. He was a member of the Baptist church more than 40 years; and his irreproachable life and unstained character exemplify the honesty of his profession and the purity of his heart. He was no partisan in religious matters, but taking the Bible alone, as his standard of Christian profession and practice, he bowed to no other tribunal. If he ever erred it was an error of the judgment, not of heart. And it may fairly demand a doubt, whether in his degenerate age, any man ever lived more studiously the life of a Christian. To speak in terms most appropriate, of the domestic, social and moral worth of Peter N. Bragg in the narrow space assigned in obituary, would be, to those who knew him, but slight praise, and only show the imbecility of a few presuming lines, which attempt to declare the virtuous acts and beneficent deeds characteristic of a long, industrious, enterprising and virtuous life; but let it suffice here to observe, that Mr. Bragg lived for his country, his fellow-man and his God.

JUDGE SAMUEL D. WEAKLEY

"As a neighbor, he promptly discharged all the duties which the mutual obligation and reciprocal dependencies of society demand.

"As a citizen, he freely took part in all matters affecting our civil rights and municipal happiness. As a Christian, he was attentive and liberal to the indigent, merciful and humane to the afflicted, kind and hospitable to strangers, and just and merciful to all."—The Greenville Mountaineer, Greenville, S. C., June 12, 1841.

BRAGG, SHIRLEY, physician and State prison inspector, was born near Lowndesboro, November 3, 1853, and died in Montgomery, October 29, 1908; son of John and Mary Frances (Hall) Bragg (q. v.). Dr. Bragg was educated at Spring Hill college, and St. Louis university, A. B., 1872. He graduated at the Alabama medical college, M. D., 1875. He was adjunct professor of surgery at the Atlanta medical college, 1875, M. D., and after that year practiced in Lowndes County, until March, 1896, after which he practiced in Montgomery; has been health officer of Lowndes and Montgomery Counties; never held public office until his appointment in March, 1901, as physician inspector of the convict board; on October 15, 1905, he became president of this board; and in 1907 was appointed State prison inspector. Married: February 7, 1878, at Hayneville, to Isabella Norvelle, daughter of John and Mary (Spann) Murray, both of whom came from Statesburg, S. C., to Lowndes County. Children: 1. Norvelle, m. Edmund L. Penraddock, and resides in Birmingham. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRAGG, THOMAS COKE, educator, was born February 26, 1826, in Washington, N. C., and died November 13, 1883, at Camden, Wilcox County; son of Thomas and Priscilla (Pope) Bragg, the former a native of Beaufort, N. C., removed to Greensboro, finally settling in Elmore County; grandson of Joseph Frances Bragg of Beaufort, N. C., and of Redding and Sarah Pope of Snow Hill, N. C. The Bragg family springs from English stock. Professor Bragg received his education with a view to entering the Episcopal ministry, and was a Greek, Hebrew and Latin scholar. He held the chair of mathematics in a school at Auburn; during the War of Secession he owned and operated a school near Wetumpka, later going to Mobile, where he taught for several years. He moved to Camden subsequently to 1874, and taught in the Central institute. Not having access to an Episcopal church he united with the Methodists. He was a Mason. Married: Mary E. —. Last residence: Camden.

BRAGG, THOMAS MILES, junior grand warden, Masons, was born December 28, 1793, in Spartanburg District, S. C., and died November 28, 1822, in Greenville, Ala. He began his Masonic life in 1815, in South Carolina; removed to Butler County and affiliated with the Greenville lodge. He filled many responsible positions in the Grand lodge of Alabama. Last residence: Greenville.

BRAGG, WALTER LAWRENCE, lawyer, was born February 25, 1835, in Lowndes County, and died September 19, 1891, at Spring Lake, N. J.; son of Newport and Martha W. (Crooke) Bragg; grandson of Peter Bragg, a native of Fauquier County, Va., who fought under Greene at Hobkirk's Hill and at Guilford Court House, in the Revolutionary War, and after the war settled in South Carolina, and of James Crooke, a wealthy planter of South Carolina. Capt. Bragg's father was an educated planter who moved with his family in the fall of 1843 to Ouachita County, Ark., where they continued to reside until the spring of 1861. His mother was connected by marriage with the South Carolina families of Moore and Barry. Andrew Barry Moore, governor of Alabama, 1857-1861, was her double cousin, and Hon. William Barry, of Kentucky, at one time post-master general of the United States, was a relative. The Bragg family is of English descent, Norman origin. A member of the family was speaker of the English house of commons during the administration of the younger Pitt. Three brothers of this family came to America with Sir Christopher Newport about the middle of the seventeenth century and settled, one in Virginia, another in North Carolina, and the third in Maryland. Capt. Bragg is a descendant of the Virginia settler. From the North Carolina branch were descended Gen. Braxton Bragg, Confederate commander; Hon. Thomas Bragg, governor of North Carolina; Judge John Bragg (q. v.) for nine years a judge of the circuit court of Alabama, and a member of the United States congress; and Capt. William Bragg who died in the C. S. Army. Gen. Edward S. Bragg of Wisconsin is also a member of this family.

Capt. Bragg received his early education from the common schools of the county, and entered the law school of Harvard University, leaving after three terms because of the unpleasant relations between the students of the two sections of the country then on the verge of open rupture. While at Harvard he had for classmates, John W. Foster of Indiana, afterwards a brigadier-general in the U. S. Army, minister to Spain, and secretary of state of the United States under Harrison's administration; Edward C. Billings, judge of the U. S. district court at New Orleans; and George Bliss, since U. S. district attorney for the southern district of New York. After leaving Harvard, Capt. Bragg read law with the Hon. Christopher C. Scott, judge of the supreme court of Arkansas; was admitted to the bar in 1856, and began to practice law at Camden, Ark. In 1860, he formed a partnership with Col. John R. Fellows, since assistant district attorney of the city of New York, and a member of congress from that city.

In April, 1861, he enlisted in the Sixth regiment, Arkansas infantry, and under command of Gen. Hardee, advanced into eastern Mississippi. Early in the fall of 1861, he passed into Kentucky and during the remainder of the war, continued an infantry soldier in active service in the field, nearly all the time on outpost duty, and was with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, when he surrendered at Greensboro, N. C. He participated in the battles of Woodsonville, Shiloh, the battles around Corinth with Halleck's army, Murfreesboro, Liberty Gap, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Ringgold Gap, Dug's Gap, Resaca, Cassville, New Hope Church, Pumpkin Vine Creek, Lost Mountain, Kennesaw Mountain, Pine Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Decatur and Bentonville. During the last two years of the war, he was most of the time in command of the sharpshooters of Gen. Cleburne's division. He continued to hold the rank of captain to the end of the war, refusing promotion a number of times.

At the close of the war, Capt. Bragg settled in Marion, Ala., and resumed the practice of law. He formed partnerships successively with Napoleon and Powhatan Lockett, 1865-1867; Pinckney B. Lawson, 1867-1869; Judge James F. Bailey, 1869-1871; General John T. Morgan, since U. S. senator; and William S. Thorington. He moved to Montgomery in 1871, and was chosen chairman of the Democratic state executive committee at the state convention of the Democratic and Conservative party, July 1874, with unlimited powers to manage and conduct the approaching canvass. At the election two years before, the Democratic party had suffered a defeat at the hands of the Republicans that overwhelmed the white people of the state. The canvass of 1874 was without parallel in the party contests of Alabama. Starting with practically no organization, and with but a short time in which to perfect one, Capt. Bragg raised up leaders in every county of the state. Committees were appointed, clubs formed, public meetings organized. It was a common occurrence during that canvass for between three hundred and four hundred speeches a day to be made by speakers of the Democratic and Conservative party in different parts of the state. The election that followed was carried by the Democrats with a majority of more than thirteen hundred votes, and was the complete and final overthrow of the Republican party and carpetbag rule of Alabama. Capt. Bragg resigned the chairmanship of the executive committee in 1876, but at the national convention of this party at St. Louis, during the same year, was elected a member of the national Democratic executive committee, and in the presidential canvass of 1876 made speeches in forty different counties of Alabama for the nominees of that convention. On July 12, 1876, a silver service was presented to him, the gift of the people of Alabama, in consideration of his public services. In the fall of that year, he was appointed one of the commissioners to settle the city debt of Montgomery, and in 1877 visited New York on this business, effecting negotiations which resulted in a settlement of the debt. The next year he was elector-at-large for the state on the Hancock and English ticket.

In 1881, a commission was established to regulate and control the railroads in the state of Alabama, and by a common consensus of public opinion, Capt. Bragg was named as the fittest man in the state to take charge of the business involved in the creation of the new body. He was nominated by Gov. Cobb as a member of the commission, and his nomination was speedily confirmed by the senate. In a very short time, with the aid of his colleagues, he formulated rules for the proceedings of the commission and entered upon the business contemplated by the act. How well those duties were performed is shown by the printed annual reports of the commission and is part of the history of the state. In 1884, the act of congress providing for an interstate commerce commission was under consideration and, it is said, Senator Cullom, the author of this act, wrote to the several state railroad commissions requesting statements from them touching the practical operation of the respective statutes in their states, and inviting suggestions in regard to the proposed national commission, and that Senator Cullom remarked that he obtained more valuable information and suggestions from Mr. Bragg's reply than from any other source. It was, no doubt, this fact that directed attention to him as a suitable person for appointment to the responsible position of interstate commerce commissioner. He was nominated by the President and confirmed by the senate for a short term, and afterwards, was renominated by President Cleveland and confirmed by the senate for a long term, which he was serving at the time of his death. His opinions while a member of that commission, as shown by printed reports, cover a wide range of questions and are characterized by careful research and conspicuous ability.

Capt. Bragg was never a candidate for any political office, and frequently declined office in civil life, as in the army he declined advancement by promotion. He was a Freemason, and held second office in the grand encampment of Knights Templars of the United States. He was first president of the Alabama Bar Association. In his career as a lawyer, he defended twenty-three men charged with murder with such success that not one of them was even sent to the penitentiary. Married: (1) January, 1864, Susan Watkins, daughter of Napoleon Lockett, of Marion, formerly a law partner of Capt. Bragg, a planter and a member of a prominent Virginia family; (2) Elizabeth Marks Fitzpatrick. Children, by first marriage: 1. Eugenia, m. Paul W. Smith, resides in Montgomery; 2. Walter L., was graduated from Washington and Lee University, LL. B., 1890, d. April 22, 1894. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRAHAN, JOHN, planter and public official, was born June 8, 1774, in Fauquier County, Va., and died in Florence, July 5, 1834; son of an Englishman, who settled in Virginia before the Revolutionary War and was killed in battle. He served in the War of 1812, under Gen. Andrew Jackson, being ranked in the battle of New Orleans with John Coffee, as generals. In 1818, Gen. Brahan came to Huntsville, and was appointed commissioner of public lands, by President Jackson. He acquired extensive tracts of farm land and built a large residence three miles west of Huntsville. In 1830, this home was burned, and the site is now occupied by the Merrimac mills. He gave the ground upon which the public schools of Huntsville are situated. In 1832, he removed to Florence where he acquired a large plantation on Sweetwater Creek, and began the erection of a residence, but died before it was completed, and it passed into the hands of his daughter, Jane Locke. He was a Democrat; Mason; and Episcopalian. Married: July 24, 1810, in Davidson County, Tenn., to Mary, daughter of Gen. Robert and Jane (Locke) Weakley, among the founders of Nashville. Children: 1. Robert Weakley, m. Martha Haywood; 2. Jane Locke, m. Robert Miller Patton, governor of Alabama (q. v.); 3. Mary Narcissa, m. (1) John Coffee (q. v.) (2) Dr. James Young; 4. John Coffee, m. (1) Mary Haywood, (2) Martha Valiant; 5. Ann Eliza, m. Rev. ———— McRea; 6. Letitia Evalina, unmarried; 7. Thomas Fearn, m. Anna Kate Rivers. Last residence: Florence.

BRAINARD, M. D., member of the constitutional convention of 1867, from Monroe County, a part of the second election district.

BRANCH, EDWARD G., business man, was born November 28, 1877, at Union Springs; son of Col. John L. and Martha Ann (Gachet) Branch, the former a native of Abbeville, S. C., who lived in Charleston, S. C., and in Union Springs, and commanded a company of South Carolina military citadel cadets that fired the first shot of the War of Secession on S. S. "Star of the West;" grandson of Col. James E. and Lavinia Gachet, of Chunnenugee, Bullock County. Mr. Branch was educated in the public schools of Union Springs; became special agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, 1899, for Montgomery; and general agent of the company at the same place, 1902. He is a Democrat, a Methodist Episcopalian, and a member of the stewards' court of that church. Married: April 22, 1908, at Gold Hill, Annie Mae, daughter of William and Emma Jane (Avery) Thomas, of that place. Children: 1. Annie Mae, Montgomery; 2. Edward G., jr., Montgomery; 3. William T., Montgomery; 4. Ben S., Montgomery. Residence: Montgomery.

BRANDON, BYRD, lawyer, was born in 1800, in North Carolina, and died June 3, 1838, in Huntsville. His parents moved to Lincoln County, Tenn., in 1812, and a few years later he came from there to Huntsville, and read law in the office of Hon. C. C. Clay, sr. He was admitted to the bar in 1822, and formed law partnerships at different times with John M. Taylor, J. M. M. White, Frank Jones, and Silas Parsons. He was appointed by President Jackson as United States attorney for the northern district of Alabama, and resigned from this office after holding it for seven years; and was legal adviser to the government commissioner in the treaty with the Creek Indians. In 1825, he held the rank of lieutenant-colonel on the staff of Gov. Pickens, and in 1838, was appointed by President Van Buren to fill the consulate at Campeachy and Tabasco, but died before he could enter on the active discharge of his duties. Married: Mary Caldwell, of Kentucky. Her paternal ancestors came from Scotland to Ireland, and from Ireland to Virginia, and her immediate family moved to Kentucky in the latter part of the eighteenth century. She was a descendant of the same Caldwell family from which John C. Calhoun was descended, and was a third cousin of the latter. Children: Two sons and three daughters, of which Capt. John D. Brandon (q. v.) is the youngest child. Last residence: Huntsville.

BRANDON, FRANCIS T. J., Methodist minister, was born May 26, 1832, in Gwinnett County, Ga., and died July 31, 1909, in Birmingham; son of Francis Lawson and Zillah (Haynie) Brandon, the latter a native of South Carolina, the former of Halifax County, Va., who moved to Gwinnett County, Ga., and later to Gaylesville, where both died and are buried; grandson of William and Mary (Langley) Brandon, the latter a native of Caswell County, N. C., the former of Halifax County, Va.; great grandson of Frank Brandon and wife, who was a Miss Richmond, the former a native of England, of Scotch Irish stock, who migrated to Pennsylvania, and in 1873, located in Halifax County, Va. After an academic schooling available in the neighborhood of his Georgia home, Francis T. J. Brandon entered upon the study of law in a private office in Thomasville, Ga., where he temporarily made his home in the family of his uncle, Dr. David Brandon. Receiving a definite call to preach the gospel, he repaired to Hiwassee college, Tennessee, where he entered upon a theological course. He was admitted on trial as a probationer at the Alabama conference, 1854, and entered into full connection two years later and was ordained deacon by Bishop George F. Pierce. In 1858, he was ordained an elder by Bishop Robert Paine. For fifty-two years he was actively in the Methodist ministry and accomplished a useful work during that time. At the beginning of hostilities between the States he was appointed regimental chaplain of the 47th Alabama infantry regiment, but instead of assuming his spiritual duties alone, he raised a company in Cherokee County, where he had formerly lived, of which he was elected lieutenant, being later promoted to the captaincy. He performed the duties of company commander and regimental chaplain and was as valiant a soldier of the stars and bars as he was of the cross. After peace was declared he returned to his home in Alabama, and resumed the ministerial labors to which he had pledged his life. During his long service he held pastorates at the leading towns in the two conferences of Alabama, and was presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa, Huntsville and Gadsden Districts. He was superannuated in 1907, and the year following was appointed chaplain of the State convicts by Gov. B. B. Comer, and was performing his duties faithfully at the time of his death. Married: August 22, 1867, at Jacksonville, to Susan Carolyn, daughter of Edward L. and Malinda (Francis) Woodward of that place. Children: 1. William Woodward (q. v.) m. Mrs. Robert T. Nabors, nee Andrews; 2. Francis Woodward (q. v.) m. Mrs. Edna Olive (Moore) Morgan; 3. Edward Woodward, Birmingham; 4. Forney; 5. John Marvin, farmer, Montgomery. 6. Carolyn, m. J. D. Elliott, Birmingham. Last residence: Flat Top Mines.

BRANDON, FRANCIS WOODWARD, Methodist minister, was born October 1, 1869, at Jacksonville, Calhoun County; son of Francis T. J. and Susan Carolyn (Woodward) Brandon (q. v.). He received his first instruction in private schools in Tuscaloosa and entered the Burnett boarding school at Cedar Bluff, in 1879. Later he attended the Sunbeam academy, conducted by Professor R. E. R. Hicks. He also attended the Titcomb school in Aniston and the public schools of Tuscaloosa whither his parents had returned. During 1887-89, he was a student at the Southern university and graduated with the degree of B. P. from the North Alabama conference college, now the Birmingham college, in 1899. It was through his efforts as financial agent for this school that its buildings prior to 1913 were erected. The honorary degree of D. D. was conferred on him by the Polytechnic college, Ft. Worth, Tex., in 1911. In 1887, when but eighteen years of age, he was licensed by the Quarterly conference of the Tuscaloosa Station Methodist Episcopal church, South, to preach. He joined the North Alabama conference at Huntsville in 1889, and served charges at Florence, Huntsville, Roanoke, Woodlawn, Scottsboro, Stevenson, Fountain Heights and Mt. Vernon, respectively, in Birmingham, and Aniston. He was the first presiding elder of the Bessemer District, 1908-12, and brought it to the second place in the conference; trustee of Birmingham college; delegate to the General conference 1910, and has during his ministry built churches at Florence, Huntsville and Fountain Heights, Birmingham; financial agent for North Alabama conference college, 1897-1901. He is now stationed at Gadsden. Married: June 29, 1893, in Princeton, Ind., to Edna Olive Moore, widow of R. S. Morgan, daughter of William Henry and Mary (Poe) Moore of Huntsville, and sister of Mary Norman Moore (q. v.). Children: 1. Carolyn Louise; 2. Marv Rosser; 3. Francis W., jr. Residence: Gadsden.

BRANDON, JOHN D., lawyer, was born December 18, 1837, at Huntsville; son of Byrd and Mary J. (Caldwell) Brandon (q. v.). His mother's paternal ancestors came from Scotland to Ireland, and from Ireland to Virginia, while her immediate family moved from Virginia to Kentucky in the latter part of the eighteenth century. She was a relative of John C. Calhoun, who was a descendant of the same family. Capt. Brandon accompanied his mother's family to St. Louis, when he was fifteen years old, and studied Latin and Greek under the Rev. Reed there. The following year, he entered Rochester Academy, Rochester, N. Y., and in the fall of 1856, became a student at Cumberland University, from which institution he was graduated, LL. B., 1859. Returning to St. Louis, he began the practice of law. His health soon failed him, and he moved to Huntsville, where he practiced his profession. He enlisted as a private in Co. I, Fourth Alabama infantry, C. S. Army, April 1861, and served in one of Bee's regiments until the end of the war. After the first battle of Manassas, he was promoted to second lieutenant, and in April 1862, was advanced to the rank of captain. He served on the staff of the Fourth Alabama with this rank, as regimental commissary; and as captain, was assigned to duty under Gen. Law, as assistant brigade commissary. At Richmond, Va., Capt. Brandon was entrusted with a letter from President Davis to Gen. Lee, which he delivered in person. In the latter part of 1863, he was assigned to duty at Camden, was there until the close of hostilities, and surrendered finally at Mobile. After the war, he practiced law in Wilcox county for three years, then returned to Huntsville. He is a Mason; a member of the Knights of Pythias; and of the Knights of Honor. Married: November, 1863, Rosalie (Caldwell) Christian, daughter of Dr. John D. Caldwell. She died October 19, 1869. Residence: Huntsville.

BRANDON, WILLIAM WOODWARD, lawyer and probate judge, was born June 5, 1868, at Talladega; son of Rev. Frank T. J. and Carrie (Woodward) Brandon (q. v.). Gen. Brandon was educated at the Cedar Bluff institute, and the Tuscaloosa high school. At the age of thirteen he went to work for himself; in 1891 took the law course at the University of Alabama; in 1892 located in Tuscaloosa for the practice; in 1891 he was elected clerk of the city of Tuscaloosa, and in the same year was appointed a justice of the peace. In 1896-97 he was a representative in the legislature, and he was re-elected, to the session of 1898-99. In the house he had leading committee assignments and took a prominent part in legislative affairs. In military affairs his service has been conspicuous. He was lieutenant and captain of the Warrior Guards, and 1900-01, major in the Third Alabama volunteer infantry regiment, Spanish-American War; was appointed adjutant-general of Alabama, 1899, and re-appointed in 1901, serving until 1906. As adjutant-general he successfully reorganized the old Alabama national guard. In 1906 he was nominated for State auditor in the Democratic primary, and in the general election was overwhelmingly elected, serving 1907-11. In 1911 he was elected probate judge of Tuscaloosa County, a position he still holds. In 1892 he published a military journal at Tuscaloosa entitled "The Citizen Soldier." He was a reading clerk of the constitutional convention, 1901. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; a Knight of Pythias; an Odd Fellow; an Elk, and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon college fraternity. Married: to Mrs. Elizabeth (Andrews) Nabors, daughter of the late Dr. Allen S. Andrews (q. v.). Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BRANNON, JOHN MANSON, teacher and planter, was born February 1, 1833, on his father's plantation in Newton County, Ga., and died near Seale, in Russell County, April 20, 1904; son of Calvin John and Catherine (Brannan) Brannan; grandson of John and Nancy (Parker) Brannan, of western North Carolina, later of South Carolina and still later of Georgia, and of Catherine Brannan of Monroe County, Ga. Both families were Irish, the Brannans coming to Virginia shortly after 1760 and four sons taking part in the American Revolution. The spelling of the name with the final "a" as an "o" was adopted in 1861. He was educated in the common schools of Harris County, Ga., to which county the family removed in 1835. He taught school in Russell County, from 1858 to 1875, excepting the period of the War of Secession, and from 1875 to his death was an extensive planter and stock raiser. He was superintendent of education of Russell County, 1871-1886. From April, 1862, to May, 1863, he was first lieutenant of Company I, 39th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, from which he resigned after being wounded and incapacitated for active duty, though in 1864, he assisted in organizing and was first lieutenant colonel, later colonel of the Russell home guards, a local defense company which served last at Girard, April 16, 1865. He was a liberal contributor to the agricultural and church literature, being for a long time president of the Long View agricultural club and prior to that time connected with an interstate organization of planters from Lee, Russell and Barbour Counties and several of those of West Georgia. He was a Methodist, a Democrat, and a Mason. Married: in Chattahoochee County, Ga., to Elizabeth Virginia, daughter of Judge Hiram and Caroline E. (Dozier) Fuller of that county. Children: 1. George Thomas, m. Martha Stephen Greene, died 1897; 2. Katherine Annie, m. F. B. Vann; 3. Emma Caroline; 4. Mattie Julia, m. E. M. Anderson; 5. girl, died in infancy; 6. John Sherwood, died 1906; 7. Frank Manson, m. Eva Prather; 8. Elizabeth, m. John W. Ingram, died 1914. Last residence: Russell County.

BRANNON, PETER ALEXANDER, pharmacist, anthropologist, and curator, was born August 30, 1882, at Seale, Russell County; son of George Thomas and Martha Stephen (Greene) Brannon, the former a native of Vilula, later of Seale, Russell County, where he was a planter until his death; grandson of John Manson and Elizabeth Virginia (Fuller) Brannon, of Harris and Chattahoochee Counties, Ga., later of Russell County, the latter of English ancestry, her father having served in the War of 1812, though not of age, and of Stephen Clements and Martha Turner (Bass) Greene, of Stewart County, Ga., and Russell County; great-grandson of Calvin and Catherine (Brannan) Brannan, of South Carolina, and of Miles Greene, jr.; great-great-grandson of John and Nancy (Parker) Brannan, of western North Carolina, of Rev. Myles and Elizabeth (Hunt) Greene, of Hartwell and Elizabeth (Moreland) Bass, of Virginia, Georgia, and Russell County; great-great-great-grandson of Captain Hunt, of Sussex County, Va., who served in the Revolutionary War. The Brannans are of Irish descent, coming to Virginia before the Revolution, moving from there to North Carolina and later to Georgia. Peter A. Brannon was educator in the public schools of Seale, and attended the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1898-1900, taking a course in pharmacy. He was pharmacist at Talladega, in 1900; Columbus, Ga., 1900-06; Troy, 1906-07; and at Montgomery, 1907-11. He was clerk in the State department of archives and history, 1911-12, chief clerk, 1912-20, and since 1920, curator of that department. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Knight of Pythias; and a member of the Montgomery Rotary club; American anthropological association; National geographic society; president, Alabama anthropological society; secretary, Alabama library association; Alabama and Georgia pharmaceutical associations; international society of archaeologists; president, Bartram natural history society; Montgomery bird lovers club; American society of mammalogists; American ornithologists union; Society philatelic Americans; American museum of natural history; American association of museums; Sons of Confederate veterans; American library association; and scoutmaster, Boy scouts of America. Author: contributor of numerous papers to various societies, "Auk," "Oologist," and newspapers on natural history, philatelic, and kindred subjects. Married: October 5, 1904, in Columbus, Ga., to Frances, daughter of William Adderson and Carrie Beatrice (Gray) Frazer, of Lee County and Columbus, Ga.; granddaughter of William C. and Carrie (Heard) Gray, the former a captain in a Georgia infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and a cotton warehouseman of Columbus, Ga. Children: 1. Carolyn Elizabeth; 2. Peter A., jr., deceased; 3. Stephen Frazer. Residence: Montgomery.

BRANNON, THOMAS, jr., business man, was born February 28, 1836, in Columbus, Ga., and died January 29, 1899, in Montgomery; son of Thomas, sr., and Julia (Mims) Brannon, of South Carolina, who removed to Columbus, Ga. and later to Eufaula; grandson of Drury and Charlise (Edwards) Mims, of Columbus, Ga.; brother of William Brannon of Americus, Ga. He received his education in the schools of Columbus; engaged in the mercantile business as a clerk; became a cotton-buyer in Columbus and Americus, Ga.; later in life he settled in Montgomery, where he engaged in the cotton business, until his death. He was a member of the city council of Eufaula for two years. In August, 1861, he enlisted in the First Alabama infantry regiment, under Col. Henry D. Clayton; was stationed on Santa Rosa Island for twelve months, and engaged in the bombardment of Fort Barrancas. Later he was captain of Company K, 39th Alabama infantry regiment, Deas' brigade, Army of Tennessee, under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. He was a Democrat; an Odd Fellow; and a Baptist. Married: August 14, 1864, in Eufaula, to Florida, daughter of John Nelson and Caroline (Cannon) Copeland, of Eufaula, originally of Barnwell District, S. C., and descendants of Gov. Trentlen of Georgia, Revolutionary patriot. Children: 1. Juliette Augusta, m. William H. Hubbard, of Montgomery, children, (1) Dr. T. Brannon Hubbard; (2) Lewis; (3) Margaret, m. Robert Denham, U. S. C. E.; 2. Caroline, m. G. P. Williams; 3. Julia, m. Rev. Samuel Campbell, Baptist; 4. Margaret, m. ——— Broadnax of North Carolina. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRANSCOMB, LEWIS CAPERS, Methodist minister, was born August 27, 1865, at Union Springs; son of Richard Edwin and Elizabeth (Murrell) Branscomb, of Abbeville District, S. C., who came to Alabama about 1840, the former a manufacturer of saddles and harness for the Confederate government; grandson of Dr. Murrell, of South Carolina, whose father served in the Revolutionary Army. The Murrells settled in Russell County. Rev. Dr. Branscomb was educated in the schools of Union Springs; entered Southern university, Greensboro, in 1883, receiving in 1885, the degree of A. B. and A. M., 1886; in 1909 received D. D. from Emory college, Oxford, Ga. He was admitted to Alabama conference, M. E. church, South, 1886; assigned to the Wheeler circuit, served Bessemer, 1887-91; Decatur, 1891-94; Huntsville, 1894-98; St. John's Birmingham, 1898-1902; Talladega district, 1902-04; Talladega station, 1904-08; First Methodist, Birmingham, 1908-1912; Birmingham district. He is editor of "Alabama Christian Advocate"; a Democrat; a Mason; and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon college fraternity. Married: (1) July 1, 1891, to Nannie Sadler, daughter of Chambers and Maria (Jordan) McAdory, of Jonesboro; (2) June 5, 1900, to Minnie, daughter of Jefferson Lamar and Sallie (Mims) McGehee. Children, by the first wife: 1. Louis McAdory; 2. Bennett Harvey; children by second wife: 1. Louise Hortense; 2. Richard Edwin; 3. Minnie Elizabeth; 4. Lamar; 5. Aline; 6. Lewis Capers, jr. Residence: Birmingham.

BRANTLEY, JOHN, one of the pioneer residents of Selma.

BRANTLEY, ROBERT, pioneer, was born in North Carolina, and died at St. Stephens, in 1847; son of Louis and Patty (Waller) Brantley, both residents of Halifax County, N. C. The Brantleys were of Scotch Irish stock. Robert Brantley emigrated to Georgia about 1820, and in 1822 to St. Stephens. Married: to Mary Anne Wilkins, of North Carolina. Children: 1. David Wilkins, m. (1) Sarah Sehon, of Conecuh County, and (2) Sarah Eleanor, daughter of John and Sallie (Epys) Dowdell, of Virginia; 2. Burwell Pitman, m. Ruth, daughter of John and Temperance (Ferrill) Ross, the former a native of Virginia, but a resident of North Carolina, and the representative of Martin County, N. C., in the house of commons, in 1784, and sister of Jack Ferrill Ross (q. v.); 3. Elijah Richard, m. (1) unknown, and (2) Anne Brantley; 4. Lewis, d. young; 5. Angeline D., first wife of Lieut. Theophilus Wilkinson, son of Gen. Wilkinson, and grandson of Gen. Theophilus Toulmin; 6. Martha Pitman, m. Maj. Reuben Chamberlain (q. v.); 7. Margaret, m. Henry Jordan; 8. Elizabeth, second wife of Lieut. Theophilus Wilkinson above. Last residence: St. Stephens.

BRANTLEY, THOMAS KIRVIN, merchant, was born in 1833, in Montgomery County; son of James A. and Elizabeth (Kirvin) Brantley, natives of South Carolina, who came in childhood to Alabama, and after their marriage farmed there; grandson of Jesse Brantley who came to Alabama at an early day from South Carolina, and afterwards settled in Mississippi, and of Thomas Kirvin, a farmer of Montgomery County who came there from South Carolina, and was a minister of the Primitive Baptist Church. The Brantley family is of Scotch-Irish origin. Mr. Brantley was reared on a farm, attended the public schools of the county, and a military school in northern Alabama. He remained on the farm with his mother until her death in 1854, then began life for himself by teaching school and farming for three years, in Randolph County. During the War of Secession, he joined Hilliard's legion, but was soon afterward accidentally wounded and disabled for further service. Just before the close of the war, he moved to Troy and engaged in merchandising under the firm name of Brantley & Copeland, and later under the name of T. K. Brantley & Son. When the Central railroad of Georgia built its extension, a station was established on a site purchased by Mr. Brantley in Crenshaw, and the station and postoffice were named for him. He engaged in business there with his son-in-law, Frank Johnson, under the firm name of T. K. Brantley & Co. In addition to his two large merchandising interests, Mr. Brantley also is interested in planting. Soon after he settled at Troy, he was elected justice of the peace, and from 1868 to 1874, served as clerk of the circuit court. He was elected as city councilman for several years, and mayor for two years. He is a member of the Missionary Baptist church, and is a Mason. Married: In Chambers County, 1855, Sarah A., daughter of Abner and Minerva Hill, natives of Virginia and Georgia, respectively. Children: 1. James, attended the State Normal School at Troy, and the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, member of the firm of Brantley & Edmondson, general merchants, Troy; 2. Thomas, attended the State Normal School at Troy, and Howard College, member of the firm of T. K. Brantley & Son, Troy; 3. Ella, attended Judson College, Marion, m. A. C. Edmondson; 4. Ada, attended school at Columbus, Ga., deceased, m. Henry Folmar; 5. Lester, attended Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., m. John F. Swift; 6. Rosa, m. Edward M. Shackelford (q. v.), a president of the State Normal School at Troy; 7. Florrie, attended the State Normal School.

GENERAL GEORGE P. HARRISON and is a teacher in the public schools of Troy, m. Frank Johnson; 8. William, bookkeeper for the firm of T. K. Brantley & Son; 9. Minnie, attended the State Normal School at Troy; 10. Hillary, d. December 9, 1886; 11. Herbert. Residence: Troy.

BRASHER, JOHN S., member of the constitutional convention of 1861, from Blount County.

BRASSELL, WALTER R., chief clerk in the State health department; member of the city commission of Montgomery, 1911. Residence: Montgomery.

BREEDLOVE, JOHN B., member State legislature from Macon County, 1900-01. Residence: Tuskegee.

BREWER, BARNET, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Montgomery County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on June 15, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Macon County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BREWER, GEORGE EDWARD, teacher and lawyer, was born at Tuskegee, September 12, 1862, and died at Talladega, July 14, 1899; son of William George and Mary (Attaway) Brewer, the former a native of Aberdeen, Miss., who located in Tuskegee, about 1852, and where he lived until his death; grandson of Willis and Mary (Walpole) Brewer who lived near Aberdeen, and of Isaiah and Mary (Ezell) Attaway whose home was in Twiggs County, Ga., until their removal about 1840 to Macon County. Judge Brewer attended the Park high school at Tuskegee, and in a competitive examination in 1879 won a scholarship in the University of Alabama, which he entered as a sophomore, and graduated in 1884, having in the meantime taught one year in the Park high school. He was principal of the Henley school, Birmingham, 1884-85; was elected principal of the high school of that city but declined it to become superintendent of the city schools, Talladega, a place he filled for four years, 1886-89. He read law privately and was admitted to the bar in 1889. He was appointed judge of the 7th judicial circuit, April, 1895, to succeed Judge Leroy F. Box, deceased, and was elected, in August, 1898, to succeed himself. He was a Democrat; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Dadeville, November 3, 1891, to Zana, daughter of Allen D. and Jane Caroline (Clark) Sturdivant of that place. Allen D. Sturdivant was probate judge of Tallapoosa County, for a quarter of a century. Children: 1. George Allen; 2. Mary Linda; 3. Sturdivant Walpole, d. young; 4. Samuel Bragg; 5. Augusta Helene. Last residence: Talladega.

BREWER, GEORGE EVANS, Baptist minister, was born near Covington, Newton County, Ga., October 31, 1832; son of Rev. Aaron G.

and Martha (Taylor) Brewer, the former born near Squancum, Monmouth County, N. J.; grandson of George and Rebecca (Schenck) Brewer, both of whom were members of the earliest Dutch families settling in the New Netherlands, and he was a minister in the Protestant Methodist church, being a member of the Baltimore convention which organized that body, and of George Taylor, a native of Ireland; great-grandson of Lazarus Brewer, of Monmouth County, N. J.; and great-grandson of Anneke Jans Bogardus, of New York. Rev. Mr. Brewer was educated in the country schools and at Robinson Springs academy. He taught school from 1851 to 1856; in 1856 was elected superintendent of education of Coosa County, being the first under the new school law; was a member of the house of representatives from the same county, 1857-59; and a member of the State senate, 1859-63. In the fall of 1860 he was ordained to the ministry in the Missionary Baptist church, and served his first pastorate at Wetumpka. In February, 1862, he was elected captain of an infantry company raised in Coosa County, and was first on detached duty at Pensacola, but in June, 1862, was assigned to the Co. A., 36th Alabama infantry regiment. With this organization he served until the close of the war, much of the time in command. He was adjutant-general of Alabama during 1866, but resigned before the close of the year. He then returned to the active ministry, in which he continued without interruption until 1901, when he was appointed to the position of chaplain of convicts, by Gov. Wm. J. Samford, being retained in office by Gov. Wm. D. Jelks. After the expiration of his term in 1907, he again took up his ministerial work. He has served as moderator at various times of the Central, the Tuskegee, and the Harris Baptist associations. Author: "A History of the Central (Baptist) Association," (1895); "History of the 46th Alabama Regiment," which appeared in the "Montgomery Advertiser," 1902; and several unpublished manuscripts, on file in the Alabama department of archives and history. Married: December 20, 1854, at Rockford, Coosa County, to Laura Ann, daughter of Judge Isaac Willis and Louisa (McCary) Suttle, of that county. Children: 1. Sallie Teresa, m. Henry Bradford, deceased; 2. Edgar, m. Mary Morgan; 3. Ella Rosa, d. young; 4. Samuel Oscar, m. Ollie Wilkie; 5. George Francis, m. Frances Meredith; 6. Mattie Laura, m. Dr. B. W. Allen; 7. Mamie Louisa, m. Thomas M. Espy; 8. Infant son, deceased; 9. Charles Milford, a Baptist minister, m. Chattie Williford. Residence: Notasulga.

BREWER, JAMES THOMAS, farmer and legislator, was born April 30, 1856, at Larkinsville, Jackson County; son of Martin Lewis and Sarah Berry (Woosley) Brewer, the former of Princeton, was in the Seminole War, and a recruiting officer in Jackson during the War of Secession, the latter was of Larkinsville, Jackson County; grandson of James and Mary (McGhee) Brewer of Princeton, and of William Alexander and Mary (Morris) Woosley, of Larkinsville; great-grandson of Aaron Walden

Woosley, a soldier from Bedford County, Va., in the Revolutionary War. He was educated in the common schools of his native county. He is a farmer and represented Jackson County in the legislature of 1911. He is a Democrat. Married: February 1, 1897, at Larkinsville, to Mary Ann, daughter of Wiley Peyton and Ona V. (Woosley) Proby, whose ancestors came from England. Children: 1. Ora Bird; 2. Edna Mai; 3. James Thomas, jr.; 4. Karl Stanly. Residence: Larkinsville.

BREWER, LEROY, business man, was born February 19, 1818, in a log cabin on the banks of Murder Creek, Conecuh County, and died in 1893, in Mobile. During his childhood, he helped on his father's farm and attended school six months of the year in a log cabin in the woods taught by John Chapman. In 1832, the family moved to a farm within four miles of Livingston, Sumter County, then called Choctaw Nation. Mr. Brewer attended school in Livingston under Robert H. Smith, and later in a "neighborhood school" which was opened near the Brewer farm, under W. H. Beasley. When he was seventeen years old, he took charge of his father's farm and conducted it for four years, then entered the mercantile business at Blackwater, Kemper County, Miss., first in partnership with Angus E. McInnis, and later alone. In October, 1849, his store with all the stock, books and papers, covered by no insurance, was burned. He settled up his affairs, moved to Mobile, and in 1851, engaged in a cotton factorage business with Dr. Edward Brown. After six years, he withdrew from that firm, and entered partnership with R. D. Ogletree, under the firm name of Brewer & Ogletree, and in 1861, bought out the interest of his partner. During the war, Mr. Brewer was continually on duty with the troops around Mobile, and after the close of the war, with a loss of almost everything, formed a copartnership with Thomas Duggan, Hugh L. Hopper, and Calvin A. Harris, in a mixed business of general groceries and cotton factorage. In 1878, the firm dissolved and Mr. Brewer carried on the business under the same firm name, with his nephew, T. P. Brewer, as partner, until May 30, 1884, when they were burned out with heavy loss. From that time until his health failed, he conducted a cotton factorage business.

Mr. Brewer was elected to the State legislature in 1872, on the same ticket with Hon. Peter Hamilton, Hon. Decatur C. Anderson, and Hon. A. R. Manning, and served on the ways and means committee in that body. He was re-elected the following four terms, and represented Mobile County, in the constitutional convention of 1875. In 1882, he was again elected to the State legislature. He was a director in the National Commercial Bank from the time of its organization until its change of name to the Alabama National Bank in which he continued as a director. He was, for many years, a director in the Planters and Merchants Insurance Company of Mobile, and was president of that company, 1876-1879. Married: In 1884, Emma O. (Phares) Hopper, daughter of John C. Phares of Sumter County.

Children: 1. a son, born in 1886, d. November 1, 1892; 2. Olive Maud. Last residence: Mobile.

BREWER, RICHARD HENRY, colonel C. S. Army; son of Nicholas Brewer, of Annapolis, Md., entered the United States Military academy, July 1, 1853, as a cadet from the 1st Maryland district, graduating July 1, 1858, and receiving the appointment of brevet 2nd lieutenant of the First dragoons; was promoted 2nd lieutenant, March 29, 1859; resigned May 1, 1861, in order that he might join the Confederacy. He was appointed 1st lieutenant, corps of cavalry, C. S. Army, September 9, 1861; was assigned as acting assistant adjutant general to Maj. Gen. Leonidas L. Polk, October 8, 1861, and was relieved at his own request, December 15, 1861. He was assigned as major of the Second battalion, Mississippi and Alabama cavalry, in December, 1861; was promoted lieutenant colonel of the same battalion; promoted to the colonelcy of the First Mississippi and Alabama cavalry, June 1862; and was again relieved from duty at his own request. He attached himself as volunteer to the staff of Gen. Pender, about August 10, 1862, and served in this capacity until November 3, 1862. On December 20, 1862, he was assigned to the temporary rank of major, Provisional Army, under Gen. J. C. Pemberton, and on March 16, 1863, he was acting assistant adjutant general to Lieut. Gen. Polk. He was highly recommended for appointment as brigadier general, in May and November, 1863, by Generals Wheeler, Polk, Wharton and Hill. He was wounded in action at Piedmont, Va., on June 5, 1864, and died June 25 of the same year.

BREWER, SAMUEL BLOUNT, business man, was born November 2, 1834, near Covington, Newton County, Ga.; son of Rev. Aaron G. and Martha (Taylor) Brewer, the former a native of Monmouth, Monmouth County, N. J., born 1795 and after his ordination as a Methodist minister, assisted, 1826, in organizing the Protestant Methodist church in New York City, and later organized stations in Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina; was president Methodist Protestant conference of Alabama at the time of his death in Opelika, in 1877; was chaplain of Rodes' regiment, C. S. Army, 1861; fought in the battle of Manassas; helped nurse the wounded and sick Confederate soldiers; was collector of military stores from 1863 to the close of the War; edited "Southern olive tree," Atlanta, Ga., 1852 to 1855; grandson of George and Elizabeth (Schenck) Brewer, Quakers, who lived near Monmouth, N. J., and of George Taylor, a native of Ireland. This branch of the Brewer family sprang from Anneke Jans, daughter of the King of Holland, who married the Rev. Bogardus, an Episcopal minister. To her was granted by the King, in 1620, a tract of land that lies in the heart of New York, upon a part of which Trinity church now stands. Descendants of this pair now bear a great many variations of the name, among which are Baur, Brawer and Brewer. Samuel Blount Brewer was educated in Abbeville and Edgefield Counties, S. C., and in Coosa and Autauga Counties. He began farming when a mere boy and contributed largely to the support of the family. In 1852, he removed with the family to Atlanta, Ga., and learned the printer's trade, and the following year became assistant editor of the "Southern olive tree," of which his father was editor. From 1855 to 1860, he taught school in Montgomery County. Following this experience, he was engaged by the "Montgomery Advertiser" as a reporter. He later engaged in the mercantile and insurance business. He located in Anniston in 1883, and later became connected with the railroad and water power development, real estate and insurance. He was a private in the Metropolitan guards, Third Alabama infantry regiment and was in charge of the wagon train from Pollard to Pensacola, December, 1860; was in charge of the arsenal at Fort Barrancas, when the regiment reached Pensacola. In 1863, he was made major and assigned to duty in the commissary at Richmond; was on the staff of President Davis after he left Richmond, Va., until his capture in Georgia. He was secretary of the Democratic convention of Alabama, 1860; assistant secretary of the State executive committee, 1874-75, and assistant secretary, State convention of the Democrats, 1874. He is a Methodist, and a Mason. Author: "Battle of the ages between Satan and God," unpublished, showing that the United States is the true Israel restored, as pointed out in the prophecy and fulfilled by proper computation of time, dates and events. Married: October 1, 1861, in Richmond, Va., to Marian Grant, daughter of Walter and Margaret Glenn (Grant) McFarland, all natives of Scotland, who later immigrated to Richmond, Va. Children: 1. Margaret Grant; 2. John E. R.; 3. Marian Daisie, m. Thomas W. Walsh, and since his death, a kindergarten teacher, Anniston; 4. Walter McFarland, m. Annie Corrie, Anniston; 5. Annie Taylor, Millidgeville, Ga.; 6. Charles Blount, m. Nellie Reynolds, Washington, D. C.; 7. Alpine Glenn, Tampa, Fla.; 8. Mary Hannon, Anniston; 9. Irving S., m. Kate Ledbetter, Anniston. Residence: Anniston.

BREWER, SAMUEL LOUIS, lawyer and circuit judge, was born August 3, 1864, near Tuskegee, son of William George and Mary (Attaway) Brewer, and the brother of Judge George Edward Brewer (q. v.). Judge Brewer was educated in the Park high school at Tuskegee; for some years he was employed in printing offices in Opelika and Tuskegee; and in the early eighties was one of the teachers in Barton academy, Mobile. He read law in 1888; was admitted to the bar in 1889; took a summer course in the law department of the University of Virginia, 1901; was elected solicitor of the fifth judicial circuit 1892; re-elected in 1898; and was elected judge of the same circuit in 1904, to succeed Judge N. D. Denson, re-elected in 1910; and again re-elected in 1916. He is a Democrat; a Methodist, served as a trustee of the Alabama conference female college; is a Mason, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: December 7, 1892, at Bagdad, Fla., to Charlie Belle, daughter of Charles Patrick and Mary Ellen (Townsend) Walker, of Wetumpka and Prattville. Mrs. Brewer is a direct descendant, on her father's side, of James Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. No children. Residence: Tuskegee.

BREWER, WILLIS, lawyer and author, representative in congress, was born March 15, 1844, in Sumter County and died in Montgomery; son of Robert Willis and Jane (Hadden) Brewer, natives of Perry County, and of Abbeville District, S. C., respectively, the former a farmer and merchant who served in the artillery branch of the C. S. Army; grandson of William Brewer, a native of South Carolina, who came from Wilkes County, Ga., to Alabama in 1818, and died in Macon County, and of William Hadden, a soldier in the Revolution who married a Miss DeFoe; great grandson of William Brewer, born in America, but of Welsh parentage. Mr. Brewer was reared on a farm and received academic training. When he was fourteen years old he entered a printing office, and three years later, he and an old schoolmate, Judge Deloach, edited a paper at Milton, Fla. During the War of Secession he volunteered to serve in the C. S. Army three times, but due to ill health was not able to perform active service. He was engaged in post duty at various places, was a deputy provost marshal and enrolling officer. For a short time he was on the staff of Gen. Wirt Adams, in Mississippi, and in 1865, was appointed aide-de-camp on the staff of the governor. The same year he was admitted to practice law.

After the war, Mr. Brewer edited a semi-weekly paper, the "Wilcox Times," for nearly three years, and in 1868 moved to Hayneville and established the Hayneville "Examiner," which he edited until 1880. After that time, he devoted himself to planting and practicing law. In 1871, he was appointed treasurer of Lowndes County by Governor Lindsey, and served in that office for a few months. In 1876, he was elected state auditor on the Democratic ticket; was re-elected in 1878; was elected to the lower house of the legislature in 1880, and served on the ways and means committee; was elected to the senate from Lowndes and Autauga Counties, 1882, and served as chairman of the committee on internal improvements; was re-elected to the senate, 1886, and served as chairman of the committee on finance and taxation; was elected to the lower house, 1890, and made chairman of the committee on ways and means; and was re-elected in 1892. He was a presidential elector for the state-at-large on the Cleveland ticket, 1892, and was elected to the fifty-fifth and fifty-sixth congresses. He retired from congress in 1901 to his home, "The Cedars," about seven miles from Montgomery. In 1908 he moved his citizenship to Montgomery.

Mr. Brewer was author of the "History and Resources of Alabama," 1872; "The Children of Isachar," 1884; "Secret of Mankind," "Egypt and Israel;" and of various articles among which are "Suicide," "A Tribute to Col. S. S. Scott," and "The Fiery Furnace of Fifty Years Ago." He was president of the state press association in 1876; was chairman of the senate committee which investigated the embezzlement of State-treasurer Vincent in 1882; was a director in the Montgomery, Hayneville & Camden railroad; and was a Mason. He was possessor of the file of the "Democrat," Cahaba, for the years 1838-1840, edited by William L. Yancey. Married: In 1869, Mary Baine, daughter of Gen. David W. Baine, who was killed at Frazier's Farm, as colonel of the Fourteenth Alabama infantry, C. S. Army. Children: Willis, jr., deceased, b. February 1, 1878. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRICKELL, ROBERT COMAN, chief justice of the supreme court of Alabama, was born April 4, 1824, at Tuscomb, Colbert County, and died November 20, 1900, in Huntsville; son of Richard Benjamin and Margaret Williamson (Coman) Brickell; grandson of Robert and Sarah Jane (Prout) Coman, who emigrated from North Carolina and settled in Madison County. The Brickell family came originally from Wales and settled at Raleigh, N. C. A history of the family, dated from 1600, was in the possession of this branch of the descendants until it was seized during the War of Secession and destroyed. The Coman family, originally of Belfast, Ireland, was introduced into Raleigh, N. C., by two brothers, Robert and James Coman. Judge Brickell's father was born in 1800 at Raleigh, N. C., moved to Alabama in 1818 and located at St. Stephens; moved to Cahaba when Alabama became a state, and was elected the first state printer, publishing the first volume of the acts of the general assembly; moved to Huntsville in 1822, and to Athens in 1826 where he was editor and publisher of "The Athenian," a weekly newspaper; was elected to the State legislature from Limestone County, 1831; re-elected, 1833; and died January 8, 1835, at Athens. Judge Brickell's mother was sister of Hon. J. P. Coman of Limestone. After the death of her husband, she taught school and with the assistance of her son, Robert, supported her family of six children.

Judge Brickell learned his alphabet in his father's printing office, and attended school in Athens under Mr. McQuiston and Michael Frazer, and at Nashville, Tenn., under John Perryman. He read law under Judge Daniel Coleman at Athens for two years, and when he was nineteen years old, was admitted to the bar in the circuit court of Limestone County. He began to practice law, 1843, in Athens. In 1851 he moved to Huntsville; practiced with Septimus D. Cabaniss, and later in the firm of Walker, Cabaniss & Brickell, Gen. LeRoy Walker, later a member of the cabinet of President Davis and first secretary of war, C. S. A., being senior partner. In 1857, Mr. Cabaniss retired, and the firm became Walker & Brickell, continuing until 1873 when Judge Brickell was appointed an associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama. At this time the court was composed of Republican judges and the appointment was made by Gov. David P. Lewis, a Republican, although Judge Brickell was a strict Democrat. In 1874, he was elected justice, and the following year was chosen chief justice by the court. In 1880 he was elected chief justice by the Democratic party, and continued to hold that office until October 25, 1884, when he resigned and returned to Huntsville to resume his practice. In 1889, he was appointed general council for the Decatur Land Company, and practiced law in North Decatur with C. C. Harris and John C. Eyster. He moved to Montgomery in 1891, and formed a partnership with Maj. H. C. Semple and Mr. Gunter, under the firm name of Brickell, Semple & Gunter. He was appointed chief justice of the supreme court, March, 1894, by Gov. Thomas G. Jones, and served until 1898, when he declined reelection. He returned to Huntsville, and in 1899, formed the law firm of Brickell & Brickell, with his son, Robert C. Brickell, who was admitted to the bar that year. This firm was terminated in 1900 by the death of Judge Brickell.

He was author of Brickell's "Digest of the Decisions of the Alabama Supreme Court," first volume published in 1872, second in 1874, and third in 1888. The digest is dedicated to Judge Daniel Coleman, under whom Judge Brickell first read law. His decisions are embraced in forty-six volumes of Alabama Reports, beginning with Forty-ninth Alabama and ending with Seventy-ninth Alabama, commencing again with One Hundred Second Alabama, and continuing through One Hundred Twenty-second Alabama, and are quoted with approval by the highest courts throughout the Union. He was a States-rights Democrat, a Mason, and was elected a member of the American Social Science Association shortly before his death, which made him a member of the National Institute of Arts, Sciences and Letters.

Married: November 29, 1876, at Montgomery, Mary Blassingame, daughter of Robert James and Mary Caroline (Blassingame) Glenn, of Coosada, Autauga County, and of Marion; granddaughter of Mary Lewis of Virginia, a lineal descendant of Robert Lewis of "Belvoir," of Augustin Warner, and of Gov. George Reade, of Virginia. Mrs. Brickell, whose mother was a younger sister of Aurelia Blassingame, second wife of Gov. Fitzpatrick of Alabama, was reared by Mrs. Fitzpatrick after the death of her parents. Children: 1. Robert Coman (q. v.), attorney general of Alabama, Huntsville; 2. Benjamin Fitzpatrick, b. 1883, in Huntsville, d. 1886, in that place. Last residence: Huntsville.

BRICKELL, ROBERT COMAN, jr., lawyer and circuit judge, was born September 21, 1877, at Huntsville; son of Robert Coman and Mary Blassingame (Glenn) Brickell (q. v.). Judge Brickell was educated in the private schools of Huntsville and Montgomery, the University of Alabama, 1893-94, and the University of Virginia, where he studied law for one term, 1899. He later read law under his father. He was presidential elector for the 8th congressional district, in 1908, and attorney general of Alabama, 1911-1915. On January 9, 1915, he was commissioned to succeed Hon. D. W. Speake, deceased, as judge of the 8th judicial circuit, and elected for a full term of six years, November 7, 1916. He is an Episcopalian; a Democrat; a Mason; a Knight of Pythias, and an Elk. He is unmarried. Residence: Huntsville.

BRICKEN, CHARLES RUSSELL, lawyer, brigadier general, A. N. G., and presiding judge, court of appeals, was born March 6, 1869, at Richmond, Henrico County, Va.; son of Charles Rush and Isabella (Allen) Bricken, the former a native of Manchester, Piedmont County, Va., later a resident, and physician and surgeon in Richmond, the author of several medical text books and of the book "Dreams and Somnambulism"; grandson of William and Fannie (Pleasants) Bricken who lived in Manchester, Va., and of Richard G. and Agatha (Simon) Allen of Richmond. The name, Bricken, has passed through several modifications, Brychan, DeBreachin, Brechin. In the fifth century, a prince of Anglo Saxon ancestry, by the name of Brychan, ruled in South Wales, and his descendants later scattered into Scotland. Under Malcolm II, about 1006, Sir William De Brechin was granted lands for faithful services in Forshire where the town and castle of Brechin stood. From this family descendants migrated to England, where Rober De Brechin, son of William of Scotland, married a sister of Edward IV. Another De Brechin in Scotland married a daughter or sister of Malcolm II of Scotland, of which union there were heirs. The name was prominent in England and Scotland at an early period, and especially from the period beginning with Malcolm II, in 1005, to the time of the last Edward. The family is directly descended from two royal families and both branches once held vast possessions in Scotland, England and Wales. De Brechin peerage was registered in the College of heralds. In about 1700, one of the members of the English branch went to Holland and from there, William M. Bricken, came over to the United States in 1720, and located in Manchester, Va. His son, Col. John James Bricken, served in the Revolutionary Army. Judge Bricken was educated in the common and private schools of Richmond, Va., and in Alabama. He read law and was admitted to the practice in 1889, locating at Greenville. In 1890 he removed to Luverne where he continued to follow his profession. He was city attorney of Luverne, 1890-93; mayor, 1893-96; solicitor 2nd judicial circuit, 1899-1916; elected judge of the court of appeals, 1919; served as associate judge of the court of appeals until November 1, 1919, and was then made presiding judge, which office he now holds. On the reorganization of the national guard, after the Spanish-American War, he was elected major of the Second infantry regiment, and was afterwards elected lieutenant colonel of the regiment, which office he held eleven years; elected brigadier general, First Alabama brigade, 1915, and commanded that organization during the mobilization of the Alabama troops for duty on the Mexican border, in that year. He was mustered out of the Federal service in 1917, and resigned as brigadier general, A. N. G., in order to accept the office of associate judge of the court of appeals. His resignation and acceptance took place two months prior to the declaration of war between the United States and Germany. He has always been an active member of the Democratic and Conservative party of Alabama. He was reared an Episcopalian but united with the Methodists during a residence remote from a church of his own denomination. He is a Mason; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; Red Man, and Moose. Married: (1) December 24, 1890, at Luverne, to Buena May, daughter of Dr. James E. and Fannie (Riley) Kendrick of that place; (2) June 30, 1908, at Mobile, to Bessie, daughter of John and Virginia Marion (Lett) McDuffie, of Franklin, Monroe County. Children, by the first wife: 1. Beryl Richardson, m. Lorenzo Cosmo Rawlinson, Montgomery; 2. Charles Russell jr.; 3. Isabelle, m. James Duncan, Greenville; by the second wife: 4. Allen McDuffie; 5. John Benjamin. Residence: Montgomery.

BRIDGES, BLUFORD BUTLER, lawyer, was born August 12, 1848, near Cross Plains, now Piedmont, in Benton, now Calhoun County; son of Billings and Arabella (Smith) Bridges, who lived in Benton County, the former came with his mother from Campbell County, Ga., to Benton County after his father's death, the latter a native of Wake County, N. C., came with her father to Benton County about 1837, was married in the latter part of 1847, and after Mr. Bridges death, married L. B. Holcombe, December 1851, and died in Calhoun County, September 1867; grandson of Benjamin and Elizabeth Bridges, who lived in Georgia, and prior thereto, in South Carolina, and of Hardy and Elizabeth Smith, who lived in Wake County, N. C., and moved to Benton County. Mr. Bridges obtained his education principally in country schools, immediately before and just after the War of Secession. He read law at home while working in a wagon and blacksmith shop, and was admitted to the bar, June 1886, at Edwardsville, Cleburne County. He practiced law at Edwardsville until 1900, then moved to Dadeville, Tallapoosa County, and entered a law partnership with J. Percy Oliver, under the firm name of Bridges & Oliver. He served as justice of the peace, 1882-1886. He is a Democrat; a Methodist Episcopalian, serving as steward in the church, 1892-1900; and a Royal Arch Mason. Married: (1) December, 1871, in Calhoun County, Susan Matilda, who died April, 1884, in Cleburne County, daughter of Solomon Jefferson and Julia A. (Holcombe) Geer, the latter born in Union District, S. C., died in Piedmont, Calhoun County, 1905, granddaughter of Benjamin and Susan Holcombe; (2) 1884, Hudson Alice Howell, born June, 1864, in Cleburne County, daughter of Hudson and M. Jane Howell, the former of whom was killed in the battle of Atlanta, July, 1864, the latter died October 1892, at Anniston. Children, by first marriage: 1. Julia Bell, m. 1890, Asa McDaniel Dodd, Columbus, Ga.; 2. William Howell, m. 1899, Lelia Garrett, Cedartown, Ga.; no children by second marriage. Residence: Dadeville.

BRIDGES, JOHN W., lawyer and planter, was born in 1800 and died in 1858. He came to Wilcox County when he was about eighteen years of age, and was one of the early settlers of the county. He became a planter there, read law and was admitted to the bar. He practiced law, was elected to the State legislature in 1825, and represented Wilcox County there for thirteen years. In 1842, during Gov. Fitzpatrick's term of office, Judge Bridges was placed in charge of the committee of ways and means in the legislature, in view of the absolute necessity at that time, for the passage of a revenue bill to meet the expenses of the State government, and to recover the sinking credit. For years, the people of Alabama had not been called upon to pay state taxes; the charge of paying the expenses of administering the government resting, in the meantime, on the banks. The crash came and exposed the inefficiency of the system to stand the shock which its bad management and corruption had produced. The theories and expedients which had been relied upon since the called session of 1837, had all failed. The frauds which to some extent formed the subject of legislative investigation in 1841, had opened the eyes of the people to an unwelcome truth. It was with such a situation that Judge Bridges was confronted in 1842. The system was probed to the bottom, and the revenue bill, a thing new to Alabama, was brought before the house in due time, reported by Col. Bridges, and passed in both houses. After this service, he was a member of the house for a number of years, his last term being in 1849. That same year, he presided over the Democratic state convention which nominated Chief Justice Collier for governor. He was also judge of the county court for several years. Married: Miss Bethea, of Wilcox County. Last residence: Wilcox County.

BRIDGMAN, FREDERIC ARTHUR, artist, author and musician, a native of Alabama, was born at Tuskegee, November 10, 1847. His parents were from Massachusetts. He removed to New York at the age of sixteen and became an apprentice in the engraving department of the American bank-note company; meanwhile studied in the Brooklyn art school and the National academy of design in New York; and was a student under Gérôme at the Ecole des beaux arts, Paris. He is specially known as a painter of figure and of oriental and archaeological pictures; is a composer of orchestral music; and the author of several books. Residence: Paris.

BRIGHTMAN, WILLIAM M., merchant, was born, 1828, in New York City; son of Adolphus and Amelia (Travis) Brightman, natives of New York, the former a contractor and builder of English descent; grandson of Nathan Travis, a native of Nova Scotia, a hatter, who fought in the Revolution. Mr. Brightman was educated in the public schools of Albany, and when he was seventeen years old, engaged in the cigar and tobacco business in that city. He moved to Alabama, locating at Hayneville, in 1850, and engaged in the cigar and tobacco trade there. In March, 1862, he joined Co. K, Fifth Alabama infantry, C. S. Army, as a private, and served in the Virginia army, fighting at Seven Pines, the seven days' battle, second Manassas, Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Antietam, Chancellorsville, around Richmond and in the Shenandoah Valley with Early. At the time of the surrender, he was home on special furlough of one from each company, and during the last three years of the war, was orderly sergeant. He was engaged as clerk for J. P. Streety & Company, in 1866, and three years later became a member of the firm. He remained with the firm for more than a quarter of a century. He was a member of the board of revenue of Lowndes County, was a Democrat, and a Presbyterian. Married: In 1856, Mary E. Tobler, who was born in Mobile in 1833. Her father died during her infancy, and she removed with her mother to Hayneville, where she was educated and married. She died in 1872. Children: 1. Willett T., of the firm of J. P. Streety & Company; 2. Maggie L., m. R. S. M. Whorter; 3. Charles H.; 4. Mary C.; 5. La Rue. Residence: Hayneville.

BRINDLEY, AUGUSTUS ROSCOE, lawyer, was born at Sand Rock, Cherokee County, December 9, 1878; son of Rev. Perry Kennon and Hannah Josephine (Wilson) Brindley, the former of Sand Rock, the latter of Turkey Town, Etowah County; grandson of Asa R. and Harriet Brindley, of Sand Rock, and of Joseph and Celia (Edwards) Wilson, of Turkey Town. Asa Brindley was a soldier in the Mexican War; sent six sons into the War of Secession, all of whom were killed except Perry Kennon Brindley, who became a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and was in the organization of the North Alabama conference. Representative Brindley received his education at Centre, Collinsville, and Gaylesville, and graduated in the law department of the University of Alabama, LL. B., 1902. He represented Etowah County in the legislature of 1911, and again in 1915, he is now in the active practice at Gadsden. He served as 2nd lieutenant, later as captain of Co. C, Third regiment, A. N. G., he promptly entered the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson in 1917, and was assigned to duty as a captain. He subsequently rose to the rank of major in the judge advocate general's department, U. S. Army. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; an Odd Fellow; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Chautauqua, N. Y., August 17, 1910, to Lurene Lee Goodhue, the daughter of Amos E. and Carrie Lee (Ross) Goodhue, of Gadsden. No children. Residence: Gadsden.

BRINDLEY, MACE T. B., planter, was born late in the eighteenth century, and died August 30, 1871. He was a relative of Lieut. G. R. Brindley, of the Fifty-fourth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army. Major Brindley served for many years as clerk of the county court of Blount County; was at one time a bank director at Decatur, and an attentive student of the banking system of Alabama. He was elected to the house in 1839, as a representative from Blount County; and was elected to the senate from Blount and Marshall Counties in 1841. He remained in the senate for fourteen years, and then retired from public life. He was a Democrat. Last residence: Blount County.

HON. WILLIAM J. SAMFORD

BRINDLEY, PORTER MACE, lawyer, was born February 29, 1876, at Gum Springs, Morgan County, and died February 1, 1920, at Hartselle; son of Asa Benton and Peachy Ann (Wilson) Brindley, the former served in the C. S. Army, first as private, later as a lieutenant, fighting under Generals Morgan, Wheeler, and Roddy, and Col. Josiah Patterson, was a Baptist minister and physician; grandson of Mace Thomas Payne and Nancy Stewart (Hamby) Brindley (q. v.), the former a representative also senator from Blount, now Cullman County, several times, and for whom Brindley Mountain, Cullman, is named, and of Greenberry and Mary (Bradshaw) Wilson, the former came from South Carolina, and settled in 1812, several miles east of Hartselle, and Wilson Mountain is named for him. Mr. Brindley was educated in the public schools of Gum Springs; and graduated LL. B., 1900, from the University of Alabama. He was admitted to the bar in Corsicana, Texas, in 1897; removed to Hartselle where he continued to practice his profession until his death; was city attorney of Hartselle, 1910-1911. He represented Morgan County in the house of representatives, 1919. He was a Democrat; Baptist; Woodman of the World; Knight of Pythias; and a Junior Order United American Mechanics. Married: July 4, 1901, at Danville, Ill., to Laura Belle, daughter of Richard and Frances Jane Jeffries. Children: 1. Richard Benton; 2. Porter Wilson; 3. Stella Frances; 4. Freda Belle. Last residence: Hartselle.

BRISCOE, ALBERT WALKER, lawyer and State insurance commissioner, was born March 10, 1874, at Apple Grove, Morgan County; son of Huell Lawson and Amanda (Coulter) Briscoe, the former of Marshall County, a captain in the C. S. Army, being later detailed to manufacture saddles, was a physician and practiced at Falkville from 1881 until his death in 1903; grandson of Thomas and Sarah (Hill) Briscoe, who lived at Anderson, S. C., prior to 1817, and of William and Catherine Coulter, who lived near Pulaski, Tenn., the former a steamboat operator on the Tennessee river. The Briscoes are of English descent, coming first to Charleston, later moving to Anderson, S. C. The Coulters are of Scotch-Irish descent who came first to Tennessee. Mr. Briscoe was educated in the common schools of Morgan County; at the Falkville normal school; graduated A. B., from the Baptist collegiate institute, at Danville; and spent two sessions at Louisville Baptist seminary. He studied law in Cullman and at Russellville and was admitted to the bar in 1901. Prior to his appointment as State insurance commissioner he practiced at Lafayette, and was a member of the State senate from the ninth district, 1919. He is a Democrat; Baptist; Mason; Odd Fellow; Knight of Pythias; Woodman of the World; Columbian Woodman; Modern Woodman; and Praetorian. Married: Susie Virginia, daughter of Joseph and Cordelia (Stowe) Shackelford (q. v.). Children: 1. Irene; 2. Huell Joseph; 3. Annie May. Residence: Montgomery.

BRITTAIN, C. M., Missionary Baptist minister, living in 1913. Residence: Columbia.

BRITTAIN, JAMES LEONIDAS, Methodist minister and teacher, was born July 23, 1846, in Marshall County; son of Joseph Marshall and Cary Ann (Carns) Brittain, the former born in Buncombe County, N. C., lived at Summit, Blount County, was orderly sergeant in the 19th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, afterwards in the conscript bureau; grandson of William and Jane Brittain, of Athens, Tenn., and of James and Nancy Carns, of Summit; great-grandson of George D. Slaton, born April 6, 1776, in Virginia, removed to Alabama, and died April 4, 1860, in Murphrees Valley. Mr. Brittain attended school at Danville; graduated at Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., A. B., 1871, A. M., 1873; joined North Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, in November 1873; was supernumerary in 1879, because of trouble with his eyes; taught at Belview academy in Birmingham for some years; and in 1893 resumed work in conference. He is a Mason. Married: June 11, 1873, at Danville, to Mary Novella, daughter of Sylvanus and Elizabeth (Grizzelle) Gibson, of Lawrence County. Residence: Birmingham.

BRITTAN, PATRICK HENRY, publisher and editor, secretary of state of Alabama, 1859-1865, was born September 21, 1815, at Thornton's Gap, Va., and died March 18, 1868, at Montgomery; son of George Brittan, a native of Ireland, who emigrated to America and settled in Thornton's Gap, Va. Gen. Brittan was an uncle of Barbee, the sculptor. He learned the printing trade in Washington, D. C.; went to Columbus, Ga., in 1839; and was connected with the press of that city until 1843 when he established the Lafayette "Tribune," in Lafayette, Chambers County. He remained with the latter paper until 1847, then moved to Montgomery and entered journalism in that city. In 1848, he bought a half interest in the "Advertiser," and the next year his partner, Mr. McCormack, withdrew from the publication, selling his interest in the paper to Thomas DeWolf, of the "State Gazette," and to Gen. Brittan. They changed the name from the "Advertiser" to that of the "Advertiser and State Gazette." In May, 1853, Mr. DeWolf sold his interest to M. P. Blue, and the paper was continued under the firm name of Brittan and Blue, until 1856. During the six years he was in partnership with Mr. DeWolf and Mr. Blue, Gen. Brittan was state printer. Brittan and Blue applied steam to their presses, November 1853, being the first publishers in the state to do so. In 1856, Gen. Brittan began a small daily, the Montgomery "Messenger." It was a non-political publication devoted entirely to local news. It ceased to exist January 18, 1858, when it was merged into the "Confederation," of which J. J. Seibles, R. A. Wyatt and Gen. Brittan were owners.

Gen. Brittan served as quartermaster-general of Alabama from 1857 until 1859, and as secretary of state of Alabama from 1859 until 1865. He was a Democrat and a member of the Protestant Episcopal church. Married: February 28, 1839, at Columbus, Ga., Ora Williams, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Holland) Williams, of Morgan County, Ga. Children: 1. Kate, m. John E. Simpson, resides at Birmingham; 2. Mary, m. John H. Stillman, resides at Birmingham; 3. Henry S., deceased; 4. Emmett, deceased; 5. Grattan, m. Annie Doland, resides at Birmingham; 6. Lizzie B., m. W. W. Bloodworth, resides at Sylacauga, Talladega County; 7. Lucy, m. John B. McClary, resides at Birmingham; 8. Sallie, deceased, m. B. S. Williams; 9. Belle, m. George S. Moorar, resides at Birmingham. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRITTON, WILLIAM GILLASPIE, farmer, soldier and public official, was born February 16, 1842, at Greensboro, Hale County; son of William Worrell and Margaret Isabella (Gillaspie) Britton, the former a native of Edgefield District, S. C., who removed early in life to Alabama; grandson of Benjamin Britton, who lived at Edgefield and of Daniel and Margaret (NeSmith) Gillaspie, of Lowndes County. His early education was obtained at Pleasant Ridge, Greene, now Hale County, under the instruction of A. A. and E. A. Archibald. While attending Oglethorpe university, Ga., he left the sophomore class, January, 1861, to join the Confederate Army, and was 1st sergeant, Co. D, Greensboro guards, 5th Alabama infantry regiment, Battle's brigade, Rodes' division. He was so severely wounded, September 19, 1865, at Winchester, Va., that his right arm had to be amputated; captured, and sent to Point Lookout, Md. He engaged in farming after the war, and was tax collector of Hale County, 1874-82. He is a Presbyterian; Knight of Pythias; Odd Fellow; A. O. M. W., and a captain of the Ku Klux Klan. Married: (1) April 26, 1865, in Greene County, to Mary Henrietta, daughter of John and Mary Long, of Cooksville, Miss.; (2) January 21, 1871, to Mary Susan, daughter of Robert Randolph and Mary Redding, who lived at Hollow Square, Hale County. Children: 1. William Lee, deceased; 2. Isabella Monk, deceased; 3. Mary Alice, m. Alonzo Bernard Gewin, Cedarville; 4. John Gordon, m. Lucy Burton, Pratt City; 5. Laura Porter, m. Bestor Bernard Livingston, Akron; 6. Bettie Scott, m. Noah Gideon Harris, Akron; 7. Edwin Rodes, Greensboro; 8. Thomas Baxter, Demopolis; 9. Daniel Elijah, Demopolis. Residence: Greensboro.

BROADUS, SAMUEL SINCLAIR, banker, was born January 10, 1860, at Greenville, S. C.; son of Rev. John Albert and Charlotte Eleanor (Sinclair) Broadus, the former a native of Culpeper, Va., who lived at Greenville, S. C. and Louisville, Ky., was a Baptist preacher, and served as chaplain in Lee's army during the War of Secession, was a professor and later the president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Greenville, S. C.; grandson of Maj. Edmund and Nancy (Simms) Broadus, of Culpeper, Va., and of George and Ruth Ann (Belt) Sinclair, of Charlottesville, Va. The Broadus family, formerly spelled Broadhurst, emigrated from Wales to Virginia in 1715. The Sinclairs were Scotch, of Norman origin who went to England with William the Conqueror. The Belt family is of English descent. Mr. Broadus attended the Furman University, Greenville, S. C., then for three years was a student in the University of Virginia, graduating in 1883. During the year, 1881-1882, he taught school in Louisville, in order to finance his last year at the university. For the five years following his graduation, he served as agent for the Standard Oil Company; was financial agent for the Land Company boom at Florence, 1888-1892; organized the Merchants Bank at Florence, becoming cashier and managing officer, 1892-1905; organized the Stevenson Cotton Mills, 1901, and became president of the company; became president of the Merchants Bank at Decatur, where the head office had been moved the year before, 1905, and continued president when the name was changed, in 1908, to the Tennessee Valley Bank; organized the Tennessee Valley Building & Loan Association, 1912. Mr. Broadus served as a notary public for a quarter of a century, as a convenience in banking. He was a Democrat; a Baptist; a Mason; and a Knight of Pythias. In the latter lodge, he was chancellor commander for three successive terms. Married: December 25, 1895, at Lafayette, Margaret Carlisle, daughter of Joseph A. and Margaret (Echison) Carlisle, of Lafayette, who were of Scotch descent. Children: 1. John Albert, b. 1900; 2. Charlotte Sinclair, b. 1903; 3. Theodore Harris, b. 1904. Margaret Carlisle, b. 1906; 5. Joseph Carlisle, b. 1908; 6. Mary Daniel, b. 1912. Last residence: Decatur.

BROADY, J. M., Presbyterian minister, living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

BROCK, GEORGE WILLIAM, teacher, was born February 18, 1864, on his father's farm in Etowah County; son of Josiah and Louisa (Riggs) Brock, the former a native of Buncombe County, N. C., and later a resident of Collinsville, a justice of the peace, farmer, volunteered for Confederate service but was rejected owing to over age after a few months' service; grandson of Hiram Brock, of Buncombe County, N. C., and of William D. Riggs, a soldier of the War of 1812. Professor Brock attended short terms in the rural schools and the Gaylesville high school, in Cherokee County. During 1889-90-92, he was a student at the Collinsville high school from which he graduated the latter year. In 1893 he entered the State normal college, at Florence and graduated, taking a special course during the summer school at Howard college. He graduated from the University of Alabama, 1900, with the B. A. degree and received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Howard college in 1917. He taught in the rural schools from 1883 to 1887; was principal of the high school and superintendent of the public schools of Oakman, 1894-95; held a like position in the public schools of Jasper, 1896-97, and at Alexander City, 1898-99; member State board of examiners for teachers, 1899-1902; superintendent Opelika City schools, 1902-07; chairman of the faculty, Livingston normal school, 1907-10; and president from the latter date to the present time. He is a Democrat and a Baptist. Married: (1) June 6, 1899, at Oxford, to Carrie Luttrell; (2) August 30, 1910, to Mary, daughter of John Black and Ora (Barrett) Boyd, of Atlanta. Children: by the first wife: 1. Mildred. Residence: Livingston.

BROCKWAY, DUDLEY SAMUEL, physician, was born March 30, 1853, at Gaston, Sumter County; son of Dr. Augustus E. and Martha E. (Horn) Brockway, the former a native of Lynn, Conn., who settled in Kentucky, was graduated from the Transylvania University, came to Alabama and practiced medicine in Choctaw County, and later in Sumter County, the latter a native of North Carolina; grandson of Jacob and Polly Horn, of Gaston, who came from North Carolina and settled first in Choctaw County. The Brockway family is of English origin and came to America in the latter part of the seventeenth century. Dr. Brockway was prepared at Mt. Sterling, Choctaw County, and at Livingston School; was graduated from the University of Alabama, B. S., 1874; studied medicine with Dr. R. D. Webb, of Birmingham; was graduated from the Medical College of Alabama, M. D., 1878; from the Jefferson College, Philadelphia, Pa., 1881; and took a post graduate course at the New York Polyclinic Medical School, 1891. He began to practice medicine at Coatopa, 1878; moved to Livingston, 1887, and has continued his practice there since that time. He is a Presbyterian; a Knight of Pythias; a Mason, serving as worshipful master for six years; has been grand senior councilor of the Alabama State Medical Association; and secretary-treasurer of the Sumter County Medical Society. Married: (1) March 24, 1885, at Brewersville, Sallie M. Patton; (2) November 8, 1903, at Carrollton, Mary Ella Stansel, daughter of Martin Luther and Olivia Stansel (q. v.), of Carrollton. Children: 1. Elizabeth, Livingston; 2. Helen, d. April 1, 1907. Residence: Livingston.

BRODNAX, ROBERT, planter, was born late in the eighteenth century and came to Autauga County from Hancock County, Ga., at an early day. He represented that county in the State Legislature for many years previous to 1834 when he was elected to the Senate, defeating his opponent, Hon. William R. Pickett. Soon after he had served his term in the Senate, he moved to Mobile where he established a commission house. He spent two years in Cuba, learning the methods of raising Cuban tobacco; returned to Alabama and settled in Clarke County, where he occupied himself in the cultivation of that plant. In 1860, he supported Bell and Everett, in opposition to secession, but after the step was taken, resisted the North intensely. He was elected to the Senate from Clarke, Monroe and Baldwin counties, during 1863 and 1864, and after the fall of the Confederacy emigrated to Brazil.

BROMBERG, FREDERICK GEORGE, lawyer, representative in Congress, was born June 19, 1837, in New York City; son of Frederick and Lisette Cunigonde Dorothea (Beetz) Bromberg, natives of Hamburg, Germany, who came to America in 1832 and 1833, respectively, were married in 1834, and moved from New York to Mobile on the ship Louis Cass; grandson of Carl and Elizabeth Beetz of Hamburg, Germany. The father of Mr. Bromberg, who conducted a music and variety store in Mobile until his death in 1885, was county commissioner of Mobile County, 1867; general administrator of Mobile County, 1868-1870; and a member of the common council of the City of Mobile, 1867. Mr. Bromberg attended Harvard College and was graduated, A. B., 1858. In 1861, he entered the chemical department of Harvard College, and served for two years as assistant to Prof. Charles W. Eliot, then professor of chemistry in the Lawrence Scientific School, and later president of the university. Two years later, he was elected a tutor in mathematics at Harvard University, which position he resigned in 1865, and returned to Mobile. During the school year, 1866-1867, he acted as teacher of mathematics in the school of Madame A. de V. Chaudron; was elected a delegate to the first Republican state convention held in Alabama, 1867; was appointed city treasurer of Mobile by Gen. Pope, commander of the district, for two years; and in 1868, was elected to the state senate from the twenty-eighth senatorial district. He served in the senate for four years, and during his term was a member of the judiciary committee and the committee on banking. In 1869, he was appointed, by President Grant, postmaster of Mobile for two years. He was a delegate to the liberal Republican convention at Cincinnati which nominated Horace Greeley for president of the United States in 1872.

Mr. Bromberg, liberal Republican, was nominated for congress in 1873 from the first Alabama district by the Democratic convention which knew it could not elect a Democrat. He was elected and served one term, being a member of the committee on commerce. He voted for James G. Blaine for speaker. He was renominated for congress by the Democrats, but because of the influence brought to bear by the administration, was defeated. In 1877, he was again nominated for congress by the People's party, but was counted out. While serving in congress he took an active part in shaping and promoting legislation for the improvement of rivers and harbors of Alabama, and was author of the first national quarantine bill, which was passed by the house, but not reached in the senate because of the Louisiana embroglio. It was the beginning of the agitation which has resulted in the enactment of the national quarantine laws. In 1874, he introduced a bill for the establishment of a bureau of internal improvements, and was one of the sub-committee which drafted the "Eads' jetties" bill for the improvement of the mouth of the Mississippi River. He also introduced a resolution favoring the institution of an inquiry into the solvency of the National Freedman's Saving & Trust Company, which resulted in an investigation, and the closing of the institution.

In 1876, Mr. Bromberg was admitted to practice before the supreme court of Alabama, and four years later was admitted to practice before the supreme court of the United States. Following his admission to the bar, he retired from public life to devote himself to his profession. He has served as president, as vice-president, and as chairman of the committee on correspondence of the Alabama State Bar Association; was one of the organizers of the National Bar Association in 1888, and has served as vice-president; has been vice-president of the southern conference of Unitarian churches for many years; was appointed by Gen. Pope as school commissioner for a number of years following the War of Secession; and was one of the members from Alabama of the Columbian Centennial Commission by nomination of Gov. Seay. He was a member of the Alabama Conference Commission on Uniform State Laws; was president of the Mobile Bar Association, 1900-1902; of the Alabama Harvard Association; a fellow of the American Geographical Society; and of the National Geographical Society; an associate of the American Branch Society of Psychic Research; a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and of Phi Beta Kappa at Harvard. He is a member of the Unitarian church. He is author of "Law of National Quarantine," "A Report on Legal Education," "Admission to the Bar"; of a pamphlet entitled, "The Reconstruction Period in Alabama"; of papers of the Iberville Historical Society No. 3; and of various articles for the Alabama Law Journal. He was political and literary editor of the "Unionist," a Progressive Republican newspaper at Mobile, until 1912. Residence: Mobile.

BROOKE, HADLEY YERBY, editor and examiner of accounts, was born in Washington, D. C., and died April 6, 1915; son of John Marshall and Fannie G. (Yerby) Brooke, the latter of Jackson, Miss.; grandson of Robert and Harriet (Hitch) Brooke, and of William and Martha Yerby. The Brookes have long been seated in Fauquier County, Va., where John M. Brooke was born. He served in the C. S. Army in a cavalry company of which his cousin, James Marshall, was captain. Hadley Y. Brooke is a direct descendant of Judith Marshall, who married George Brooke. She was the daughter of Col. Thomas Marshall and the sister of Chief Justice John Marshall. He was educated in Catholic parochial schools, but never attended school after he was twelve years of age. At that age he entered the service of the "Mobile Register" and learned the printer's calling. He was for about nine years in the government printing office at Washington, and while there was color sergeant of the Washington light infantry corps. He has served as tax commissioner and tax collector of Crenshaw County. He was appointed a Federal reserve bank examiner and died while in the discharge of this duty. He was a Democrat; and a member of the Knights of Pythias. Married: July 28, 1890, at Mobile, to Sadie, daughter of Wm. W. and Frances Ingalls, of that place. Children: 1. Osborn Marshall; 2. Ed. Russell. Last residence: Luverne.

BROOKE, MYRTLE, member of the faculty of Alabama girls technical institute, 1913, Montevallo.

BROOKS, F. H., editor, of the Southern education journal and family magazine, 1843-44, the first educational journal and the second magazine published in the State, published in Mobile.

BROOKS, JAMES THOMAS, public official, was born December 22, 1840, at Lafayette, Chambers County; son of James and Malinda (Robinson) Brooks, the former a farmer and merchant of Pike County and later of Chambers County, who, with his brother, Paschal Brooks, fought in the War of 1812; grandson of James and Sallie (Traylor) Brooks, and of Thomas and Sarah (Lloyd) Robinson, natives of Georgia and Virginia, respectively. Mr. Brooks received his early education in the schools of Chambers County, entered the Methodist College, Auburn, during its first term in 1859, and attended until 1861, when he enlisted, March 22, in Co. A., Seventh Alabama regiment, C. S. Army. In 1862, he was promoted to lieutenant, and served in that position until the close of the war, often acting as captain of his company. He began the manufacture of tin and engaged in the mercantile business, 1865-1869; moved to Gadsden, 1870; was elected register in chancery of Etowah County, 1870-1886; mayor of Gadsden, 1882-1885; clerk of the circuit court, 1886-1888; clerk of the city court, since 1891. He is a Democrat; a Mason and Templar of Gadsden; a Mystic Shriner; an Odd Fellow; a Knight of Pythias; a Knight of Honor; and a Knight of the Golden Eagle. Married: April 19, 1866, Fannie Smith, daughter of John C. and Sarah (Reed) Smith. Children: 1. Susie V., m. R. N. Taliaferro; 2. Carolyn. Residence: Gadsden.

BROOKS, LESLIE EVERITT, lawyer, merchant and legislator, was born in Mobile; son of Augustus and Mary Elizabeth (Everitt) Brooks. He received his early education at the Convent of the Visitation, Mobile, and graduated at the University of Virginia, in 1856. He read and practiced law prior to the War of Secession, and merchandised afterwards. He represented Mobile County in the State senate, 1846, and was again elected in 1880; appointed postmaster of Mobile, 1885. He was a member of the lower house, 1894-95, and 1900-01; elected to the constitutional convention, 1901. He entered the Confederate service as 2nd lieutenant "Alabama Dragoons" commanded by Theodore O'Hara, and subsequently served Co. B, "Mobile cadets," 21st Alabama infantry regiment. He was appointed assistant postmaster in the Confederate States Navy; served on the C. S. Steamer "Louisiana"; was captured when New Orleans fell into the hands of the Federal troops; imprisoned at Ft. Warren, Boston Harbor, exchanged; served on the C. S. Steamer "Chattahoochee," commanded by Captain Catesby ap R. Jones; afterwards served on the "Olustee," commanded by Captain Ward, C. S. Navy; cruised off the capes of Delaware, destroying much of the enemy's commerce; served on the "Columbia" under Captain Evans, C. S. Navy. He is a Democrat. Married: January 23, 1866, at Union Springs, Elizabeth Fontaine. Residence: Mobile.

BROOKS, MILLARD F., public official, was born October 11, 1856, in Pike County; son of Jordan G. and Mary S. (Walker) Brooks, the former a native of Georgia, and later a resident of Butler County, enlisted as a private in the 33rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, was promoted successively to lieutenant and captain and killed at the battle of Murfreesboro in 1863; grandson of Robert Brooks and wife, who was a Miss Gillmore, of Georgia, the former a native of Virginia, soldier of the Revolutionary War, migrated to South Carolina in 1800, and thence to Georgia in 1810, finally settling in Pike County, in 1836; great-grandson of Andrew Walker, a native of Ireland who migrated to America in 1816 and settled first at Charlotte, N. C., and subsequently in Pike County, where he died. He received his education in the common schools of his native county and devoted his first business activities to telegraphy. Later he was interested in the lumber business. He was telegrapher and station agent for the Louisville and Nashville railroad at William, and at Brewton, and in 1886 was elected by the Democrats to the circuit clerkship of Escambia County. In 1889, he was appointed register in chancery, and by special act of the legislature of 1888-89 was made ex officio clerk of the county court. He has been chairman of the Democratic executive committee of his county, and is a Knight of Honor, and Knight of Pythias. Married: May 1, 1880, to Ella, daughter of William H. and Lucinda Anderson. Children: 1. Millard, graduated in 1900 with the degree of B. S., at the Alabama polytechnic institute, cashier of the bank of Atmore; 2. Minnie I.; 3. Leon G. Residence: Brewton.

BROOKS, WILLIAM McLIN, lawyer, was born, 1815, in Sumter District, S. C.; son of William Middleton and Elizabeth Wiche (Watson) Brooks, natives of Virginia who emigrated to South Carolina, then to Alabama and settled in 1833 in Marengo County; grandson of William and Susanna (Middleton) Brooks, both of English descent. Judge Brooks was a descendant of Virginia stock who espoused the cause of the colonies in the American Revolution. His father was engaged in merchandising, cotton raising, hotel management and the breeding of blooded stock, and was particularly known as a horseman. Judge Brooks received his early schooling in a preparatory school in S. C., and attended the South Carolina College at Columbia, until the death of his father, when he returned to Alabama to assume charge of the estate and the responsibilities of the head of the family. He continued his literary studies and, in addition, read law, until, in 1838, he was licensed to practice. He opened a law office in Linden, the Marengo County seat, and became associated with William Robinson, a wealthy planter of that vicinity, who had lately moved from Charleston; and later, with William M. Boyd, who afterward was a judge of the Alabama supreme court.

Two years after entering the practice, Judge Brooks was elected solicitor of that judicial district, and was re-elected in 1844. He resigned from that office after six years of distinguished success, and moved to Mobile where he practiced for two years in partnership with Hon. A. R. Manning, afterward member of the Alabama supreme court. The yellow fever scourge in 1853, drove him from his new home, and he located in Marion. Soon after his arrival in that city, Gov. John Anthony Winston appointed him to the circuit bench to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. A. B. Moore, who had been nominated for governor. A few months later he was elected to the same position by the people of the circuit. During the year 1856, Judge Brooks made many political speeches before large audiences in favor of Buchanan and Breckenridge. One of these addresses was delivered at a grand protracted political meeting at Uniontown, and among the orators was William L. Yancey. It fell to Mr. Brooks' part to follow Mr. Yancey, and that he was able to interest the audience under the circumstances, is evidence that he had remarkable capacity as a stump speaker. In July, 1856, Judge Brooks resigned from the circuit bench and formed a law partnership with Col. Warren Garrett. The firm became second to none in Alabama. Judge Brooks, Col. Garrett, and Robert H. Smith of Mobile were considered the three foremost lawyers of the state at a time when it boasted of such men as John T. Morgan, Gen. Pettus, Judge Clopton, William L. Yancey and others known to history. An anecdote of those times is to the effect that a preacher in Perry County clinched a plea to his congregation for their salvation with the statement, "Remember, when you die, not even Brooks and Garrett will be able to save you from hell."

When the Democrats held their convention, January, 1860, to appoint delegates to the forthcoming Charleston convention which had been called to nominate a candidate from the party for the presidency, Mr. Brooks was made one of the delegates to Charleston, and withdrew from that convention with the Alabama delegation. He took a very active and influential part in the canvass for Breckenridge and Lane in Alabama. When the Alabama convention was called to formally secede from the Union, Judge Brooks, who represented Perry County, was elected president of the body. During the war, he was chairman of a committee to provide sustenance for the support of the families of Confederate soldiers, non-slaveholders of the hill country in the vicinity of Birmingham. In 1864, when men hitherto over the age limit were being accepted for active service, he enlisted and was elected colonel of a regiment of reserve troops. Judge Brooks' partner, Mr. Garrett, then a brigadier-general in the C. S. Army, was killed at the siege of Vicksburg, and shortly afterward, his place in the firm was taken by Ex-Gov. Moore. In 1866, Judge Brooks located in Selma and practiced with John Haralson until 1886, when he moved to Birmingham, entering as senior partner in the law firm of Brooks, Bush & Vary.

Married: (1) Ann Eliza Terrell of Dayton, died 1866, daughter of a Marengo County cotton planter; (2) Annie E. Thomas, of Virginia. Children: 1. William Terrell, b. September, 1845, in Marengo County, d. 189- at Selma, enlisted in C. S. Army at the age of seventeen as sergeant-major of the Twenty-fifth Alabama, served to the close of the war under Hood and Johnston, was promoted to first lieutenant, became secretary of the Union Iron Works Company at Selma, m. Carrie L. Tuttle; 2. Julia, b. 1860, d. 1862; 3. Frank, b. in Mobile, d. July, 1862; 4. Richard Leonidas, lawyer, Birmingham; 5. Fanny, deceased; 6. Henrietta Julia, b. in Marion; 7. Ida, b. in Marion, m. John T. Bradford, Tallahassee, Fla. Last Residence: Birmingham.

BROOME, JAMES A., major, and later lieutenant colonel, 14th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BROTHERS, SAMUEL DAVID GROSS, lawyer, was born June 19, 1858, on Cane Creek, Calhoun County, and died January 25, 1901, at Jacksonville; son of Dr. Philip Houston and Ginsey (Downing) Brothers, the former a native of St. Clair County, a physician who spent his professional life almost entirely in Calhoun County, the latter a native of Calhoun County; granddaughter of Thomas J. Downing, an early pioneer of St. Clair County, a descendant of Irish parentage, who moved to Calhoun County in 1835. Dr. Brothers was brother of George Absalom Brothers, a planter, who was born May 18, 1872, and died June 23, 1900, was a graduate of the University of Alabama, A. B., 1893, LL.B., 1896, and resided at Zula; of Philip Houston Brothers, a planter, who was born November 9, 1874, was a graduate of the University of Alabama, A. B., 1895, LL. B., 1896, resides at Zula; of Dr. Thomas Jefferson Brothers, physician, who was born December 7, 1879, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1905, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, Md., resides at Anniston; and of Dr. William Patton Brothers, physician, who was born March 16, 1861, and died December 10, 1886, was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, M. D., 1886, resided at Cane Creek. Mr. Brothers was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. M., 1880, and from the law department of the university, LL. B., 1881. After leaving college, he located at Jacksonville and began to practice law. In 1883, he entered into partnership with J. J. Willett of Anniston, under the firm name of Brothers and Willett. Some time later, he was elected mayor of Jacksonville, and served in that office for three years. In 1899, he returned to Anniston, and renewed the old partnership with J. J. Willett under the name of Willett & Brothers. He was elected attorney for Calhoun County and was serving in that capacity at the time of his death. He was a Presbyterian, and a member of the Alabama State Bar Association. Married: October 21, 1885, Ella, of Jacksonville, daughter of Benjamin C. and Elsie (Snow) Wyly, natives of Georgia and Alabama, respectively. Children: one son and two daughters. Last Residence: Jacksonville.

BROTHERS, THOMAS J., physician and surgeon; graduated in Baltimore in 1903. Residence: Anniston.

BROUGHTON, JOHN THOMAS, physician, was born April 25, 1830, at Greensboro, Ga.; son of Edward and Sarah Claricy (Lackey) Broughton; grandson of John A. and Sarah (Jurdine) Broughton, of Greensboro, Ga., the former a native of England who came to this country about 1800, and of Thomas and Sarah (Davis) Lackey, of Putnam and Harris Counties, Ga., the former a native of South Carolina, of Irish parentage, who settled in Georgia in 1831, made a trip to northern Alabama in 1836, and on his return was killed by an Indian war party not far from where the town of Opelika now stands. Dr. Broughton's father was a planter in early life, who became interested in the internal improvement of the south, was one of the promoters and contractors of several of the earliest railroads of Georgia and Alabama, and, in partnership with several of his sons, built that part of the L. & N. railroad extending from Fort Deposit to Flowers Mills, in 1855-1856. Two of Dr. Broughton's brothers were killed during the War of Secession; Edwin fell before Richmond in 1862, and Lieut. L. P., in the second battle of the Wilderness. Dr. Broughton was prepared in high school at LaGrange, Ga., attended the University of Georgia at Athens, 1849; Charleston Medical College, S. C., 1850; and the University of Pennsylvania from 1851 until he was graduated, M. D., 1853. Following his graduation, he returned to LaGrange, Ga., and began to practice his profession; moved to Greenville, January, 1855, and practiced there for nearly sixty years. When he first came to Greenville, Dr. Broughton served also in the capacity of a contractor, being connected at that time with his father and brothers in the construction of the M. & M. railroad, which was built from Montgomery to Pensacola, Fla., and completed, April, 1861. He also has devoted part of his time to planting, and is the owner of four large plantations, located in the vicinity around Greenville. During the War of Secession, he served in the surgeons' corps, C. S. Army, with headquarters first at Columbus, Miss., and later at the Chimborazo Hospital, Richmond, Va., where he was stationed at the end of the war. He constructed the war hospital at Greenville in 1862. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Mason; and an Odd Fellow. Married: (1) June 30, 1853, at LaGrange, Ga., Sarah Ashford, a native of Putnam County, Ga., who died in 1878, a daughter of Thomas Ashford; (2) June, 1894, Elizabeth C. Broughton. Children, by first wife: 1. Mary, d. at the age of four years; 2. Mamie Ashford, m. Henry Z. Wilkinson, Greenville; 3. Louis Edward, physician, was graduated from Tulane

DR. RUSSELL M. CUNNINGHAM

University, New Orleans, m. Mary Belle Henderson, Andalusia; 4. Capt. Thomas Ashford, physician, m. Adele Trotter, Andalusia. Residence: Greenville and Andalusia.

BROUGHTON, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, sergeant and lieutenant; particular service not disclosed; records show that his widow, Mary Broughton, lived within the vicinity of Decatur and received payment from that branch of the State Bank.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

BROUN, WILLIAM LeROY, educator, was born October 1, 1827, in Middleburg, Loudoun County, Va., and died January 23, 1902, at Auburn; son of Edwin Conway and Elizabeth (Channel) Broun, the former a native of Lancaster County, Va., who lived in Virginia until his death in 1840; grandson of William and Jeanetta (McAdam) Broun, who lived in Lancaster County, Va., the former a native of Scotland, a prominent lawyer in northern neck Counties of Virginia, who practiced in colonial days, and of Dr. James and Susan (Pickett) Channel of Fauquier County, Va.; great-grandson of Dr. Joseph and Sarah Ann (Goskins) McAdams, and of William S. Pickett of Fauquier County, Va.; and a descendant of George Broun, of North Britain (Scotland). Dr. Broun was prepared at Warren Green Academy, Warrenton, Va., attended the University of Virginia, and was graduated from that institution, M. A., 1850. He taught school for a year in a private school in Virginia; was elected to a professorship of physics and chemistry at Oakland College, Mississippi, and filled that chair, 1852-1854; was elected to the chair of mathematics at the University of Georgia, 1854-1856; organized Bloomfield Academy, near the University of Virginia, and conducted that school, 1856-1861. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, Dr. Broun enlisted in the C. S. Army as a lieutenant of artillery. Soon after, he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel of the ordnance department and was assigned to duty as commandant of the arsenal at Richmond, over which he exercised supervision until the end of the war.

In 1866, Dr. Broun was elected professor of natural philosophy at the University of Georgia, and subsequently president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, a branch of that university, being connected with the institution until 1875. He was elected professor of Mathematics at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., 1875-1882; was called to the presidency of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 1882-1883; was elected professor of mathematics and chairman of the faculty at the University of Texas, at Austin, 1884, and resigned that position later in the year in order to accept, for the second time, the presidency of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, which he filled until his death in 1902. It was mainly through his influence that a well-equipped electrical engineering plant and a biological laboratory were added to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He was an accurate and critical classical scholar, was one of the foremost mathematicians of the country and a recognized authority on physics and astronomy. To him is accredited much of the development of industrial and technical training in the South. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by St. John's College, Maryland, in 1874, and by the University of Georgia, in 1892. He was a Democrat and an Episcopalian, of which church he was a senior church warden.

Married: November 2, 1859, in Hanover County, Va., Sarah Jane, daughter of Dr. George and Mary Orrell (Coleman) Fleming who lived at Chantilly, Va. Her brother was a professor in the University of Virginia, and fell in the battle of Fredericksburg, dying from the effect of his wounds. Children: 1. LeRoy; 2. Mary Lewis; 3. Maud Minor; 4. Elizabeth Lee; 5. Sallie Fleming, deceased; 6. George Fleming; 7. Catherine Conway. Last residence: Auburn.

BROWDER, JAMES DANIEL, physician was born May 22, 1820, in Dinwiddie County, Va.; son of Thomas and Jane D. (Montague) Browder, both natives of Virginia and descendants of prominent families in that state. He received his schooling at a neighboring academy and was graduated at the age of nineteen. He left Virginia in 1839 and came to Alabama, traveling the entire distance, twelve hundred miles, on horseback. He located in Marengo County and began to teach school, but soon after returned to Virginia to prepare himself for the practice of medicine. He entered the medical department of the University of Virginia, and took a course of lectures; entered Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., and was graduated, M. D., 1842. Returning to Alabama, he practiced medicine in Marengo and Hale Counties until he retired. He was a member of the Roman Catholic church. Married: in 1848, at Philadelphia, Pa., Maria Louisa Capron, of that city. Children: 1. a son, a planter in Sumter County; 2. William Montague, was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., M. D., 1888, practiced medicine with his father at Gallion, elected state senator, 1894-1898, special inspector of the treasury department, located at Key West, Fla.; and three daughters. Residence: Gallion.

BROWN, ADOLPHUS, business man and legislator, was born April 28, 1867, at Talladega, Talladega County; son of Oakley and Catherine (Lawrence) Brown, both natives of South Carolina; grandson of Richard and Frances Brown, and of Green and Susan Lawrence, both families residing in Union, S. C. He was educated in the schools of Talladega. He operates a grist mill, cotton warehouse and a coal mine. He represented Talladega County in the legislature of 1915. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; and Knight of Pythias. Married: October 19, 1903, at Lincoln, to Leila, daughter of Z. and Sarah (Ware) Henderson of Ragland. Residence: Attalla.

BROWN, ANDREW, deceased Presbyterian minister, mentioned in Nall's "Dead of the Synod of Alabama," 1851.

BROWN, ANNIE FINLEY (GREENE), author, was born in Tuscaloosa; daughter of Thomas Finley and Virginia (Owen) Greene (q. v.), and sister of Frances Nimmo Greene (q. v.). She was educated at home by her mother and attended the Tuscaloosa female college for two years, graduating with the M. A. degree and highest honors. She taught in the public schools for two years and also for two years in a college for girls at Sweetwater, Tenn. She is a Democrat, and member of the New church. Author: "Fireside Battles," a novel for girls; also stories published by "Youth's Companion," "Harper's," besides a number of short sketches, and essays, that have appeared in current publication. Married: in 1881, in Tuscaloosa, to Eugene Levert Brown. Children: 1. Eugene Levert. Residence: Chicago, Ill.

BROWN, ARMSTEAD, lawyer, was born June 6, 1875, at Talbotton, Talbot County, Ga.; son of Henry Clay and Susan Agnes (Dowdell) Brown, the former born at Talbotton, where he was a merchant and farmer for a number of years, eventually moved to Chambers County, Ala., and was too young for the Confederate service; grandson of Thomas Armstead and Frances B. (Smartt) Brown, the former born in Petersburg, Va., moved about 1835 to Talbotton, where he married a granddaughter of one of the Henderson families of N. C., and was connected with the quartermaster department in the War of Secession, as he was too old and infirm to serve actively in the C. S. Army, and of James F. and Sarah (Render) Dowell, who lived successively at Auburn, Lafayette and Oak Bowery, Ala.; great-grandson of Armstead Brown and Frances Dudley, of the family of Gov. Dudley of Virginia, and a descendant of the Dudleys of English history. Judge Brown received much of his education in Le Vert college, Talbotton. Here he learned short hand, and when about fourteen years of age he went to work as a stenographer for Gov. John B. Gordon, and from his office he went as stenographer to the law firm of King and Spalding (then Calhoun, King and Spalding), of Atlanta. He studied law in the office of Chief Justice J. R. Dowdell, in Lafayette, and was admitted to the bar, December 11, 1897; was register in chancery and county solicitor, 1898-1902; and practiced law in Lafayette until November 10, 1905, when he moved to Montgomery and formed a law partnership with J. Lee Holloway, which continued until he was appointed judge of the city court of Montgomery, by Gov. B. B. Comer, on February 12, 1909. At the November election of 1910 he was elected for the term ending in 1917, but resigned February 1915, and removed to Jacksonville, Fla., where he accepted a position as division counsel for the Atlantic coast line railroad. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; was for a time president of the Alabama Sunday school association, and later chairman of its State executive committee; is a Knight of Pythias; a member of Alabama State bar association; and of the Alabama Library association. Married: November 21, 1901, at Montgomery, to Elizabeth Caroline, daughter of James Samford and Annie (Joseph) Dowdell, of Montgomery, and grand-daughter of Thomas Joseph, a native of the Azores, Portugal, who settled in Montgomery and became a prominent merchant. Residence: Jacksonville, Fla.

BROWN, BERTRAM ERWIN, Episcopal clergyman, for many years a resident of the State, was born October 24, 1871, at Sumter, S. C., son of Eugene Lewis (q. v.) and Mary Serena (Hoole) Brown, of Eufaula. Rev. Mr. Brown received his early education in private schools of Eufaula, graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1891; student in the theological department, University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1891-92, and the Virginia seminary, Alexandria, Va., 1892-94; ordained deacon, 1894, and priest, 1896, in the Protestant Episcopal church. He has served churches at Marion, Uniontown, and Eufaula, and since 1909, at Tarboro, N. C. Married: at Uniontown, October 26, 1905, to Julia, daughter of Francis Harwood and Addie (Phillips) Bates, of Bates Farm, Perry County. Residence: Tarboro, N. C.

BROWN, CHARLES ALLEN, teacher, was born January 6, 1872, at Sumterville; son of William Henry and Katherine Billingsley (Henagan) Brown; who lived at Sumterville and later at Livingston, the former a soldier in the C. S. Army until he was injured in some construction work; grandson of Lewis S. and Amaranth (Parker) Brown of Sumterville, and of Ephraim Lowndes and Nancy Ann (McKinnis) Henagan, of Marlboro County, S. C. He received his education from the country schools of Sumter County; from McCainville Academy, under R. B. Calloway; from Sumterville Academy, under Rev. C. M. Hutton; was graduated from the Alabama polytechnic institute, B. S., 1892, and C. E., 1893; and attended summer school at the University of Tennessee for five summers, and at the University of Chicago for one summer. He was assistant instructor in mathematics and drawing at the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1892-1893; taught sciences in Birmingham high school, 1893-1897; became principal of the Henley school, Birmingham, 1897-1907; and was elected principal of Birmingham high school, 1907. He is a member of the Baptist church. Married: July 9, 1912, at Birmingham, to Edna Earle, daughter of Joseph Turner and Mary Magdaline (Loveless) Moore, of Bessemer; granddaughter of James and Martha (Daniel) Moore, natives of Kentucky and South Carolina respectively. Residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, CHARLES GAYLE, lawyer and attorney general of Alabama, was born December 29, 1844, at Marion, and died December 24, 1913; son of Wilson Richard and Mary Cogsdell (Parrish) Brown, the former a native of Mathews County, Va., removed in 1832-33 to Marion, Ala., where he became a banker and dry goods merchant, a Methodist, president of the board of trustees of Marion female seminary, and president of the old Perry insurance and trust company; grandson of Jonathan Gayle Brown, who was the oldest justice of the peace of Mathews County, Va., and afterwards high sheriff, his father having been a Revolutionary soldier, and of Charles and Elizabeth (Huntington) Parrish; great-grandson of Plummer Huntington of the Connecticut family of that name. The Parrish family was originally from Virginia. The Huntingtons are of English and the Browns of Scotch ancestry. Gen. Brown was educated in the schools of Marion, graduated A. M. from Howard college, and spent, 1862-63, at the University of Alabama. During the War of Secession he served as 1st sergeant Co. F, 20th Alabama infantry regiment, Pettus' division, Hardee's corps, C. S. Army. He lived successively at Marion, Birmingham and Montgomery; was solicitor Perry County, 1872-74; solicitor Jefferson County, 1896-98; and was attorney general, 1898-1902. Married: (1) in 1874, at Marion, to Irene Huntington; (2) in 1876, at Marion, to Mary, daughter of Cyrus and Sarah (Hogue) Billingslea of that place. Children: 1. Carl Abercrombie, Birmingham; 2. Cyrus Billingslea (q. v.), m. Ernestine Poole, Montgomery; 3. Bradley Gayle, m. Marie Graves, Birmingham; 4. William Henry, U. S. Army; 5. Lamar Greenville, married and lives in Iowa. Last residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, CHARLES WILLIAMS, lawyer and state senator, was born at Limrock, Jackson County, October 25, 1854; son of Jeremiah and Mary (Williams) Brown; grandson of John and Martha (Anderson) Brown, of North Carolina, and of Sam and Margaret (Gwynne) Williams. The wife of Col. John Snodgras was a sister of Jeremiah Brown. Senator Brown was educated in the common schools of Limrock, Lar-kinsville and Scottsboro; graduated at the University of Alabama, A. B., 1878, and LL. B., 1880; practiced law at Scottsboro for a number of years, but is now retired from the practice, owing to defective hearing. He served as master in chancery, 1887; and was chief clerk of the State department of education, 1888-89. In the legislature of 1911, he served as a senator from the 5th district, and in the 1915 session of that body, as a representative from Jackson County. While at college in his senior year, he was captain of Cadet Co. B. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; an Odd Fellow; a Woodman of the World; and a member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. In 1882 he was editor of the "Scottsboro Citizen." Married: September 7, 1882, at River Hill plantation, to Sallie Bell, daughter of Gen. John Reed and Mary Ann (Cross) Coffey, of Jackson County. The Coffey family is related to the Zollicoffers. Children: 1. Mary Elizabeth, m. Thomas B. Vance, Hollywood; 2. Eula Maud; 3. Annabel, m. Frank Johnson, Hollywood; 4. Octavia Eliza, died in infancy; 5. Ruth Forrestine. Residence: Glenzaida.

BROWN, CYRUS BILLINGSLEA, secretary of state of Alabama, 1911-1915, was born November 11, 1881, at Marion, Perry County; son of Charles Gayle and Mary Elizabeth (Billingslea) Brown (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Birmingham; was a member of Co. B, Second Regiment, Alabama national guard, 1899-1904; was clerk of the State legislature, 1907-1911; secretary of state of Alabama, October 5, 1910 to January, 1915; is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Knight of Pythias; and a Woodman of the World. Married: (1) November 16, 1904, at Selma, to Clara L., daughter of Clifford White and Anna (Bungert) Parke, respectively of New York City and of Selma; (2) to Mrs. Ernestine (Poole) Hinson, daughter of Edward Daniel and Annie Elizabeth (Bell) Poole of Lowndes County. Residence: Montgomery.

BROWN, DANIEL P., president of the Alabama Baptist State convention in 1824.

BROWN, EDWARD NORPHLET, JR., civil engineer, was born March 23, 1862, on a farm in Barbour County; son of Edward Norphlet and Frances Elizabeth (Long) Brown, the former a native of Carnac, Warren County, Ga., who was graduated at Franklin college, Ga., 1854, served as chaplain and quartermaster of the Forty-fifth Alabama regiment, surrendered at Greensboro, N. C., 1865, and represented Russell County in the State Legislature, 1880-1882, and 1894-1895; grandson of Washington Hardaway and Cinthia (Walker) Brown of Warren County, Ga.; great-grandson of Joel and Molly Berry (Persons) Walker of the same county. The Browns came from the town of Ayr, Scotland, and settled in Virginia. They were kin to Agnes Brown, mother of Robert Burns, the poet. The Persons and Walkers came from England and settled in North Carolina. Mr. Brown received his early education in the public schools of Barbour County, and was graduated from the Alabama polytechnic institute, A. B. and C. E., 1882. In the meantime he had done city and county surveying work in Alabama and Georgia. In 1879 and 1880 he was employed as an axe, rod, level and transit man and construction engineer on the Athens & Northwestern railway of Georgia. In 1881, he went with the Richmond & Danville railroad in western North Carolina, where he did surveying and construction work. After his graduation from college, he was given charge of the construction of a stretch of road from Chipley to Greenville, Ga. He had five hundred laborers under him and finished the job without any assistance from more experienced engineers. He was engineer of maintenance for the Central railroad of Georgia, 1884-1886, and the next year became assistant chief engineer for the same road and built a line into Birmingham. In the spring of 1887 he went to Mexico as assistant chief engineer in charge of construction on the uncompleted main line of the old National railroad of Mexico. During the ensuing year he built a section of road from Santillo to San Miguel, three hundred fifty-two miles long, which bridged a longstanding gap and opened up a through line from the American border to Mexico City. He was then promoted to chief engineer, later assuming the additional duties of division superintendent at San Luis Potosi; served as superintendent on two divisions until January, 1890, when he was made general superintendent in charge of all physical work, reporting directly to the president of the road. He held that position for ten years; was promoted in 1900 to third vice-president and general manager, and in 1901 became first vice-president and general manager. At this time he built an extension west to Uruapan, and during the next two years changed twelve hundred fifty miles of the road from narrow to standard gauge. In 1903, he was elected president of the National railroad of Mexico, and also president of the Mexican international railway. In 1908, when a merger of all the leading roads in the country was accomplished, and the National Railways of Mexico came into existence, Mr. Brown was elected president. He is an Episcopalian, and is a member of the Jockey, American, Commercial and Country Clubs, of Mexico City. Married: December 2, 1885, in Perote, Frances Thacker, daughter of Dr. William Austin and Mary Valicia (Pitts) Walker, of that city. Children: 1. William Raoul; 2. Thacker May; 3. Edward Long; 4. Gatra Minnie. Residence: Mexico City, Mexico.

BROWN, EUGENE LEVERT, druggist, was born January 22, 1846, at Oregon postoffice, Jefferson County; son of John Thompson and Catherine Elizabeth (Greene) Brown, who lived first at Oregon postoffice, Jefferson County, and later at Camargo, Miss.; grandson of John and Nancy Brown of Jefferson County, and of George Livingston and Jane (Young) Greene, natives of South Carolina, who emigrated to Alabama, and located at Oregon postoffice, Jefferson County. He was prepared at Elyton, and attended the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1863-1864. He was a traveling salesman for the Louisville drug house, Kentucky, for twelve years; for the firm of Lincoln & Brown, druggists, Little Rock, Ark., for two and one half years; served as secretary and treasurer of the Mansfield drug company, Memphis, Tenn., eight years; as president of the D. T. Weir white lead company, St. Louis, Mo., six years. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Mason. Married: July 10, 1883, at Tuscaloosa, Annie Finley Greene (q. v.), daughter of Thomas Finley and Virginia (Owen) Greene (q. v.), of Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. Eugene LeVert, jr., mechanical engineer, St. Louis, Mo.; 2. Mary Brown, b. April 8, 1889, in Memphis, Tenn.; d. April 6, 1893. Residence: St. Louis, Mo.

BROWN, EUGENE LEWIS, lawyer, was born in 1846 at Sumter, S. C., and died September 27, 1908, at Eufaula; son of John E. and Sarah (Rogers) Brown, whose ancestors were all of English descent, from emigrants who settled South Carolina in colonial times. He attended private schools in Sumter, S. C., and the University of South Carolina, from which he was graduated, B. A., 1868. He began to practice law at Clayton, Ala., in 1871; occupied the offices of postmaster and assistant postmaster of Eufaula, from 1880 until 1906. He served in the C. S. Army as a private in the First South Carolina regiment, 1862-1865. He was a Democrat, and an Episcopalian, vestryman of the St.

James Church, Eufaula, for thirty years. Married: January 18, 1871, at Eufaula, Mary Serena, daughter of Bertram Joseph and Violetta (Hunter) Hoole, the former a veteran of the Creek War and the War of Secession; granddaughter of James Lingard Hunter. Her ancestors were of English descent, settlers of South Carolina before the Revolution. Children: 1. Bertram E. (q. v.); 2. Hoyt A., connected with the American Red Cross, Baltimore, Md.; 3. A. Merrill, m. Mary Merrill, resides at Eufaula; 4. Wyatt Hunter, m. Laura Little, resides at Pittsburgh, Pa.; 5. Serena, of Atlanta, Ga. Last residence: Eufaula.

BROWN, GEORGE S., physician. Died October, 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, HAMILTON, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 79, and a resident of Greene County; private S. C. Militia; enrolled on September 17, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 14, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Greene County, June 1, 1840, aged 86.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BROWN, HARDIE, Methodist minister, was born August 8, 1832, at Gallatin, Tenn., and died August 27, 1887, at Birmingham; son of Barton Benson and Elizabeth (Parker) Brown, of Sumner County, Tenn., near Gallatin, the former a native of Georgia and a Methodist minister; grandson of King and Martha Parker, of Sumner County, Tenn. He worked on his father's farm in the spring and summer, going to school a few months in the fall and winter, until he was seventeen years of age. He obtained his first instruction at Gallatin academy under Prof. Mallory. After attending this school for two sessions, he was appointed assistant, and taught for two years, then entered the sophomore class in Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn., and was graduated with honor, A. M. After his graduation, he taught in the university for a year; was elected to a professorship in Dallas Male academy, at Selma, Ala., where he taught nearly two years; was elected professor of Greek and Latin in the Centenary institute at Summerfield for two years; was admitted to the Alabama conference on trial, and sent to Jonesboro circuit. He entered the C. S. Army as chaplain of the Twenty-eighth Alabama regiment, and went through the campaign around Corinth, Miss., and on Bragg's march into Kentucky. He left the army temporarily, taking charge of the Spring Hill circuit, and later of the Perryville circuit, then returned to the army and was captured in the battle of Selma. After the war, he was elected principal of Prattville high school, for two years; was transferred to the North Alabama conference in 1870, and stationed at Florence for three years. He was elected professor of ancient languages in the State normal college at Florence, holding that position for eight years, and then was elected president of the institution. In the meantime he filled pastorates at Courtland for three years, and at Decatur for one year. After holding the presidency for three years, he resigned from the State normal college, and in the fall of 1884 was appointed by Bishop John C. Keener to the pastorate of the First Methodist Church of Birmingham, and was holding this charge at the time of his death in 1887. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Vanderbilt university. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow. Married: (1) May 24, 1860, at Summerfield, Loula McGehee, who died March 10, 1870, daughter of Abner and Louisa (Lamar) McGehee, of Eufaula; first cousin of L. Q. C. Lamar; (2) in 1874, Mrs. Julia Broddie. Children by first marriage: 1. Robert McGehee, d. April 1, 1909; 2. a daughter, m. Edward K. Campbell, chief justice court claims, Washington, D. C.; 3. Edward Lamar, principal of Lakeview school, Birmingham; 4. daughter, m. C. H. Ohme, Birmingham; by second marriage: 5. Lucien C., Birmingham; 6. daughter, m. James Brock, Florence. Last residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, HENRY HART, lawyer, was born August 24, 1837, at Hopewell, Tuscaloosa County, and died January 9, 1903, at East Lake, Jefferson County; son of John and Rachel Potts (Norris) Brown; grandson of George and Sarah (Adair) Brown, and of John and Elizabeth (Harrell) Norris; great-grandson of Jacob and Martha (Jennings) Harrell, and of an Adair, who is said to have been killed as a soldier in the Revolution. George Brown came from Tennessee about 1817, and located in Tuscaloosa County, but about 1845 he moved to Mississippi, where he and his wife died. The Harrell and Norris families emigrated from Kentucky, probably as early as 1817, and also settled in Tuscaloosa County. John Brown and John Norris were Baptist preachers. It is thought that his several lines of ancestry are traceable to Virginia antecedents. Henry H. Brown received a common school education, clerked in his father's store in Northport until the outbreak of War of Secession, joined Alabama regiment under command of Col. Hatch, afterward commanded by Col. C. P. Ball, as commissary sergeant. He served throughout the war, and was captured near Montgomery, by Wilson's raiders. After the war, he became a merchant in Northport until 1875, then farmed for three years. In 1874, he was elected to the lower house of the State legislature from Tuscaloosa County, and was re-elected in 1876. In 1877, he was elected sheriff of that county. He was sent to the legislature in 1880, returned in 1882 and in 1884. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, and opened practice in Tuscaloosa. He served as solicitor of the county, 1880-1886. From 1883 until 1886, he was editor of the Tuscaloosa "Times." He was grand master of the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 1888-1890. He took an active interest in educational affairs, and was a trustee of the State university, 1884-1892. About 1886, he moved to Jefferson County, and engaged in business in Birmingham. He represented that county in the house, 1890-1891. After removing to Birmingham, he edited and published "The Masonic Guide," the official organ of the Masons of Alabama. He was a Baptist and a member of the Alabama historical society. Married: (1) September 22, 1859, in Tuscaloosa County, Louisa T. Cardwell; (2) March 11, 1873, in Northport, Jessie E., daughter of Josiah and America (Slaughter) Freeman. Children, by first marriage: 1. James T.; 2. Jesse W.; 3. John H.; 4. Charles; 5. Minnie E.; 6. Mattie A.; 7. Annie, deceased; by second marriage: 8. Clare. Last residence: East Lake, Jefferson County.

BROWN, ISAAC, member of the constitutional convention of 1819, from Blount County.

BROWN, JAMES CLINTON, lawyer and State senator, was born May 2, 1868, at Olmstead, Tuscaloosa County; son of Randall R. and Susanah (Emerson) Brown; grandson of John Allen and Patsy (Hobbs) Brown, and of James and Martha Capps Emerson. Randall R. Brown came from North Carolina to Tuscaloosa County, where he became a farmer. He was a Confederate soldier; and served one term as county commissioner. He died at seventy years of age and was buried at Hopewell, in Tuscaloosa County. James Emerson was an emigrant from Georgia to Tuscaloosa County; served as a Confederate soldier and was twice wounded; and lived to be nearly one hundred years old, and is buried in Tuscaloosa County. Senator Brown received his primary education in the public schools of the county, and graduated at the University of Alabama, A. B., 1890, as a LL. B., 1892. From 1895 to 1898 he was editor of the "West Alabama Breeze"; was assessor, 1893 and 1894; and in 1898 was elected probate judge, serving until 1911. In 1911 he represented Tuscaloosa County in the legislature, and was elected to the State senate, 1915, from the Eleventh district. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Mason; an Odd Fellow; an Elk; a Woodman of the World; an Eagle; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Tuscaloosa, May 9, 1900, to Mary Grace, daughter of Jesse M. and Sallie (Thomas) Maxwell, of Tuscaloosa. Her grandfather, Mathew C. Thomas, was once tax collector, and was for several years county commissioner of Tuscaloosa County. Children: 1. James Maxwell; 2. Marine Lawley. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BROWN, JAMES VANDIVER, teacher, graduated, B. S., from the Alabama polytechnic institute, 1894; M. S., 1895; superintendent of Dothan schools in 1913. Residence: Dothan.

BROWN, JEREMIAH H., planter, was born in 1800, in Darlington District, S. C., and died February 10, 1868; son of Samuel Brown, a Baptist minister, who emigrated from England with his wife. He was graduated from South Carolina college with highest honors, 1823; studied law, and was admitted to the bar. He never practiced law, however, as the management of his planting interests occupied his entire time. In 1835, he emigrated from South Carolina to Alabama, taking his slaves with him, and settled near Sumterville. His business increased until he owned more than a thousand slaves and a plantation of more than eight thousand acres. He was a Baptist and devoted much of his time and wealth to the church. For many years, he donated fifteen thousand dollars yearly to the missionary cause. He furnished the means to educate forty young men in Howard college for the ministry of his church, and in 1855, endowed the Brown theological chair in that college. During the war, he furnished the means to equip and provide for perhaps more than a regiment of soldiers, and after the emancipation, so great was the affection of his slaves that many of them refused freedom to remain in his service. Married: in 1834, Julia, daughter of Robert Hines, of South Carolina. Children: 1. Laura, m. (1) 1853, Col. H. S. Lide, farmer and aide-de-camp to Gov. Shorter during the war, d. 1879, (2) October 5, 1880, Dr. James G. Forster, of Livingston, three sons and two daughters by first marriage; 2. son; 3. son. Last residence: Livingston.

BROWN, JESSE EDWARD, lawyer, was born May 1, 1845, at Caney Cove, Jackson County, and died August 15, 1905, at Scottsboro; son of Jeremiah and Mary Magadalien (Williams) Brown; grandson of Samuel and Margaret (Gwynn) Williams, who lived near Larkinsville, Jackson County. His father, a descendant of a family of North Carolinians which emigrated to Alabama and gave its name to Brownsboro, moved from that place and located on a farm in Caney Cove, where he lived until his death, soon after the War of Secession. Mr. Brown entered the C. S. Army at the age of sixteen years, as a private in the First Arkansas infantry, where he had a brother who fell at the battle of Shiloh, and was buried from a Confederate hospital. Because of his youth and the fact that there were no others from his county in the regiment, he was discharged and at once enlisted in Co. C., Fourth Alabama cavalry, Capt. Frank B. Gurley's command. He was in battle near Farmington, was wounded and captured at the second battle of Fort Donelson, and was held a prisoner at Louisville and Baltimore for about two months. He fought at Murfreesboro, at Chickamauga and was wounded July 1864, in the battle of Noonday Creek, to the right of Kenesaw Mountain, Ga. Immediately afterward, his right leg was amputated above the knee in a field hospital. After the war, he entered Georgetown college, Kentucky, and later, Cumberland university, Tennessee, where he was graduated from the law department. He was admitted to the bar in August, 1869, at Huntsville, and engaged in active practice in the counties of north Alabama, with an office at Scottsboro from 1871 until the time of his death. He represented Jackson County in the State legislature during the sessions of 1872 and 1873, and was elected a member of the constitutional convention of 1875. He was a Democrat, and was a delegate to the national convention which first nominated Bryan for president. He was an Episcopalian and an Odd Fellow. Married: November 5, 1873, at Winchester, Tenn., Virginia Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. Ira Goff and Elvira Ann (Dillard) Wood, of that place. Children: 1. Zaida, m. Atticus Dickson Kirby, resides at Huntsville; 2. Lawrence Edward (q. v.), resides at Montgomery; 3. Clifford, b. in 1878, d. 1880; 4. Jessie, m. Fred Arn, resides at Chattanooga, Tenn.; 5. Virginia, resides at Scottsboro. Last residence: Scottsboro.

BROWN, JOEL BASCOM, lawyer and associate justice supreme court, was born May 18, 1872, on a farm near Somerville, Morgan County; son of George R. and Sarah (Morris) Brown, the former a native of South Carolina, who in early life lived in Georgia; was a Confederate soldier, Army of Northern Virginia; and immediately after the war removed to Morgan County, and engaged in farming; and the grandson of Drew H. Morris, of Cobb County, Ga. Judge Brown obtained his early education at the Gum Spring school in Morgan County, and the Hartselle male and female school; later privately studied law four years in Cullman; was admitted to the bar there in March, 1892; admitted to practice in the supreme court and the U. S. courts in 1894; and until his election to the State court of appeals engaged in a general practice in the State and Federal courts. He was a member of the Cullman County board of education, 1910-1912; on Gov. B. B. Comer's military staff, 1907-1911, as assistant judge-advocate general, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was elected associate judge of the court of appeals, November 3, 1914, and November 1, 1919, was appointed an associate justice of the supreme court, to succeed Judge J. J. Mayfield, who had resigned to accept the position of code commissioner. He is a Democrat; was an alternate delegate from the State at large to the National democratic convention in 1908; and member of the State executive committee, 1907-1910, from the 7th congressional district. He is a Methodist and a Knight of Pythias. Married: in Cullman, November 24, 1898, to Minnie, daughter of Henry L. and Mary (Hays) Heidelberg. Residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, and a resident of Jefferson County; private, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on March 15, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from September 4, 1833; annual allowance, $80.66.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

BROWN, JOHN ALEXANDER, planter, was born October 20, 1863, near Buchanan, Haralson County, Ga.; son of Seaborn Solomon and Martha Finch (Atkinson) Brown, natives of Georgia; grandson of Killis and Nancy (McGarity) Brown, who lived and died in DeKalb County, six miles from Atlanta, and of Archibald and Martha Atkinson, of Henry County, Ga. Mr. Brown attended the common schools and the college at Bowdon, Ga., but did not graduate. He is now engaged in merchandising, milling and farming; is a stockholder in the Bank of Heflin; and is the largest individual tax payer in Cleburne County, was elected a representative to the legislature 1903, and re-elected in November, 1907. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; an Odd Fellow and a Mason. Married: December 25, 1880, to Lillian, daughter of Richard and Mollie Vance, of Graham. Residence: Bell's Mills.

EUGENE A. SMITH

BROWN, JOHN C., major, 12th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BROWN, JOHN PINKNEY, author, was born January 19, 1842, at Rising Sun, Ohio County, Ind.; son of Elbridge Gerry and Adaline (Stile) Brown, the former of Rising Sun, Ind., a captain of several pioneer steamboats from 1825 to 1860, which were among the earliest steamboats plying the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, the latter a native of Vermont; grandson of Gen. Samuel and Jerusha (Bent) Brown, of Sudbury, Mass., the former a general in the Massachusetts militia during the Revolution. He was educated in the common schools of Indiana, and at Hanover College, where he studied civil engineering. He enlisted as a private in the Sixteenth Indiana regiment, U. S. Army, during the War of Secession, and served from 1861 until 1864, then was with the Mississippi River service on U. S. steamers. In 1865, he was connected as a civil engineer with the construction of the Central Pacific railway in California; made a survey of the state line between California and Nevada, 1866; made land surveys in Kansas, 1868-1876; and was given the contract for an astronomical survey of the Crow Indian boundary in Montana, 1890. He organized the Indian Forestry Association in 1895, and the International Society of Arboriculture, with Hon. J. Sterling as president, in 1900. He was later secretary and treasurer of the latter organization. He originated the system of tree planting by railways for future timber and tie supply. He was editor of the magazine, "Arboriculture," from 1902 to 1909; moved from Connersville, Ind., to Carney, Alabama, in 1908, and established a model forest farm in Baldwin County, of two hundred acres on which he has planted two million forest trees and has caused the planting of one hundred million trees in other localities. He is author of "Practical Arboriculture," published in 1906; was a Republican until 1892, since which time he has been an Independent. He is a Presbyterian, a Royal Arch Mason, and a member of numerous foreign societies of forestry. Married: March 12, 1868, at Baldwin, Kan., Mary Ellen Stephens, daughter of Richard and Sophia Stephens, of Baldwin, Kan. Children: 1. Alfred T., m. Edith Remelin, resides at Cincinnati, O.; 2. Mary E., died while a missionary to Korea; 3. Glenville G., m. Ada Crossett, resides at Akron, O.; 4. Adaline S., m. Henry Hessler, resides at Piqua, O.; 5. Jessie H., m. Dr. Frank Perry, resides at Norwood, O.; 6. Emma Lou, m. Robert L. Greenwood, resides at Connersville, Ind.; 7. Walter P., m. Edwina Kruse, resides at Mobile; 8. Alice Elaine, resides at Carney; 9. Helen G., resides at Carney; 10. Cora E., m. George G. Stephenson, resides at Connersville, Ind. Residence: Carney.

BROWN, JOHN (RED), emigrated to Alabama from South Carolina about the year 1818, and was one of the earliest white settlers of Blount County. He was an uncle of Waldo W.

Shearer, for many years a citizen of Sumter County. Judge Brown represented Blount County in the legislature when Jefferson County was still a part of it. He was a member of both houses of the general assembly and judge of the county court about the year 1832. In 1834, he moved to Tuscaloosa, was steward of the university there until his removal to Texas two or three years later. Married: a Miss Brooks.

BROWN, LAWRENCE EDWARD, lawyer, was born August 4, 1876, at Scottsboro; son of Jesse Edward and Virginia Elizabeth (Wood) Brown (q. v.); grandson of Jeremiah and Mary Magadalen (Williams) Brown, and of Dr. Ira Goff and Elvira Ann (Dillard) Wood. He received his education from Tri-State University, at Scottsboro, and from the University of Virginia. He was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law at Scottsboro. He enlisted in the U. S. Army, 1898, as battalion adjutant of the First Alabama infantry, U. S. volunteers, and served through the Spanish-American war with the rank of first lieutenant. He moved to Montgomery and continued his practice there, and was appointed in 1919, assistant attorney general of Alabama. He is a Democrat and an Episcopalian. Residence: Scottsboro.

BROWN, PUGH ULPIN, physician; graduate of the medical department of Tulane university, New Orleans, 1895, and entered upon the practice that year. Residence: Troy.

BROWN, ROBERT LELAND, chemist, was born April 26, 1879, at Beloit, Rock County, Wis.; son of Rev. Dr. William Fiske and Hila Mandana (Bennett) Brown, the former a resident of Beloit, who served in Co. B, 40th Wisconsin volunteer infantry, one of the "Hundred Days" men of 1864, author of "Past Made Present" and "History of Rock County, Wis."; grandson of Benjamin and Lucy Ann Brown, and of Almon and Calista L. Bennett, all of Beloit. He was educated in the public schools of his native town and at Beloit college academy, graduating in 1902 from the latter institution with degree of B. S., cum laude, and with E. M. degree from Colorado school of mines, 1905; coached the C. S. M. baseball team in 1904, which won the championship; has practiced his profession in New Mexico and Colorado; professor of mines and geology, Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn, 1907-1917; and is now in the service of the Tennessee coal, iron & railway company. He is a Presbyterian. Married: at Beloit, June 15, 1906, Caroline Reed Dorothy, daughter of Rev. Dr. George Roswell and Henriette (Swan) Leavitt, of that place. Children: 1. Roswell Fiske; 2. Robert Bennett; 3. Dorothy Leavitt; 4. Louise Kendrick. Residence: Birmingham.

BROWN, ROBISON, lawyer, was born January 18, 1871, at Olmstead, Tuscaloosa County, son of Randall Robison and Susana (Emerson) Brown, the former a native of Chapel Hill, Wake County, N. C., who moved near Cottondale, Tuscaloosa County, lived there until 1890 when he moved to Tuscaloosa, where he died, July 31, 1899; grandson of John Allen and Patsy (Hobbs) Brown, who lived near Tuscaloosa, and of James and Martha (Capps) Emerson who lived near Cottondale. Mr. Brown's father, being too old for a regular, enlisted on April 18, 1864 as a member of Co. G, Third Alabama reserves, C. S. Army, and was mustered into service August 1, 1864. Robison was educated in the country schools of Tuscaloosa County, at Pleasant Hill academy, Jefferson County; entered the sophomore class at the University of Alabama, and was graduated, A. B., 1890, and LL. B., 1892. He was licensed to practice law by the supreme court of Alabama, July 26, 1892, and since then has been engaged in a general practice in Tuscaloosa. He has been attorney for the county and was also city attorney for several years. He was elected presidential elector for the sixth congressional district, in 1908; has been secretary of the board of trustees of the University for more than ten years, and has been university land commissioner since June 1905. He is a Democrat, and has served as a delegate to county and state conventions, and is a Baptist. Married: January 10, 1893, at Tuscaloosa, Stella Seed, daughter of Charles C. and Mattie Cordette (White) Seed; a descendant of William White, and a sister of Lieut.-Gov. Walter D. Seed. Children: 1. Kathrina; 2. Orlando, d. in infancy; 3. Marian; 4. Charles Randall; 5. Stella; 6. Robison, jr.; 7. Jenidel; 8. Mattie Cordette. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BROWN, SAMUEL, physician, was born in Rockbridge County, Va., January 30, 1769, and died near Huntsville, January 12, 1830; son of Rev. John Brown, who emigrated from the north of Ireland to America, and settled in Virginia. He was a graduate of Dickinson college, Pennsylvania; studied medicine under Dr. Rush in Philadelphia; and received his M. D. degree from the University of Aberdeen, Scotland. He practiced medicine in Washington City, Lexington, Ky., New Orleans, and Natchez, Miss., and was professor of the theory and practice of medicine in the Transylvania university, Lexington, Ky., 1819-25. He invented the use of steam in the distillation of spirits; devised the method of clarifying ginseng for the Chinese market; was distinguished for his application of industrial chemistry to agricultural processes; introduced the process of lithotrity in surgery from France into the United States; established a medical society at Lexington; and advocated in 1799, the gradual emancipation of slaves in Kentucky. He was a successful physician at Huntsville for a number of years. He contributed many scientific articles to various papers, philosophical societies and medical journals. Last residence: Huntsville.

BROWN, T. B., lieutenant colonel, 1st Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army.

BROWN, THOMAS HENRY, editor, was born October 19, 1845, at Upatoi, Muscogee County, Ga., and died at Troy, December 8, 1912; son of Joseph Thomas and Virginia Henrietta (Pride) Brown, the former of Virginia and the latter of Columbus, Ga.; grandson of Joseph and Mary Brown, of Lumpkin, Ga., and of John and Sarah Pride, of Columbus, Ga. Both grandfathers were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. He was educated in the schools of Upatoi, Ga., and Opelika; served in the 31st Georgia infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was a farmer; editor and proprietor of the "Troy Herald", justice of the peace and a school trustee for twenty-five years; and represented Pike County in the legislature of 1911. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: (1) in 1867, to Roana, daughter of Rev. Dr. Oliver and Olive Fleming, of Midway, who died in 1889; (2) to Susan Alline Turner. Children: 1. Walter; 2. Wallace; 3. Tom; 4. Carl; 5. Brady; 6. Wilber; 7. Mary L. Mathison; 8. Jessie May Brooks; 9. Ella Virginia Smith; 10. Ariosto Wiley. Last residence: Troy.

BROWN, WARREN DAVIS, printer and publisher, was born March 23, 1833, at Spartanburg, S. C.; son of Mordecai and Mary Ann (Cryme) Brown, of Jacksonville, Calhoun County. His educational advantages were limited and he picked up much of his knowledge in a printing office where he learned to be a compositor. He worked on different papers, books and periodicals, and served as local editor of the Montgomery "Advertiser," for several years before and during the War of Secession. In his capacity as press representative, he was a member of the committee of escort which went to West Point to welcome and accompany Jefferson Davis to Montgomery, where he was soon to be inaugurated president of the Southern Confederacy. After the conclusion of peace, Mr. Brown was connected with the Montgomery "Mail," as local editor for a short time, then entered the book and job printing business, conducting a printing and publishing establishment for about twenty years. He retired in 1890. He served as marshal and librarian of the supreme court of Alabama from 1861 to 1865; was a member of the city council of Montgomery for about six years; served as a member of the board of revenue of Montgomery County for about twenty-one years, and during twelve years of this time, was president of the board. He has been president of the associated charities of Montgomery, and has acted as a director in banking institutions for many years. He is a Presbyterian and a Mason. Married December 12, 1861, Elizabeth Crenshaw, who died in May, 1901; daughter of Henry and Maria Crenshaw of Montgomery. Children: 1. Warren C., m. Mary Tanner; 2. Baylis Hervy, b. May 20, 1865, printer and publisher, m. September 1, 1891, Lida E. Ellsberry, resides at Montgomery; 3. Zadie, m. E. P. Amerine; 4. Effie, m. Charles W. Hawthorne. Residence: Montgomery.

BROWN, WATT THOMAS, business man and legislator, was born August 28, 1865, at Kymulga, Talladega County; son of Oakley and Catherine (Lawrence) Brown, the former was born at Gandysville, Union District, S. C., removed to Talladega County where he lived and died, served in Co. D, 21st Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Richard and Mina (Huckaby) Brown, of Virginia and of Green and Susan (Morris) Lawrence. He was educated in the common schools; has been a merchant since 1886; was alderman of Attalla, 1891-92; formed Ragland coal company in 1896; was mayor of Ragland one term, and an alderman of that town for fourteen years; represented St. Clair County in the house of representatives, 1902-06; member of the State senate from the sixth senatorial district, 1911, 1915, and 1919. In 1911 he organized the Bank of Ragland, becoming president, and has served continuously ever since. He is a Democrat; Methodist; and Knight of Pythias. Married: November 12, 1902, at Ashville, to Mrs. Liza (Inzer) Freeman, daughter of Col. John W. and Sallie (Pope) Inzer (q. v.) of Ashville. Children: 1. Lila Kathryn; 2. Elizabeth Inzer; 3. Watt Thomas, jr.; 4. one step-son, Captain John Inzer Freeman, 39th U. S. infantry, 4th division, A. E. F. Residence: Ragland.

BROWN, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 88, resided in Dallas County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BROWN, WILLIAM GARROTT, author, was born April 24, 1868, at Marion; son of Wilson Richard and Mary Cogswell (Parish) Brown; grandson of Joshua Yale Brown, whose wife's maiden name was Ferguson, of Mathews County, Va., and of Henry and Elizabeth (Huntington) Parish of Hillsboro, N. C. His father, a native of Mathews County, Va., lived in Louisburg, N. C., and in Marion. He was a merchant, banker, and planter, who lost his fortune supporting the Confederacy. The ancestry of Mr. Brown, as far as has been traced, is all pure English. On his father's side, his forbears were planters in Virginia; on his mother's side, he is descended from Connecticut and Virginia stock. The Huntingtons are from the famous Revolutionary family. Record of the paternal ancestry was lost in the destruction by fire of the registry of Brinton Parish during the War of Secession.

Mr. Brown was prepared in the boys' department of Marion Female Seminary; at various dames schools; and in Maj. I. W. Vaiden's boys' school at Marion. He was graduated with first honors from Howard College at Marion, A. B., 1886; and in 1887, when that college was moved to East Lake, was elected first member in the faculty of the new school, Marion Military Institute, which was then established on the old foundation. He served as professor of English for two years, then entered Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., as a junior in 1889. He was graduated from Harvard with the highest honors in the history of the institution, A. B., 1891, and a year later was granted the degree of A. M. History and politics now began to absorb his time. As president of the Harvard Democratic Club, he stumped the state of Massachusetts for Cleveland in 1892. In 1896, he served on the state committee of "National Democrats," supporters of the Gold Democrat movement. Since that time, he has been independent in politics.

He held various offices in the Harvard library from 1892 until 1900; was lecturer on American history at Harvard, 1901-1902; and since that time has been an author and journalist. He has been editorial writer on "Harper's Weekly" since 1908, and is also editorial writer for the "Youth's Companion."

He is author of "A List of Portraits in the Various Buildings of Harvard University," Harvard University, 1898; "Official Guide to Harvard University," 1899-1903; "A History of Alabama," University Publishing Company, New York and New Orleans, 1900, State History Series; "Andrew Jackson," Houghton, Mifflin & Company, Boston, 1900; "Stephen Arnold Douglas," Houghton, Mifflin & Company, Boston, 1902; "The Lower South in American History," The Macmillan Company, New York, 1902; "Golf," 1902; "A Gentleman of the South," The Macmillan Company, New York, 1903; "The Foe of Compromise and Other Essays," The Macmillan Company, New York, 1903; "The Life of Oliver Ellsworth," The Macmillan Company, New York, 1905; and has been contributor to the "Atlantic Monthly;" "The Independent;" "American Historical Review;" "The Critic;" the "Fortnightly;" "The Dial;" "American Journal of Sociology;" "The Nation;" "Outlook;" "North American Review;" "Harvard Graduates Magazine;" "The Montgomery Advertiser;" "The South Atlantic Quarterly;" "Century;" and "The Youth's Companion." Residence: Colonial Club, Cambridge, Mass.

BROWN, WILSON R., business man, was born September 5, 1860, in Marion; deceased; son of Wilson Richard and Mary Cogswell (Parish) Brown, natives of Mathews County, Va., and of Hillsboro, N. C., respectively; grandson of Joshua Yale Brown and of Henry and Elizabeth (Huntington) Parish. The Huntington family, settlers of Connecticut in colonial days, are of English descent. Mr. Brown is a brother of Charles Gayle Brown (q. v.), and of William Garrott Brown (q. v.). He received his education at Howard College, Marion, and became teller in a bank there when he was fifteen years old. The next year, he was employed in a wholesale dry goods store, at Selma, and spent his spare time in study. He went to Nashville, Tenn., in 1883, and became traveling salesman for a large wholesale establishment; returned to Marion three years later and edited the Marion "Standard" for one year; engaged in the real estate business at Sheffield in 1886, and became president of the Real Estate Association of that city. Last residence: Sheffield.

BROWNE, CECIL, lawyer, was born January 27, 1855, at Montevallo, Shelby County, deceased; son of William Phineas and Margaret Elizabeth Warwick (Stevens) Browne (q. v.). He received his early education from private tutors and in the Ruhama high school, in Jefferson County; and attended the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., 1870-1872. He read law in the office of Judge John T. Heflin, at Talladega, and was admitted to the bar, February 13, 1878. He practiced his profession continuously until September, 1910, when he was appointed judge of the city court of Talladega, by Gov. O'Neal, to which position, he was elected in November, 1912. He represented Talladega County in the State legislature, 1882-1883, serving as a member of the judiciary committee and as chairman of the committee on enrolled bills; was a member of the State senate from Talladega and Clay Counties during the sessions of 1884-1885 and 1885-1886, serving as chairman of the committee on local legislation, 1884-1885, and was a member of the judiciary committee and of the committee on revision of laws, 1885-1886; was again elected to the lower house, 1896-1897, and served through that session as chairman of the judiciary committee and led the fight in the house on the Barnes-Boykin bill, giving additional powers to the railroad commission; was a delegate to the constitutional convention of 1901, where he served as a member of the rules committee and as chairman of the committee on taxation. He was a Democrat and a Baptist. Married: (1) at Talladega, to Sallie B. Moseley, who died May 14, 1877, daughter of Dr. R. A. and Maria (Stevens) Moseley, who lived at Talladega; (2) December 7, 1892, to Sara Booker, daughter of Capt. E. W. and Martha (Knight) Booker, who lived at Uniontown, the former who was revenue collector of Alabama under President Cleveland, was one of the convict inspectors during the administration of Gov. Johnston, and was judge of the inferior court at Woodlawn, in Jefferson County, by appointment of Gov. O'Neal. Children, by first marriage: 1. Claude, served as sergeant major, Forty-seventh infantry, U. S. volunteers, in the Philippines during the Spanish-American War, m. Isabella Spearpoint of Newark, N. J., resides in Worden, Mont.; by second marriage: 2. Nina; 3. Rollin. Last residence: Talladega.

BROWNE, NEWBERN HOBBS, lawyer, was born December 16, 1824, in Cumberland County, N. C., and died March 25, 1891, at Tuscaloosa; son of John Allen and Pattie Hobbs (Newbern) Browne, the former a native of North Carolina, who settled in Tuscaloosa County, in 1834; grandson of Henry and Lucy (Warnock) Browne of North Carolina, the former a native of Ireland, who located first in Virginia, and later removed to North Carolina. He received a good preparatory education and was graduated from the University of Alabama, 1846; read law with Judge B. F. Porter and in 1848 entered upon the practice at Tuscaloosa. In 1874 he was elected judge of probate of that county and served continuously from that date until his death. He was a trustee of the Alabama insane hospital and for the Alabama central female college. During 1851-53 he edited the "Tuscaloosa Observer," a strong Democratic paper. From 1853 to 1859 he occupied a seat in the lower house of the legislature, and in the latter year was elected circuit solicitor, which office he resigned to enter the Confederate Army. Again, however, in 1873, he was once more elected to the legislature. Early in 1862 he enlisted as a private in Lumsdale's battery, C. S. Army, and served with that command for two years, after which he temporarily resigned, owing to ill health. In 1864 he again joined his battery and remained with it until the close of the war. He was a Baptist, and Knight of Honor. Married: January 21, 1874, in Tuscaloosa, to Mary Eliza, daughter of William Wellington and Lucretia Eliza (Owen) Prude. Children: 1. Jessie; 2. Mary Emma; 3. Lula Hobbs; 4. Pattie Owen; 5. Stella Searcy; 6. Newbern Allen. All of the foregoing live in Tuscaloosa, except the last named who resides at Joliet, Ill. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BROWNE, SAMUEL BARNETT, lawyer and circuit judge, was born September 18, 1844, at Mount Vernon, Mobile County, son of Phreadius P. and Cornelia (Ewing) Browne; the former first located in Tuscaloosa in 1830, removed to New Orleans, finally located in Mobile in 1840, where he engaged in the mercantile business; and about 1850 went to Texas, where he died of yellow fever in 1853; grandson of George and Marie (Rucker) Browne, and of Thomas and Susanna (Barnett) Ewing, who resided near Augusta, Ga. The Brownes are of English stock, the father of George Browne emigrating from England and settling in Kentucky, where he married, his wife being the daughter of a Frenchman, who participated in the French Revolution, and who was compelled to escape to America. Judge Browne was educated in the common schools of the county, and at the classical schools of Forkland and Pleasant Ridge. He was a private in the "Greene County Greys," Co. B, 11th Alabama infantry regiment, Army of Northern Virginia; was in the several battles and engagements of his command until June 30th, 1862, when he lost his right leg in the battle of Frazier's Farm, while charging a battery. Although disabled, he afterwards served in the Tennessee campaign with Gen. John B. Hood. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1867; located in Eutaw, Greene County, and served as tax assessor 1865-68; in 1870, removed to Butler, Choctaw County, and the same year removed to Mobile. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; and a member of the Knights of Honor. In November, 1904, he was elected Judge of the 13th judicial circuit, and re-elected on November 8th, 1910. Married: January 4, 1883, to Annie Zulieka, daughter of George L. and Pernicia Elizabeth (Malone) Boice; granddaughter of Abram and Lois (Knickerbocker) Boice of New York, and of William and Patience (Hawkins) Malone, the former descended from early settlers of Alabama and the latter of a Georgia family. Children: 1. Samuel Oliphant, m. Lillie Katz and resides in Mobile; 2. Minnie Boice, d. in September, 1895; 3. Ewing; 4. Gregory Smith; 5. Ethel; 6. Annie Boice; 7. Hubert Wattles. Residence: Mobile.

BROWNE, WILLIAM BRADFORD, lawyer, was born in 1853, in Philadelphia, Pa.; son of William Phineas Browne (q. v.); and brother of Cecil Browne (q. v.). He removed to Alabama in his early youth with his parents; was educated at Spring Hill college, Mobile, and at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. He began the study of law at Montevallo, 1871.

with Paul H. Lewis; was admitted to the bar in 1873, at Columbiana, and was a most successful lawyer of that place until his death. Married: in 1885, at Columbiana, to Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel B. Roper, of that place. Children: 1. Chester; 2. Margaret Stevens, m. Harold Earl Broughton; 3. Myra, m. Frederick Joseph Keonig; 4. Bradford, d. young; 5. Emma; 6. Elizabeth. Last residence: Columbiana.

BROWNE, WILLIAM PHINEAS, pioneer coal operator, member Alabama legislature, was born July 9, 1804, at Waltham, Mass., and died in Shelby County, in 1869; son of Phineas and Elizabeth (Rosseter) Browne, nee Backus, the former a native of Waltham, Mass., who died in 1818 in Waltham, Addison County, Vt.; grandson of Capt. John and Hannah (Bemis) Flagg Browne, the former a selectman of Waltham, Mass., and chosen May 16, 1748, as representative to the general legislature, and of Sylvanus and Elizabeth (Gamble) Backus, of Windham, Conn.; great-grandson of Capt. Abraham and Mary Browne, the former an assessor and selectman of Watertown, Conn., and of John and Sybil (Whiting) Backus, the former of Windham, Conn.; great-great-grandson of Jonathan and Mary (Shattuck) Browne, the former at one time constable of Watertown, Conn., and of John and Mary (Brigham) Backus, of Windham, Conn.; great-great-great-grandson of Abraham and Lidia Browne, pilgrim settlers in Watertown, Conn., 1631 and of William Backus, one of the first settlers, about 1636, of Norwich, Conn. Mr. Browne was educated in Vermont and practiced law in that state. He came south to construct a canal at New Orleans; removed to Mobile and represented that county in the legislature of 1845. In 1848 he moved to Shelby County, and for a time lived in a log house at the Montevallo mines. He contracted with the Confederate government to furnish coal to the Selma works. During the latter part of the War of Secession he sold the mines but continued to operate them under lease until his death. Married: August 9, 1846, in Shelby County, to Margaret Elizabeth Warwick, daughter of Judge Henry Wilburne Stevens (q. v.). Children: 1. Claudia Grace, died young; 2. Margaret Stevens, m. Paul Hamilton Lewis; son of Dr. Paul Hamilton Lewis, one child, Claudia, m. William Joseph Orum; 3. William Bradford (q. v.); 4. Cecil (q. v.); 5. Nina (q. v.), m. John MacMurphy de Cottes; 6. Arthur, died young; 7. Elizabeth Backus, died in infancy. Last residence: Shelby County.

BROWNELL, GEORGE GRIFFIN, educator, was born July 2, 1869, in Fairfield, N. Y.; son of Prof. Walter Abner and Helen M. (Davis) Brownell. He received his early education in the schools of Syracuse, N. Y.; visited the British Isles, France, Switzerland and Italy during the summer of 1887; and entered Syracuse University the next year. During his junior year at the university, he went to the west coast of Africa as mineralogist of a scientific expedition; spent the winter of 1891-1892 in the Canary Islands, and the spring in North Africa, Spain, South France and Italy.

returning through Australia and Germany. He was graduated from the classical course at Syracuse University, A. B., 1893; and the next year pursued his studies at The Sorbonne, Paris, and in Florence, Italy. During the next four years, Prof. Brownell studied in the department of romance languages of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., working during the summer of 1895 in the libraries of Madrid, Spain, and received the degree of A. M., from Syracuse University in 1896. During his course at Johns Hopkins University, he made a specialty of Spanish literature and philology, choosing for thesis, the study of the Aragonese dialect in the fourteenth century. He was granted the degree of Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins University, 1904. Since 1898, he has been professor of romance languages at the University of Alabama; and has served as expert in hardy citrus fruit culture, in the United States department of agriculture since 1911. He is a member of the Modern Language Association; of Psi Upsilon college fraternity; of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity; and corresponding member of the Hispanic Society of America. He is editor of El Capitán Veneno, a Spanish text for college use, 1901; El Pájaro Verde, 1901; and is author of "Position of the Attributive Adjectives in Don Quixote," 1910. He has also contributed to many magazines. Married: June 8, 1893, Jennie A. Jones, of Syracuse, N. Y. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BRUCE, BAILEY, member of the constitutional convention, 1865, from Jackson County.

BRUCE, JOHN, federal district judge, was born February 16, 1832, in Sterlingshire, Scotland, and died October 1, 1901; son of James and Margaret (Liddell) Bruce, who emigrated from Scotland in 1840, and settled at Wooster, Wayne County, O. He was prepared in the public schools of Wooster, O., and entered Franklin College, from which institution he was graduated, A. B., 1854. From college he went to Keokuk, Ia., read law with Rankin & Miller, the latter now a justice of the U. S. supreme court, and in 1856, was admitted to the bar at Burlington. He practiced law at Keokuk, forming a partnership with George W. McCrary, under the firm name of McCrary & Bruce. Mr. McCrary became secretary of war in Hayes' cabinet, and later, U. S. circuit judge. After the outbreak of war, Judge Bruce entered the U. S. Army as captain of Co. A, Nineteenth Iowa volunteer infantry, 1862; was soon promoted to major; to lieutenant-colonel in 1863; and colonel, 1864. At the close of the war, "in consideration of distinguished valor and meritorious services," Judge Bruce was promoted to the rank of brevet brigadier general. During hostilities he had participated in the battles of Prairie Grove, Ark., the siege of Vicksburg, Yazoo City, Port Hudson, New Orleans, and Banks' expedition to Texas. From Brownsville, Tex., his command returned to New Orleans in 1864, and as landsmen, took part in the attack on Fort Morgan. He was afterward engaged in the battles around Mobile and at the surrender of Spanish Fort. On being mustered out of the service, Judge Bruce returned to Keokuk, Ia., coming south the following fall in order to enter into the production of cotton. He located at Prairie Bluff, Wilcox County; represented that county in the State legislature, 1872; and was re-elected, 1874. In 1875, he was appointed by President Grant and confirmed by the senate, judge of the U. S. district courts for the district of Alabama. Later his office was changed to judge of the northern and middle district of Alabama, on appointment of Judge Harry Toulman of Mobile, by President Cleveland. Judge Bruce was a Republican and a Presbyterian. Married: April 7, 1870, at Keokuk, Ia., Anna Johnson Hamill, daughter of Smith and Nancy (McCandless) Hamill of that city. Children: 1. William Hamill, clerk in the United States court at Montgomery, 1900, resides at Montgomery; 2. Margaret, m. R. B. Lowrie, resides at Moline, Ill.; 3. Martha A., resides at Montgomery; two other children died in infancy. Last residence: Prairie Bluff, Wilcox County.

BRUMBY, ARNOLDUS V., graduated from the University of Alabama with the degree of A. M., and was tutor in mathematics at that institution, 1837-40. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BRUMBY, RICHARD TRAPIER, scientist, was born August 4, 1804, in Sumter District, S. C., and died October 6, 1875, in Athens, Ga.; son of Thomas and Susannah (Greening) Brumby, the former a native of Georgetown, S. C.; grandson of Thomas Brumby who emigrated from Manchester, England, about 1740 and settled at Georgetown, S. C., and of John Greening, a soldier in the Revolutionary War; great grandson of Mason and Margaret (Hainsworth) Greening, the former of Virginia; great-great-grandson of Richard and Elizabeth Hainsworth, natives of Switzerland. Prof. Brumby was prepared in a little school in Sumter District, S. C., and in the Classical School, Statesville, N. C., taught by Rev. John Marshall. In November, 1821, Rev. Marshall moved to Lincolnton, N. C., and Prof. Brumby accompanied him. The fall of the next year, he entered the junior class of South Carolina College, teaching school during his vacations in order to be able to finish his course. He was graduated with first honor, A. B., 1824. The year following his graduation, he taught in the family of the late Richard Singleton, and at the same time studied law under Gov. Miller and Hon. William C. Preston. In December, 1825, he was licensed to practice law and was immediately taken into partnership with Mr. Preston in the courts of Sumter District. Soon after, his health began to fail, and he was compelled to go west to recuperate. Upon his return to South Carolina, he moved to Lincolnton and practiced for two years; moved to Montgomery in 1831; and then to Tuscaloosa, where he was editor of the "Expositor," a nullification paper.

On August 12, 1834, Prof. Brumby was elected to the chair of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology in the University of Alabama. During his instruction in those branches, he furthered his own knowledge of science by constant study and experimentation in the laboratory. He remained with the University of Alabama for fifteen years, and in addition to his instruction in chemistry, geology and mineralogy introduced physiology, conchology and agricultural chemistry into the university, and taught those studies in addition to the other sciences for many years. He resigned from the University of Alabama, January 1849, to accept a similar position in the South Carolina College. He carried on his work there until July 1855, when he had a severe attack of illness which lasted over many months. Although unable to perform his duties at the college, the board of trustees was reluctant to part with him, and his connection with the college was continued in the hope that his health would be restored. His resignation was accepted December 4, 1856, and he moved to Marietta, Ga., where he lived in retirement for many years. At the time of his breakdown, he had collected ample materials for certain scientific works and had begun the composition of them. In the course of his twenty years' devotion to science, Prof. Brumby had collected and arranged a cabinet of thirty thousand species of minerals, rocks, fossils, recent shells, etc. The collection contained three cabinets, with each specie in each numbered, labelled, and entered in catalogues. It is said to be the most complete and valuable collection of its kind in the South, and is now to be found at Davidson College, North Carolina.

Prof. Brumby was a Democrat and a very hot secessionist. At the beginning of the war in 1861, he sold everything he possessed except his home in Marietta, Ga., and put the money in Confederate bonds, holding that the cause could not succeed unless the people showed their confidence in it. He was too feeble to serve in the army, but sent all of his five sons, the youngest but fifteen years old. He was author of an address on "The Sphere, Interest and Importance of Geology," delivered December 8, 1849, before the house of representatives; of "Gradualness, a Characteristic of All of God's Operations," Southern Presbyterian Review, October, 1874; and of other articles. He was a Presbyterian. Prof. Brumby and his wife were buried in the same grave, their deaths having occurred but one day apart. The University of Georgia was closed during the funeral in respect to the memory of the scientist.

Married: April 22, 1828, at "The Forge," Lincoln County, N. C., Mary Isabelle Brevard, who was born May 27, 1806, and died October 5, 1875, daughter of Capt. Alexander and Rebecca (Davidson) Brevard, the former who fought under Washington in the Revolution; granddaughter of John and Jean (McWhorter) Brevard, who had eight sons fighting for the cause of American independence, and of Maj. John and Violet Winslow (Wilson) Davidson; great-granddaughter of Robert and Isabella (Ramsey) Davidson, natives of Dundee, Scotland and Pennsylvania, respectively. The father of John Brevard was a French Huguenot who fled to Ireland upon the revocation of the edict of Nantes. He formed an acquaintance with a Scotch-Irish family of McKnitts, and in company with them, sailed for America. He married a daughter of this family, and settled on the banks of the Elk River in Maryland. Four of the children of that family, including John, two of his brothers and a sister, emigrated to North Carolina between 1840 and 1850. Children: 1. Rebecca Harriette, b. February 28, 1829, d. July 15, 1902, m. December 29, 1859, William John Russell; 2. Susannah Greening, b. July 30, 1830, d. February 12, 1904, m. November 4, 1852, Dr. James McFadden Gaston; 3. Alexander Brevard, b. December 27, 1831, d. October 25, 1879, m. April 26, 1866, Ellen Douglas Roberts; 4. Mary Caroline, b. July 21, 1833, d. in infancy; 5. Joseph McLean b. August 24, 1835, d. in infancy; 6. Richard Trapier, b. October 10, 1837, d. in infancy; 7. Mary Eloise, b. March 8, 1839, d. April 19, 1905, m. August 27, 1861, S. Darwin McConnell; 8. Sarah Elvira, b. May 21, 1840, d. August 31, 1902, m. April 16, 1861, John Heyward Glover; 9. Caroline Brevard, b. August 17, 1841, d. in infancy; 10. Ann Eliza, b. November 29, 1843, m. June 21, 1865, James Bolan Glover, resides in Marietta, Ga.; 11. Ephraim Robert, b. August 23, 1845, m. Mamie McPhearson, May 31, 1870, resides at Chattanooga, Tenn.; 12. Richard Trapier, b. January 12, 1847, d. March 5, 1884. Last residence: Athens, Ga.

COLONEL ARISOTO A. WILEY

BRUNDIDGE, JAMES MCGINNIS, prominent Mason, was born November 27, 1812, and died March 13, 1901, at Trinity, Morgan County. He had been a Mason for sixty-three years, and for more than fifty years of that time, his life's work was Masonry. He was initiated April 16, 1838, in Athens Lodge, No. 16, Athens; passed January 14, 1840, in Helion Lodge, No. 1, Huntsville; raised January 18, 1840, in the latter lodge; dimitted from Helion, 1844; affiliated with Athens lodge, No. 16, April 1844; was master of that lodge, 1845; dimitted from Athens lodge, 1847; affiliated with Rising Sun lodge, No. 29, Decatur, November 1857. He first attended the grand lodge in 1845; was elected grand lecturer of the grand lodge, 1848, and annually thereafter until 1854; was elected junior grand warden, 1862, 1863, and refused further advancement; was appointed on the committee on work in 1867, and was its chairman, 1869-1888. In 1889 the office of state grand lecturer was created, to which he was appointed that year and annually thereafter, holding that position at the time of his death. For fifty years he was the final arbiter upon all disputed points in Masonic ritual. He attended more communications of the grand lodge, visited more lodges, and instructed a larger number of Masons than any Mason before or contemporaneous with him. Last residence: Trinity, Morgan County.

BRUTON, BENJAMIN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 73, and a resident of Tuscaloosa County; private and sergeant N. C. Militia; enrolled on April 23, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $53.33; sums received to date of publication of list, $133.32.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Vol.

xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BRYAN, CHARLES JOSEPH, merchant and planter, brigadier-general, A. N. G., was born June 5, 1836, in Troup County, Ga., and died August 21, 1903, at Montgomery; son of Thomas Jefferson and Elizabeth Moore (Martin) Bryan, of Tuskegee. Gen. Bryan was brought by his parents to Tuskegee, where he was educated and whence he entered the University of Alabama, 1852, but at the end of his sophomore year he left school and engaged in planting. At the outbreak of hostilities he was a lieutenant in the Tuskegee light infantry and went with that organization to Pensacola, Fla., thence to Norfolk, Va., where he was promoted captain, Co. C, Tuskegee light infantry, 3rd Alabama regiment, C. S. Army. Having been severely wounded at Malvern Hill, he was unable to again see active service. He served Macon County in the house of representatives 1859-1864, and was appointed a brigadier general of militia by Gov. E. A. O'Neal, which office he held, 1886-1894. From 1866 to 1887 he was engaged in the commission merchandise business in Montgomery. Unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

BRYAN, DAVID F., major 26th, O'Neal's, Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BRYAN, JAMES ALEXANDER, Presbyterian minister, was born March 20, 1863, near Kingstree, Williamsburg County, S. C.; son of John Robert and Mary M. (Savage) Bryan, the former a native of Green County, N. C., who lived near Kingstree, S. C., and fought in the C. S. Army during the War of Secession; grandson of Robin Bryan who married a Miss Speight, and lived near Goldsboro, and of Caleb Savage, who lived in Nansemond County, Va. His ancestors came from Ireland. He received his early schooling in Williamsburg County, S. C., was taught by his mother, and sent to Old Lovejoy Academy, Raleigh, N. C., for preparation to enter the University of North Carolina. He was graduated from the latter institution, 1885; received two scholarships to Princeton, and was graduated from the course in theology there, B. D., 1889. He became pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church at Birmingham in 1889, and held that charge for twenty-four years, to date (1913). He has been sent to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, by the Presbytery of North Alabama, two different times, and has been moderator of the Presbytery of North Alabama. He devotes his spare time to preaching outside of his church, and holds meetings in Birmingham among the firemen, policemen, factory people, railroaders, and students. He has done evangelistic work in Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas, and Mississippi. He is a Prohibitionist. Married: in Marion, Perry County, Leonora Clayton Howze, daughter of John and Claudia (Clayton) Howze, of Marion; granddaughter of Augustine S. Clayton, judge of the superior court at Athens, Ga. Children: 1. Mary Clayton, b. 1893; 2. John Edwards,

b. 1895; 3. James Howze, b. 1898; 4. Thomas Claudius, b. 1900; 5. Augustine Clayton Howze, b. 1901; 6. Harry Haywood, b. 1904. Residence: Birmingham.

BRYAN, LEANDER J., JR., public official, was born in 1843, in Autauga County; son of Leander J. Bryan, a farmer of Autauga County, who later moved to Wetumpka. He attended the common schools of the county until he was sixteen years of age, then entered the Coosa River institute. Upon the beginning of War of Secession in 1861, he withdrew from the institute and enlisted as a private in the Wetumpka Light Guards, Third Alabama regiment volunteer infantry, C. S. Army, under command of Col. Tennent Lomax. This was the first Alabama regiment sent to join the C. S. Army in Virginia, and Capt. Bryan served with it throughout the entire war. He was furloughed home but once during that time, in 1865, by special order of Gen. Lee, for gallant conduct on the field of battle, for meritorious service as a soldier, and on account of wounds. He returned in time to take part in the final struggle at Petersburg and escaped at the surrender of Appomattox. He made his way back to Alabama, and engaged in the hotel business until 1867 when he became bookkeeper under U. S. Marshal John Hardy. He subsequently served as deputy under U. S. Marshal Gen. John W. Henley, until the winter of 1868, when he moved to Lowndes County. He served there as clerk of the circuit court, then as sheriff and general administrator of the county, being engaged twelve years in the public service. Capt. Bryan was one of the first Confederate soldiers to affiliate after the war with the Republican party, and in 1868 and 1872, he stumped his congressional district for Grant for president. In 1869 he was appointed chief deputy to U. S. Marshal George Turner, later U. S. Senator from Washington; was blocked from assuming the duties of United States marshal under Harrison's administration; and accepted the place of chief deputy in the office of Dr. R. A. Moseley, collector of revenue for Alabama. He was elected a delegate to three national Republican conventions, and was president of the Republican state convention in 1898. He was appointed marshal of the middle district of Alabama by President McKinley in his first administration, and was reappointed to the office by President Roosevelt in December 1901. Residence: Montgomery.

BRYANT, ELIZABETH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, resided in Jackson County, June 1, 1840, with H. M. Bryant.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BRYANT, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 85, resided in Jackson County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

BRYCE, PETER, first superintendent, Alabama insane hospital, was born March 5, 1834, at Columbia, Richland County, S. C., and died August 14, 1892, at Tuscaloosa; son of Peter and Martha (Smith) Bryce, the former a native of Glasgow, Scotland, who later lived in Columbia, S. C., where he accumulated a comfortable property; grandson of William and Mary (Campbell) Bryce, of Glasgow, and of William and Mary Smith of Charleston, S. C. Peter Bryce, jr., received a sound preparatory education in his native city and, at the age of seventeen, entered the South Carolina military institute (The Citadel) from which he graduated with distinguished honors four years later. In 1857, he became a student in the University of New York, from which he received the degree of M. D. in 1859. Soon thereafter he went to Europe and spent some time in the hospitals of Paris. He specialized in nervous diseases and in order to gain a wider knowledge of his subject, accepted official connection with first the South Carolina and the New Jersey hospitals for the insane. On the organization of the Alabama hospital for the insane in 1860, when but twenty-six years of age, he was elected superintendent, and was perhaps the youngest man ever called to take a like place of responsibility in America. The attention of the trustees of the newly established institution was directed to him by Dorothy Dix. His early recognition of the principal of non-restraint in the treatment of insanity placed him among the leading alienists of his time and brought the institution over which he presided into the first rank for humanity and success in effecting cures. Other distinctive features were the absence of all mechanical restraint and the employment of a large per cent of its patients in useful and congenial occupations. He held many positions of honor and trust, which attested the high esteem in which he was held as a man, scholar, physician and scientist. He was at the time of his death, president of the American medico-psychological association, which was a recognition of his national fame, and first vice-president of the Medico-legal society of New York, an organization whose membership embraced some of the foremost scholars and alienists in America and Europe. A short while prior to his death he was appointed chairman of the board of convict inspectors, by Gov. Thomas G. Jones. He was at one time, president of the Alabama historical association, president of the Alabama medical association, and at the time of his death, president of the commission of lunacy, established by the Alabama legislature, in reference to the custody and trial of the criminal insane. The last distinction conferred upon him was the presidency of the National association of hospital superintendents. Some time during the eighties, the English government sent an Australian physician to examine the hospitals in the United States, and it was gratifying in the highest degree to the superintendent and the trustees of the Alabama hospital for the insane that the report stated from the scientific, Christian and humane treatment of the patients that institution stood ahead of them all. The title of LL. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Alabama. He was an Episcopalian. Author: Despite his arduous duties, he found time to keep abreast of the march of scientific research, and from time to time gave to the public, papers that challenged the attention of the foremost thinkers of the day. Some years ago, he read a paper on "The nature and origin of the mind," before the Alabama medical association, which was afterwards published in the Popular Science monthly, and attracted the most favorable notice from the press and the public. In July, 1888, he read a paper on "Moral and criminal responsibility," before the National conference of charities and corrections at its annual meeting in Buffalo, N. Y. This paper also was widely read and favorably commented upon on both sides of the Atlantic. In the last year of his life, an interesting paper on "The non-restraint system," was read by him before the Medico-legal society of New York. This paper formed the basis of a discussion participated in by leading alienists and superintendents of hospitals for the insane in both England and America, and this learned symposium was published in successive issues of the Medico-legal journal, extending from December, 1891, to June, 1892, as well as in the British journals of that period. Dr. Bryce was summoned as an expert to testify in the celebrated trial of Guiteau for the assassination of President Garfield, but was prevented by circumstances from responding to the summons. His last public address was made before the Alabama medical association at Montgomery on the subject of "General paresis." Failing health required that he should remain seated during his discourse, which was made ex tempore, in a conversational style with an exuberance of learning that impressed all who heard him, so that while they listened they seemed to fear nothing so much as that he would cease to speak. He was subjected to numerous categorical questions by his medical brethren, and drew a word picture of his subject so luminous with learning as to delight his audience by an inspiration of knowledge. After his death a leading paper of the State truthfully said: "The man Peter Bryce possessed the fullest measure of love and confidence. The people of Alabama without exception repose absolute confidence in his integrity and wisdom, and the bright shield of his honor was never shadowed by a doubt, and none is left like him. One and all we mourn with the widow that sits by his bier." Col. Robert McKee writing in the "Piedmont Enquirer," said among other eloquent passages in his appreciation of the dead scientist: "For more than thirty years he pursued his work with constant and increasing ardor and zeal. His warm heart went hand and hand with his intellect. He was in profound and generous sympathy with all the afflicted ones under his care and treatment. He had a passionate longing to improve, to cure his patients. He was their friend as well as their physician. He sought and gained their confidence and affection. His presence calmed and soothed and comforted the worst of them in their greatest suffering. He went among them and their eyes brightened and their faces lighted up and the clouds for the moment seemed lifted from their darkened minds. There was healing in his pleasant smile, his cordial greeting, his cheerful voice. In every neighborhood in all the length and breadth of this State there are those who can bear witness to his unfailing kindness, his tender consideration, his wonderful skill, and everywhere loving thoughts of him are treasured up in the grateful hearts of those whose kindred or friends were at some time or other in his charge in the greatest affliction that can come to men. * * * Such a man as he is raised up only once in a generation. If it is only noble to be good and to do good, he was the noblest of all Alabamians." Married: November 28, 1860, in Columbia, S. C., to Ellen, daughter of Thomas Boston and Sarah Caroline (Heriot) Clarkson, of that city. Mrs. Bryce is a lineal descendant of Thomas Boston of Scotland on her paternal line and of George Heriot, who founded the celebrated Heriot hospital, on the maternal side. John Ouldfield, her Colonial ancestor, was appointed to fix the boundary lines for the Welsh colony in 1735. Robert Heriot, her Revolutionary ancestor, was in the battle of Fort Moultrie, June 28, 1776. She is a member of the Huguenot society of South Carolina, her ancestors through that branch being Harry La Roche, Simons and Dupre. She is active in church work and all civic movements and a distinguished member of all the hereditary patriotic organizations of women in the South. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

BRYSON, JOHN H., Presbyterian minister, was born April 3, 1831, in Lincoln County, Tenn., died January 1, 1897, and is buried in Huntsville. His father was a minister of the Associate Reformed church and his mother a sister of Rev. J. P. and R. B. McMullen, two distinguished ministers of the Southern Presbyterian church. He graduated from Erskine college, S. C., and completed his theological studies at Newburg, N. Y. He entered the services of the C. S. Army as chaplain, serving throughout the war. His first charge was in Shelbyville, Tenn., and after a short while he became a student at the University of Virginia, supplying the Charlottesville church at the same time. He spent five years in Columbia, S. C., and after some time spent in travel in Europe, Egypt and Palestine, accepted a call to Huntsville, Ala., where he remained for sixteen years. Last residence: Huntsville.

BUCHNER, EDWARD FRANKLIN, educator, was born September 3, 1868, at Paxton, Ford County, Ill.; son of Christian Jacob and Louisa (Lohmann) Buchner, the former a native of Zazenhausen, Würtemberg, Germany, who emigrated to the United States in 1856, living in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and finally Illinois, where he resided until 1910, for many years a member of the town council of Gibson City, the latter a native of Reher, Hanover, Germany; grandson of Johannes and Wilhelmina (Schönweilter) Buchner. The Buchner family is of Swiss origin, and was carried into Germany by Freiherr von Buchner who emigrated to Aldinger, Würtemberg, from Switzerland in 1433. Prof. Buchner was prepared in the public schools of Gibson City, Ill.; was graduated from Western college, now Leander Clark college, Toledo, Ia., A. B., 1889, and A. M., 1892; took post-graduate work in philosophy and psychology at Yale university, 1890-1893, and was graduated Ph. D., 1893. He was instructor in Western college, 1889-1890; lecturer, 1892-1894, and instructor in philosophy and pedagogy, 1894-1897, at Yale university; professor of analytical psychology at New York university, 1896-1901; docent in philosophy at Clark university, 1901-1903; professor of philosophy, 1903-1908, and dean of the summer school, 1904-1908, at the University of Alabama; professor of education and philosophy since 1908, and director of the summer session, 1911, at Johns Hopkins university. He was lecturer on psychology at the Brooklyn institute of arts and sciences, 1898-1900; and lecturer on education at Goucher college, 1911-1912. He has been cooperating editor of the "Psychological Bulletin" since 1904; collaborating editor of the "Journal of Educational Psychology;" advisory editor of the "Atlantic Educational Journal;" departmental editor of the "Cyclopedia of Education," five volumes, Macmillan Company, New York; author of "A Study of Kant's Psychology, with Reference to the Critical Philosophy," Macmillan Company, New York, 1896; translator and editor of "The Educational Theory of Immanuel Kant," Lippincott & Company, Philadelphia and London, 1904; contributor to Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature, 1897. Prof. Buchner is a member of the committee of seventeen of the National Educational Association; director of the Southern Educational Association; member of the Southern Education Council; president of the Educational Society of Baltimore since 1904; member of the American Psychological Association; of the American Philosophical Association; of the National Society for the Scientific Study of Education; of the American Society of Naturalists; member of the executive committee of the Society of College Teachers of Education; fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences; member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; secretary, 1904-1909, and president, 1910, of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology. He is an Episcopalian, and a Mason. Married: June 1, 1898, at Bridgeport, Conn., Hannah Louise, daughter of Rufus Davenport and Elizabeth Sanford (Morgan) Cable, of Westport, Conn., a descendant of William Morgan, born 1571, of Llanvabon, Wales, who bore the arms of Cilfynydd; and of Thomas Sanford, born between 1600 and 1610, son of Rauff Sanford of Stowe, County of Gloucester, England, who emigrated to Boston with the John Winthrop colony, 1631-1633, settled as leader of a colony in Connecticut in 1639, and organized the town of Milford. Children: 1. Edward Franklin, jr.; 2. Morgan; 3. Elizabeth; 4. Margaret Louise. Residence: Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md.

BUCK, ALFRED ELIAB, public official and diplomat, representative in congress, was born February 7, 1832, at Foxcroft, Piscataquis County, Me., and died December 4, 1902, in Tokio, Japan; son of Benjamin Thomas and Almira (Todd) Buck, natives respectively of Buckfield, Me., and Fredericton, New Brunswick; grandson of Nathaniel and Sallie (Seabury) Buck. The Buck family is of English descent and was first introduced into America by the grandfather of Col. Buck, who settled in Buckfield, Me., to which town he gave his name. He and his relatives were soldiers of the Revolution and of the War of 1812. The Todd family came from the Isle of Man to New Brunswick. Col. Buck was prepared for college at the Foxcroft academy, Maine, and entered Waterville college, now Colby university, at Waterville, Me. He paid his own way through college, and was graduated as Latin salutatorian in 1859, and afterwards took the degree of A. M. He taught in the high school at Hallowell, Me., 1860; and was principal of the high school at Lewiston, Me., when the War of Secession broke out. He enlisted but was not accepted because of excess of enlistments; raised a company at his own expense; went into camp, November 1861; and was made a captain in the Thirteenth regiment of Maine Volunteers, U. S. Army. He served on the Mississippi coast, at Ship Island, Fort Pike, and Fort Macomb; organized and was made lieutenant-colonel of the Ninety-first U. S. colored infantry, 1863; commanded the Fifty-first colored infantry, October 1864; was ordered to Vicksburg, November 1864; was assigned to duty as second officer on the board of examination for white officers for colored regiments; led his regiment in the capture of Fort Blakely at Mobile, when the Federals captured twenty-five hundred men, and was brevetted colonel for that assault; was made division inspector general, April 1865; and inspector general of western Louisiana, two months later, in which capacity he inspected troops and located supply depots. He was a member of the military commission at New Orleans for the Department of the Gulf during the winter of 1865, and was mustered out, June 1866.

He engaged in manufacturing turpentine on Montgomery Island, Mobile Bay, and was burned out, 1867; was a delegate to the Alabama state convention, 1867; and clerk of the county court, that same year; became director, secretary and treasurer of the Tecumseh iron company, elected to the Mobile City Council, and chosen a Grant presidential elector, 1868; elected to congress from Mobile, 1869, and during his term secured the first fifty thousand dollars for the improvement of the harbor of Mobile. He declined re-election to congress; was elected a member of the Mobile City Council in 1873, and although he was the only Republican member, was made president of the council. He resigned that office the same year and moved to Atlanta, Ga., where he was appointed clerk of the United States courts, resigning in 1887, and receiving the appointment of U. S. marshal of Georgia, 1889. He was a member from Georgia of the national Republican conventions of 1880, 1884, 1888, and 1892, and was chairman of delegation in the last two. He was chairman of the Georgia State Central Republican committee from 1882 until 1892; was president of the Wilson Ridge ore company, of Calhoun County, and president of the South Atlanta Land company, Atlanta, Ga. He was appointed by President McKinley in 1897, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of Japan, and filled this position for nearly six years. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon Col. Buck by Colby university, Me., 1898.

Married: January 11, 1864, in New Orleans, Ellen Bond, daughter of Judge Henry Knox and Sarah Mary (Lord) Baker, of Hallowell, Me.; granddaughter of Amos and Mary (Weston) Baker, the former enlisted in the Revolutionary Army when only thirteen years old, and became in time a member of Gen. Washington's life guard. Last residence: Tokio, Japan.

BUCK, EDWARD JEFFERIES, banker, was born September 3, 1865, at Port Gibson, Claiborne County, Miss.; son of Charles Edward and Sarah Letitia (Jefferies) Buck, of Port Gibson, Miss.; grandson of William Richardson and Maria (Flower) Buck, and of Nathaniel and Katharine (Watson) Jefferies, all of Port Gibson. The family is of French and Scotch-Irish origin, on maternal side, and are directly descended from Evan Shelby, brother of Isaac Shelby, of Kings Mountain fame, in the War of the American Revolution. Mr. Buck was educated in the public and private schools of Port Gibson, and Chamberlain Hunt academy; and graduated in law department of University of Mississippi, LL. B., 1889. He was formerly in railroad construction work for Texas and Pacific railroad 1882-1887; was cashier of National Bank of Pittsburg, Kan., for one year, removed to Biloxi, Miss., and organized Bank of Biloxi; then removed to Mobile in 1899 and organized City National Bank, now City Bank and Trust Co., of which he is president. On the organization of the State banking board in 1911, he was named one of the members by Gov. Emmet O'Neal, serving until January 1915. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; a Mason; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: at Mobile, December, 1901, Sarah Estelle, daughter of Orville Franklin and Sarah (Cowan) Cawthorn, of that city. No issue. Residence: Mobile.

BUCK, WILLIAM AMOS, cotton factor, was born February 25, 1830, at Reading, Pa., and died October 30, 1892, at Mobile; son of Amos and Justa Maria (Ernst) Buck, the former a merchant at Reading and Lebanon, Pa., later engaged in canal transportation at Reading, who moved south in 1835, and settled in Russellville, Ala., where he died, November 8, 1841; grandson of Col. Jonathan, jr., and Hannah (Gale) Buck, natives of Haverhill, Mass., the former a colonel in the Revolutionary War from Massachusetts Bay colony, the latter a descendant of Welsh stock, and of Rev. John Frederic Ernst, a Lutheran preacher from Strassburg, Germany, who came to America, and lived in Cooperstown, N. Y., and in Lebanon, Pa., a lineal descendant of the House of Hapsburg, whose ancestor sacrificed his title to marry outside of the nobility; great-grandson of Jonathan and Lydia (Morse) Buck, the former the founder and first settler of Bucksport, Me., an officer in the British colonial army which fought against the French for Canada; great-great-grandson of Ebenezer and Lydia (Ames) Buck; great-great-great-grandson of Ephraim Buck, born July 26, 1646, in Massachusetts colony, settled in Woburn, now Wilmington; great-great-great-great-grandson of Roger Buck, who came to America from Scotland with his brothers, Isaac and James, in 1638, and settled in the province of Massachusetts, Isaac in Scituate, James in Hingham, and Roger in Cambridge where he built a house on his farm which is still in existence in North Wilmington, near Boston, Mass.

Col. Buck received a common school education which he supplemented by constant reading and study. His father died when he was ten years old, and soon after he moved to Macon, Miss., where he supported himself by commercial pursuits. He returned to Alabama in 1848, and located at Mobile, where he became occupied in the cotton factorage business. In 1860, with the evidence of war growing stronger daily, Col. Buck organized a military company, called the Gulf City guards, for active service in the State of Alabama, and was elected its first captain. In July 1861, the Gulf City guards, under command of Capt. Buck, responded to an order from Gov. A. B. Moore of Alabama, and proceeded to Fort Morgan for the purpose of becoming part of its garrison until the post could be permanently manned. When relieved from this post, Capt. Buck was made major of a fire brigade at Mobile, and later, when the call was made for troops for the Confederacy, he was instrumental in transforming the old fire brigade, with other additions, into the Twenty-fourth Alabama regiment, of which he was elected colonel. The Twenty-fourth Alabama was ordered to Corinth immediately after the battle of Shiloh, and attached to the brigade of Gen. John K. Jackson, Wither's division, Polk's corps; and participated, under this command, in the battles of Farmington and Blackland. It remained in Jackson's brigade throughout Gen. Bragg's memorable campaign into Kentucky, sharing all the hardships and privations attending this incursion. After Gen. Bragg's return to Tennessee, the brigades were reorganized, and Col. Buck's regiment assigned to the command of Col. A. M. Manigault, who was then commanding a brigade composed mainly of South Carolinians. While leading a charge at the head of his regiment through a zone of fire in which, during a period of ten minutes, more than half of the forces under him were either killed or wounded, Col. Buck was himself severely wounded. The character of his wounds was such, that upon the advice of the division and brigadier surgeons who were of the opinion that they would disqualify him for further service, he was forced to resign, just as a brigadier-generalship seemed to have been in his grasp. At this time he accepted a position from the Confederate government to handle cotton, and was one of the very few men who did not make a handsome fortune for himself out of that charge.

Col. Buck returned to civil life after the war, selling lands and jewelry in order to gain a sum large enough to start in the cotton factorage business again. He resumed his former trade at Mobile, and built up an extensive business under the firm names of Buck and Barnes, Buck and Tuller, and Buck and Beauchamp. He retired from that business in 1883, and became secretary of the Factors and traders insurance company, which position he continued to hold until his death. At one time he was president of the Washington fire and marine insurance company. He was a Democrat; a Baptist; an Odd Fellow; Knight of Honor; a member of the social, secret order, Cowbellian de Rakin society, and a charter member of the Y. M. C. A. at Mobile.

Married: October 28, 1852, in Mobile, Margaret, daughter of Levi and Margaret (Moffitt) Langdon of Mobile. Her father moved from Marion to Mobile in 1835, purchased and managed the Mobile "Advertiser," the organ of the Whig party. She was a granddaughter of Capt. Giles and Sarah (Carter) Langdon, the former a native of Southington, Conn., who was an officer in the Revolution. She died December 9, 1891. Children: 1. William Langdon, colonel, U. S. Army, d. October 20, 1912, at the Walter Reid Hospital, Washington, D. C., m. Winona Hawthorne who resides at San Diego, Calif.; 2. Albert Christopher, m. Bessie Smyth, resides at Sherman, Tex.; 3. Emma Elizabeth, m. Jack Ferrill Ross, resides at Mobile; 4. Helen Billingden, m. Richard Vipon Taylor (q. v.), resides at Mobile; 5. Harriett Dupre, d. June 4, 1886. Last residence: Mobile.

BUCK, WILLIAM CALMES, Baptist minister, was born August 23, 1790, in Shenandoah, now Warren County, Va., and died May 18, 1872, at Waco, Tex.; son of Charles and Mary (Richardson) Buck, the former a farmer. He received only a common school education but supplemented this by diligent reading and studying until he was a good Greek and Hebrew scholar. He was at first a farmer; joined the Water Lick Baptist church, Va., in his seventeenth year; ordained in 1812; lieutenant in U. S. army, War of 1812; moved to Kentucky in 1820 and served churches in Union and Woodford Counties, and at Louisville. While in Louisville he edited the "Baptist Banner" and "Western Pioneer." He was called to Columbus, Miss., March, 1854, and in May, 1857, removed to Greensboro, Ala.; Selma, 1858; and in 1859, to Marion where he published "The Baptist Correspondence." This was suspended by the War of Secession and he entered the C. S. Army as a missionary. After the war he served in Mississippi until his removal to Texas. Author: "The Baptist hymn book"; "The philosophy of religion"; and "The science of life." Last residence: Waco, Tex.

BUCKLEY, CHARLES WALDRON, public official, representative in congress, was born February 18, 1835, at Unadilla, Otsego County, N. Y.; son of John Jay and Mary Ann (Mason) Buckley. His father was of New England stock and Puritan ancestry, a descendant from the Buckleys who settled in Salem, the second oldest town in Massachusetts, some of whom were cruelly persecuted during the witchcraft delusion, 1692-1693. His mother was brought to America by her father from England when she was two years old. Her ancestors came from France after the Norman conquest, and settled in Leicestershire, England. Judge Buckley moved with his parents in 1846 from New York to Freeport, Ill., where he was reared on a farm, attending the country schools in the winter and working on the farm in the summer. He entered Beloit college, Wisconsin, and was graduated with the highest honors of his class, A. B., 1860. He taught school for one year, then entered the Union theological seminary, New York City, graduating in 1863. He was ordained by the fourth Presbytery of New York, and was appointed chaplain in the U. S. Army, November, 1863. He joined the army at Vicksburg, Miss., as captain of the Forty-seventh U. S. colored infantry. After the capture of Spanish Fort and the surrender of Mobile, he was ordered by Gen. Canby to proceed to Montgomery on special duty as superintendent of education for the Bureau of Refugees and Freedmen for Alabama. He occupied that position for two years; was elected by the Republicans of Montgomery County to be a member of the state convention which assembled November 5, 1867, under the reconstruction acts, to frame a constitution for Alabama, and at the convention served as chairman of the committee on public institutions and as a member of the committee on education. His efforts were especially directed to the work of framing into the constitution that outline of a free public school system which, in its subsequent development, has brought the opportunities of a good common school education within the reach of every child in the state, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition. In February, 1868, he was elected a representative to the Fortieth congress from the second district of Alabama, and took his seat upon the readmission of Alabama into the Union, July 21, 1868; was unanimously renominated by the Republican party of his district for the Forty-first congress, and elected by a majority of more than four thousand votes; and was re-elected to the Forty-second congress. In November, 1874, he was elected judge of the probate court of Montgomery County for a term of six years; was appointed postmaster of Montgomery in 1881, by President Garfield the week the latter was shot; held that position during the administrations of Arthur and Harrison; was re-appointed postmaster by President McKinley, and again by President Roosevelt. He was a Garfield elector, and a McKinley elector in 1896. He was chairman of the Alabama delegation to the St. Louis convention; was one of the organizers of the Commercial fire insurance company, the Bank of Montgomery, the Tecumseh iron company, the Black Warrior coal & coke company, and several other coal companies. He is a Presbyterian. Married: March 1869, at New York City, Georgianna, daughter of Benjamin and Amanda Lord, of New York City. Children: 1. Benjamin Lord, graduate of Columbia University, principal of a private school in New York City. Residence: Montgomery.

DR. WILLIAM S. WYMAN, SR.

BUCKLEY, WILLIAM MUSSON, farmer, was born June 3, 1816, at Unadilla, Otsego County, N. Y., and died April 1891; son of John Jay and Mary Ann (Musson) Buckley, who moved from New York to a farm in Freeport, Ill., in 1846, the former of Puritan ancestry, a descendant of the Buckleys who emigrated from England to Salem, Mass., in early colonial times, the latter a native of England, who came with her father to America when she was two years old. The Mussons went from France to England after the Norman conquest. Judge Buckley was educated in an academy at Unadilla, N. Y. He took up the occupation of farming in Illinois; was elected judge of the probate court, of Stephenson County, Ill., and later was elected treasurer of that county. He was appointed tax collector of Lowndes County; was elected to represent Lowndes County from the ninth elective district in the state constitutional convention of Alabama of 1867. Later he was elected to the State legislature. He was a Republican and a Presbyterian. Married: October, 1858, at Freeport, Ill., Anna Matilda Burrell, daughter of John and Matilda Burrell. Last residence: Montgomery.

BUCKNER, H. F., Baptist minister, was born December 18, 1818, near Newport, Tenn. Dr. Buckner united when a small boy with the Baptist church at Madisonville, Tenn., and attended Southwestern theological seminary, 1835-38. He removed to Alabama, 1838, and engaged in teaching; was licensed, 1839, serving four churches and at the same time continuing his studies at the University of Alabama. He returned to Kentucky in 1841, became a missionary, and in 1848 became an Indian missionary. The honorary degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Baylor university, Tex. Author of a Greek grammar; compiled a Greek hymn book, and translated the gospel of John into the Greek language.

BUELL, DAVID, lawyer, was born May 3, 1836, at Honeoye Falls, Monroe County, N. Y., and died November 18, 1884, at Greenville; son of Parker and Amanda (Evarts) Buell, the former a native of Newport, Sullivan County, N. H., a soldier of the War of 1812, and a Methodist minister, having at one time a circuit of two hundred miles in the state of New York; grandson of Daniel and Preserved (Pelton) Buell. The progenitor of the Buell family, William Buell, also spelled Bewelle and Beuville, was the son of Sir Robert Bewelle of Chesterton, Huntingdonshire, England, and emigrated to America in 1630 because his Puritanical ideas were not in accord with his father's religious views. His family had been connected with courts of kings, particularly from 1270 to 1375. Mr. Buell attended the public schools in the various towns in which his father resided during his itinerant preaching, and was graduated from Genessee College, New York. After his graduation, he moved to Alabama, 1856, and during that year and the next, assisted Col. John T. Milner, the engineer in charge of the building of what is now known as the Mobile & Montgomery railroad, in the survey of the route. From 1858 until the outbreak of war in 1861, he taught school in Georgiana, Butler County. He volunteered in the C. S. Army joining the Greenville Guards, Eighth Alabama regiment. After two years service in the army of northern Virginia, while Lee's army was in winter quarters encamped near the Potomac, and the U. S. Army was near by, Mr. Buell, who was with Lee's men, would under permit cross the river on the many stones outcropping in its bed, to visit his brother, Seth Buell, who was in the near-by U. S. Army. At one time, seeing the battered overcoat and worn shoes which Mr. Buell was wearing, his brother offered to bring him better ones in exchange for tobacco. The exchange was made, and the overcoat which Mr. Buell received enabled him to escape, later, when he had been taken prisoner by the Federal troops. After the intercourse between the brothers had lasted for some time, Col. Herbert Davids, commanding officer of Mr. Buell's regiment, suggested to avoid the possibility of the two brothers meeting face to face in battle and wounding or killing each other, Mr. Buell might, if desired, be transferred to the ordnance corps. The transfer was made, just after he had been commissioned first lieutenant, and he served as ordnance officer until the surrender at Appomattox. At the close of the war, he returned to Greenville, and began the practice of law in partnership with Hon. J. L. Powell, later probate judge of Butler County; Hon. H. A. Herbert, afterwards representative in Congress; and finally with Mr. Lane, in the firm of Buell & Lane, which continued until his death. In 1878, he was elected to the state senate from the district composed of Butler and Conecuh counties, and at the close of the session retired from official life, declining re-election, in order to devote all his time to his profession. He was a Democrat, an Episcopalian, and one of the first members of the Alabama State Bar Association. Married: October 13, 1868, at Greenville, Flora Herbert, daughter of Thomas Edward and Dorothy (Teague) Herbert, a descendant of James Herbert, who left his home in England five generations before, because of family opposition to his marriage with a Miss Hilary, a Roman Catholic, and emigrated to America, settling on the banks of the James River in Virginia. Children: 1. Jessie, d. at age of two years; 2. Flora, m. Cunningham Wilson Hickman, Birmingham; 3. Edith, m. David Edwin Wilson, Woodward; 4. Herbert Evarts, b. August 3, 1877, m. Mary Alice Bannister, Macon, Ga.; 5. David Theodore, m. Nannie Ellsberry Flo-Claire, Mobile; 6. Clarine, m. Edward Hamilton West, Mountain Terrace, Birmingham. Last residence: Greenville.

BUFORD, JEFFERSON, lawyer, was born 1805 or 1806, in Chester District, S. C., and died August 28, 1862, at Clayton; son of John Ragsdale and Esther (Eaves) Buford, the former a Virginian who emigrated to South Carolina. The Bufords are of English descent, one of the ancestors being Margaret Buford, or Beaufort, the mother of Kings Henry VII and VIII. Mr. Buford's grandfather came from England to America and settled in Virginia in the early days of the country. He read law in the office of his uncle, Nathaniel R. Eaves; was enrolled as an attorney in 1828; practiced law until 1832, when he came to Alabama and settled in Pike County. He practiced there for six years, during which time he served in the Indian War of 1836; then moved to Barbour County and established himself at Eufaula. In 1840, he was elected to the state senate from Barbour and Russell Counties; served seven years in that body; and was associated in the practice of law with Pugh & Bullock for some years. During the Kansas troubles of 1855 in the struggle of the North and South for dominancy of that state, it was Mr. Buford's opinion that the South should send out organized bodies of pro-slavery immigrants to settle Kansas; and in 1856, he carried, largely at his own expense, a body of several hundred settlers there and found homes for them. Following this example, several others carried companies to Kansas, but the venture failed. Mr. Buford returned to Barbour County after the question was decided, and in 1861, was elected a delegate to the Secession convention at Montgomery, to succeed Gen. Alpheus Baker, who, at an advanced stage of the session, resigned his seat to raise a company for the war.

Mr. Buford was a brother of James McClure Buford, and was his first instructor in law. J. M. Buford was graduated from college at Columbia, S. C., 1850, and from a law school at New Orleans; was admitted to the bar of Alabama, 1852; was editor of "The Spirit of the South," prior to and during the war; and of the same paper under the name, "The Eufaula News," for a great part of the time till November, 1874; moved to Atlanta, Ga., 1883; returned to Alabama, settling in Decatur, Morgan County, 1887, and continued the practice of law; married June, 1859, at Eufaula, Mrs. M. C. Wallace, daughter of Dr. W. L. Cowan; and had born to him from this marriage, eight children, William Cowan, Carrie Eloise, Jefferson Pugh, Annie Esther, Rosa Theresa, LeRoy Eaves, Mary Melton, deceased, and Emily Alexander. Jefferson Buford was described by Hon. James L. Pugh of Eufaula, as "a man of pure private character, a first-rate lawyer, a cultivated gentleman, and one who was true to his convictions. He was somewhat eccentric, but was a public spirited, energetic, reliable, useful and successful man." He was a Whig. Married: (1) a daughter of Maj. John H. White, of Barbour County; (2) Mrs. McNeil. Last residence: Clayton.

BUGBEE, FRANCIS, lawyer, was born February 18, 1794, in Ashford, Conn., and died in Montgomery, April 21, 1877; son of Amos and Martha (Woodward) Bugbee, of Ashford, the former one of the Connecticut men who marched to the relief of Boston, 1775; grandson of Capt. Joseph Woodward of the Revolutionary army; great-grandson of Samuel and Thankful (Snow) Bugbee. The Bugbee family were settlers of Roxbury, Mass., in 1634; about 1745, they are found at Ashford, with the Woodward family, both ardent patriots. Judge Bugbee was educated in the community schools graduated from Yale university, 1818; taught in North Carolina while studying law under Judge Badger; in 1820 admitted to the bar of North Carolina; and in October of the same year admitted to the bar in Pennsylvania. In January 1821, he located in Jefferson County, where he practiced until 1826, when he removed to Montgomery. He was a trustee of the University of Alabama, 1836-71; member of legislature, 1843; was a Union man during the War of Secession; appointed judge of the circuit court under Federal authority; and from 1866 to 1869 he served as U. S. district attorney. He was a Whig, and at the close of the war affiliated with the Republican party. He was a Methodist. Married; in Jefferson County, July 5, 1827, to Lavinia Hudson Tarrant. Children: 1, Thomas Francis; 2, Julia Malinde; 3, Sallie Gindrat, m. Julius Bigelow Trimble. Last residence: Montgomery.

BULGER, MICHAEL JEFFERSON, planter, brigadier general, C. S. Army, State senator, was born February 13, 1806, in Richland District, S. C., and died September 11, 1900, in Tallapoosa County; son of Pierce and Sarah A. (Adam) Bulger, of Richland District, S. C., the former a mechanic by trade, a soldier in the War of 1812, in which he was wounded, and a resident there until his death in 1815; grandson of Michael Bulger, a native of Ireland who came to America during the Revolution as a member of General DeKalb's staff, was in the battle of Camden, where DeKalb was killed and he himself left wounded on the field, recovering, he married, and settled in Richland District where he reared a family. When seventeen years of age General Bulger, with his brother Charles, located in Montgomery, where he was apprenticed to a gin-maker with whom he lived several years. In 1834 he removed to Nixburg, Coosa County, and thence in 1838, he moved to Tallapoosa County and followed the occupation of a planter the remainder of his life. He was elected to the State legislature, 1851-57. He had a fine understanding of parliamentary law, especially that part which was of use to a minority. He was elected brigadier-general of militia, and held that position until 1861. During the years he held this office he labored diligently to infuse and maintain a military spirit among the people. He was a delegate to the Charleston convention of 1860, but withdrew with the Alabama delegation and took no further part in the proceedings, except that of an onlooker, deeply interested in final results. In the division of the Democratic party, he adhered to the national organization, canvassed the State extensively for Douglas and was a candidate for election on the Douglas electoral ticket. Upon the call for a convention, following Lincoln's election to the presidency of the United States, General Bulger was elected from Tallapoosa to that body, and opposed the secession of Alabama from the Union on the grounds that it was "unwise and impolitic," and urged steps looking to co-operation with the other slave-holding states. When the ordinance of secession was reported by the committee of thirteen, he voted for a proposition to submit it to the people, being one of three men who refused to sign the ordinance. A mob formed and threatened to hang him for what they regarded as disloyalty to the section, but upon hearing his defiant retort that according to his opinion a man who refused to vote according to the wishes of his constituents deserved to be hanged, and that they should come and do their work, the mob became an orderly mass that entered the hall to stare at a man with so much courage. He remained in the convention throughout the whole session, taking part in its proceedings, and assisted in the re-organization of the State government under the new order of things. In 1861 he was defeated for the senate. When war came General Bulger felt it his duty to do everything to uphold the Southern cause. His first work was to assist Governor Shorter to re-organize the cavalry. He recruited and organized a company and went into camp at Loachapoka, and with his assistance a regiment was raised, but on his failure to be elected colonel he accepted a captaincy in the 47th Alabama infantry regiment; at the battle of Cedar Run he was in command of the regiment and during an attack on the flank he was wounded in the arm, but he bound his arm tightly, laid it in his bosom, and continued to command his regiment. A little later he was shot in the leg and an artery severed, but he stopped the flow of blood by placing a corn-cob on each side which he bound with a suspender that was given him by one of the soldiers, and then persisted in the fight until exhausted from the loss of blood he was compelled to desist. He was borne to the home of a Mr. Tusby where he was cared for. He returned home and while confined to his bed from his wounds he was elected to the State senate to fill a vacancy. After his recovery he returned to his regiment and was made lieutenant colonel. At the battle of Gettysburg he was in General Law's brigade in the charge on Little Round Top, and while commanding the regiment was shot through the chest with a minie ball, which lodged under the shoulder blade where it ever after remained. He was left on the field and reported dead, but was cared for by the Federals during his stay at Gettysburg. He was later removed to Baltimore and thence sent to Johnson's Island, where he spent the winter. The following spring he was exchanged, and returning to his command was commissioned colonel. Returning home for a surgical operation he was again elected to the State senate. While waiting to recover sufficiently to return to the field he was commissioned brigadier-general in the Confederate Army, but before he could assume his new office the Confederate armies had surrendered. Upon returning home he became a candidate for governor, but was defeated by Robert M. Patton. He was a member of the State senate, 1866. After this last public service he retired to the home of his daughter, at Jackson's Gap. He was a Presbyterian. Married: (1) in 1829, to Parmelia, daughter of Rev. Matthew Donnell of Rea County, Tenn.; (2) in 1837, to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Nathan and Harriet Bozeman, of Tallapoosa County. Children, by the first wife: 1. Pierce D., Baptist minister;

2. Mary A., m. Dr. James T. Shackelford, Trenton, Tenn.; 3. Michael; 4. Parmelia, m. Dr. Wilson T. Banks, Tallapoosa County; by the second wife: 5. Nathan; 6. William D.; 7. Catherine T., m. John P. Burns, Dadeville; 8. Thomas L. (q. v.); 9. Carrie. Last residence: Jackson's Gap.

BULGER, THOMAS LAFAYETTE, lawyer and State senator, was born in Dadeville, Tallapoosa County, August 16, 1855; son of Michael Jefferson and Mary Elizabeth (Bozeman) Bulger (q. v.); and grandson of Nathan and Harriett Bozeman, of Brooksville, Coosa County. Senator Bulger's early education was received in the common country schools; he attended the Roanoke college in Virginia four years, and later entered the U. S. military academy at West Point, but did not graduate. Since 1877, Mr. Bulger has been a practicing lawyer at Dadeville; was a member of the State senate, 1886-87, member of the house of representatives, 1898-99 and 1900-01; member of the constitutional convention of 1901; again a member of the house, 1907; and a member of the State senate, 1915, of which body he was president pro tem. He is a Democrat; a member of the State executive committee ten years; a Bryan presidential elector; a Methodist, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: December 16, 1880, at Wetumpka, to Mollie Cade, daughter of Col. John G. and Sarah (Hutcheson) Bass, of that place. Children: 1. Hentell T., m. O. P. Carlisle, of Dadeville; 2. Bessie Cade, m. Joseph B. Rylance (q. v.); 3. Michael J. Jr., unmarried. Residence: Dadeville.

BULGER, WILLIAM DOUGLASS, lawyer, was born March 1, 1843, near Rockford, Coosa County, and died at Dadeville, December 5, 1894; son of Michael and Elizabeth (Bozeman) Bulger (q. v.). He was educated in the county schools, and spent five years in the office of the "Dadeville Banner," owned by his father. He entered Maryville college, Tenn., and was a student there in 1861, when he left school to become a member of a company assigned to the 38th Tennessee infantry regiment. On receiving his discharge, in April 1862, he enlisted in Co. A, 47th Alabama infantry regiment, commanded by his father; participated in the battles of Cedar Run, Second Manassas, Chantilly Farm, Fredericksburg, Sharpsburg, Gettysburg and Chickamauga; was wounded in the last named battle, and was assigned to duty at Mobile and appointed lieutenant colonel of the Third Alabama reserves. Upon the cessation of hostilities he returned home and at once began the study of law; in 1866 admitted to the bar and located at Dadeville, where he remained until 1888, when he removed to Birmingham; in a short time became associated with Judge John T. Heflin, and upon the latter's death, became associated with John J. Altman and Harrington P. Heflin. He was a member of the house of representatives from Tallapoosa County, 1870-81, and an unsuccessful candidate for congress from the fifth district. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: December 5, 1866, at Dadeville, to Amanda Elizabeth, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Crabbe) Crabbe, of McDonough, Ga., the former a Confederate soldier. Children: 1. Emma, m. James A. O'Neal; 2. Henrie, an artist, resides in Dadeville; 3. Frances, resides in Dadeville; 4. Bozeman, a newspaper writer of wide reputation, m. Louie Strane, of Athens, resides in New York; 5. Ruby, m. Alexander M. Parker, reside in Tucson, Arizona; 6-10 all died young. Last residence: Dadeville.

BULLARD, ROBERT LEE, lieutenant general U. S. Army, was born January 15, 1861, at Youngsboro, Lee County; son of Daniel and Susan (Mizell) Bullard, the former a native of Lumberton, Robeson County, N. C., an early pioneer to Alabama where he acquired extensive landed interests, residing near Opelika, later removing to a site opposite Columbus, Ga., finally settling on his plantation at Oak Bowery, a Democrat, Methodist and a Mason; grandson of Robert and Catherine (McLean) Bullard, also of Robeson County, N. C.; great-grandson of Charles McLean, a native of the Isle of Skye and of Scotch stock who emigrated to North Carolina prior to the Revolutionary war. The Bullards were of English ancestry. The Mizell family was of French origin. Gen. Bullard was educated in the common schools of Lee and Chambers counties and was a student at the Alabama agricultural and mechanical college, now Alabama polytechnic institute 1880-81, and in June of that year, by competitive examination, entered the U. S. military academy, West Point, N. Y., from which he graduated in 1885, twenty-seven in a class of thirty-nine; graduated from School of the line, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and the Army war college, Washington, D. C., 1912.

Gen. Bullard's career in the U. S. Army is as follows: Geronimo Indian campaign, 1885-86; service in Southwest; major, Alabama volunteers, negroes, 1898-99, this regiment won high reputation in War department for discipline and excellence of conduct. Upon its reputation, Colonel Bullard was appointed by President as colonel 39th infantry U. S. volunteers 1899-1901. For the work of this regiment in campaign in the Philippines, Col. Bullard was commended or approved by Generals Otis, Bates, Schwan and McArthur and by all other commanders under whom he served. Upon his work with this regiment Col. Bullard, at that time a major in the subsistence department of the regular army was transferred back to the line of the regular army from which he came at the opening of the Spanish American War, and served in nine engagements; cut Lligan-Lanao military road in Central Mindanao, 1902-1903; military commander, opened hostile Moro Country, in Central Mindanao and as civil governor established government there, the first among the Moros, 1903-1904, and served in seventeen engagements. In this work repeatedly officially commended for skillful military and civil operations, by Colonels Foote, Williams and Sweet and by Generals George W. Davis and Leonard Wood; political aide to provisional governor of Cuba, working in all departments of government, 1906-08; secretary of public instruction in Cuba, 1908-

09; confidential work in Mexico, 1911; colonel of infantry, Regular army, March 11, 1911; special instruction in tactics, Ft. Leavenworth schools of the line, 1911; graduate, Army war college, 1912; commander mobilized Third brigade, Second division, 1913-15; commanding regiment, district and national guard brigade in Mexican border bandit raids and in national guard mobilization on border, 1915-16; commanding officer, Training Camp, Arkansas, May 1917; brigadier general, U. S. Army, June 14, 1917; commanding Second brigade, First division, American expeditionary forces in France June, July and August, 1917; major general, National army, August 5, 1917; establishing and commanding various infantry officers schools in France to December 14, 1917; commanding first division, A. E. F. in training maneuvers, trenches and open field in all its engagements and operations against Germans in France, December 14, 1917, to June 14, 1918; commanding Third corps, A. E. F., in open field in all its engagements and operations against Germans in France, July 14 to October 11, 1918; lieutenant general, October 16, 1918; major general, Regular army, November 1918; assigned to command and commanding Second Army, A. E. F., in France in all its operations and engagements, training, occupation of enemy territory in France and in Luxemburg, October 11, 1918, to April 15, 1919; decorations from United States, France, Belgium and Italy for services in war against Germany.

General Bullard is a Democrat; reared a Methodist, but became a Catholic at the age of forty. Author: numerous articles on the military profession, Cuba, the Philippines and the psychology of military leadership. Married: April 17, 1888, at Fort Wingate, N. M., to Rosa daughter of Reese B. and Maria (Keith) Brabson of Chattanooga, Tenn. Children: 1. Robert Lee, jr.; 2. Peter Cleary; 3. Rosa Brabson; 4. Keith. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

BULLEN, JACOB THOMPSON, district engineer, U. S. bureau of roads, was born November 21, 1872, at Louisville, Ky., son of Thomas Henry and Therese (Monte) Bullen, of Louisville, Ky.; grandson of William and Eliza Ann (Meares) Bullen, of eastern Maryland. Mr. Bullen received his early education in the public schools of Louisville, Ky., and Montgomery, and was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, B. S., 1892, C. E., 1900. He served as clerk of the L. & N. railroad at Montgomery from 1892 until 1900; was assistant highway engineer for Jackson County, three years, and chief engineer, two years; assistant engineer in the extension of the city water works at Montgomery; private engineer, 1905-1906; county engineer for Montgomery and Morgan Counties, 1906-1911; parish engineer of the Caddo Parish, La., October, 1911-August, 1916; county engineer of Raleigh County, Va., August, 1916-November, 1916; U. S. district engineer for the bureau of roads, in charge of Federal aid roadwork of six southeastern states, 1916-1919. He enlisted in the Montgomery Greys during the Spanish-American War, and was promoted from private to second lieutenant, and after the war, became captain. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; and a member of Phi Delta Theta college fraternity. Married: In Nashville, Tenn., Gertrude, daughter of George Frederick and Sarah (Fennell) Scruggs, of Huntsville; granddaughter of Frederick and Margaret (Kimbrough) Scruggs, and of Isabella (Allison) Fennell; great granddaughter of Frederick and Rebecca Lindsay (Conway) Scruggs, the former a settler of North Carolina, afterwards called Jefferson County, Tenn.; great-great-granddaughter of Gross and Anne Kuth (Hale) Scruggs, the former a native of Virginia who served in the Revolutionary War under Gen. Anthony Wayne and Edward Conway; great-great-great-granddaughter of Jesse Scruggs, who settled in Burke County, Ga., before 1774; great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Richard and Martha Scruggs of New Kent County, Va.; great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Henery and Ann (Grose) Scruggs; great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Richard Scruggs, Gentleman, an Englishman of Bedfordshire, who came to America in 1655, and settled in the Province of Virginia. Children: 1. Margaret, b. 1906; 2. Jake, b. 1911; 3. George, b. 1911. Residence: Montgomery.

BULLOCK, EDWARD COURTNEY, lawyer, was born December 7, 1822, and died December 23, 1861, at Montgomery. His father was a native of Rhode Island who moved to Charleston, S. C., married there, and became a merchant in that city. His mother was a sister of Edward Courtney, of Charleston, S. C. Col. Bullock gained his early schooling in that city, and was graduated from Harvard College in 1842. The following year he moved to Alabama; settled in Eufaula; and taught school there for two years. During this time, he used his spare time for the study of law; was licensed to practice; and established himself at Eufaula. He soon became connected in a law partnership with John A. Calhoun, nephew of John C. Calhoun; and later with Hon. J. L. Pugh and Jefferson Buford (q. v.) under the firm name of Pugh, Bullock & Buford. In 1857 he was elected to the state senate by the Democratic party, and was re-elected in 1859. During his four years in the senate, he was made chairman of the committee on the judiciary, and held a controlling influence not only in the senate, but also in the house. He was closely allied, in consultation and in action, with the events which resulted in secession. He was a very prominent member of the state convention that sent delegates to Charleston, S. C., in 1860, and was active in its proceedings and in passing the platform resolutions. When the state seceded, he was appointed by Gov. Moore a commissioner to Florida, to consult with the authorities there on the common interest of the cotton states. Upon the election of Jefferson Davis to the presidency of the Confederacy, he was selected to represent his state in the delivery of a formal address of welcome to the president and his party, as they entered her precincts for the inaugural ceremonies.

When war broke out, Col. Bullock resigned his seat in the senate, and enlisted as a private in the Eufaula Rifles. While stationed at Pensacola, his legal abilities were recognized by Gen. Bragg in the appointment of judge advocate, and upon the organization of the Eighteenth Alabama regiment, he was commissioned its colonel. The regiment was stationed at Mobile, and it was during the discharge of his duties there that Col. Bullock contracted the fever which proved fatal to him. He had requested Gen. Bragg to allow him to be present at the bombardment of Pensacola, and the telegram announcing that event came on the very day he was first stricken with typhoid. Rallying under the excitement of the occasion, he went immediately to Pensacola, but soon had to yield to the disease. After three weeks he was moved to Montgomery by his friend, Dr. W. O. Baldwin, at whose home he died two weeks later. He was buried Christmas day at Eufaula. The first legislature after the war named a new county in honor of Col. Bullock's memory, acting upon the motion made by Col. Richard H. Powell, of Union Springs, the senator from Macon. Hon. James L. Pugh, of Eufaula, said of Col. Bullock, "He was the best organized man I ever knew. His temper and taste were perfect. His whole nature was genial, refined and gentle. . . . His mind was remarkable for its activity and brilliancy. His personal integrity, and devotion to principle, duty and truth were very striking. He was a fine lawyer and an able advocate; and his high personal character, honorable nature, and irresistible wit and elegance made him a lawyer and statesman of as high promise as any man who ever lived in Alabama."

Married: December, 1845, at Eufaula. Mary Julia Snipes, daughter of Capt. William Snipes, of South Carolina. Children: 1. Eliza M., in charge of the girls' high school, Montgomery; 2. Edward C., Jr., b. June 20, 1849, in Eufaula, attended Jesuit College, near Mobile, for several sessions, entered the drug house of Weedon & Dent at Eufaula in 1868; started a drug business of his own, 1877, in Eufaula, m. April 26, 1883, Eva Martin, daughter of John O. Martin, to which union have been born four children, E. C., Jr., Lela M., John M., and Clayton D.; 3. Sallie, m. I. R. Moulthrop, Eufaula; 4. Hattie, d. in infancy. Last residence: Eufaula.

BULLOCK, WILLIAM ISBELL, lawyer and State senator, was born October 6, 1859, in Franklin County, and died January 11, 1904; son of Francis and Celia Catherine (Tompkins) Bullock, of that county; grandson of William and Harriet Tompkins, of Colbert County. Francis Bullock's ancestors were from Granville County, N. C. He was a Confederate soldier, and fell at Perryville, Ky. Senator Bullock was educated in the common schools; in 1880 was admitted to the bar at Russellville; in 1884 was elected a member of the general assembly; and served as State senator from the thirty-first district, 1900-01, and 1903; was an unsuccessful candidate for representative of the seventh district in congress at the general election of 1896; has been a member of the Democratic State executive committee for many years, and at his death was a trustee of the State normal school, Florence. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: (1), December 28, 1887, to Lelia, daughter of Judge Sydney S. and Dora (Cleere) Anderson, of Russellville; and (2) October 23, 1901, to Jean, daughter of George S. Henderson, of Tuscumbia. Last residence: Russellville.

BUNKLEY, FRANK KEENE, planter and merchant, was born March 1, 1864, in Montgomery County; son of Gordon Sanford and Lucinda Morris (Keene) Bunkley, the former a native of Clinton, Jones County, Ga., who lived on a plantation in Macon and Montgomery counties, a prosperous planter of the old school and an owner of large numbers of slaves, who during the War of Secession was a producer of vast quantities of supplies for the support of the C. S. Army; grandson of William Dawson and Camilla Dorinda (Sanford) Bunkley, who lived at Clinton, Jones County, Ga., and of Dr. Benjamin Franklin and Lucinda (Morris) Keene, the former a physician of Georgia who went to California in the forties, and became a member of the senate of that state; great-grandson of Jesse D. Bunkley, a soldier of the Revolution, and of Jesse Sanford who fought in the Revolutionary War and was with Washington at the surrender of Yorktown; great-great-grandson of William Dawson and Elizabeth (Slatter) Bunkley. Mr. Bunkley was prepared in the public schools of Montgomery, then attended the State Normal School at Florence, and the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, 1882-1883. He became a planter and a merchant, and on March 5, 1901, was appointed by President Carmichael, with the approval of Gov. Sanford, warden of the state penitentiary at Wetumpka. This appointment was confirmed by Gov. Jelks. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; and a Master Mason. Married: October 22, 1891, Hortense Candler, daughter of Ex-Gov. Allen D. and Eugenia (Williams) Candler, of Gainesville, Ga. She is a direct descendant of Col. Candler who fought in the American Revolution. Children: 1. Gordon Sanford; 2. Allen Candler; 3. Frank Keene; 4. William Dawson; 5. Sarah Hortense; 6. Lucy Keene; 7. Charles Westcott. Last residence: Wetumpka.

BURFORD, JOHN, Sen., soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, and a resident of Jefferson County; private and sergeant N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on November 15, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $43.88.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BURGAMY, TILLMAN PEURIFOY, physician, was born January 14, 1833, in Eatonton, Putnam County, Ga., and died September 26, 1891, in Birmingham; son of John and Martha Davis (Peurifoy) Burgamy, of Houston County, Ga., who removed to Fayette County, Ga.; grandson of William and Margaret (Leggett) Burgamy of Putnam County, Ga., and of William and Mary Frances (Williams) Peurifoy, of North Carolina; great-grandson of William and Susan (Hawkins) Burgamy, the former, a native of France who fought in the American Revolution under Gen. Elijah Clarke, and of Lewis Leggett, who lived in Georgia, and of Thomas and Sallie Alicia Purefoy, sr., of Craven County, N. C., great-great-grandson of Rev. Nicholas Purefoy of Craven County, N. C., who emigrated to America after being persecuted by the Church of England, 1741; great-great-great-grandson of Nicholas Purefoy, who removed from Virginia to North Carolina about 1700-07; great-great-great-great-grandson of Thomas Purefoy, jr., of Gloucester County, Va.; great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Captain Thomas Purefoy, the immigrant, who was very prominent in the Colonial history of Virginia, a member of the council, commissioner for Elizabeth City County, principal commander of his county, and burgess for the lower part of the county, who came from England in 1620, on the "George," and settled in Elizabeth City County, Va., and whose wife was Lucy Ranson of Leicestershire, England; great-great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Humphrie and Alice (Faunt) Purefoy, and great-great-great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Sir Nicholas Pewrifie, who subscribed to the Virginia company, his wife being Joice Hardwick. Dr. Burgamy was educated in the schools of his county by private tutors and in the high school of Forsyth, Ga.; studied medicine under his uncles, Drs. McCarroll Peurifoy of Forsyth and Dr. Archibald Peurifoy of Charleston, S. C.; graduated from the Atlanta medical college in 1855 and did special work in surgery at Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia. He removed to Montgomery County, locating at Ramer, which was then called "Athens," and built a home there. He removed later to a plantation in Crenshaw County where he practiced his profession until his final removal to Birmingham, in 1877. He enlisted for service in the Confederate Army, as surgeon in a Georgia regiment; became incapacitated for military duty by rheumatism, was discharged from the army and resumed his practice. He was active in the early development of Birmingham, making large investments, when the future seemed doubtful. He was an "Old Line Whig," but, after 1865, voted the Democratic ticket. He was a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: August 18, 1862, in Lowndes County, to Sarah Medora, daughter of Rev. John Averette and Rachel (Sloan) Fonville, the former a native Baptist divine, and grandfather of Rev. Charles A. Stakeley (q. v.); of Montgomery. Children: 1. Ella Peurifoy, m. Martin Cassity Reynolds; 2. Alma Gibson, unmarried; 3. Zuleika Theodosia, m. John Finley Gillespie; 4. Lillian Averette, m. William Martin Goldsmith; 5. Martha Edlena, m. Dr. Jefferson D. Gibson; 6. Fannie May, m. John Walker Patton, of Huntsville. Last residence: Birmingham.

JAMES OSCAR PRUDE, SR.

BURGAMY, WILLIAM THOMAS, physician, was born August 6, 1834, in Eatonton, Putnam County, Ga., and died September 9, 1905, in Rutledge, Crenshaw County; son of John and Martha Davis (Peurifoy) Burgamy of Houston, then Fayette County, Ga., and brother of Tillman Purifoy Burgamy (q. v.). He was educated in the schools of Forsyth and studied medicine in the Atlanta medical college and in Philadelphia. About 1858, he removed to Alabama, practiced for awhile with his brother, Dr. Tillman P. Burgamy, at Ramer, Montgomery County, and located permanently, at Rutledge, Crenshaw County, where he practiced, until his death. He was a successful planter, and a member of the State and County medical societies. In 1861 he enlisted in Co. B, 13th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, as surgeon, and served in Virginia; later served with Hilliard's Legion, in the Tennessee Army. At the close of the war, he resumed his practice. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: (1) in 1860, to Sarah Clara Bellamy, daughter of John C. Bellamy, of South Carolina, who removed to Jefferson County, Fla.; (2) November 13, 1889, in Butler County, to Mildred Presley, daughter of William Presley, of that county. Children: by the first wife: 1. Lula A., m. D. O. Shows; 2. Mollie, m. John Jeffcoat. The second wife had no children, and at Dr. Burgamy's death, married a Mr. Jones, of Rutledge. Last residence: Rutledge.

BURGESS, WILLIAM, member of the constitutional convention, 1875, from Franklin County.

BURGETT, JAMES R., jr., lawyer, tutor of English at the University of Alabama, 1883-84. Residence: Mobile.

BURGETT, JAMES RALSTON, Presbyterian minister, was born April 6, 1830, at Olivesburg, Richmond County, O.; son of Joseph Rogers and Ann (Ralston) Burgett; grandson of George Burgett, a native of Holland. His father was born in Pennsylvania and emigrated to Savannah, Ashland County, O., settled on a farm there, and died December, 1891, when he was ninety-one years old. His mother was a native of Ireland, who came with her mother to the United States in 1805, after her father's death in Ireland. She died in 1875. Rev. Burgett was prepared in the public schools of his neighborhood, and taught several years before attending college. He entered Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, and was graduated from that institution in 1853, taking first honors in oratory. After his graduation, he served for two years as superintendent of the public schools of Hamilton, O., and during that time devoted his leisure moments to the study of theology, in preparation for the ministry. In the fall of 1856, he entered the Western Theological Seminary of Allegheny City, Pa., and was graduated June 1857. He was licensed to preach the same year, and was ordained April 1858. His first charge was the Presbyterian church at Mansfield, O., and he held that position for two years, serving at the same time as president of a female college at Mansfield.

In November 1859, he was called to the pulpit of the Government Street Presbyterian church at Mobile; accepted the call; and was pastor there for more than thirty-five years. The church is the largest Presbyterian church in Mobile and is one of the strongest in the state. Married: (1) July 26, 1855, Martha A. Vance, of Washington County, Pa., who died December 17, 1856; (2) June 6, 1860, Sarah V. Wheeler, of Mobile. Children, by first marriage: 1. a daughter, m. Rev. F. L. Ewing, of Covington, Tenn.; by second marriage, 2. James Ralston, jr., b. February 15, 1865, lawyer, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B. 1884, LL. B. 1887, A. M. 1894, m. December 30, 1890, at Tuscaloosa, Maggie Roddey, resides at Mobile; 3. John Irwin, b. March 25, 1875, lawyer, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B. 1894, LL. B. 1897, m. June 27, 1900, at Deerbrook, Miss., Nina Clay, resides at Mobile; and four other sons and one daughter. Last residence: Mobile.

BURKE, JOSEPH W., business man and promoter who lived in Birmingham and Mobile.

BURKE, JULIUS L., public official, was born March 24, 1850, at Rome, Ga.; son of Yancey and Sarah (Lindsay) Burke, natives of County Connaught, Ireland, and Scotland, respectively, who moved to Georgia about 1834, and settled near Rome, Gordon County, living there until 1856 when they moved to Cherokee, now Etowah, County, where they remained for the rest of their lives. His father came to America in 1827, and settled near Lincolnton Court House, N. C. While he was in that place, he was connected with the charcoal and ironworks; at Rome, Ga., he was occupied with speculating and merchandising; and in Alabama he was a farmer and speculator in lands. Mr. Burke's maternal grandfather also settled first in North Carolina, where he was a farmer and a furnaceman, using the primitive charcoal methods of that day to produce iron. He received his early education in Georgia, and in 1863, when he was thirteen years old, succeeded in enlisting, after several unsuccessful attempts, in the C. S. Army. He became a private in Co. D, Nineteenth Alabama infantry regiment, participated in several engagements, was wounded at Chickamauga, and discharged December 1864. After the war, he continued his schooling at Adairsville, and in the state university at Athens, Ga. He became local editor of the "Daily," Rome, Ga., and subsequently worked on various papers in Georgia. In 1870, he began to study law in the office of William M. Martin, of Gadsden, and established the "Etowah Shield." In 1872, he removed the paper to Guntersville, and two years later sold it to the Southern Immigrant Company. For a short time thereafter he was connected with the Nashville "Banner," and, after its consolidation with the "American," traveled a while in the interest of that paper. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, but did not immediately take up law practice, having accepted a position as secretary of the Decatur and Chattanooga Packet Company. In 1886, he took up active practice at Gunterville, and became associated with G. W. Jones. He represented Marshall County in the State legislature one term. He is a Democrat, and has served as a delegate to party conventions several times; is a member of the Christian Church; of the Mystic Circle of Philadelphia, Pa.; and of the Legion of Honor. He has served fourteen terms as mayor of Gunterville, and is adjutant of the camp of Confederate veterans at that place. Married: (1) March 1876, Mary C. Adams of Gunterville, daughter of James and Nancy (Fields) Adams; (2) in 1898, Mrs. Mattie Livingston, of Gadsden. Children: 1. James, deceased; 2. Lilian; 3. Yancey, with the "Gadsden Times-News"; 4. Mamie, m. Elbert Simpson, Wyeth City; 5. Robert E.; 6. William; 7. Rupert; 8. George. Residence: Gunterville.

BURKE, MALCOLM CLAYTON, editor, public official, was born July 14, 1836, at Tuscaloosa; son of Thomas Jefferson and Frances (Owen) Burke; grandson of Miles Burke. His father was born in Ireland, February 16, 1813, came to America and settled in Tuscaloosa as a lawyer. He served as a lieutenant in the U. S. Army during the Seminole War, became cashier of the state bank and editor of the "Tuscaloosa Monitor." He died November 24, 1857. Maj. Burke was graduated from the University of Alabama, and was an assistant professor on the faculty of that institution at the outbreak of the War of Secession. He enlisted in the C. S. Army, December 1862, as a first lieutenant of artillery, was examined by the authorized board for ordnance duty, was commissioned and assigned to duty at Fort Morgan. In 1863, he was assigned to the staff of Gen. Cantey as ordnance officer; went with Cantey's brigade to Johnston's army in northern Georgia and served through that campaign as first lieutenant of ordnance and brigade ordnance officer. At the close of the war, Maj. Burke returned to Tuscaloosa County, farmed for one year; then moved to a farm in Marengo County for three years. In 1872, at Demopolis, he started the Marengo "News," erecting it upon the plant of an old and defunct paper. He conducted the "News" for twelve years and during the period of Reconstruction, established it as the opponent of radical rule. He was appointed superintendent of education of Marengo County, 1872, held the office for eighteen months, and then resigned. He served as mayor of Demopolis from 1881 until 1884, and in the latter year was elected auditor of the state. He was re-elected in 1886 and served until 1888. His connection with the Marengo "News" ceased upon his election to the auditorship.

During his administration of the auditor's office, Maj. Burke received the notice of the leading press of almost every state in the Union. In 1884, the first year of his incumbency, the delinquent tax at the end of the tax year amounted to but twenty-five hundred dollars, and at the end of the tax year for 1885, there was only due his office from the entire state, forty-nine dollars seventy-six cents. This fact was commented upon as being without precedent in the history of any state in the Union. The delinquent tax due the office when he took charge of it, aggregated thirty thousand dollars, and in 1881, the books show that there was over one hundred thousand dollars delinquent, with an average for the twenty years preceding his election, of fifty thousand dollars delinquent tax. On the expiration of his term as auditor, Maj. Burke became claim agent for the L. & N. railroad. Married: December 7, 1865, at Tuscaloosa, Annie Ida Inge, daughter of Robert S. and Agatha (Marr) Inge of Tuscaloosa. She died April 11, 1887. Children: one daughter and four sons, one of whom is Edward Clarke, b. September 9, 1874, a freight clerk of Montgomery, and another is Malcolm Clayton, jr. (q. v.). Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BURKE, MALCOLM CLAYTON, JR., educator, was born July 8, 1879, at Demopolis, Marengo County; son of Malcolm Clayton and Annie Ida (Inge) Burke (q. v.), of Tuscaloosa; grandson of Thomas and Sarah Frances (Owen) Burke, of Tuscaloosa, and of Robert S. and Agatha (Marr) Inge of that city. Prof. Burke was prepared in the public schools of Montgomery; was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1899; from Harvard University, A. B., 1901; and from the University of Munich, Ph.D., 1908. He became connected with the faculty of the University of Alabama in 1901; was instructor in Greek until 1904; adjunct professor in Greek, 1904-1905; was granted a leave of absence from the university, and studied abroad, 1905-1908; was associate professor of Greek, 1908-1917; was granted leave of absence from the university to enter the U. S. Army; was commissioned lieutenant and assigned to duty at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., as an official translator and censor for the German detention camp at that point. After the close of the war with Germany, he resigned from the teaching force of the University, and entered the U. S. consular service. He is author of "De Apollinaris Sidonii Codice nondum tractato," 1908. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BURKHEAD, JESSE DeWITT, Presbyterian minister, was born August 10, 1833, in Iredell County, N. C., and died April 18, 1892, at Montgomery; son of Jane E. (Hudson) Burkhead, who lived with her husband in Cabarus and Iredell Counties, N. C. His father was born in 1795 in Stanley County, N. C., and died in 1875. He received his early schooling in Iredell County, N. C., and at Poplar Grove academy; and was graduated from Davidson college, North Carolina, A. B., 1854. He taught in Mount Pleasant academy for the next two years; attended Columbia theological seminary, South Carolina, 1856-1858; then went to Edinburgh, Scotland, to complete his theological studies in the Free Church college. Upon his graduation from that institution, he returned to North Carolina, 1859, and was licensed by the Concord Presbytery. His first call was to Rocky River and Providence churches, in Abbeville County, S. C., where he was ordained and installed as pastor. During his pastorate there, the War of Secession began, and he volunteered for service, enlisting first as a private in the Nineteenth South Carolina regiment, C. S. Army. A few days after his enlistment he was appointed chaplain of the regiment. He saw service in North Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee and Georgia. After the war, he was called successively to Decatur, Ga.; the First Church of Athens, Ga.; to the evangelistic work in Cherokee Presbytery; to the First Church of Huntsville; the First Church at Paris, Tex.; to the evangelistic work in Eastern Texas Presbytery; and finally to the First Church of Montgomery, August 1885, where he remained as the settled pastor until his death. During his ministry, he received more than three thousand individuals into the Presbyterian church; and while he was stationed at Montgomery, almost seven years, three hundred sixteen members were added to the church roll. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and a Knight of Honor. He was author of "Theology for the Masses." Married: 1858, in Anderson District, S. C., Olivia Louisia Anderson, daughter of Dr. William and Mary McEldowny (Hunter) Anderson, who lived at Pendleton, S. C.; granddaughter of Capt. James Anderson, an officer of the Revolutionary War, and of Thomas Hunter, who came to United States from County Tyrone, Ireland; great-granddaughter of John Anderson, one of the first justices of Augusta County, Va. She was of direct Irish descent. Children: 1. Mary Florence, deceased, m. Malcolm Gilchrist, jr., of Courtland; 2. Rev. William DeWitt (q. v.); 3. Rockwell Giles, deceased; 4. Arthur Anderson, deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

BURKHEAD, WILLIAM DeWITT, Presbyterian minister, was born June 16, 1861, in Anderson County, S. C.; son of Rev. Jesse DeWitt and Olivia Louisia (Anderson) Burkhead (q. v.). He attended The Ronald Johnson Preparatory School at Cartersville, Ga., and Prof. Young's school at Huntsville; and was a student at the University of Alabama, 1877-1879. He was a member of the engineering corps in Texas and Arkansas, 1880-1881; was a merchant for three years in Atlanta, Ga., and for ten years in Montgomery; entered the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., as a divinity student, and was graduated in the class of 1901. He entered the Presbyterian ministry in 1901, and was licensed to preach in Opelika by the East Alabama Presbytery, October, 1901. He was ordained by the Lexington Presbytery, Virginia, in 1903, and has held the pastorates at Mt. Horeb, Va., and Opelika. He was superintendent of home missions of East Alabama Presbytery for two years. He is a Democrat; a Mason; and an Elk. Married: June 27, 1890, in Montgomery, Annie Laurie Bell, daughter of Newton Joseph and Mary Ella (Whitley) Bell, who lived at Montgomery. Children: 1. Jesse DeWitt; 2. Eloise, Opelika; 3. Annabel; 4. Forrest Whitley. Last residence: Opelika.

BURKS, HENRY THOMAS, farmer and legislator, was born July 6, 1854, at Northport, Tuscaloosa County; son of Bennett and Louisa Maria (Roycroft) Burks, the former removed from Ocmulgee River, Henry County, Ga., to Tuscaloosa County, and served in C. S. Army, was tax assessor and collector in that county; grandson of William and Parmelia (Walthall) Burks of Virginia, the grandfather of the latter held a land grant from the king of England, on the James River, Virginia, and of Thomas and Elizabeth (Nicholls) Roycroft, of Wake County, N. C. The Burks family is Irish. He was educated in the schools of Tuscaloosa; was justice of the peace, 1900-1904; chairman board of public works, 1906-1907; chairman of county commissioners, 1908-1918; elected to the house of representatives of 1919, from his native county. Mr. Burks is a farmer. He was a populist from 1896 to 1900; is now a Democrat; is a Baptist; Mason; and a Knight Templar. Married: Amanda Jerusha, daughter of Francis Marion and Sarah (Sartain) Auxford, of Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. Bennett Auxford, m. Kathleen Ward, served as a captain in the 317th U. S. infantry, A. E. F.; 2. Henry Thomas, jr., m. Erlene Durrett, served as lieutenant, 321 Field artillery, A. E. F.; 3. Sarah Frances, m. Joseph S. Rice; 4. Basil Manly, served in U. S. Navy during European War. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

BURLESON, DABNEY A., merchant, was born February 15, 1835, near Decatur; son of Jonathon and Elizabeth (Byrd) Burleson; grandson of John Burleson, a pioneer from North Carolina, who settled at the Spring at Huntsville, 1817, helped drive the Indians from the country, and died in Lawrence County, and of William Byrd, a Baptist preacher. His father was a native of Kentucky, a seasoned Indian fighter and a veteran of the War of 1812, who came to Alabama in 1818, and settled nine miles south of Decatur, where he remained until his death in 1867. He was a county commissioner; justice of the peace; and secretary of what has been called "the first legislature," a convention called by the citizens of that region to pass resolutions which partook of the nature of laws, for protection against horse thieves. Mr. Burleson was reared in Morgan County on his father's farm; was educated at Union University, Murfreesboro, Tenn., and at Baylor University, Independence, Tex. After his graduation he entered business as a merchant at Danville. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he enlisted in the C. S. Army as a member of Col. Joe Patterson's regiment; was stationed for some time at Grenada, Miss., in the quartermaster corps, but served mostly in the Tennessee Valley under Gen. P. Roddy. He was once captured, but escaped after a few hours, and was at Selma at the time of the surrender. After the war, he became a farmer at Hartselle. He is a Baptist and an Odd Fellow. Mr. Burleson is a half-brother of Aaron A. Burleson, the first white child born in Morgan County, who was a physician in Decatur for many years, and is now located in Arkansas; and of Rufus C. Burleson, a Baptist preacher, who was president of Waco University, Waco, Tex. Married: February 11, 1857, Sallie Orr, daughter of Jonathan Orr, a farmer of Morgan County. Children: 1. Jonathan; 2. Kitty; 3. Betty; 4. Florence; 5. Ellen Byrd. Residence: Hartselle.

BURLESON, RICHARD BYRD, Baptist minister, was born near Decatur, and died December 21, 1879, at Waco, Tex.; son of Jonathan Burleson; brother of Rufus Burleson (q. v.). Dr. Burleson entered Nashville university, Tenn., 1840, and remained three years; was licensed to preach, 1841, by the first Baptist church of Nashville; called to ordination by the Athens church, November 1842, remaining two years; served Tuscumbia church, 1845-49; president, Moulton female academy, 1849-55; pastor, Austin, Tex., 1856-57; professor of natural science, Baylor university, Texas, 1857-61; vice-president and professor of natural science, Waco, Texas, 1861, where he labored for eighteen years. Last residence: Waco, Tex.

BURLESON, RUFUS, Baptist minister and educator, was born August 7, 1823, near Decatur; son of Jonathan Burleson; brother of Richard Burleson (q. v.). Dr. Burleson, while a student of law at Nashville university, 1840, abandoned it to enter the ministry; was licensed to preach in Nashville, Tenn., December 12, 1840; ordained June 8, 1845; and graduated from Western Baptist literary and theological institute, Covington, Ky., June 10, 1847. He was immediately called to Houston, Tex., and in 1851 was elected president of Baylor university. In 1861, he with his brother, Dr. Richard Burleson, and the entire faculty associated with him at Baylor university, removed to Waco where they inaugurated Waco university.

BURNETT, JOHN DONALD, lawyer, was born February 8, 1852, at Belleville, Conecuh County; son of John H. and Margaret (Donald) Burnett, the former a native of Georgia, born in 1818, came to Alabama with his parents the following year, became a planter owning a large tract of real estate and a number of slaves, died in 1861; grandson of Samuel Burnett, born in Georgia in 1777, who came to Conecuh County and located at Hampden Ridge in 1819, was the first judge of the county court of Conecuh County and held the position for two consecutive terms, and of Alexander and Catherine (Simpson) Donald, natives of South Carolina, who moved to Alabama in 1820, and settled near Belleville, Conecuh County. The Burnett family is of Scotch-Irish ancestry. The early death of his father and the result of the War of Secession made it necessary for Mr. Burnett to leave school at the age of fourteen, when he had received a common school education, and assume the support of his mother's family. He farmed for four years, and by rigid economy, had saved means for the purpose of a college course, when an unfortunate investment in the timber and mercantile business swept away his capital in a few months, leaving him deeply in debt. He continued in the timber business, performing the hardest and most laborious manual labor, driving oxen, cutting, rafting and running timber to market, and pursued the study of law at night by pine knot fires, until his twenty-third year. Then having discharged every obligation, he applied himself entirely to his professional studies, and was admitted to the bar September 8, 1875. He located at Evergreen, Conecuh County, and a year later became associated in the practice with Hon. N. Stallworth, which partnership is still in existence. Mr. Burnett acted as county solicitor, 1877-1880; was elected to represent Conecuh County in the State legislature, 1882; was re-elected 1884, and resigned the office in 1885, to accept the appointment of U. S. district attorney for the southern district of Alabama. This appointment gained for Mr. Burnett national notoriety from the fact that it was made President Cleveland's test case in a long and heated contest with the U. S. Senate. In July, after his inauguration, President Cleveland removed from the office, George M. Duskin, a Republican, before the expiration of his term, and upon the assembling of the senate, the Republican members of that body demanded the president's reasons for the removal. These, President Cleveland refused to make known, and as a consequence, Mr. Burnett's confirmation was vigorously opposed by the Republican senators of whom there was a majority. A partisan contest between the president and the senate followed, lasting for six or seven months, and eventually terminating in Mr. Burnett's confirmation. He had served as Democratic presidential elector in 1896, from the second district of Alabama, and was chosen again in 1900. He was elected March 23, 1901, a delegate from the state at large from the seventeenth senatorial district to the constitutional convention held at Montgomery, May 1901. He is a Democrat, a Methodist, a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and a Knight of Honor. Married: June 29, 1876, in Evergreen, Mary V. Martin, daughter of Gen. E. W. Martin. Children: 1. Mary V.; 2. John Donald, jr., b. February 6, 1880, a corporal in the Second Alabama regiment of volunteers during the Spanish War, 1898, attended the U. S. Military Academy; 3. Daisy Martin. Residence: Evergreen.

BURNETT, JOHN LAWSON, lawyer, representative in congress, was born January 20, 1853, at Cedar Bluff, Cherokee County, and died May 13, 1919; son of William Edward Jacob and Mary N. (Brandon) Burnett, a native of Dandridge, Tenn., who lived at Rome and Summerville, Ga., and - at Cedar Bluff; grandson of John S. Burnett, who moved from Tennessee to Georgia, and settled at Rome, where he did a general mercantile business, and of F. L. and Zillah (Haynie) Brandon of Cartersville, Ga., and of Gaylesville, the former a native of Halifax County, Va., one of the family for whom Brandon County, Va., was named, who moved to South Carolina and then to Gwinnett County, Ga. Mr. Burnett's father died in 1858, and his mother supported her family by teaching school. His early education was received from his mother, and in the common schools of the county. He attended Wesleyan Institute, Cave Springs, Ga., and Gaylesville high school, studied law at Vanderbilt University, 1874, and was admitted to the bar in Cherokee County in 1876. When he was seventeen years old, he taught school at the Cumberland Camp Ground, near Gaylesville, and after he was admitted to the bar, conducted a high school at Cedar Bluff, in connection with his mother and two assistant teachers. During that time, he was a member of the board of education of Cherokee County. He practiced law at Center, as a member of the law firm of McSpadden, Carden & Burnett until 1893; was elected to the State legislature from Cherokee County in 1884, with a plurality of six hundred votes over Col. J. P. Whorton, his nearest opponent; was nominated on the first ballot and elected without opposition for the State senate in 1886, and served until 1890. In 1893, he moved to Gadsden and became associated with the law firm of Denson, Bilber & Burnett, and later with Burnett, Hand & Murphree. In June 1898, he was unanimously nominated by the Democratic party as representative to congress from the seventh congressional district, and was elected by more than a nineteen hundred plurality over O. D. Street, the Populist candidate, and by more than a three thousand plurality over Capt. Frank H. Lathrop, the Republican nominee. He was re-elected to congress, serving consecutively from 1898 to 1919. He was author of the Burnett Immigration Restriction bill, which passed the lower house, December 18, 1912; was chairman of the committee on immigration and naturalization; and had been a member of the U. S. Immigration Commission since 1907. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; an Odd Fellow; a Knight of Pythias; and an Elk. Married: December 13, 1886, at Cleveland, Tenn., Bessie B. Reeder, daughter of Tilburn and Eliza (Green) Reeder of that city. Her uncle, Dr. I. Green, was a resident for many years of Fort Payne. The Greens were among the earliest settlers of Tennessee. Children: 1. Phi William, b. May 31, 1888 at Center, m. Ruth Campbell at Gadsden, January 31, 1911. Residence: Gadsden.

BURNETT, SAMUEL, judge, was born in 1777 in Georgia, and died in 1839, at Hampden Ridge, Conecuh County. He came to Conecuh County about 1820 and located at Hampden Ridge where he became a prominent citizen. He served as judge of the county court for two terms. He married, was the father of eight children, and the grandfather of John D. Burnett (q. v.). Last residence: Hampden Ridge.

BURNETT, THOMAS JEFFERSON, planter and merchant, was born August 30, 1826 at Greenville, Butler County, and died October 8, 1888, at Greenville; son of William and Catherine (Reid) Burnett, the former a native of Edgefield, S. C., who moved to Alabama and settled in Greenville. He was educated in the schools of Greenville, and was a student of Latin and French. He entered the mercantile business very young, and became a merchant and planter in Greenville, prosperous and successful before the War of Secession. He represented Butler County in the lower house of the State legislature in 1853; was elected to the state senate, 1857; and returned to the house in 1861. He was a delegate to the national Democratic convention at Cincinnati, 1856, which nominated Buchanan for the presidency; and in 1860 was a delegate to the national convention at Charleston. He entered the C. S. Army as captain of Co. K, Seventeenth Alabama regiment, 1861; was promoted to major, April 6, 1862, and on the same day had his horse killed from under him in the battle of Shiloh, sustaining a severe wound in his right leg. At the battle of Atlanta, July 28, 1864, while in command of the regiment, he was seriously wounded, and was disabled from further service in the army. He never fully recovered from his wounds. After the war, he re-entered the mercantile business in Montgomery and Greenville, and became a commission merchant in Mobile. He devoted money and time to ridding Alabama of the evils of the Reconstruction period. Maj. Burnett was a nominee of the Democratic party in 1872 for state auditor on the ticket headed by Col. Kerndon for governor. He was a member of the Methodist church, and a Mason. Married: Ann Leak Patton, daughter of Mathew and Louisa Ann (Coleman) Patton, who lived at "The Ridge," in Butler County. She was a niece of Hon. Walter L. Coleman, a lawyer, and mayor of Montgomery for several terms prior to the War of Secession. She was also a relative of Gov. Patton of Alabama. Children: 1. Ellwood, deceased, m. Willie Stewart; 2. Judge William, m. Capitola Kellam, resides in Austin, Tex.; 3. Jefferson, m. Ella Ellis, resides at 108 Belmont street, Vicksburg, Miss.; 4. Anna Louise, m. John Winton Deming who died in Montgomery, 1897, resides in Evergreen; 5. Patton, m. Pearl Locke who died December 5, 1891 in Greenville, resides in Greenville with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. Last residence: Greenville.

BURNEY, SYLVANUS LEONIDAS, farmer and legislator, was born August 27, 1844, at Forsyth, Forsyth County, Ga.; son of James Harvey and Caroline Elizabeth (Berry) Burney, who lived at Forsyth. He was educated in the common schools of Chambers County; served in 1861-65 in the Western army, of the C. S. Army; entered upon farming after cessation of hostilities. He has been affiliated with both Democratic and Populist parties, and has served on committees of both parties; represented Chambers County in the legislature of 1907. He is a Methodist; Mason; and Knight of Pythias. Married: December 23, 1869, to Sallie Walker, daughter of William Alexander and Elizabeth (Cathron) Jarrett. Children: 1. James Alexander; 2. Carolyn Elizabeth, m. Frank Potts Wallace; 3. Edwin L.; 4. Sylvanus L., jr.; 5. Annie Eliza, m. John Wade Lamb. Residence: Lanett.

BURNS, JEREMIAH, farmer, teacher and legislator, was born September 23, 1887, at Delmar; son of William Riley and Rebecca (Lovett) Burns; grandson of Jerry and Frances Burns, and of Arch and Betsey Jane Lovett, the former a Union soldier during the War of Secession, who died from disease and is buried in Corinth cemetery. The Burns family came to Winston County from Wayne County, Tenn. He was educated in the rural schools of Winston County; attended the G. R. C. college, Henderson, Tenn., 1904; and the West Alabama agricultural school at Hamilton. He is a farmer and teacher, having taught in the rural schools for about ten years, beginning in 1905; served as superintendent of education for Winston County, 1913-1917; and was elected in 1918 to the house of representatives from Winston County. He is a Republican; Baptist; and a Mason. Married: July 8, 1909, near Double Springs, to Nelsie Victoria, daughter of Miles La Fayette and Cordelia (Curtis) Thomas, of Double Springs, granddaughter of Frank Thomas who saw service in the C. S. Army, and of James Curtis, a Union soldier. Children: 1. Will; 2. Ellie May; 3. Odie. Residence: Double Springs.

BURNS, JOHN FIELDING, planter, was born April 23, 1840, at Burnsville, Dallas County, and died June 9, 1905, in Selma; son of James Harris and Lucinda Ann (Straughn) Burns, the former a native of Egypt, Chatham County, N. C., born May 10, 1807, who came to Dallas County, in his early manhood, residing there continuously and becoming a prominent business man of Selma where he died, July 1892, and the latter a native of South Carolina; grandson of James H. and Mary (Brantly) Burns, and of Fielding and Lavinia (Riddle) Straughn, pioneers of Belleville, Conecuh County. The Burns family is of Scotch descent, first represented in America by three brothers, one of whom, John Burns, settled in Chatham County, N. C. Mr. Burns was prepared in the common schools of Dallas County, then entered Howard College, Marion, where he was graduated with honors, A.B., 1859. After his graduation, he studied law in Montgomery in the offices of Hon. Thomas H. Watts and William L. Yancey, and at Athens, Ga., under Thomas R. R. Cobb; and obtained a license to practice. He was elected first lieutenant of the Red Eagles, a company organized in Burnsville in 1860, and when it disbanded, he went to Virginia as a private in the Fourth Alabama volunteer regiment, C. S. Army; remained with the regiment until after the battle of Williamsburg, and then joined Wheeler's cavalry.

After the war, Mr. Burns returned to Selma, and practiced law for a short time; but soon located at his home place in Burnsville as a farmer. He continued his planting there until 1888, when he located again in Selma. He held the office of justice of the peace in Dallas County for many years; was elected a member of the Alabama constitutional convention of 1875, from Dallas County; to the constitutional convention of 1901 from the same county; and served in the State legislature during the session of 1896-1897, and for other terms. He was a Black Belt Democrat, did much committee work, and was in nearly every local and state political convention held in Alabama following the war. He was a delegate to five Democratic national conventions; was a Baptist; a master of the Order of Grangers, and organizer of the Burnsville Grange. He established The "Independent Thinker" Telegram, and newspapers published in Selma at different dates, which he sold to other parties. He was prominent in the affairs of the United Confederate Veterans and held the position of commander of Camp Jones, two years previous to his death. Married: October 28, 1869, at Clay's Station, Autauga County, Eugenia Harriet Clay, daughter of Jackson W. and Minerva (Sharp) Clay; granddaughter of Robert and Elizabeth (Andrews) Clay, and of James Crawford and Sarah Ann (Thompson) Sharp; great-granddaughter of Col. James B. Thompson, an officer in the Revolutionary War. Two of her great uncles, Richard and Mike Andrews, fought in the Mexican War, and were granted two leagues of land for service. Richard was killed in that war, and Andrews County was named for the brothers. Children: 1. James Harris, Burnsville; 2. John Morgan, Selma; 3. Jackson Clay, Marion Junction, Perry County; 4. Lucy, m. Mr. Hybart, Monroeville, Monroe County. Last residence: Selma.

BURNS, ROBERT BENJAMIN, merchant and state senator, was born January 2, 1864, at Lincoln, Talladega County; son of Theodore R. and Elizabeth (Worthington) Burns, the former a member of the 51st Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army, and a merchant; grandson of Benjamin and Susan (Smith) Burns, both of South Carolina, the former a soldier in the War of 1812, and of Samuel and Terissa (Gorman) Worthington, of Benton County; great-grandson on paternal side of one of the first of the American patriots to sacrifice his life for the cause of independence at Bunker Hill, and of Benjamin and Juda (Steadman) Worthington, and of William and Elizabeth (Corbin) Gorman, both families being among the pioneer settlers of Jefferson County. He was educated in the public schools; and attended Oxford college, 1879-83. He entered his father's store; became his partner; and in 1899 engaged in business for himself. He is at present a farmer, merchant and banker. For four years he was assistant postmaster at Talladega, during the period in which his brother, Samuel P. Burns, was postmaster. He represented the 8th senatorial district in the State senate of 1915. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: in 1895, to Angie Barry, daughter of Henry and Angie (Gray) Goff, all of Oxford. Residence: Lincoln.

BURNS, WILLIAM ARTHUR, physician, was born June 3, 1870, four miles north of Vernon, Lamar County; son of George Caruthers and Margaret (Rush) Burns; grandson of George Lasley and Nellie (Enloe) Burns, and of William Phillip and Emily (Coons) Rush. All ancestors are of South Carolina stock, except Mrs. Rush, who was a native of Tennessee. George L. Burns served in the War of 1812, and was the son of a Revolutionary soldier. George C. Burns was born in Tennessee, but now lives at Vernon, of which place he was the first settler. Dr. Burns was educated in the common schools of Lamar County, took his degree in the Memphis hospital medical college, M. D., 1891; at once opened an office in Vernon, where he practiced until 1895, spent a year, 1895-96, at Ravenden Springs, Ark., after which he returned to Vernon; 1898 he located at Sheffield, and later removed to Birmingham. He was an alderman of the town of Vernon, 1892; city physician of Sheffield, May 1899 to March 1907; and a member of the Alabama national guard, 1889 to 1894. He was appointed physician inspector of the convict board, March 1907, and served four years. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; Knight of Pythias, and a Woodman of the World. Married: January 23, 1894, at Vernon, to Anna Desire, daughter of Rev. Wm. A. and Margaret E. (Roper) Montgomery, the former an itinerant Methodist minister for over half a century. Children: 1. Mattie Kathleen; 2. Margaret Desire; 3. Dorothy Lucile. Residence: Birmingham.

W. H. Forney

BURR, BORDEN HUGHSON, lawyer, was born November 2, 1876, at Talladega; son of William Hughson and Sarah C. (Borden) Burr (q. v.); grandson of Aaron and Anna (Olney) Burr and of Thomas R. and Ann Maria (Jones) Borden, who lived at Newbern, N. C., and Newbern, Ala. He received his early education from a public school of Talladega, and was a member of the first graduating class of that school; gained his preparatory training from the Webb School, Bellbuckle, Tenn., under Senator W. R. Webb and Prof. John Webb; was graduated from the University of Alabama with the degree of B. L., 1896; and from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., with the degree of LL. B., 1898. He was admitted to the bar at Talladega, January 1, 1898; became connected with the law firm of Whitson & Graham for one year; then with the firm of Knox, Bowie & Dixon. Mr. Bowie withdrew from the firm after a year, and it became Knox, Dixon & Burr until February 1909, when Mr. Burr moved to Birmingham, and joined the present firm of Percy, Benners & Burr. He was elected alderman of the city of Talladega in 1903; solicitor of the seventh judicial circuit, 1904-1909; was an alternate delegate to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis, 1904; a delegate to the state convention in Jefferson County, 1912; a delegate to the state at large Democratic national convention at Baltimore, 1912; and was the Alabama representative on the committee to notify President Wilson of his nomination. Mr. Burr served as captain of the Talladega Rifles, Co. L, Third regiment, Alabama national guard, 1902-1906. He is a deacon in the Presbyterian church; a member of the board of trustees of the Alabama Synodical College for Women; past exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and has served as grand exalted district deputy for Alabama; is a member of Sigma Nu college fraternity, and has been grand counsellor and inspector of the third division of the fraternity. He has been active in prohibition campaigns in different counties, and served as vice chairman of the campaign committee for Jefferson County. Married: (1) Mamie Camp, a daughter of Judge J. E. and Annie (Hansard)

Camp, of Talladega; who died January 16, 1905; (2) June 26, 1907, at Ashville, Nell Forman, daughter of Judge William S. and Ella (Wood) Forman, of Ashville. Children, by first wife: 1. William Hughson, b. 1903, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

BURR, WILLIAM HUGHSON, merchant and planter, was born May 27, 1836, at Camden, S. C.; son of Aaron and Elizabeth P. (Hughson) Burr, natives of Providence, R. I., and Camden, S. C., respectively, who lived in Camden, S. C. and Selma; grandson of William C. and Anna (Olney) Burr, of Providence, R. I., and of William Hughson, of Camden, S. C.; great-grandson of Ezekiel and Alse (Whipple) Burr, of Providence, R. I., the former a native of Rehoboth, Mass., 1739; great-great-grandson of David and Sarah Burr, of Rehoboth, the former a native of Hingham, Mass., 1703; great-great-great-grandson of Simon and Mary Burr, of Rehoboth, Mass., the former a native of England, 1655; great-great-great-great-grandson of Rev. Jonathan Burr, born in Redgrave, Suffolk County, England, 1604, who emigrated to America in 1639, a Presbyterian clergyman whose lineage and history are given by Gov. Winthrop and Rev. Cotton Mather, a graduate of Benet College, Cambridge, B. S. 1624, M. A. 1627, signer of the Presbyterian Covenant, December, 1639, who died August 9, 1641; great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Richard Burr; great-great-great-great-great-grandson of Symonde Burr of Great Canfield, England. Col. Burr obtained his early education from the public schools of Providence, R. I. On the death of his mother, he lived with his aunt until he was twelve years old, then returned to Camden, S. C. to his father. The next year the family moved to Selma, and Col. Burr obtained employment as a clerk in the store of P. J. Weaver. He remained in that connection for six years, then entered a partnership with Henry Savage in a drug house. In 1859 Col. Burr's health failed, causing him to withdraw from the partnership, and move to a plantation in St. Clair County, at the conjunction of Kelly's Creek and the Coosa River. He farmed there until the spring of 1861, when he was made first lieutenant of a company of volunteers which tendered its services to the state. On his arrival at Selma on the way to Montgomery, he found his father on his death-bed and was forced to forego army service at that time. In the fall of that year he helped raise a company which was assigned to the Thirtieth Alabama under Col. Shelley, and was appointed adjutant of the regiment. After four months he was elected captain, and a year later, was promoted to major. He was wounded while leading a charge at New Hope Church; wounded again at the siege of Vicksburg; and was reported dead in the battle before Nashville, but was carried by his men from the field and saved from capture. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel after the battle of Nashville, and assigned to the First Alabama. He was unable because of his wounds to take command of his regiment immediately, and was on his way to join it at the time of the final surrender.

After the war, Col. Burr moved with his family to Talladega and entered a mercantile business which he continued until 1868. At that time, he became connected with various New York houses as traveling salesman, and continued in that capacity and in a mercantile business at Talladega after 1881, until his death. He was a trustee of the Alabama Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institution at Talladega for many years, and a trustee of the Synodical Female College. He was a Democrat, a Presbyterian, a Mason and a Knight of Honor. Married: July 22, 1858, at Newbern, Sarah C. Borden, daughter of Thomas R. and Ann Maria (Jones) Borden, of that city. Children: 1. Ann Aarona, m. James A. Blackburn, Birmingham; 2. Zaidee Lou, m. Samuel H. Henderson; 3. Esther O'Neal, m. John B. F. Robinson; 4. Milton, m. D. E. Moodie; 5. Lydia A., m. James M. Hicks; 6. Borden Hughson (q. v.). Last residence: Talladega.

BURROWS, LANSING H., Baptist minister, who served with Alabama troops in the War of Secession, was born April 10, 1843, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of Dr. John Lansing and Adelaide (Van Benthuyzen) Burrows, both of Knickerbocker descent. Dr. Burrows attended Richmond college, Va.; Wake Forest college, N. C.; received the degree of A. M. from Princeton university and Madison university, 1871; the honorary degrees of D. D., Bethel college, Russellville, Ky., 1882, and LL. D., Union university, Tenn., 1896. He served as a private in Co. E, Sixth Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, enlisting at Montgomery, February 21, 1864. In 1867, he was ordained to the Baptist ministry and has served pastorates in Kentucky, Missouri, New Jersey, Tennessee and Georgia. Author: "Manual for funerals," 1885; "How Baptists work together," 1909. Compiler: "American Baptist year book," 1885-97; "Baptist Hymn and Praise book," 1904. Married: Lulie Rochester, of Danville, Ky. Residence: Americus, Ga.

BURRUSS, JOHN CRENSHAW, Universalist minister, was born May 16, 1821, Caroline County, Va.; son of George and Frances (Turner) Burruss, natives of Charles County, Md., and King William County, Va., the former a farmer and school teacher who lived near Bowling Green, Caroline County, Va.; grandson of Charles Burruss who married a Miss Noll and lived in Charles County, Md.; and of Dabney Turner of King William County, Va. His mother died in Caroline County, Va., about fourteen years before the death of his father at Norfolk, Va., November 7, 1840. Rev. Burruss was educated in such schools as were accessible, under teachers such as Fred W. Valentine, E. Eubank, William Taylor, E. Berkely, and George Burruss. He studied for the ministry at Richmond, Va., and was ordained a Universalist minister at that place, June 11, 1844. He remained in active service in the Universalist ministry for more than sixty years, and preached extensively in all the southern states, from Maryland to Texas, and made several tours through Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois. Besides his various written discussions, he has had oral discussions with ministers in North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. Because of the severe climate of Virginia, he moved to Georgia and Alabama in the fall of 1849, and traveled through both states, finally settling at Notasulga. He bought the subscription of a small monthly Universalist pamphlet published at Wetumpka, and edited by Rev. C. Shehane, and commenced publication in Notasulga in January 1850, adopting the name "The Universalist Herald," and issuing the paper fortnightly. In the spring of 1859, he moved the office of the Herald to Montgomery, and published the paper there until the outbreak of the War of Secession, which necessitated its suspension. In 1867, Rev. Burruss revived the Herald at Notasulga, and published it there until the fall of 1896, when he consolidated it with "The Georgia Universalist," at Canon, Ga. In all, Rev. Burruss published the Herald for more than forty years. He was a Democrat and a Mason, and was chaplain of the Notasulga lodge for many years. He was author of "Letters to Rev. Lovick Pierce, D. D., of the Georgia Methodist Episcopal Church," 1853; "Discussion on Endless Punishment with Rev. William Hicks of the North Carolina Conference," 1859, and "Discussion on Endless Punishment with Rev. J. R. Graves, Baptist, of Memphis, Tenn." 1878-1879. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. Burruss by Buchtel College, Akron, O. Married: April 7, 1853, Fannie Burks, daughter of Rev. Charles S. and Elizabeth Burks, who lived near Notasulga. Her father was a Baptist minister, and her mother was the daughter of James Armstrong of Wilkes County, Ga., who for many years was a missionary Baptist preacher. Children: 1. George Swinson, Tyler, Tex.; 2. Mrs. Fannie B. Hardwich, Notasulga; 3. Mrs. J. Beauregard Cawthon, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.; 4. Mrs. Louise Virginia Warnock, Atlanta, Ga.; 5. Mrs. Fiddle T. Delbridge, Notasulga. Last residence: Notasulga.

BURTON, BENJAMIN SULLIVAN, physician, graduated at the Alabama polytechnic institute, with the B. S. degree, 1896. Residence: Valdosta, Ga.

BURTON, PIERCE, public official, was born December 24, 1834, at Norwich, Windsor County, Vt.; son of William Smith and Nancy (Russell) Burton, of Norwich, Vt.; grandson of Pierce and Phoebe (Stoddard) Burton, and of Seth and Mary (Emerson) Russell of Northampton, Mass. The ancestor of the Burton family, was John Burton who came from England in 1638, and settled in Salem, Mass.; of the Russell family, John Russell came from England October 3, 1635, and landed in Boston; and of the Emerson family, Thomas Emerson emigrated from England to Ipswich, Mass., 1635. The latter family is connected with that of Ralph Waldo Emerson. Mr. Burton was educated in private schools, and in Seneca County Academy at Republic, O. He taught school when he was sixteen years old; was employed as railroad agent; telegraph operator; express agent; and assistant postmaster at Anderson, Ind. Because of poor health, he moved to Demopolis in 1863, with the intention of planting cotton in company with his brother-in-law, C. W. Pierce. He became clerk in the Freedmen's Bureau; was employed as registrar under the Reconstruction Acts, and in company with Judge Luther R. Smith, registered the voters of Choctaw and Washington Counties; was elected to the constitutional convention of 1867; and was nominated by the Republicans for lieutenant governor in 1869. He was sent to the State legislature where he was chairman of the ways and means committee, and framed a revenue law providing for a tax on certain occupations to give relief to the various public treasuries. Mr. Burton established the "Southern Republican," a weekly paper at Demopolis, 1869; moved to Aurora, Ill., 1871, where he bought the "Weekly Herald;" established the "Daily Express," Aurora, August 20, 1882, and sold out to his son, October 1, 1899. He was chairman of the Republican congressional committee from the fourth district of Alabama, 1867; was a Universalist, and a Mason. He is author of a history of Aurora, Ill., included in a History of Kane County, Ill. Married: (1) January 10, 1860, in Adams, Mass., Ellen Gertrude Lapham, daughter of George A. and Maria A. (Brown) Lapham, a direct descendant of Gov. William Bradford, who came over in the Mayflower and was first governor of Massachusetts colony, and of one of the men who threw the tea overboard at the Boston "tea party." She died June, 1863. (2) December 25, 1873, Maria Alice Sibley, of Athol, Miss., daughter of Gideon and Martha (Carpenter) Sibley, a descendant of thirteen ancestors who were in the battle of Bunker Hill. Children, by first marriage; 1. Charles Pierce, b. March 7, 1862, at Anderson, Ind., m. Cora Vreeland, newspaperman and author, resides in Valparaiso, Ind., three children; by second marriage, 2. Claribel Daisy, b. September 12, 1875, at Aurora, Ill., teacher of dancing, resides at Aurora, Ill.; 3. Ralph William, b. October 19, 1879, manager of a department in Sears Roebuck Company, Chicago, resides in Aurora, Ill. Residence: Aurora, Ill.

BURTON, THOMAS J., member of the constitutional convention of 1875, from Cleburne County.

BURTON, YANCEY LOWNDES, business man, was born near Chisholm Ferry, Tallapoosa County, November 6, 1858; son of Jacob Townsend and Mary Jane (Brooks) Burton, the former of Meriwether County, Ga., the latter of Chambers County; grandson of Jacob and Rachel (Sewell) Burton, of Madison County, Ga., and of Jefferson and Elizabeth Brooks, and great-grandson of an English emigrant to Virginia; his father was in Co. I, Eighth Mississippi cavalry regiment, C. S. Army. Mr. Burton obtained his education in the schools of Lafayette; is a farmer and merchant. He is a Democrat and an Odd Fellow. He was representative from Chambers County in the legislature, 1915. Married: in 1884, to Fannie Hampton, the daughter of Dr. Hampton Hill and Mary Ann (Jones) Flint, of Monroe County, Ga. Children: 1. Clyde, m. Harry D. Driver; 2. Linwood Pierce; 3. Evyline Mary. Residence: Lafayette.

BURTWELL, JAMES, druggist, was born July 17, 1842, at Florence, son of John Trumbull and Cornelia Matilda (Bedford) Burtwell, natives of New London, Conn., and Florence, who lived at Florence where the former engaged in the steamboat business; grandson of Thomas and Love (Rogers) Burtwell, of London, England, who came to America and settled in Tennessee, moving later to New London, Conn.; and of Dr. John Robertson and Matilda (Smith) Bedford of Florence, the former who emigrated to north Alabama with Gen. John Coffee, Gen. Braham, James Jackson and Mr. Hood, the latter of Scotch Irish descent on her mother's side; great-grandson of Capt. Thomas and Ann (Robertson) Bedford, the former a Revolutionary officer who equipped a company at his own expense and refused promotion because he did not wish to be separated from his "boys," sold his estate in Virginia and emigrated to Tennessee in 1799 with three brothers who married three sisters, nieces of Henry Clay, and the latter a native of Virginia, a first cousin of Thomas Jefferson; and of Bennet Smith, of Charleston, S. C., attorney of South Carolina and a brother of Judge William Smith who settled in Huntsville, and was appointed judge of the supreme court of the United States by his old friend, Gen. Jackson; great-great-grandson of Gen. Joseph R. and Margaret (McEwin) Dickson, the former who emigrated to North Carolina before the Revolution, served as major of the Lincoln men at King's Mountain, opposed Cornwallis' invasion of North Carolina and was advanced to the rank of colonel, was a member of congress, 1799-1801, moved to Rutherford County, 1805, and died there in 1825. The Burtwells are of English descent, and the coat of arms of the family is in the possession of Mrs. E. F. Falconnet, sister of Mr. Burtwell. James Burtwell was educated at Florence Wesleyan University, and entered the C. S. Army in 1862 as a private soldier in a regiment which was captured by the enemy before it got fairly started to the field. After a short time he was again in the service, this time as a private in the Sixteenth Alabama infantry where he remained for three years. After the war ended he established himself as a druggist at Florence. Residence: Florence.

BURTWELL, JOHN ROBERTSON BEDFORD, civil engineer, was born August 15, 1835 at Florence, and died October 1873, at Florence; son of Col. John Trimble and Cornelia Matilda (Bedford) Burtwell, natives of New London, Connecticut, and of Florence; grandson of James and Love (Rogers) Burtwell, and of Dr. John R. and Matilda (Smith) Bedford; great-grandson of Capt. Thomas Bedford of Virginia, an officer in the Revolutionary War; great-great-grandson of Gen. Joseph R. Dickson, of North Carolina, who fought in the Revolution. He was a brother of James Burtwell (q. v.). Col. Burtwell received his early schooling in Florence, then attended West Point and was graduated in 1860, a classmate of Gen. Wilson, the U. S. Army commander. He left West Point with the rank of second lieutenant, and was assigned to Fort Wasketaw, Indian Territory. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he resigned, returned to the south just in time to join the Ninth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, commanded by Col. Wilcox; was appointed adjutant of the regiment, 1861; was made aide-de-camp on Gen. Hardee's staff, 1862; assigned to a position on the staff of Gen. Bragg a short time later; appointed chief of artillery in Cheatham's division; promoted to inspector general on Bragg's staff, during which time he was sent to inspect Gen. Roddy's command, and was captured by Gen. Phillips. He was at once paroled, and remained in his home in Florence until three months later, when he was exchanged. He was then promoted to colonel and placed in command of the Ninth Alabama under Gen. Roddy. After the war, he became a civil engineer, entering the service of the U. S. Government as chief engineer of the Muscle Shoals Canal improvement, on the Tennessee River, in 1871. While he was employed in that capacity, he contracted malaria and died in 1873. He was a Presbyterian. Married: January 10, 1863, at Tullahoma, Tenn., Matilda Dixon Wade, daughter of Levi and Mary (Henderson) Wade, who lived near Murfreesboro, Tenn. Children: 1. Mary Cornelia, m. Jim Wyley, deceased; 2. Margaret Cook, d. November 1913, m. Tom Smith of Murfreesboro, Tenn.; 3. Laura Madora, d. at age of seventeen; 4. Nannie Magruda, m. Robert N. Davidson, resides at Nashville, Tenn.; 5. America Falconnet, d. at the age of twenty-one. Last residence: Florence.

BUSH, ALBERT PEYTON, wholesale merchant, was born November 21, 1876, at Mobile; son of Thomas Greene and Alberta (Williams) Bush (q. v.). He received his early education under Professors A. S. Towle and R. Carey; attended Marion military institute; graduated A. B., from Howard college, Birmingham, 1893, and received a medal for the best senior oration. He graduated with first honor from Eastman college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., taking a commercial course in the fall of 1893; returned to Mobile and entered the mercantile firm of T. G. Bush company, being elected vice-president. He has since been director, City bank and trust company; director, Stonewall insurance company; president Highland land company; president, Mobile chamber of commerce; president, Wholesale dealers association; president, Mobile credit men's association; vice-president, Mobile boy's club; trustee, Marion military institute; director, Alabama business men's league. In 1911, he was elected to the lower house of the Alabama legislature. He is a Democrat. Married: December 21, 1895, in Mobile, to Marcia Belle, daughter of David Richard and Janie (Turner) Burgess of that place. Children: 1. Albert P., jr.; 2. Isabelle. Residence: Mobile.

BUSH, CHARLES FLETCHER, physician, was born January 6, 1878, at Grove Hill, Clarke

County; son of Boaz Whitfield and Amanda Jane (Hudson) Bush, natives of Marengo County, who lived in Marengo and Clarke Counties; grandson of Louis Bryan and Mary Catherine (Wright) Bush, who came from North Carolina and settled in Jefferson, Marengo County, and of Richard Henry and Rebecca Jane (McManus) Hudson, who came from South Carolina and settled in Hoboken, Marengo County. The Bush family are of German descent, and the Hudsons were originally from Ireland. Dr. Bush received his early education in the public schools of Clarke County and in the Selma District high school; was graduated from the Southern University, Greensboro, A. B., 1898; anniversarian, challenge debater, commencement orator, Vanderbilt University, with special course at Baltimore, M. D., 1902. He began to practice medicine in 1902, and has practiced successively in Milton, Fla., and Thomasville. He is inspector of jails, almshouses, etc., in Montgomery. He is a Democrat, a Methodist, a member of the Knights of Pythias, of the Odd Fellows, and of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon college fraternity. Married: March 9, 1909, at Thomasville, Susan Lorena Bedsole, daughter of Travis Linyer and Martha Ann (Goodman) Bedsole, of that city. The Bedsole family is of German descent, and came from North Carolina to Alabama: the Goodmans came to Alabama from Georgia, and were originally from Ireland. Residence: Thomasville.

BUSH, J. C., business man, mayor of Mobile 1897-1900. Deceased. Last residence: Mobile.

BUSH, JOHN WILLIAM, lawyer, was born November 15, 1841, near Williamsburg, James City County, Va., and died July 5, 1911, in Birmingham; son of William and Malinda (Finch) Bush, the former a native of James City County, Va., who lived at Windsor Castle, was a member of the legislature and chief justice of James City for twenty years, served in the legislature of Virginia for a long time, was a descendant of one of the original settlers of Jamestown, and of Maj. John Bush who fought in the Revolutionary War, grandson of William and Ann (Weathers) Bush who lived at Burnt Ordinary, James City County, Va., and of Henry and Susan (James) Finch, natives of England and Charles City County, Va., respectively; great-grandson of Edward and Martha (Terrell) Finch; great-great-grandson of John Finch, a captain in the English navy, who came to America in 1630 with Gov. Winthrop, settled in Massachusetts, and was killed in the Pequot War. John Finch was a direct descendant of Sir Heneage Finch, "The Father of English Chancery," and his descendants settled at Finches, New Kent County, Va. Mr. Bush was taught by Col. Allen, a tutor engaged by his father and neighbors in James City County; attended William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., leaving in the last year of his course to enter the C. S. Army; was a member of Lee's Virginia Rangers; served as a courier for Gen. "Rooney" Lee; afterwards on Gen. Barton's staff; was engaged at Falmouth, Fredericksburg, Hanover Court House, seven days' fight around Richmond, Sharpsburg, Rapidan Station, Cold Harbor and many other battles; after close of the war, studied law in the office of Gov. Gregory, of Virginia, and taught school; was admitted to the bar, May 1866, in Virginia; practiced for a short time in Richmond; moved to Perry County, and practiced there until 1886; represented the seventeenth district in the State senate, 1878-1882; moved to Birmingham, 1886, and formed a partnership with Judge William Brooks; became president of the Henderson Steel Company, the first company to make steel in Alabama; was, for a long time, a school trustee in Perry County; was appointed in 1904 by Gov. Joseph F. Johnston, special judge of the city court of Birmingham; was general of the Fourth brigade, Alabama division, United Confederate Veterans, and was one of the founders of the Confederate soldiers' home at Mountain Creek, Chilton County, serving as a trustee at the time of his death. He was a Democrat, a leader in the "Black Belt;" was a vestryman in the Protestant Episcopal church; was a Royal Arch Mason, high priest of his chapter for six years; and was a member of the Knights of Pythias. Married: October 21, 1869, in Cobden, Ill., Sarah Howard Evans, daughter of Matt. Ryon and Sarah S. (Howard) Evans, who lived at Mobile; sister of Augusta (Evans) Wilson, Southern authoress, and a member of the Howard family, prominent in the South. Children: 1. Howard Evans, b. 1873; 2. Augusta Evans, d. 1895, m. Starr Kealhofer, son, Starr, resides with his grandmother, Mrs. John W. Bush, in Birmingham; 3. George Edwards, b. September 20, 1874, lawyer, Birmingham; 4. Sarah E., d. in infancy; 5. Vivian E., d. in infancy; 6. Beryl E., d. in infancy. Last residence: Birmingham.

BUSH, LORAIN BEDSOLE, director Child welfare department, was born May 11, 1881, in Clarke County, daughter of Travis Linyer and Martha (Goodman) Bedsole; the former born at DeFuniak, Fla., the latter of Georgia; granddaughter of Edward and Susan (Blackwell) Bedsole, of North Carolina, and of Matthew and Mary (Sheffield) Goodman, of Georgia; sister of Travis Jesse Bedsole (q. v.). Her education was secured under a governess at Tallahatta Springs, Clarke County, the Thomasville high school, The Atheneum, and in special study in Washington, D. C. She was deputy child labor inspector for two and a half years during the administration of Dr. William H. Oates; and served for a time in the Children's bureau of the U. S. department of labor, as U. S. factory inspector. She later went with the National child labor committee of New York City, charged with the duty of securing child welfare legislation in the several states. Early in 1919 Mrs. Bush returned to Alabama and was largely instrumental in securing the passage of the child labor bill, as well as the law establishing the State child welfare department. She was elected as the first director of this department, on December 5, 1919. Married: March 9, 1909, at Thomasville, to Dr. Charles Fletcher Bush, now deceased, who was then State prison inspector, son of Dr. B. W.

and Mary (Hudson) Bush, of Thomasville. Residence: Thomasville.

BUSH, THOMAS GREENE, merchant, manufacturer and publicist, was born August 19, 1847, in Pickensville, and died November 11, 1909; son of Albert P. and Sarah A. (Williams) Bush, the former a native of Georgia who came to Alabama about 1835, settled in Pickens County where he engaged in the mercantile business for many years, moved to Mobile in 1852, and became a cotton commissioner; grandson of John and Nancy (King) Bush, who came from Georgia to Alabama about 1830, and lived on their farm near Oxford, until their death, and of Curtis and Patience (Thomas) Williams, the former of whom was a member of the Alabama legislature; great-grandson of Curtis Williams who also served in the State legislature. He was educated in Mobile until he entered the University of Alabama, 1861; served as adjutant of cadets there until 1864, when he was ordered into service in the Sixty-second Alabama regiment, C. S. Army; was captured at Blakely after a severe battle, May 1865; held prisoner at Ship Island and New Orleans until the surrender of Gen. Dick Taylor, when he was exchanged at Vicksburg, and paroled at Meridian, Miss. In October 1865, he entered the University of Mississippi, as the University of Alabama had been burned, graduating at the end of two years in the same class with his brother, J. Curtiss Bush, who took first honors, while Mr. Bush took second.

Immediately after leaving college in 1867, he entered the cotton commission business with his brother and father; established himself in the wholesale grocery business of T. G. Bush Grocery Company, Mobile, 1874, which company is now owned and conducted by his son; became trustee of Howard College, 1883-1898; was one of the members who organized the Mobile chamber of commerce in 1884, and was elected president, 1884-1886; elected member of rivers and harbors committee, 1884, and spoke before Grover Cleveland, during whose administration the first large appropriation was made to Mobile harbor; captained the Mobile cadets, 1895; took a prominent part in what is known in current parlance as the "Mobile Revolution," in which a fight was made and won to regulate the whiskey license and reform the city government; elected to the State legislature, 1886-1887, where he was chairman of the ways and means committee; was elected president of the Mobile & Birmingham railroad, which road was constructed by him, 1886-1909; was president of the Planters & Merchants Insurance Company, 1888; served as trustee of the Institute for the Deaf and Blind, Talladega, 1888-1895; was elected president of the Shebly Iron Company, 1890, of which at that date, he was a stockholder, and managed the affairs of that company until 1909; organized the Anniston Water Supply Company, in association with D. T. Parker; was elected president of that company, 1890-1909; was president of the Woodstock Iron Company, 1891-1892; president of the Clifton Iron Company, 1892-1899; was president of the National Monetary Commission, chosen under the resolution of the Indianapolis convention, 1897; became president of the Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company, made up of the Standard Iron Company, the Clifton Iron Company, the Gadsden Furnace Company and the Mary Pratt Furnace Company, 1899-1909, and immediately after the organization, caused to be taken into the company, the Mary Lee or Lewisburg Mines; elected president of the First National Bank of Anniston, 1890; assisted in organizing the Gray Ore & Iron Company, 1905; was president of the Imperial Coal & Coke Company, 1905-1909; director of the American Trust & Savings Bank, 1903-1909; president of the Coosa Pipe & Foundry Company, 1905-1909; receiver of the Southern Car & Foundry Company, 1905; was appointed by President Roosevelt to represent the South as a member of the "Foundation for the Promotion of Industrial Peace," 1907-1909; elected director of the Alabama Great Southern Railroad, 1908. Mr. Bush was at one time engaged in stock farming near Oxford, but sold his farm in 1899. He was a trustee of Marion Military Institute, and of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, to which latter institution he made his last large donation; and a member of the Baptist Church. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Alabama in 1906. Married: June 6, 1871, Alberta Williams, daughter of Rev. Albert and Anna Eliza (Hollis) Williams, who came to Alabama from Georgia. Children: 1. Annie, m. W. D. Nesbitt; 2. Albert P., owner of the T. G. Bush Grocery Company, Mobile (q. v.); 3. Morris W.; 4. Thomas G., jr., B. S., 1899, attended the Boston School of Technology, 1900, in the iron business; 5. Edwin Hollis. Last residence: Anniston.

BUSSY, B. W., Baptist minister, was born and educated in Columbus, Ga. He preached for a number of years at Huntsville and Mobile, but later returned to his native state.

BUSTEED, RICHARD, Federal district judge, was born in Cavan, Ireland, February 16, 1822, and died September 14, 1898, in New York city; son of George Washington Busteed. a colonel in the British army, chief secretary of the island of St. Lucia in 1829, later a barrister at Dublin. was a strong emancipationist, left Ireland and settled in London, Canada, where he published the "True Patriot." Judge Busteed while a boy worked as a compositor in his father's office, later following the printer's trade in Cincinnati, O., Hartford, Conn., and at New York, where he also engaged in local preaching, being a Methodist. He was licensed to practice law, 1846. From 1856 to 1859 he was corporation counsel of New York city. He was a supporter of Douglas in 1860, and joined the U. S. army, 1861. He was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers and commanded a brigade at Yorktown, Va., but on March 10, 1863, he resigned. In 1864 he was appointed by President Lincoln, U. S. district judge for Alabama, which position he occupied until 1874, when he returned to New York, again entering upon the practice of law. "His decisions" says Lamb's Biographical Dictionary of the United States, "especially as to the unconstitutionality of the test oath prescribed by Congress, as applied to attorneys practicing in the U. S. courts, afterwards confirmed by the U. S. supreme court, and his rulings in regard to the habeas corpus act, are noteworthy." Last residence: New York city.

BUTLER, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, a resident of Shelby County; private, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on February 22, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from September 4, 1836; annual allowance, $73.33.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile. He resided in Shelby County, June 1, 1840, aged 83.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

BUTLER, J. A., clerk of Alabama Baptist State convention, 1827.

BUTLER, SAMUEL RILEY, educator, was born November 2, 1868, at Poplar Ridge, Madison County; son of Francis Taylor and Adeline H. (Maples) Butler, natives of Poplar Ridge; grandson of Canada and Nancy (Maples) Butler of Poplar Ridge, the former a native of Tennessee, who was a member of the Alabama legislature at the time of his death in 1862, and of Rev. Peter and Mary (Moon) Maples, the former a native of Tennessee, and a Baptist minister. He received his early education in the public schools of Madison County, and was graduated from Normal College, Winchester, Tenn., 1889. He became principal of the high school at Beech Grove, Tenn., 1891-1892; served as superintendent of schools at Huntsville, 1893-1905; was elected county superintendent of education of Madison County, 1903, and has since been elected three times without opposition; became principal of the State School, Huntsville, 1906-1908; is owner and principal of Butler Preparatory School, Huntsville, since 1908; has twice been president of the department of county superintendents of the Alabama Educational Association, and has been chairman of the executive committee of that association. He is a Democrat, and chairman of the board of deacons of the Missionary Baptist church. Married: June 28, 1893, at Milton, Rutherford County, Tenn., Ida Lee Smith, daughter of Joseph P. and Lockie (Weatherly) Smith, of that place, the former a veteran of the Eighteenth Tennessee regiment, C. S. Army, the latter a descendant of the Stuart family of Scotland; granddaughter of Lockie McAdoo, a descendant of the McAdoo family of the Revolutionary War; great granddaughter of William Batey, of Virginia. The Weatherly family first settled in America at Guilford, N. C. Residence: Huntsville.

BUTLER, THOMAS JAMES, Confederate soldier, was born December 23, 1811, at Charleston, S. C., and died December 10, 1891, at Mobile; son of Joseph and Maria (Tash) Butler, natives of Charleston, S. C. and England, who lived in Charleston and in Edgefield; grandson of Thomas and Mary Butler, natives of Wexford, Ireland, who emigrated to South Carolina in colonial days, the former a major in the Revolution, a descendant of the Duke of Ormond, and a cousin of Pierce Butler,

PETER BRYCE

•

signer of the Constitution and member of congress; and of Edward and Ann (Lucas) Tash, natives of London, England, and Swansea, Wales, who came to America and lived in Charleston, S. C., after the Revolution. He was a nephew of William Butler, a colonel in the U. S. Army, who fought the Seminole Indians in Florida, was at the battle of New Orleans, and died at Pass Christian, Miss., near Fort St. Philip, 1816. Mr. Butler's father died when he was quite young, and he was educated by his uncle, Pierce Butler in Edgefield. When he was a young man, he went to Mobile; kept a grocery store for a while; and was appointed to an office in the custom house where he remained until the War of Secession. He was one of the original founders of the Mobile rifle company; was major general of militia at the beginning of the war and was in the service of the state of Alabama during the war. He raised a legion together with Col. Smith, went on to Richmond, November 1861, and tendered the legion to President Davis who refused to accept. He then became aide to Gen. Maury who commanded the Mobile department. He was a Democrat in favor of nullification and secession, and was a member of the Episcopal Church. Married: December 8, 1837, at Tuscaloosa, Helen Naomi Leavens, daughter of Joshua Bailey and Naomi (Rogers) Leavens, who lived at Caldwell, Lake George, N. Y. Her father was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., 1793, of English parentage, went to Alabama when quite young becoming a wealthy cotton merchant, and died in New York City, 1835. Her mother was born in England, and died in Blakely in 1821, a year after her marriage. Children: 1. Ann Blocker, b. December 31, 1838, d. in infancy; 2. Josephine b. November 19, 1843, d. in infancy; 3. Thomas J., b. November 21, 1847, d. of yellow fever; 4. Pierce Calhoun, b. December 19, 1850, deceased; 5. Henry Meyers, b. September 2, 1853, California; 6. Helen N. Butler, b. April 22, 1855, Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

BUTLER, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 78, and a resident of Lawrence County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on November 4, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $43.33.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BUTLER, WILLIAM L., major and later lieutenant colonel, 28th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BUTLER, W. M., Cumberland Presbyterian minister; living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

BUTT, RICHARD LEMUEL, physician and surgeon, was born November 1, 1824, in Columbia County, Ga., and died December 18, 1901; son of Moses and Priscilla (Banks) Butt, the former a native of Halifax County, N. C., who removed to Columbia County, Ga.;

while a young man, was a planter and served as a captain in the Florida War of 1836; grandson of Ralph and Rachel Alston (Jones) Banks, the former a native of Virginia, later of North Carolina, and finally a member of the Broad River settlement, Elbert County, Ga. and of Moses Butt, a native of Wales, who emigrated to America, 1852, settled on the Tar River, N. C., and who was overtaken by death while removing to Georgia; great-grandson of James and Charity (Alston) Jones, the former a captain in the Revolutionary War and a member of the senate from Wake County, 1877, and of Thomas and Sarah (Chandler) Banks, of Granville County, N. C.; great-great-grandson of Solomon and Ann (Nancy) Hinton, of Warren County, N. C. Dr. Butt was educated at Wynnton academy and graduated from the University of New York City, M. D., March 11, 1846. He began the practice of medicine at Columbus, Ga., where he remained for three years; spent three more years at Talbotton, Ga., removed to Midway in 1853 and remained at this place until 1858. He then went to Memphis, Tenn., and while in that city, April 19, 1861, was appointed surgeon on Gen. W. H. Jackson's staff, C. S. Army; was transferred to the staff of Gen. Van Dorn, with whom he remained until the latter's death, March 10, 1862; was then appointed to Gen. Forrest's staff, and later by his own request, returned to the staff of Gen. Jackson. In 1864, he was appointed to hospital duty at Columbus, Ga., where he surrendered to Gen. Wilson, April 19, 1865. He removed to Memphis, Tenn., but returned to Midway in July, 1875, and became one of the most successful practitioners of the county. He was a Methodist. Married: (1) July 29, 1846, to Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of Van Leonard and Janette (Harvie) Leonard, of Columbus, Ga.; (2) in 1864, to Martha (Jackson) Gamsnell, daughter of James Jackson; (3) November 22, 1876, to Mary E. (Moss) Henderson, daughter of William and Polly (Beecher) Moss, the former a native of New York, who removed to Georgia, settled in Elbert County and became a merchant and planter. Children: 1. Frances P., m. (1) W. C. McCarty, (2) W. G. Miller; (3) C. S. Tucker, of Thayer, Mo.; 2. Mary Virginia, m. Michael Wood, of Las Vegas, N. M.; 3. Nellie L., m. G. W. Johnson; 4. Sarah Elizabeth, m. W. E. Love; 5. Richard Lemuel (q. v.); Midway. Last residence: Midway.

BUTT, RICHARD LEMUEL, telegraph operator and railway conductor, was born November 18, 1856, at Midway, Barbour County; son of Richard Lemuel and Sarah Elizabeth (Leonard) Butt (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Memphis, Tenn., and Midway; became a telegraph operator and railroad conductor; served as a member of the Governor's Guard of Montgomery, 1881; was elected to the State legislature, 1911; is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Royal Arch Mason; a Knight of Pythias; an Elk; Red Man; and a member of the Order of Railway Conductors. Married: May 22, 1881, at Midway, to Mary Elizabeth Jordan, daughter of Warren J. and Elizabeth signer of the Constitution and member of congress; and of Edward and Ann (Lucas) Tash, natives of London, England, and Swansea, Wales, who came to America and lived in Charleston, S. C., after the Revolution. He was a nephew of William Butler, a colonel in the U. S. Army, who fought the Seminole Indians in Florida, was at the battle of New Orleans, and died at Pass Christian, Miss., near Fort St. Philip, 1816. Mr. Butler's father died when he was quite young, and he was educated by his uncle, Pierce Butler in Edgefield. When he was a young man, he went to Mobile; kept a grocery store for a while; and was appointed to an office in the custom house where he remained until the War of Secession. He was one of the original founders of the Mobile rifle company; was major general of militia at the beginning of the war and was in the service of the state of Alabama during the war. He raised a legion together with Col. Smith, went on to Richmond, November 1861, and tendered the legion to President Davis who refused to accept. He then became aide to Gen. Maury who commanded the Mobile department. He was a Democrat in favor of nullification and secession, and was a member of the Episcopal Church. Married: December 8, 1837, at Tuscaloosa, Helen Naomi Leavens, daughter of Joshua Bailey and Naomi (Rogers) Leavens, who lived at Caldwell, Lake George, N. Y. Her father was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., 1793, of English parentage, went to Alabama when quite young becoming a wealthy cotton merchant, and died in New York City, 1835. Her mother was born in England, and died in Blakely in 1821, a year after her marriage. Children: 1. Ann Blocker, b. December 31, 1838, d. in infancy; 2. Josephine b. November 19, 1843, d. in infancy; 3. Thomas J., b. November 21, 1847, d. of yellow fever; 4. Pierce Calhoun, b. December 19, 1850, deceased; 5. Henry Meyers, b. September 2, 1853, California; 6. Helen N. Butler, b. April 22, 1855, Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

BUTLER, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 78, and a resident of Lawrence County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on November 4, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $43.33.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BUTLER, WILLIAM L., major and later lieutenant colonel, 28th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

BUTLER, W. M., Cumberland Presbyterian minister; living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

BUTT, RICHARD LEMUEL, physician and surgeon, was born November 1, 1824, in Columbia County, Ga., and died December 18, 1901; son of Moses and Priscilla (Banks) Butt, the former a native of Halifax County, N. C., who removed to Columbia County, Ga.;

while a young man, was a planter and served as a captain in the Florida War of 1836; grandson of Ralph and Rachel Alston (Jones) Banks, the former a native of Virginia, later of North Carolina, and finally a member of the Broad River settlement, Elbert County, Ga. and of Moses Butt, a native of Wales, who emigrated to America, 1852, settled on the Tar River, N. C., and who was overtaken by death while removing to Georgia; great-grandson of James and Charity (Alston) Jones, the former a captain in the Revolutionary War and a member of the senate from Wake County, 1877, and of Thomas and Sarah (Chandler) Banks, of Granville County, N. C.; great-great-grandson of Solomon and Ann (Nancy) Hinton, of Warren County, N. C. Dr. Butt was educated at Wynnton academy and graduated from the University of New York City, M. D., March 11, 1846. He began the practice of medicine at Columbus, Ga., where he remained for three years; spent three more years at Talbotton, Ga., removed to Midway in 1853 and remained at this place until 1858. He then went to Memphis, Tenn., and while in that city, April 19, 1861, was appointed surgeon on Gen. W. H. Jackson's staff, C. S. Army; was transferred to the staff of Gen. Van Dorn, with whom he remained until the latter's death, March 10, 1862; was then appointed to Gen. Forrest's staff, and later by his own request, returned to the staff of Gen. Jackson. In 1864, he was appointed to hospital duty at Columbus, Ga., where he surrendered to Gen. Wilson, April 19, 1865. He removed to Memphis, Tenn., but returned to Midway in July, 1875, and became one of the most successful practitioners of the county. He was a Methodist. Married: (1) July 29, 1846, to Sarah Elizabeth, daughter of Van Leonard and Janette (Harvie) Leonard, of Columbus, Ga.; (2) in 1864, to Martha (Jackson) Gamsnell, daughter of James Jackson; (3) November 22, 1876, to Mary E. (Moss) Henderson, daughter of William and Polly (Beecher) Moss, the former a native of New York, who removed to Georgia, settled in Elbert County and became a merchant and planter. Children: 1. Frances P., m. (1) W. C. McCarty, (2) W. G. Miller; (3) C. S. Tucker, of Thayer, Mo.; 2. Mary Virginia, m. Michael Wood, of Las Vegas, N. M.; 3. Nellie L., m. G. W. Johnson; 4. Sarah Elizabeth, m. W. E. Love; 5. Richard Lemuel (q. v.); Midway. Last residence: Midway.

BUTT, RICHARD LEMUEL, telegraph operator and railway conductor, was born November 18, 1856, at Midway, Barbour County; son of Richard Lemuel and Sarah Elizabeth (Leonard) Butt (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Memphis, Tenn., and Midway; became a telegraph operator and railroad conductor; served as a member of the Governor's Guard of Montgomery, 1881; was elected to the State legislature, 1911; is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Royal Arch Mason; a Knight of Pythias; an Elk; Red Man; and a member of the Order of Railway Conductors. Married: May 22, 1881, at Midway, to Mary Elizabeth Jordan, daughter of Warren J. and Elizabeth Temperance (Myric) Jordan, both of Irish descent, the former a soldier in the C. S. Army, who was killed in 1861. Residence: Montgomery.

BUZBEE, JACOB, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of St. Clair County; private S. C. Militia; enrolled on March 6, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $63.33; sums received to date of publication of list, $189.99.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

BYARS, JOHN ANDREW, farmer, was born October 18, 1848, in Jefferson County; son of John Logan and Catharine (Daniel) Byars, the former a native of North Carolina, who lived in Jefferson County from childhood until his death, June 28, 1854; grandson of John and Mary Ann Byars, who lived near Birmingham, and of John Daniel, who moved to Jefferson County from South Carolina. He received a limited education in the common schools of East Lake, and became a farmer in Jefferson County. About 1871, he moved to Franklin County, where he continued farming, and later moved to Moulton. He represented Franklin County in the State legislature during the sessions of 1898-1899, and 1900-1901; and was a delegate from that county to the constitutional convention of 1901. He is a Populist, a Baptist, and served for several years as lecturer of the Farmers' Union for Lawrence County. Married: January 6, 1867, at Trussville, to Louisa Caroline Stubbs, daughter of Josiah Thomas and Mary Ann Elizabeth Stubbs, who lived at Pine Level, Pike County; granddaughter of Louis Caraway and Mary (Beadley) Stubbs, the former who emigrated to South Carolina from Scotland, the latter a native of South Carolina. Children: 1. Mary Ann Catharine, m. John Alpha Walker, Elgin, Tex.; 2. Victoria Ellen, m. L. Edward Hurst, Town Creek; 3. Thomas Josiah, d. March 28, 1884; 4. Dora Alice, m. William Benjamin Stansell, Jacksboro, Tex.; 5. John D. Logan, m. Lena Elizabeth Ratliff, Moulton; 6. Louis Jefferson, m. Pattie Stewart, Moulton; 7. Mattie Fannie, m. Benjamin Franklin Hurst, Moulton; 8. James William, m. Cleora Key, Moulton; 9. George Daniel, m. Bessie Lee Stewart, Moulton; 10. Louisa Caroline, m. Luke Pryor Alexander, Moulton. Residence: Moulton.

BYARS, WILLIAM EDGAR, business man and legislator, was born February 22, 1864, near Blount Springs; son of William George and Mary Jane (Thomas) Byars, of Blount County; grandson of Jonas Byars and wife, a Miss Davis, the former of South Carolina, of Revolutionary War ancestry, emigrated to Alabama in 1820, and of William Jeter and Mary (Baker) Thomas, the former born in Union District, S. C., emigrated to Alabama in 1835, served as a member of the 29th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and of the same family as Governor Jeter of South Carolina. He was educated in the common schools near his home; when sixteen years of age engaged in farming; later entering business with his father. Some years ago he became proprietor of the Blount Springs hotel, which he owns and manages. He was elected a member of the house of representatives of 1903, from Blount County, being the first and only successful candidate from his section of the county in over fifty years. He is a Democrat; Methodist; and a Mason. Married: October 20, 1886, at Blount Springs, to Annie Amanda, daughter of John Paul and Mary Jane (Cosby) Willoughby, of Springville, St. Clair County. The Willoughby's originally came from Virginia, where Edwin the great-great-grandfather received a land grant from Virginia for services in the War of the Revolution. Residence: Blount Springs.

BYNUM, OAKLEY H., planter, was first elected to the state legislature from Lawrence County in 1839, and was again elected ten years later. In the early part of the latter session, he was attacked with fever and prevented from taking active part in the affairs of the house. He was elected to the senate in 1857, and served through a four-year term. He was a member of the national convention at Baltimore in 1860, and supported Stephen A. Douglas for the presidency. He was an extensive planter in Lawrence County. Residence: Lawrence County.

BYRD, ADAM MONROE, congressman, was born July 6, 1859, in Sumter County. He removed to Mississippi at an early age; attended the common schools of Neshoba County, Miss.; and Cooper institute, Dalesville, Miss.; graduated from the law department, Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn.; and commenced the practice in his home county. He was elected to the State senate 1889, 1890, and 1892; member of the house of representatives, 1895; appointed 1895, prosecuting attorney for the tenth judicial circuit; appointed judge of the sixth chancery district 1897, and reappointed in 1901; elected to the Fifty-eighth-Sixty-first congresses, March 4, 1903-March 3, 1911. He then resumed the practice of his profession in Philadelphia. He is a Democrat. Residence: Philadelphia, Miss.

BYRD, LESLEY DOW, farmer, was born May 27, 1889, near Kennedy, Lamar County; son of Erasmus Dowin and Lucinda (McCullough) Byrd, the former a native of Floyd County, Ga., who moved to Alabama in 1861, and settled in Lamar County, later moving to Quincy, Miss., and returning to Alabama in 1902; grandson of William May and Artie Missie (Thompson) Byrd, who lived near Fayette, the former a native of South Carolina, the latter of Hall County, Ga., and of William Wilson and Sarah Grace (Cobb) McCullough, the former a native of St. Clair County, who served as a private in the C. S. Army, was commissioner for Fayette County for a number of years, and doorkeeper of the house of representatives for one term; great-grandson of Tommy and Judie (May) Byrd of England, who settled in South Carolina, and of Rev. Wilson Cobb of South Carolina. Mr. Byrd was educated in the common schools of Lamar County, and is engaged in farming and teaching. He is a Democrat, a Baptist, and a Woodman of the World. Residence: Bedford.

BYRD, M. B., lawyer, living in 1913. Residence: Dothan.

BYRD, WILLIAM McKENDREE, lawyer, was born December 1, 1819, in Perry County, Miss., and died September 24, 1874 in a railroad wreck; son of William S. and Martha (Easley) Byrd, natives respectively, of Sumter District, S. C. and of Clarke County, Ga.; and a descendant of the Byrds of Westover, Va. He obtained his education from Mississippi College, at Clinton, and from LaGrange College, Franklin County, graduating from the latter school in 1838. He read law in the office of Judge A. M. Clayton at Holly Springs, Miss.; was admitted to the bar at that place and at Linden, Marengo County, in 1841. He located at the latter place and practiced his profession; represented Marengo County in the State legislature, 1851; was elected chancellor of the middle division, 1863; moved to Selma that same year; and became law partner of John W. Lapsley and D. S. Troy; was elected an associate justice of the supreme court over Hon. George W. Stone, of Montgomery, 1865, and held that position until his retirement by operation of the reconstruction laws, July 1868. He resumed his practice in Selma in connection with his son, William M. Byrd, jr., until his death. In the fall of 1874, Judge Byrd was returning home on the Selma, Rome & Dalton railroad train from Columbia, where he had been attending to some important legal matters between Horace Ware as one party and the Shelby Iron Works as the other. The train had gone but a few miles after Judge Byrd got on the cars, and was running upon the bridge over Waxahatchie creek, when the bridge gave way, precipitating the entire train of cars into the creek, some thirty feet distance, with all the passengers on the train. Judge Byrd was instantly killed. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and was a lay delegate to the general conference of that church at Memphis, Tenn., in 1870. Married: Miss Massie, of Tennessee. Children: Capt. William M., lawyer. Last residence: Selma.

BYRNE, DAVID CRAWFORD, merchant and legislator, was born February 19, 1843 near Blakely, Baldwin County; son of Peter Cornelius and Clarissa K. (Hanes) Byrne, the former a native of Baldwin County, was probate judge, county treasurer and clerk of the circuit court prior to and during the War of Secession; grandson of Thomas Byrne, a native of Baldwin County, who served in the Indian War of 1836, and piloted Gen. Andrew Jackson from New Orleans to Pensacola, and of John Hanes of Coffee County, who served as a Colonel in the War of 1812; great-grandson of Gerald Byrne, who came from Ireland about 1790, landed at Savannah and moved shortly afterward to Blakely, Baldwin County. He was educated in the schools of Baldwin County. In October, 1861, he enlisted in Co. I., 23rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, was appointed third sergeant, promoted second lieutenant in 1863; and later to adjutant; was severely wounded at Port Gibson and Atlanta; paroled at Salisbury, May 1, 1865. He is a merchant; a notary public and justice of the peace; elected member of the house of representatives from Baldwin County, November 4, 1907. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: July 8, 1875, to Florence Van Dorn, daughter of Col. Cade M. and Mary M. (Hall) Godbold (q. v.). Residence: Bay Minette.

C

CABANISS, EDWARD HARMAN, lawyer, was born October 1, 1857, at Forsyth, Monroe County, Ga., the native place of his parents and grandparents on both lines; son of George Augustus and Juliet (McKay) Cabaniss, the former a lawyer and merchant, president of the board of trustees of the Sanatorium for the insane at Milledgeville for more than a decade and in recognition of whose services, one of the handsome buildings of the institution was named; grandson of Daniel and Harriet (Harman) McKay and of Eldridge Gerry and Sarah (Chipman) Cabaniss. Eldridge Gerry was for many years judge of the superior court of the Flint circuit, elected to congress during reconstruction but denied his seat, assisted in reorganizing the Democratic party in Georgia after the War of Secession and chairman of the State convention for several years, although prior to the war, he was a Whig. The immigrant ancestor, Henri Cavaniss, was a French Huguenot who left his native land with a number of his countrymen upon the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. He was granted a body of land in Henrico County, Va., and located upon it. Edward Harman Cabaniss received his education in the public schools of Forsyth and at Mercer university, Macon, from which he was graduated in 1875, in his eighteenth year, second in a large class, with the degree of B. A., later having the A. M. degree conferred upon him by his alma mater. His professional education was obtained at the law school of the University of Virginia under the eminent Dr. John B. Minor. He supplemented this course with study in private offices and was admitted to practice at Union Springs, in 1878. The following year he became one of the editors and proprietors of the "Union Springs Herald," with William D. Jelks and D. F. McCall. In 1883, he retired from this connection to devote himself exclusively to the law. In 1887, he removed to Birmingham, where he later entered into partnership with Sidney J. Bowie and his son, E. H. Cabaniss, jr., under the firm name of Cabaniss and Bowie. He was elected to the State senate from Bullock County in 1886, for a term of four years but resigned in 1887 on account of his removal from the county. He is a Democrat, and a Baptist, but belongs to no secret orders. Married: December 13, 1882, at Union Springs, to Martha Frazer, daughter of J. W. D. and Jane (Frazer) Jelks of that place, sister of Gov. William D. Jelks (q. v.). Children:

1. Robert W., U. S. navy; 2. Edward H., jr., B. S., Alabama polytechnic institute, 1905, Birmingham; 3. Jelks H., lawyer, m. Elizabeth Morris in 1912, Birmingham; 4. Gerry, Birmingham; 5. William J., Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

CABANISS, SEPTIMUS D., lawyer, was born December 18, 1815, in Montgomery County, Ala. His parents were from Lunenburg County, Va., and located near Huntsville in 1810. He was educated at Green Academy and the University of Virginia. Having read law under Hon. Silas Parsons, he was admitted to the bar in 1838 and engaged in practice at Huntsville. He was the first register in chancery for Montgomery County and held that position for several years. He was also assignee in bankruptcy for his district in 1841-3. He retired from a lucrative practice in 1858 to engage in other pursuits, being at the time associated with L. P. Walker and R. C. Brickell. He was defeated for the office of chancellor by Hon. A. J. Walker in 1853, and in 1861 represented Montgomery County in the general assembly. He resumed his professional labors in 1865. He married a sister of Hon. John W. Shepherd of Montgomery. Last residence: Huntsville.

CABEZA DE VACA, ALVAR NUNEZ, chronicler of the De Narvaez expedition, was born in 1507, in Extremadura, Spain, and died in 1559, at Seville, in the same country. He was of an Andalusian family, living in Xeres. He landed with De Narvaez on the coast of Florida, and was with the expedition as treasurer when it visited Mobile Bay, in 1528, shortly before being dispersed. He was captured by the Indians and six years afterwards met three other survivors of the expedition, who wandered until May 12, 1536, through the southwestern country, eventually getting back to Spain during the next year. He returned to America in 1543, establishing his headquarters at Asuncion, and for two years he was administrator of the colony of La Plata. He was returned to Spain under arrest, condemned by the council of the Indies to banishment to Africa. Eight years later he was pardoned, recalled by the king, made judge of the supreme court of Seville, and served until his death. He published a narrative of his adventures at Zamora, in 1542. A joint report of the misfortunes of the De Narvaez expedition and of the wanderings of the four survivors, was made by him and two of the others, to the royal audiencia of Santo Domingo, and is given in Oviedo's "Historia general y natural de Indias." These reports were reprinted in 1555, 1749, 1857, and 1871. The latter two are in English. An Italian edition appeared in 1556. Last residence: Seville, Spain.

CABOT, CHARLES MAYES, merchant and farmer, was born September 26, 1823, at Hartland, Vt., and died at Wetumpka, October 3, 1873; son of Captain Marston and Mary (Rogers) Cabot, the former a native of Hartland, Vt., and an officer in the War of 1812, the latter of Springfield, Vt.; grandson of Marston and Mary Levinia (Sabin) Cabot of Hartland, Vt., and of Jonathan and Polly (Mayes) Rogers, who lived at Londonderry, N. H. The former entered the Revolutionary Army at eighteen years of age as a private under his father, Lieut. John Rogers, who was seventh in descent from John Rogers, the martyr who was burned at the stake in England during the reign of Queen Mary. Great-grandson of Rev. Marston and Mary (Dwight) Cabot, the former of whom was born in 1705 and graduated at Harvard in 1724, a distinguished minister; great-great-grandson of George and Abigail (Marston) Cabot, the former of whom immigrated from the Isle of Jersey and was a taxpayer in Salem, Mass., in 1700; great-great-great-grandson of Francis Cabot of St. Helena, Jersey. Charles Mayes Cabot received a very limited education but by diligent reading he became a man of broad intelligence. He was a merchant for many years at Wetumpka where he spent the greater part of his life. He joined the westward movement in 1849 and located in California where he remained for three years, when he returned to Wetumpka to resume merchandising and farming. He was a county commissioner of Elmore; a member of the constitutional convention of 1865; a Democrat and conservative. Married: May 10, 1853, at Wetumpka, to Eliza Judson, daughter of Rev. Robert and Margaret (McAulay) Holman of that place, the former a Presbyterian minister. Children: 1. Marston, m. Addie Reese, Gate City; 2. Janett, m. Clarence M. Lynch, now deceased, Birmingham; 3. Eliza Judson, m. (1) Col. Oceola Kyle, now deceased (q. v.); 2. Frederick Cabot, now deceased, Hobe Sound, Fla.; 4. Charles M., deceased; 5. Frederick, deceased; 6. Holman, deceased. Last residence: Wetumpka.

CADE, JOHN CATLINE, planter, was born September 7, 1843, in Dayton, Marengo County, Ala., and died March 8, 1875, in Meridian, Miss. He was a son of Adolphus Sellers and Thurza Jane (Catline) Cade, who remained residents of Dayton throughout life. He had three sisters: I. Carrie, m. Eddie Prince; II. Emma, m. Col. Levi Reeves of Dayton, who after her death married her sister III. Adolpha. John Catline Cade was the owner of a large plantation near Dayton and had many slaves. He served as adjutant in the Confederate States Army and after the war was appointed probate judge of Marengo County in 1867. He was married at Tuscaloosa, Ala., December 24, 1864, to Sallie Jemison, daughter of William Henry and Elizabeth Armintine Jemison of Tuscaloosa. Last residence: Meridian, Miss.

CADENHEAD, JAMES, Soldier of the American Revolution, Sen., aged 98, resided in Pike County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

CADILLAC, ANTOINE de la MOTHE, governor of the province of Louisiana, was born between 1657 and 1661, in France, and died October 18, 1730, in the same country; son of Jean and Jeanne (de Malenfant) de la Mothe, the former Seigneur Cadillac, de Launay, de Semontel. He visited New France, settled at Port Royal. Later he founded Detroit and from 1705-10 was governor of the province of Louisiana, residing in Mobile, the seat of the government. He returned to France, again visiting America, and in 1713, while on an expedition in Louisiana founded Natchez. Married: Marie Therese, daughter of Denys Guyon, of Quebec. Last residence: France.

CADLE, CORNELIUS, coal operator, Colonel, U. S. A., was born May 22, 1836, in New York city, N. Y., and died January 13, 1913, in Clifton, Cincinnati, Ohio; son of Cornelius and Abigail How (Larrabee) Cadle, the former born in New York city, March 11, 1809, and remained there until 1843, when he removed to Muscatine, Iowa, where he built the first steam sawmill. He died in 1886. He was a son of Cornelius and Hannah (Kidson) Cadle, the former born in Westbury-on-Severn, Gloucestershire, England, and the latter of Bristol, England. They were married in New York city, September 1, 1799. Col. Cadle's maternal grandparents were William and Sallie (Fiske) Larrabee, who lived at Framingham, Mass., and the latter was a daughter of John Fiske, a "minute man" in Capt. Simon Edgell's company, Lexington Alarm, April 19, 1775. John Fiske, a citizen of Framingham, Mass., was born in 1741 and died there in 1819. Col. Cadle was also descended from John How, father of David How, who built the Wayside Inn, Sudbury, Mass., made famous by Longfellow.

Col. Cadle attended the public schools of Muscatine, Iowa, and was graduated in 1856, from Grinnell College, then located at Davenport, Iowa. He was cashier of a private banking house in Muscatine until he entered the U. S. Army; after the war was appointed receiver of the First National Bank of Selma, Ala., by U. S. Secretary of Treasury, 1866; and later was general manager of the Cahaba Coal Mining Company, developing a large plant at Blocton, Bibb County, Ala. On October 11, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Co. H, Eleventh Iowa Volunteer Infantry, but was mustered in as adjutant of his regiment November 1, 1861, and was ordered on duty at headquarters of Hare's brigade, April 5, 1862, continuing on duty under Gens. Todd, Crocker and McArthur until honorably discharged July 20, 1863, to take effect July 1, to enable him to accept an appointment as assistant adjutant general of U. S. Volunteers with the rank of captain. August 13, he was assigned to the Fourth Division, Seventeenth Army Corps; and to the Fourth Division, Sixteenth Army Corps on August 5, 1864. He was promoted to major, April 4, 1865; lieutenant colonel, April 24, 1865; and brevetted colonel of U. S. Volunteers to date from March 13, 1865. On July 27, 1865, he reported to Maj. Gen. Wager Swayne, who was district commander of the state of Alabama and commissioner of the Freedman's Bureau, with headquarters at Montgomery, and served as assistant inspector general and chief of staff until September 1, 1866, when he was honorably mustered out of service. He participated in all of the bat-ties and campaigns of the Army of Tennessee. For six years he was treasurer-in-chief of the Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the U. S. and was chairman of the council of the commandery-in-chief, with headquarters at Philadelphia. He also served as junior vice commander and commander of the commandery of Ohio; recording secretary of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, twenty-two years; state president of the Sons of the Revolution; and a member and trustee of the Cincinnati Literary Club. In 1895 Col. Cadle was made chairman of the Shiloh National Military Park commission and served as such for fifteen years or until after the cyclone of October 14, 1909, which devastated a part of the work at the park and from exposure incident to this he became disabled and resigned from the commission. After this his health steadily failed. Married: in Providence, R. I., September 26, 1867, to Lucy Anna Barrus, daughter of William Lewis and Lucy Ann (Peck) Barrus, of Providence, and granddaughter of Dr. Daniel Barrus of Warren, R. I., who served in the Revolutionary war. Her maternal grandparents were members of the general court of Massachusetts during the colonial period. Last residence: Clifton, Cincinnati, Ohio.

CAFFEE, ANDREW EUGENE, planter, editor, sheriff, probate judge, State senator, associate railroad commissioner, was born February 22, 1848, at Lowndesboro, Lowndes County; son of John Hooper and Mary Elizabeth (Ivey) Caffee, both natives of Alabama, the former a member of the 3rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, afterwards a blockade runner, captured and imprisoned at Fort Lafayette, paroled by General Dix, and later supplied the Western Army with provisions; grandson of Hooper and Mary (Shelcott) Caffee, both natives of North Carolina who removed to Montgomery County, the former a wealthy planter and owner of the paper that was afterwards merged into the "Montgomery Advertiser," and of Jesse Ivey, a native of Virginia, who located in Lowndes County, later removing to Louisiana; great-grandson of John and Mary (Hooper) Caffee (q. v.). Judge Caffee attended the schools at Lowndesboro, later was a student at Central institute, Coosa County, and finished his college course at Bryant and Stratton college, Indianapolis. He entered the C. S. Army as a private in Sayre's battery, and afterwards joined the Montgomery's Blue's, of Lee's battery. After the war he located in Montgomery as a clerk, later moved to Tuskegee and became a merchant. In 1866 he removed to New York where he clerked for a short while. In 1868 he removed to Indianapolis where he worked for the "Saturday Evening Mirror" and "The People." He spent some time with Maximilian, in Mexico, and about eight years in travel in the Pacific and Rocky mountain states. He returned to Montgomery in 1875, but in a short while moved to Iowa where he did newspaper work for a few years, at one time being editor of "The Times," Columbus, Ia.; editor of "The Herald," Wapello, Ia.; and reported on the "Daily Journal," Muscatine, Ia. He again returned to Alabama, 1878, and located in Lowndes County; was appointed sheriff, 1880; elected probate judge, 1886, re-elected 1892, and served until 1898; served as State senator 1898; appointed railroad commissioner, 1899, serving in this position until 1903. He is a wealthy planter and breeder of Hambletonian horses. He is a Democrat; a Presbyterian. Author: "History of Muscatine County, Iowa." Married: (1) in 1874, to Minnie McLemore; (2) March 16, 1881, at Collirene, to Annie, daughter of William B. Haynes, of Lowndes County. Children: two daughters and a son, John Hooper, who was a student at the University of Alabama, 1899-1900. Residence: Birmingham.

CAFFEY, FRANCIS GORDON, lawyer, was born at Gordonville, Lowndes County, October 28, 1868; son of Dr. Hugh William and Alabama (Gordon) Caffey, (q. v.). Col. Caffey received the degree of A. M. from Howard college, 1887, A. B. 1891; A. M., 1892 from Harvard university; served as assistant in American history and forensic at Harvard; and was a student at Harvard university law school, 1892-94. He was admitted to the bar in Alabama, 1894; began the practice of law in Montgomery, as a member of the firm of Tompkins and Troy, and later of Watts, Troy and Caffey. He served in the Spanish-American War as lieutenant-colonel of the Third Alabama volunteer infantry, and was judge advocate general on the staffs of Governors Samford and Jelks, 1900-02, with the rank of colonel of cavalry. He removed to New York, 1902, and formed a law partnership with John C. Breckinridge; and later became a member of the firm of Clarke, Breckinridge and Caffey. He was solicitor for the United States department of agriculture, 1913-17, and United States attorney for the southern district of New York since 1917. He is a Democrat; and a Baptist. Author: "Annexation of West Florida," 1901; "Suffrage Limitations at the South," 1905; "George Washington Stone," in Great American Lawyers, 1909; "United States cotton futures act," 1915; "National unity," 1919. He is unmarried. Residence: New York, N. Y.

CAFFEY, HUGH MADISON, planter and representative in the legislature, was born Oct. 24, 1854, six miles from Montgomery, on the Mt. Meigs Road; son of Benjamin Franklin and Mary Ann (Fenn) Caffey; grandson of John and Elizabeth (Patrick) Caffey (q. v.). Mr. Caffey was educated at Stonewall institute and at Howard college, leaving the latter institution during his junior year to enter business. He became a planter in 1879, his plantation being located six miles southwest of Hayneville. He was a member of the board of revenue of Lowndes County, 1902-04, and tax collector, 1900-10. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; and a Mason. Married: to Mary Washington, daughter of William J. and Nancy A. (Woodruff) Garrett, of Hayneville. Children: 1. Nannie, m. William B. McWhorter; 2. William Garrett; 3. Benjamin Franklin, m. Pearl Bagwell; 4. Hugh Madison, jr.; 5. John Caswell; 6. John Patrick. Residence: Hayneville.

CAFFEY, HUGH PATRICK, planter and sheriff, was born October 27, 1807, in Guilford County, N. C., and died October 21, 1847, in Montgomery; son of Thomas and Mary (Patrick) Caffey (q. v.). He removed at an early age to Georgia later locating in Alabama. He was at one time deputy sheriff of Lowndes County and later sheriff of Montgomery County. Married: January 28, 1830, to Jane Caroline, daughter of William and Ann Hendrick (Hamilton) Dunklin, of Collirene, Lowndes County. Children: 1. Thomas Dunklin, d. unm.; 2. Hugh William (q. v.); 3. Hooper Patrick, m. Maria Rast; 4. Mary Ann, m. William Watkin Dunklin; 5. Irene Caroline, m. John Ashurst Caffey. Last residence: Montgomery.

CAFFEY, HUGH WILLIAM, physician, was born at Lowndesboro, February 20, 1833, and died at Verbena, October 15, 1919; son of Hugh Patrick and Jane Caroline (Dunklin) Caffey (q. v.); grandson of William and Ann Hendrick (Hamilton) Dunklin, both natives of South Carolina who removed to Alabama in 1819, first settled in Butler County and later near Collirene Hill, Lowndes County; great-grandson of Joseph and Jean (Wathin) Dunklin, the former an emigrant to America from England, the later from Wales, who met on the ship and were married shortly after their arrival at Charleston, S. C., and the former appointed, January 16, 1777, inquirer and collector of St. Mathews Parish, including Orangeburg Township, and of Thomas and Temperance (Arnold) Hamilton, the former a native of Belfast, Ireland, who emigrated at the age of four with his parents to America; great-great-grandson of David and Margaret (Carlisle) Hamilton, of Belfast, Ireland, who emigrated to America in 1762, and settled in South Carolina, and of Benjamin and Ann (Hendrick) Arnold, of South Carolina. Dr. Caffey received his early education in Lowndes and Montgomery Counties, and in March, 1855, graduated with the degree of M. D. from the Medical college of South Carolina, at Charleston. He practiced medicine at Collirene, 1855-62, at the later date enlisting in the C. S. Army as a private in Co. G., 44th Alabama volunteers, was later put in charge of the hospital at Drewrys Bluff, transferred to Hollywood hospital, Richmond, and finished the remainder of his service as surgeon general, with the rank of captain, in North Carolina. After the War he returned to Lowndes County and resumed the practice of medicine; was county superintendent of education, 1870-73; justice of the peace of Collirene, 1876; judge of the county court, 1880-86; and judge of probate and ex-officio chairman of the board of revenue of Lowndes County, 1880-86. He removed to Chilton County in 1886 where he practiced medicine; was a member of the Chilton County board of revenue, 1890-1896; chairman of the Chilton County Confederate pension board, 1880-86; member of the board of control of the Confederate soldiers' home, Mountain Creek, 1910-12, and justice of the peace from 1906 for many years. He was a Democrat; a Baptist; and a Mason. Married: (1) January 2, 1856, to Jerusha May, daughter of Green and Jerusha May (Paisley) Rivers, of Lowndes County; granddaughter of Green Rivers and of John and Jerusha (May) Paisley, of Savannah, Ga.; great granddaughter of William Rivers of English descent, who lived in Virginia and later in South Carolina; (2) to Alabama, daughter of Francis and Eliza (Caperton) Gordon (q. v.). Children: by first wife: 1. Caroline May, m. Francis Gordon Dudley, of Pleasant Hill. 2. Lela Mae, m. John Smyly Catts, of Verbena; 3. Hugh Thomas, m. Lillian Minter, of Leeds; by second wife: 4. Francis Gordon, (q. v.); 5. William Hooper, division passenger agent, Southern railway, Charleston, S. C., m. Elizabeth Olive Hunt; 6. Evelyn, m. Gaston Reedy Buford, of Atlanta, Ga.; 7. David Hamilton, d. in infancy; 8. Guy Hamilton, m. Mamie Barber, of Verbena. Last residence: Verbena.

PROFESSOR ISAAC W. McADORY

CAFFEY, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, was born in 1751 or 1752, on the eastern shores of Maryland, and died August 19, 1826 in Montgomery, his remains interred in a family burying ground on the Woodly Road; son of Michael and Mary (Hooper) Caffey, both natives of Ireland, who emigrated to America about 1740, located in New Jersey later removing to the eastern shores of Maryland; grandson of John Caffey, a linen merchant of Ulster, Ireland and of Bishop Hooper of Ireland. At an early period of the Revolution he enlisted under the command of Washington and Lafayette, after the struggle for independence was over settled in Guilford County, N. C., but removed to Montgomery in 1817 and "was esteemed for his peaceful and neighborly conduct." He was the friend of Lafayette, and when that distinguished patriot visited Montgomery in 1825, was among the old veterans to greet him. Married: Mary Buchanan of Virginia. Children: 1. Thomas (q. v.); 2. John (q. v.); 3. Hooper, m. Mary Shelcott; 4. Henry; 5. Michael, m. five times, (4) Miss Merritt, (5) Miss Nixon; 6. Charles, m. Nancy Lewis; 7. Nancy, m. — Bell. Last residence: Montgomery.

CAFFEY, JOHN, jr., planter, was born in Rockingham County, North Carolina, September 29, 1786, and died in Montgomery County, January 17, 1873; son of John and Mary (Buchanan) Caffey (q. v.) and brother of Thomas Caffey (q. v.), John Caffey jr., removed with his parents to Montgomery County in its early history. He was a planter and represented Montgomery County in the legislatures of 1842 and 1843. Married: (1) Elizabeth Patrick; and (2) Miss Hardeman. Children by first marriage: 1. Hugh Madison, m. (1) Mary Ann Ashurst, and (2) Matilda Jane Fenn; 2. Hooper Washington, d. unmarried; 3. John Patrick; 4. Margaret S., m. A. J. McLemore. Children: 1. Mary Elizabeth, and 2. Margaret, m. Wm. McGough; 5. Mary Patrick, m. (1) James Harper, and (2) Moses McLemore; 6. Benjamin Franklin, m. (1) Mary Fenn; (2) Caroline

Baker; and (3) Mrs. Wynne; 7. Lafayette F.; 8. Sarah E., m. (1) Jesse J. Harper; and (2) Bolling H. Thompson; 9. Catherine Elizabeth d. young; by second marriage: 10. Eugene. Last residence: Montgomery County.

CAFFEY, THOMAS, planter, was born in Rockingham County, N. C., June 24, 1784, and died at Ramer, Montgomery County, October 25, 1878; son of John and Mary (Buchanan) Caffey (q. v.) and brother of John Caffey (q. v.). Thomas Caffey lived in Rockingham County, N. C., until 1795, when he moved with his parents to Guilford County, returned to Rockingham County in 1807; removed to Georgia in February 1816, and finally settled near Elam, Montgomery County, where he remained until about 1822, when he moved to near Lowndesboro. In 1835 he returned to Montgomery County and located near Ramer, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a planter, and represented Montgomery County in the legislature of 1851. He was a Whig in ante bellum days, a Democrat after the war, and a Baptist. Married: January 8, 1807, to Mary, daughter of Hugh and Nancy (Davis) Patrick, of Guilford County, N. C. Children: 1. Hugh Patrick, (q. v.), m. Jane Caroline Dunklin; 2. Sarah J., m. Elisha Baker; 3. John Calvin, d. young; 4. Nancy, d. young; 5. Mary Elizabeth, m. (1) Henderson H. Norman; (2) Charles R. Waller. Last residence: Ramer.

CAGE, JOHN B., major and later lieutenant-colonel, 14th Confederate cavalry, but the records are not definite as to his state affiliations.

CAHEL, BRITTON. Methodist Protestant minister, born in Wales, May 2, 1754, and died in 1845 at sea while returning from Texas to his home in Lamar County, Ala. He was a preacher of the primitive type, a sort of ecclesiastical wanderer, who went about sowing seeds of kindness and gospel truth. His advent into a neighborhood was hailed with delight; his visits were never long but their impressions were lasting and deep. The pulpit seemed to be his native element. He was first a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, but was one of the chief reformers in the establishment of the Methodist Protestant church, which was organized in Baltimore, Md., November 2, 1830. On coming to this country he lived in Boston for a year or two and then removed to Lamar County, Ala. He left a large estate on the Colorado River, now amounting to millions. For his ministerial services he never took any pay, trusting entirely to Providence. In order to save his horses he would walk to church, several miles in the country, on the Sabbath. He married Ellen Terrell of Edinburgh, Scotland, a daughter of Joseph and Sarah Terrell. Last residence: Lamar County, Ala.

CALDWELL, DAVID, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 87, resided in Talladega County, June 1, 1840, with Charles Caldwell. —Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CALDWELL, HENRY MARTIN, physician, promoter, was born in 1836 in Greenville, Butler County, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Black) Caldwell, the former a native of North Carolina, the latter of South Carolina. The father died in 1870 and the mother in 1871. Dr. Caldwell received his early education in the schools of his native county and later attended the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated. He practiced his profession until the opening of the War of Secession, when he entered the medical department of the C. S. Army, serving principally in the field with the Alabama forces. In 1875 he assumed the management of the Elyton Land Company of Birmingham, whose possessions cover several thousand acres of pasture, wood and arable land of Jones Valley, and he has met with remarkable success in the conduct of that business. He has large private interests in and near Birmingham, being president of the Caldwell Hotel Company; a director of the First National Bank of Birmingham, of the Williamson Iron Company and of the Birmingham Iron Works. Dr. Caldwell is a Mason and a member of the First Presbyterian church of Birmingham. He married a sister of Maj. W. J. Milner of Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

CALDWELL, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution; and buried in the cemetery at old Davisville, in Calhoun County, one and one-half miles south of Iron City, and twelve miles east of Anniston, on the Southern Railroad.

The tomb is built of brick; about eight feet long, six and one-half feet wide, and five feet high. A plain marble tablet is let into the wall of the tomb, bearing this inscription:

"Sacred to the memory of
JAMES CALDWELL, who died October 2nd, 1847; in the 98th year of his age.

He was a soldier of the Revolution."

—Mrs. P. H. Mell, in Alabama Historical Society, Transactions, vol. iv. p. 534.

CALDWELL, JOHN M., lawyer, was born July 6, 1851, in Jacksonville, son of John H. Caldwell; was educated in the schools of his native town; and from the age of seventeen to nineteen years engaged in teaching. He studied law under his father and in February, 1873, was admitted to the bar. In 1883 he removed to Anniston, and became one of the leading lawyers of Calhoun County. He was the first city attorney of Anniston and represented the county in the state legislature. He is a Mason and a member of the Presbyterian church. He has a large collection of autographs, the basis of which is the accumulation of private papers, correspondence, etc., of his father, who had received letters from distinguished men in all parts of the United States prior and subsequent to the War of Secession. Married: in November, 1881, to Carrie L. Randall, daughter of R. O. Randall, of Gadsden. Children: 1. Mary J. and 2. Edith. Residence: Birmingham.

CALDWELL, JOSEPH STUART, botanist, for a number of years a resident of Alabama, was born October 31, 1878, at New Market, Jefferson County, Tenn.; son of Andrew and Lemira Josephine (Crawford) Caldwell, both of Tennessee. He was educated at New Market academy, Maryville college, Maryville, Tenn., A. B., 1902; and received the degrees of M. A. in botany, 1904, and Ph. D., 1914, from the University of Chicago. From 1904-11, was professor of botany at Peabody college for teachers, Nashville, Tenn., and in 1912 became professor of botany and plant physiologist at the Alabama polytechnic institute and experiment station, where he remained until 1915. He is now connected with the North Carolina agricultural and mechanical college, at Raleigh. Author: "Primer of hygiene," 1909, and "Primer of hygiene and sanitation," 1910, both in collaboration with John W. Ritchie, besides various contributions to botanical journals. Married: September 2, 1905, at Maryville, Tenn., to Cora Ethel, daughter of Samuel Edward and Hettie Elizabeth McCulloch, of Uceba, Blount County, Tenn. Residence: West Raleigh, N. C.

CALDWELL, R., deceased Presbyterian minister, mentioned in Stillman's "Dead of the Synod of Alabama," 1880-1890.

CALDWELL, WILLIAM CRENSHAW, member board of control and economy, was born in Caldwell, St. Clair County, Ala., December 23, 1878; son of James Crenshaw and Sarah Louise (Stone) Caldwell; and grandson of Jeremiah and Elizabeth (Hodges) Stone, of Ashville, who were of English descent. John Crenshaw Caldwell was born in Forkland, Greene County, this state, and for some time lived at Caldwell and Birmingham. He served in Twelfth Alabama Cavalry under Joe Wheeler. His parents were James Hays and Amelia Caroline (Crenshaw) Caldwell, who lived in Forkland and later in Caldwell. The Caldwell family is of Scotch origin but was established in County Antrim, Ireland, during King James' reign early in the 17th century. James Caldwell, born near Lough Neagh, County Antrim, came to America in 1786 and settled in Fairfield District, S. C., but in 1819 he and his two sons, William and Samuel, removed to Greene County, Ala. William's son, James H., was the paternal grandfather of William Crenshaw Caldwell and was seven years old when the family came to this state, in the '50s he removed to St. Clair County and settled near Caldwell, which village he founded later when the Alabama & Chattanooga R. R. was built, now a part of the Southern system.

William Crenshaw Caldwell attended Pleasant Hill school near Caldwell about three sessions of three months each and is practically a self-educated man. Being a student he now has a private library of fifteen hundred volumes. He studied accounting and business subjects; was a public accountant in Birmingham, 1903-9; auditor for a millionaire planter in Yazoo, Miss., 1909-13; and was appointed by Gov. Kilby, a member of the board of control and economy, March 1, 1919. Going to Montgomery he assumed the duties of that position March 17. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; and was a member of the Rotary, Civitan and Automobile Clubs of Birmingham; a member of the Chamber of Commerce; and the Birmingham Civic Association. Married: October 1, 1903, at Birmingham, to Dessie Clayton, a daughter of William T. and Elizabeth (Williams) Clayton, who at different times lived in Talladega, Childersburg and Birmingham. Her father was a native of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Caldwell died in Birmingham, November 24, 1918; Children: 1. Hubert Clayton Caldwell and 2. James William Caldwell. Residence: Montgomery.

CALHOUN, ANDREW PICKENS, planter, was born October 15, 1812, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died March 16, 1865, at "Fort Hill," the plantation home in South Carolina; son of Hon. John and Floride Bonneau (Calhoun) Calhoun, of "Fort Hill," Abbeville, S. C., the former known as the great "Nullificationist;" grandson of Patrick and Martha (Caldwell) Calhoun, of South Carolina, Revolutionary soldier; great-grandson of James and Katherine (Montgomery) Calhoun, who emigrated from Scotland to America, in 1773; great-great-grandson of Sir James Colquhoun, clerk of the sessions, Dumbarton, Scotland. He was educated in the best institutions of South Carolina and in 1835, removed, with his family and numerous slaves, to Marengo County, where he acquired large plantations, and engaged in intensive farming. He built a large log house "Tulip Hill," where his children were born, and a log school house "Thalian Academy," where they received rudimentary training. He exercised great influence of farming, in Marengo County. In 1855, he sold his plantations, "Tulip Hill" to Col. T. B. Bethea, and "Cuba," to Col. James R. Powell, and returned to South Carolina, buying his father's old home, "Fort Hill," where he lived until his death. In 1858, he was delegate to the Southern commercial convention, at Montgomery, and was made its president. In 1861, he was South Carolina's deputy to the Alabama Secession convention, at Montgomery, and spoke to that body. He organized and was made president of the South Carolina agricultural society, 1856, and held the office until his death. He was an ardent States Rights Democrat. Married: May 5, 1836, to Margaret Maria, daughter of Gen. Duff and Lucretia (Edwards) Green, of Kentucky. Children: 1. John Caldwell, jr. (q. v.), m. Linnie Adams of Kentucky; 2. Andrew, jr.; 3. James; 4. Patrick; 5. Margaret; 6. Lucretia. Last residence: In Alabama, "Tulip Hill," near Faunsdale; in South Carolina "Fort Hill," near Abbeville and is buried on the plantation.

CALHOUN, JAMES MARTIN, lawyer, was born January 25, 1805, in Vienna, Abbeville County, S. C., and died November 20, 1877, in Richmond, Ala.; son of James and Sarah Caldwell (Martin) Calhoun; and nephew of Hon.

John C. Calhoun, who rendered the name immortal. The father, a merchant of Calhoun Settlement, Abbeville County, S. C., was a son of Patrick and Martha (Caldwell) Calhoun, of that place; and the mother was a daughter of Dr. James and Sarah (Caldwell) Martin, of Camden, S. C. The Calhoun family is descended from one of the younger sons of King Conoch of Ireland, who emigrated to Scotland, the name being changed from Conoch to Colquhoun, Colquhoun, Colhoun and Calhoun. First ancestor to obtain the baronetcy of Dumbartonshire was Umpjredies, b. 1198; Robert, in time of King David (1324-71) captured the castle of Dumbartonshire by strategy, for which act a crest was bestowed upon him; first of the family to come to America was James Calhoun with his wife, Catherine Montgomery, and four children, in 1733. They settled in Lancaster County, Pa., whence they removed to Wythe County, Va.; after Braddock's defeat were driven away by Indians and settled in Abbeville County, S. C., in 1756; were put to flight by one hundred mounted Cherokees in 1760 after fifty of the party were killed including Catherine Montgomery, then the widow of James Calhoun, aged seventy-six years, and her son James. Her son Patrick, father of James M. Calhoun, afterward erected a monument on the scene of the massacre, twelve miles from Abbeville. Patrick Calhoun married Martha Caldwell, of Virginia, niece of the famous "fighting parson" Caldwell of Elizabethtown, N. J. Their children were Catherine, wife of Rev. Moses Waddell, James, Patrick, John Caldwell and William. The father of these children was captain of Rangers to defend the frontier against Indians and Tories; was the first representative to the general assembly from the up country; was a member of the first provisional congress, 1775, the second, 1776; afterwards served continuously until his death in 1796; was appointed judge of the county courts of Abbeville and Ninety-six. His son James married Sarah Caldwell Martin, daughter of Dr. James Martin, surgeon of the Third South Carolina regiment in the Revolution, and his wife, Sarah Caldwell, also a niece of the "fighting parson." The sons of this marriage were James Martin, John Alfred and William Henry.

James Martin Calhoun attended the school of Dr. Moses Waddell, at Williston, S. C., and South Carolina College; and studied law privately at Abbeville. Later he practiced his profession at Cahaba, Ala., in partnership with Judge Ezekiel Pickens until his health failed, after which he engaged in planting first near Selma and later at Richmond, Dallas County, and Snow Hill, Wilcox County, while living at Richmond. He was a Democrat and an elder in the Presbyterian church. In 1831 he was elected to the State legislature, in which he served several years; in 1838 was unanimously elected president of the senate; in 1842 returned to the house; in 1847 was appointed by Gov. Martin a commissioner to settle the boundary line between Alabama and Florida; was again elected to the senate in 1857, 1859 and 1861; and again served as presiding officer for a time. Married: in Selma,

May 26, 1830, to Susan Pickens, daughter of Gov. Andrew Pickens of South Carolina and his wife, Susan Wilkinson, who lived in Edgefield, S. C. Her paternal grandfather, Gen. Andrew Pickens, of Revolutionary fame, was born in Bucks County, Pa., September 13, 1739, and died at his mountain home, Tomasee, Pickens County, S. C., August 11, 1812, having migrated to the latter state about 1750. He was of French descent; his ancestors were driven from France by the edict of Nantes; and first settled in Scotland and later in the north of Ireland. On coming to America his father located in Pennsylvania. Gen. Pickens was married March 19, 1765, to Rebecca Calhoun, daughter of Ezekiel Calhoun, who was born November 18, 1745, and died December 19, 1814. Ezekiel Calhoun was a brother of Patrick Calhoun, father of Hon. John C. Calhoun. Of this marriage there were six daughters and three sons, including Gov. Andrew Pickens, who was born November 13, 1779; was educated at Princeton; and prepared for the bar. He commanded a regiment in the War of 1812; was elected governor of South Carolina in 1816; and in 1835 was appointed by the Alabama legislature president of the first national bank. He died June 24, 1838, in Mississippi, where he had gone on business. He first married Susan Smith Wilkinson, great-great-granddaughter of Landgrave Morton, governor of South Carolina in colonial days; their children were: 1. Francis Wilkinson Pickens, member of congress, minister to Russia and governor of South Carolina; and 2. Susan, wife of James Martin Calhoun. Miss E. Axtell, daughter of Lord Axtell, married Joseph Blake; their daughter Elizabeth married Gov. Joseph Morton of South Carolina; their daughter married Francis Wilkinson; and their son Christopher was the father of Morton and Christopher Wilkinson, who married respectively Susannah Smith, daughter of Landgrave Smith, and Eliza Plann, proprietor of Plann's Island. Christopher's son Francis married his first cousin, Susannah Wilkinson, daughter of Morton Wilkinson, and their only daughter, Susan, married Gov. Andrew Pickens, and to them were born two children: Francis W. Pickens and Susan, the wife of James Martin Calhoun. The children of the last named: 1. Susan Wilkinson, m. Alexander Noble, both deceased; 2. Andrew Pickens, m. Ellen Francis Lee, both deceased; had seven children: Susan Wilkinson; Rebecca Lee, m. Douglas Beatty of Birmingham; Julia Lee, m. Jacob Mason, Selma; James Martin, d. 1882; Harriet Eliza, d.; Sallie Pickens; and Ellen Frances; 3. Sarah Louisa, m. W. T. Wade, both deceased, and their children: Andrew Pickens, m. Esther Morris, lives at Columbus, Ga.; Harriet Eliza, m. John A. Everett, Montgomery, Ala.; Susan Calhoun, d.; Georgia Harper, m. her cousin, Theodore Wade, Carlowville, Ala.; 4. James Francis, m. (1) Florence Lee and their children: Martin Lee of Selma; Mary Lee, m. W. R. Lee of Selma; Marion Pickens, d. m. Charlie Coche; Florence Calhoun; James Francis, m. (2) Julia Lee and their children: Francis Lee, Andrew Pickens and George Hearst, all residents of Laurel, Miss.; and Pauline, m. W. S. Smallwood; 5. John Caldwell (q. v.), m. Mary Graham. Last residence: Richmond, Ala.

CALHOUN, JOHN CALDWELL, jr., financier, was born July 9, 1843, at "Tulip Hill" plantation, near Faunsdale, Marengo County; son of Andrew Pickens and Margaret Maria (Green) Calhoun (q. v.). He was educated in the log school house, "Thalian Academy," built on his father's plantation, "Tulip Hill"; when twelve years old, he removed to South Carolina, to the old Calhoun home and was fitted for college by tutors, entering South Carolina college, in 1860; in 1861, he volunteered for service, in defense of South Carolina, in a company of cadets and hurried to Charleston, where with his company, he participated in the attack on Ft. Sumter; later he joined Capt. Thomas Taylor's company, Hampton's legion; was discharged from service on account of youth; later he organized a cavalry troop which was assigned to the 4th South Carolina cavalry regiment, Col. B. H. Rutledge, Gen. M. C. Butler's brigade; served to the close of the war and was promoted to a captaincy. The Calhoun estate being devastated he began planting operations, with a few faithful ex-slaves. In 1866, he returned to Alabama, formed a partnership with Col. James R. Powell, and colonized negroes in the Yazoo Valley, Miss., on the co-operative plan of planting. This proved profitable, and he sold out to Col. Powell, in 1867, for $10,000. He went to Arkansas and repeated the enterprise, in which he engaged until 1880. His co-operative plan was reported to congress, favorably, by the senate committee on education and labor, 1885. In 1884, he removed to New York City and organized a syndicate to settle and refund the state debt of Arkansas, which was successful. He has held the following offices: president Baltimore coal-mining and railway company; Calhoun land company; chairman finance committee Central railroad; director Richmond and West Point terminal company; Richmond and Danville railroad; Central of Georgia; president levee board of Arkansas; vice-president of Sons of the American Revolution, 1890, and its special ambassador to France, 1897, commemorating 119th anniversary of Treaty of Alliance between France and the Thirteen Colonies; vice-president, 1886-88, and president, 1889, of the New York Southern society; member of the Virginians; the Carolinians; Confederate Veterans, N. Y. Camp; South Carolina Historical Society. Clubs; Manhattan, Lawyers, N. Y.; Capital City, Atlanta; Tilden, of London. He is a Democrat; and Episcopalian. Married: December 8, 1870, at Lexington, Ky., to Linnie, daughter of David Adams and grand-niece of Richard M. Johnson, vice-president of the United States. Children: 1. James Edward; 2. David Adams; 3. Julia J.; 4. John C., III. Residence: New York City.

CALHOUN, JOHN CALDWELL, educator, was born December 4, 1850, at the parental homestead near Richmond and Carlowville, Ala.; son of James Martin Calhoun (q. v.) and Susan Pickens of Dallas County, both representatives of distinguished families. The father was a nephew of Hon. John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, and the mother was a sister of Gov. F. W. Pickens, a daughter of Gov. Andrew Pickens, and granddaughter of Gen. Andrew Pickens of South Carolina. After the usual preliminary training John Caldwell Calhoun was prepared for college by Prof. T. J. Dill, later of Howard College, Birmingham, and entered Washington College, now Washington and Lee University, under the presidency of Gen. Robert E. Lee; was graduated with the degrees C. E. and B. S. in June, 1872, and M. A. in June, 1873, and was appointed resident master but declined to serve. For two years he was principal of Cape Fear Academy, Wilmington, N. C.; and later in 1876 entered Heidelberg University; and also spent some time in Paris. On his return to this country in 1877 he was elected professor of Greek in the University of Alabama, with which he was connected for many years as a teacher of mathematics, Latin and Spanish; later he became a member of the faculty of the College of William and Mary, department of modern languages, Williamsburg, Va. He is a member of the parent chapter of Phi Beta Kappa; is a Presbyterian and very active in church, Y. M. C. A. and Sunday school work. Married: July 11, 1878, to Mary Rand Graham, of Selma, Ala., daughter of Dr. Chauncey William and Mary (Kenan) Graham, who lived at Kenansville, N. C., and granddaughter of Dr. Stephen and Anne (Dickson) Graham. Dr. Chauncey W. Graham attended Wake Forest Academy; later studied medicine under a prominent physician of Fayetteville, N. C., and finished his medical education at a school of medicine in Philadelphia, Pa. He practiced at Kenansville, N. C., and during the War of Secession served as surgeon for regiments stationed near his home. He married, December 14, 1848, Mary Rand Kenan, of Selma, Ala., whose oldest brother, Owen Rand Kenan, had married Sarah Graham, her husband's oldest sister. Mary Rand Kenan was a daughter of Thomas Kenan II and his wife Mary Rand. After Dr. Graham's death in 1866 his widow and children removed to Selma, where Mrs. Graham died September 20, 1903. Residence: Williamsburg, Va.

CALHOUN, L. C., Methodist minister, member of the Alabama conference, living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

CALHOUN, OTIS VAUGHN, Methodist minister, was born January 23, 1879, in Jackson County, Miss.; son of Charles Wesley and Laura Ann (Vaughn) Calhoun, the former a native of Clarke County, who was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, Mississippi conference; grandson of John Calhoun, who lived in Clarke County, and whose ancestors came from Scotland to the United States soon after the Revolutionary War. He received his early education under the instruction of D. M. Callaway at Selma, and J. T. Collins, at Thomasville; was graduated from Southern university, B. P., 1899; and was a student in the theology department of Vanderbilt university for one year. He joined the Alabama Conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Greenville, in December, 1901, and is now stationed at Calhoun. He is a Democrat; a Knight Templar; and a Shriner. Married: February 26, 1907, at Mobile, to Mary Cameron Byrne, daughter of Robert D. and Elizabeth (McCaskill) Byrne, who lived at Mobile. Children: 1. Charles Robert; 2. Elizabeth Vaughn; 3. John Byrne; 4. Mary Catherine. Residence: Calhoun.

CALHOUN, WILLIAM HENRY, teacher and planter, was born in 1852; son of L. G. and Caroline E. (Scott) Calhoun, who lived in Barbour, and later in Henry County. He was educated in the schools of Barbour County, attended the University of Alabama, 1869-70, removing to Henry County, about 1870. He has taught in the public schools of Southeast Alabama; was elected superintendent of education, for Henry County, 1880-83, and has served on the board of examiners for the county. He is a Democrat. Married: (1) September 30, 1880, to Martha Newtie Peterman of Shorterville; (2) February 2, 1897, to Tina Lucas Bush. Residence: Abbeville.

CALLAHAN, WILLIAM WASHINGTON, lawyer, was born June 30, 1863, near Moulton, Lawrence County, son of William and Julia (Ghent) Callahan, the former a native of the same county, and a private in the Confederate Army, and grandson of John and Elizabeth Ghent, of Georgia. Mr. Callahan was educated in the public schools of Lawrence County, and at the Moulton institute; was admitted to the bar in 1886; practiced at Moulton until 1889, when he removed to Decatur; in 1888 before his removal, he was deputy solicitor for Lawrence County; in 1892 was elected by the legislature solicitor of the city court of Decatur, which office he held until the abolition of the court in 1894; in 1898 elected attorney for the city of Decatur; and served in the legislature of 1903 from Morgan County. Mr. Callahan joined the Palmer and Buckner wing of the Democratic party, and was its unsuccessful candidate for congress in 1890. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; an Odd Fellow; an Elk; and a member of the Alabama State bar association. Married: March 21, 1893, to Nettie Orr, daughter of John W. and Zelia (Wise) Jones of Decatur, the former was a member of the constitutional convention of 1875 from Morgan County. Children: 1. Dorothy; 2. Travis. Residence: Decatur.

CALLAN, WILLIAM JASPER, educator, was born in Cabarrus County, N. C., and died March 21, 1890, at Sulphur Springs, Ala.; son of James Alexander and Mary Melissa (Martin) Callan, of Scotch-Irish extraction. In the early '30s the family removed from North Carolina to Alabama. During his boyhood William J. Callan studied under a tutor, riding five miles daily for instruction; later attended Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., receiving the degree of A. B. in 1856 and A. M. in 1857. He was a pioneer preacher of the Cumberland Presbyterian doctrine in Alabama for thirty-eight years; and professor of English and oratory in the State University, 1867-8. He removed to Sulphur Springs, Dekalb County, in 1872, and established a school, whose influence was felt for fifty miles around, many able professional and business men being educated there. He was a Democrat; and Mason, serving as master of his lodge for many years. Married: (1) Mary Standifer, daughter of William Heard and Mary Standifer. Children: 1. Lemuel George; 2. William Standifer, d. at Portales, N. M., 1905. Married: (2) at Gaylesville, Ala., August 24, 1865, Sarah Elizabeth Bradford, daughter of James and Margaret (McRae) Bradford, who lived in Cherokee County, Ala., where Mr. Bradford served as probate judge. His wife is said to be the first woman appointed postmistress in this state, probably at Osceola. Children, by second marriage: 3. Mary Margaret, of Scottsboro, Ala., m. Miles Moody, d.; 4. Ella Catherine, of Pisgah, m. Dr. George T. Hays, d.; 5. Dr. Thomas E., physician of Gaylesville, m. Margaret Beard; 6. Elizabeth, of Birmingham, m. Prof. Douglas Allen, d.; 7. Nathan J., principal of county high school at Fort Payne, m. Fannie Humphrey; 8. James A. Callan, druggist of Birmingham; 9. Anna Callan, of Birmingham; 10. France, of Birmingham; 11. Dr. John B. d. in Bridgeport, in 1908; and 12. H. H., farmer of Sulphur Springs. Last residence: Sulphur Springs.

CALLAWAY, DARBY M., educator, was born January 4, 1847, in Macon, Miss.; son of Rev. Christopher C. Callaway, who was born in 1822 in Lincoln County, Tenn., of English ancestry, and in early life removed with his parents to Mississippi. The father's early educational advantages were limited owing to the primitive schools of that state during his boyhood, but he was a great student and became one of the principal movers in the establishment of the Southern University of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Greensboro, Ala. When quite young he had united with that church and to the cause of religion he devoted his life. He died in 1867. He married Emmerine Denton, of Mississippi, by whom he had nine children, including Darby M. Callaway, who was graduated from the Southern University with high honors, later receiving the degree of A. M. from his alma mater. Prof. Callaway has since devoted his life to the cause of education, first conducting a private school at Marion, from which place he removed to Selma, where for a time he was a member of the faculty of Dallas Academy and later opened a school of his own. He is also a writer of ability and has been called upon to lecture in nearly every college in Alabama. During the War of Secession he entered the C. S. Army as a private in 1864 and remained in the service until hostilities ceased. He is a Democrat; a Master Mason; an Elk; and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Married: in 1879 to Mrs. H. H. Nance, by whom he has one son and one daughter. Residence: Selma.

CALLAWAY, PITT MILNER, Baptist minister, was born October 10, 1812, in Wilkes County, Ga., and died November 29, 1898, in Newton, Dale County, Ala.; son of Elder Joshua S. Callaway, a missionary Baptist minister, born May 30, 1789, in Wilkes County, Ga. In early life the son enlisted at Columbus, Ga., in answer to a call for volunteers to defend the country from the Indians and during his last years received a pension. In 1838 he removed to Macon County, Ala., and a few years later to Eufaula, Barbour County, where he engaged in mercantile business and also studied law, but after his admission to the bar only practiced to a limited extent. In 1834 he was converted and ten years later, while on a visit to Georgia, united with the church of which his father was pastor; was ordained a deacon at Eufaula, and subsequently entered the ministry, being ordained at Mount Zion church in Macon County in 1857. From that date his life was devoted to church work and as a preacher he had few equals in southern Alabama. He represented Dale County in the state legislature in 1882-3 and was a strong advocate of prohibition and education. From Barbour County he removed to Bullock County; and in 1863 to Dale County, making his home in Newton for the last thirty-five years of his life. Married: (1) December 10, 1833, to Ellen Wiley Jordon; and (2) February 16, 1880, to Mrs. Mary V. McLaney. He left several children. Last residence: Newton, Ala.

CALLAWAY, ROBERT BAKER, educator, was born July 21, 1852, in Summerfield, Dallas County, Ala.; son of Rev. Christopher Columbus Callaway and his wife, Zerilda Emerine Denton, who was a daughter of John Francis and Elizabeth Denton, who lived in Winston County, Miss. Rev. Callaway was born in Lincoln County, Tenn., and for many years was pastor of the Methodist church at Greensboro, Ala.; also financial agent of the Southern University; and presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa district. Robert Baker Callaway began his education under the direction of Miss Emma Meors and afterward attended schools taught by her brother, Dr. Meors, both from the north, Prof. O. F. Casy and Capt. A. H. Hutchinson. Subsequently he was a student at the Southern University but quit before graduating to go to work. He began teaching in 1872 in Mississippi; filled the chair of mathematics in Stonewall Institute, 1875-8; and has since taught in Sumter County, Ala., most of the time in Livingston. In 1893 he was appointed county superintendent of schools by Major John G. Harris, and by reelection has since filled that position. He is a Democrat; a Methodist, taking an active part in church and Sunday school work; and Mason and Knight of Pythias, having filled offices in both lodges. Married: December 12, 1882, at Livingston, to Margaret Elsie Edmundson, who was born October 9, 1859, in Nashville, Tenn., a daughter of John King and Matilda Greer (Wilson) Edmundson, of Nashville. Children: 1. Maggie Bryan, d.; 2. Helen, m. J. Graham Putnam; 3. Robert Baker, d.; 4. Maude Bordeaux; and 5. Marguerite Catherine. Residence: Livingston, Ala.

GEORGE A. HOFF

CALLEN, SARA, former member of the faculty, Alabama girls' technical institute. Residence: Birmingham.

CALLER, JAMES, pioneer citizen, was born in 1758, in Virginia, and died December 3, 1819, at St. Stephens; son of James Caller, a native of England who, while serving at the age of eighteen as a shoemaker's apprentice in a seaport town, was captured by British officers and brought to America in order to serve against the French and Indians, escaped on the landing of the ship at Norfolk, Va., settling in the interior, married, and later removed to Warrenton, N. C. Colonel Caller removed to Alabama about 1801 and located in Washington County, later moving to Clarke. He was a man of wealth and considerable frontier influence; was senior militia officer; was one of the first representatives to the legislative councils from Washington County, and 1807 was territorial commissioner. He was one of the officers in the disastrous battle of Burnt Corn Creek, when the Americans were routed by the Indians and Spaniards. Married: in Warrenton, N. C., to Winifred, daughter of Green Duke, of that place. Children: 1. Robert, m. Emily Collier; 2. Green Duke, m. Jane Toulmin; 3. Mary Parham, m. Gov. Gabriel Moore (q. v.); 4. Martha, m. William McConnell; 5. Susan, m. Daniel H. De Wolf; 6. Rebecca Duke; 7. James S., major, removed to Clarke County, south of Suggsville, fought in Creek and Seminole War, 1836, m. Jane Marks. Last residence: St. Stephens.

CALLER, MARY ALICE, author and writer. Deceased.

CALLIS, JOHN B., public official, was born in Fayetteville, N. C., January 3, 1828; and removed to Carroll County, Tenn., in 1834; thence to Wisconsin in 1840; and there received a common school education and engaged in business pursuits. Soon after the outbreak of the War of Secession he entered the U. S. Army as a Captain in the Seventh Wisconsin infantry and in 1862 was promoted lieutenant colonel of the same regiment, serving in that capacity until badly wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 1863, and consequently honorably mustered out December 29, 1863. In 1864 he entered the Veteran Reserve Corps and was on duty in Washington, D. C., as superintendent of the war department until December, 1865. He was brevetted brigadier general of volunteers, March 7, 1864; and after the close of the war was appointed captain in the 45th U. S. infantry; and major and lieutenant colonel by brevet in the regular army. In 1865 he settled in Alabama and resigned his commission February 4, 1868, to engage in civil pursuits. As a Republican he was elected a representative from the fifth district of Alabama to the fortieth congress and was admitted to his seat July 21, 1868. He introduced three bills for the establishment of mail routes in this state and was connected with other important legislation.

CALLOWAY, EUGENE, physician, graduate of the medical department of the University of Virginia; licensed to practice in Alabama by the State board in 1910.

CALLOWAY, THOMAS CLANTON, composer, was born March 1, 1879, in Troy, Pike County, son of Robert and Martha Ann Washington (Pickett) Calloway, residents of Troy. The father was born in Social Circle, Ga., and was a son of Joshua and Nancy (Crawley) Calloway. His maternal grandparents were Thomas and Mary (Oxford) Pickett, who also lived in Georgia. He is related to all of the Calloways of Georgia and the Picketts of Georgia and South Carolina; both very distinguished families. On the maternal side he is related to General Pickett. Several of the Calloway family have been prominent educators and preachers. Thomas Clanton Calloway attended the high school of Troy, his teachers being Macon, Holston, Dill and Shackelford; and was later a student at the State Normal College at Troy. At an early age he displayed marked musical talent and subsequently entered the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, Mass. After leaving that institution he turned his attention to teaching music and has since become a composer of note as well as a skilled pianist and organist. He has composed many instrumental and vocal selections which have found favor with the public and are now played and sung all over the United States. These include: There Are No Eyes Like Thine Down in the Jeweled Deep; The Green Kentucky Pastures; Love's Dreaming Song; Eventide; Whar de Watermilyuns Grow; On the Sands When Starlight Shone; The White Rose; The Pink Carnation; Where the Shady River Deepens; All Thy Works Shall Praise Thee; Elder Blooms; The Tale of the Humming Bird. Instrumental: Storm on the Ocean; Gaiety Gallop; Love's Vision Waltzes; The Debutante Two-Step; Daughters of the Confederacy March; Montgomery Advertiser March; An Idyl; A Summer Dream; A Winter Dream; An Evening Reverie; At Twilight; Moonbeams; Grande Gallop Brillante; The Violet; The Hyacinth; The Lily; I Love Only You; I'm Dreaming of You. He is a member of the First Baptist church of Montgomery; organist and choir director. Residence: Montgomery.

CALVERT, THOMAS JACKSON, farmer, was born August 7, 1891, at Ardell, Walker County; son of James and Sarah (Wilson) Calvert, the former a native of Ardell, and a farmer at that place; grandson of James and Lila (Stewart) Calvert, and of Tom and Hettie Wilson, all of Ardell. He is of English stock, a descendant of Lord Baltimore, his ancestors having settled in Maryland. He received his education in the schools of Walker County; engaged in farming and teaching, 1911-1913; was a justice of the peace, 1912-1914; enlisted in the U. S. Army, May 17, 1917, served in the Eleventh and Twenty-second cavalry, and in the Eightieth Field Artillery; received his commission of second lieutenant from the Reserve Officers' Training Camp at Camp Taylor, August 17, 1918; was assigned to the Forty-second Field Artillery, Camp Kearney, Calif.; and was discharged, December 5, 1918. He is a Republican, and on the death of Representative Manasco of Walker County, was elected as his successor to the State legislature, 1919. He is a Baptist and a member of the American Legion. Residence: Jasper.

CAMERON, JOHN F., major and later lieutenant colonel, 3rd, formerly 18th Arkansas, Confederate infantry regiment, C. S. Army. The state of his residence may have been other than Alabama.

CAMERON, MATTHEW BUNYAN, physician, was born November 22, 1860, in Greene County, son of Matthew Smith and Lou Dicia (Rogers) Cameron, residents of Mt. Hebron, Greene County. His father was born at Abbeville Court House, Abbeville County, S. C., and was a son of Nathaniel Cameron, of Scotch-Irish lineage, who came from Ireland as a refugee at the time of the Emmett rebellion and settled at Abbeville Court House, S. C. In 1833 the Doctor's father removed from that state to Greene County, Ala., where he farmed until his death in 1888. Dr. Cameron attended the Verner & Banks private school from 1872 to 1874; a college at Gallatin, Tenn., for two years, 1875-7; University of Alabama, 1877-8; and the Medical College of Alabama, at Mobile, from which he was graduated in 1886. On the 1st of May of that year he opened an office in Sumterville where he practiced until July 3, 1905, and then removed to Eutaw, where he has since followed his profession. During the Spanish-American war he was appointed by Gov. Johnston surgeon with the rank of major of the Third Alabama regiment; was made counselor of the Alabama Medical Association in 1893; was elected president of the same in 1903; and a member of the State Board of Health in 1907, for a term of five years. He represented Sumter County in the state legislature during the sessions of 1894-5 and 1896-7; was a member of the state executive committee from the 6th district in 1897-8. He is a Democrat; a deacon in the Presbyterian church; and has been master of Herman Lodge, No. 106, F. & A. M. Married: November 22, 1887, in Ramsey, to Ella Watson Winston, daughter of Capt. James M. and Rebecca Winston, of Ramsey. Residence: Eutaw.

CAMERON, WILLIAM J., business man, was born in 1851 in Montgomery, son of Andrew and Eliza (Crozier) Cameron. His progenitors removed from Scotland to the north of Ireland, where the father was born, and about 1838 he came to America, locating in Montgomery, Ala., two years later, and carrying on business there for many years. The mother was from Philadelphia, Pa. Of their four children William J. is the oldest child and only son. He attended the best schools of Montgomery and for one year at Norristown (Pa.) academy. He began his business career in the banking house of Josiah Morris, of Montgomery; in 1880 was appointed cashier of the City Bank of Birmingham; in 1884 was appointed cashier of the First National Bank of the same city; and in 1886 was elected president, becoming head of one of the largest banks of the state. He was also president of the Southern Bridge Company; secretary and treasurer of the Birmingham Ice Company, the Alabama Construction Company and the Building & Loan Association; and a director of the Gas & Illuminating Company. He was one of the incorporators of the East Birmingham Land Company. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and while living in Montgomery was orderly sergeant of the Montgomery Greys; and upon the organization of the state troops was made major of the Second infantry. Married: (1) in 1872 to Mary E. Smith, of Montgomery, who died in 1881; and (2) in 1883 to Mary B. Ward, daughter of George R. Ward, of Birmingham. Children by first marriage: 1. William Smith; 2. Pauline; 3. Andrew C. and 4. William J., jr. Residence: Birmingham.

CAMPBELL, CHARLES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 76, and a resident of Lauderdale County; private Virginia State Troops; enrolled on October 7, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CAMPBELL, DAVID, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Greene County; private S. C. Militia; enrolled on September 17, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $30; sums received to date of publication of list, $90.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Greene County, June 1, 1840, aged 80.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

CAMPBELL, GEORGE, soldier of the American Revolution, and a resident of Autauga County; private and sergeant, particular service not disclosed; enrolled on April 8, 1835, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $55.83.—Pension Book, State Branch Bank, Mobile.

CAMPBELL, JAMES M., major, 47th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

CAMPBELL, JOHN, secretary, first constitutional convention of Alabama, 1819, treasurer of the United States, was born about 1791 at "Hall's Bottom," near Abingdon, Washington County, Va., and died at Abingdon, Va.; son of John and Elizabeth (McDonald) Campbell, the former born near where Staunton now stands, Augusta County, Va., April 20, 1741, who settled at "Royal Oak" with his father about 1769, and at "Hall's Bottom," about 1785, both places near Abingdon, Washington County, Va.; grandson of David and Mary (Hamilton) Campbell, the former known as "White David," was born in Ireland, March 8, 1706, emigrated to America in 1726, and settled near where Staunton, Va., now stands, in 1739; and of Edward and Elizabeth (Robinson) McDonald, who lived at or near where Abingdon, Va., now stands. The Campbell family originated in Argyleshire, Scotland, the ancestral home in the Highlands of the Clan Campbell. The first of the line known was Dougal Campbell, born at Inverary. His son, Duncan Campbell, was an officer in the English army, and in the latter part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth went from Scotland to the north of Ireland. Gov. David Campbell of Virginia says that removal was in 1584. He had a son Patrick; he, a son Hugh; he, a son Andrew; he, a son Duncan, born about 1645, who married Mary McCoy about 1668, and had five children, four of whom are known to have come to America about 1726, from the family seat in Ireland, Drumboden, near Londonderry. They first settled in Lancaster County, Pa., but about 1739, moved to the valley of Virginia, locating in what was then Orange, now Augusta, County. Mr. Campbell was educated at Abingdon Academy, Virginia. In 1811, he was elected a member of the house of delegates of Virginia, from Washington County, and was re-elected in 1813. Before 1818, he was a member of the council of the state of Virginia. He moved to Alabama in 1818, settled at Huntsville, and the following year was chosen secretary of the first constitutional convention of Alabama, 1819. About 1821 or 1822, he returned to Abingdon, and in April 1829 was appointed by President Andrew Jackson treasurer of the United States. He held that position until 1839, when, because of differences with President Van Buren, he resigned and returned to Abingdon, Va. At that time, he changed his allegiance from the Democratic party to the Whig party. He was the author of the sketches of Col. Arthur Campbell and Gen. William Campbell, which appear in Howe's "History of Virginia." He was never married. Last residence: Abingdon, Va.

CAMPBELL, JOHN ARCHIBALD, lawyer, member of U. S. supreme court, was born June 24, 1811, in Washington, Wilkes County, Ga., and died March 13, 1889, in Baltimore, Md.; son of Duncan Greene and Mary (Williamson) Campbell, residents of Georgia. His paternal ancestors came from Scotland to America at an early day and settled in North Carolina. His grandfather was a captain in the Continental Army and was attached to the personal staff of Gen. Nathaniel Greene. On the maternal side his grandfather was Lieut. Col. Williamson of a Georgia regiment.

Judge Campbell was graduated from Franklin College, Athens, Ga., in 1826, with first honors, and was appointed by John C. Calhoun a cadet at West Point, where he remained for nearly three years. Resigning in consequence of his father's death, he went to Montgomery, Ala., and took up the study of law, being admitted to the bar in 1830. A year later he succeeded Gov. Fitzpatrick as the law partner of Henry Goldthwaite but shortly afterward became associated with George Goldthwaite, this firm existing until his removal to Mobile in 1837. The year previous he had represented Montgomery in the legislature and declined the appointment of justice of the supreme court of the state, tendered by Gov. Clay; and the position of secretary of legation to Great Britain, tendered by President Jackson, when Mr. Stevenson of Virginia was sent as minister plenipotentiary. On his removal to Mobile he was associated in practice with Messrs. Gordon and Chandler until 1840, when he was appointed to the bench, and in 1842 he represented Mobile in the legislature. By appointment of the legislature, he attended the convention of the southern states at Nashville in May, 1850, and prepared the resolutions which were adopted unanimously by all parties and shades of opinion. In 1852 Judge Campbell declined a seat on the supreme bench of the state but the following year accepted the appointment of justice of the supreme court of the United States, filling that prominent position until May 1, 1860, when he resigned. While serving in that capacity he acted as an informal mediator between the commissioners of the Confederate States and the Federal authorities in March and April, 1861. Being a southern man by birth and training he cast in his lot with the Confederacy but at first declined office, though he subsequently became assistant secretary of war in October, 1862, and served in that capacity until the close of the war. In 1864, when the financial collapse of the Confederacy was apparent, Judge Campbell was sent with others to Hampton Roads to confer with President Lincoln and Secretary Seward on the restoration of peace and the means of reconstruction; and in 1887 he published his recollections of this conference. After Richmond was evacuated he secured from President Lincoln a sort of quasi-recognition of the Confederate States government as a basis for reconstruction, but after the death of the President this plan was discarded.

For six months Judge Campbell was confined in Fort Pulaski, Georgia, and at the end of that time was paroled but his disabilities were never removed as he always refused to apply for pardon. Upon his release he resumed the practice of his profession in Alabama and Louisiana, becoming a resident of New Orleans in 1866. During this portion of his life he frequently appeared before the bar of the supreme court, being retained among other cases in the New Orleans water works case; the suits of the states of New Hampshire and New York against the state of Louisiana; and the well known Slaughterhouse cases. In 1877 he was one of Tilden's counsel before the electoral commission. At the early age of twenty-seven years he held front rank at the bar of Alabama and maintained it with increasing reputation until his elevation to the bench. As a judge of the supreme court of the United States he ranked among the ablest, and his decisions, like his arguments, were freighted almost to redundancy with citations from every source of authority. His vast store of legal erudition was acquired by incessant study and digested by a mind naturally of the first order. In the forum his masterly logic and cogent reasoning, unaided by imagery or elegance of rhetoric, were almost unanswerable. During his life time it was said of him that as a member of the Democratic party he stood alone in Alabama for greatness of conception in all that related to the political system. At first he was opposed to secession but later the interests of the Confederacy had no more staunch champion than Judge Campbell. Married: in 1830 to Miss Goldthwaite, sister of Judge Henry Goldthwaite of Mobile and Judge George Goldthwaite of Montgomery. Last residence: Baltimore, Md.

CAMPBELL, JOHN FRANKLIN, bookkeeper and legislator, was born July 15, 1878, at Chulafinnee, Cleburne County; son of William Jefferson and Sarah Jane (Ramsey) Campbell, the former a Baptist minister, native of Oxford, Calhoun County, where he resided until his removal, after the War of Secession, to Cleburne County, and in 1896-97 and 1898-99, represented that county in the legislature; grandson of Henry Jefferson and Elizabeth (McCall) Campbell, born in South Carolina, later residents of Alabama, the former a soldier in the Creek War of 1837, and of William Jefferson and Harriet (McDaniel) Ramsey, natives of Carroll County, Ga., removed to Alabama in 1857, the former a Confederate soldier, killed in the battle of Chickamauga, September 20, 1863. Mr. Campbell was educated in the common schools of Cleburne County. He is a bookkeeper; and in 1909-1910 served as city clerk and treasurer of Heflin. On September 1, 1913, he was appointed postmaster at Heflin. He represented Cleburne County in the legislature of 1915. He is a Democrat; a Mason; and an Odd Fellow. He is unmarried. Residence: Heflin.

CAMPBELL, WILLIAM P., banker, was born December 2, 1842, in County Donegal, Ireland. He emigrated to America in 1851 with his parents, sisters and brothers, locating near Franklin, Tenn., where he was educated; removed to Nashville, Tenn., at the age of sixteen; and located in Florence at the age of eighteen. September 1, 1862, he entered the Confederate service as a private in Co. F, 4th Alabama cavalry, and served until the close of the war. In April, 1865, he was captured at Selma by Wilson's cavalry, escaped, rejoined his command and surrendered at Wheeler's Station. He returned to Florence; clerked for six years; in 1872, engaged in the dry goods business for himself, and, in 1880, organized the banking house of W. P. Campbell & co. He is also interested in agriculture and manufacturing. He is a Presbyterian and a member of the Legion of Honor. Married: (1) in 1871, to Sarah Andrews, of Florence; (2) January 20, 1886, to Mary, daughter of Capt. Alexander D. and Ann Eliza (Sloss) Coffee (q. v.). Children: by first wife, 1. Sarah. Residence: Florence.

CAMPBELL, W. W., president Alabama State convention, 1912. Residence: Tuskegee.

CAMPER, MONCURE WOODSON, publisher and editor, was born August 18, 1847, in Fincastle, Botetourt County, Va.; son of Henry Wax and Elizabeth (Bosseman) Camper, who made their home in Fincastle, as did also his paternal grandparents, William and Christine (Wax) Camper. His maternal grandfather, Frederick Bosseman, was a resident of Augusta County, Va. The Camper family is of German descent, Moncure W. Camper being a lineal descendant of Herman Camper (or Kemper), who with his two brothers, John and William, came to Virginia early in the 17th century with Count Falkenburg, from the Rhine, where they were soldiers, the name signifying knight or soldier. In the family have been an unusually large number of clergymen, including Bishop Andrew Kemper of Pennsylvania. James L. Kemper was a brigadier general in the C. S. Army, Pickett's Division, and later was governor of Virginia. Moncure W. Camper attended the schools of his native town and was a student at the Fincastle Academy, when he enlisted in the C. S. Army in May, 1864, as second lieutenant in the home guards, but his company was shortly afterward transferred to Second Battalion Virginia Reserves, and he later resigned to become a member of Co. D, 11th Regiment Virginia infantry, remaining in the service until the close of the war. He read law to some extent, but his life has mainly been devoted to newspaper work, becoming editor of the Fincastle Herald in 1867. Since 1890 he has edited and published the Florence Times at Florence, Ala. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, serving as steward in Virginia and also at Florence and superintendent of the Sunday school at Florence twelve years. He served one term as master of Friendship lodge, No. 66, F. & A. M., of Florence; and as a Democrat served as chairman of the Democratic county convention of Botetourt County, Va.; was mayor of Fincastle two terms; member of Virginia legislature in 1883-4; elected to the constitutional convention in Lauderdale County, Ala., in 1898, which was not held, and declined to serve when the convention was subsequently called. Married: February 4, 1879, in First Presbyterian church, New Orleans, Rev. Dr. B. M. Palmer officiating, to Minnie Browne, daughter of J. J. and Sarah Jane (Robinson) Browne, of New Orleans, La. Mr. Browne, a cotton merchant of that city, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and received his education at Trinity College in that city. He was a member of a titled Irish family. Mrs. Browne was a daughter of Daniel Robinson of Mobile, Ala., and was related to Gov. Murphy, one of the early governors of this state. Children: 1. Julia Hartwell, b. in New Orleans, educated at the Florence Synodical Female College, m. Edward Asbury O'Neal (q. v.); and 2. Ambrose Brown, b. in Fincastle, Va., educated at the University of Alabama and Vanderbilt University, now in the newspaper business. Residence: Florence, Ala.

CANDEE, MARSHALL GREENE, planter, was born April 24, 1837, at Belvidere, Warren County, N. J., and died September 6, 1904, at Conde; son of Rev. Dr. Isaac Newton and Elizabeth (Greene) Candee, the former a native of Oxford, New Haven County, Conn.; pastor of the Belvidere, N. J., Presbyterian church, to which he was called following graduation from the Princeton theological seminary, 1823, Greek and Hebrew scholar of some note, member of the Phi Beta Kappa society; grandson of Nehemiah and Content (Woodruff) Candee, of Oxford, Conn., and of Ephraim and Sarah (Armstrong) Greene, of Belvidere; great-grandson of Caleb and Lois (Mailory) Candee, and of Ephraim and Elizabeth (Kerr) Greene, the latter was descended from Walter Kerr who suffered religious persecution in Scotland; great-great-grandson of Samuel and Abigail (Pineon) Candee, and of Nathaniel Greene, who was married in England and came to America in the early colonial period; great-great-great-grandson of Zacheus and Rebecca (Bristow) Candee, the former descended from Henri de Conde', persecuted for his religion in France, escaped to Hainaut and thence to Scotland. The Greenes were English Quakers. Marshall Greene Candee was educated in the private and public schools of his native town, and after his fourteenth year in the Waveland academy, Indiana, and at Knox's college, Galesburg, Ill. In stature six feet six inches tall, he was a man of striking appearance and unquestioned courage; member of Co. F, 114th Illinois infantry, from August 11, 1862, to July 19, 1865, with the rank of corporal. He was sergeant-at-arms in the Alabama legislature, 1867-68; appointed adjutant-general November 30, 1872. He bought a plantation in Clarke and Monroe Counties, and after the War of Secession, resided upon it until his death. This property passed to his nephew, George Candee Colton. He was a Republican, Presbyterian; and Mason. Last residence: Conde.

CANDIDUS, PHILIP C., druggist, was born June 17, 1831, in Germany; son of Frederick Candidus, of royal blood, who served as inspector of forests in that country. Philip C. Candidus received his education in Germany and when seventeen years of age came to America, landing in New York city. He spent five years in Philadelphia as a drug clerk and as a student in the College of Pharmacy; in 1853 went to Marietta, Ga., where he clerked in a drug store for a year and a half; and then removed to Aberdeen, Miss., where he continued clerking from 1854 to 1858; then engaged in the drug business as a member of the firm of Candidus & Jones until 1864. In 1861, however, he entered the C. S. Army as purveyor of medical supplies to the Mississippi troops, and held that contract until 1864, when he became orderly sergeant in a Mississippi regiment. At the close of the war he resumed the drug business in Aberdeen, where he remained until his removal to Mobile, Ala., in 1868, becoming one of the leading druggists of that city. He served as president of the State Board of Pharmacy; was also president of the Alabama Pharmaceutical Association; president of the American Pharmaceutical Association; and lectured on pharmacy in the Medical College of Alabama. He held the highest offices in Howard Lodge, F. & A. M., and the Knights Templar Commandery, to which he belonged; and was also a member of the Knights of Honor and Knights and Ladies of Honor. He belonged to the Protestant Methodist church and was a Democrat. Married: (1) December 24, 1856, to Mattie Williams, who died December 4, 1884; and (2) in October, 1888, to Arvalla Culton. Residence: Mobile.

CANNON, T. L., newspaper man, originally residing at Sheffield.

CANNON, WILLIAM MORROW, merchant and legislator, was born March 15, 1865, at New Lexington, Tuscaloosa County; son of Thomas Sidney and Mary Ellen (Morrow) Cannon, the former a Confederate soldier; grandson of Isaac and Sarah (Barbee) Cannon, of Tuscaloosa County, and of James Morton and Catherine White (Paden) Morrow of Fayette County. His paternal grandfather and both grandmothers were from South Carolina, the maternal grandfather came from North Carolina to Fayette County, where he became sheriff. He was educated in the common schools of Fayette County. He has been a farmer, but is now engaged in the mercantile business. From 1901-1903 he was a member of the board of education of Fayette County. He represented that county in the legislature of 1907. He is a Democrat; and a Mason. Married: November 29, 1892, to Mary Jane, daughter of Lewis Porter and Harriet (Moore) Humber, of Fayette. Children: 1. William Louis; 2. Whitman Morrow. Residence: Fayette.

CANSLER, ADOLPHUS PHILIP, major, 1st Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was a native of Mississippi.

CANTELOU, LAMAR, merchant, was born December 23, 1839, in Tolbert County, Ga., and died October 29, 1910, at Wetumpka; son of Louis Crymes and Mary E. (Rainsford) Cantelou (q. v.). He was educated in the neighborhood schools of his native county, and later received instruction in the schools of Montgomery. He attended college at Tuskegee, and at Marietta, Ga. During his early manhood he assisted in the management of his father's plantation near Montgomery, but after the close of the War of Secession he began to merchandise in Wetumpka, and continued in that business until his retirement some years prior to his death. His sons were connected with the firm during the later years of his activities and secured his interests upon his retirement. He enlisted in the Confederate Army at Montgomery, April 9, 1861, as a private in Co. E, Independent rifles, Sixth Alabama regular infantry, and was honorably discharged from the service on account of sickness, in 1862. He was a Presbyterian; and a Mason. Married: September 9, 1863, at Wetumpka, to Mary G., daughter of Archibald G. and Flora (Graham) Campbell (q. v.). Children: 1. Louis C., m. Lola Cain, Wetumpka; 2. William Frazer, m. (1) Lula Matthews, (2) Jennie Watt, Butler, Okla.; 3. Flora E., m. Adolph W. LeBron, d., Montgomery; 4. Mary Cantelou, m. James M. Fitzpatrick, Wetumpka; 5. Archibald L. m., Marion Black, Montgomery. Last residence: Wetumpka.

CANTELOU, LOUIS CRYMES, planter, a native of Virginia, died January 17, 1856, on his plantation ten miles west of Montgomery; son of Louis and Alice (Crymes) Cantelou, the former a native of Paris, France, who, as captain of a Grenadier company accompanied Count Rochambeau to America, landed at Rhode Island and joined the Continental troops, receiving eight bayonet wounds and other injuries from bursting shells fired by the enemy. After the close of hostilities he remained in Virginia; grandson of George Crymes of Virginia, and great-grandson of Baron Crymes, a native of Pinkham, Wales, who inherited his title, and was made a Knight of the Garter, being by profession a surgeon, emigrated to America soon after its first settlement by the English, and located in King and Queen County, Va., on York river. His son, George, inherited his title and estate in England, but upon espousing the side of the colonies during the Revolution, both were confiscated by the crown. He was also a surgeon. He left a large family of daughters, and three sons, the former marrying as follows: Barbour, Page, Pendleton, Poindexter, Stokes, Lester and Cantelou. Louis Cantelou, jr., was educated in Virginia, and in Augusta, Ga. He became a cotton merchant in the latter city and removed from there to Montgomery County, about 1842. Married: (1) Alice Lester; (2) February 28, 1833, to Mary, daughter of Thomas and Tabitha (Huff) Rainsford, who lived at Edgefield, S. C., of English parentage. Children, by the first marriage: 1. Peter; 2. Eliza; by the second marriage: 3. Martha; 4. Rainsford, m. Mary E. Bettis; 5. Lamar, (q. v.) m. Mary G. Campbell, Wetumpka; 6. Esther; 7. John, m. Sallie Adams, Cantelou's Hill, Montgomery County; 8. Tabitha Emily, m. James M. Renfro; 9. Alice; 10. Edwin. Last residence: Cantelou's Hill, Montgomery County.

CANTEY, JAMES, lawyer, soldier, planter, brigadier-general, C. S. Army; was born December 30, 1818, at Camden, Kershaw County, S. C., and died June 30, 1874, at Fort Mitchell, Russell County; son of John and Emma Susanna (Richardson) Cantey, of Camden, the former a planter, brigade major in the War of 1812, and major of the regiment organized to resist the expected invasion of South Carolina, during the nullification disturbance in 1832; grandson of James and Martha (Whitaker) Cantey, of Camden, S. C., the former a lieutenant under Col. Richardson in the Revolutionary War; and of John Peter and Florida (Peyre) Richardson, of Clarendon County, S. C.; great-grandson of James Cantey, a Whig captain in the Revolutionary army, and of James Whitaker, who removed from Virginia about 1772, to Camden, S. C.; great-great-grandson of John and Mary (McGirtt) Cantey, who came to Camden in 1752, from Goose Creek, near Charleston; great-great-great-grandson of William Cantey, and of James McGirtt, lieutenant colonel in Richard Richardson's regiment of provincial militia; great-great-great-great-grandson of Tige Cantey, one of the first settlers of South Carolina. General Cantey received his primary education at Mr. Hatfield's school in Camden, and graduated from the South Carolina college, 1833. He studied law under Henry Sanssure, in Charleston, and was admitted to the practice by the legal board of South Carolina. He practiced law in Camden until the opening of the Mexican War, having served two terms in the legislature from his district. He was mustered into the service, at Charleston, December 2, 1846, as second lieutenant in Captain Moffatt's company, Palmetto regiment, South Carolina volunteers, for the Mexican War. At the time of election of officers for the regiment, he was chosen as its colonel, but resigned in favor of a superior officer, Capt. Pierce M. Butler, who had the command. He was wounded once in Mexico, and at the battle before the City of Mexico, was promoted captain, while serving as adjutant of the regiment. He was mustered out of the service June 30, 1848, at Mobile, as captain of Co. C, of the Palmetto regiment. He settled in Russell County, in 1849, as a planter. At the outbreak of the war in 1861, on the organization of the 15th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, Captain Cantey was elected its colonel. He commanded Trimble's brigade in Gen. Stonewall Jackson's valley campaign, and won the battle of Cross Keys. He was complimented by General Jackson and by Gen. Richard Taylor, and was promoted to a brigadier generalship. After the battle of Gaines' Mill, he was transferred west and stationed at Mobile, where he organized the brigade consisting of the 17th, 21st and 29th Alabama regiments, together with the 37th Mississippi regiment. His commission as brigadier general was dated January 8, 1863. His next command was his own brigade, Sears' Mississippi brigade, and Reynolds' Arkansas brigade. During the winter of 1864, the 1st and 26th Alabama regiments were added to his brigade, and the 21st Alabama regiment was transferred. In 1865, he was in command of a division at Pollard during part of the time, but his health did not permit him being present during the entire period and Major-General E. C. Walthall was put in immediate command of the division. He surrendered with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, at Durham Station, N. C., April 26, 1865; returned to Russell County, and lived on his plantation until his death. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and an Episcopalian. Married: April 14, 1858, at Columbus, Ga., to Martha Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Crowell and Mary (Hunter) Benton, of Russell County. Children: 1. John, m. Louise Drake; 2. Samuel Benton, m. Itelse M. Brooks; 3. Mary M., m. James Autrey Alexander. Last residence: Fort Mitchell.

CANTEY, SAMUEL BENTON, lawyer, graduate of the Alabama polytechnic institute, with the B. E. degree, 1880. Residence: Fort Worth, Texas.

CAPERS, THOMAS H., Methodist minister, and bishop, pastor of the Court Street church, Montgomery, 1840.

JUDGE SAMUEL B. BROWNE

CAPPS, WILLIAM JEFFERSON, planter and legislator, was born January 29, 1870, near Abbeville, Henry County; son of Martin Van Buren and Sarah (Hicks) Capps, the former was a member of Co. E, 25th Georgia infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and a member of the house of representatives of 1898-99, from Henry County; grandson of Hamilton and Sarah Capps, and of Charles and Martha Ann Hicks. He was educated in the schools of Abbeville, at Blackfoot, Idaho, and attended the South East agricultural school at Abbeville. He was once justice of the peace; and was on November 8, 1910, elected to the house of representatives from Henry County serving until 1915. He is a Democrat; Baptist; Mason; and a Woodman of the World. Married: January 21, 1904, near Clopton, to Hettie, daughter of James M. and Julia (Lewis) Davis of Henry County. Children: 1. William; 2. Lottie; 3. Oscar; 4. Girtha; 5. Vandiver; 6. Lillian. Residence: Abbeville.

CARD, HUGH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 84, resided in Randolph County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CARDON, HUGH WALKER, lawyer, was born December 11, 1849, at Monsburgh, Hawkins County, Tenn., and died June 9, 1903, at Centre; son of C. C. and Rebecca (Kennen) Cardon, who lived at Rogersville, Tenn., and at Van Buren. He received his early education in the common country schools in the neighborhood, until he was prepared for the junior year at college. He attended Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn.; studied law; and was admitted to the bar. He established himself in law practice in Cherokee County, 1873. He represented Cherokee County in the lower house of the Alabama legislature, 1877-1878; and was elected to represent that county in the state constitutional convention of 1901. He was a Democrat, and an old school Presbyterian. Married: October 15, 1876, near Centre, Lula McSpadden, daughter of Chancellor S. K. McSpadden (q. v.). Last residence: Centre.

CARGILL, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, age not given, a resident of Jackson County; private of Cavalry N. C. Militia; enrolled on January 6, 1834; under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $100; sums received to date of publication of list, $300.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Marshall County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CARLETON, WILLIAM GEORGE, physician, was born September 14, 1858, at Cusseta, Chambers County; son of William James Henry and Ava Augusta (George) Carleton, the former born at Forsyth, Monroe County, Ga., lived much of his life at Cusseta, and removed in 1900, to Walnut Hill, was mail carrier and postmaster during the early part of the War of Secession, later enlisted in Captain Meadow's company, afterwards Captain Wallace's company, being stationed first at Pollard and later on the Gulf coast; grandson of Isaac Henry and Mary (Head) Carleton, and of Banks and Martha (Autrey) George, of Decatur, Ga. He was educated at home by his parents, and in the common and high schools of Tuskegee; graduated from the medical department of Vanderbilt university, 1882; entered on practice at Fredonia; located in 1883 at Camp Hill where he resides, practicing medicine and farming. He represented Tallapoosa County in the house, 1915. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; Royal Arch Mason; and Knight of Pythias. Married: June 20, 1881, at Lafayette, to Lula A., daughter of I. T. and Mary Jane (Bolton) Talbot, of that place. Children: 1. Claudia, m. Dr. C. C. Fargason; 2. Mary Ava, m. G. O. Winter; 3. Ruth, m. J. Howard Owen; 4. Kathleen. Residence: Camp Hill.

CARLISLE, POMPEY WORTHY, merchant and legislator, was born June 18, 1874, at Banks, Pike County; son of Francis Jason and Sarah Ann (Wood) Carlisle, the former served in Capt. Bailey M. Talbot's company, 57th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was educated in the common schools of Bullock County. He was reared on the farm, and at majority entered the mercantile business at Union Springs, as a member of Carlisle brothers. In 1911 he was appointed treasurer of Bullock County to fill the unexpired term of G. W. Champion, deceased, and served in that office for seventeen months. He represented Bullock County in the legislature of 1915. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Red Man; an Odd Fellow; and a Woodman of the World. Married: October 14, 1896, at Milo, Pike County, to Emily Ila, daughter of Thomas Willis and Mary Jane (Thadeus) Law, residents of that place. Residence: Union Springs.

CARLTON, JAMES THOMAS, saw mill owner and State senator, was born September 8, 1882, at Clifton, Wilcox County; son of Nathaniel Green and Beulah Thomas (Collier) Carlton, both of Marengo County; grandson of Nathaniel and Rebecca Jane Carlton, of Linden, and of Thomas Wiley and Mary Lucy Collier of Hampden. He was educated in the rural schools of Alabama, and is engaged in the saw mill business; was mayor of Thomaston, 1914-1916; and state senator, from the twentieth district, 1919. He is a Democrat, a Mason; and a Shriner. Married: February 10, 1904, at Lamison, to Corinne Elizabeth, daughter of William Jerry and Drucilla (Lambert) Dunaway, of that place. Children: 1. Marie Corinne; 2. Ogden Dunnaway. Residence: Thomaston.

CARMICHAEL, ARCHIBALD HILL, lawyer, member of the Constitutional convention 1901, speaker of the house of representatives, and State senator; was born June 17, 1864, at Sylvan Grove, Dale County; son of Jesse M. and Amanda J. (Smith) Carmichael (q. v.). He received his early education in the common schools of Dale County and attended the University of Alabama from which he graduated in 1886, with the degrees of A. B. and LL. B. He was solicitor of the district court of Colbert and Lauderdale Counties; solicitor of the 11th judicial circuit, 1894-98; member of the constitutional convention, 1901; member legislature, 1907-15; being elected speaker to succeed Hon. W. L. Martin, who had died during his term of office, March 4, 1907. During these years he was a strong advocate of prohibition and assisted in the firm establishment of that policy upon the statute books of the State. In 1919 he took his seat in the State senate and was made chairman of the education committee. He was also selected by the members of that body who were opposed to the Susan Anthony amendment to the constitution of the United States as floor leader on that side and successfully conducted a vigorous fight in behalf of the principles of State Rights. He is a Methodist; Mason; Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. Married: January 21, 1890, at Tuscumbia, to Annie, daughter of Thomas Herbert and Mary (East) Sugg. Children: 1. Jesse Malcolm; 2. Charles Elmore; 3. Archibald Hill; 4. Thomas Herbert. Residence: Tuscumbia.

CARMICHAEL, CHARLES DANIEL, lawyer, was born November 8, 1866, at Newton, Dale County, son of Jesse Malcolm and Amanda (Smith) Carmichael (q. v.); grandson of Mrs. Margaret Smith who lived near Columbus, Ga.; great-grandson of Johnson Loyless, a native of Georgia. He received his early education in his native county and graduated with honor in 1888, with the degree of A. B. at the University of Alabama; read law and was admitted to practice July, 1889. He was solicitor of Dale County prior to 1898; mayor of Geneva 1889-1900; solicitor of Geneva County for eight years; chairman Democratic executive committee, Geneva County, since 1898. He is a Methodist and a Mason. Married: December 24, 1889, at Ozark, to Fannie Lillie, daughter of Dr. O. B. and Amanda Bowen. Children: 1. Sibert Bowen; 2. Albert A.; 3. Julius Hood; 4. Addie Amanda; 5. Charles Archibald; 6. Angus Malcolm, and 7. Jesse Gordon, twins. Residence: Geneva.

CARMICHAEL, JESSE MALCOM, State auditor, judge third judicial district, lawyer and planter, was born October 29, 1837, in Macon County, Ga., and died October 26, 1908, in Ozark; son of Daniel and Martha A. (Coleman) Carmichael, the former removed with his parents to Georgia and later, when a man of family, he located at Sylvan Grove, Dale County, where he engaged in farming, and was elected in 1857, probate judge of that county, being successively re-elected three times, the latter a native of South Carolina; grandson of Malcom and Nancy (McDuffie) Carmichael, the former a soldier in the War of 1812, whose father immigrated to Robeson County, N. C., just prior to the Revolutionary War, being one of a Scotch colony who sought opportunity in the new world, and at the outbreak of hostilities took part in the struggle for freedom from the mother country, and of Jesse and Charlotte (Jordan) Coleman, of Abbeville District, S. C., who early removed to Pickens County. Judge Carmichael came to Alabama with his parents when five years of age and had the limited educational advantages afforded in a pioneer country. He enlisted in Co. E., 15th Alabama infantry regiment and was mustered into the service of the C. S. Army, April 1861, James C. Canty, colonel. Among the famous battles in which he fought was the bloody field of Antietam, September 17, 1862, where he was so badly wounded it was found necessary to amputate his hand. Disabled for further military service he returned home and lent his protection to the community, then over-run with law-breakers, as one of the home guards. He engaged in farming during this period and for a few years following, but having ambition to become a lawyer he entered the office of Judge A. L. Milligan to prepare himself for that profession. In March, 1866, he entered upon the practice at Newton in partnership with W. D. Wood. He was elected representative in the general assembly in 1870, and State senator, 1872; appointed probate judge of Dale County 1878; elected for the second district, 1884; elected judge of the third circuit, 1886. In 1901 he was appointed president of the board of convict inspectors and became a trustee of the Alabama polytechnic institute. He accumulated a comfortable estate, including a large acreage of fertile land. He was at one time editor of the "Southern Star," published at Ozark. Married: (1) to Amanda J., daughter of Wesley and Marguerite (Lollers) Smith, of Barbour County; (2) to Mary, sister of his first wife; (3) to Emma, daughter of W. F. and Elizabeth (Donaldson) Beard, natives respectively of Jones County, Ga., and Barnwell District, S. C. Children: by first wife, 1. Lillie, m. W. H. Simons; 2. Archibald Hill, m. Annie sugg (q. v.); 3. Charles D. (q. v.) m. Fannie Bowen; 4. Pauline, m. A. T. Barters; by second wife, 5. Malcom (q. v.) and three other children who died young. Last residence: Ozark.

CARMICHAEL, JOHN COLEMAN, lawyer, was born July 2, 1861, in Orrville, Ala.; son of Dugald and Caroline (Coleman) Carmichael, the former born in Marion District, S. C., and the latter in La Grange Ga. His paternal grandfather was Dugald Carmichael I, a native of Scotland, who after mastering shipcraft at Glasgow, came to America and located on Pee Dee River in South Carolina, where he owned and operated a shipyard until his death, about 1820. Dugald Carmichael II removed from South Carolina to Russell County, Ala., about 1830, and after farming for a time entered the ministry, joining the Alabama conference of the Methodist Episcopal church; later was presiding elder of the Cahaba district, including a great area in Alabama and a part of Florida and Mississippi. He died in Orville in 1875, and his wife died in 1878. She was a daughter of John and Caroline (Ware) Coleman, the former a native of Georgia and of Welsh extraction; a son of John Coleman, a native of Wales, who came to America before the Revolution and spent the remainder of his life in Georgia. John Coleman II removed from La Grange to Columbus, Ga., where he engaged in contracting until his death, about 1832. He was captain of a company of state militia and was in command of troops when shot and killed by Cherokee Indians when they raided that part of the state.

Judge Carmichael attended the schools of Orrville and the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Auburn. He engaged in teaching in 1883; began reading law in 1884 at Phoenix City and edited the Alabama Free Press; in 1885 continued his studies in the office of Gov. William J. Samford at Opelika; was admitted to the bar in 1886; the same year began practice at Greenville; in 1888 removed to Gadsden; but in the fall of the same year located in Birmingham, becoming a member of the firm of Carmichael & Thach. In 1898 he was elected chancellor of the northwestern division of Alabama; was elector for the state at large on the national Democratic ticket in 1892; is a member of the Methodist church; the Knights of Honor; and the Knights of Pythias. Married: October 19, 1898, to Mrs. Jessie Turner, daughter of Major J. G. W. and Agnes Leftwich, the former a native of Virginia, the latter of Ohio. Residence: Birmingham, Ala.

CARMICHAEL, JOHN DUNCAN, farmer, was born December 18, 1845, at Brownsville; son of Daniel and Margaret (Monroe) Carmichael; grandson of John Carmichael, who resided at Madison, Fla., and of Duncan Monroe of Talladega County. He is of Scotch and Welsh ancestry. He was educated in the common schools; and he is a farmer. He served in Co. B, 62nd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He represented Clay County in the legislatures of 1882-83, 1900-01, and in 1907; was justice of the peace for twelve years; and County commissioner, 1896-1900. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: February 2, 1870, to Lucy Olivet, daughter of Clinton A. and Mary (Clowers) Williams, of Clay County. Residence: Goodwater.

CARMICHAEL, MALCOM SMITH, lawyer, teacher, editor, member constitutional convention, legislator, U. S. referee in bankruptcy, was born September 11, 1877, at Ozark, Dale County; son of Jesse Malcom and Mary (Smith) Carmichael (q. v.); half-brother of Archibald H. (q. v.) and Charles Carmichael of Geneva County, their mothers, the Misses Smith, being sisters. He received his education in the private schools in Montgomery, and the common schools of Dale County; graduated A. B., 1896, at the Southern university, Greensboro. He taught school in Escambia County, 1896-97, and was co-founder, with A. R. Powell, of the "Elba Clipper," during the latter year, remaining with that newspaper until 1911, during part of which time he was editor. He read law privately and in 1910, was admitted to the bar and became a member of the firm, Riley and Carmichael; was town councilman and member of the Elba school board, 1900-01, 1903-05; 1908-10; mayor of Elba, 1910-12; delegate from Coffee County to the constitutional convention of 1901, being the youngest member of that body; register in chancery for Coffee County, 1904-10. He volunteered for service in the Spanish-American war, and was a member of Co. A. (Montgomery Greys) 2nd Alabama Volunteers, and was appointed aide on the staff of Gen. W. C. Oates, but owing to the cessation of hostilities never assumed that duty. He is a Democrat, and was a member of the Coffee County executive committee, from 1902 to date, being chairman 1902-04; member of the State legislature, 1915, and resigned that office to accept the position of U. S. referee in bankruptcy at Montgomery, which place he still fills. He is a Methodist; Mason; Knight Templar; Woodman of the World; Modern Woodman; and Knight of Pythias. Married: September 20, 1900, Sallie, daughter of Dr. William Penn and Sallie (Simmons) Boyd; granddaughter of Warren W., and Sallie (Fitzpatrick) Simmons of Bullock County, the former a member of the well known Georgia and Carolina family of that name and brother of John B. Simmons, founder of Elba, and of Dr. — Boyd of Ramer, Montgomery County. Children: 1. Pauline; 2. Lina Lollis; 3. Warren. Residence: Elba and Montgomery.

CARNATHAN, GEORGE HAYS, lawyer and farmer, was born July 9, 1858, near Butler, Choctaw County; son of William George and Theresa E. (Mayberry) Carnathan, the former who was born near Eutaw, in Greene County, and lived near Butler, volunteered in Co. F, Fortieth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of George Hays and Penelope (Coleman) Carnathan, who lived near Eutaw, Greene County, the former who came from Ireland, and was a nephew of George Hays who settled in Greene County, and of Jacob and Mary (Coleman) Mayberry, who were of German descent, and lived in Centerville, Bibb County, the former of whom was a veteran of the Black Hawk War. He received his early education at Mt. Sterling, Choctaw County, and was graduated from the law department of the University of Alabama, LL. B., 1878. He engaged in the practice of law and in farming in Butler, in 1878; served as solicitor of Choctaw County, 1880-1886; as general administrator of that county, 1890-1904; and was a delegate to the constitutional convention in 1901. He is a Mason; a Woodman of the World; and a Democrat. Married: November 16, 1880, at Butler, to Hester Anna Brewster, daughter of James Washington and Margarette Speir (Needham) Brewster, who lived near Brewster, the former a native of Florida, the latter of Greene County; granddaughter of James Madison and Mary Jane (Smith) Brewster, who were of English ancestry, and of Benjamin Franklin and Susan (Carr) Needham, natives, respectively, of Tennessee and North Carolina, the latter a relative of the Fosters and Mentors of Tuscaloosa County. Children: 1. Dr. William George, m. Mary Harriet Craig of Macon, Miss., a relative of the Craigs of Perry and Dallas Counties, Meehan Junction, Miss.; 2. Benjamin Gilmer, pharmacist, Mobile; 3. Margarette Amelia, school teacher, Butler; 4. Helen Brewster, m. Frank E. White, Womack Hill; 5. Wilkes Coleman, Butler; 6. Alla Velma, Butler. Residence: Butler.

CARNLEY, JEFFERSON ALBERT, lawyer, was born December 13, 1873, in Coffee County; son of John Oliver and Susie Anna (Hart) Carnley, the former a native of Pike County, now a farmer in Covington County; grandson of William Riley Carnley, of Escambia County, and of William and Sarah Ann (Albritton) Hart, the former a farmer of Dale County. His maternal ancestors are Scotch, his great-great-grandparents of the name of Oliver, emigrating from Scotland to North Carolina, and branches later locating in Georgia. The Albrittons came from Georgia to Alabama and located in Dale County, early in the history of the state. The Carnleys are of Dutch descent. Mr. Carnley received his education in the country schools and in the Brantly and Elba high schools. He began teaching in country schools in 1896; was elected superintendent of education of Coffee County in 1898; was re-elected in 1900; taught in Enterprise and Elba high schools, 1898-1902; was graduated from the law department of the University of Alabama, with honors, 1904; began practice of law, June 29, 1904, at Enterprise and Elba; and has continuously resided in Coffee County. Since February, 1911, he has been editor of the Elba "Clipper." He was elected to the State legislature as a representative of Coffee County, August 3, 1915, winning his seat on a contest; and was again elected to the lower house in 1919. He is a Democrat; has served as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Coffee County; and was a delegate to the national convention at Baltimore in 1912. He is a Baptist; a Master Mason and a Royal Arch Mason; a Knight of Pythias; and a Woodman of the World. Married: June 19, 1901, at Elba, to Mary Olive, daughter of Rev. S. O. Y. and Josephine Ray. Residence: Elba.

CAROTHERS, WILLIAM WASHINGTON, Presbyterian minister, was born January 17, 1819, in Union County, S. C., and died in April, 1886, at Summerfield, Ala.; son of John and Mary (Hope) Carothers, residents of Union County, S. C. The father represented his district in the South Carolina legislature for two terms between 1830 and 1840. William W. Carothers pursued an academic course at Yorkville, S. C., and taught school for a few years; later attended college at Washington, Tenn.; and studied theology under the direction of Rev. R. Y. Russell. He was ordained to the full work of the Presbyterian ministry in October, 1844; was pastor of Bethshiloh church in York County, S. C., until 1870, in which year he took charge of Fairview church near Marion, Ala.; and was pastor of Valley Creek church near Selma from 1877 until his death. During the War of Secession he was chaplain of the Seventeenth South Carolina regiment. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. Married: in December, 1843, to Mary Sadler, daughter of Minor and Sarah (Litle) Sadler, of Yorkville, S. C. Children: 1. John Minor, m. Margaret I. Wilson; 2. William Meek, m. Phoebe Abraham; 3. Mary Hope, m. Rev. A. W. Wilson; 4. Robert R., m. Dannie McWilliams; 5. Richard Sadler, m. Emma Jones; 6. Milton W., m. Stella Hatch, and all live in or near Selma, Ala.; 7. James L., d.; Mary Margaret, d.; and Lilla, d. Last residence: Summerfield, Ala.

CARR, ARCHIBALD FAIRLY, Presbyterian minister, was born August 29, 1868, near Mt. Olive in Covington County, Miss.; son of Lafayette and Jane (Fairly) Carr, who at various times lived in Lowndes, Smith, Covington and Simpson Counties, Miss. The father was born at Snow Hill, N. C., and was a son of Charles and Rhoda (Holliday) Carr, of Snow Hill. Rev. Archibald F. Carr acquired his early education in the public schools of Covington County, Miss., pursuing his studies at Mt. Carmel and Mt. Olive under Rev. Granville Theodore Story and Rev. Edward J. Currie. Later he attended the Southwestern Presbyterian University at Clarksville, Tenn., winning his A. B. degree in 1894; his A. M. degree in 1896; and also the essayist and Greek medals. He was assistant pastor of the Franklin Street Presbyterian church, Baltimore, Md., from March, 1896, to March, 1898; pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, St. Louis, Mo., from March, 1898, to March, 1901; and the Government Street Presbyterian church of Mobile, Ala., from November, 1901, to the present. He is a Knight Templar Mason. Married: May 27, 1908, in Clarksville, Tenn., to Louise Gordon Deaderick, daughter of Thomas Oakly and Josephine (Heiskel) Deaderick, of Clarksville. Children: Archibald Fairly Carr, Jr., b. June 16, 1909. Residence: Mobile, Ala.

CARR, THOMAS H., manufacturer of crackers and candy; mayor of Montgomery, 1903-04. Deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

CARROL, DEMPSEY, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 82; and a resident of Wilcox County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on July 25, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. The Census of Pensions, 1841, p. 149, shows Dempsey Carroll, aged 78, residing in Wilcox County, probably the same person, with mistake in notation of age.

CARROLL, JAMES G., public official, was born in North Carolina and died suddenly at Montgomery, Ala., in 1854. He came to Alabama at an early day and settled in Madison County, which he represented one year in the state legislature. He was quite a business man and during a portion of the time that he resided in Tuscaloosa he was a partner in a commission house. As an auctioneer he was very popular, attracting large crowds by his wit, and he made his snuff-box perform a very signal part during the pauses between bids, gracefully tendering his box to those around him. In 1831 he was first elected adjutant and inspector general of the state for a term of four years and was reelected in 1835 and 1839; was defeated in 1843 but reelected in 1847; and defeated in 1851. As a master of ceremonies on public occasions, such as the inauguration of a governor and as grand marshal of the day, he acted well his part. He could form processions with skillful address, securing order by a discipline peculiarly his own and pleasing all by his gentle commands. Never married. Last residence: Montgomery.

CARROLL, MAJOR, farmer, was born April 25, 1851, near Ozark, Dale County; son of James and Penny Elizabeth (Kennedy) Carroll, the former a native of Johnston County, N. C., who moved to Dale County in 1837, and served in the Indian War; grandson of James and Rhodie (Stevenson) Carroll, of Johnston County, N. C., the former who went from Scotland to Ireland, and later to America, changing his name from McCarroll to Carroll, and became a planter and slave owner in Johnston County, N. C., and of Benjamin Kennedy of Lenora County, N. C.; great-grandson of Duncan McCarroll. Mr. Carroll was educated in the schools in and near Ozark. He has been a farmer since 1869, and is president of the M. O. Carroll Grocery Company. He was director of the Alabama Midland and Plant System of Railroads until they were sold to the Atlantic Coast Line; has served several times on the board of aldermen; and was elected to the house of representatives of Alabama in 1911. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; an Odd Fellow; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: January 11, 1872, near Echo, Dale County, to Sarah Elizabeth Branch, daughter of John W. and Emma (Hook) Branch, of Echo, the former a soldier in the Mexican War and in the War of Secession. Residence: Ozark.

CARSON, J. W., lawyer, living in 1913. Residence: Tuscaloosa.

CARSON, SHELBY CHADWICK, physician, was born in Greensboro, then Greene County but now Hale County, January 26, 1846; son of Thomas Kelley and Lucretia Adelaide (Chadwick) Carson; the former a native of Concord, Mecklenburg County, N. C.; and for fifty years a prominent merchant of Greensboro. He was liberal toward the Confederacy, was an officer in the Presbyterian church, and highly respected by all. His parents were Richard and Mary (Pickens) Carson, residents of Concord, N. C., and the latter a representative of a very prominent family of North and South Carolina and a relative of Gov. Israel Pickens of Alabama. Dr. Carson's maternal grandparents were John and Keren (Shortridge) Chadwick, of Catlettsburg, Ky. The former came from England and was a close friend of General Shelby, under whom he served in the Revolutionary war, hence the family name of Shelby. His wife belonged to the same family as Gov. Shortridge, and her sister married William Hampton of Kentucky, of the same family as Wade Hampton of South Carolina. The Doctor's grandfather, John Chadwick, died at the age of ninety years, leaving a large family and numerous descendants in Kentucky and West Virginia.

For five years Dr. Carson attended a select school for boys taught by Edward Sexton, from Massachusetts, before the War of Secession; later was a student at Southern University, Greensboro, two years; and the University of Alabama a portion of 1863-4, when he "deserted" to join the C. S. Army. He was given his A. M. degree by the latter university in 1898. He attended Louisville Medical College, 1873-4, and Tulane University, New Orleans, one term, graduating in 1891, with the M. D. degree. Since 1874 he has engaged in practice as a physician and surgeon; first at Springville, St. Clair County, Ala., 1874-8; at Burton Hill, Greene County, 1878-88; at Bessemer, Jefferson County, 1888-98; and since then at Greensboro. In 1902 he built and equipped a private sanitarium in Greensboro, which he has since conducted. He has been president of the Greene County Medical Society; member of board of censors of Jefferson County Medical Society; twice president of the Hale County Medical Society; member of the Alabama State Medical Association for thirty-five years; of the American Medical Association twenty-five years; Mississippi Valley Medical Association sixteen years; and American Association for Advancement of Science five years. He was a member of the school board of Bessemer about 1895; is a Democrat and an elder in the Presbyterian church. In 1864 he joined the Shockley Escort Company, which acted as escort for Gen. Gideon Pillow for some time, and later for Gen. Daniel Adams; and was paroled at Gainesville, Ala., in May, 1865. In a hand to hand engagement at Plantersville, Ala., he received a saber cut on the shoulder, at the same time Gen. Forrest was protecting himself against the sabers of several of the enemy, three of whom he shot with his pistols. Married: June 22, 1869, ten miles below Eutaw in Greene County, to Annie Burt Ridgway, daughter of Bradley Holley and Elizabeth Bell Ridgway, the latter a native of Columbia, S. C., and the former of Winchester, Ky., and a large planter in the canebrake and very prominent as an active, progressive citizen. Residence: Greensboro, Ala.

CARTER, BENJAMIN, lawyer, was born October 18, 1861, at Pulaski, Giles County, Tenn.; son of Benjamin Franklin and Cynthia (Rivers) Carter, the former a native of Pulaski, Tenn., who lived there his entire life, and served as a major in the commissary department, C. S. Army, War of Secession; grandson of Dr. Benjamin and Elizabeth (Lindsay) Carter, of Pulaski, Tenn., and of John H. and Myra (Holland) Rivers, who lived in Giles and Maury Counties, Tenn. He was educated at Giles college, Pulaski, Tenn., studied law while employed as a writer on a daily newspaper, and was admitted to the bar in 1888. He was an attorney in the office of the attorney general of the United States, 1896-1899, and is engaged in the practice of his profession in Washington, D. C. Residence: Washington, D. C.

CARTER, JOHN C., lieutenant colonel, 34th Alabama infantry regiment. Deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

CARTER, PASCHAL, teacher, was born September 17, 1807, in Benson, Vt.; son of Josiah and Charlotte (De Angelis) Carter, the former a sea captain and Revolutionary soldier, the latter of Italian descent. He graduated from Middlebury college, Vt., in 1829; became tutor in Columbian college, Washington, D. C.; principal, Keysville academy, N. Y.; agent, Philadelphia Baptist tract society; principal, Academy of South Reading, Mass.; in 1832, professor of mathematics and natural philosophy in Granville college, Ohio, and remained here for twenty-two years; professor, Granville college, Kentucky, 1854-56; 1856-58, in business; president, Central collegiate institute, Elmore County, 1858-61, when he again returned to the business world as a merchant at Centralia, Ohio.

CARTER, RICHARD W., major, 2nd Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army. Deceased. Last residence: Butler County.

CARUTHERS, HUGH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 77, and a resident of Madison County; private N. C. Continental Line; enrolled on December 31, 1832, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CARY, ARMSTEAD DUDLEY, public official, was born October 23, 1791, in Gloucester County, Va., and died December 7, 1879, in Brooklyn, Ala.; son of John and Eliza (Armstead) Cary. In 1799 the family removed to Clarke County, Ga., and settled near the famous educational seat at Athens, where he attended school, later becoming a student at Dr. Waddell's high school in Abbeville District, S. C. Having prepared for college he next entered the State University, where he was graduated in 1813, and then became principal of a school in Sumter District, S. C. In 1820 he removed to Claiborne, Monroe County, Ala., but a year later removed to Belleville and two years after that to Sparta, being engaged in teaching most of the time. In 1826 he was chosen clerk of the circuit court of Conecuh County, and filled that office uninterruptedly for almost a quarter of a century. In 1833 President Jackson appointed him receiver for the land office for the Sparta district and he held that position until 1850, when removed by President Taylor because of the fact that he was a Democrat. As the law prohibited the holding of two offices, he had a friend run for circuit clerk with the understanding with his constituency that the office was for Mr. Cary. After the establishment of the probate court in his county, in 1850, he became the first judge of probate and served for eleven years, and no man in Conecuh County ever left a fairer record as a public official than Judge Cary. He was a member of the Baptist church. Married: in 1818 in Sumter District, S. C., to Catherine Cantey. Children: 1. John Dudley, m. Elizabeth DuBose; 2. Olander, m. Mrs. Abigail Johnston; 3. Eliza, m. Willis Darby; 4. Sarah, m. Absolom B. Autrey; 5. Martha, d. when ten years old; 6. Laura, m. John M. Henderson, afterward probate judge of Conecuh County; 7. Mary Theodosia, m. Pinkney Putnam Powell; 8. Catherine Nora, m. William Beard; 9. Frances Elizabeth, d. at the age of twenty-two years. Last residence: Brooklyn, Ala.

CARY, CHARLES ALLEN, State veterinarian, was born November 27, 1861, at Millersburg, Ia.; son of William and Lucy Ellen (O'hara) Cary; grandson of Daniel Morris and Dorcas (Price) Cary. His maternal grandfather was a Scotch-Irish lawyer, whose wife was a McGowan. The Carys are of old English stock, seated in the Massachusetts Bay Colony as early as 1634. Dr. Cary was educated in the public schools of Millersburg, Iowa; graduated, B. S., in 1885, from the Iowa State college at Ames; graduated, 1887, from the same institution as a doctor of veterinary medicine; and spent nine months, in 1892, in Germany, engaged in the study of medicine. He began the practice of his profession at Keokuk, Iowa, in 1887; was assistant State veterinarian there, 1887-89; professor of veterinary science and veterinarian at the South Dakota agricultural and mechanical college, 1889-91; and since 1893 he has been professor of veterinary science and physiology and veterinarian at the Alabama polytechnic institute. He is the director of farmers' institutes; also the director of the Alabama polytechnic institute, summer school for farmers; and aided in bringing about meat and milk inspection in Montgomery, Birmingham and Mobile. He is a member of the American veterinary medical association, and of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis. He is a Democrat; Presbyterian; Mason; Knight Templar; and Knight of Pythias. Married: November 27, 1890, at Nauvoo, Ill., to Emma, daughter of William E. and Margaret Heck, of German origin. Residence: Auburn.

CARY, GEORGE W., major, 44th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

CASE, D. C., member of the constitutional convention of 1901, from DeKalb County. Residence: Lebanon.

CASEY, THOMAS, physician and State senator, was born in Georgia, and died at Mobile; removed from Abbeville District, S. C., to Dallas County, in 1817; represented the district, of which Dallas County was a part, in the State senate for the first nine sessions, 1819 to 1827 inclusive; and removed to Mobile soon after the Capital was taken from Cahaba. He was "a skillful physician and a most worthy man." Married: (1) to the sister of Gov. Patrick Noble of South Carolina; (2) to Miss Bird, sister of Mrs. Jesse Beene of Dallas County. Last residence: Mobile.

JOHN G. FARLEY

CASEY, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 77, and a resident of Autauga County; private S. C. Militia; enrolled on March 7, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $40.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Part 3, vol. xiii, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Coosa County, June 1, 1840, with M. B. Casey, aged 89.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

CASSADY, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, lawyer, was born October 25, 1843, in Lawrenceville, Henry County, and died October 1, 1896, in Anniston; son of Michael H. and Caroline C. (Willis) Cassady, who removed from Henry County to Ronda, Sumter County, Fla., where the father was a farmer and slave owner. He was a native of South Carolina and a son of Hugh Cassady, a native of Scotland. Mrs. Caroline C. Cassady was born in Georgia and was a daughter of Rev. William Willis, a Methodist Episcopal minister of Georgia, who lived to be one hundred years old. Judge Cassady was educated in the high school of Lawrenceville but the War of Secession cut short his college career. He accompanied the family on their removal to Florida, where, in 1862, he enlisted in Capt. Sloan's company, Seventh Florida infantry, but was soon transferred to Co. C, Second Florida cavalry, under Capt. Chambers, serving with distinction until the close of the conflict. Returning home, he engaged in teaching for a time; in 1869 began the study of law with Judge J. M. Carmichael at Ozark, Ala.; was admitted to the bar in 1870 and began practice at Ozark; but in 1885 removed to Columbia, Henry County and in 1887 to Anniston, where he was a member of the law firm of Cassady, Blackwell & Keith. He was solicitor of Dale County, 1872-6; was register in chancery of the same county several years; and judge of the city court of Anniston, 1889-93. He was a Democrat, a Mason and an active member of the Methodist church for twenty-five years, serving as steward, class leader and superintendent of the Sunday school; and represented Alabama in the general conference at Memphis in 1894. Married: December 2, 1869, to Georgia Elizabeth Rigell, a native of Dawson, Terrell County, Ga., and a daughter of Mark and Frances Stanfield (Kelley) Rigell, who removed from Dooly County, Ga., to Terrell County; in the '60s to Early County, Ga.; and after the War of Secession to Dale County, Ala.; and followed farming in both states. Children: 1. Lela, b. September 7, 1870, m. in March, 1893, at Anniston, Edward Leslie, who died March 2, 1899, at Birmingham; 2. Zula b. October 3, 1872, d. February 3, 1901, at Birmingham; and 3. Lida, b. January 2, 1878, m. November 14, 1900, at Birmingham, Hervey W. Laird, now a resident of Atlanta, Ga. Last residence: Anniston, Ala.

CASTLEBERRY, WILLIAM BROCK, lawyer and legislator, was born June 16, 1869, at Columbiana, Shelby County; son of David Trice and Evelyn E. (Brock) Castleberry, the former a native of Kelly's Creek community, Shelby County, and served as a private in Co. E, 10th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Dr. Elias and Rebecca Brock, of Calhoun County, and of Joseph Howard and Nancy (Beavers) Castleberry. He was educated in the private schools; entered on practice of law in 1890 at Talladega; and was elected State senator in November, 1902, from Eighth district. He is a Democrat; Baptist; Odd Fellow; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: September 18, 1902, at Denver, Col., to Alice W., daughter of Edgar Simeon and Jane (Brown) Ely, formerly of East River, Conn. Residence: Talladega.

CATCHUM, HUGH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Lime-stone County; private N. C. Militia and State Troops; enrolled on January 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $46.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $139.98.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CATER, RICHARD BOHUN, Presbyterian minister, was born in 1791, in Beaufort District, S. C., and died November 24, 1850, at Selma. He received his theological instruction from Rev. Moses Waddle, D. D., and for more than twenty years preached in and out of season in his native state. He left the Presbytery of South Carolina in the spring of 1836, when he moved to Alabama; and on September 28, 1837, became a member of the Presbytery of South Alabama. From that time until his death, he was an active and laborious minister. He is said to have been instrumental in building thirteen church edifices. After serving several congregations in different parts of Alabama, he settled at Selma, in charge of the Presbyterian church at that place. He died November 24, 1850, in the thirty-seventh year of his ministry, from cholera contracted several days before, while preaching at the funeral of Rev. Junius B. King, pastor of the Valley Creek Presbyterian church. He is buried in Valley Creek Cemetery. Married: (1) May 21, 1813, Louisa Margaret Wrainch, who died March 24, 1823; (2) July 26, 1827, Jemima Margaret Yongue, born October 18, 1800, in Fairfield District, S. C., and died May 8, 1883. Children, by first marriage: 1. Richard Wrainch, b. September 26, 1814; 2. Eliza Jane, b. April, 1816; 3. Sarah Dupont, b. December 28, 1818; 4. Andrew Norris, b. 1821; 5. Louisa Margaret Wrainch, b. March, 1823; by second marriage: 6. Samuel Yongue, b. May 5, 1829, m. May 11, 1853, Sarah Virginia Love; 7. Rachel Miles, b. November 8, 1830, m. December 26, 1850, J. J. Seay, a school teacher, d. August 6, 1891; 8. Rebecca Anne, b. May 25, 1833, d. July 13, 1834; 9. Anne Melinda Evans, b. March 7, 1835, d. August 5, 1854, m. April 1852, Dr. Thaddesus C. McCurdy, who died September 15, 1857, aged twenty-seven years, son of A.

P. and Elizabeth McCurdy; 10. Elizabeth Rebecca, b. July 27, 1837, d. February 17, 1912, m. August 12, 1857, St. John Louis Tavel; 11. Richard Bohun b. February 18, 1840, d. May 4, 1912. Last residence: Selma.

CATHER, E. C., journalist and weather observer of St. Clair County. Deceased. Last residence: Center.

CATHER, GEORGE ROBERTS, editor, publisher and meteorologist, was born November 10, 1836, in Baltimore, Kent Co., Md.; son of William and Rachel (Plummer) Cather. The father, who became an architect and contractor of Baltimore, was born April 3, 1811, in Port Deposit, Md., son of Robert Roberts and Hannah (McCullough) Cather, who lived in Rising Sun, Cecil County, Md. The family was of Irish and English origin and was founded in Maryland after the Revolutionary War. George Roberts Cather began his education in the schools of Baltimore and later attended Washington College, Chestertown (Old Baltimore), Md. At the age of twenty-one years he was admitted to the Baltimore bar and practiced his profession until he entered the army; later practiced at Hillsville, Va.; taught school at Centre, Ala.; and in 1873 established a newspaper at Ashville, Ala. He was a member of the Press Association and was state orator when it convened at Mobile in 1877. At one time he served as mayor of Ashville and was a member of the state board of convicts during the administration of Governor Jones; was a member of the county Democratic executive committee; and his name was proposed as a candidate for the state legislature but he withdrew in favor of another. During the War of Secession he enlisted September 20, 1862, and was made corporal of Co. D, First Maryland Cavalry battalion under Major Brown. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South; served as steward and superintendent of the Sunday school; and was ordained a minister of the gospel but his doctrine was unfavorable to this element and he retired from preaching. At one time he was a Mason; was one of the first advocates of prohibition in the country, also of white supremacy in state and politics; was devoted to the cause of science, religion and education; believed in the divine origin of man and preached it; devoted a great deal of study to translation and explanation of Bible meanings and mythology, of hieroglyphics, and published many articles on these subjects in the Southern Aegis, which paper he founded and edited; made many interesting observations and some discoveries in weather phenomena and astronomy; and was the author of "Dora's Device" and many manuscripts not published in book form. Married: September 18, 1867, in Lovingson, Va., to Harriet Hart Heath, daughter of Dr. Harlow William and Julia Beckley (Hart) Heath, of Lovingson, Nelson County, Va. Her father was elected president of Newton University, Baltimore, 1847, and at one time was a member of the Maryland legislature. The Hart family came from England with the Pilgrim fathers and settled at Berlin, near Hartford, Conn.; the Heaths settled at Hennegar, N. H. Among Mrs. Cather's ancestors were Gen. Beckley, a Revolutionary officer, and Josiah Bartlett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Children: 1 W. H., lawyer of Centre, Ala., m. Cora Webb; 2. B. B., editor of Ashville Aegis, m. Rhoda Bowlin; 3. Bays D., of Pell City, Ala., m. Daisy Kilgroe; 4. A. Heath, of Birmingham, m. Pearl Johnson; 5. Marcis Ney and 6. Ancel Lyle, both of Birmingham. Last residence: Ashville, Ala.

CATO, LEWIS L., lawyer, was born in Hancock County, Ga., and died December 4, 1868, in Barbour County, Ala., where he spent the greater part of his life, successfully engaged in the practice of his profession. He was prominent in public affairs and represented Barbour County in the state senate from 1861 to 1865. He was a brother of Sterling G. Cato, who was also a native of Georgia and became an attorney of Barbour County, Ala., but removed to Kansas during the slavery agitation there, being appointed United States judge in that state; subsequently practiced in St. Louis, Mo., where he died about 1867. Last residence: Barbour County, Ala.

CATTERLIN, S. E., member of the constitutional convention of 1861, from Choctaw County.

CAULK, JACOB, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 85, resided in Madison County, June 1, 1840, with John H. Webster. —Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CAWTHON, ALEXANDER W., druggist, was born January 2, 1841, in Eutaw, Greene County, Ala., a son of W. T. and Sarah (Camp) Cawthon, natives of Georgia and North Carolina, respectively; and accompanied his parents on their removal to Whistler, Ala., where the father engaged in business as an architect and merchant for some years, but later lived retired at Stonewall, Miss. Alexander W. Cawthon was educated at Barton Academy, Mobile, and when sixteen years of age began clerking in his brother's drug store in that city, remaining there until he entered the C. S. Army. In 1861 he enlisted in Woodruff's Rifles—the Twenty-first Alabama regiment, but owing to his superior knowledge of the drug business he was soon afterward appointed hospital steward and served as such until the close of the war. In 1865 he became identified with the drug business in Selma, as a member of the firm of Cawthon & McVoy, and later as a member of the firm of Cawthon & Coleman, conducting one of the largest drug stores in the state. He was also a director of the Selma Land, Improvement & Furnace Company and a very public spirited and progressive business man. Married: in April, 1867, to Laura J. Keith, daughter of Thomas A. and Adelaide Keith, of Winchester, Tenn. Children: 1. Marshall O.; 2. Carrie L.; 3. Alexander K.;

4. Sadie M., and 5. Frank F. Residence: Selma, Ala.

CAYCE, STEWART W., lieutenant colonel, 21st Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; lieutenant colonel, 1st Mobile volunteers, local defense troops. Deceased. Last residence: Mobile.

CERTAIN, CASPAR CARL, teacher; graduated at the Alabama polytechnic institute, with the degree of B. S., 1906, and E. E., 1907. Residence: Birmingham.

CHADICK, WILLIAM DAVIDSON, Cumberland Presbyterian minister, was born January 22, 1817, in Overton County, Tenn., and died September 4, 1878, in McMinnville, Tenn.; son of Charles and Elizabeth (Crutchlow) Chadick, who removed from Tennessee to Jackson County, Ala., when he was quite young, about 1820, settling seven miles west of Scottsboro. In the family were five sons, all of whom became ministers, and five daughters: James, a Methodist; William D., Stakeley and Isaac, all Cumberland Presbyterians; Albert, a Methodist; Senia, m. John Coulson, both d. in Jackson County; Delia, m. Claiborn Carr, both d. in Jackson County; Patsey, m. Frank Skelton, both d. in Texas; Miriam, m. Calvin Weaver and d. in Madison County, Ala.; and Ann, m. a Mr. Wilson and d. in the west. The sons are also deceased.

Rey. William D. Chadick received his early education in the country schools of Jackson County and studied theology under Drs. Feemster, Matthew Bone, Robert Donnel, Hiram Hunter and Robert Frasier, after which he was licensed to preach. He was not only a minister of the gospel but was also editor of the Banner of Peace, at that time the organ of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. He was a Democrat and a Royal Arch Mason. At the age of nineteen years he enlisted and served in the Creek war; during the War of Secession he was made chaplain of the Fourth Alabama regiment with the rank of captain; was promoted to lieutenant colonel; was later on the staff of Gov. Shorter; and raised a battalion, being known as the "fighting parson." He was in the battles of Shiloh and Manassas besides many smaller engagements and was much beloved by his men; and never lost sight of his duties as a Christian and the high and sacred position he held as a minister of the gospel. Married: (1) in December, 1841, at Fayetteville, Tenn., to Malinda Porterfield Davis, daughter of Dr. William and Susan (Morgan) Davis, of Bellefonte, Jackson County, Ala., whose ancestors were among the representative pioneer families of Tennessee and Kentucky; (2) in 1850 at Lebanon, Tenn., to Mary Ione Cook, daughter of David and Mary Cook. Mr. Cook was a manufacturer of cotton goods. Children: 1. Susan Elizabeth, m. Samuel W. Fordyce, who lives in St. Louis, Mo., and Hot Springs, Ark.; 2. Ione, deceased; 3. Charles William, deceased; 4. Edwin Davis, resident of New York; children by second marriage: 5. George Colburn, resident of Texas; 6. Clara Stockton, deceased; 7. David Cook, deceased; 8. Mary Colburn, deceased. Last residence: McMinnville, Tenn.

CHADWICK, JOHN SHELBY, Methodist minister and editor, was born May 15, 1871, at Greensboro; son of Shelby Wayne and Margaret (Camak) Chadwick (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of Greensboro; graduated A. B., Southern university, 1889, A. M. 1891; Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., 1891-2. He entered the Alabama conference M. E. church, South 1892, and has served the following charges, Pensacola, Fla., Fayetteville, Childersburg, and Jasper; editor "Alabama Christian Advocate," Birmingham, March 1907 to September 1910; assistant editor "Christian Advocate," Nashville, September 1910, to date. He is a member of the board of trustees of Birmingham Southern, and director of the Alabama Methodist orphanage. He is a Mason; and a member of the Alpha Tau Omega college fraternity. Married: January 25, 1899, to Sara Lou Rowe, of Dadeville. Residence: Nashville.

CHADWICK, SHELBY W., public official, was born September 26, 1842, in Hale, then Greene, County; son of Shelby W. and Mary A. (Meredith) Chadwick, the former a native of Greenup County, Ky., who came to Alabama in 1832, located in Greensboro, conducted a mercantile business for several years, was a volunteer in the Creek Indian War, was married in 1839, and died in 1854, the latter a native of Madison County, was reared in Sumter County, became the mother of four sons and died in 1868; grandson of John Chadwick, an Englishman, a farmer, who emigrated to Kentucky in colonial times, and was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and of Elisha W. and Sarah Bowling (Cabell) Meredith, both members of prominent families in Virginia. He was reared in Greensboro, and was a student at Southern University at the outbreak of the War of Secession. He entered the Greensboro Guards, and served with them throughout the war, being taken prisoner with part of his regiment, April 2, 1865, and held until the close of hostilities. He returned to his home in Greensboro, served as a clerk for a number of years, then entered the mercantile business on his own account. He remained in that business until 1879, at which time he entered the insurance business. In 1886 he began a private exchange and collection business in Greensboro, in addition to his insurance duties. He was elected county treasurer of Hale County in 1880, and by successive elections, held that position for twelve years. He has also served as councilman and treasurer of Greensboro. For twenty years, he was steward and recording secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Greensboro, and for many years was superintendent of the Sunday school. He has been secretary of the Southern University; is a Master Mason; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: in 1855, Jane Cammack, a native of Hale County. Children: six, the eldest of whom is John Chadwick (q. v.). Residence: Greensboro.

CHAFFEE, FRANK PHILIP, business man, was born March 18, 1860, in Washington, D. C.; son of William E. and Lydia Ann (Wood) Chaffee. The father was a native of Portage, Wayne County, N. Y., but spent most of his life in Washington, D. C., where he engaged in the retail shoe business and later in general contracting. He served in the U. S. Army during the War of Secession and his ancestors had taken part in every war in this country from early colonial times. He was a son of Edwin Chaffee, of Portage, N. Y.; and his wife was a daughter of Ferdinand and Ann R. (Carroll) Wood, of St. Charles County, Md. Frank P. Chaffee attended the public and high schools of Washington, D. C.; St. Mary's Academy at the same place; and the Military Academy of Signal Service at Fort Myer, Va., this being supplemented by private tuition and private courses in meteorology and electrical energy. He served as private, corporal and sergeant in the Signal Service, U. S. Army, March 1, 1879-June 30, 1891; observer for the Weather Bureau, U. S. Department of Agriculture, July 1, 1891-November 1, 1893; local forecast official, same service, from the latter date to June 30, 1901; and section director of the Alabama section for several years; was also park commissioner of Montgomery for some years, dating from January 1, 1905. He has written numerous short stories for magazines and articles on meteorology and lectured on that and kindred subjects. He is a member of the Episcopal church; a director of St. John's chapter, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Montgomery, two years; is a Mason and was worthy master of Montgomery Lodge, No. 11, A. F. & A. M., 1901-2; and patron of Elizabeth Armstrong Chapter, O. E. S., Montgomery, two years; was a director of the Commercial Club, Montgomery, seven years, and also first vice president; and was secretary of the Alabama Agricultural Association and managed its fair at Montgomery in October, 1908. Married: December 26, 1880, at Beaufort, N. C., to Hannah D. von Lowenberg, daughter of Charles and Lucy Stringer (Duffy) von Lowenberg, of Newbern, N. C.; and a grand-daughter of Aaron von Lowenberg, who came from Westphalia, Germany; and Charles Duffy, from Ireland, and his wife, Elizabeth (Stringer) Duffy, from England. Children: 1. Lucy Edna; 2. Lillian May; 3. Marguerite Wood, and 4. Helen Disney. Residence: Birmingham.

CHAMBERLAIN, BARTLETT BEARDSLEE, lawyer, was born November 20, 1883; son of Edgar Thomas and Huldah J. (Beardslee) Chamberlain, of Mobile. He received his early education at Barton academy, Mobile, and was graduated from the law department of the University of Alabama, LL. B., 1906. He opened a law office in Mobile, and has continued the practice of his profession at that place. He was elected to the State legislature in 1911 on the Democratic ticket. Residence: Mobile.

CHAMBERLAIN, HENRY, lawyer, was born in 1806, in Maine, and died August 11, 1870, in Bailey Springs, Ala.; son of Henry V. Chamberlain, who in 1816 brought his family to Mobile, Ala., and later served as sheriff and judge of the county court of Mobile County. Henry Chamberlain was well educated and successfully engaged in the practice of law after reaching manhood. He represented Mobile County in the state legislature in 1832, 1833 and 1857; was mayor of Mobile in 1839; judge of the city court in 1846 and again from 1860 to 1868. Married: a Miss Chamberlain, of Maine, and many of his descendants still reside in Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

CHAMBERS, HENRY H., physician, was born October 1, 1790, in Lunenburg County, Va., and died January 24, 1826, in the same county while on his way to Washington, D. C., to take his seat in the United States senate; a brother of Judge Edward Chambers. He was a well educated man and after his removal to Alabama in 1812 engaged in the practice of medicine at Madison. He served as surgeon on the staff of Gen. Jackson during the Indian wars; was a member of the state constitutional convention in 1819; and represented his district in the lower house of the legislature in 1820. He was defeated for governor by Hon. Israel Pickens in 1821 and 1823; was a presidential elector on the Jackson ticket in 1824; and the following winter was elected to the United States senate for a term of six years but died on his way to the capital. His death was much regretted for he was a man of irreproachable morals and an eminent physician. His talents were of a high order, his oratory chaste and his bearing dignified and earnest. He was over six feet high, somewhat spare, with dark eyes and sallow complexion. Alabama has preserved his memory by naming a county in his honor. Married: a Miss Smith, of Tennessee. One of his two sons, Hon. Henry C. Chambers, represented Mississippi in the Confederate congress and became a distinguished orator and citizen of that state; and his daughter married a son of Gov. Thomas Bibb. Last residence: Madison, Ala.

CHAMBERS, WILLIAM HENRY, lawyer, was born October 17, 1826, at Eatonton, Putnam County, Ga., and died July 5, 1881, at Auburn, Ala.; son of James McCoy and Martha Jones (Alexander) Chambers, the former also a native of Putnam County, Ga., who lived at Eatonton until 1839, and then removed to Columbus, Ga. The father was a man of broad learning, high culture, strikingly handsome in person and filled positions of great usefulness in the state, in society and in the church. For many years he was associate editor of the Soil of the South, a leading agricultural journal, and before the War of Secession was a constant contributor to Harper's Magazine and other leading periodicals. He was a son of Henry and Mary Chambers, the former migrating from Virginia to Georgia about the time of the Revolutionary war. His ancestors came from England and were immediately related to the distinguished family to which Sir William and Sir Robert Chambers, conspicuous in political and literary history of England, belong. The town of Chambersburg, Pa., was settled by three brothers, one of whom later went to Virginia and from that brother the Georgia and Alabama Chambers families are descended. William Henry Chambers' maternal grandparents were William and Elizabeth Alexander, who lived in Putnam County, Ga., and for many years before their deaths in Russell County, Ala. The Alexander ancestors came from Ireland some years before the Revolutionary war and were recipients of magnificent royal favors in Virginia grants of land. The city of Alexandria, Va., received its name from that family.

William Henry Chambers received his early education in the common schools of Eatonton, Ga., and the Manual Labor School at Covington, Ga. He was graduated at Emory College, Oxford, Ga., in 1845, receiving the A. B. degree and taking first honors in his class; later he attended the Law School of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., graduating there with distinction in 1847. He immediately began the practice of law in Columbus, Ga., and rapidly rose to a high position in his profession. In 1854 he removed to Eufaula, Barbour County, Ala., and became associated in practice with Gov. John Gill Shorter and Col. Eli Shorter, under the firm name of Shorter, Chambers & Shorter, which had a large and lucrative practice until the War of Secession called them into different fields of service of the Confederate government. After only a few years' residence in Barbour County he was elected to the state legislature, serving in 1859 and 1863. He was a life long Democrat and always active in promoting the party's welfare. After the War of Secession, upon retiring to his plantation in Russell County, he was elected to the state senate from the district then composed of Russell and Lee Counties. At the first call for volunteers he raised a company, "The Pioneer Guards," of which he was commissioned captain, at Eufaula, and promptly left for the front. Due to the loss of an eye he had to retire from the active service. He was a Mason; an Odd Fellow; and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South; always identified with its movements, serving in the capacity of steward, trustee and Sunday school superintendent and many times a delegate to annual and general conferences.

Mr. Chambers was one of the most polished scholars of his day in the state. While not the author of books, he was a constant contributor to papers and periodicals. During the first three years of his practice in Columbus, Ga., he was editor of The Sun, an aggressive Democratic paper in the midst of a Whig constituency. For several years during his residence in Eufaula, Ala., he was editorial contributor to the Eufaula Times, and for many years while residing on his estate in Russell County was editor in chief of the Southern Cultivator, published in Montgomery County. For the last few years of his life he was professor of English literature and agriculture in the Alabama polytechnic institute at Auburn. He was a safe, conservative, conscientious counselor, an orator of force and eloquence, a lawyer of conspicuous ability and success at the bar, an earnest and ever active Christian, a gentleman of the highest refinement, in all the domestic and family relationships a perfect type, a man without guile. Married: May 19, 1847, to Anne Lane Flewellen, a daughter of Dr. Abner Holloway Flewellen, who was of Welsh parentage and lived in Columbus, Ga., was a well educated man of broad culture and attained a high position in his profession. Children: 1. James Henry, of Atlanta, Ga., m. Mary Flournoy Abercrombie; 2. William Lea, of Washington, D. C., m. Laura Ligon Clifton; 3. Porter Flewellen, of New York city, m. Alice Ely; 4. Martha Alexander, of Atlanta, Ga., m. William Henry Alexander; 5. Robert Jones, of Montgomery, Ala., m. Ella Peet; 6. John Barbour, of St. Louis, Mo., m. Byrd Baker. Last residence: Auburn, Ala.

CHAMBERS, WILLIAM LEA, lawyer, was born March 4, 1852, in Columbus, Muscogee County, Ga.; a son of William Henry and Anna Lane (Flewellen) Chambers (q. v.), who in 1854 removed to Eufaula, Ala., where he began his education, his first teachers being a Miss Sinkfield; followed by his uncle, Robert Alexander Chambers, who was killed in the battle of Rome, Ga.; Prof. Patterson; and Capt. S. H. Dent. He attended Emory College, Oxford, Ga., 1869-71, leaving a few months before graduation to teach school; subsequently he received the degree of A. B.; and the honorary degree of LL. D. in 1909. His legal education was acquired in the office of Stone & Clifton at Montgomery, both of whom served on the supreme court bench.

Mr. Chambers began practice in Montgomery, in November, 1873, and continued there until May, 1888, as a member of the firm of Clifton, Herbert & Chambers; then removed to Sheffield. In the meantime he had served as cashier and president of the First National Bank of Montgomery; was instrumental in organizing the Montgomery Land & Improvement Company, of which he was vice president; and became president of the company which founded Sheffield, which has become the second city in the south in iron production. Since then he has engaged in the practice of law in Washington, D. C. He was a member of the commission appointed by the United States, England and Germany to settle the trouble in Samoa in 1893 and in 1897 was chosen by the U. S. government as chief justice of Samoa; in 1901 was appointed a member of the Spanish treaty commission; and later was chairman of the arbitration board to settle the controversy between the labor brotherhoods and railroads. He has always supported the Democratic party and was secretary of the state Democratic committee in two campaigns; is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South; was chairman of the board of stewards of Court Street church, Montgomery, and of Mount Vernon Place church, Washington, D. C.; and is a member of the Chi Phi college fraternity and the Knights of Pythias. He has frequently contributed articles to newspapers and magazines; and throughout life has been in some way identified with educational, social and religious movements; was a teacher for several years before entering upon the practice of law; was chairman of the board of education of Montgomery for several years; a member of the Society for Promotion of Religious Education, Washington, D. C.; regent of Fairmont Seminary; a member of the National Geographic Society and American Institute of Archaeology.

Married: October 27, 1873, in Montgomery to Laura Ligon Clopton, daughter of David and Martha (Ligon) Clopton, who lived at Tuskegee and later Montgomery. Mr. Clopton was a member of the U. S. congress prior to the War of Secession; enlisted as a private in the C. S. Army; and was a member of the Confederate congress at the time of Lee's surrender. Children: 1. Anne Laura, m. in 1900 Benjamin Palmer Carter, of New Orleans, a distinguished mining engineer and general manager of the greatest gold producing mine in the world at Johannesburg, Transvaal, South Africa; 2. David Clopton, m. Elizabeth McLean, of Tuscumbia, and is a successful farmer of Montgomery County, Md., having resigned a lucrative position in the department of justice; 3. William Henry, associated with his brother in the conduct of Bon Acre Farm, of which dairying is the principal feature; 4. Louise L., living with her parents at their country home near Washington, D. C. Residence: Washington, D. C.

CHAMBLISS, ALEXANDER WILES, Baptist minister, was born near Cheraw, S. C., July 4, 1812, and died in Montgomery City, Mo., in 1893; son of John and Catherine (Williams) Chambliss, the former a native of South Carolina, who removed to Alabama and settled in Montgomery County. John Chambliss, the father, married (2) Mrs. Sarah Price and had two daughters, and (3) Mrs. McColough. His first wife, Catherine, had a brother, John C. Williams. Dr. Chambliss attended the Southern theological seminary, Greenville, S. C., and later received the degree of D. D., from this institution. He served churches in Marion, and in Mississippi, Georgia and Missouri. He was the author of a Baptist catechism and wrote many pamphlets and criticisms. Married: 1. August 5, 1834, to Rebecca Ann, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Farr (Ellerbe) Ellerbe, of Cheraw, S. C.; 2. Ann Elizabeth (Bishop) Ellerbe, widow of his first wife's brother. Children: 1. Williams Ellerbe, m. Louisa Jones; 2. Hannah Elizabeth, m. (1) William Douglas Roy, and (2) Lewis Gray; 3. John Alexander, b. at Rome, Ga., August 30, 1830, m. Anna Mauldin, student at Howard College, Marvin, Georgetown College, Ky., and Southern Baptist theological seminary, Greenville, S. C., pastor Sumter, S. C., chaplain C. S. Army; pastor 1866, Aiken, S. C., and Richmond, Va., 1867-70, taught in Richmond, Va., 1871 and pastor Citadel Square church, Charleston, S. C.; 4. Joseph Ellerbe, b. February 10, 1843, at Wetumpka, d. January 9, 1916, at Stoutland, Mo., m. January 17, 1865, at Rome, Ga., to Laviece, daughter of David S. and Frances Jane Thomas (Beckham) Gwin, of Madison Court House, Va., and had ten children, one of whom, Rev. Thomas W. Chambliss, m. Mamie Beall Cottingham, and resides at Shelby, N. C.; author of "Life of Livingston" and many denominational leaflets and tracts; 5. Rebecca Ann, m. J. W. Luke; 6. Thomas Ellerbe, d. in infancy; 7. Catherine Adele, m. (1) John G. Donuhue, and (2) John P. Royal; 8. Charles Mallory, resides in Montana. Last residence: Montgomery City, Mo.

CHAMBLISS, J. A., Baptist minister, was born August 30, 1840, in Athens, Ga.; son of Rev. Dr. A. W. Chambliss, also a Baptist minister and teacher. Dr. J. A. Chambliss began his education in the preparatory department of Howard college, Marion; spent two years at Georgetown college, Kentucky; returned to Howard college, 1858, and graduated with first honor in 1859; entered Southern Baptist theological seminary, Greenville, S. C., and was the first graduate, May, 1861. He began his service at Sumter, S. C., but the war coming on he accepted a chaplaincy in the Confederate Army. He served in Aiken, S. C., 1866, Richmond, Va., 1867; taught a classical school in Richmond for one year; and accepted a call to Citadel square church, Charleston, S. C., 1872.

CHAMBLISS, N. R., professor of mathematics at the University of Alabama, 1869-70. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CHAMPION, IRA TRIMBLE, Recording Secretary, Governor's Office, was born November 9, 1869, at Troy, Pike County; son of Frank Douglas and Delilah Ann (Enzor) Champion, the former born December 26, 1841, at Sunnyside, Spalding County, Ga., and a member of the Quitman guards, later a member Co. I, Fifteenth Alabama Infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and mustered into the service at Fort Mitchell, the latter of Troy; grandson of William Clayton and Harriet (Belcher) Champion, of Sunnyside, Ga., and of Josiah Nash and Catherine Ann Enzor, Troy, Ala.; great-grandson of Abner and Francis (Pounds) Champion, of England. His maternal grandparents were from Scotland. Josiah Enzor served in the Indian War of 1836, was an early settler in Pike County, and one of the founders of Union Hill Methodist Protestant Church. Mr. Champion was educated in the rural schools of his County, the Troy boys high school, and was graduated from the State normal college, at Troy, B. Ph., 1891. He is a journalist by profession, having begun service on the "Primitive Pathway"; later was connected with the "Troy Messenger"; still later with the "Citizen Journal," and during recent years has been engaged in editorial and publicity work. He was a charter member of Co. H., Troy Rifles, second regiment, Alabama State Troops. Later he was captain on the staff of Gen. J. B. Stanley, a member of Governor Wm. C. Oates' official staff. He is a Democrat, and served as secretary of the State Executive Committee, 1918. He is secretary of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, and has been a member of every general conference since 1896. He is a Mason; Knight of Pythias; and a member of D. O. K.

HARRY T. HARTWELL

K. Married: November 1, 1904, to Pearl, the daughter of John C. and Emily (Mitchell) Hanson, of Opelika; granddaughter of John C. and Nancy Hanson, of Virginia, and of William Mit-tan and Elizabeth (Taylor) Mitchell. Mrs. Champion died five months after the marriage. Residence: Montgomery.

CHANCELLOR, JERRY, soldier of the American Revolution, was born in England, died in Autauga County, and is buried at Pine Level Methodist church. At sixteen he came to Virginia with his father and two brothers, William and Jackson Chancellor. Later the father, William and Jerry located in South Carolina. This was during the War of the Revolution, and when it became necessary to enter the conflict, the father espoused the cause of the king, while the sons joined the patriots. His command is not known. The war over he remained in South Carolina until 1818, when he brought a colony to Alabama and settled on the Autauga side of the Ala-bama River, where he remained until his death. Memorial Record of Alabama, vol. 2, p. 895, and Alabama Historical Society, Trans-actions, vol. 4, p. 535. He was a Baptist. Married: Galatea Gilbert. Children: among others, 1. William, m. Nancy Truit, parents of William S. Chancellor, of Childersburg, Coosa County, former merchant and Confederate sol-dier, m. (1) Louisa, daughter of William and Mary (Tatum) Bridges, and had five children; and (2) Mrs. Elizabeth J. (Caruthers) Kelly, daughter of William and Mary (McCulla) Caruthers, of Virginia. Last residence: Au-tauga County.

CHANDLER, DANIEL, lawyer, was born December 13, 1805, in Warrenton, Ga., and died in New Orleans, La., October 26, 1866. He was graduated from Franklin College with first honors and read law under Judge Tucker at Winchester, Va. In early manhood he be-came a resident of Mobile, Ala., where he en-gaged in the practice of his profession for many years. In 1831 he was elected by the legislature solicitor general of the north cir-cuit and in 1843 represented his county in the general assembly but always declined other official honors. For some years he was in partnership with his brother-in-law, Hon. John A. Campbell and later with Hon R. H. Smith. In 1835 he delivered an address on Female Education before the Demos-thenian and Phi Kappa Societies of the Uni-versity of Georgia, which was so greatly ap-preciated that he was requested to furnish a copy for publication in pamphlet form. It was widely circulated and through its inspira-tion the first "female college" sprung into existence, for in the year 1836 the legislature of Georgia incorporated the Wesleyan Female College at Macon, Ga., which was the pioneer of all institutions of its class—the acknowl-edged fruit of Mr. Chandler's discourse. He was a Democrat and an earnest Christian gen-tleman, who manifested a warm interest in all matters affecting the common weal. He was learned in the law and eloquent at the bar, always drawing a large crowd when he was to address the jury in some case where his powers of eloquence and the beauties of imagination could be fully displayed. In his social relations and as a member of the Pres-byterian church his influence was most bene-ficially exercised. His son, Capt. John L. Chandler was on the staff of Gen. Clanton dur-ing the War of Secession. Last residence: Mobile, Ala.

CHANDLER, JOHN, soldier of the Ameri-can Revolution, aged 89, resided in Benton County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CHANDRON, JULIUS de le G., French colo-nist of Marengo County, was born in 1799, in Philadelphia, Pa., and died March 4, 1877, at Marion Junction; son of Jean Simon Chandron, a promoter of the colony. He was the last sur-vivor of the "Vine and olive colony," of Marengo, which was settled in 1819, by French refugees, under grants of land from the U. S. govern-ment. He removed to Mobile in later years and although the mass of their fortune was ex-pended in the effort to clear and cultivate the lands, out of which they were twice dispos-sessed, he retained sufficient means for the comforts of age. The family, which was sprung from Jean Simon and his son Julius, have im-pressed their worth as citizens on many com-munities of the Southern States and on New York City. Married: to Adelaide de Vandel, of the "Vine and olive colony." Children: 1. J. G., lived at Talladega; 2. Louis de Vandel; 3. a daughter, who married Dr. John F. Blevins, of Marion Junction. Last residence: Mobile.

CHAPMAN, BENJAMIN SIDNEY, physician, was born October 20, 1869, in Montgomery; son of Benjamin Donaldson and Sidney M. (San-derson) Chapman, early settlers of Montgom-ery County. He was educated in the schools of Montgomery; at the University of Alabama; student of medicine, graduating M. D. from University of the City of New York, 1892; county physician, 1895-96; and since engaged in private practice. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: June 26, 1895, in Mont-gomery, to Mary Alice, daughter of Frank, sr., and Alice (Barton) Browder, formerly of Bowling Green, Ky., and now of Montgomery. Residence: Montgomery.

CHAPMAN, DAVID AUGUSTINE, merchant, was born in Grove Hill; son of John Chap-man (q. v.); grandson of Elijah Chapman, sr. (q. v.), of Clarke County. He was educated in the institutions of Grove Hill; engaged in mercantile business; after years of success as a merchant, he retired to the old family plantation, where he became an extensive farmer. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: to Maria Lillie Woodward, of Grove Hill. Last residence: Grove Hill.

CHAPMAN, ELIJAH, planter and pioneer settler, was born about 1779, in South Caro-lina, and died in Clarke County, about 1827.

He came to Alabama, after the close of the War of 1812, and acquired lands near Grove Hill, where his brothers, Joseph (q. v.) and William Chapman, were already established. He engaged extensively in planting; in establishing Grove Hill and spreading civilization on the frontier. He was a Whig; and a Methodist. His wife, name unknown, made a journey on horseback, back to South Carolina, in 1828-29, through the Indian Country, alone; this was after her husband's death. Children: 1. John (q. v.); 2. Giles; 3. Joshua; 4. Frank; 5. Polly, m. — Cox, of Louisiana; 6. Celia, m. — Daniels; 7. Nancy, m. — Cox; 8. Elizabeth, m. — Smith, of Texas. Last residence: Grove Hill.

CHAPMAN, FRANK ELIJAH, teacher, was professor at the Southern university, from which he received the degree of A. B., in 1902. In 1907 he received the degree of A. M., from Vanderbilt university and became fellow and assistant in mathematics at that institution, 1906-07. During the latter year he again became professor of mathematics in the Southern university.

CHAPMAN, GEORGE CLARENCE, physician, annual orator Medical association of Alabama, 1899; graduate of Vanderbilt university, 1890, and commenced the practice in Monroe County that year. He was killed by a tornado, March 29, 1901. Last residence: Birmingham.

CHAPMAN, GROSS SCRUGGS, physician, graduated in the medical department of the University of Alabama, Mobile, 1879, and commenced the practice in 1884. Residence: Jackson.

CHAPMAN, JESSE P., Methodist minister, was born near Grove Hill; son of Giles Chapman; grandson of Elijah Chapman (q. v.). He was educated in the institutions of his community; studied for the ministry and licensed as a Methodist preacher. He filled many pastorates, and at one time was located on his plantation, five miles east of Grove Hill. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: to Frances Fluker, of the Coffeeville family, pioneer settlers. Children: 1. Dr. Gross S. Chapman, physician of Grove Hill. Last residence: plantation, near Grove Hill.

CHAPMAN, JOHN, planter, was born about 1829, at Grove Hill, Clarke County; son of Elijah, sr. (q. v.). He was educated in the Grove Hill academy; and engaged in extensive planting and business pursuits. Children: 1. Amos, Confederate soldier, who died in the service; 2. Elijah, m. Carrie Stewart; 3. David Augustine (q. v.), m. Lillie Woodward; 4. Matilda, m. Henry Waite; 5. Achsah, m. George Ford; 6. Elizabeth, m. David Dawson; 7. Sophia, m. J. DeWitt; 8. Celia, m. William Calhoun; 9. Cornelia, m. Neal Calhoun; 10. Ruth Adelia; 11. Amelia, m. Rev. J. S. Calhoun. Last residence: Grove Hill.

CHAPMAN, JOSEPH, planter and pioneer settler, was born in 1777, in Newberry, S. C., and died in 1858, near Grove Hill, Clarke County; brother of Elijah (q. v.), and William Chapman. He came at an early age, about 1812, with his wife, from South Carolina and acquired large tracts of land in Clarke County. He and his family were among the founders of Grove Hill. He was a Whig; and a Methodist. He married in South Carolina. Children: 1. Elizabeth, m. Robert May, of Sumter County; 2. Eleanor, m. Silas Mott, of Mississippi; 3. Nancy, m. George Fluker, of Coffeeville; 4. Mary, m. Col. James Savage, of Grove Hill; 5. Sallie, m. George Dunbar, of Washington County; 6. Amelia, m. E. Stewart Pugh; 7. Joseph, died in youth. Last residence: Grove Hill.

CHAPMAN, KATHARINE HOPKINS, author, was born March 4, 1870, in Selma, Dallas County, daughter of Thomas Holmes and Mary Elizabeth (Glass) Hopkins, the former a native of Danville, Pittsylvania County, Va., and now a resident of Anniston, having taken an active interest in that city's progress since its inception in 1880. In 1859 he removed to Uniontown, and enlisted as a private in the Canebrake Rifle Guard, Co. D, Fourth Alabama regiment, serving until Lee's surrender. He is a son of Reuben and Julia Augusta (Holmes) Hopkins, of Danville, Va., where Reuben Hopkins engaged in the banking business and also owned an extensive tobacco plantation nearby. His second wife, Julia A. Holmes, was a school teacher from New England, a representative of the same family as Oliver Wendell Holmes. Her abolition principles made slaveholding unpleasant for the family and eventually Reuben Hopkins sacrificed his tobacco lands and slaves and moved west, being tendered a public banquet and silver service on his departure. He settled in Iowa in 1857 and purchased land where Dubuque now stands but died suddenly before his titles were validated. Mrs. Chapman's maternal grandparents were Benjamin Alexander and Catharine (Morrison) Glass, who owned and occupied a plantation six miles from Selma, near the Valley Creek Presbyterian church, both belonging to North Carolina families who came to Alabama territory about 1816. The colony were Scotch Presbyterians and erected the first brick church in this state, which structure is still in good repair. Mr. Glass gave the land on which it is located and contributed liberally to its erection. He was a ruling elder of the church, a planter and philanthropist. The Alexanders, Morrisons and Hopkines are all descended from signers of the Declaration of Independence and also the Mecklenburg Declaration.

Mrs. Chapman began her education at home under private teachers, one being Mrs. Moore, who afterward wrote under the name of Betsey Hamilton; another Mrs. K. M. Jarvis, librarian of Selma Carnegie library. She was graduated from Shorter College, Rome, Ga., 1887, taking honors in English and Latin, and her essay on "The desirability of an international copyright," was widely copied and praised. She also completed the Chautauqua literary and scientific course and was graduated at Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., in 1904. She is a communicant of the Episcopal church; a trustee of Selma Carnegie library; and a member of the Chautauqua Circle of Selma, which she has represented as a delegate to the Alabama Woman's Federation several times. Born in the antebellum atmosphere of Selma, transplanted to the bracing booming air of Anniston in its infancy, grafted by marriage into the crude conditions of Bessemer's early days, a frequent visitor to Mobile and Montgomery, Mrs. Chapman was well equipped to delineate Alabama characters and scenes and in her stories she depicts life among the refined southern people, her first writings being signed Katharine Hope in deference for her father's scruples against a lady's name appearing in print except at her marriage or death. Her first work, "Letters on Life in the South" was accepted by the Philadelphia Times in August, 1888, calling forth a personal letter of encouragement from Col. A. K. McClure; followed by "Chautauqua Chats," character sketches and short stories in the Advance, Birmingham; "Naughty Puritan Plym," "Mammy's Buckeyed Baby," "Love's Way in Dixie," "The Alabama Girl," "Milton's Mistletoe," and many others. Married: October 8, 1891, at Shelby, Ala., to Dr. John Thomas Chapman, son of Samuel Edward and Betty (Edwards) Chapman, of McKinley, Ala., the former a lieutenant in the C. S. Army in 1863 and 1864, when he was elected sheriff of Marengo County. Children: 1. Thomas Holmes, b. March 4, 1894, at Bessemer, Ala. Residence: Selma, Ala.

CHAPMAN, REUBEN, lawyer, Governor of Alabama, was born July 15, 1799, in Bowling Green, Caroline County, Va. and died May 17, 1882, in Huntsville, Ala.; son of Col. Reuben and Ann (Reynolds) Chapman, the former also a native of Caroline County, Va., and the latter of Essex County, Va. Col. Chapman fought for the independence of the colonies in the Revolutionary war and became a man of considerable means. He was the son of a Scotchman. Gov. Chapman received a high school education at Bowling Green, Va., and later read law in the office of his eldest brother, Judge Samuel Chapman, of Huntsville, Ala., later of Cahaba and Selma. On his admission to the bar he began to practice in Sommerville, Morgan County, but later removed to Huntsville, where he continued to reside until his death. He came to this state on horseback in 1824.

Gov. Chapman was a member of the Protestant Episcopal church, and as a Democrat he always took a very active and prominent part in political affairs. In 1832 he was elected to the state senate, and in 1835 to the U. S. congress; two years later was reelected; and in the four succeeding elections had no opposition, save 1841. In 1847 he was elected Governor of Alabama, and it is said that he received the nomination entirely without solicitation, and in order to remove him from his apparently lifetime contract with the people of his section to represent them in congress. His inauguration was rendered memorable in a social way by a public reception given by him at Montgomery hall on a scale of extraordinary liberality and hospitality. When he took the governor's chair Alabama was financially embarrassed because of mismanagement of the affairs of the state bank and its trustees, and he had the good fortune to be able to remedy the difficulty and relieve the treasury. His term was characterized by wisdom and devotion to duty. In the convention which chose his successor he had the majority of the votes but yielded to the two-thirds rule, which he believed was right. Withdrawing from political life, he devoted himself to the care of his handsome estate until 1855, when he consented to become the Democratic candidate for a seat in the state legislature and was elected, this being his last official service. In 1860 he attended the Baltimore convention, held after the break in the Democratic party at Charleston, and used his utmost efforts to bring about an understanding between the northern and southern men there. He came near succeeding but was defeated by the irrepressibles on both sides. During the War of Secession the U. S. troops burned his residence, desolated his possessions, imprisoned and harrassed him, and finally forced him out of their lines. He was also a delegate to the national Democratic conventions of Cincinnati in 1856, of Charleston in 1860, and of New York in 1868. It was said of him that "his worth and weight could not be measured, for in all matters requiring manhood, judgment and honor, personal or political, he stood forth as an exemplar and a sage."

Gov. Chapman was a man of splendid figure and proportions, erect in his carriage, handsome in feature and frank in expression. Married: October 17, 1838, at her father's country house in Limestone County, to Felicia Pickett, daughter of Col. Steptoe and Sarah Orrick (Chilton) Pickett, who were natives of Fauquier County, Va., and lived on a plantation in Limestone County, Ala. Mrs. Chapman was a second cousin of Gen. George Pickett, of Gettysburg fame, and a granddaughter of Col. Martin Pickett, an officer in the Revolutionary war. Gov. Chapman had four daughters and two sons who lived to be grown: 1. Steptoe Pickett was killed in battle at the age of twenty-three years while serving in the C. S. Army; 2. Reuben, m. Rosalie Floyd Sheffey of Huntsville and d. April 24, 1891; 3. Juliet, m. Col. Turner Clanton, of Montgomery, survived her husband some years, and d. January 6, 1910; 4. Felicia Corbin, m. Bolling Hubbard of Buckingham County, Va., and d. January 4, 1876; 5. Ellelee, m. Milton Humes of Abingdon, Va., and later of Huntsville, Ala.; 6. Alberta Pickett, m. John G. Taylor of Huntsville and later of Denver, Colo., survived her husband and d. May 16, 1912. Last residence: Huntsville, Ala.

CHAPMAN, REUBEN, lawyer, was born May 25, 1833, at Madison Springs, Madison County, Ala., and died April 30, 1902, at Liv-

Livingston, Ala.; son of Samuel and Mary Lucinda (Newell) Chapman (q. v.), who removed from Huntsville to Livingston in 1834. He attended Montrose Academy, Mississippi, under Rev. Dr. John N. Waddell; later spent two years at Concord Academy, Caroline County, Va., under Prof. Frederick W. Coleman; and afterward the school of Dr. Henry Tutwiler at Greene Springs, Ala. He was admitted to the practice of law by the supreme court of Alabama in July, 1856, and opened an office in Carrollton, Pickens County in January, 1857, but after the close of the War of Secession removed to Livingston, where he continued to practice until his death. In April, 1861, he entered the C. S. Army as captain of Co. H, Eleventh Alabama regiment, but on account of ill health was compelled to resign in June, 1862.

Capt. Chapman was a Methodist, a Mason and a Democrat; and served as mayor of Livingston from March, 1887, to March, 1892; was county solicitor of Sumter County for a number of years; was a member of the house of representatives of Alabama in the session of 1900-01; and a member of the constitutional convention of the state in 1901. Married: (1) March 31, 1861, in Livingston, to Rebecca Southal Arrington, daughter of Robert and Patience Ann (Wright) Arrington, of Livingston; (2) July 27, 1870, to Mary Catherine Scruggs, daughter of Josiah L. Scruggs. His first wife died March 1, 1866. Children: 1. Alta, of Selma, Ala.; 2. Robert Arrington, of Montgomery, m. Catherine Isabella Waddell, of Sheffield, daughter of Rev. DeBerniere and Mary Elizabeth (Bellamy) Waddell, and has two children, Robert Waddell and Mary Elizabeth; studied civil engineering at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and has practiced his profession in Mississippi, Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia, was engaged in general practice in Florence and Sheffield, 1889-1892; was in the engineering department of the U. S. government from 1892 to 1901; and has since engaged in general practice in Montgomery and vicinity, is a Democrat and Episcopalian; children by second marriage: 3. Lilybec, m. Richard N. Cobb, of Livingston; 4. Anna, m. Wayne W. Patton, of Livingston; 5. Reuben, of South McAlester, Okla.; 6. Lulu, of Lebanon, Ky. Last residence: Livingston, Ala.

CHAPMAN, ROBERT B., dentist, was born in 1855 in Pike County; son of John D. and Mary H. (Anderson) Chapman, the former of Georgia, the latter of South Carolina, who removed to Alabama about 1847, settling at Wetumpka, and later locating in that part of Pike County which was taken to form Crenshaw County, where they lived and died. He was educated in the county schools; a student of Rutledge academy; clerked in a drug store, with Dr. E. H. Johnson, his brother-in-law; entered the dental department of Vanderbilt university, in 1885, graduating D. D. S. He began the practice of dentistry in Crenshaw, later moving to Troy; in 1915, his health failing, he retired from business and located on his plantation near Luverne. He is a Democrat; a Mason; Knight of Pythias; charter member of Knights and Ladies of Honor; and a Methodist. Married in 1878, in Pike County, to Leonora, daughter of Dr. Gus Johnson, of Rutland; sister of Dr. E. H. Johnson, of Troy. Children: 1. Eugene; 2. Anna, deceased, m. Rev. Frank G. Hastings; 3. Belle, m. Charles Gohlson, of Troy; 4. Martha Ouida, m. ——— Cash, of Ohio; 5. Bettie. Residence: near Luverne.

CHAPMAN, SAMUEL, lawyer, born in 1793, near Bowling Green, Caroline County, Va., and died October 11, 1863, in Cahaba, Ala.; was the elder brother of Gov. Reuben Chapman (q. v.); and son of Reuben and Ann (Reynolds) Chapman, who lived near Bowling Green, Va. His paternal grandfather, Reuben Chapman, came to this country from Scotland and settled in Virginia. Ann Reynolds was a granddaughter of Col. Richard Miller. Judge Chapman was graduated from Washington College and read law under the direction of Chapman Johnston at Staunton. After his admission to the bar in 1815, he removed to Clarksville, Tenn., and was soon afterward elected solicitor of the district, which office he resigned in 1818 and removed to Huntsville, Ala. He represented Madison County in the first state legislature and was judge of the county court from 1820 to 1832; in the latter year was chosen judge of the circuit court for the district which embraced Sumter County and in 1834 removed to Livingston. By successive elections he was continued on the bench for eighteen years and on his retirement from that position removed to Lauderdale County, Miss., and subsequently to Cahaba, Ala., where he made his home until his death, his last days being spent at the residence of his son-in-law, Gen. E. W. Pettus.

Judge Chapman was large and fine looking, with a dark complexion; and had the reputation of a dignified and impartial judge, and of an honorable and useful citizen. Married: (1) to a daughter of Col. John Shelby, of Tennessee; (2) then to Mary Lucinda Newell, a niece of Hon. Eppes Moody, of Franklin; (3) again to a sister of Gen. Pettus, of Dallas; and (4) lastly to a lady of Mobile. Of his sons, one was killed while serving with the C. S. Army; another was an officer on the cruiser Sumter and became a planter living near Galveston, Tex.; and Capt. Reuben Chapman (q. v.), who died at Livingston. Of his daughters, one married Gen. E. W. Pettus (q. v.), of Dallas; and others married Capt. R. Thom and Judge G. C. Saunders, citizens at one time of Sumter County. Last residence: Cahaba.

CHAPMAN, SIMEON J., lawyer and tax collector, was born March 31, 1861, in Newton, Dale County; son of James S. and Emmeline (Doster) Chapman, of Georgia, who removed to Dale County, before the War of Secession, the former serving as a Confederate soldier, was captured at Nashville, Tenn., and sent as prisoner of war to Camp Chase, Ohio, died and buried there, the number of his grave in Camp Chase Confederate cemetery being "1332;" grandson of Rev. William Chapman, a Methodist minister of Georgia, and of Joel and Mary Doster of North Carolina. He was educated in the common schools of the community; taught for several years; studied law and was admitted to the practice, 1893. On account of ill health he became a cripple, but he has won the reputation as an advocate and counselor. He has been mayor of Newton; also treasurer and secretary of the Baptist association, composed of twenty-four churches, served four years as tax-collector of Dale County. He is a Democrat; and a Missionary Baptist. Married: December 12, 1888, at Newton, to Lela F., daughter of John T. and Bamma Adcock, of Dale. Children: 1. Lola Eron; 2. Lillian Bamma. 3. Euseta Star. Residence: Newton.

CHAPMAN, WILLIAM H., physician and surgeon, was born April 19, 1852, in Pike County; son of John D. and Mary H. (Anderson) Chapman, the former of Georgia, the latter of South Carolina, who removed to Alabama about 1847, living at Wetumpka, also in Covington County for some years and represented this county in the legislature, 1866-67, and later locating in Crenshaw County, where he died; grandson of Benjamin Chapman of Georgia, and of Supra Anderson, of South Carolina, who came with his daughter, Mary H., to Crenshaw County and lived until 1868. He was educated in the schools of the county; later entered the Alabama polytechnic institute; read medicine with Dr. E. H. Johnson, at Rutledge; entered the medical department of Washington university, Baltimore; graduated from Mobile medical college, 1873; 1873-78, he practiced in Crenshaw and Butler counties; removed to Elba and practiced until 1884; on account of ill health discontinued the practice, and moved to Troy, Pike County, where he engaged in the milling business for two years; 1886, removed to his large plantation northeast of Elba, where he now resides and farms. He is a member of the Conecuh county medical society; a Democrat; a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: in March, 1877, in Elba, to Belle, daughter of Charles and Mary (Rhodes) Reynolds, the former a Confederate soldier, a member of the 33d Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, died February, 1864, a prisoner of war at Camp Chase, Ohio. Children: 1. William H., Jr. Residence: Elba.

CHAPMAN, WILLIAM REYNOLDS, chancellor of the southern division, was born June 13, 1880, at Elba, Coffee County; son of William Hickerson and Martha Belle (Reynolds) Chapman, the former a physician, residing successively at Rutledge, Troy and Geneva, but devoted himself to farming in the later years of his life; grandson of John and Mary (Anderson) Chapman of Leon, Crenshaw County, the former was a farmer, a Democrat and Baptist while representing Covington County in the legislature, 1866, he introduced and secured the passage of an act creating Crenshaw County, and of John P. and Mary (Flowers) Reynolds of Macon, Ga., and later of Elba. Chancellor Chapman received his early education in the common schools, the Troy State normal school and the school of Prof. Charles Rowe in Coffee

County. He was a member of the class of 1901 at the University of Alabama but did not complete his course because of the illness of his father. He read law under his uncle, Judge F. N. Hickman, of Geneva; and began the practice in June 1903 at Geneva, where he remained until October 1908, at which time he moved to Dothan, where he has since resided. On June 9, 1914, he was appointed chancellor of the southeastern division of Alabama, to succeed Thomas M. Espy, resigned. In the Democratic primaries of 1914 he was nominated as his own successor, over Hon. John A. Carnley of Elba and Hon. M. W. Rushton of Luverne. On November 3, 1914, he was elected to complete the unexpired term of Judge L. D. Gardner, to which Mr. Espy had been appointed in 1914. He was councilman for the town of Geneva in 1903 and 1904; and mayor of Geneva in 1906, 1907, and a part of 1908. He is a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason; Knight of Pythias; an Elk; and a Modern Woodman of America. Married: December 28, 1904, at Troy, to Ethel Corley, the daughter of W. Burford and Catherine (Jones) Corley; granddaughter of Hon. U. L. Jones, who was at one time probate judge of Pike County, whose wife was a sister of the late Joel D. Murphree of Troy. Children: 1. William Corley; 2. Louis Hicks; 3. Catherine. Residence: Dothan.

CHAPPELL, JOHN JOEL, lawyer, was born January 19, 1782, on Little River, near Columbia, Fairfield County, S. C., and died May 23, 1871, in Letohatchee, Lowndes County, Ala.; son of Hix and Elizabeth (Threewits) Chappell. The father was born about 1758 in the colony of Virginia and became a resident of Fairfield County, S. C.; at the age of eighteen years enlisted as a private in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary war, under Gens. Sumter and Marion; was wounded in the battle of Eutaw Springs, S. C., September 8, 1781; and was promoted to the rank of major. He was a son of Robert Chappell, who lived in Richland District, S. C. The Chappell family is of pure English stock and began emigrating to Virginia about 1634 or 1635, different branches later settling in practically all of the southern states.

John Joel Chappell was educated in the schools of South Carolina and studied law under John C. Calhoun; was admitted to the bar in 1805; and appointed a trustee of South Carolina College in 1809. He practiced law in Columbia, S. C., until 1837, when he removed to Lowndes County, Ala., and resided there throughout the remainder of his life. In 1808 he was elected to the South Carolina house of representatives and served in that position for several years; in October, 1812, was elected a member of congress from Columbia District; in May, 1813, took his seat in the extra session called by President Madison to provide the ways and means for conducting the war with Great Britain; and served during five sessions, being reelected in 1814. During those days he was an intimate friend and great admirer of John C. Calhoun; was an advocate of pure state rights principles; and gave earnest support to the administration of James Madison. He was on the committee for providing ways and means for conducting the War of 1812; and voted for the compensation bill passed in 1815 which fixed the salaries of members of congress at fifteen hundred dollars per annum. In 1805 he was appointed adjutant of the Thirty-third South Carolina regiment and was elected captain; in 1808 was elected colonel of the regiment; and in the War of 1812 commanded a regiment but was never in active service. He was a director of the Columbia branch of the State Bank of South Carolina, 1830-58, and after his removal to Alabama became a cotton planter. In early life he attended the Episcopal church but later joined the Methodist church. Married: May 10, 1811, in Augusta, Ga., to Sophia Maria Greene, daughter of Col. John Greene, of Augusta. Children: 1. Eugenia, m. Andrew C. Calhoun, left no descendants; 2. John Threewits, deceased; 3. Mary, died unmarried; 4. Paul Greene, m. Salina G. DeVeaux, left no descendants; 5. Octavia Theodosia, m. John D. Hopkins, and their children were John Chappell, Fanny and Marion Chappell; 6. Marion, m. Robert Hazlehurst Deas; 7. Henry, m. Cynthia E. Wells, left no descendants; 8. Septima died unmarried. All are deceased. Last residence: Letohatchee, Ala.

CHARDAVOYNE, WILLIAM V., lawyer and merchant, was born June 27, 1833, in Lawrence County, the only child born to William V. and Martha (Watkins) Chardavoyne, natives of New York and Tennessee respectively. The father came to Alabama in 1830 and was extensively engaged in buying and selling cotton, but died of cholera in 1833. His parents were William and Rebecca Chardavoyne, of New York, and his wife was a daughter of William and Susan (Coleman) Watkins, of Georgia. William V. Chardavoyne, jr., was reared and educated in Alabama, at the age of fourteen years entering LaGrange College, of Franklin County, where he completed his education. He began business as a merchant in Courtland but also studied law and engaged in practice for a time. He has taken a prominent part in politics; was private secretary to Gov. Lindsay, 1871-2; and assistant secretary in the state senate two years. He is an elder in the Presbyterian church and a member of the Masonic fraternity. During the War of Secession he was on staff duty in Roddy's division of Patterson's brigade and was in several sharp engagements. Married: in 1856 to Lavinia B. Harris, of Alabama, daughter of Daniel Harris. Children: 1. Martha G.; 2. William H., and 3. Edward V. Residence: Courtland.

CHAUDRON, JULIUS DE LA G., pioneer, was a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and died March 4, 1877, aged seventy-eight years, at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. John F. Blewins, near Marion Junction, Dallas County. He came to Alabama in 1819 and was one of the pioneers of the French Vine and Olive colony who settled the country now included in Marengo County and founded the town of Demopolis. Among his fellow colonists were Bonapartist generals and other exiles of distinction from the French empire who sought refuge in this country. The grant of lands in that entirely unsettled portion of Alabama was made by the U. S. government to refugees from the horrors of the St. Domingo insurrection, many of them sojourning in Philadelphia and other portions of the United States. Prominent among these was Jean Simon Chaudron, father of Julius de la G. Chaudron, a gentleman of large means and chief among the originators of the colonial enterprise. He was an author and senator of distinction, and a large volume of prose and poetical works published in Paris attests his literary ability. Many representatives of the family still live in Alabama and contiguous southern states. Julius de la Chaudron left the record of an upright, honorable lifetime throughout vicissitudes of fortune so varied as fall to the lot of few men. Last residence: near Marion Junction.

CHENAULT, CALVIN SIDNEY, physician, born December 29, 1867; son of John Murphey and Martha W. (Leigh) Chenault; grandson of Morris and Mary (Murphey) Chenault, the former the first circuit court clerk of St. Clair County, and of David G. and Mary Acus (Willson) Leigh, the former a Baptist minister, who came to Alabama from Virginia about 1835, and settled near Moulton; great-grandson of Stephen and Fanny (Nelson) Chenault, the former a Virginian, was the pioneer of the family in Alabama, having settled with his family at old Hazel Green, in what is now Madison County, about 1810, and of John Leigh, a Baptist minister of Virginia, and his wife, who before her marriage was a Miss Johns, the former a younger brother of Light Horse Harry Lee, whose name originally was Leigh. Stephen Chenault was the younger brother or nephew of William Chenault, a Revolutionary soldier, who was the son of Felix Chenault, son of Hugo Chenault, the son of Estienne Chenault, the emigrant, who fled with his family from the province of Languedoc, France, on the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and settled in the Virginia colony at Monikin-Town, Powhattan County, in the early part of the eighteenth century. Dr. Chenault is a graduate of the State normal college at Florence, and of the Birmingham medical college. He taught several years in Alabama and Louisiana schools before beginning the study of medicine. He entered partnership with his brother, Dr. F. L. Chenault, and practiced medicine and surgery at New Decatur. Married: December 27, 1899, to Mary Ellen Osborne, daughter of James Osborne, a planter of Franklin County. Children: 1. Erskine M.; 2. Ervine S., d. in infancy; 3. Geannie Estelle; 4. John James. Residence: New Decatur.

CHENEY, JOHN MARTIN, sr., planter, was born July 17, 1811, at Beaufort, S. C., and died October 20, 1892, in Montgomery; son of John I. and Sarah Royal (Martin) Cheney, of Edgefield, S. C.; grandson of James and Mary Elizabeth (Fendon) Cheney, and of Gen. John Martin, all of Edgefield, the latter a Revolutionary soldier and one of seven brothers who helped establish American independence; great-grandson of Abram and Elizabeth (Terry) Martin of South Carolina; great-great-grandson of Nathaniel and Sarah Terry. He was educated in the private schools of Beaufort, S. C., graduated from South Carolina college and engaged in planting in South Carolina, until 1833, when he removed to Alabama, with the colony that came then. He acquired lands in the western part of Montgomery County and engaged in extensive farming. He was a captain of militia during the Mexican War, but did not go to Mexico. He was connected with the land office before the War of Secession and with the tax office during that war. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: June 8, 1836, in Montgomery County, to Augusta, daughter of William and Harriott (Field) Bellinger, and sister of Dr. Carnot Bellinger (q. v.). Children: 1. Isabella Evalina, m. Walter S. Pierce; 2. John Edmund, m. Queen Anne Wright; 3. Augusta, 4. Mary Louisa, m. Thomas I. Hewlett; 5. William Bozier, m. Smithie Dodson. Last residence: Montgomery.

JUDGE JESSE M. CARMICHAEL

CHERRY, JOSIAH, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 79, resided in Marengo County, June 1, 1840, with J. W. Cherry.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

CHESTNUTT, SAMUEL LEE, jr., professor of applied agriculture, was born August 29, 1879, at Brice's Bridge Farm, Knox County, Tenn.; son of Samuel Lee and Lida Kate (Brice) Chestnutt, of Rogersville, Tenn.; grandson of Rhode and Mary (Lee) Chestnutt, of St. Clair, Tenn., and of Napoleon and Mary (Looney) Brice, of Brice's Bridge Farm. He was educated by his mother; entered McMinn academy, at Rogersville, attended the University of Tennessee, graduating, A. B., 1900; post-graduate work, at same institution, for two years, in horticulture and agriculture. Began teaching as instructor in plant study and applied agriculture, in Farragut model school, 1903; elected professor of horticulture and agriculture at the Alabama girls technical institute, 1907. He has organized farm clubs, farmers' institutes, fair associations, and dairy clubs. He is a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: August 20, 1907, at Concord, Tenn., to Emma Grace, daughter of Samuel Pride and Laura Ann (Rogers) Brown, of Concord. Children: 1. Samuel Lee III; 2. Thomas Brice. Residence: Montevallo.

CHEW, WILLIAM LOCKE, physician, was born in May, 1861, in Calvert County, Md., and died at an early age; a son of Beverly G. and Elizabeth (Smith) Chew, also natives of Maryland, but removed to Mississippi when he was quite young and there the father engaged in planting in the rich bottom lands of the famous Yazoo valley. Dr. Chew received his early education in the schools of Yazoo City, which he attended until fifteen years of age, when he entered the University of Mississippi at Oxford, graduating with the degree of Bachelor of Science, June 28, 1882. In October, 1883, he entered Tulane Medical College, New Orleans, La., where he remained until 1886, during two years of that time being on the medical staff of the Charity Hospital connected with that institution, which honor was highly prized by the students as it indicated superior merit and high standing. In April, 1886 he located in Birmingham and became associated in practice with Dr. B. M. Hughes. For five years he was censor of Jefferson County Medical Society; for the same length of time a member of the county board of health; and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. Last residence: Birmingham, Ala.

CHILTON, CLAUDIUS LYSIAS, minister, author, was born April 27, 1856, in Tuskegee, Macon County, son of William Parish and Elvira Frances (Morgan) Chilton (q. v.), the former a native of Adair County, Ky. He received an academic education but left school at the age of fifteen years, his last teacher being Thomas C. Bragg at Montgomery. After studying for the ministry, he was licensed to preach in July, 1877, at Court Street church, Montgomery, and immediately entered work as supply in the Eastern Shore circuit of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, serving as pastor twenty-six years and as college agent two years of that time, but withdrew from the church at Pensacola, Fla., in December, 1903. In 1859 he became a resident of Montgomery, where he lived until nearly twenty-one years of age; later spent one year in Opelika; one year in Mobile; one year in Whistler; two years in Glennville; one year in Uniontown; three years in Tuskegee; one year in Pensacola, Fla.; one year in Kansas City, Mo.; one year and a half in St. Louis, Mo.; one year and a half in Montgomery; three years in Auburn; four years in Montgomery; four years in Greensboro; one year in Union Springs; and the last seventeen years in Montgomery. At one time he was chaplain of the Montgomery Greys and helped to organize the Governor's Guard and afterward the Montgomery Blues. He is the author of four volumes on "Plain Truth," also "Born of God," pamphlets on "Eternal Punishment," "How to Pray," "False Prophet," and co-author with E. M. Bounds of "The Place of Prayer in Redemption." Married: December 3, 1878, in Benton, to Mabel Cecilia Pierce, daughter of Dr. Dunkin and Mildred (Woods) Pierce, of Benton. Children: 1. Claudius Lysias, jr., of New York; 2. Mildred Woods Aldredge, of Montgomery; 3. William Pierce; 4. John Irby and 5. Cecile Morgan, all three of Montgomery; 6. Arthur Bounds, of Mobile; and 7. Mabel P., 8. Thomas H. and 9. Robert Lovett, all three of Montgomery. Last residence: Montgomery.

CHILTON, JOHN McELDERRY, lawyer and judge of the third judicial circuit, was born March 20, 1848, in Tuskegee, Macon County, died December 29, 1915, at Mountain Creek, and is buried in Montgomery; son of Chief Justice William Parrish and Elvira Frances (Morgan) Chilton (q. v.). He was educated in the private school of Prof. George W. Thomas, at Montgomery, with a short course in the University of Alabama, 1864-65. Reading law in his father's office he was admitted to the bar in 1869, becoming a member of the law firm of which his father was head. Later he practiced with Judge Samuel F. Rice, and Judge Thomas G. Jones. In 1872 he removed to Opelika, where he became the law partner of Gov. William J. Samford. He was appointed judge of the city court in 1873, which position he held for four years declining a re-election. In 1884, he was appointed judge of the third judicial circuit to fill the unexpired term of Judge Henry D. Clayton. It was said of him that "his record as circuit judge was unique in the fact that he was never reversed by the supreme court in a single case." In 1889, he returned to Montgomery, and engaged in the practice of law. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and a Baptist. Married: February 16, 1874, to Annie Unity, daughter of Alexander Hamilton and Margaret Elizabeth Barnett, both of Opelika. Children: 1. Madge, m. E. L. Thornton, Opelika; 2. Annie Lou, m. W. L. Anderson, Union Springs. Last residence: Montgomery.

CHILTON, WILLIAM PARISH, lawyer, chief justice Alabama supreme court, was born August 10, 1810, in Adair County, Ky., and died January 21, 1871, in Montgomery, Ala.; son of John Thomas and Margaret (Bledsoe) Chilton, who lived at Blue Springs in what is now Christian County, Ky. The father was a native of Virginia and a Baptist minister of liberal views, who wrote a small book on the controversies of his day. He was of English ancestry and his people were partisans of Cromwell. Coming to America about 1650 they located on the shores of the Potomac and representatives of the family have since been prominent in public affairs in Virginia and other southern states. Judge Chilton's mother was a sister of Judge Jesse Bledsoe, of Kentucky, and belonged to a very distinguished family. As she died when her son was only three years old and his father soon after, he was left to the care of his sister Jane and her husband, Rev. Charles Metcalfe. Having acquired a good practical education he began teaching school at the age of seventeen years and later read law with Judge Meigs, of the supreme court of Tennessee, at Athens, that state.

In 1834 Judge Chilton came to Alabama and began practice in Mardisville, Talladega County, but later removed to Talladega, from there to Tuskegee and in 1859 to Montgomery, where he made his home until his death. He met with success in his profession and became prominent in public affairs—first as an old line Whig and later as a Democrat after the War of Secession. In 1839 he represented Talladega County in the state legislature and in 1843 was an unsuccessful candidate for congress. After his removal to Macon County in 1846, he was chosen, December 31, 1847, to succeed Judge Ormond on the bench of the supreme court; and on the resignation of the chief justice he succeeded to that position, holding the office from December 6, 1852, to January 2, 1856. In 1859 he was elected a state senator from Macon County, and soon afterward removed to Montgomery. He was a member of the provisional congress in 1861; then a representative in the Confederate congress and was re-elected in 1863. It was as a judicial officer that he illustrated, in the highest manner, those qualities of purity, honesty and integrity, which were his most prominent characteristics. He was, in the most exalted sense, a model judge. He was also recognized as one of the most powerful debaters of his time in the state. He was a deacon in the Baptist church and was serving as grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Alabama at the time of his death. In 1875 the county of Chilton was named in his honor, and the degree of LL.D. had been conferred upon him by a Tennessee university.

Married: (1) at the age of nineteen years to Mary C. Morgan, and (2) to her sister, Elvira Frances Morgan, sisters of Gen. John T. Morgan, (q. v.) of Dallas County, and daughters of George and Frances (Irby) Morgan, who removed from Wytheville, Va., to Nashville, Tenn., later to Athens, Tenn., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Mardisville, Hillabee, Tuskegee, Montgomery and Opelika, then back to Nashville, Tenn. Children: 1. Thomas George, b. November 24, 1833, d. May 30, 1860, m. Lavinia T. Bradford, was a lawyer of Montgomery; 2. Lavinia Afton, m. Col. Anderson Abercrombie, of Huntsville, Texas; 3. Mary, m. Dr. U. R. Jones, of Montgomery; 4. William Parish, jr., b. September 27, 1838, d. in 1892; lieutenant colonel in the C. S. Army; lawyer of Montgomery; solicitor of the ninth judicial district of Alabama; 5. Margaret Frances, m. Bolling Williams, of Mansfield, La.; children of the second marriage: 6. John McEldry (q. v.), of Montgomery, m. Annie U. Barnett; 7. Wilella, m. William S. Thorington, of Montgomery; 8. Arthur Hopkins, died unmarried; 9. Claudius Lysias (q. v.), of Montgomery, m. Mabel C. Pierce; 10. Jennie Read, m. Stanly C. Spier, of Atlanta, Ga.; 11. Lucy Irby and 12. Lucile, both died in infancy. Last residence: Montgomery.

CHISHOLM, MALCOLM A., farmer, comptroller of public accounts, was born April 20, 1809, on the Isle of Skye, Scotland, and died February 3, 1898, at Montgomery; son of Murdoch and Christian (McKinnen) Chisholm, natives of the Isle of Skye, Scotland, who came to America in 1811, when their son Malcolm was two years of age, and settled in Montgomery County, N. C. He was mainly a self-educated man, the only schooling he ever received being in North Carolina when he was a youth. When he was twenty years old, he moved to Macon, Ga.; lived in that place ten years; then, in 1840, moved to Alabama, settling at Montgomery, where he lived uninterruptedly until his death. He engaged in the cotton business in Montgomery, being one of the earliest buyers. He established grading and classifying of cotton, and is said to have established the cotton business in Montgomery. In 1865, he was appointed comptroller of public accounts for the state of Alabama by Gov. Patton. He was elected to that office in the same year, and held the position until he was turned out of office in 1868 by the reconstruction laws. While in office at the capitol, Mr. Chisholm planted the first of the trees which surround the capitol. After his removal, he retired to his plantation, situated three miles from Montgomery, and spent the remaining days of his life farming. His plantation is now a suburb of Montgomery bearing his name. He was a Democrat, and voted for every Democratic nominee from the time he cast his first vote for "Old Hickory," until the time of his death. He was a Presbyterian. Married: in 1850, at Wetumpka, Cornelia Stevens, daughter of Reuben Stevens, of Western Star, O. Children: 1. Charles Arthur, m. Fannie C. Graham, daughter of Duncan B. Graham (q. v.), resides at Chisholm, Montgomery; 2. John, m. Susie O. Graham, daughter of Duncan B. Graham (q. v.), and sister of Mrs. Charles Arthur Chisholm, resides at Chisholm, Montgomery; 3. Malcolm Henry, deceased, unmarried; 4. William Edgar, deceased, m. Jessie Saunders, who resides at Chisholm, Montgomery. Last residence: Chisholm, Montgomery.

CHISHOLM, ROBERT, lawyer, was born October 4, 1844, in Beaufort, S. C.; son of Robert and Louisa Screven (Guerard) Chisholm, who lived in South Carolina, the former a native of that state. He attended Beaufort College until he was fifteen years old, then became a student in the Citadel Military Academy at Charleston, S. C. Early in 1861, he left the academy and went as a volunteer aid on the staff of Gen. Micah Jenkins; later served through the battle of Port Royal as an aid to Col. Dunnivant, commander of the post; was brevetted a lieutenant and assigned to duty at the camp of instruction, near Columbia, S. C.; was made adjutant of the Twentieth South Carolina regiment, commanded by Col. Lawrence M. Keith, in 1862; resigned from that command in July of that year, in order to become captain in the provisional army of the C. S. A.; raised a company of sharpshooters which became part of the Twenty-seventh South Carolina regiment; and remained with that regiment until the close of the war. He fought in all the severe battles around Richmond, at Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Battery Harrison, near Wilmington, N. J., Town Creek and Bentonville; and was offered promotion to the rank of major by Gen. Thomas Jordan, chief of Gen. Beauregard's staff, but declined on account of his age. After the war, he studied law in the office of Gen. James Connor; was admitted to the bar in 1867; and practiced in Charleston, S. C., until 1887, in which year he moved to Birmingham. For five years he served as judicial justice of Charleston, S. C., on the appointment of Gen. Wade Hampton, governor of the state. He has been a member of the board of education of Birmingham; and for many years he and his partner were attorneys for the Central Railroad & Banking Company of Georgia, and the Macon & Birmingham Railroad. He is a Knight of Pythias and an Episcopalian. Married: June, 1865, Margaret Horry Laurens, daughter of John Laurens; and granddaughter of Henry Laurens, first president of the U. S. congress. Children: 1. Eliza L.; 2. John L.; 3. Alexander R.; 4. Louisa S.; 5. Henry L.; 6. Caroline B.; 7. Heyward; 8. Margaret H. Residence: Birmingham.

CHITWOOD, WILLIAM P., lawyer, was born September 3, 1836, in Lincoln County, Tenn.; son of Col. Stephen C. Chitwood, a native of Virginia, who moved to Lincoln County, Tenn., where he filled several important offices, was a colonel of the militia and a prominent citizen of the county, moved to Lawrence County in 1843 and died in 1882. He was reared in Lawrence County; received his early schooling in Moulton, and later attended Irving College, near McMinnville, Tenn. After he left school, he studied law with Ex-Gov. Lewis, at Moulton, continuing the study and practice of law until the outbreak of the War of Secession. He served through the war with Roddy's cavalry, and after peace was declared resumed his law practice at Moulton. He remained at that place until 1889, when he moved to Tusculumbia, and took his position as a member of the Colbert County bar. In March, 1891, he was appointed judge of the district court of Colbert and Lauderdale Counties. He is a mason; and a member of the Knights of Honor. Married: December 10, 1870, Laura Lyon, of Winona, Miss. Children: Six sons and one daughter; one of the sons, William Lyon, was graduated at Howard College, 1889, read law with his father and was admitted to the bar in 1892. Residence: Tusculumbia.

CHOATE, WASHINGTON, Congregational minister, for some time a resident of Alabama, was born January 17, 1846, at Essex, Mass.; son of David and Elizabeth (Wade) Choate. He graduated A. B., Amherst college, 1870; received the honorary degree of D. D. from the same college, 1893; and graduated from Union theological seminary, 1875. He was ordained a Congregationalist minister in 1875; served churches in New Hampshire, New York, and Connecticut; was corresponding secretary, 1891-1907, treasurer, 1907-09, of the Congregational missionary society; and professor of systematic theology, Talladega college, 1909-12. Married: September 21, 1875, to Grace R. Whiston, of Brooklyn. Residence: Essex, Mass.

CHRISTIAN, JOHN BEVERLY, lawyer, was born January 28, 1859, on his father's plantation, "Fair Oaks," in Perry County, and died July 11, 1916, at Uniontown; son of Robert and Ella (Storrs) Christian; and grandson of John Beverly Christian, chief justice of Virginia. He obtained his preliminary education in the common schools at Uniontown; entered the University of Alabama, and was graduated from that institution with honor, LL. B., July, 1880. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, and had practiced law for several years, when, in 1885, he was appointed postmaster of Uniontown. He held that office for two years, then resigned to resume his profession, the practice of law. In 1890, he was elected justice of the peace at Uniontown, and was re-elected every four years after that time, until his death brought to an end twenty-six years' service in that office. He was an Episcopalian, a member of the Memorial Church of the Holy Cross of Uniontown. He was a Mason for thirty-five years, and was grand high priest of the Grand Royal Arch chapter of Alabama, 1909-1910. Last residence: Uniontown.

CHRISTOPHER, JOHN RICHARD, farmer, Baptist minister and legislator, was born February 26, 1866, at Salem, Limestone County; son of John Washington and Louisa Evelin (Patterson) Christopher, the former lived at Salem, served in the C. S. Army, was justice of the peace, and a Baptist minister, once moderator of the Richland Creek association; grandson of John Washington Christopher and wife, the former a soldier in the War of 1812, who came to Alabama in 1837. He was educated in the common schools. He is a farmer and a member of the legislature of 1919, from Limestone County. He is a Democrat, and a minister of the Baptist church. Married: June 2, 1912, to Nannie Lou, daughter of Johnston and Laura Barnes, of Boonshill, Tenn. She is of Scotch-Irish descent. Residence: Athens.

CILLEY, PHILIP NOBLE, physician, was born March 9, 1821, at Weare, Hillsborough County, N. H.; son of Hon. Seth Noble and Sarah (Cavis) Cilley, the former of whom was born at Weare, N. H., in 1783, and the latter at Bow, N. H., in 1791; grandson of John and Elizabeth (Fowler) Cilley, of Salisbury, N. H., who later moved to Weare, N. H., the former was a farmer, and a soldier in the French and Indian and Revolutionary Wars, and of Nathaniel Cavis, a native of Merrimack County, N. H., who spent all his life in that county, was a farmer, fought in the Indian wars and the Revolution, and died at Bow, N. H.; great-grandson of Thomas and Lydia (French) Cilley; great-great-grandson of Benoni and Eleanor (Gatchell) Cilley; great-great-great-grandson of Richard Cilley, a magistrate at the Isles of Shoals, who moved to Hampton Falls, N. H., in 1863; great-great-great-great-grandson of Capt. Robert Seely, of Watertown, Mass., one of two brothers who came from the Isle of Man, was married in 1630 at Watertown, Mass., moved to New Hampshire and died at Weare. Dr. Cilley's father was a farmer, a member of the lower house of the state legislature for several terms, a soldier in the War of 1812, and a prominent Mason. He died in New Hampshire in 1861, his wife having died in 1850. Dr. Cilley was educated at Weare and New Hampton, N. H., and began life for himself at the age of sixteen, teaching school in the winter in Hillsborough County, at Merrimack and in Massachusetts, until 1841, when he went to Union District, S. C., and taught school there one year. He taught in La Place, Macon County, five years, and in 1846, began reading medicine under Dr. Burr Johnston, of Macon County; moved to Lowndesboro and read medicine with Dr. H. V. Wooten; and in 1848 was graduated from the University of Louisiana, now Tulane University, at New Orleans. He located at Sandy Ridge, Lowndes County, that same year and opened his practice. The next year, he entered a partnership with his former preceptor, Dr. Wooten, at Lowndesboro, and that association continued until Dr. Wooten moved to Memphis, Tenn., to accept the chair of principles and practice of medicine in the Memphis Medical College. Dr. Cilley continued his profession at Lowndesboro, practicing in that county for nearly fifty years, and engaged in planting toward the latter part of his life. He served in the State legislature in 1886 and 1887, being a member of the committees on temperance, education, and public buildings. He was author of a law to prohibit the sale of intoxicants in Lowndes County. He was for many years censor in the Lowndes County Medical Society, and was a counselor in the State medical association. He was a deacon of the Missionary Baptist Church; a Mason; a member of the Sons of Temperance; and of the I. O. G. T. Married: (1) April 21, 1851, in Hayneville, Caroline Sarah Saffold, who died June 17, 1856, daughter of Judge Reuben Saffold of Dallas County, one of the pioneer citizens of Alabama, and one of the first supreme justices of the state; (2) April 14, 1859, Sarah Kast Whitman, daughter of James K. and Mary Brown (McCall) Whitman, of Lowndesboro, the former a merchant and planter, who was born in Halifax County, Va., went to Tennessee when young, moved to Lowndesboro, where he was married, and lived there the remainder of his life, dying in 1880, the latter a native of South Carolina, born in 1818, who died in 1874. Children, by first marriage: 1. Mary B., d. in 1855; 2. Philip Noble, d. in 1857; 3. Sarah Cavis; by second marriage: 4. Elizabeth Louise, m. T. W. Howard; 5. Rosa Bibb, m. Rev. R. M. Hunter, Jasper, Walker County. Last residence: Lowndesboro.

CLAIBORNE, FERDINAND LEIGH, soldier, was born in 1772, in Sussex County, Va., and died in 1815, in Natchez, Miss.; son of William and Mary (Leigh) Claiborne, of Manchester, Va.; grandson of Nathaniel and Jane (Dole) Claiborne, of "Sweet Hall," Va.; great-grandson of Capt. Thomas and Ann (Fox) Cleborne; great-great-grandson of Lt. Col. Thomas Cleborne and wife, a Miss Dandridge; brother of Gov. William C. C. Claiborne (q. v.). He was educated in the schools of Virginia; appointed ensign of infantry, U. S. Army, 1793; promoted captain, 1799; resigned from the army, 1802, and located in Natchez, Miss., as a merchant. He was elected to the Mississippi Territorial legislature, 1804; colonel of militia, 1805; commander of the troops sent to support General Wilkinson, 1806, in the Sabine campaign; 1811, brigadier-general of militia of the Territory, and organized the militia for U. S. government service. In 1813, he was made brigadier-general of volunteers; was stationed at Fort Stoddard, and served actively throughout the War of 1812 and the Creek uprising, in defense of the white pioneer settlers, especially along the Alabama river. In December, 1813, he attacked the Indians at the "Holy Ground." After victory, he returned to Natchez and resumed his work as general of militia. He was elected to the Mississippi legislative council, 1815, and presided over that body. Married: in 1802, to Magdalene, daughter of Col. Anthony Hutchins, an English officer. Last residence: Natchez, Miss.

CLAIBORNE, THOMAS D., major and lieutenant colonel, 7th Confederate cavalry; lieutenant colonel, 10th Georgia cavalry regiment, C. S. Army.

CLAIBORNE, WILLIAM CHARLES COLE, statesman, was born in August, 1775, in Sussex County, Va., and died November 23, 1817, at New Orleans; son of William and Mary (Leigh) Claiborne, of Manchester, Va., and brother of Gen. Ferdinand Leigh Claiborne (q. v.). He was educated at the Richmond academy and William and Mary college, Va.; studied law and was admitted to the bar. He located in Nashville, Tenn.; was appointed by Governor Sevier, judge of the supreme court of the territory. In 1796, he assisted in framing the constitution of the State of Tennessee; represented his district in the 5th and 6th congresses, 1797-1801; his vote assisted in determining Jefferson as president of the United States. In 1801, President Jefferson appointed him governor of the Territory of Mississippi; 1803, he served, with Gen. Wilkinson, as a commissioner to take possession of Louisiana, at its purchase from the French. When, in 1812, Louisiana was admitted to the Union as a State, he resigned from the office of governor-general of Mississippi territory, and was elected governor of Louisiana. He shared with Gen. Andrew Jackson in the defense of New Orleans, 1815; was elected twice as governor then sent to U. S. senate, 1817, but his illness that resulted in death, prevented his taking his seat. Married: (1) to Eliza Lewis of Nashville; (2) to Clarisee Duralde, of New Orleans; (3) to Suzette Booque. A monument by the sculptor, St. Gies, has been erected to his memory. Last residence: New Orleans.

CLANTON, JAMES HOLT, soldier, lawyer, politician, brigadier general, C. S. Army, was born January 8, 1827, in Columbia County, Ga., and died September 26, 1871, at Knoxville, Tenn.; son of Nathaniel Holt and Mary (Clayton) Clanton, the former a native of Georgia, removed to Alabama, settled in Macon County in 1835, represented his county in the house in 1838, and in the State senate, in 1853, the latter a relative of Gen. Henry D. Clayton (q. v.); grandson of Holt and Catherine (Newsom) Clanton, the former a Revolutionary soldier serving six years in the Virginia Continental line, who moved to Darby's Mill, north of Augusta, in 1801, and of Charles and Hannah (Doggett) Clayton of Columbia County, Ga., the former a planter of that county who married first a daughter of Captain Garmany of South Carolina; great-grandson of John Doggett, a soldier of the Revolution, and a lineal descendant of Benjamin Doggett, an early Episcopal clergyman of Virginia. General Clanton was educated in the county schools of Macon County and matriculated at the State university, but immediately thereafter volunteered for the War with Mexico as a private in Capt. Rush Elmore's company of Col. Bailie Peyton's regiment. On the expiration of his service, he re-enlisted in the Palmetto regiment, but reached Mexico after the occupation of the capital. He returned home, read law at Tuskegee in the office of David Clopton, attended the law school of Judge Chilton, and was admitted to the bar there in 1850. He at once located in Montgomery. In 1855, he represented that county in the legislature, and in 1860, was a candidate for elector on the Bell and Everett ticket. He opposed the secession of the State from the union, but when Alabama seceded, he entered the service of the State, as captain of a mounted company. He served first on the Florida coast. In 1861, he augmented his command to a regiment, and was chosen its first colonel, the regiment being known as the First Alabama cavalry. He was later ordered to Tennessee, and opened the battle of Shiloh, being also engaged the second day; served on General Grant's staff at the battle of Farmington; commanded a brigade, consisting of his own regiment and one from Mississippi, and Maj. S. J. Murphy's battalion at Boonville, and drove the enemy before him. During the spring of 1863, he raised three regiments, the 6th, 7th, and the 9th Alabama cavalry, and was commissioned a brigadier general. He never had the opportunity to handle his command as a brigade, on account of the necessities of the service. He successfully fought General Rousseau, at Ten Islands, on the Coosa, opposing thirteen hundred men for several hours, with his force of two hundred. In this engagement, he lost his entire staff. He continued to harass the federal general, continually in his march through the State. He served on General Polk's staff at Resaca, Adairsville, and Cassville. In the spring of 1865, he relieved Gen. Alpheus Baker, at Polard, and successfully opposed the raid of the enemy on that place. Later, he opposed General Steele's corps and was dangerously wounded and captured at Bluffton Springs, Fla. He was paroled at Pensacola, about May 1, 1865. He resumed the practice of his profession in 1866, and was attorney for the State of Alabama in the matter of the Alabama and Chattanooga railroad case, when he was shot in the streets of Knoxville, by David M. Nelson, following a heated argument between Nelson and himself concerning remarks made in the federal court, on that day. Married: in Russell County, to Parthenia, daughter of Gen. James and Evalina (Ross) Abercrombie (q. v.). Children: 1. Mollie, d. young; 2. James Abercrombie, d. unm., at El Paso, Tex., 1902; 3. Thomas, d. young; 4. Holt, d. young; 5, 6. and 7., died young. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLANTON, TURNER, jr., major and lieutenant colonel, 7th Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army.

CLARK, ALEXANDER HUMPHREYS, planter, was born in 1844, in New Orleans, La.;

son of James S. and Margaretta Brown (Sproule) Clark, natives of Kentucky, who were reared, educated and married in that state, moved to Vicksburg, and in 1842, to New Orleans, where they spent the remainder of their lives; grandson of James Clark, a native of England, and of Charles and Margaret (Humphreys) Sproule, the former a native of Ireland, who came to the United States at an early day, settling in Kentucky, was owner of a line of barges on the Mississippi River, and died near Montgomery when a young man, the latter a native of Virginia, of the third generation from Rev. John and Margaret Preston of Virginia, who came from the north of Ireland in 1740. Mr. Clark was graduated from the New Orleans High School at the age of fifteen; in April, 1861, joined the First Louisiana battalion; served the first year of the war in Virginia; was in the Peninsular campaign and was discharged in May, 1862; returned home and joined Fenner's Louisiana battery and saw active service until he surrendered in May, 1865, at Cuba Station. After peace was established, he engaged in merchandising in New Orleans, La., until 1880, then moved to Montgomery County, Ala., and engaged in farming. Married: 1877, Sallie McGehee Graves, born in Montgomery County, daughter of Peyton S. and Sallie (McGehee) Graves, the former a native of Lowndes County, who died at New Orleans in 1892, where he had for twenty-five years been occupied as a merchant; grand-daughter of Abner McGehee, of Georgia, one of the original settlers of Montgomery County, who settled nine miles south of the city of Montgomery at McGehee's Switch, on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, when the country was a wilderness, and was instrumental in building the Montgomery & West Point Railroad. Children: 1. Alexander Humphreys, jr., b. February 11, 1879, was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, M. S., 1899, was assistant in English literature at that institution, 1898-1899, teacher in a high school at Baton Rouge, La., 1899-1900, and at Hope Hull, 1900; 2. Sarah McGehee, B. S., 1900, employed by the state department of education, Montgomery. Residence: Hope Hull.

CLARK, C. J., physician, was born October 27, 1816, in Laurens District, S. C. He studied medicine; attended lectures at the Georgia Medical College, 1836-1837, and in the latter year came to Alabama, and located at Jacksonville to practice his profession. He attended a course of lectures at the Louisville Medical College, Kentucky, 1841-1842, and at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., 1843-1844, receiving from both of those institutions the degree of M. D. He was appointed assistant surgeon in the United States volunteers, and attached to the First Alabama regiment, in 1846; was promoted to surgeon the following year; was assigned to the famous Palmetto regiment of South Carolina; took part in all the battles in the valley of Mexico; and served in that position until the end of the War with Mexico. For his faithful discharge of duty in that position, he received a gold medal from the state of South Carolina. At the outbreak of war in 1861, Dr. Clark was commissioned a surgeon in the C. S. Army, and at the special request of Gov. Shorter of Alabama, was placed in charge of the Alabama Hospital in Richmond. In 1863, he was ordered to Montgomery, where he remained on hospital duty until the end of the war. After peace was declared, he located in Selma and practiced his profession. He was a member of the Medical Society of Selma, a member of the city council, and chairman of the board of education of that city. He was very active in promoting the welfare of the public schools, and was chairman of the board of trustees of Dallas Academy. He was a frequent contributor to medical journals and papers, his articles on "Typhoid Fever in Alabama," causing profound attention from the profession in the United States. Last residence: Selma.

CLARK, FRANCIS BARNARD, business man, was born January 3, 1820, at Dansville, Livingston County, N. Y., and died January 18, 1910, in New York City; son of Willis Fish and Charity (Barnard) Clark, the former born August 21, 1786, at Mansfield, Windham County, Conn., who died in Dansville, N. Y., October 5, 1858, the latter a native of Bolton, Mass., born June 7, 1792, who died August 13, 1861, at Dansville; grandson of Oliver and Elizabeth (Fish) Clark, who lived in Connecticut and New York, the former born August 16, 1784, at Mansfield, Conn., and died September 22, 1824, was a soldier in the Revolution and was engaged in the battle of Bunker Hill, the latter born April 16, 1756, died November 2, 1850, and of John and Elizabeth (Fallace) Barnard; great-grandson of William Fallace, the largest landowner in and around Rome, N. Y., where he built and owned a canal before the days of the Erie canal, whose home was the most commodious in town and was captured by the British and used for Army headquarters during the war of 1812. The Clark and Barnard branches both came from England. Among them was Sir Francis Barnard, colonial governor of New Jersey in 1757, who was transferred to Massachusetts, August 4, 1760, as governor general of Massachusetts and New Jersey. Mr. Clark was a cousin of Lewis Gaylord Clark and Willis Gaylord Clark, twin brothers, the first of whom was the founder of the "Knickerbocker Magazine," the earliest successful publication of its kind in the country; and was brother of Willis Gaylord Clark (q. v.). His father lived at Mansfield, Conn., until he moved to Rome, N. Y., 1807, where he studied medicine with his uncle, Dr. Elijah Clark; moved to Dansville, N. Y., in 1813 and practiced his profession there for the next twelve years; then embarked on a successful lumber and mercantile business; at the time of his death, business was suspended in his community as a sign of respect.

Mr. Clark's early education was obtained under private tutors in Dansville, and he was graduated from Georgetown College, near Lexington, Ky., C. E., 1838. Between 1839 and 1842, he went to Augusta, Ga., as the representative of Haviland, Risley & Company, of New York, and soon after was admitted as a partner. He went to Mobile and established the firm of Haviland, Clark & George, which for many years conducted a large wholesale import and export drug and chemical business, including cotton among the exports and rare products among the imports. The firm was dissolved at the beginning of the War of Secession. From 1846 to 1860, Mr. Clark, with others, exerted his best abilities in building the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, projected from the Gulf to the Ohio River, through Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky. The headquarters of the company was located in Mobile, and the railroad was at one time said to be the longest under one management in the world. Mr. Clark was elected repeatedly as director, and was for many years chairman of the executive committee of the board, the most responsible post in the organization. During the war, miles of track were destroyed and rebuilt to the temporary advantage of first one army of occupation and then the other. The early annual reports of the company were prepared chiefly by Mr. Clark. Incorporating those of subordinates, there are four large bound volumes compiled by him, recently placed by his sons in the archives of the state.

VICTOR H. HANSON

During the War of Secession, Mr. Clark served in the home guards in the military defenses around Mobile prior to its capture by Admiral Farragut and its occupation by Federal troops. He was elected without his knowledge, being away at the time, a member of the State legislature from 1865 to 1868, the first legislature elected after the end of the war, and the last one elected by the white people of the state until the end of the "carpet-bag" reign. This legislature was the creator of the first revenue code, and as chairman of the ways and means committee, the burden of the work fell on Mr. Clark. The present revenue code of Alabama is practically the same in principle as the one written mainly by Mr. Clark. While a member of the legislature, he published a pamphlet in blank verse, styled "The Calling of the Roll," in which he began with the first name on the roll of the legislature, and made a reference to each member of the house. He projected the Mobile & Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad, connecting the coal and iron regions with the Gulf. He, however, built only the first sixty miles; his supporters having to withdraw during the financial panic following "Black Friday" of 1873. The road was in later years finished by another company as the Mobile & Birmingham Railway. During his public and private occupation, Mr. Clark enjoyed home life in a typical English and Southern way, by having a well appointed town house, on Church street, and a beautiful country home, at Beaver Meadow. During the war, thinking the city would be bombarded, he removed to his country home his belongings of special value, such as rare books, manuscripts, silverware and paintings, only to have the house burned by bushwhackers, wandering through the brush. Mr. Clark was originally an old line Whig, and afterwards a Democrat to the end. At first he opposed disunion and refused to be a delegate to the Secession convention; but later he lent all his support to the cause of the Confederacy. He was a member of the Episcopal church, and was a delegate to many state and national Episcopal conventions. He was a frequent contributor to the press, writing mainly on political, industrial, economic and social topics. He enjoyed personal acquaintanceship with Lafayette, Webster, Clay, Charles Dickens, Thackeray and others of that day.

Married: June 9, 1845, at Mobile, Helen Mary, born September 18, 1822, and died February 23, 1899, at Birmingham, daughter of James and Helen (Verdier) Shepherd, of Orange County, Va.; granddaughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (Bell) Shepherd, who had thirteen children, two of whom married daughters of Frank Madison, brother of James Madison, president of the United States, and of Paul Verdier, who was a French Huguenot, and with his brother Louis Verdier, became a landed proprietor near Orange, Va. Mrs. Clark was in her girlhood a great favorite of Dolly Madison, the president's wife. She was connected by blood and marriage with many noted families of Virginia, among them, the Taliaferros, Pages, Prestons, Grymeses and Taylors. Her father's second wife was Lucinda Taylor daughter of Robert Taylor, who was a cousin of Gen. Zachary Taylor, president of the United States. Children: 1. Gaylord Blair (q. v.); 2. James Shepherd, b. Orange, Va., 1848, d. New York, 1913, was one of the editors of "El Comcio," a Spanish paper, m. Sadie Brandon of Huntsville, who resides at El Comcio, N. Y., children, Antonia Laurie, Lucile Shepherd, Mildred Lee, and Paul, d. in youth; 3. Francis Barnard (q. v.); 4. Fillmore LeVert, lawyer, b. 1856 in Mobile, m. Mary E. Parker, resides at Detroit, Mich., children, Hervey and Helen Mary; 5. Burnet Laurie, b. Mobile, 1858, who with his brother edited "El Comcio," m. Amandine Oliver of Mobile and Portland, resides at New York City; 6. Helen Cabell, b. 1860 in Mobile, resides in Birmingham, m. James Norman Brooks of Baltimore, who d. in New York, 1887; 7. Gen. Louis Verdier (q. v.), b. 1862, in Mobile, adjutant general of state militia, m. Mildred Jones of Selma, who d. at Selma, 1897, resides in Birmingham. Last residence: Birmingham.

CLARK, FRANCIS BARNARD, JR., lawyer and author, was born November 7, 1850, at Augusta, Ga., and died October 30, 1896, at Mobile; son of Francis Barnard and Helen Mary (Shepherd) Clark (q. v.); nephew of Willis Gaylord Clark (q. v.); and brother of Gaylord Blair Clark (q. v.), and of Gen. Louis Verdier Clark. He was prepared in a private school in Mobile; was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., C. E., 1873; and from the law school of the University of Virginia. In 1875 he was admitted to the bar at Mobile, which city has been his home nearly all his life. In 1878, he published Clark's "Manual of Criminal Law," which had an extensive circulation in Alabama and the country generally, and was adopted as a text book in the law department of the University of Alabama. He was appointed recording secretary to Gov. George S. Houston, that same year, and remained with him until Mr. Houston's election to the U. S. Senate in 1879. About that time, under a special act of the State legislature, Mr. Clark was made special supreme court reporter, and acted in that capacity for about six months. During that time, in conjunction with Thomas J. Jones, the state reporter, and later governor of Alabama, he prepared volumes fifty-seven and fifty-eight of Alabama reports. In 1880 he was elected state prosecuting attorney and solicitor for the county of Mobile by the legislature, and held the office six years, exercising his efforts and influence successfully in that period towards re-establishing and improving the jury system of the county. In 1882, he prepared a book on legal and business forms, of which a second edition was published in 1889. He was appointed by Ex-Chief Justice Robert C. Brickell to aid in the preparation and revision of the laws of Alabama, comprising the code of 1886, the second volume of which embodies almost entirely Mr. Clark's individual method and work. His name was strongly urged by the bench, bar and press throughout the state as commissioner to prepare the code of 1896. He had already revised and published the second edition of "Clark's Form Book." He was the junior partner of the firm of Clark & Clark, which represented a varied clientage, including large railroad, telegraph, insurance and other corporation interests in Alabama and other states, as well as a large individual clientage at home. Besides his literary and professional work, he had in 1890 obtained considerable success in investments and business affairs which had prospered.

About the time of his admission to the bar, Mr. Clark aided in the reorganization of some of the historical military companies of Mobile, one of them being the Washington Light Infantry, first organized prior to the Mexican War. He acted as captain of that company for several years. The degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him by the Virginia Military Institute. He was a Democrat; an Episcopalian, a vestryman in the Christ church at Mobile, and at the time of his death was chancellor of the diocese of Alabama; was a member of the Beta Theta Pi college fraternity; of the Knights of Pythias; and of the Odd Fellows. In addition to the other works mentioned, Mr. Clark was author of "Clark's Criminal Digest," "The Grand Jury," several legal pamphlets, short stories of fiction, and some poetry. Married: July 29, 1879, in Montgomery, Mary Pickett Banks, who died March 25, 1891, daughter of Maj. E. W. and Eliza (Pickett) Banks, of Montgomery; granddaughter of Col. Albert James Pickett, historian, author of "Pickett's History of Alabama"; niece of Bishop Samuel S. Harris, of the Protestant Episcopal church, diocese of Michigan. Children: 1. Willis Gaylord, Episcopal clergyman, m. Lottie Ivy Hibbler, resides at Birmingham; 2. Francis Barnard, m. Mary Hale, granddaughter of Stephen F. Hale, colonel of the Eleventh Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, for whom Hale County was named, resides at Birmingham; 3. Fairfax, deceased. Last residence: Mobile.

CLARK, FRANK, representative in congress from the Gainesville District in Florida, is a native of Alabama, born March 28, 1860, at Eufaula; son of Capt. John Wise and Mary Emeline (Keils) Clark (q. v.). He received his early education in Alabama and Georgia; read law in the office of Col. P. F. Smith; was admitted to the bar, 1881, at Fairburn, Ga., and practiced there until 1895; removed to Florida, where he was a member of the state legislature, 1889, 1891, and 1899; district attorney for the Southern district of Florida, 1894-97; and elected to the 59th to 65th congresses, 1905-1919, from the 2nd Florida district. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; a Knight of Pythias, and an Elk. Married: October 8, 1884, to Mary Ellen, daughter of Marquis De Lafayette and Mary Ellen Mayo, of Polk County, Fla. Children: 1. Edward; 2. Frank; 3. Lucile; 4. Harriet Wise. Residence: Gainesville, Fla.

CLARK, GAYLORD BLAIR, lawyer, was born April 16, 1846, in Mobile, and died, June 15, 1893, at Mobile; son of Francis Barnard and Helen Mary (Shepherd) Clark (q. v.); nephew of Willis Gaylord Clark (q. v.); and brother of Francis Barnard Clark, jr. (q. v.), and of Gen. Louis Verdier Clark (q. v.). He received his early schooling in the Barton Academy at Mobile, then entered the Virginia Military Institute, at Lexington, Va., in 1863. While a cadet in the latter institution, he entered with his corps the active military service of the C. S. Army; participated in the battle of New Market, and other less notable affairs, continuing in the service until the evacuation of Richmond and the surrender of Lee. His studies were resumed at the Military Institute after the war had ended, and he was graduated there with honor, C. E., 1867. During the last year of his collegiate life, he was selected by the board of visitors as assistant professor of mathematics, but declined the position. He followed the profession of civil engineer for two years after graduation, being employed in that capacity by the Mobile & Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad Company, of which his father was president at that time. While still following the occupation of civil engineer, he became interested in the study of law, and soon after abandoned his profession to read law in the office of Amos R. Manning and Percy Walker, the former of whom served upon the supreme court of Alabama, and the latter several terms in congress. Mr. Clark was admitted to the bar at Mobile in 1870, but continued his studies for two years afterward, entering regularly upon the practice of law in 1872 in Mobile. During the first year of his practice, he was admitted to the supreme court of Alabama, and in 1881 was admitted to practice in the supreme court of the United States. He was admitted to and practiced in the supreme courts of Mississippi, Florida, and Louisiana, and in the United States courts in those states. He formed a partnership with his brother, Francis Barnard Clark (q. v.), under the firm name of Clark & Clark. One of his greatest triumphs was achieved within the very first few years of his practice in the case of Donovan vs. Morgan and Raynor, in which he met and overthrew in a difficult case John A. Campbell and George N. Stewart. While still young in the practice he became the lawyer of the struggling Southern & Atlantic Telegraph Company, and by his subtle and successful tactics in that company's legal warfare with the powerful Western Union Company, he attracted so much the attention of the latter company, that after it had merged the younger rival, it at once sought, and thereafter retained, his services.

Mr. Clark was one of the organizers of the state bar association, and was a member of the American Bar Association. Upon different occasions, he was offered judgeships, and twice was offered a position on the bench of the supreme court of the state, but he declined in every case, preferring to devote his time to the practice of the law. He served one term as a member of the Mobile city council in 1876; was elected to the lower house of the state legislature in 1878; was the candidate of his party for the State senate in 1884, but suffered defeat with the entire Democratic ticket in his county; was a delegate to the national Democratic convention which nominated Grover Cleveland for the presidency in 1888; was frequently a delegate to the Democratic conventions in the state; was an alternate presidential elector for the Mobile congressional district; was a member of the Democratic state executive committee and chairman of the district executive committee for several years. He was counsel for the quarantine board of Mobile Bay and for the Mobile River commission, general counsel for the Mobile & Birmingham Railroad Company, and district attorney for the Mobile and Mississippi division of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company. He was a vestryman of Christ's Protestant Episcopal church, a member of the New York Democratic Club, and of the Southern Society of New York. Married: April 15, 1881, Lettice Lee Smith, daughter of Col. Robert White Smith, a prominent cotton merchant of Mobile. Children: 1. Gaylord Lee; 2. Lettice Lee. Last residence: Mobile.

CLARK, GEORGE, lawyer, was born July 18, 1841, at Eutaw; son of James Blair and Mary (Erwin) Clark (q. v.). He was prepared for college in the schools of Eutaw; and entered the University of Alabama with the class of 1861. On the fall of Fort Sumter he abandoned his studies and enlisted as a private in the Eleventh Alabama regiment, C. S. Army. He was promoted to lieutenant, and in 1862 to captain, and served as the latter throughout the war. He participated in the battles of Yorktown, Williamsburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and the severe fighting along the Weldon railroad, the "mine," and various engagements north of the James River. He was wounded at Gaines' Mill in 1862, at Gettysburg in 1863, and at Reams Station near Petersburg, in August, 1864. After the surrender at Appomattox, he returned home, studied law with his father and was admitted to the bar in 1866. He began to practice law in Eutaw, but moved to Texas, January, 1867, and located at Weatherford. The next year, he moved to Waco, Tex., and permanently established himself in his profession. During the trouble with the Radical incumbents, occasioned by the installation of Gov. Coke and the Democratic state ticket in 1874, Judge Clark was placed temporarily in charge of the office of secretary of state under the incoming administration. Soon after, he was made attorney-general of Texas, and held the office from 1874 to 1876, when it was vacated by the intervention of the new constitution. At that time, he was appointed commissioner to aid in the revision and codification of the laws of Texas. He was appointed judge of the court of appeals in 1879, but resigned in October, 1880, and has since that time, devoted himself to his profession. In 1892, he was a candidate before the Democratic primaries for nomination as governor of Texas, but upon the assembling of the convention, the demands of the extremists caused a split in the Democratic party in Texas, and Judge Clark was defeated. Married, in 1874, at Austin, Tex., Mary Johns. Residence: Waco, Tex.

CLARK, HENRY W., author and business man. Deceased. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLARK, JAMES BLAIR, lawyer, was born June 22, 1796, in Bedford County, Pa., and died in 1873, in Alabama. His ancestors were Protestant Irish, and settled in Pennsylvania at an early date. He passed his youth on a farm in Chillicothe, O., where his parents moved soon after he was born, and received but a limited education. After clerking for three years, he moved to Kentucky, read law in that state, and was licensed to practice, March, 1822. That same year, he went to Alabama, locating at the courthouse of Bibb County, where he began his practice. He was elected to the State legislature as representative from Bibb County, 1827-1831; and in the latter year moved to Cahaba where he practiced law for eight years. In 1839 he moved to Eutaw; was appointed chancellor by Gov. Fitzpatrick in 1845, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. J. L. Martin, but was defeated before the legislature by Hon. Wylie W. Mason. In 1851, he was elected to the office of chancellor, and for twelve years thereafter, was re-elected, defeating Hon. Stephen F. Hale at one time. At that period, the office of chancellor was particularly laborious and arduous. The chancery system itself was in a crude and undigested state. Chancellor Clark was under the necessity of traveling over half the state by private conveyance and over miserable roads. There was little uniformity or regularity in the chancery practice—there was no time afforded for prying narrowly into books for precedents—the business had to be dispatched in a hurry or left untouched. Chancellor Clark brought to the discharge of his official duties the same love of method, the same laborious habits and punctuality for which he had been honorably distinguished at the bar. As a result, the chancery practice owes much of its uniformity to the labors of Mr. Clark. He resigned from that position in 1863, and made no further appearance in public life. After the War of Secession, he resumed his profession in partnership with his son, Maj. T. C. Clark. Married: (1) 1825, in Kentucky, Mary Erwin, sister of Col. John Erwin; (2) 1866, Mrs. Davis, of Pickens County. Children by first marriage: 1. John Blair, b. June 9, 1826, bookseller, Selma, d. 1865, at Eutaw; 2. Maj. T. C., lawyer; 3. Capt. James D., of Wilcox, an officer of the Thirteenth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, was killed in Virginia, during the War of Secession; 4. Joseph Pickens, A. B., A. M., 1856, planter, b. January 29, 1836, private, Co. B, Eleventh Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, 1861-1862, mayor of Eutaw, 1865, 1873-1875, clerk of the circuit court, Greene County, 1877-1880, m. January 4, 1864, at Eutaw, Lyrene Barclay Hughes, Eutaw; 5. Henry Clay, A. B., b. December 3, 1838, teacher, private, Co. B, Eleventh Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, was killed at Frazier's Farm, June 30, 1862; 6. George (q. v.). Last residence: Eutaw.

CLARK, JAMES S., member of the Constitutional Conventions of 1861, and of 1865, from Lawrence County; circuit judge, 1868.

CLARK, JOHN BUNYAN, teacher, was born June 6, 1884, near Hamilton, Marion County; son of Henry Turner and Missouri Ann (Carpenter) Clark, who lived on a farm near Hamilton, the former of whom was a farmer, carpenter, Primitive Baptist preacher, merchant, and machinist, was a member of the State legislature at one time, and was organizer in the work of the Farmers' Union; grandson of Ellis Jasper and Jamie Catherine (Cantrell) Clark, who lived at Spartanburg, S. C., and of Ellis Carpenter, of Newnan, Ga. He obtained his early education at Macedonia church or schoolhouse, and at other schools near Hamilton; attended West Alabama agricultural school, 1902-1905, teaching schools during the summer months of those years; and was graduated B. S., from the Alabama polytechnic institute at Auburn, 1908. During the summer of 1906, he taught at Goldmine, Marion County, and after graduation, became principal of the Union Springs high school, 1907-1908, declining a fellowship at the Alabama polytechnic institute in order to teach. He was principal of the Nanafalia high school, 1908-1909; received a scholarship to Vanderbilt university, and became a fellow there, 1909-1910; received the degree of M. A. from Vanderbilt university, 1910; became a student on a scholarship at Harvard university, 1910-1911, receiving the degree of A. M., there, in 1911; and registered as candidate for the Ph. D. degree in history and political science at Harvard. He was superintendent of the public schools of Linden, 1911-1912; principal of Marion County high school, 1912-1913; and was re-elected to that position, 1913-1914. He is now assistant professor of history at Alabama polytechnic institute. He is a Democrat, and was a member of the Harvard Democratic Club, 1910-1911; and is a teacher in the Sunday school of the Missionary Baptist church. Mr. Clark is author of a "Sketch Book of Alabama History," which has never been published. Married: August 30, 1911, at Hamilton, Lillie Pearce, daughter of Judge Mack Pearce of Winfield. She is a graduate of Athens College, B. S., 1908, and of the University of Alabama, A. B., 1911. She was principal of the Double Springs School, 1906-1907, and taught at Athens College, 1908-1909. Since her marriage, she has taught as her husband's first assistant. Residence: Auburn.

CLARK, JOHN WISE, captain C. S. Army, was born in Edgefield District, S. C., in 1824, and died at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., January, 1863; son of James and Harriet (Wise) Clark, of Edgefield District, S. C.; brother of Capt. Whitfield Clark (q. v.), and grandson of Jacob Wise, a soldier of the American Revolution. Capt. Clark removed to Barbour County at an early age; and received only a common school education. While a resident of Clayton he was appointed sheriff. He served as a private in the War with Mexico; removed to Eufaula and built up a large mercantile and cotton business in which business he was engaged at the breaking out of the War of Secession. He entered the service of the C. S. Army as captain of the "Pioneer Guards," afterwards organized the Eufaula light artillery, of which he was captain and contracted pneumonia and died at Cumberland Gap, Tenn. He was a Democrat; Baptist; and a Mason. Married: in 1849 or 1850, in Barbour County, to Mary Emeline, daughter of Isaac Keils, and wife, who was a Miss Weeks, of Louisville, and sister of Judge Elias M. Keils, an ante-bellum Whig, but prominent in Republican politics after the War. Children: 1. James, m., but no children; 2. Harriet Wise, m. James H. Russell, of Barbour County; 3. John Wise, Jr., m. Ella Waller, of Bartow, Fla.; 4. Frank (q. v.), m. Mary Ellen Mays. Last residence: Eufaula.

CLARK, KATE UPSON, author, a native of Alabama, was born at Camden, Wilcox County, February 22, 1851, daughter of Edwin and Priscilla (Maxwell) Upson. She graduated from Wheaton Seminary, Norton, Mass., 1869; Westfield (Mass.) normal school, 1872; has taught in Cleveland, Ohio; edited many periodicals and special departments in magazines; is a lecturer on literary, educational and domestic topics; and the author of a number of books. Married: January 1, 1874, at Milwaukee, Wis., to Edward Perkins Clark, a journalist, who died on February 16, 1903. Residence: Brooklyn, N. Y.

CLARK, LINCOLN, lawyer, representative in congress, was born August 9, 1800, in Conway, Mass., and died September 16, 1886, in Conway, Mass.; son of Elisha and Lucinda (Keith) Clark. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1825, and taught school in North Carolina and Virginia until 1831, reading law in his spare time. He came to Alabama in the latter year, and began to practice law in Pickens County. He represented that county in the State legislature in 1834 and 1835, moved to Tuscaloosa the following year, and became associated with E. Wolsey Peck, in the law firm of Peck & Clark. In 1838, he was chosen to the office of attorney-general of the state and held the position for a year. He was elected to the legislature from Tuscaloosa County in 1845, but resigned the seat, to accept an appointment to the bench of the circuit court, offered by Gov. Fitzpatrick. He held that position for a few months, and was defeated in the legislature at the ensuing session. In 1847, he moved to Dubuque, Ia., where his relations with the Democratic party were immediately established. He was a Cass elector in 1848, and was elected a representative to Congress from Iowa, 1851-1853. He moved to Chicago in 1862, and practiced law there until 1866, when he was made register in bankruptcy. In 1869, he returned to Conway, Mass. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church at Tuscaloosa. Last residence: Conway, Mass.

CLARK, LOUIS VERDIER, business man, was born April 1, 1862, at Marietta, Ga.; son of Francis Barnard and Helen Mary (Shepherd) Clark (q. v.); nephew of Willis Gaylord Clark (q. v.); brother of Francis Barnard Clark, jr. (q. v.), and of Gaylord B. Clark (q. v.). His first schooling was obtained at irregular intervals in a private school under Prof. D. R. Richardson, and he attended the University of Alabama from 1881 until 1885, graduating in the latter year with honor, A. B. While he was at the university, he was captain of Co. D, Alabama cadet corps, and was chosen to command Co. E, a picked company, which won first prize in a drill at the World's Exposition, New Orleans, La., May, 1885. After leaving college, he studied law, was admitted to the bar in Jasper, Walker County, in 1886, but never practiced that profession. He became editor and publisher of the "Mountain Eagle," in Jasper, for a short time, but in December 1886, moved to Birmingham and embarked in the insurance business in its several branches. He has resided in Birmingham continuously since that time, and was president of the most successful insurance company, during its entire existence, ever incorporated in Alabama. He is president of several real estate companies, and a director in one of the leading banks and trust companies in Birmingham. He was elected captain of the Jefferson Volunteers, April 27, 1887, and served with that company in the famous "Hawer Riot" and in railroad and miners' strikes. He was elected colonel of the Second infantry, Alabama State troops, and commanded that regiment in the great strikes in and around Birmingham. He was appointed brigadier general of the Alabama national guard by Gov. Johnston in 1896, and re-appointed by every succeeding governor through the administration of Gov. O'Neal, but asked Gov. Henderson for retirement at the expiration of his commission in May 1915. He is a Democrat, and an Episcopalian. He reached the thirty-second degree in Scottish Rite Masonry, and the fourteenth degree in the York rite, and is now demitted. He is an Elk, a Knight of Pythias, and a member of Phi Delta Theta college fraternity. Married: December 23, 1896, at Selma, Mildred Williamson Jones, deceased, daughter of Dr. A. W. and Augusta (Carlisle) Jones; granddaughter of E. K. Carlisle, of Selma. Children: Augusta Carlisle m. Powell Nolan, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

CLARK, THOMAS ALLEN, lawyer, was born December 28, 1869, at Kempville, Monroe County; son of Dr. William G. and Annie M. (Wiggins) Curry, both of Monroe County, the former a Baptist minister, serving for forty years in the ministry and changing his pastorate but twice, and a member of the Fifth Alabama infantry regiment, serving first as color bearer and later as chaplain; grandson of Allen Howell and Frances E. (Farnell) Curry, and of Thomas and Elizabeth (Randallson) Wiggins, of Kempville. He received his education at Furman academy and at Howard college, Birmingham; read law in the office of Gov. Thomas H. Watts of Montgomery; was admitted to the bar in 1890; entered into the practice of law at Clanton, Chilton County; served as solicitor of that county, 1893-1896; as a member of the board of aldermen of Clanton; and was elected to the State senate from the fifteenth senatorial district, November, 1910, being the first member of the senate ever sent from Chilton County, and the first Democrat elected to a state office from that county in twenty years. He is a Baptist. Married: August 26, 1903, at Sandy Ridge, Lowndes County, to Mrs. Clara (Broadnax) Horton, daughter of Crowell and Eudora A. (Russell) Broadnax, of Mt. Carmel, Crenshaw County, the former who served in the C. S. Army, and represented Crenshaw County in the State legislature, 1876 and 1878; granddaughter of Thomas Broadnax, a Virginian. Residence: Clanton, Chilton County.

CLARK, THOMAS HARVEY, lawyer, author, was born November 16, 1857, at Pine Level, Montgomery County, and died in Washington, D. C.; son of Henry William and Mary Susan (Wright) Clark, natives, respectively, of Spartanburg, S. C., and Georgia. The family stock came originally from Amelia County, Va., settling first in North Carolina. Mr. Clark attended a common school in Pine Level, conducted by a Mr. Starks, until in 1870, when his parents moved to Birmingham. There, he attended several schools, and was prepared for college in that of Prof. G. W. Thomas. He entered Howard College, Marion, in October 1874, and was graduated there, A. B., 1877. He taught the classics and mathematics in the high school of Montgomery, 1877-1878; entered Harvard University as a postgraduate student, 1878-1879; returned to Alabama in 1879; began the study of law, and was admitted to the bar May 1880. In 1880, he attended the summer course in law at the University of Virginia. He formed law partnerships with James Weatherly, and O. D. Sayre; moved to Texas in 1885, becoming associated with Hon. Tillman Smith, in Cleburne, Johnson County. He did not remain in Texas long, but returned to Alabama, and embarked in journalism as editor of the Selma "Times." Leaving the "Times," soon after, he joined the staff of the Montgomery "Advertiser." In July 1887, he gave up newspaper work, and resumed the practice of law. He was offered the position of recording secretary by Gov. Thomas Seay, August 1887, and held that position throughout the remainder of Gov. Seay's two terms. He was assistant secretary of the state senate, 1882-1886, and a member of the city council of Montgomery, 1890-1892. He resumed the practice of law in 1891 in association with William H. Thomas, under the firm name of Clark & Thomas. Mr. Clark was elected to the Alabama house of representatives, 1892-1896, and during the latter two years in that body, was its speaker. He was alternate delegate at large to the Chicago convention in 1892, and secretary of the Democratic state executive committee. In 1896, he was the national Democratic nominee for congress; was law librarian of congress, 1899-1903; and reporter of the U. S. court of customs appeals, at Washington, D. C., from its organization, April 1910, until his death. He is buried in Montgomery. He was a frequent contributor to the press on various subjects, more especially to the Montgomery "Advertiser," the "Evening Post," and "The Nation," New York. His published work appears in "Northern Alabama Illustrated," 1888, and in the "Memorial Record of Alabama," 1893. Married: April 13, 1877, Caroline Marks, of Montgomery, who died June 27, 1909, daughter of James and Eliza (Means) Marks. Children: 1. Thornton, b. August 5, 1890, m. Eva Mae McLendon; 2. Lewis. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLARK, THOMAS W., holding an A. M. degree; tutor in chemistry, University of Alabama, 1875-76, Tuscaloosa. He was the son of Dr. Thomas and Nancy Walker (Davis) Clark, of Selma. Married: Sallie Brent Lewis, of Dallas County.

CLARK, W. A., Presbyterian minister; member of the Tuscaloosa presbytery; living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

CLARK, WILLIS GAYLORD, public official, was born October 27, 1827, in western New York, and died September 10, 1898, at Roanoke, Va., while returning home from a visit to New York; son of Dr. Willis Fish and Charity (Barnard) Clark, natives respectively of Mansfield, Windham County, Conn., and of Bolton, Mass., the former was a physician in New York for twelve years, then became a merchant and lumberman; grandson of Oliver and Elizabeth (Fish) Clark, who lived in Connecticut and New York, the former a soldier in the Revolution, and of John and Elizabeth (Fallace) Barnard; great-grandson of William Fallace, land-owner in and around Rome, N. Y., whose home, the most commodious in town, was captured by the British and used for army headquarters in the War of 1812. The Clark and Barnard families are of English descent. Sir Francis Barnard, colonial governor of New Jersey, and later governor general of Massachusetts and New Jersey, is an ancestor. Mr. Clark was a cousin of Lewis Gaylord Clark and Willis Gaylord Clark, twin brothers, the former of whom was the founder of the "Knickerbocker Magazine," the earliest successful publication of its kind in the country; and brother of Francis Barnard Clark (q. v.). He began to attend school in New York when he was four years old, and after completing his high school course, spent three years at the collegiate institute at Quincy, Ill., founded by David Nelson. He returned north, and for a time engaged in teaching, first in the public schools and later as principal of the Dansville Academy; in the meantime, spending his spare time in the study of law. In 1845, he read law in the office of Hon. George Hastings, of Mount Morris, N. Y., and after completing his clerkship in 1848, went south to see the country. With that in view, he travelled extensively in the states of Alabama, Mississippi, and Georgia, visiting localities of interest and particularly the infant industries of those states. He spent some months in the summer of 1849 traveling in Georgia by private conveyance, from town to town and county to county, stopping at places of interest and taking full notes of scenery, legends, and especially of manufactories. As leisure afforded, he wrote out from his notes, a series of letters to the New Orleans "Picayune," which were widely copied and attracted much attention. He also contributed occasional sketches, and political and industrial articles to the "Chronicle" and "Sentinel" of Augusta, Ga., and to the "Daily Advertiser" of Mobile. At a later date he contributed a series of sketches entitled "A Summer in Georgia," to a monthly magazine published in New York. He located in Mobile in the fall of 1849, and entered the law office of Campbell & Chandler. He was admitted to the bar in 1850, and opened practice in Mobile. As his time was not fully occupied at first, he accepted the position of editor of "The Southern Magazine." In 1852, Mr. Clark took editorial charge of the Mobile "Daily Advertiser," in the absence of its editor, Hon. C. C. Langdon, who was compelled to undergo a change in climate because of ill-health. While he was temporary editor of that paper, Mr. Clark outlined in its columns a plan for the public schools of Mobile, which was adopted as the basis of the system. On Mr. Langdon's return to Mobile he sold the "Advertiser" to Mr. Clark who retired from the practice of law and the editorship of the "Southern Magazine," and conducted the "Advertiser" successfully until the outbreak of war in 1861. At that time the Mobile "Register" became associated with the "Advertiser," and the joint journal was continued under the name "Advertiser and Register," with Col. John Forsyth as co-editor. The paper was published up to the day of the surrender of Mobile. At the close of the war Mr. Clark returned to the "Advertiser and Register," and edited it for two years. Because of the high prices of book and news paper, and the scarcity of both, he organized a company in 1867 for the manufacture of paper, and built a mill near Mobile which was equipped for that purpose. Having been chosen president of the paper company, he sold his interest in the "Advertiser and Register," and engaged actively in manufacturing enterprises. He was president of the Washington Avenue Railroad Company, during the period of its construction; and was engaged actively in the manufacture of shingles, naval stores and lumber. From the date of the organization of the public schools of Mobile, October 1852, Mr. Clark was a member of the board of school commissioners of Mobile County, and was at a time, president of the body. In 1865, he was elected a trustee of the University of Alabama, and held the position until, under the constitution of 1868, the office was abrogated. In 1875 when the new constitution was adopted, restoring the government of the state university to a board of trustees, and provided for their appointment by the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, Mr. Clark was appointed and confirmed as trustee in March, 1876, and by successive reappointments, held the office until his death in 1898. As chairman of the building committee, he obtained appropriations from the legislature for new buildings, and in recognition of his services, the trustees named Clark Hall in his honor. When, in 1884, the congress of the United States donated to the state forty-six thousand eighty acres of public lands for the university, Mr. Clark was made chairman of the committee of three appointed for the management of the land. He was also chairman from 1877 until his death, of the committee to prepare the reports required by law, of the trustees, to be submitted at each session of the general assembly of the state. Mr. Clark succeeded Enoch Morgan as president pro tempore, the governor of the state being the ex-officio president. In 1888, he prepared, on request of the commissioner of education, a monograph on "The History of Education in Alabama," which was published by the United States bureau of education in 1889. Mr. Clark took an active part in politics during the reconstruction period; he was chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Mobile County, of the executive committee for the first congressional district, and a member of the state executive committee. In the spring of 1885, he was appointed, by President Cleveland, collector of the port of Mobile; held the office all during Cleveland's administration, and for more than a year under Mr. Harrison, who declined to remove him or appoint a successor before his commission expired because of his excellent record. In addition to the history mentioned, Mr. Clark was author of chapters on "Progress of Education" and "State Industrial Interests," in the "Memorial Record of Alabama," 1893; and large numbers of editorial articles and fugitive papers. He was an honorary vice-president of the Alabama Historical Society. Married: Caroline (Erwin) Scott, daughter of Col. John P. Erwin, of Nashville, Tenn. They had no children. Last residence: Mobile.

REV. HENRY TRAWICK

CLARKE, CHARLES SMITH, railroad official, was born July 16, 1863, at Frederick, Md.; son of James C. and Susannah (Shaffer) Clarke, the former a native of Unity, Montgomery County, Md., who lived in New York, Chicago, Baltimore, New Orleans, and Mobile, and filled various responsible positions with railroads of importance; grandson of William and Elizabeth (Simpson) Clarke, natives of Maryland, who lived at Unity, Montgomery County, Md., and of Peter and Susan Shaffer, natives of Frederick, Md. The ancestors of the Clarke family were from the south of England and the north of Ireland, and they came over with the colonists who settled Maryland, some of them holding clerical positions under Lord Baltimore. During his early years, Mr. Clarke attended Frederick Academy, Maryland; later he was a student in Allen's Academy in Chicago, and finally of Soule College in New Orleans, La. In 1880, he became a machinist apprentice, and during the next five years perfected himself in mechanical drawing and engineering in the employ of the Illinois Central Railroad. He was installed as master mechanic of the Chicago division of that railroad in 1887, held that position for three years; became division superintendent of the Mobile & Ohio railroad; was promoted to general superintendent of that line; and finally to general manager of the road. He is a Democrat; and a Presbyterian.

CLARKE, JAMES S., lawyer, was born in 1830, in Lawrence County; son of Dr. Clarke, a well-known citizen of that county. He was well educated, studied law, and was licensed to practice. In 1857, he was elected to represent Lawrence County in the State legislature, and was a delegate to the constitutional convention of 1861 from the same county. He was again elected to the lower house of the legislature in 1863, and five years later was voted for and declared elected to the bench of the circuit court, a position he held for many years. His brother, Dr. John M. Clarke, represented Lawrence County in the State legislature in 1865. Last residence: Lawrence County.

CLARKE, JOHN R., deputy grand high priest, grand chapter Masons, 1854, deputy grand master, grand council, 1856.

CLARKE, LEWIS, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Jackson County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on November 4, 1833, under the act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $20.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Jackson County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CLARKE, N. R., lawyer, living in 1913. Residence: Mobile.

CLARKE, RICHARD HENRY, lawyer, representative in congress, was born February 9, 1843, at Dayton, Marengo County, and died September 26, 1906, at Mobile; son of William Edward and Rebecca (Raincock) Clarke (q. v.); grandson of Thomas and Mary (Pegram) Clarke, and of George and Rebecca (Potham) Raincock, of Norfolk, Va. He acquired his preliminary education at Prof. Henry Tutwiler's school at Green Springs, Hale County, and entered the University of Alabama, where he was graduated with highest honors, A. B., July 1861. Almost immediately after graduation, he entered the C. S. Army, and was appointed second lieutenant, First battalion of artillery, Alabama regulars. During the years 1862-1864, he was with the Twenty-first Alabama regiment as executive officer at Fort Morgan. Returning home after the war, he studied law with his father, at Demopolis, and was admitted to the bar in 1867. In 1872, he was named solicitor for Marengo County, and served in that capacity until 1876. The following year, he became state prosecuting attorney of the seventh judicial circuit of Alabama, and held the office until 1879. He moved from Demopolis to Mobile in 1881, and entered a law partnership with the late Thomas McCartney. During the first year of his residence in Mobile, Mr. Clarke defended without pay, twenty citizens of Wilcox County, who were brought to Mobile for trial on charges of intimidation arising out of the political conditions existing in Alabama during the reconstruction period, and, through his labors, all were acquitted.

Mr. Clarke was elected to congress in 1889 from the first district, and was successively returned to the Fifty-second, Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Congresses, serving until March 4, 1894. While in the U. S. House of Representatives, he took an active part in all matters of general concern, with particular attention to the rivers and harbors of Alabama. His position as a member of the rivers and harbors committee of the house, gave him an excellent opportunity to render efficient service to his state. His last public service was as a member of the state legislature of 1900-1901, in which body he was a recognized leader. He was a Democrat, and was chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Marengo County, 1873-1877; and a member of the Episcopal church. Married: (1) October 1861, Mary Kate Burke, daughter of Thomas Jefferson and Sarah (Owen) Burke, who lived at Tuscaloosa; (2) August 15, 1877, Helen Gaines Foote, daughter of Charles King and Sarah B. (Lyon) Foote, of Mobile. Children, by first marriage: 1. William Edward, deceased; 2. Mabel Radford, m. J. Manley Foster, resides at Tuscaloosa; 3. Kathleen Mary, deceased; 4. Mary Clifton, deceased. By second marriage: 5. Helen Gaines, m. Henry George Smith, resides in New York; 6. Mary Morris, m. Carl Herndon Seals, resides in Birmingham. Last residence: Mobile.

CLARKE, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 79, and a resident of Tuscaloosa County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on September 26, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $60; sums received to date of publication of list, $180.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CLARKE, THOMAS D., lawyer, was born in North Carolina early in the nineteenth century, and died in 1847 at Tuscaloosa; son of Jeremiah and Eleanor (Boone) Clarke, who lived in Burke County, now Caldwell, near the Catawba River, N. C., the former a farmer, and a native of North Carolina, the latter a stanch Baptist, who died in 1820, and a descendant of Daniel Boone. He was a brother of Rev. Nathan Lytle Clarke, a Baptist minister of Mississippi, who founded and for fifteen years, edited the "Mississippi Baptist," the organ of the Baptist General Association; aided in the organization of about one hundred churches; was pastor of the Decatur, Miss., Baptist church for fifty-eight years, and of the Baptist church at Newton, Miss., for thirty-five years; was president of the General Association for fifty-one successive years, and moderator of the Mt. Pisgah Association for fifty-one years. In 1835, his father's estate having been divided up and the old homestead abandoned, Mr. Clarke went to Alabama, and although without patrimony or much education, he equipped himself as a lawyer, was admitted to the bar, and settled in Talladega to practice law. He soon attracted public notice, and in the summer of 1843, was nominated and elected by the Democratic party to the State legislature. Some time later, he was made attorney general of the state, and changed his residence to Tuscaloosa, then the seat of government, where his official duties required his presence. He soon became a recognized figure, with the respect of the court, but his rapid rise in professional circles was cut short by his death in 1847. A few years previous to his death he had married a sister of James R. Powell, of Montgomery. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CLARKE, WILLIAM EDWARD, lawyer, was born in Petersburg, Chesterfield County, Va., in 1815, and died at an advanced age in Demopolis; son of Thomas and Mary (Pegram) Clarke, who lived at Petersburg, Va., until they moved to Dayton, the former a planter, who served in the War of 1812, with the rank of major; and nephew of Robert Clarke, esq., who represented Marengo County in the State legislature in 1838 and 1839. Both the Clarkes and Pegrams were well-known Virginia families of English descent. Mr. Clarke took an academic and law course at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., and in 1837 came to Marengo County. For many years he practiced law there, at Dayton, being associated at different times with William M. Byrd, William M. Brooks, and George G. Lyon. He was appointed solocitor of the second circuit to fill a vacancy, and in the fall of 1846, had his appointment confirmed by election to the office. After his term had expired, he declined re-election, and devoted himself more exclusively to the practice of law in Marengo and adjoining counties. He contested the senatorial district of Greene and Marengo Counties in 1855, but his party was in the minority, and he was defeated. He was a delegate to the secession convention of Alabama, 1861, from Marengo County, and voted for the withdrawal of the state from the Federal Union. In that same year he was elected to the State senate from Greene and Marengo Counties, and held his seat in that body until the last session under the Confederate government, 1865. When Mr. Jemison was elected to the senate of the C. S. A., Mr. Clarke succeeded him as chairman of the committee on finance and taxation. After the war ended, he retired from public life, and took up his residence in Demopolis, forming a law partnership with his eldest son. He was a Democrat. Married: Rebecca Raincock, daughter of George and Rebecca (Potham) Raincock, who lived at Norfolk, Va., the former of whom came from England to the United States when he was eighteen years old, and settled in Norfolk. Children: Several sons, the eldest of whom was Richard Henry (q. v.); Carter Pegram, the next in order of birth, was born February 4, 1845, was graduated from the University of Virginia, C. E., 1869, was a member of the signal corps at Fort Morgan, C. S. A., and died of yellow fever, September 25, 1873, at Beaver Meadow. Last residence: Demopolis.

CLARKSON, EDGAR L., lawyer, was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1848; son of Thomas B. and S. Caroline (Heriot) Clarkson, who moved from Charleston, S. C., to Columbia, S. C., in the early fifties, lived there until just before the close of the War of Secession, when their home was destroyed at the capture and burning of the city, February 1865, after the war spent much of their time in Alabama with their daughter, Mrs. Peter Bryce, and by their request, were buried at Tuscaloosa. The lineage of the Clarkson family has been traced back to the fifteenth century, and is of both English and Scotch origin. Mr. Clarkson enlisted as a private in the C. S. Army, joining Co. K, Seventh South Carolina infantry regiment, during the last year of the War of Secession; and served until the end of the struggle. He was fifteen years old at the time of his enlistment, and was the youngest of eight sons, all of whom fought for the Confederacy. After the war was over, he entered the University of South Carolina, and was graduated as valedictorian, A. B., 1868. The following year, he obtained a diploma in the School of Civil and Military Engineering from the same institution, and immediately afterward, went to Alabama to live. In 1870, he began to study law under H. M. Somerville, later associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa. He was admitted to the bar in 1871, went to Mobile where he spent a few months in the office of Hon. Thomas H. Herndon, afterward member of the U. S. Congress; and located in Birmingham in 1872 as local law partner of Mr. Somerville. After three years, that partnership was terminated, and Mr. Clarkson became associated with Ellis Phelan, later secretary of state of Alabama. In 1876, he was appointed to codify the city ordinances of Birmingham; was appointed register in chancery for Jefferson County in January 1885; and declined reappointment the following year. He is an Episcopalian. Married: in 1875, Augusta Jolly, daughter of Col. John J. Jolly, of Greene County, a soldier, lawyer, and statesman, well known to Alabama history. They have five children. Residence: Birmingham.

CLAY, CLEMENT CLAIBORNE, lawyer, U. S. senator, was born in 1817, at Huntsville, and died January 3, 1882, at Huntsville; son of Clement Comer and Susanna Claiborne (Withers) Clay (q. v.); brother of John Withers Clay (q. v.). He was graduated from the University of Alabama, B. A., 1834, A. M., 1837, and served as private secretary to his father during the latter's term as governor of Alabama, 1835-1837. Later he studied law in the University of Virginia, was admitted to the bar in 1840, and began to practice law in Huntsville; at the same time, becoming editor of the "Huntsville Democrat." He was elected to the State legislature in 1842, and was re-elected in 1844 and 1845. During the session of 1842, he offered resolutions instructing the senators and representatives in congress to vote for the bill refunding to Gen. Jackson the amount of the fine imposed upon him by Judge Hall, at New Orleans, in 1815, for establishing martial law in the city, under which the judge was imprisoned for discharging a member of the Louisiana legislature committed to prison by Gen. Jackson. During his last session in the legislature, Mr. Clay was elected judge of the county court of Madison County. He held that office for two years, resigning in 1848. In 1853, he was a candidate for the lower house of congress, but was defeated by Hon. W. R. W. Cobb, of Jackson. When the legislature met that winter, his party in that body nominated him for a seat in the U. S. Senate, and he was elected for a term of six years to succeed Col. Clemens. He at once took his seat in the senate and held it for nine years. He was re-elected in 1859, receiving every vote cast. In the senate, Mr. Clay was distinguished for his advocacy of the doctrine of state sovereignty and for his adherence to the school of constitutional interpretation, of which Mr. Calhoun was a great champion. He advocated the admission of Kansas as a state under the Lecompton pro-slavery constitution. When Alabama dissolved her relations with the United States, he withdrew with his colleagues, January 1861. Upon the organization of the government of the C. S. A., a few months later, Mr. Clay was elected a senator, and was a member of the first congress of the Confederacy until 1863, when he was superceded by the Hon. Richard W. Walker. In April, 1864, he represented the C. S. A. in Canada, returning in January, 1865. When the surrender of the armies in Virginia and North Carolina took place, he started on horseback for Texas, but hearing that he was charged with complicity in the murder of President Lincoln, and that a reward was offered for his apprehension, he rode one hundred and fifty miles to surrender himself to the federal authorities at Macon, Ga. He was taken to Augusta, and placed on the same boat with Jefferson Davis, and confined with the latter in Fortress Monroe. He was held for twelve months without being brought to trial, and finally through the efforts of his wife, who had personal interviews with the president and the secretary of war of the United States, he was released, May, 1866. From that time until his death, he practiced law in Huntsville and planted in Jackson County. Married: February 1, 1843, at Tuscaloosa, Virginia Caroline Tunstall (q. v.), daughter of Dr. Peyton Tunstall, formerly of Virginia; a near relative of Mrs. Collier, wife of Chief Justice Collier of Tuscaloosa, at whose home she was married. After her husband's death, Mrs. Clay retained the possession of all his papers consisting of letters, manuscripts, diaries, and journals. She later married David Clopton (q. v.). Last residence: Huntsville.

CLAY, CLEMENT COMER, lawyer, representative in congress, governor of Alabama, U. S. senator, was born December 17, 1789, in Halifax County, Va., and died September 7, 1866, in Huntsville; son of William and Rebecca (Comer) Clay, the former a soldier in the Revolutionary war, enlisted at the age of sixteen years, took part in several battles and was at the siege of Yorktown, after the war moved to Grainger County, Tenn., and became a planter; grandson of James Clay, a Virginian of English descent, and of Samuel Comer, also a Virginian of English ancestry, who married a Miss Claiborne. He was only a few years old, when his parents located in Tennessee, and he grew to manhood on the plantation in Grainger County, beginning his education in the ordinary private schools of the day, and completing it with his graduation from the East Tennessee University, Knoxville, 1807. He read law with Hon. Hugh Lawson White, at Knoxville, Tenn., and was admitted to the bar, December, 1809. Two years later, he moved to Alabama, arriving in Huntsville with one negro manservant, two horses, his law books in his saddle-bags and a small sum of money, enough for a few days subsistence. He soon built up a law practice in that place. At the beginning of the Creek war in 1813, he volunteered in a Madison County battalion as a private, was promoted to adjutant of the regiment and assigned to the frontier, south of the Tennessee River, to repel the Indian attacks. Mr. Clay was elected a member of the territorial legislature of Alabama in 1817, which met at St.

Stephens, then the capital of the state. In 1819, he was a delegate from Madison County to the first constitutional convention at Huntsville, and was appointed the chairman of a committee of fifteen to draft the constitution, which was afterward adopted as the fundamental law of the state. In December, 1819, he was elected without opposition, by the legislature, one of the four circuit judges of the state, and although the youngest of the number, was elected chief justice of the state by his three associates, the four circuit judges constituting the supreme court. In 1823, he resigned that position to resume his law practice.

Mr. Clay was elected to the State legislature from Madison County, 1827, and on his arrival at Tuscaloosa, then the capital, was unanimously elected speaker of the house. The year after, he was elected to congress, defeating Capt. Nicholas Davis of Limestone County, after a warm canvass; and was re-elected without opposition, serving through the Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-third congresses, in all, from 1825 to 1831. One of his services while in that body, was the securing of the passage of laws for the relief of purchasers of land in Alabama. He opposed the effort to recharter the United States bank, and conspicuously advocated the measures of Jackson's administration. In 1835, he was nominated as Democratic candidate for governor, and was elected over Gen. Enoch Parsons, by thirteen thousand votes, the largest majority given any candidate for that office up to that time. During his administration as governor, the Creek Indians within the limits of Alabama became hostile. As commander-in-chief of the state, Gov. Clay ordered out troops and took the field in person, in active cooperation with Maj.-Gen. Scott and Maj.-Gen. Jesup of the U. S. Army, who subsequently took command of the volunteers from Alabama and the adjoining states, to operate against the Indians. His administration was also disturbed by the financial crisis of 1837. Before the expiration of his term in 1837, Gov. Clay was chosen to the U. S. senate, to fill the vacancy made by the appointment of Senator John McKinley to the supreme bench. He took his seat at the extra session called by President Van Buren in September, 1837, and served, supporting the administration, until after the extra session of 1841, when sickness in the family caused him to resign.

Mr. Clay was appointed to make a digest of the laws of Alabama, and at the session of 1842, reported the manuscript to the legislature, which, after examination by the judiciary committee, was accepted and approved. In 1843, it was published, and has been used as authority in the courts since that time. In 1843 he served a few months in the supreme court to fill a vacancy, and in 1846 was elected one of the commissioners to wind up the affairs of the state bank. After the completion of those duties, he resumed the practice of law, in partnership with his two sons. He favored the secession movement in 1861. When the Federal troops invaded north Alabama during the War of Secession, his home was seized, soldiers were quartered on him, and he was kept under military arrest for some time. He was a Democrat. Married: in 1815, near Huntsville, Susanna Claiborne Withers, daughter of John and Mary Herbert (Jones) Withers, of Huntsville, the former of whom was a native of Dinwiddie County, Va.; sister of Gen. Jonas M. Withers. Children: 1. Clement Claiborne (q. v.); 2. John Withers (q. v.); 3. Hugh Lawson, d., lawyer, b. January 24, 1823, captain in the Mexican war, member of the staff of Gen. E. Kirby Smith, and colonel, C. S. Army, m. Celeste Comer. Last residence: Huntsville.

CLAY, J. L., mayor of Selma, 1904-08. Residence: Selma.

CLAY, JOHN WITHERS, publisher and editor, was born January 11, 1820, at Huntsville, and died 189—, at Huntsville; son of Clement Comer and Susanna Claiborne (Withers) Clay (q. v.), brother of Clement Claiborne Clay (q. v.). He received his preliminary education from Old Green Academy at Huntsville; was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., when he was seventeen years of age; and from the University of Virginia, A. M., four years later. He was the first graduate who lived outside of the state of Virginia, to receive the master's degree at that university. While he was a student there, his brother, Senator Clement Claiborne Clay, who was studying for his bachelor's degree, temporarily lost his eyesight. Mr. Clay tutored him successfully, until Senator Clay received the degree with high honors. He practiced law for two years with his father, Gov. Clay; then became editor of the "Huntsville Democrat." He edited that paper for forty years, during which time it was first a daily and later a weekly newspaper. He was a Democrat and an Episcopalian, being for more than forty years senior warden of the Church of Nativity at Huntsville. He edited "Clay's Digest," written by his father, Gov. C. C. Clay. Married: in 1847, at Huntsville, Mary Fenneich Lewis, daughter of John Haywood and Mary Margaret (Betts) Lewis who lived in Connecticut. Children: 1. Cara Lisa, d. at the age of five years; 2. Clement Comer, d. at the age of twenty-one years; 3. John Withers, d. at the age of two years; 4. Mary Lewis, d. at the age of forty-seven years; 5. William Lewis (q. v.), d. at the age of fifty-seven years; 6. Clarence Herbert, d. at the age of two years; 7. Susanna, resides at Huntsville; 8. J., resides at Birmingham; 9. Virginia Clementine, d. at the age of twenty-nine years; 10. Ellen Lewis, d. at the age of one year; 11. Elodie, resides at Huntsville. Last residence: Huntsville.

CLAY, S. M., business man, was born October 13, 1844, in Simm's Settlement, now Elkmont; son of Samuel Mitchell and Eliza (Henderson) Clay, the former a native of Greenville County, N. C., born October 19,

1787, died August 25, 1844, came to Alabama in 1825, settling near Elkmont, where he remained until his death, built the first gin in Limestone County, and was a stockholder in the bank of Decatur when that bank failed in 1837, the latter a native of Abbeville District, S. C., born June 1, 1816, and died March 1, 1886; grandson of Samuel and Martha (Walls) Clay, natives of Virginia, the former a member of the North Carolina legislature several terms, and a close relative of Henry Clay and of Thomas and Margaret (Grigby) Henderson, natives of Virginia, the former a soldier in the War of 1812, the latter, who came to Alabama in 1821, and settled on Piney Creek, Limestone County; great-grandson of Nathaniel Henderson, a Virginian, who fought in the Revolution. Mr. Clay was reared on a farm, and interrupted his schooling to enter the C. S. Army, March, 1862. He enlisted in Co. F, Ninth Alabama regiment, under Capt. Thomas B. Hobbs, and served until July 2, 1863, when he lost his left arm in the battle of Gettysburg. After finishing his schooling, he taught until he was interrupted by the Federal soldiers. He then taught one year in Tennessee, but returned to Alabama the following year. After his marriage, Mr. Clay farmed for a year, then embarked in the mercantile business in Giles County, Tenn.; in 1872 he moved his business to Limestone County, but returned to Tennessee the next year and resumed farming. He returned to Alabama and in 1888 was elected county superintendent of education of Limestone County, served one term, and was a member of the board for many years. He was principal assistant postmaster at Elkmont for some years; established the Elkmont "Enterprise" in 1890; was editor and proprietor of that paper for one year, then moved it to Athens and consolidated with the Limestone "Advertiser," of which he was editor and proprietor for a short time. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Married: (1) 1866, Mary V. Daly, born February 23, 1847, and died June 25, 1873, daughter of Thomas B. and Ann (Abernathy) Daly, natives respectively of Virginia and Tennessee; (2) August 6, 1875, Clara P. Hartsell, born August 12, 1854, in Madison County, author, poet, and composer, daughter of J. W. and Eliza J. (Pettey) Hartsell. Children, by first marriage: 1. William T.; 2. Samuel N.; 3. deceased; by second marriage: 4. Francis H.; 5. Clara E.; 6. Pryor H.; 7. Alice N. Residence: Limestone County was admitted to the bar, and began his law practice in Huntsville, where he spent practically all of his life. He held no elective office, but was appointed secretary of the State senate, and remained in that position for twenty consecutive years with the reputation of never having made a mistake in any of his journals. He was a Democrat, a member of the Episcopal church; and a Woodman of the World. Married: June 27, 1906, at Nashville, Tenn., Susanna Clay Battle, daughter of William Augustus and Susanna Clay (Withers) Battle, who lived at Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. William Lewis, resides at Huntsville. Last residence: Huntsville.

CLAY, WILLIAM LEWIS, lawyer, was born September 30, 1852, at Huntsville, Madison County, and died September 5, 1911, at Huntsville; son of John Withers and Mary Fenneich (Lewis) Clay (q. v.); grandson of John Haywood and Mary Margaret (Betts) Lewis, and Gov. Clement Comer and Susanna Claiborne (Withers) Clay (q. v.); nephew of Clement Comer Clay (q. v.). Until he was fifteen years of age, he was schooled by his mother, who had been educated in Paris. He studied law in the office of George A. Garden of Huntsville,

CLAYBROOK, WILLOUGHBY NEWTON, Episcopal clergyman, was born September 1, 1869, at "The Park," Westmoreland County, Va.; son of Edwin C. and Judith White (Newton) Claybrook, the former a native of "Piedmont," Northumberland County, who later lived at "The Hague," Va., lawyer, member Company C, Ninth Virginia cavalry, under Gen. W. H. F. Lee; grandson of Col. Richard A. and Charlotte (Brown) Claybrook, of "Piedmont," and of Willoughby and Mary (Brockenbrough) Newton of "Linden," Westmoreland County, member of congress from the first Virginia district, and aided in bringing about the annexation of Texas. Other ancestors are Col. Theodore Bland, Speaker Robinson of the Virginia house of burgesses, and Carter Braxton, signer of the Declaration of Independence. The maternal great-grandfather, William Brockenbrough, was for thirty years chief justice of the Virginia supreme court, and his home in Richmond, became the "White House" of the Confederacy, now the Confederate museum. Rev. Mr. Claybrook, graduated at Washington and Lee university, 1895; and the Theological seminary of Virginia, 1899, as bachelor of divinity. He was ordained deacon in 1898, priest in 1899; has served as rector at Washington, Va., Tyler, Tex., Huntsville, and at St. Mary's on the Highlands, at Birmingham. He was the Episcopal dean of Birmingham, the Bishop's chaplain, and has served as a member of the standing committee of the Diocese. He is a Mason. Married: September 6, 1905, in Huntsville, to Belle B., daughter of William H. and Helen (Nesbit) Fariss of that place. Children: 1. Willoughby Newton. Residence: Texas.

CLAY-CLOPTON, MRS. VIRGINIA, author, social leader, was born January 17, 1825, in Nash County, N. C.; daughter of Peyton Randolph and Anne (Arrington) Tunstall, who lived in Nash County, N. C., the former of whom was a physician, and practiced his profession at Mount Vernon, on the Alabama River, for years; niece of Thomas Barker Tunstall, secretary of state of Alabama during the administration of Gov. C. C. Clay, and clerk in the house of representatives of the Alabama legislature for many years; granddaughter of Gen. William and Mary (Williams) Arrington, and of William and Elizabeth (Barker) Tunstall. The Tunstalls are of English and Welsh origin. An ancestor fell at the battle of Flodden Field, as is memorialized by Sir Walter Scott in "Marmion"—"Tunstall lies dead upon the field; His life blood stains his spotless shield." Sir Cuthbert Tunstall was bishop of London during Queen Anne's reign, and is today to be seen in Windsor Castle, in the hall of the Knights of the Garter. He also had jurisdiction of Fountain's Abbey, now an interesting ruin in England.

Mrs. Clay-Clopton's mother died at the age of twenty years, leaving the two children, Virginia, three years old, and Mary Ann, an infant, who died soon after. The former was brought to Alabama from North Carolina when she was five years old, to the home of Hon. Henry W. Collier, of Tuscaloosa, whose wife was the half-sister of Mrs. Tunstall. She was educated in Tuscaloosa and in Nashville, Tenn., was graduated in 1840, and married in 1842. During her husband's period of service in the U. S. senate, Mrs. Clay was a very prominent figure in the social and political life of Washington. Her reminiscences and memories of life at the capitol in the decade prior to the breaking out of the War of Secession have been collected and put into narrative form by Ada Sterling, in a volume entitled "A Belle of the Fifties," Doubleday, Page & Company, New York, 1904. In that work, Mrs. Clay-Clopton gives anecdotes of Presidents Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln, Jefferson Davis and other leaders of the Confederacy; Marcy, Cushing, Crittenden, Patti, Jenny Lind, Thackeray; and many other notabilities of that quarter century. The scope of the book covers the years 1853-1866. During President Davis' confinement as a prisoner in Fortress Monroe, after the close of the war, Senator Clay, who had represented the Confederate government as its agent in Canada in 1864 and 1865, was arrested on the charge of complicity in the murder of Abraham Lincoln, and incarcerated in the same prison with Mr. Davis. After he had been held without trial for a year, Mrs. Clay was successful in securing his release at the hands of the Federal authorities. In 1885, Mrs. Clay made the tour of Europe, chaperoning two young ladies, and received much attention from Lord and Lady Napier, the latter of whom had formerly been ambassador to the United States. She spent the latter part of her life at her mountain home, "Wildwood," in Madison County. Married: (1) February 1, 1842, Clement Claiborne Clay (q. v.) who died January, 1882, at "Wildwood"; (2) November, 1887, Hon. David Clopton (q. v.), who died 1891, at Montgomery. Last residence: "Wildwood," near Gurley, Madison County.

CLAYTON, BERTRAM TRACY, colonel, U. S. Army, and congressman, was born October 19, 1862, at Clayton, and was killed in 1918, in France; son of Henry De Lamar and Victoria Virginia (Hunter) Clayton (q. v.); brother of Henry De Lamar Clayton (q. v.); of Lee Johnston Clayton (q. v.); and of Jeff Davis Clayton (q. v.). He was a student at the University of Alabama, 1880-82, and graduated from the United States military academy, 1886. He was appointed a second lieutenant in the 11th United States infantry, resigning in April, 1888, to become a civil engineer at Brooklyn, N. Y. He was adjutant, 13th regiment, National Guard, New York State, 1890; major and engineer, 2nd brigade, 1894; organized Troop C, and elected captain, 1896, commanding this company during the Spanish-American War, and served through the Porto Rican campaign. From 1899-1901 he was colonel of the 14th regiment, National Guard, New York State, and served as a member of the Fifty-fifth congress, March 4, 1899-March 3, 1901. He re-entered the United States Army and was appointed captain and quartermaster, February 2, 1901; major and quartermaster, March 3, 1911; constructing quartermaster in charge of the erection of new riding hall and the new academic building, United States military academy, 1911-13; and chief quartermaster of U. S. troops in Canal Zone to 1917. During the European War he was chief quartermaster, 1st division, 1st army corps, A. E. F., in France, and was serving in that capacity when killed. Married: (1) June 12, 1887, to Louise M. Brasher, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; (2) September 2, 1907, to Mary D. Watson, of New Orleans, La. Children: William Brasher, m. Claudia McKenzie, residence, Dallas, Texas; 2. Bertram Tracy, m. Lucile Hill, residence, Labina, Calif. Last residence: New York.

CLEON B. ROGERS

CLAYTON, DANIEL, captain of a company in the 3rd Confederate cavalry. Deceased. Last residence: DeKalb County.

CLAYTON, HENRY DE LAMAR, lawyer, major general, C. S. Army, and educator, was born March 7, 1827, in Pulaski County, Ga., and died October 3, 1889, at Tuscaloosa; son of Nelson and Sara (Carruthers) Clayton, the former a farmer who represented Pulaski County, Ga., for many years in the Georgia legislature, and in 1838 removed to Alabama and settled in Lee County, near Opelika; grandson of Thomas and Sallie (De Lamar) Clayton; great-grandson of James Clayton; great-great-grandson of James Clayton, immigrant from England to Maryland, who later located in North Carolina. General Clayton is a descendant on his paternal side of James Leigh, a Revolutionary soldier of Georgia. The Carruthers are of Scotch and French descent. He was educated at Vineville, near Macon, Ga., and graduated from Emory and Henry college, Va., in 1848. He read law in the office of Shorter brothers in Eufaula, and was admitted to the bar in 1849, opening an office in Clayton. He was elected a representative to the State legislature in 1857, and again in 1859. At the outbreak of the War of Secession he urged Governor Moore to accept the "Clayton guards" and the "Eufaula rifles," which composed a part of the 3rd regiment, Alabama volunteer corps, of which he was then colonel, but upon the governor's refusal to accept the regiment, he was mustered in as a private in the "Clayton guards." The governor finding that he was determined to go ordered him to Pensacola to take charge of all of the Alabama volunteers, and to organize them into regiments as soon as possible. On March 28, 1861, he organized the 1st Alabama regiment and was elected its colonel. Remaining in this capacity for a year he then returned to Alabama, organizing at Opelika the 39th Alabama infantry regiment of which he was elected colonel, May 15, 1862. He commanded this regiment in Gen. Bragg's Kentucky campaign, receiving a wound at Murfreesboro that necessitated his absence for thirty days. He was appointed brigadier general, April 25, 1863, his commission to rank from April 22, 1863, and the Eighteenth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-eighth, Thirty-second, and Fifty-eighth Alabama regiments were placed under his command. Upon the reorganization of the troops in July and August, 1863, his brigade consisted of the Eighteenth, Thirty-sixth, and Thirty-eighth Alabama regiments and Capt. John T. Humphrey's Arkansas battery. His brigade played an important part in the battles of Chickamauga, Rocky Face Mountain and New Hope. On July 7, 1864, he was appointed major general and was assigned to what was Stuart's division, which was composed of Stovall's, Baker's, Gibson's and Holtzclaw's brigade. He commanded these troops in the campaigns of the Army of Tennessee, was wounded several times, and at Jonesborough had three horses killed under him. He fought at the battle of Nashville and covered the retreat of the Confederate Army on December 16, 1864, being relieved by General Stevenson's division on the following day. At the engagements of March 19 and 21, near Bentonville, N. C., their service was invaluable, the latter date being the last battle in which they participated. At the close of the war he turned his attention to his profession and to farming. In May, 1866, he was elected judge of the third judicial circuit court of Alabama holding this position until 1868, when he was removed under the reconstruction acts of congress. He again returned to the practice of law and farming. In 1880 he was again elected judge of the third judicial circuit court, resigning April 10, 1886, to become a candidate for governor, but suffered defeat in this issue. In June, 1886, he was elected president and professor of international law, University of Alabama, at the same time receiving the honorary degree of LL. D. from that institution. He served with marked ability in this capacity for two years. He was an Episcopalian and a Democrat. Married: in 1850, to Victoria Virginia, daughter of Gen. John L. Hunter (q. v.). Children: 1. Nelson, d. in infancy; 2. Sarah Elizabeth, m. Andrew Maxwell Matthews; 3. Joseph A., m. Eugenia Williamson, of Birmingham; 4. Teresa, d. in infancy; 5. Henry D., (q. v.); 6. Thomas Nelson, m. Nora Jennings, of Eufaula; 7. Victoria Virginia, m. Wiley Williams, of Columbus, Ga.; 8. Bertram Tracy, (q. v.); 9. Mary Elliott; 10. Helen Davis, m. Dr. H. C. Rogers, of Muscogee, Okla.; 11. Jeff Davis (q. v.); 12. Junius Pugh, lawyer, Ozark, Okla.; 13. Lee Johnston (q. v.). Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CLAYTON, HENRY DE LAMAR, lawyer, congressman, and federal judge, was born February 10, 1857, in Barbour County; son of Gen. Henry D. and Victoria Virginia (Hunter)

Clayton (q. v.); brother of Lee Johnston Clayton (q. v.); of Bertram T. Clayton (q. v.); and of Jeff Davis Clayton (q. v.); Judge Clayton entered the University of Alabama in 1875, receiving the degrees of A. B., 1877, and LL. B., 1878. He began the practice of his profession at Clayton in 1878; was register in chancery of Barbour County, 1880-84; practiced at Eufaula, 1880-1914; representative in State legislature, 1890-91; and United States district attorney, middle district of Alabama, 1893-96. In 1897 he was elected as a Democrat to the fifty-fifth congress and to the seven succeeding congresses, serving from March 4, 1897, to May, 1914, resigning at the latter date to accept the appointment of United States district judge of the middle and northern districts of Alabama. Married: (1) in 1882, to Virginia Ball, daughter of Gen. William Wirt Allen (q. v.); (2) to Bettie, daughter of the late Samuel M. Davis, of Georgetown, Ky. Residence: Montgomery.

CLAYTON, JEFF DAVIS, lawyer and planter, was born April 13, 1869, near Clayton, Barbour County; son of Gen. Henry De Lamar and Victoria Virginia (Hunter) Clayton (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools of Clayton; graduated A. B., 1890, from the University of Alabama; took the LL. B. degree in 1892, from Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn. He practiced law at Eufaula from 1893 until 1903, when on account of ill health he engaged in planting, which pursuit he now follows. Until his election as a member of the house of representatives of 1919 from Barbour County, he had never held office. He is a Democrat; and an Episcopalian. He is unmarried. Residence: Clayton.

CLAYTON, LEE JOHNSTON, lawyer and judge, was born February 10, 1874, at Clayton, Barbour County; son of Henry De Lamar and Victoria Virginia (Hunter) Clayton (q. v.), brother of Henry D. Clayton, jr. (q. v.); of Bertram T. Clayton (q. v.); and of Jeff Davis Clayton (q. v.). He attended the public schools of Tuscaloosa and Clayton and graduated in 1892 from the University of Alabama. In 1893-94, he taught at Cowikee, and in the latter year was admitted to the bar. For several years he was private secretary to Congressman Clayton, and in 1903 was elected judge of the inferior court of Eufaula; reelected in 1910; resigned in 1911, and was appointed assistant U. S. attorney, fifth district, September 16, 1913, a position he still holds. He is a Democrat; Episcopalian; Knight of Pythias; Odd Fellow; and Mason. Married: June 4, 1902, at Eufaula, to Caroline Elizabeth, daughter of William Preston and May Fontaine (Flewellen) Copeland (q. v.). Children: 1. Preston Copeland; 2. Mary Elliott; 3. Victoria Virginia; 4. Lee Johnston. Residence: Eufaula.

CLEMENS, JEREMIAH, lawyer and author, U. S. senator, was born December 28, 1814, in Huntsville, and died May 21, 1865, at that place; son of James Clemens, who came from Kentucky to Alabama, and settled in Madison County in 1812. His mother was a sister of

Hon. Archie E. Mills, who represented Limestone County in the State legislature in 1838, and of John Mills, at one time sheriff of Madison County. He attended LaGrange College, and the University of Alabama, and was graduated from the latter institution, 1833. He studied law at Transylvania University; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and opened a law office in Huntsville. When the trouble with the Cherokee Indians broke out that same year, he volunteered in the U. S. Army as a private. He was appointed U. S. district attorney for the northern district of Alabama by President Van Buren in 1838, and represented Madison County in the State legislature in 1839, 1840, and 1841. He raised a company of riflemen and with them joined the Texan revolutionists in 1842, serving in the army as lieutenant-colonel. Returning to Alabama in 1843, he was again elected to the State legislature that year, and re-elected in 1844. In the latter year, he also served as presidential elector. When war with Mexico was declared, he raised a company of volunteers and was commissioned major of the Thirtieth U. S. infantry, March 3, 1847. He was promoted lieutenant-colonel, April, 1848, and colonel of the Ninth infantry, July 6, 1848. He was discharged July 20, 1848, and remained in Mexico as chief of the depot of purchases.

Mr. Clemens was an unsuccessful candidate against Mr. Cobb of Jackson for representative in congress in 1849, but was elected to the U. S. senate over ex-Gov. Fitzpatrick for the unexpired term of Hon. Dixon H. Lewis, December 3, 1849. He served through the Thirty-first and Thirty-second congresses. He was a presidential elector for Alabama on the Fillmore ticket in 1856, and in 1858 took up his residence in Memphis, Tenn., assuming the editorship of the "Eagle and Enquirer" in association with Gen. Borland. That enterprise was short lived, and he returned to Alabama. He was a member of the secession convention of Alabama of 1861, and was opposed to immediate secession, preferring what was known as the co-operative policy after consultation with the other southern states. After he ascertained that the ordinance of secession would pass by a large majority, he voted for it assigning reasons for so doing, which have been published in "The History and Debates of the Convention of the People of Alabama," by William R. Smith. He was appointed major-general of the state militia by Gov. Moore in 1861, but was engaged in no active service. During the Federal occupancy of Huntsville, he again became a Unionist, and visited the North. In 1864 he advocated the re-election of President Lincoln. Mr. Clemens wrote several novels including "Bernard Lyle," 1853, a historical novel; "Mustang Gray," 1857; "The Rivals," 1859, a story of the times of Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton; "Tobias Wilson, or a Tale of the Great Rebellion," 1865; and left incomplete a history of the war. A manuscript volume containing copies of his correspondence with Gov. A. B. Moore and others at the beginning of the War of Secession, when he was in command of the state troops, is in the possession of his only child, Mrs.

W. W. Townsend, of Mexico. In politics he was first a Whig, and later a Democrat. Married: December 4, 1834, Mary L. Read, daughter of John Read, a merchant at Huntsville. Children: 1. Mary R., m. (1) a Mr. King of Georgia, who was killed in the battle of Chickamauga, (2) Dr. W. W. Townsend of Philadelphia, resides at San Pedro de los Pinos, Tacubaya, D. F., Mexico. Last residence: Huntsville.

CLEMENTS, HARDY, pioneer planter, was born October 16, 1783, at Edgefield Court House, S. C., and died September 29, 1867, in Tuscaloosa County; son of Ruben and Elizabeth (Stuart) Clements, the former a native of Pendleton and Edgefield Court House, S. C., and of Scotch descent. He received a common school education and upon coming to manhood's estate left his parental roof to seek his fortune. Riding horseback, and with a hundred dollars as his sole financial possession, he journeyed to Alabama and located in Tuscaloosa County, where he acquired lands and engaged in farming upon a small scale. In the course of time he became the master of a thousand slaves and owner of twenty thousand acres of land. He manufactured woolen and cotton goods for the use of his family and slaves; was much interested in public affairs, and for some years a county commissioner. He belonged to a long lived family, his mother almost reaching the century mark. He was interested in the science of mathematics and compiled an arithmetic, the manuscript of which is preserved by his descendants. Married: (1) December 30, 1822, to Martha, daughter of Rev. Dudley and Mary (Coleman) Hargrove, of Virginia, from which state the family moved to Hancock County, Ga., and in 1819, to Tuscaloosa County, of English descent, granddaughter of Col. Thomas Coleman, an officer in the Revolutionary army, (2) May 15, 1832, to Maria Ann Pegues. Children: by the first wife, 1. Rufus Hargrove, m. Martha Lavinia Bugbee; 2. Luther Morgan, unmarried; 3. Early Coleman, m. (1) Julia Malinda Bugbee, (2) Ann Foote; by the second wife, 4. Anne Stuart, m. Thomas Oliver Prince; 5. Newton Nash, m. Laura McMichael; 6. Egbert Rush, m. Mary (Davis) McMichael; 7. Asenith Rice, m. Nicholas Perkins Marlowe; 8. Collier Foster, unmarried. Last residence. Tuscaloosa County.

CLEMENTS, JAMES FRANKLIN, lawyer, was born July 10, 1829, in William County, Va., and died October 6, 1897, at Hayneville; son of Z. J. Clements, who was born in King William County, Va. When he was nineteen years old, Capt. Clements left Virginia and came to reside in Alabama. He read law in the office of his relative, Hon. J. LaF. Cottrell at Hayneville, was admitted to the bar, and opened practice at that place. He was connected with the press for a short time, and in 1860 was on the Douglas electoral ticket. The following year, he was a candidate for state senator from Butler and Lowndes Counties, but was defeated by Hon. Edmund Harrison. During the War of Secession, he enlisted in the C. S. Army, becoming captain of a company in the Forty-fifth Alabama infantry regiment. He was wounded at the battle of Murfreesboro, while commanding his company. In 1865 he represented Lowndes County in the state constitutional convention, and continued to conduct his law practice in Hayneville. He was a Democrat; and an Episcopalian, being warden of St. Andrew's Church in Hayneville at the time of his death. Married: August 4, 1858, at Hayneville, Sarah Manly Rudolph, daughter of Dr. Burrell Boykin and Mary Emma (Higgins) Rudolph who lived at that place. Children: 1. Elfie Murray, deceased, m. Louis Belgart; 2. Annie Eliza, deceased; 3. Mary Yates, deceased. Last residence: Hayneville.

CLEMENTS, LUTHER MORGAN, physician, was born November 15, 1825, in Tuscaloosa County, and died November 30, 1903, in Tuscaloosa; son of Hardy and Martha (Hargrove) Clements (q. v.), and brother of Rufus Hargrove Clements (q. v.). He received his early education in the schools of his native county, and at the University of Alabama; graduated at the Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia, Pa. He entered the Confederate Army and served both as soldier and surgeon; captain of the "Warrior Guards," 5th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, for one year and with the 41st Alabama infantry regiment, until the close of the war, being honorably discharged April, 1865 at Appomattox, Va. Unmarried. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CLEMENTS, MERIT KING, lawyer, teacher, was born March 18, 1855, in Talladega, now Clay, County; son of Benjamin Asbury and Tempe (Farrell) Clements, the former a Georgian, who lived in Randolph, Talladega and Clay Counties, fought under Gen. Robert E. Lee in the army of Virginia and was present at the surrender at Appomattox, the latter a descendant of the Wick family of New Jersey, named for Tempe Wick of Revolutionary fame; grandson of William and Winnie (Wharton) Clements, who came from Georgia to Alabama, settling in Randolph County while it was inhabited by Indians, and of Jethro and Martha Farrell of Talladega County; great-grandson of James Clements who fought through the entire Revolutionary War with Washington, Putnam, Joseph Warren and others. He received his early education in the public schools of Clay County, and was graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, B. S. A., 1876. He taught school for thirty-two consecutive years, until 1904, serving in that time as principal of the Collinsville High School, seven years, of the Attalla High School, four years, vice-president two years, and president one year, of Blount College, and president of the Eleventh District Agricultural School at Athens, eleven years. He was licensed to preach in 1878, and was admitted on trial in the North Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, 1878. He was ordained a deacon at Oxford, 1880, and an elder at Birmingham, 1882. He was located, at his own request, in 1885. In 1904 he was admitted to the bar, and has practiced law since that time. He was appointed superintendent of education of Etowah County to fill an unexpired term; was mayor of Athens, 1905-1909, and in 1912 was elected superintendent of education of Limestone County. He was commandant of the corps of cadets at Blount College, 1890-1893, with the title of colonel. He is a Democrat, an elder in the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and has been on the board of stewards for twenty-nine years. He is a Mason; a Knight of Pythias; a Woodman of the World; and an Odd Fellow. Married: (1) December 17, 1876, Sophia Thomas, who died February 14, 1889, daughter of Jonathan and Emily (Tolbert) Thomas, of Macon County; (2) July 21, 1890, Emma Roberts, daughter of Rev. F. M. and Mary Susan (Burton) Roberts. Children, by first marriage: 1. Edna Earl, m. Dr. E. T. Fields, Ensley; 2. Victor Hugo, m. Hallie Achic, Athens; 3. Merit DeWitt, m. Clara Morris, Ensley; 4. Bennie Thomas, d. in infancy; by second marriage: 5. Opie King; 6. Otis Roberts, m. Nora Tarver, Ensley; 7. Frank Hartman; 8. Mary Elizabeth; 9. Thelma Farrell, d. in infancy; 10. William Green; 11. Charles Burton, d. in infancy. Residence: Athens.

CLEMENTS, NEWTON NASH, lawyer, representative in congress, was born December 23, 1834, and died February 20, 1900; son of Hardy and Maria (Pegues) Clements. He was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., and A. M., 1861. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, occupying himself as lawyer and planter at Tuscaloosa until the outbreak of the War of Secession. He was made colonel of the Fiftieth regiment of Alabama volunteers, C. S. Army, and served throughout the war. After peace was established he returned to his plantation and profession at Tuscaloosa. He represented Tuscaloosa County in the State legislature, 1870-1872, and again in 1874-1876. During his first term in the legislature, in 1870, he and Prof. W. S. Wyman were the first white representatives of Tuscaloosa County elected to the legislature after the war. At the beginning of his next term, the house of representatives was about equally divided politically, and the struggle for supremacy of the races culminated. At that crisis, he was called to preside over the house as speaker pro tempore, and served throughout the session, bringing order out of chaos. Largely through his strength of will and steadfastness of purpose the state was redeemed from negro domination. He was again elected to the legislature in 1876 and made speaker of the house. In 1880, he was elected to the United States congress. In 1886, 1888 and 1890, he was returned to the legislature, and in the last session served for the third time as speaker. After his election to the house in 1896, he held that position for the fourth time. Among the legislative measures he was principally identified with were those providing for the convention which framed the present state constitution, the bill for the adjustment of the state debt in 1874-1875, the bill for the establishment of the school system of Alabama, and the refunding bill of 1896. He was a Democrat; and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon college fraternity. Married: May, 1864, at Columbus, Miss., Laura Garnet McMichael. Children: 1. Belle G., Tuscaloosa; 2. Dudley Alsey, b. September 7, 1873, A. B., A. M., 1894, tax commissioner of Tuscaloosa County 1898-1901, lawyer, m. October 25, 1899, at Tupelo, Miss., Daisye Juanita Bell, resides at Tuscaloosa; 3. Hardy, b. February 13, 1881, resides at Tuscaloosa; 4. Newton Nash, jr., b. February 5, 1869, d. August 26, 1886. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CLEMENTS, RUFUS HARGROVE, lawyer, planter, and legislator, was born November 1, 1823, in Tuscaloosa County, and died December 1, 1875, in Tuscaloosa; son of Hardy and Martha (Hargrove) Clements (q. v.). He was educated in the country schools of his neighborhood and at the University of Alabama, from which he graduated with the A. B. degree, 1845, and A. M., 1848. He studied law at the Harvard university, and received the LL. B. degree from that institution, 1847. He practiced his profession and also conducted planting interests. In 1850 he was elected to the Alabama Legislature and served until 1853; was a member of Governor Chapman's and Governor Collier's staff, with the rank of colonel. He was a Democrat; and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa college fraternity. Married: November 27, 1850, in Montgomery, to Martha Lavinia, daughter of Judge Francis and Lavinia Hudson (Tarrant) Bugbee (q. v.). Children: 1. Julia Lavinia; 2. Coosa Corinne; 3. Rufus Hargrove, jr.; 4. infant son; 5. Gertrude; 6. Leila; 7. Francis Bugbee, m. Luna Wynn Wilson, Birmingham; 8. Julian Morgan, m. Caroline J. Simonds; 9. Clara Estelle, m. A. R. Smith, Demopolis. The first six of these children died in childhood. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

CLEVELAND, WILLIAM CALLOWAY, Baptist minister, was born June 22, 1834, in Dallas County, and died February 17, 1899, in Talladega; son of Carter Harrison and Mary (Smith) Cleveland, of Dallas; grandson of Lieut. Larkin Green and Frances Cleveland, the former a Revolutionary soldier, who served under his brother Col. Benjamin Cleveland, at the battle of Kings Mountain; great-grandson of John and Martha (Coffee) Cleveland, of Bull Run, Va. He was educated by private tutors, and fitted for the University of Alabama from which he graduated A. B., 1853; attended the University of New Orleans; University of New York City, 1856; studied medicine in Charleston, S. C.; and practiced in Dallas County, until 1860, when he decided on the ministry, and was admitted to preach in the Baptist church. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Howard college, in 1875. He served churches at Snow Hill, Carlowville, Montevallo, Columbia and Selma. He was the founder and president of the board of ministerial education; president of the Alabama Baptist convention; once president of Southern Baptist convention. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and a Knight of Honor. Married: (1) in 1860, to Eliza C. Smith; (2) in 1870, to Frances C. Lide; (3) in 1881, to Catherine S. Mallory. Children: 1. Ethel Roberta, m. Dr. S. W. Welch of Talladega; 2. Walter George, m. Ninette Dugue de Livaudais, of New Orleans; 3. Ashby Dubose, m. Sarah Alexander, Salt Lake City; 4. Elizabeth, m. John E. Morriss, of Birmingham. Last residence: Talladega.

CLIETT, MINER JAMES, merchant, farmer, and legislator, was born December 27, 1870, at Childersburg, Talladega County; son of Henry Jonathan and Emily (Wynn) Cliett, the former was born near Augusta, Ga., and lived at Cedar-town, Ga., and Childersburg, was a Confederate soldier, a merchant and farmer; grandson of Miner Jonathan and Sarah (Smith) Cliett, who came from Augusta, Ga., and settled near Childersburg, and of James Wynn, who lived near Alpine. The Cliett family came from South Carolina to Georgia, while the Wynn family came from Georgia. He was educated in the common schools of Talladega County; at Marion institute, 1893-94, where he took a business course. He is a merchant and farmer, having lived at his present place of residence all his life. He has been three times mayor of Childersburg; a member of the jury commission of Talladega County; and represented Talladega County in the legislature 1919. He is a Democrat; and a member of the Conservative Christian Church. During the European War he took a prominent part in all local activities. Married: December 13, 1897, near Childersburg, to Pauline, daughter of William H. and Sallie (Cleveland) Montgomery, the former was a native of Kentucky, who later came to Talladega County where he became a prominent planter. Children: 1. Emily Cleveland, m. Rev. B. C. Goodpasture, of Shelbyville, Tenn., a Christian minister; 2. Agnes Erie, teaches in David Lipscombe college, Nashville, Tenn.; 3. William Henry, unmarried; 4. Mildred. Residence: Childersburg.

CLIFTON, JAMES M., major, 10th, also called 4th, battalion Alabama infantry, C. S. Army.

CLISBY, ANNIE, teacher, author and writer. Residence: Montgomery and Edgefield, S. C.

CLISBY, JOHN, merchant and farmer, was born July 3, 1813, at Medford, near Boston, Mass., and died March 16, 1894, at Verbena; son of John Paul and Martha (Butters) Clisby, of Medford, commander of the Medford light infantry in 1814, town moderator for a number of years and also town assessor and selectman; grandson of Joseph and Louis (Eaton) Clisby of Boston, the former served in the Revolutionary War at sea, first on board of the brigantine Tyrannicide and, later on, a privateer, and of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Simpson) Butters, of Andover, Mass., the former marched from Reading, Mass., in the Lexington alarm, April 19, 1775, as a private in Capt. John Walton's company, and Col. David Green's regiment, afterward served under Col. Brooks and Col. Jacob Gerrish, and after the war moved from Reading to Andover, Mass. The Clisbys came from England in 1663 and settled in Boston. John Clisby received his education in his native town and migrated to Alabama at the age of seventeen. He began merchandising at Washington Landing and from there moved to Montgomery in 1832. Ten years later he settled in Coosa County where he farmed. In 1866 he took up his residence at Wetumpka and in 1875 removed to Verbena, Chilton County, where he resided the remainder of his years. He was a justice of the peace in Coosa County and postmaster at Weogufkha during the War of Secession. He served in the Seminole War in Florida, 1836; was a member of the "Montgomery True Blues" and captain of the company in 1838. He was a loyal Confederate, and while too old to participate in the war, gave his sons to the cause, one of whom was killed at the battle of Peach Tree Creek. He was a Democrat; and Methodist. Married: February 4, 1839, at Montgomery, to Emily Damaris, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Tillman) Hughes of that place, the former a native of Virginia who located in Alabama in 1818, the latter from South Carolina. The ancestors of both served in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. John Hughes, (q. v.) m. Fannie Young, Montgomery; 2. George Clinton, m. Mary Mastin, Montgomery; 3. Freling Clay, d. 1852; 4. Stephen Hughes, killed in battle of Peach Tree Creek; 5. Alfred Angus (q. v.), m. (1) Fannie Glover (2) Emily Irwin, Birmingham; 6. Mary Eliza, died in infancy; 7. Emma, m. C. L. B. Marsh, Edgefield, S. C.; 8. Elizabeth, m. James Cobb, Edgefield, S. C.; 9. Lorenzo, m. Clara Barrett, West Point, Miss.; 10. Rosa Mayhew, m. S. W. John, (q. v.) Selma; 11. Harriet, m. J. E. Morris, Birmingham; 12. Annie May. Last residence: Verbena.

CLISBY, JOHN HUGHES, cotton merchant and mayor, was born October 5, 1840, in Montgomery, and died May 15, 1902, in that city, son of John and Emily Damaris Hughes (q. v.). His education was acquired in the schools of Wetumpka. At the outbreak of hostilities between the states, he joined the Confederate army, going out with Semple's battery under Gen. Joe Wheeler. Eighteen months later he was transferred to the 51st Alabama cavalry, commanded by John T. Morgan, and served until 1864, when, on account of ill health, he was transferred to the commissary department and was captured at Macon, Ga., April, 1865, by Wilson's Raiders. His interest in military affairs was unceasing and later he was captain of the "Montgomery Field Artillery," and major of the Second regiment of infantry, Alabama national guard. He began merchandising when nineteen years of age, but his business activities were interrupted by the war. Upon returning home from the battlefield, he reentered the mercantile business and remained in it until 1873, when he became a cotton buyer. Besides this, he was connected with the Commercial fire insurance company and was a director in the Bank of Montgomery. In 1885 he was elected to the city council and served in that body a number of years. He was twice mayor of Montgomery. He was a Democrat; an Episcopalian; and Knight of Pythias. Married: October 10, 1864, at Montgomery, to Fannie May, daughter of Micajah and Ann (McMurray) Young of Tuskegee. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLITHERALL, ALEXANDER BARRON, lawyer, was born December 12, 1820, at Smithville, Brunswick County, N. C., and died February 17, 1869, in Montgomery. He was a nephew of George Burgwyn of Wilmington, N. C., and of John F. Burgwyn, of Newbern, N. C.; and was connected by family ties with the Pollocks and Devereauxs of that state. He was attending college in North Carolina, when his course was interrupted by the removal of his mother to Greene County in 1837. They settled in Greensboro, and Mr. Clitherall clerked in the store of his brother, George B. Clitherall, for the next two years. In 1839, he went to Tuscaloosa to read law under Hon. E. W. Peck. Licensed to practice in 1841, he moved to Pickens County the year after and opened a law office there. In 1842 he was elected assistant clerk of the house of representatives, and was re-elected until 1847, when, upon the retirement of Joseph Phelan, he was elected principal clerk. He was retained in that office through the sessions of 1849 and 1851, but in 1853 was defeated by Malcolm D. Graham of Coosa County. During that year, he was grand patriarch of the Sons of Temperance in the state. In March, 1854, Gov. Winston appointed him to the vacancy on the bench of the circuit court caused by the resignation of Judge Reavis, and he held the spring term of the court. In June of the same year, he was appointed probate judge of Pickens County by Gov. Winston, and held that office for a year. He was elected to the State senate from Pickens County in 1857, and to the house of representatives in 1859. He became a citizen of Montgomery in 1861, and was the temporary private secretary of Jefferson Davis, and assistant secretary of the congress. As secretary to President Davis, Mr. Clitherall bore the first message of the president to the Confederate congress, the original manuscript of which is now in the possession of his family. Shortly afterward, he was appointed register of the treasury, and became the holder of the first bond, of one thousand dollars, issued by that government under the act of congress authorizing the first loan in 1861, on a basis equivalent to specie. He held that position for a year, then resumed the practice of law in Montgomery. When the pressure of war had nearly cut off the business of the courts, Judge Clitherall acted as clerk to committees in the legislature, and accepted like positions, in order to support his family. In 1865, he was a candidate before the legislature, for the office of attorney-general, but was defeated by Col. John W. A. Sanford, who had a brilliant war record. He was an occasional contributor to the press, and was author of several humorous sketches. Married: a Miss Hayes of Pickens County, who lived in Montgomery County with her children, after her husband's death. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLOPTON, DAVID, lawyer, representative in congress, associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama, was born September 29, 1820, in Putnam County, Ga., and died February 5, 1892, at Montgomery; son of Dr. Alford and Sarah (Kendrick) Clopton, who were married in Monticello, Ga., and lived in Putnam County, Ga., the former a physician, several times a member of the Georgia legislature, and president of a bank in Macon, Ga.; grandson of David Clopton, a Virginia planter, and of Martin Kendrick, of Washington County; great-great-grandson of William Clopton, who came to America from England with his brother sometime previous to the War of Independence, was married and settled in New Kent County, Va., while the brother, who remained single, returned to England; from him are descended all the families of that name in the United States, now distributed throughout Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. Judge Clopton obtained his preliminary education at the country schools in Putnam County, and at the Eatonton Academy, Eatonton, Ga., until he was eleven years of age. At that time his father moved with him to Vineville, Macon County, Ga., where he attended school until his sixteenth year. He entered Randolph-Macon College, Virginia, in 1836, and was graduated with first honors in 1840, in the class with Rev. James Pierce, son of Dr. Lovick Pierce, of Georgia, who afterward married Mr. Clopton's youngest sister; Col. James F. Dowdell, for three terms member of congress from Alabama; William F. Samford; Rev. Dr. Wadsworth; and Col. Tennant Lomax, the gallant Confederate officer who fell at Seven Pines, 1862.

After his graduation, Judge Clopton returned to his home at Macon, Ga., and began the study of law under Hon. Absolom H. Chappell. He was admitted to the bar in the fall of 1841, and commenced his practice in Griffin, Ga., in partnership with Robert S. Lanier, now of Macon, Ga. In 1844 he moved to Alabama, where he was associated for some nine months at Tuskegee with Solomon L. Pope, who afterwards moved to Georgia. After practicing by himself for some time, he entered into a partnership, in 1847, with his brother-in-law, Robert F. Ligon, who had just then returned from the Mexican War. That partnership lasted for nineteen years, and was only terminated by the removal of Judge Clopton to Montgomery in 1866. In 1859, the Democratic party nominated him, against his protest, to represent Montgomery district in congress. He was opposed by the Hon. Thomas J. Judge, in one of the most memorable canvasses that ever occurred in the state, and was elected by a majority of two hundred twenty-one votes. He took his seat in congress in December, 1859, serving through that session, returned to Washington in December, 1860, and when Alabama passed the ordinance of secession retired with the rest of the Alabama delegation. In congress, he was conspicuous as a firm and earnest advocate of states rights and of a strict construction of the Federal constitution.

In the spring of 1851, he volunteered as a private in Capt. Robert F. Ligon's company, Twelfth Alabama infantry, and was soon promoted to assistant quartermaster with the rank of captain. In the fall of that year, without being a candidate, he was elected from his district to the Confederate congress. He served through that term, was re-elected in 1863 over John H. Cadenhead of Macon, and remained in the body until the downfall of the Confederacy. In March, 1866, Judge Clopton settled in Montgomery and resumed the practice of his profession in partnership with Judge George W. Stone and Gen. James H. Clanton. That partnership was terminated in 1871, by the death of Gen. Clanton, who was shot dead on the street in Knoxville, Tenn., while attending the United States court, as attorney for the state of Alabama in the matter of the Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad. From that time, he continued his partnership with Judge Stone until March, 1876, when the latter was elevated to the bench. In the fall of that year, the firm of Clopton, Herbert & Chambers was formed, the other members being Hilary A. Herbert, twice a member of congress, and William L. Chambers, Judge Clopton's son-in-law. Judge Clopton had taken little part in politics after the War of Secession, until the memorable campaign of 1874, at the time of the redemption of the state from carpet-bag rule. He took a prominent part in the fierce and exciting canvass that preceded the state election that year, making speeches in all parts of the state. At the Montgomery county convention, held in June, 1878, to nominate candidates for the state legislature, Mr. Clopton was, entirely without his knowledge, unanimously nominated for the house of representatives, and in the election that followed, was sent to the legislature with an eighteen hundred majority in a county containing a Republican majority of over three thousand. He was chosen speaker of the house during that term. Declining a re-election at the end of the session, he was appointed by Gov. O'Neal, in 1884, an associate justice of the supreme court; and in 1886, being nominated without opposition, by the Democratic party, was elected to that position. He had held the office for nearly eight years at the time of his death in 1892.

Judge Clopton was one of the organizers of the First National Bank of Sheffield, and of the Sheffield Coal & Iron Company, and was a director in both corporations. He was president of the board of trustees of East Alabama College, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. He was grand master of the grand lodge of Alabama Masons, 1853-1856, holding the office for the full length of time allowed by the constitution, then was elected grand high priest of the grand chapter of Alabama for three successive years, the longest time allowed by the constitution. Married: (1) Martha E. Ligon, who died in November, 1867, sister of Robert F. Ligon, lieutenant governor of Alabama; (2) in 1871, at Columbus, Ga., Mrs. Mary F. Chambers, who died February, 1885; (3) November 29, 1887, in Huntsville, Mrs. Virginia Clay (q. v.), widow of Judge Clement Claiborne Clay (q. v.). Children, by first marriage: 1. Edward Hunter, planter, m. November 5, 1887, at Charleston, S. C., Virginia Eason, d. April 18, 1894, at Charleston, S. C.; one of his daughters married Clifford A. Lanier, of Montgomery County, author of "Thorn-Fruit," and "Two Hundred Bales"; and another was the wife of William L. Chambers, Judge Clopton's law partner for several years. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLOUD, N. B., superintendent of education, 1868, under the Reconstruction acts of congress. Last residence: Montgomery.

CLOWER, JONATHAN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Bibb County; private N. Carolina Militia; enrolled on July 6, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $40.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Part 3, vol. xiii, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COATE, HENLY W., public official, was born about 1820 near Clarksville, and died in 186—, in Clarke County; son of William and Elizabeth Coate. His father came from Newberry District, S. C., and settled near what became Clarksville, about the year 1800. He travelled the entire distance through the Indian lands with his few household goods conveyed on a hogshead, drawn by an ox, which had been harnessed to shafts attached to the hogshead. Arriving in Alabama, he cleared a plantation near what is now Grove Hill, and his house was for a time the place where the courts of the county were held. He died in 1870, supposed to be one hundred years of age. Judge Coate was reared on the home plantation. He was elected tax collector for Clarke County in 1841, and held that office for several years. In 1844, he was elected clerk of the county court, remaining in office until the office was abolished by the legislature in 1849. After the establishment of the courts of probate, he was elected probate judge by a large majority, for a term of six years. He was a Mason, was secretary of his lodge for a number of years, and at the time of his death was senior warden. He was a member of the Baptist church at Horeb. Married: Ann Elizabeth Boroughs. Children: 1. Richard C., d. May 28, 1866; 2. Mattie E., m. Samuel Forwood; 3. Mazie R., m. A. Paul Jones, of Texas. Last residence: Grove Hill.

COBB, ALEXANDER, member of the State legislature from Fayette County, 1861-65; probate judge of Lamar County, 1874-87. Deceased. Last residence: Vernon.

COBB, JAMES BASS, banker, was born March 17, 1856, at Pushmataha, Choctaw County; son of Thomas and Lucy Lewis (Thorn) Cobb (q. v.). He was educated at private schools in Livingston and at Eastman's business college, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., completing his studies there in 1874. He studied law but never attended a law school. He engaged in mercantile business in Livingston and Mobile until 1883, when he moved to Birmingham, where he became bookkeeper of the National bank. On the organization of the First national bank, he was made its general bookkeeper and afterward its receiving teller, both of which positions he filled with marked ability. In 1885 the Central bank was organized. He was invited to take a part in its management and was appointed its cashier. In 1886 this bank was merged into a national association and took the name of Berney national bank, of which he became cashier, which position he held until 1894, when he was made its president. He was president of the Clearing house association during the panic of 1893. In 1899 he resigned the presidency of the Berney national bank and accepted the position of vice-president and general manager of the Birmingham trust and savings company. He resigned this position in January 1901, and in the following July was made president of the Alabama national bank. Mr. Cobb is a director and stockholder in some of the leading institutions of Birmingham. He is an Episcopalian; a Knight Templar; a Shriner; an Elk; and Knight of Honor. Married: December 7, 1880, to Susie Ben, daughter of Capt. B. B. and Susan (Franklin) Little of Warsaw. Children: 1. Carrie; 2. Herbert Lewis; 3. William Boykin; 4. Ellen Douglas. Residence: Birmingham.

COBB, JAMES EDWARD, lawyer, was born October 5, 1835, at Thomaston, Upson County, Ga., and died at Las Vegas, New Mexico, June 2, 1903; son of William Anderson and Jane (McMurphy) Cobb, the former born in 1798 in Columbia County, Ga., served in the Seminole War in 1836 and was thirty years ordinary of Upson County, Ga.; grandson of Thomas and Catherine Cobb, and of Col. David and Susanna (Crossby) McMurphy, the former born in Ireland about 1735, served in Gen. Greene's corps in the Revolution, was present at the battle of Eutaw Springs, and died in Augusta, Ga., in 1819. James Edward Cobb received his primary and academic education in the schools at Thomaston, then entered the junior class in Emory college, from which he graduated with the second honor in 1856. In November, 1857, he was admitted to the bar at Zebulon, Ga., and the next year he removed to Texas. He settled first at Quitman and a year later moved to Anderson, where he practiced his profession until 1860, when he lost his library and all other effects by the burning of the town. In a moneyless condition, he went to Galveston, but finding there no satisfactory opening, he returned to Anderson, whence he walked two hundred miles to Beaumont, thence to Liberty, where he taught school until the secession of the state. On the outbreak of the war he joined as a private, Co. F., of the Fifth Texas volunteer regiment. Soon after its organization he was promoted second lieutenant, later first lieutenant, which rank he was holding at the time of his capture at the battle of Gettysburg. He was taken first to Fort McHenry, thence to Fort Delaware, and a month later to Johnson's Island. After a short stay there, he was next taken to Fort Pulaski, thence back to Fort Delaware, where he remained until after the surrender of the Confederate armies. After the war he returned to his old home in Thomaston, but soon settled in Tuskegee, which was his home, until his death, and where he made a name and fame as a jurist and statesman of which Alabama may well be proud. From 1869 to 1874, in shaping public opinion and the trend of political events in Alabama "he succeeded in everything that he undertook and with energy and foresight made his impress in politics, in the church and in his daily intercourse with his fellow men." In 1874 he was elected judge of the ninth judicial district, and served continuously on the bench by re-election until 1886, when he was elected to the 50th congress. He was re-elected to the 51st, 52nd, 53rd, and 54th congresses. His seat in the 54th congress was successfully contested by Albert T. Goodwyn. During his whole service he ably and faithfully served his district and state. On returning from congress, he resumed the practice of law in Tuskegee. He was a valuable member of the Constitutional convention of 1901 which formed the organic law now in force in Alabama. He was a Methodist and a Mason. While temporarily residing in New Mexico, where he had gone in search of health, he died at Las Vegas. Married: October 24, 1867, in Tuskegee, to Carolina Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. James Wesley and Julia Elizabeth (Tigner) Hunter; granddaughter of Hope Hall and Eliza (Glenn) Tigner; great-granddaughter of William and Elizabeth (Crawford) Glenn; great-great-granddaughter of Joel and Fannie (Harris) Crawford, and great-great-great-granddaughter of Benjamin Harris. Children: 1. Edward Hunter, deceased; 2. Rosalie Julia, m. John Evans Henry, Opelika; 3. Lucile Meredith, m. James D. Crenshaw, San Antonio, Tex.; 4. Benajah Bibb, m. Mabelle Massey, Tuskegee; 5. Caroline Tigner, m. Dawson Edwards Laslie, Tuskegee; 6. William Peyton, (q. v.); 7. Cora Archer, deceased. Last residence: Tuskegee.

COBB, RUFUS WILLS, lawyer, governor of Alabama, was born February 25, 1829, at Ashville, St. Clair County, and died November 26, 1913, at Birmingham; son of John W. and Catherine (Stevens) Peak Cobb, who lived on a plantation at Ashville, the former a Virginian, born about 1800, who moved in early life to Abbeville District, S. C., then to Alabama, settling on the Alabama River, in Monroe County, and finally to Ashville, a farmer and merchant, who served in the Creek war with Gen. Andrew Jackson as colonel of a regiment, was twice a member of the state legislature, and died in 1845 at Ashville. He is a relative of Bishop Cobb of the Episcopal church. The ancestors of the Cobb family came to America from Wales and settled in Virginia. Gov. Cobb was educated at an academy in Ashville under Prof. Wasson and Prof. Drury, and was graduated from the University of Tennessee, at Knoxville, 1850. Returning to Ashville, he read law in the office of John C. Thomasson, and was admitted to the bar in 1855. He practiced in St. Clair and adjoining counties in partnership with Judge Thomasson until 1867, when he moved to Shelby County and became associated with B. B. Lewis. That partnership continued until Mr. Lewis was elected president of the University of Alabama. When war was proclaimed in 1861, Gov. Cobb entered the C. S. Army as captain of Co. C, Tenth Alabama infantry regiment, Forney's brigade, and went to Virginia with that regiment, remaining there, until in 1863, he was assigned to Gen. Joseph Wheeler's cavalry in Tennessee, in charge of a scouting party. After the close of the war, he located in Marion, Perry County, and resumed the practice of law, remaining there until 1868, when he went to Columbiana. He stayed in that place until 1873, then moved to Helena.

In 1872, Mr. Cobb was elected State senator from the Shelby and Bibb district. He was returned to the senate, 1876, from Shelby, Jefferson and Walker counties under the new apportionment. During his second term, he was chosen president of the senate. As a senator, he, in conjunction with Hon. Peter Hamilton of Mobile and others, devised the plan of readjustment for the state debt which Gov. Houston submitted to the legislature after elaboration. He was the friend and adviser of Gov. Houston during his administration. Mr. Cobb was nominated and elected governor in 1878, and re-elected in 1880, serving through two terms. He had a quiet administration, without striking events. The change had been made to a Democratic administration; the state debt had been adjusted; federal troops had been removed; and the disasters of war were being rapidly healed. After his term as governor had expired, he retired to private life for a time, but in 1888 was prevailed upon to accept the appointment to serve as probate judge of Shelby County to fill the unexpired term of Judge Theophilus Leeper, in order to avoid a split in the ranks of the Democratic party. He went to Birmingham soon after his term as judge ended.

Gov. Cobb was president of the Central Iron Works at Helena 1873-1891; was local attorney for the Louisville & Nashville Railway; and was engaged in cotton planting and in developing an iron mine, the Delmar, in northern Alabama. He was a Democrat, a Baptist, and belonged to all the branches of the York Rite Masons, was grand master of the grand lodge of Alabama, 1879, 1880, and the only man in Alabama who was grand master and governor of the state at the same time, and was a member of all the lodges of the Scottish Rite Masonry up to and including the thirty-second degree. Married: (1) February, 1850, at Knoxville, Tenn., Margaret McClung who died in 1865, daughter of Hugh L. McClung of Knoxville, Tenn.; (2) December 31, 1866, at Montevallo, Frances Fell, daughter of Richard Fell, sr., who came from Maryland, and was once owner of Fell's Point. Children, by first marriage: 1. John W., farmer, m. Susan Dunnam, deceased, resides at Pleasant Hill; 2. Dora, m. Richard Fell, resides at Birmingham; by second marriage: 3. Edith, m. Charles M. Campbell of Birmingham; 4. Richard C., who went west several years ago. Last residence: Birmingham.

COBB, WILLIAM PEYTON, lawyer and secretary of state, was born January 1, 1880, at Tuskegee; son of James Edward and Caroline Elizabeth (Hunter) Cobb (q. v.). He was educated in the Alabama military institute, Tuskegee; Park high school, LaGrange, Ga., graduated from the State Normal college, Troy, June, 1900, received LL. B., 1905, from the University of Alabama; admitted to the bar at Tuskegee, June, 1905. He was register in chancery, Macon County, 1901-04; supervisor of census, fifth Alabama district, 1910; Democratic presidential elector, state at large, 1912; delegate to Democratic national convention, 1916; and was elected secretary of State, 1918. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Knight of Pythias; and member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. He is unmarried. Residence: Montgomery.

COBB, WILLIAMSON, R. W., public official, representative in Congress, was born June 8, 1807, in Ray County, Tenn., and died November 1, 1864, at Bellefonte. His father moved in 1809 to Bellefonte, Madison County, and settled on a plantation. Mr. Cobb received a limited education; was a peddler of clocks at one time, then entered the mercantile business at Bellefonte. He was elected to the State legislature from Jackson County in 1844, and was re-elected in 1845. During his time in the house, he introduced a bill to amend the law exempting certain articles of housekeeping from sale under execution, for the benefit of each family. The passage of that bill won to Mr. Cobb great popularity among the poorer classes of the state. In the twenty years that followed his services in the legislature, he was out of public employment but two years. Mr. Cobb became a candidate for congress, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. Reuben Chapman, the Democratic nominee for governor, in 1847, and was elected over William Acklin, his competitor. In 1849, he was opposed by Jeremiah Clemens (q. v.) whom he defeated, and in 1853, by Clement Claiborne Clay (q. v.), who was also unsuccessful. For twelve years in succession, Mr. Cobb served as representative in congress, and in 1861, when he was officially notified that Alabama had seceded, he withdrew from Washington with his colleagues, although his devotion to the union was very ardent. The same year, 1861, he was defeated for the Confederate congress by Dr. John P. Ralls, of Cherokee, the only defeat he ever sustained. Two years later he was successful over Dr. Ralls, but did not take his seat when the new congress met in February, 1864. His fidelity was immediately suspected, and after some investigation, he was expelled by a unanimous vote. He was accidentally killed by the discharge of his own pistol in 1864, while putting up a fence at his house in Jackson County.

During his twelve years in congress, Mr. Cobb was chairman of the committee on public lands and carried through congress the bounty land bill of 1850 and the graduation bill of 1854. He was constantly electioneering, and was singularly popular with the humble and unlearned, whose devotion to him was most ardent and defied reason itself. He was vigilant and true in guarding and promoting the interests of his district and section, and in general his votes in congress accorded with those of the other members of the state. He practiced one courtesy that made him many friends in the state; he would look after the interests of gentlemen visiting Washington on business from Alabama, call upon them, show them around, accompany them to the departments and introduce them. Married: a Miss Allison of Madison County. Last residence: Bellefonte, Madison County.

COBB, WILSON, member of the State legislature from Fayette county, 1839 and 1840.

COBBS, DANIEL BOONE, lawyer, was born December 22, 1860, at Livingston, Sumter county; son of James and Margaret Caroline (Lake) Cobbs, the former of Raleigh, N. C., and later of Mobile, the latter of Greensboro and Livingston; grandson of Thomas and Sarah (Hopkins) Cobbs, of Raleigh, N. C., the former at one time mayor of Raleigh, but later settling in Choctaw county, and of Joseph and Margaret Gaines (Scales) Lake, of Greensboro and Livingston, James Cobbs, the father of Representative Cobbs, began the practice of law at the age of nineteen after graduating at old Transylvania university. He served for four years in the War of Secession, was on the staff of Gen. William B. Bate, and was mentioned in the latter's report of the battle of Bentonville. He was later appointed by Gov. Patton as judge of the circuit court, with headquarters at Eutaw, holding this office until ousted "by federal bayonets." Representative Cobbs was named for his father's kinsman, Daniel Boone, of Hernando, Miss., a descendant of Joseph Boone, who was a relative of the Kentucky Daniel. The Cobbs' ancestors came from Kent, England, before the Revolution. They settled in Virginia, and Thomas Cobbs, sr., finally settled in North Carolina. The Lakes were of English and of Scotch origin. Richard Lake, the maternal great-grandfather, of New Jersey, served in the Revolutionary army until its disbandment, then moved to North Carolina, later to Georgia. The Perkins, Scales and Lake families were once closely allied. Representative Cobbs received his early education in the private schools of Livingston, Ala., graduated in 1881 with the degree of Ph. B. from Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., and in the year 1886 studied law at the same university. He became a licensed lawyer in 1887; practiced for a short while with Maj. Hannibal H. Boone, of Navasota, Tex., ex-attorney-general of Texas; then with his father, James Cobbs, at Mobile; for two years at Thomasville, and from 1890 to the present, at Mobile. He has served as notary public and ex-officio justice of the peace; as U. S. commissioner; general guardian of estates of Mobile County; general administrator of Mobile County; and as chairman of the Mobile County Democratic executive committee. He was elected to the lower house of the State legislature in 1919, and served on the committees of education, public health, labor, and immigration, the latter of which he was chairman. Married: January 20, 1890, at Mobile, to Alethea Thompson, daughter of the Rev. William Horton and Mary Jane (Safford) Thompson, of Mobile. The Saffords, Hortons, Thompsons and Burrs are related, and are of English and Scotch stock. On the maternal side the descent is through Rev. Aaron Burr, founder of Princeton college, and father of the U. S. vice president, and a kinsman of Jonathan Edwards. Children: 1. James Horton; 2. Theodosia Catharine. Residence: Mobile.

COBBS, JOHN LEWIS, business man, was born December 7, 1832, in Bedford County, Va., and died November 27, 1897, at Montgomery; son of Bishop Nicholas Hamner and Lucy Henry Landonia (Cobbs) Cobbs (q.v.); grandson of John Lewis and Susan (Hamner) Cobbs, and of Edmund and Elizabeth (Manson) Cobbs, all of Virginia. He received his early education in Virginia, and moved with his parents to Alabama in 1844. He attended the University of Alabama for several years, and established himself as a dry-goods merchant in Tuscaloosa prior to 1858. He entered the C. S. Army, joining Co. D, Second Alabama cavalry, and in 1863 was transferred to the quartermaster corps, serving as assistant quartermaster of Co. F, Fifth regiment of Alabama, with the rank of captain. He was honorably discharged from the service, May 17, 1865. After the war, Mr. Cobbs moved to Montgomery and opened a dry-goods business in that place, now carried on under the name of John L. Cobbs & Company, by his sons, John Lewis and Christopher Claudius Cobbs. In 1888, he was nominated and elected treasurer of the state of Alabama, and was re-elected in 1890, serving through two terms. He was a Democrat, and a member of the Episcopal church, serving for years as vestryman of St. John's Church, and afterwards holding the same office in the Church of the Holy Comforter. Married: October 13, 1858, at "The Cedars," Dallas County, Dorothy Evans Pegues, daughter of Christopher Butler and Elizabeth Hodges (Evans) Pegues, who lived first in Cheraw County, S. C., and later in Dallas County; granddaughter of Claudius Pegues, a captain in the Revolutionary Army; great-granddaughter of Claudius and Henrietta (Butler) Pegues, the former a native of London, England, born in 1719, went to South Carolina in 1736, was married there, settled in Georgetown, S. C., and afterwards moved to Cheraw District, that state, on the Pee Dee River; the latter was a native of Charleston, S. C. Mrs. Cobbs was a niece of Senator Evans of South Carolina. Children: 1. Nicholas Hamner, d. in infancy; 2. John Lewis, m. Ida Belle Woodfin, Montgomery; 3. Christopher Claudius, m. Annie Melvin Westcott, Montgomery; 4. Lucy Hamner, m. John Danforth, Birmingham; 5. Leighton, d. in infancy; 6. Elizabeth Evans, d. in infancy; 7. Edward Ellerbe, d. m. Edith Hurter, Montgomery. Last residence: Montgomery.

COBBS, NICHOLAS HAMNER, first bishop, diocese of Alabama, Protestant Episcopal church, was born February 5, 1796, in Bedford County, Va., and died January 11, 1861, at Montgomery; son of John Lewis and Susan (Hamner) Cobbs, who lived in Bedford County, Va., the former was born in that county in 1763 and died in 1851, was twice married, for a long time served as justice of the peace in Bedford County, and was one of the first to receive confirmation from his son, 1844, shortly after the latter had been consecrated Bishop of Alabama; grandson of Edmund and Sarah (Lewis) Cobbs, of Bedford County, Va., and of Nicholas Hamner, who lived in the same neighborhood; great-grandson of John Lewis, a Virginia planter. Joseph Cobbs, from whom the Cobbs family of Virginia are descended, came to Yorktown, that state, in 1713. Ambrose Cobbs, the emigrant, received land grants in Virginia as early as 1635. He came from England. The family coat-of-arms is identical with that of the French family Cobbé, and it is probable that there was early connection between the two. Family tradition says that the ancestry was originally French, the family being forced to flee from France to England because of religious persecution. There was little in the way of schools about the country near Lynchburg in the early part of the nineteenth century, but Bishop Cobbs received the best schooling the neighborhood afforded. He attended an "old field" school kept by a Scotch Presbyterian, and was drilled in Latin to such an extent, that his pronunciation of that language ever afterward betrayed his tuition by a Scotch burr. Augmenting his early education by private reading and study, he prepared himself for teaching, and in 1812, being then seventeen years old, began to teach in the neighborhood of his birth. While he was engaged in that profession, he studied for the ministry of the Episcopal church, applying to Bishop Moore of Virginia for examination and ordination in 1824. In May of that year, he was confirmed and ordained deacon in Trinity church, Staunton, Va., and a year later was advanced to the priesthood in the Monumental church, Richmond, Va. During the years of his early ministry, he was conducting the academy at New London, Bedford County, some miles from Lynchburg. In 1828, he was elected clerical deputy from the diocese of Virginia to the general convention of the church, a position he continued to fill while he remained in his native state. In 1833, he was selected chaplain at the University of Virginia, and while there took charge of the church in Charlottesville. After a year there, he was called to St. Paul's Church, Petersburg, Va. In 1842 Geneva College conferred upon him the honorary degree of D.D., and the next year, he received the same degree from Hobart College. He accepted charge of St. Paul's church, Cincinnati, O., 1843.

The convention of the Protestant Episcopal church met in Greensboro, May, 1844, and elected him bishop of the diocese of Alabama, as its first bishop. He was consecrated in Old Christ church, Philadelphia, Pa., October 20, 1844, and immediately moved to Tuscaloosa, residing there until Montgomery became the capital of the state, at which time he moved to the latter city. Bishop Cobbs was the most noted opponent of secession in Alabama, and died a few hours before the secession of his state. His son, Dr. R. H. Cobbs, in describing his attitude on that subject, writes: "He was a strong union man and at the same time a very decided states rights man. He foresaw the storm long before it burst upon the country, and the anticipation caused him keen sorrow. He did not believe that the south could secure a peaceable separation, or with that point gained, that two countries holding such diverse views in regard to slavery could live in peace with simply an air line for a boundary. He prayed that, if it was God's will, he might not live to see the southern states secede; but, said frequently and with great decision, that, if living at that time, he would shoulder his musket and volunteer to defend Virginia. His only published statement bearing on this question was a circular addressed to his clergy a few days before his death, in which he advised, in case Alabama seceded, to suspend the use of the 'Prayer for Congress,' and to omit the words, 'thy servant the President of the United States,' and to substitute in their stead the words 'all those thy servants in authority over us,' until it was ascertained what name and form of government the southern states would adopt, or until the ecclesiastical authorities should take action in the premises."

A number of Bishop Cobbs' sermons were printed by request from time to time, but none were collected in book form. His sermon on "The Doubting Christian Encouraged" was several times reprinted. Some of his papers, published writings, and personal biography were used by Rev. Greenough White, of Sewanee, Tenn., in his "Saint of the Southern Church," 1898. His entire library was lost when the boat upon which he and his family were traveling in moving from Cincinnati, O., to Mobile, was sunk. Such books as he collected afterward, are in the possession of his son, Dr. R. H. Cobbs, of Greensboro.

Married: December 18, 1821, in Bedford County, Va., Lucy Henry Landonia Cobbs, his first cousin, who was born April 25, 1808, at her father's home in Bedford County, and died April 28, 1876, in Montgomery; daughter of Edmund and Elizabeth (Manson) Cobbs, the former the brother of Bishop Cobbs' father, born in 1774, died August 9, 1856, the latter born in 1777, died June 22, 1853; granddaughter of Edmund and Sarah (Lewis) Cobbs, and of Peter and Lucy (Clayton) Manson, of Dinwiddie County, Va.; great-granddaughter of John and Elizabeth (Whiting) Clayton, the former "the botanist," who was born in 1693 and died in 1763; great-great-granddaughter of John Clayton, born 1665, died 1737, who was for many years attorney general of the colony of Virginia; great-great-great-granddaughter of Sir John and Alice (Bower) Clayton; great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Sir William Bower. Children: 1. George Washington, b. July 9, 1823, d. June 25, 1824; 2. Robert Addison, b. April 29, 1825, d. June 28, 1887, in Charlestown, W. Va., m. August 25, 1858, Bettie Storrs; 3. Susan Elizabeth, b. July 7, 1827, d. October 30, 1852, in Montgomery, m. December 18, 1851, Rev. John Marsh Mitchell; 4. Mary Lee, b. February 14, 1830, d. October 5, 1845; 5. John Lewis (q. v.); 6. Richard Hooker (q. v.); 7. Martha Smith, b. December 10, 1837, m. January 7, 1858, John Alexander Ellerbe, resides in Greensboro; 8. Leighton Hamner, b. July 16, 1840, d. November 2, 1871; 9. Lucy Eleanor, b. August 20, 1845, d. July 18, 1847; 10. Charlotte Walker, b. January 21, 1847, m. November 22, 1871, Nicholas Cobbs Ellerbe, resides in Sewanee, Tenn. Last residence: Montgomery.

COBBS, RICHARD HOOKER, Episcopal clergyman, was born September 7, 1835, in Bedford County, Va.; son of Bishop Nicholas Hamner and Lucy Henry Landonia (Cobbs) Cobbs (q. v.); grandson of John Lewis and Susan (Hamner) Cobbs and Edmund and Elizabeth (Manson) Cobbs, all of Bedford County, Va. He received his early education in Tuscaloosa from Rev. Horace L. Pratt, Rev. C. F. Peake, Rev. George F. Cushman, D.D., and Rev. R. D. Nevins; and was graduated from the University of Alabama, A.B., 1855, and A.M., 1858. After two years preparation for the ministry at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, he was ordained an Episcopal clergyman, March, 1858. For eighteen months he lived in Huntsville, then moved to Montgomery for a short time. In 1861, he took charge of St. Paul's church, at Greensboro, and has since lived in that place. He was secretary of the council of the diocese of Alabama for thirty years. In 1876, Centre College, Kentucky, conferred upon him the degree of D.D. He was one of the founders of the Alabama Historical Society. Married: at Greensboro, May 15, 1862, Frances Ann Avery, daughter of Rev. John and Ann (Paine) Avery, D.D., who lived at Edenton, N. C. Children: 1. Richard Hooker, jr., m. Lida Tunstall, resides in Anniston; 2. Francis Avery, m. Fanny Erwin Jones, resides in Gadsden; 3. William Addison, m. May Stringfellow, resides in Birmingham; 4. Annie, m. Charles Stollenwerck, resides near Greensboro; 5. Mary Ellerbe, m. Edwin Spencer Jack, resides at Greensboro; 6. Lucy Landon, m. Nathan Lane Castleman; 7. Edith Manson, m. Armstead Inege Selden, resides in Greensboro. Residence: Greensboro.

COBBS, THOMAS, lawyer, was born in August, 1826, in Raleigh, N. C., and died in Birmingham; son of Capt. Thomas and Sarah (Boone) Cobbs, both natives of North Carolina, the former was a very cultured man, a large planter and manufacturer, a Democrat of the straightest sect, and was, for several terms, mayor of Raleigh, who moved to Choctaw County about 1841, but died a few months after his arrival, and the grandson of Col. Joseph Boone, of the American Revolution. Although he never attended a college, Thomas Cobbs supplemented his academic education by an extensive course of reading in his father's large library, which had been bequeathed to him. Resolving to make the profession of law his life work, he prepared himself under the tutelage of his brother, Hon. James Cobbs, of Mobile, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. In a very short time he built up a large and lucrative practice in Livingston, the town of his residence. For many years he was associated with Col. Robert H. Smith, a relation which continued until Colonel Smith's death in 1878. In 1880 he was elected chancellor of the western district of Alabama, and so satisfactory was his administration that he was re-elected in 1886 without opposition. The following extract from the Montgomery Advertiser, written at that time, is a genuine tribute to his eminent worth: "This able, faithful, and judicious officer was nominated for a second term by the Convention of the Western Chancery Division. He has established himself so thoroughly by his fair and impartial decisions, and by his uniform courtesy to the bar and people, as to prevent any thought of opposition, and he receives, as he deserves, the unanimous endorsement of the convention. The Chancellor is regarded by all who know him as a fair and impartial judge; laborious and painstaking in every case, and is regarded in the State as one of her most eminent judges." He was the third time renominated for chancellor in 1892 without opposition. He was an Episcopalian. Married: in 1850, to Lucy L., daughter of George and Margaret Thorn, of Culpeper, Virginia. Children: 1. Thomas D., a prominent lawyer in Texas; 2. James B., cashier of the Old Berney national bank; 3. Nellie, m. Professor J. H. Phillips. Last residence: Birmingham.

COCHRAN, JOHN, lawyer, was born early in the nineteenth century in Cocke County, Tenn. His father was a farmer in that state. He was graduated at Greenville College, studied law, and in 1835 came to Jacksonville to practice. In 1838 he was a candidate for the State legislature, but was defeated. The next year he was elected a representative from Calhoun County, and was re-elected in 1840 and 1841. He moved to Barbour County in 1843, and in 1845 was a candidate for congress. He was defeated by his opponent Hon. Henry W. Hilliard. He was on the Cass electoral ticket in 1848, and in 1851 opposed Capt. James Abercrombie for congress, again being unsuccessful. He was elected to the State legislature from Barbour County in 1853 and again in 1855, and during both sessions was chairman of the judiciary committee. He was sent as a delegate from Barbour County to the secession convention in 1861, and in the latter part of that year was appointed to the circuit court bench to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Gov. Shorter. Subsequently he was elected to that office by the people, and held the position until 1865, when he was displaced by the result of the war. During the

George A. Joiner, an educator, was born in 1854, and died in 1921. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association.

George A. Joiner, an educator, was born in 1854, and died in 1921. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association.

GEORGE A. JOINER

George A. Joiner, an educator, was born in 1854, and died in 1921. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association.

George A. Joiner, an educator, was born in 1854, and died in 1921. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association. He was a member of the Alabama Historical Association and the Alabama Educational Association.

first year of the war, he volunteered in the C. S. Army, and served for a year at Pensacola, Fla. After the establishment of peace, Judge Cochran retired from public life, devoting himself exclusively to his profession. In 1856, he had been a delegate to the Southern Commercial Convention, held at Savannah, Ga., over which the Hon. James Lyons of Virginia presided. Among his colleagues at the convention were the Hon. B. S. Bibb and Johnson J. Hooper, esq., of Montgomery, and John G. Barr, esq., of Tuscaloosa. Married: (1) in 1843, a daughter of Gen. William Wellborn, of Eufaula; (2) Miss Toney, a cousin of his first wife, and a daughter of W. Toney, a planter of Eufaula. His son is a member of the bar of Eufaula. Last residence: Eufaula.

COCHRAN, S. GEORGE, lawyer, was born in New York of Irish parents. He was well educated, and came to Alabama about 1846, settling in Wilcox County. He began the practice of law at that place, and in 1849 was elected judge of the county court. He was associated in his law practice at different times with Capt. Burret O. Holman and Col. H. R. Dawson. Married: a Miss Carson, of Tuscaloosa. Children: 1. Thomas L., b. November, 1855, at Camden, Wilcox County, attended the Military Institute at Lexington, Ky., and the University of Virginia, studied law in Camden, 1875, was admitted to the bar, 1876, became register in chancery for the county, 1882, was elected to the State senate from Wilcox County, 1886, but resigned before his term had expired, owing to the pressure of his legal practice, resides at Camden. Last residence: Wilcox County.

COCHRAN, WILLIAM, soldier of the American Revolution, age not given, a resident of Clarke County; sergeant Virginia Continental Line; enrolled on September 22, 1819, under act of Congress of March 18, 1818, payment to date from September 7, 1818; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $121.60; died December 12, 1819.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COCHRANE, HARDIN PERKINS, physician, was born October 1, 1843, in Tuscaloosa; son of William and Sophia Sarah Louisa (Perkins) Cochrane (q. v.) He was reared in Tuscaloosa, and received his early education there. In the spring in 1850 he went north, where he remained until the fall of that year, then entered the University of Alabama, being in the first corps of cadets in the institution. In 1861, he was appointed drill master to the Confederate camps of instruction at Shelby Springs and at Mobile, where he remained, mostly in detached service, until April, 1862. At that time he resigned his position of cadet and drill master to join a Confederate company of cavalry under Capt. J. J. Pegues, called the Warrior Rangers, but subsequently known as Company D, Second Alabama cavalry. On one occasion he was sent out with a scouting party of eight men, and captured four of the enemy and eight of their horses. In recognition of his gallantry, he was presented with a fine horse. He took part in more than fifty engagements and had a horse shot out from under him at Kingston, Ga., while serving under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. Not willing to give up the cause at Johnston's surrender, he volunteered to go across the Mississippi to join Gen. Dick Taylor, but as the latter surrendered a few days later, returned to his home in Tuscaloosa, without taking the parole. He engaged in farming for several years, devoting his leisure time to the study of medicine. He completed his medical education at the University of the City of New York, being graduated, M. D., 1874. He returned to Tuscaloosa to practice his profession, and received the appointment of surgeon to the body of men, employed under Col. Horace Harding, who were engaged in the work of improving the navigation of the Black Warrior River. In October, 1875, he became assistant surgeon of the Alabama Insane Hospital; was chosen counsellor of the Medical Association of Alabama, in 1876; moved to Birmingham in May, 1881, and practiced medicine; was elected president of the Jefferson County Medical Society; moved from Birmingham to Franklin, Tenn., in 1892, and practiced his profession in that place. He is a member of the Protestant Episcopal church. Married: (1) May 12, 1881, at Birmingham, Lalla E. Mudd, who died in 1885, daughter of Judge William S. Mudd, of Elyton; (2) January 19, 1887, at Franklin, Tenn., Leighla Octavia Perkins, of Franklin, Tenn., his cousin, granddaughter of Hon. Abram P. Maury, who was a member of the State legislature, and of the U. S. congress, a descendant of the Maurys and Fontaines of Tennessee, of Huguenot ancestry. Residence: Franklin, Tenn.

COCHRANE, JEROME, physician, founder Alabama medical association, and State health office, was born December 4, 1831, at Moscow, Fayette County, Tenn., and died August 17, 1896, in Montgomery; son of Augustine Owen and Frances (Bailey) Cochrane, formerly of Virginia, and of Scotch descent. When a young boy, he removed to Marshall County, Miss., with his father's family. He had few early educational advantages as he worked on the farm and attended only country schools a few months each year. He was eager to learn, however, so every book was utilized by him. When nineteen years of age he began to teach, and in 1855 entered upon the study of medicine, graduating from the Botanical-medical school of Memphis, Tenn., in 1857. He practiced in Mississippi for two years after which he entered the medical department of the University of Tennessee, receiving his diploma in 1861. He was appointed surgeon in the Confederate Army and had charge of the hospital at Okalona and was on duty in a large hospital near Meridian. Military duties carried him to Tuscaloosa where he studied mental diseases in the insane hospitals. In 1865, he removed to Mobile to practice; and in 1868 was appointed professor of chemistry in the Medical college of Alabama. In 1873 he was given the chair of public hygiene. He became physician at quarantine station, Ft. Morgan 1878, and the next year was appointed head of the State medical department where he gave form to the laws that have established the Alabama State health department. He also organized the Medical association which organization was given control of epidemics. Author: of a large number of pamphlets and articles on diseases and their control; among them being: "Yellow Fever, in Relation to its causes"; "Sanitary administration"; "Theory and practice of quarantine"; "The Act establishing boards of health in Alabama"; "The Alcohol question," etc., etc. From 1879 to 1896, he was state health officer, senior censor, chairman of board of Medical examiners; member of the American medical association; vice-president of the Pan-American medical college, and officer in the State medical association. He was reared a Methodist, but, late in life, became a Catholic. Married: in 1856, in DeSoto County, Miss., to Sarah Jane Collins, daughter of Jared Collins. Children: 1. Jerome Bowling, m. Annie Fort Walker; 2. son; 3. daughter. Last residence: Montgomery.

COCHRANE, JOHN TAYLOR, business man and railroad president, was born June 24, 1873, at Tuscaloosa; son of William Gilbert and Lillie Eliza (Taylor) Cochrane (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of Tuscaloosa, and was a student for two years at the University of Alabama, but did not complete the course on account of financial reverses. He was honor man of his class and hence was appointed sergeant major of the corps of cadets. He began work in 1893 as brakeman and finally rose to be superintendent of the Tuscaloosa belt line railway with which he remained until 1897. He then promoted and built the Carrollton short line railway, later named the Alabama, Tennessee and Northern railroad, which now extends from Reform, through Pickens, Sumter and Choctaw Counties, connecting with the Tombigbee Valley railroad which he also built and which extends from Calvert through Mobile, Washington and Choctaw Counties. These companies he consolidated in 1913 with the Mobile terminal and railway company, and has since that date been president of the consolidated company, known as the Alabama, Tennessee and Northern railroad corporation. In the promotion and building of the Alabama, Tennessee and Northern railroad from Reform to Calvert, and also the Alabama and Northwestern railroad from Pine Hill to Sweet Water, in the counties of Wilcox and Marengo, he opened up to railroad transportation and service territory not having any other transportation. Besides affording the facilities he also took a large part in the development and building up of the counties, and helping especially schools and educational institutions, and was the promoter and main builder of several banks at the several communities, which interest he still retains. He has been several times president and member of the Mobile city and county school board, since 1912. He was appointed by Gov. Emmet O'Neal and re-appointed by Gov. Charles Henderson as a member of the board of trustees of the Alabama girl's technical institute at Montevallo, now the Alabama technical institute and college for women. He was also president of the Mobile chamber of commerce and business league for some time. He is a director in the Peoples bank at Mobile and a member of the Athelston and Country clubs. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; Knight of Pythias; is a member of the Mystic societies of Mobile and in 1917 was king of the Mobile carnival. Married: November 9, 1899, at Tuscaloosa, to Alice Dearing, daughter of George A. and Alice (Dearing) Searcy (q. v.). Children: 1. John Taylor, jr., student of Yale university; 2. George Searcy. Residence: Mobile.

COCHRANE, WILLIAM, lawyer, was born in New York City, N. Y. He was a nephew of Dr. Cochrane, of Pickens County, who married the widow of Col. Joseph Blackshear, of Laurens County, Ga., and sister of Col. William A. Tennille, former secretary of state at Milledgeville. He was of Scotch descent, his family having moved from Scotland to Ireland, and then to America. He was educated in New York, was graduated from Columbia University, and took up the study of law. He was admitted to the bar, and practiced in the supreme court of New York, until, prompted by failing health, he moved to Alabama in 1837 and settled in Tuscaloosa. He practiced law in that city in association with Gen. Crabb, of Mexican War fame, for many years. On the trial of Washington Moody, esq., in 1840, for killing Maj. John Cantley, in Tuscaloosa, Mr. Cochrane was counsel for the defense with Mr. Ellis and Hon. J. L. Martin, and became distinguished for the resulting acquittal. Mr. Cochrane was, it is believed, the commissioner of every state in the union, for attesting the execution of deeds and other legal instruments, and for the taking of depositions, to be used as evidence in other states. Gov. Fitzpatrick availed the state of his services as a director of the state bank in winding up that institution, counting, registering, and burning the bills and blank impressions. Married: Sophia Sarah Louisa Perkins, daughter of Maj. Hardin and Sophia Salina (Holland) Perkins, who lived at Tuscaloosa, the former an officer in the Creek War, a lawyer, who lived at Huntsville when Alabama was admitted into the Union, a member of the State legislature at Cahaba, when the seat of government was moved to Tuscaloosa; granddaughter of James Holland, high sheriff of Rutherford County, N. C., a major in the Revolutionary War, a member of the State senate, and for twelve years of the U. S. congress, who moved to Maury County, Tenn., where he and his father-in-law, William Gilbert, had large tracts of land donated by the U. S. government for services in the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Hardin Perkins (q. v.); 2. William Gilbert (q. v.). Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

COCHRANE, WILLIAM GILBERT, lawyer, was born March 29, 1848, at Tuscaloosa, and died May, 1913, at Mobile, son of William and Sophia Sarah Louisa (Perkins) Cochrane (q. v.). As a boy he went to a parish school under

Dr. Nevins, and was a pupil of Mrs. Little's school at Tuscaloosa. He was a student at the University of Alabama when Croxton's raiders invaded the city of Tuscaloosa and burned the buildings of the university. As a member of the cadet corps, he made the stand with Col. Murfee and Capt. Eddins at the Hill River, repelling the raiders, then retreated with the other cadets from Tuscaloosa to Marion, May, 1865. For that service he was made an honorary member of the Confederate veterans. After the war, he attended Washington College, later Washington and Lee University, for two years under the presidency of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Returning to Tuscaloosa, he read law in the office of Hargrave & Fitts, and was admitted to the bar in 1870. He began to practice law when he was twenty-one years old in Tuscaloosa. When he had been at the bar only a few years, he was candidate for probate judge of Tuscaloosa County, and although having a majority in the county convention, was deprived of the nomination by the two-thirds rule. Some years later he was appointed judge of probate of Tuscaloosa County by Gov. Thomas G. Jones, and served for several years. He was county solicitor for nine years covering the period of the "Ku Klux" excitement. He was sent to the State legislature from Tuscaloosa County three times; served as county administrator for some years; and was mayor of Tuscaloosa four years. In October, 1886, Judge Cochran became associated in his law practice with William C. Fitts, his nephew. He was one of the originators and organizers of the Tuscaloosa Coal, Iron & Land Company, was a director of the company and one of its advisers. About 1905 he became actively interested in railroad construction and operation, and devoted his energies to that until his death in 1913. He was largely credited with the promoting, building and successful operation of the Alabama, Tennessee & Northern Railroad, and was vice-president of that road at the time of his death. He was a Democrat, was chairman of the executive committee of Tuscaloosa County, was many times delegate to state and congressional conventions, and chairman several times of congressional conventions. He was a member of the Christ church at Tuscaloosa; was a Mason; an Elk; and a Knight of Honor. Married: August 12, 1872, at Tuscaloosa, Lily Eliza Taylor, daughter of John T. and Nancy (Curry) Taylor, who lived at Mobile, the former a native of Marengo County, who moved to Mobile to practice law. Children: 1. John Taylor, b. June 24, 1874, superintendent of the Tuscaloosa Belt Railway Company, 1894-1900, president of the Carrollton and Reform Railroad, m. Alice D. Searcy, Tuscaloosa; 2. Louisa, d. in infancy; 3. William Gilbert, jr., d. in infancy. Last residence: Mobile.

COCKE, JACK FLEMING, merchant and planter, was born November 26, 1812, at Athens, Clarke County, Ga., and died October 3, 1897, at Poplarville, Miss.; son of John and Sarah Jane (Fleming) Cocke, who lived near Athens, Ga., the former a soldier in the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812, who was killed in the latter; uncle of Miss Zitella Cocke (q. v.). His ancestors came from England to America at a very early period, and settled in Virginia. The old family records were destroyed in a raid just after the War of Secession. He obtained his education in the common schools of Georgia, and went to Alabama in 1830, where he embarked in the mercantile business at Mobile for several years. Then he moved to Marion, became proprietor of Cocke's hotel at that place for some years, finally retiring to a plantation where he devoted his attention to agricultural pursuits. In 1845, he was elected to the State senate from Perry County over his opponent, Col. Walthall, and continued without cessation, in that body for sixteen years. During that time, he defeated among other candidates, Columbus W. Lea, and John P. Graham, and outlived, in the senate, every senator who entered the legislature with him in 1845. He retired from the upper house in 1861, and, after being defeated by F. S. Lyon for the Confederate congress, retired to private life. In 1886, he moved to Poplarville, Miss., with his wife, and resided there until his death. He was a Whig; a Baptist; and a Master Mason. Married: in 1830, at Sparta, Hancock County, Ga., Julia Ann Binion, daughter of John and Mary (Cook) Binion, who lived at Sparta, Ga., granddaughter of Rev. James Cook, of Georgia. The ancestors on the Binion side were French Huguenots, who came to America before the Revolutionary War. Children: 1. Sarah Jane, m. Prof. Edward Quinn Thornton, both deceased; 2. Cornelia Fleming, m. James McLaurine Shivers, Poplarville, Pearl River County, Miss.; 3. Mary Binion, resides at St. Stephens, m. Benjamin Turner, deceased; 4. Julia Alice, m. Thomas R. White, Bogalooosa, Washington Parish, La.; 5. Minnie, resides at Marion, m. Dr. Offa Lunsford Shivers, deceased; 6. William Binion, deceased; 7. Jack Fleming, deceased; 8. Jessie, deceased; 9. Frank Edward, deceased. Last residence: Poplarville, Miss.

COCKE, N. W., author and writer; supreme court reporter, 1849 to 1861; chancellor, 1861-68.

COCKE, ZITELLA, author, was born in Perry County; daughter of Woodson St. George and Mary Elizabeth (Binion) Cocke, the former a planter, who died at Marion, 1867; niece of Hon. Jack F. Cocke (q. v.), for sixteen years State senator from Montgomery district; brother of Madison Cocke, a member of the Fourth Alabama regiment, who was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, and of John Binion Cocke, who was educated at Marion Institute and the University of Alabama, enlisted in the Twentieth Alabama regiment in 1863, was made lieutenant of Co. G, was promoted to captain, participated in the battles of Jackson, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Nashville, and left the service as a member of Gen. E. W. Pettus' staff, became a farmer after the war, was elected sheriff of Perry County in 1879, was appointed postmaster by President Cleveland, 1885-1889, was assassinated by being shot in the back while crossing a street in Marion in 1893. The name of Cocke, in another spelling, was among the Normans who came with William the Conqueror, to England. The first ancestor in England was an officer in the battle of Hastings. In the reign of Edward III, the Cockes appear among the gentry of England, always soldiers. In the time of Charles I, they were Royalists who fought for their king. An incident is told of Col. Cocke, who was in the army of Charles I. After the latter was captured, one of Cromwell's officers met Col. Cocke with the words, "Your King is taken! Your King is taken!" Col. Cocke lifted his sword as he sat on his horse, and said, "Then am I his more than ever, his in defeat even more than in victory. Take my sword if you can, I will never surrender it." The first of the name to locate in Virginia was Sir Richard Cocke, who came to America through love of adventure. At the time of the Revolution, King George offered him command of an army. Sir Richard refused, and lent his aid to the Virginians. The Capt. Cocke spoken of in "Pepy's Diary" is a direct ancestor of Miss Cocke, as is also the Coke of Littleton, whose portrait stands in the Temple, London. The family name is spelled Coke in England. The Cockes have been in the army and navy of England and America for centuries, since the reign of Edward III. Members of the family are mentioned by Gen. Lee in his published letters. Miss Cocke is also a descendant of the Madisons and Flemings. The Fleming branch of the family traces back to the youngest son of the Earl of Angus, who came to Virginia, and was an ancestor of Mrs. Dolly Madison. The mother of Father Waggett, who preached at the English church in Cambridge, Mass., and of Dr. Waggett, the famous scientist, was a Cocke. The mother of Miss Cocke was of Huguenot origin. She was related to the Marquis La Force and de Benion. The La Force family, her ancestors, were French noblemen, followers of Henri Quatre, and the House of Valois. The Huguenot preacher, Adolphe Monod, was of that family. After the revocation of the edict of Nantes, her immediate family went to England and Wales. Mrs. Cocke was a cousin of Samuel Binyon, for many years a collector of ancient manuscripts; he was born in Switzerland, and was urged to accept his father's former position as librarian to the Czar, in Hermitage, St. Petersburg, by the czar personally, but declined, wishing to devote his time to antiquities. He was a famous linguist, spoke all the modern languages and was an authority on the semetic languages. He lectured on Hebrew at Johns Hopkins University, and at Harvard, and his works, "The Restoration of Thebes, Karnak, and Babylon," are to be found in the public libraries of Boston, New York and Baltimore. She was a grand-niece of Binyon, the chemist, a member of the academy, said to be the greatest scientist of Paris at one time.

Miss Cocke studied under private tutors, and under the supervision of her mother, a fine Latin scholar, musician and linguist.

Later she attended Judson College, Marion, and was graduated with honors. She travelled extensively in Europe, studying music under foreign teachers, and located at Baltimore, Md., where she engaged in literary work and in teaching German and music. After some time in Baltimore, she moved to Boston, and taught voice and piano in addition to continuing her writing. Her father died shortly after the war, and at her mother's death, some time later, Miss Cocke undertook the care and education of her younger sister, Mrs. Forson, a vocalist of Chicago, who died in 1907. She is author of "Doric Reed," a volume of poems published by Copeland & Day in two editions, dedicated to her brother, Binyon Cocke; "Grasshoppers Hop," a book of juvenile verse, dedicated to her brother Fleming Cocke and "Cherokee Rose and Other Poems," published in 1905; and writes essays, short stories, verses for children and newspaper articles. Much of her shorter work has been written for the "Youth's Companion." Her works have been translated into foreign languages and may be found in the libraries of Paris, where, in one library, the author's picture is hung. She has received favorable criticism in Canada and England, and was elected a member of the Authors' Club, in London, Westminster. Residence: Boston.

COCKRELL, LEONIDAS AURELIUS, planter and teacher, was born November 27, 1839, at Livingston; son of Dempsey and Mellicent (Carpenter) Cockrell, of that place. He was educated in the common schools of his native county and graduated A. B., 1861, at the University of Alabama. He served as a private and later as first sergeant Co. G, 44th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He engaged in teaching as a profession and has lived and taught at the following places: Carrollton, 1884-85; Cuba, 1891-93; Livingston, 1893-95, and 1899; Furman, 1895-97; Andalusia, 1898-99. He has now retired. Married: (1) May 28, 1862, at Forkland, to Minna Taylor; (2) June 11, 1885, at Carrollton, to Elanor Corinne Hale. Residence: Livingston.

COCKRELL, ROBERT SPRATT, lawyer, was born January 22, 1866, at Livingston, Sumter County; son of Augustus William and Susan (Spratt) Cockrell, of Livingston, the former a soldier of the Confederacy, who served under Gen. J. E. B. Stuart. He was educated by John Witherspoon DuBose and Henry Tutwiler and attended Amherst college, Vt., graduating at the University of Virginia, A. B., 1887, M. E., 1888; and was at the University of Berlin for one year. He studied law at the University of Virginia, graduated LL. B., 1891; admitted to the practice that year and formed partnership with his father and brother, in Tallahassee, Fla.; appointed justice of the supreme court of Florida, December, 1892, and served until 1916. He is a Democrat. Married: October 28, 1903, at Tallahassee, to Courtney, daughter of Gov. David Shelby and Elizabeth (Duncan) Walker, of Tallahassee; granddaughter of David Walker, sr., soldier of the Revolution and a member of congress from Kentucky. Children: 1.

Elizabeth Walker; 2. William David; 3. Robert Spratt, jr.; 4. Caroline Brevard. Residence: Tallahassee, Fla.

CODY, FRANCIS M., merchant, was born in 1829, near where Luverne now stands; son of John and Melissa W. (Hill) Cody, the former a native of Warren County, Ga., born in 1803, who came to Alabama with his parents at a very early day, among the very first settlers of the state, was married in Pike County, located in the woods near where Luverne now is, moved to Butler County in 1856, but returned to Pike County in 1861, was a farmer, a bookkeeper and a merchant, the latter a native of Darlington District, S. C., born in 1797, who was married three times, her first two husbands dying in South Carolina, came to Pike County, where she was married to Mr. Cody, and survived until 1882, when she died in Crenshaw County; grandson of John Cody, a Georgian, a farmer, who served in the War of 1812, was a direct descendant of one of three brothers who came from Ireland, one of whom settled where Cleveland, O., now stands, the ancestor of William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," the second went west, and the third, the progenitor of this family, settled in Georgia; and grandson of Lewis Hill, born in North Carolina, of Scotch descent, a soldier in the Revolution, who went to South Carolina when young, and from that state to Alabama, located in Pine County, but afterward went to Barbour County, and died there in 1850 at the age of ninety years. Mr. Cody was reared on a farm, was educated in the country schools of the vicinity, and finished his schooling at Helicon Academy. He clerked for six years in Montgomery; returned to Pike County and embarked in the merchandising business at Millville and Valleyton, two years; then engaged in farming until the beginning of the War of Secession. In May, 1862, he joined Hilliard's legion, afterward the Fifty-ninth Alabama infantry, and was on the Kentucky raid, when his health failed and he was discharged at Knoxville, Tenn., in 1863. He was home for a few months, then made an unsuccessful attempt to join Love's cavalry. He was rejected another time when he applied to join the Seventeenth Alabama infantry. After the war, he farmed a short time, then entered the collecting business in Montgomery. In 1867, on the formation of Crenshaw County, he was made the first clerk of the county, and served in that position for nineteen years. At that time he refused re-election, and retired to private life, devoting the remainder of his life to farming. He at one time served as justice of the peace. He was a Mason. Married: Martha F. Reese, a native of Lowndes County, daughter of George and Celia (Stokes) Reese, natives of Virginia and Alabama, respectively, who moved from Lowndes County to Texas, where they spent the remainder of their lives, the former a merchant and speculator, and a prosperous business man. Children: 1. Mollie L., m. Smith W. Sikes; 2. James M.; 3. Fannie W., m. Oscar Centill; 4. John D.; 5. Tennent Lomax; 6. Cuba Estell. Last residence: Luverne.

CODY, MICHAEL, banker, was born August 4, 1862, at Spring Hill, Barbour County; son of Michael and Frances (Thornton) Cody, the former a native of Warren County, Ga., a planter and merchant, who moved to Alabama, and was elected a Democratic member of the State legislature in 1870, but his seat was contested by the Republicans, and in the organization of the house, he was ejected with others, at the point of Federal bayonets. He is of Scotch Irish descent. He supplemented a common school education received at the old Spring Hill Academy by liberal reading and study, and began his business career when he was sixteen years old. At first a clerk in a general store in Eufaula, he soon ventured into business for himself. In 1887, he moved to Montgomery, and soon after became connected with the firm of A. M. Kennedy & Son. Four years later, he purchased the interest of the senior partner of the firm, and the business was continued under the name of Kennedy & Cody. In the eight years that followed, the firm became the largest builders' supply house in Alabama; then Mr. Cody withdrew in order to engage in banking, for which he had long been preparing himself. He secured a liberal and valuable legislative charter for the Union Bank & Trust Company, founded by him in 1901, and was elected president of that company. He is author of the Alabama law regulating state banks, the enactment of which is largely due to his efforts. His work has received the commendation of the Alabama Bankers' Association, of which he is an officer. For more than thirteen years, he has been superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday school, and was one of the prime factors in the construction of the new building for that church. He is active in the work of the local and state Young Men's Christian Associations. Married: (1) Dora Ferrell, who died in 1896, daughter of Clarence A. Ferrell; granddaughter of Judge Blount Coleman Ferrell, of LaGrange, Ga.; (2) Nep Ferrell, sister of his first wife. Children, by first marriage: 1. Michael, jr.; by second marriage, 2. Daniel; 3. Melbourne; 4. Virginia. Residence: Montgomery.

COFER, WILLIAM THOMAS, lawyer, was born February 4, 1856, at Holly Springs, Marshall County, Miss.; son of Lemuel and Jane (Findley) Cofer, who lived at Norfolk, Va., and at Holly Springs and Oxford, Miss., the former of whom died in August, 1865, and the latter in January, 1901. He received his preparatory education at Chalmers institute, Holly Springs, Miss., and attended the University of Mississippi at Oxford for two sessions. He withdrew from the University because of the ill health of his mother, and moved to Blount Springs. He was admitted to the bar in December, 1876, at Guntersville, and in October, 1877, moved to Cullman, where he began the practice of law. He was elected to the State legislature from Cullman County for the sessions of 1886-87, 1896-97, and 1898-1899; and represented Cullman County in the constitutional convention of 1901, as an Independent Democrat. Married: February 24, 1881, at Cullman, to Mollie M. Moore. Residence: Cullman.

COFFEE, ALEXANDER DONELSON, manufacturer and planter, was born June 3, 1821, at "Hickory Hill," near Florence, and died there, May 12, 1901; son of Gen. John and Mary (Donelson) Coffee, (q. v.). He was fitted for college in the Lorange school of Florence; entered the University of Nashville in 1837, and in 1840 returned home to take charge of his family estates. In 1849 he became a manufacturer, entering the cotton-mill business as a member of the firm of Martin, Weakly and company. These mills, on Cypress Creek, were destroyed by the Federal army in 1865. He entered the Confederate Army as a member of Co. C, 16th Alabama infantry regiment, but early in the war was discharged from service, on account of ill health. After the close of the war he engaged extensively in cotton planting, but also setting the example of diversifying crops and in using improved farm machinery. He was an advocate of good roads, and built at his own expense the fine turnpike leading north from Florence to his home on Cypress Creek. He was a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: (1) May 16, 1844, at Florence, to Ann Eliza, daughter of James Long and Letitia Van Dyke (Campbell) Sloss (q. v.); (2) October 18, 1876, at Leighton, to Mrs. Camilla (Madding) Jones, daughter of Elisha and Eliza (Croom) Madding. Children, by the first wife: Mary, m. (1) — O'Neal, (2) W. P. Campbell; by the second wife: Eliza Croom, d. 1904. Last residence: Florence.

COFFEE, JOHN, soldier and pioneer settler, was born June 2, 1772, in Prince Edward County, Va., and died July 7, 1833, at Florence, where he lies buried in the Coffee cemetery, three miles north of Florence; son of Joshua and Elizabeth (Graves) Coffee, of Virginia, who removed, in 1775, to Granville County, N. C., where he joined the Revolutionary Army, and commanded a company of "mounted gunmen." In 1789, after the death of his father, John Coffee and his mother removed to Davidson County, Tenn., engaging for several years in merchandising. Later, he surveyed the Duck and Elk river territory. In 1813, he commanded the mounted troops that hastened to protect the Ft. Mims Territory, after the Indian massacre. He led the American troops in the first attack on the British at the battle of New Orleans, and was Gen. Andrew Jackson's aide in the Creek war, and at the Battle of Horse Shoe Bend. He was made surveyor of the northern District of the Mississippi Territory. March, 1817, located at Huntsville. Later, he was re-appointed surveyor, and located at Florence, holding this position until his death; his last commission being dated July, 1831. He developed an extensive holding of farm lands and built a large dwelling, which is still in the hands of his descendants. He was a Democrat. Married: October 3, 1809, in Davidson county, Tennessee, to Mary Donelson, sister of Rachel Donelson, wife of Andrew Jackson, daughter of John and Mary (Purnell) Donelson, and granddaughter of John and Rachel (Stockley) Donelson, of Virginia, the former a Revolutionary soldier. Children: 1. Mary, m. — Hutchings; 2. John Donelson;

3. Elizabeth; 4. Andrew J.; 5. Alexander Donelson (q. v.); 6. Rachel Jackson, m. Dyas; 7. Catherine; 8. William D.; 9. Joshua. Last residence: Florence.

COFFEY, JOHN R., farmer, merchant, was born March 27, 1814, at Wartrace, Bedford County, Tenn.; son of Rice and Sallie (Bradford) Coffey, the former a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1766, who moved to North Carolina and became a gunsmith when a young man, married there, and returned to Tennessee in 1801, settled on a farm of one thousand acres of land which he had bought from Gen. Jackson, and on which his son was born, and died in 1853, his wife having preceded him by thirteen years; grandson of James Coffey, who raised a large family, of whom all the older sons served in the Revolutionary War. His grandmother was a sister of Col. Benjamin Cleveland, who commanded a regiment at the battle of King's Mountain. He spent his early days on a farm attending the common old-field schools. When he was thirteen years old he entered a high school at Shelbyville, Tenn., and remained there for a year, after which he went to Alabama, located at Bellefonte without a dollar in his pocket or an acquaintance in the county, and became clerk in a store. When he was twenty-two years old, he established a mercantile business of his own in that village, continuing it for ten years, until 1846. He was elected sheriff of Jackson County in 1840, and at the outbreak of the Mexican War enlisted in the U. S. Army in a company commanded by Capt. Richard W. Jones. He afterwards acted as lieutenant, lieutenant-colonel and major-general in the militia; went to Mobile to organize the First Alabama regiment; was elected its colonel; and as such participated in the siege of Vera Cruz. After the war with Mexico he became a general of militia. He had returned to his farm, and devoted his attention to its cultivation until 1853, when he moved to Stevenson and engaged in the mercantile business. He continued in that line until the beginning of the War of Secession, then closed his store, and went back to his farm of four thousand acres on the banks of the Tennessee River. In 1861, he was elected a delegate to the convention which passed the ordinance of secession. He was bitterly opposed to that ordinance, but being overpowered, submitted to the will of the majority, and afterward gave moral and substantial support to the cause of the Confederacy. He was a Methodist; and a Mason.

Married: January 21, 1849, Mary Ann Cross, who died September 6, 1887; daughter of Col. Charles and Eliza (Clark) Cross, of Jackson County, natives of North Carolina, who came to Alabama about 1826, the former a soldier in the Indian wars, who was drowned in the Tennessee River, about 1848; granddaughter of Maclin Cross, who was in the battle of Nick-a-Jack, Indian Nation, and Robert Clark, who fought in the Revolutionary War, and died from a wound received in battle at Eutaw Springs; great-granddaughter of Col. William Maclin, an officer in the army of Independence.

GENERAL JAMES L. PUGH

Children: six, of whom four grew to maturity; 1. Eliza, m. William J. Tally; 2. Sallie B., m. C. W. Brown, chief clerk in the office of the state superintendent of education; 3. John B.; 4. Clark Maclin. Last residence: Fackler, Jackson County.

COHEN, OCTAVUS ROY, author, was born June 26, 1891, at Charleston, S. C.; son of Octavus and Rebecca (Ottolengui) Cohen of Charleston, a lawyer and for twenty years one of the managing editors of the American press association and also editor of "The Brander Magazine," of New York; grandson of Joseph and Sarah (Barret) Cohen and of Israel and Rosalie (Moise) Ottolengui, all of Charleston. Both branches of Mr. Cohen's family came from France to America in 1700 and were among the first settlers of Charleston, S. C., and of Savannah, Ga. He was educated in the public schools of his native city, New York City, and Bayonne, N. J.; was a member of the 1908 class, Porter military academy, Charleston, S. C.; and took an engineering course at Clemson college, S. C., completing the junior year. Later he studied law and was admitted to the South Carolina bar, by examination, May, 1913, practicing his profession until 1916 since when he has devoted himself exclusively to writing short stories, novels, plays and photo plays. Author: novels, "The other woman," "The crimson alibi," "Polished ebony," "Grey dusk"; to be published in 1920, "Come seven"; and in 1921, "Six seconds of darkness." Plays: "The crimson alibi," in collaboration with George Broadhurst, produced in New York, London, Norway, Sweden, Australia and the orient; "The scourge," to be produced in 1920; "Polished ebony" to be produced in 1920; "Shadows," to be produced 1920-21; "Every Saturday night," to be produced in 1920. Short stories: a series of negro dialect stories which were run in the Saturday Evening Post, beginning in 1918. Besides the above he is the author of three hundred other short stories, photo plays, articles and essays. Married: October 6, 1914, at Bessemer, to his first cousin, Inez, daughter of Edward H. and Cecil (Ottolengui) Lopez. Children: Octavus Roy, jr., born January 26, 1916. Residence: Birmingham.

COLBERT, WILLIAM, Chickasaw Indian chief, was a native Alabamian and Revolutionary soldier, serving under Gen. Arthur St. Clair and leading his tribe against the hostile Indians, who operated with the British. In the War of 1812, he again led his tribe against the Creeks, pursuing them to Apalachicola, Fla., killing a number and bringing eighty-five prisoners back to Montgomery. He was, in 1816, the guest of the U. S. government at Washington, going there at the head of a Chickasaw delegation and being called "General" Colbert. He settled at Colbert's Ferry, on the Tennessee River, and the county laid off there was named in his honor. His sons were George, who owned the Ferry; Levi, who settled on Bear Creek, and James, who farmed in Colbert County. They went to the Indian Territory with the remnant of their tribe. One

Herbert Colbert, afterwards, was the representative of the Chickasaw nation in congress.

COLCOCK, FRANCIS HORTON, lawyer and teacher, was born June 19, 1855, at Bellevue, Madison County; son of Charles Jones and Lucy Frances (Horton) Colcock, the former a native of Boiling Springs, Barnwell County, S. C., who was a merchant at Charleston, S. C., and served as colonel of the Third South Carolina cavalry, C. S. Army; grandson of Thomas Hutson Colcock, who was chairman of the committee that introduced the Nullification Ordinance in 1832, and of Rhoda and Lucy Frances (Otey) Horton, who lived at Huntsville; brother of Prof. Charles J. Colcock, of Charleston, S. C.; and a descendant of Dr. Henry Woodward, the first prominent settler of South Carolina soil. His paternal great-grandfather was a supreme court justice of the state of South Carolina, and president of the Bank of the State of South Carolina, whose father was a member of the council of safety and occupied various offices of distinction. His ancestors figured conspicuously in the Revolutionary and ante Revolutionary period, among them being Judge Smith and Col. Hay of New York, the Horton and Leftwitch families of Virginia, the Colcocks and Hutsons of South Carolina, and the Horton, Robinson, Otey and Pettus families of Alabama. Mr. Colcock received his preparatory education from Henry Archer of Charleston, S. C., from William Currell of Beaufort County, S. C., and from Hugh Train of Savannah, Ga. He was graduated from Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., C. E., in 1877, with highest honors. The degree of LL. D. has been conferred upon him by the University of Alabama. He studied law under Gen. James Connors, and was admitted to the bar at Charleston, S. C., 1879. He was assistant in the U. S. engineering department for some years under Capt. Post, Capt. Green and Capt. Bailey; practiced law in the firm of Howell, Murphy & Colcock, of Hampton and Walterboro, S. C., 1880-1882; taught at Porter Military Academy, 1886-1894; was assistant professor of mathematics, 1894-1899, professor, 1899-1907, professor of mathematics and astronomy, 1907-1911, dean of the department of physics and engineering, 1907-1908, dean of the department of engineering and mathematics, 1908-1912, University of South Carolina; resumed the practice of law, June, 1915; and is now a lawyer and planter at Beaufort, S. C. Mr. Colcock was superintendent of the county schools of Charleston County, S. C., and commissioner of the city schools of Charleston, 1892-1894. He was one of the vice presidents and directors of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, and was one of the original organizers and incorporators of the United States Good Roads Congress, at Washington, D. C. He is a Democrat; an Episcopalian; and a Knight of Pythias. Married: August 4, 1880, at Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mary Robert Jones, daughter of Seaborn and Jane Acenith Jones, who lived at Mill Haven, Ga., a descendant of Peter Jones, founder of the city of Petersburg, Va., and of Thomas Smith, landgrave of South Carolina. Children: 1. Anna Eustace, m. Alva Charles DePass, Columbia,

S. C.; 2. Charles Jones, m. Julia Pinckney Wilson, Bluffton, S. C.; 3. Frances Horton, Clifton Springs, N. Y.; 4. S. J., Columbia, S. C. Residence: Bluffton, S. C.

COLE, ALICE (BROWNLEE), author. Residence: Birmingham.

COLE, JAMES C., lieutenant colonel, 3rd Confederate infantry regiment, C. S. Army; lieutenant colonel, 5th (Smith's, also called 9th) Confederate infantry; major 21st Tennessee infantry regiment; probably a Tennessean.

COLEMAN, ALICE, educator; superintendent of the city schools of Attalla, 1913.

COLEMAN, AUGUSTUS AURELIUS, lawyer, circuit judge, and member secession convention, 1861, was born May 21, 1825, in Camden, Kershaw District, S. C., and died June 5, 1910, at Birmingham; son of Dr. James Brown and Louise (Simpson) Coleman, and the grandson of Robert and Elizabeth Coleman, and of Jacobus and Louise Simpson. The Colemans are of English ancestry, and early settlers in Virginia. Jacobus Simpson was a native of France, professor of languages in Lisle University, was the interpreter of Bonaparte on many of his campaigns, and on the fall of his chief, fled from France to America and located in Charleston, S. C. James B. Coleman was a graduate of the Charleston medical college, class of 1824, and a successful physician. Judge Coleman was educated in the common schools at Camden, S. C., and at Marion Junction. In 1840 he entered Yale college, and graduated in 1844 after a full four years' course with the A. B. degree. Immediately after graduation he went to Cahaba, Dallas County, where he read law in the office of Charles G. Edwards and William Hunter, two of the most successful and profound lawyers of the period. He was licensed to practice in 1846; located in Livingston, Sumter County, in 1848, and formed a partnership with B. W. Huntington. He was a justice of the peace at Cahaba, in 1847-48; in January, 1858, appointed by Gov. A. B. Moore, as judge of the seventh judicial circuit; elected to the position in May, 1858, and re-elected in 1864. In 1866 he removed from Livingston to Greensboro, and from the latter point to Birmingham in 1888. In 1896 he was elected judge of the tenth judicial circuit, and re-elected in 1904. He was unanimously chosen as one of the delegates to the Alabama secession convention of 1861; and was a member of the house of representatives from Hale County in 1884-85. He was one of the founders and incorporators of the Southern university at Greensboro. On May 16, 1862, he was elected colonel of the 40th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, which he commanded in parts of the Vicksburg campaign late in 1862 and in the early days of 1863. In 1863 he resigned his command, and returned to the bench. He was a Democrat; a Methodist; a Mason, and an Odd Fellow. Married: (1) October 5, 1848, to Amanda Malvina, daughter of John Cuthbert and Elizabeth (Monette) Phares, of North Carolina; (2)

April 28, 1892, to Mary Stuart, daughter of Dr. William Thornton Stuart, of a well known Virginia family. Children, by first marriage: 1. James B., m. Annie P. Jones; 2. Frank; 3. Reavis; 4. Preston; 5. Wesley; 6. Augustus A., jr., m. Annie West; 7. Phares (q. v.), m. Maggie Sledge Peterson, d.; by second marriage: 8. Stuart. Last residence: Birmingham.

COLEMAN, CHARLES P., soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Greene County; private N. C. State Troops; enrolled on October 3, 1833, under act of congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COLEMAN, DANIEL, lawyer, was born August 2, 1801, in Caroline County, Va., and died November 4, 1857, in Athens; son of Daniel and Martha (Cocke) Coleman, the former a native of Cecil County, Md., a colonel in the Revolutionary Army under George Washington, his commission granted by Thomas Jefferson, at that time governor of Virginia, lived in Caroline County, Va.; his estate on the Mat River, "Concord," where he is buried, is in the possession of his descendants; grandson of James and Mary (Key) Coleman, the former of English descent, who settled in Cecil County, Md., about 1720, the latter a native of that place, a member of the same family as Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," and of Hartwell and Anne (Ruffin) Cocke, who lived at Rich Neck, Surry County, Va.; great-grandson of John Ruffin, of Surry County, Va., a relative of Edmond Ruffin; a descendant of Col. Richard Cocke, of England, a member of the House of Burgesses of Virginia, 1634, 1644, and 1646. Other members of the Virginia family of Colemans were Frederic Coleman, M. A., educator and founder of Concord Academy; Lewis Coleman, colonel in the C. S. Army, and professor of Latin, University of Virginia; and Judge Richard Coleman, of the circuit bench.

Judge Coleman went to school at Concord Academy, taught by his brother, Burbage Coleman, until he was sixteen years of age, when his father's death, reducing the family from affluence to poverty, made it necessary for him to support himself. He taught a year at the Kanawha Salt Works, and raised the means to attend Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., where he was also a tutor. During his attendance at the university, he resided with his brother James. Among his classmates were Gov. Henry Watkins Collier and Judge J. J. Ormond of Alabama. After graduating, he obtained clerical employment in one of the courts at Franklin, Ky., at the same time reading law in the office of Judge Bledsoe, his uncle, and Judge W. P. Chilton. He came to Alabama in 1819, settling in Mooresville, Limestone County, and through the influence of Capt. Nicholas Davis, at that time one of the representatives from Limestone County, he was elected judge of the county court. He was nineteen years old when he entered on the duties of that office, and held the position for sixteen successive years. He practiced law from the time he first located in Alabama, and in 1820, was chosen clerk of the first house of representatives. In 1829, he represented Limestone County in the state legislature. About that time he was elected one of the trustees of the Athens Female Academy. He afterwards established the Tennessee Conference Female College at Athens, and was influential in building it up to its present standing. In 1835, he was elected by the legislature judge of the eighth judicial circuit, and held that position for twelve years. During that time he conducted a law school at his home, having for some of his pupils R. C. Brickell, chief justice of Alabama; Luke Pryor, lawyer, U. S. Senator; Judge William B. Wood; Judge John E. Moore; Judge William H. Walker; Hon. Henry C. Jones; D. P. Lewis, governor of Alabama; Hon. John D. Rather; Col. Beverly Matthews; Judge Bernard McKiernan; Hon. William Adair; Chancellor Wade Keys; Hon. Nicholas Davis, jr.; and Hon. A. S. Fletcher. In June, 1851, he was appointed by Gov. Collier to fill a vacancy in the supreme court caused by the resignation of Judge Parsons. He accepted with great reluctance, and filled the seat until the following winter when he declined election. He retired to his home in Athens where he lived the remainder of his life. He was a Democrat; a Methodist Episcopalian, a steward and trustee in the church; president of the board of trustees of the Athens Female College, 1844-1857; and a Mason.

Married: May 15, 1827, in Limestone County, Elizabeth Lockhart Peterson, born May 22, 1811, in Northampton County, N. C., died February 15, 1855, daughter of Batt and Sarah Peterson, of Northampton County, N. C.; granddaughter of Samuel Lockhart, a major in the Revolutionary Army, and a member of the Virginia house of burgess. Children: 1. Rev. James L., b. January 29, 1830, d. in 1896, Methodist minister, m. Kate Lester, of Giles County, Tenn., children, Daniel, deceased, Granville of Columbia, Tenn., Minnie, m. William Irvine of Athens, Lila, Grace, Richard, m. Macou Allen, of Sheffield, and James; 2. Ruffin, deceased; 3. Martha, deceased; 4. Eliza Lockhart, b. April 10, 1836, m. in 1859, Robert Henry Thach, who died November 9, 1866, resides at Auburn, children, Charles Coleman, member of the faculty of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, m. Nelly Stanford, Richard Hannon, d. June 11, 1888, at Auburn and Robert H., lawyer, Birmingham, m. Stella Bringier, children, Robert Gordon, and Stella Mayo; 5. Daniel (q. v.); 6. John Hartwell, b. 1840, captain in the C. S. Army, killed in the battle of Murfreesboro, December 31, 1862; 7. Cornelius, deceased; 8. Richard Vassar, b. 1843, lieutenant, C. S. Army, killed at the battle of Chickamauga, September 20, 1863; 9. Ruffin, b. October 1, 1846, at Athens, d. April, 1910, at Clarksdale, Miss., physician, was graduated from Southern University, and Louisville Medical College, M. D., served in the C. S. Army under Gen. Roddy, and was captured and imprisoned by Federal officers when he was fourteen years old, for alleged piloting Gen. Forrest into Athens; 10. Frank, b. 1849, editor, and register in the United States Land Office at Huntsville, attended Southern University and was graduated from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., 1869, read law with Hon. Luke Pryor and was admitted to the bar, taught school for some time, was connected with the editorial staff of the St. Louis "Times" with the Nashville "Banner," became editor and half proprietor of the Huntsville "Independent," 1876, and appointed register in the Land office, January 20, 1887. Last residence: Athens.

COLEMAN, DANIEL, lawyer, was born September 7, 1838, at Athens, Limestone County, and died June 29, 1906, at Huntsville; son of Daniel and Elizabeth Lockhart (Peterson) Coleman (q. v.). He numbered among his ancestry Col. Richard Cocke, of England, a member of the house of burgesses in 1634, 1644, and 1646; Col. Samuel Lockhart; Capt. William Hartwell; and Capt. John Ruffin, all prominent in colonial history. The sword of his grandfather, Daniel Coleman, who fought in the Revolutionary War as colonel of a regiment, was kept by the family until their home in Athens was sacked by Federal troops. Mr. Coleman received his early schooling in Athens under the instruction of Mr. Echols and Mr. Frazer, and at Hanover Academy from Frederick and Lewis Coleman, and Mr. Schooler. He was graduated with honor from the Wesleyan College at Florence, 1859, and later, from the law school of the University of Virginia. He was admitted to the bar in 1860, and practiced for a short time before the War of Secession at Athens. During that time he also published a newspaper, "The Courier," which ardently supported the Southern cause. At the beginning of hostilities he enlisted in the Madison Rifles as a private, March, 1861, with his brother John Hartwell Coleman. He first saw service in Pensacola, Fla., with the Seventh Alabama Infantry regiment, and after several months, was transferred to the army of Virginia and became a member of the staff of Gen. Philip St. George Cocke. At the death of Gen. Cocke, Mr. Coleman was transferred to the army of Tennessee, Gen. Wood's staff, Cleburne's division. When his brother, Capt. John A. Coleman, of Hawkins' battalion of Sharpshooters was killed in the battle of Murfreesboro, he became captain of the same company. He remained with the battalion until it was practically destroyed on Chickamauga field. In that battle another brother, Lieut. Richard Vance Coleman, fell at his side. After that time he was attached to Wheeler's cavalry and finally surrendered with that band. Capt. Coleman had narrowly escaped death a number of times. At Shiloh his horse was shot from under him, and later during the same battle, a part of his uniform was carried off. At another time his canteen was shot from him and his coat was rent with bullets.

After the establishment of peace, Mr. Coleman, having been stripped of all his possessions by the war, taught school to support himself and secure an education for his younger brothers. After some time at that occupation, he located in Athens and began to practice law. In 1872, after serving as solicitor for Limestone County, he was elected State senator from Limestone and Lauderdale Counties. He held his seat in the senate for three sessions and resigned in 1875 in order to practice law in Huntsville. Soon after, he was elected solicitor of the eighth judicial circuit by the general assembly, and held the office for six years. He was a delegate to the national Democratic convention in Chicago, at which Grover Cleveland was nominated for president, and was the first Alabamian to cast his vote for Cleveland. In 1886, he was appointed by President Cleveland to the consulship at St. Etienne, France. He remained there until the failing health of his wife forced him to resign and seek a milder climate. He lived for some time on the Island of Capri, in the Bay of Naples, before returning to his home in Huntsville, where he reentered the legal profession. He was appointed a lay-reader by Bishop Wilmer, and served for many years at the "Nativity," or Mother church, and also at the chapel at Dallas Mills. He was a Democrat; a Knight Templar; and Master Mason.

Married: June 17, 1873, at Huntsville, Claude LeVert, daughter of Francis John and Ann Eliza (Withers) LeVert, of Huntsville, the latter a descendant of William Claiborne, born in Westmoreland County, England, about 1587, who came to Virginia in 1621, was a member of the council, secretary of state, deputy governor, and treasurer of Virginia, and of Augustine and Mary (Herbert) Claiborne, and, through Ann Fox, of Gov. West of Virginia; granddaughter of Dr. Claudius and Anne Lea (Metcalf) LeVert, the former fleet surgeon to the Count of Rochambeau, the latter a descendant of William Strachey of Saffron Walden, Essex, England, who came to Virginia in 1610, was appointed secretary of state, wrote a well-known history of early Virginia, and of John Strachey and Elizabeth Vernon, the sister of Admiral Vernon; great-granddaughter of Marguéritta (Verdot) LeVert, of Nancy, France. Children: 1. LeVert, captain of coast artillery at Fortress Monroe, attended the Lycée of St. Etienne, France, and the Military Academy of Huntsville, was graduated with honor from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and from West Point, 1899, seventh in a class of seventy-two, in company with a lieutenant, had charge of dynamiting buildings during the San Francisco fire, was sent as military attache to Brazil in 1912, was military aid to the Brazilian Minister during his stay in the United States, 1913, was sent abroad on the "Tennessee," 1914, m. M. L. Fletcher, daughter of Hon. A. S. Fletcher of Huntsville; 2. Claude Verdot, m. Edwin Russel Dickenson, attorney-at-law of Tampa, Fla. Last residence: Huntsville.

COLEMAN, EZRA WILSON, lawyer, was born August 10, 1861, at Greensboro, Hale County, and died October 13, 1904, at Jasper; son of Judge Thomas Wilkes and Frances Jane (Wilson) Coleman (q. v.). His early schooling was begun in Meridian, Miss., under J. H. Carter; later he attended school at Green Springs, under Dr. Henry Tutwiler; and was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. M., 1879, and LL. B., 1881. He commenced the practice of law in Eutaw in 1881, where he remained with his father until the latter was made chancellor. He moved to Birmingham and practiced for two years, then, in 1887, located in Jasper, where he became associated with Thomas L. Sowell, under the firm name of Coleman & Sowell. He was solicitor of the fourteenth judicial district for several years, and was a member of the constitutional convention of Alabama of 1901. He was a stockholder in the Jasper Trust Company, the Lockport Coal Company, the Jasper Stone & Quarry Company, and the Carbon Hill & Horse Creek Coal Company. He was a Democrat, a Presbyterian, an Odd Fellow, a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Improved Order of Red Men. Married: September 13, 1893, at Jasper, Nanette Shields, daughter of John B. and Carrie (Long) Shields, of Jasper. Her great-grandfather, James Shields, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and her great-great-grandfather, William Shields, was born in the County Armagh, Ireland, July 14, 1728, embarked on a sloop commanded by Capt. Alex Smith bound for America, February 26, 1737. He was nine years old at the time, and on the voyage lost his father, Robert Shields. He settled in Maryland. Children: 1. John S.; 2. Ezra W.; 3. Ellen; 4. Thomas Wilkes; 5. Caroline. Last residence: Jasper.

COLEMAN, FRANKLIN, lawyer and journalist, was born May 17, 1849, at Athens, and died June 10, 1909, in Montgomery; son of Judge Daniel and Elizabeth Lockhart (Peterson) Coleman, of Athens, the former justice of the supreme court of Alabama; grandson of Col. Daniel Coleman and wife, a Miss Cocke, of Caroline County, Va., the former an officer in the Virginia line, Revolutionary Army, and a member of the house of burgesses, and of Batt and Sarah Peterson, of North Carolina. He was educated in the Athens academy, and while attending the Southern university, ran away and joined the Confederate forces; after the War of Secession, he entered Washington and Lee university, and graduated in 1870. In 1861, he joined Gen. N. B. Forrest's mounted command, and knowing the country of North Alabama well, he acted as guide and assisted Forrest in overtaking Streight, and forcing his surrender before reaching Rome, Ga. He was captured and carried to Athens, where he was tried as a spy and condemned to death by Federal court martial; he escaped, returned to Forrest, and served to the close of the war. He studied law under Gen. Luke Pryor, was admitted to the practice, but entered journalism. He served on the staff of "The Nashville Banner," "The American," of Nashville, and later, was editor of the "Huntsville Independent." Years later, he became register in the U. S. land office, at Huntsville and went with the office to Montgomery, when it was removed to that place, and served in that capacity until his death. He was a Democrat; and a Methodist. Unmarried: Last residence: Montgomery.

COLEMAN, JESSE ALBERT, planter and legislator, was born June 17, 1872, near Mt. Willing; son of Thomas Livingston and Mary (Ray) Coleman; grandson of Abraham and Mary Coleman, and of Albert J. Ray. He was educated in the schools of Mt. Willing; and took a business course at Howard college; was engaged in the mercantile business from 1893 to 1900; since that date he has been a farmer. In 1907 he represented Lowndes County in the legislature. He is a Democrat; a Baptist; and a Mason. Married: May 19, 1898, at Mt. Willing, to Mary, daughter of Capt. Joseph Lemuel and Martha Ellen Hinson, of that place. They are the parents of five children. Residence: Mt. Willing.

COLEMAN, JOSEPH RICHARD, business man, was born April 22, 1867, at Athens, Limestone County; son of Dr. James L. and Catherine (Lester) Coleman, the former a physician and Methodist minister, serving as presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa and Huntsville districts; grandson of Judge Daniel and Elizabeth (Peterson) Coleman (q. v.). Mr. Coleman was educated in the schools of Alabama and later attended Southern university, Greensboro. He located in Sheffield in 1887, becoming a member of the firm of Ashe & Coleman, real estate and general insurance. He has served as city clerk and auditor; State land agent; back tax commissioner for Colbert County; and notary public. He is an Episcopalian; Elk; and member of the Kappa Alpha college fraternity. Married: June 23, 1897, to Macon Reynolds, daughter of Gen. William Wirt and Susan (Ball) Allen (q. v.). Children: 1. William Allen; 2. Joseph Richard, jr. Residence: Sheffield.

COLEMAN, PHARES, lawyer, supreme court reporter, was born March 31, 1865, at Livingston; son of Judge Augustus A. and Amanda Malvina (Phares) Coleman (q. v.). Mr. Coleman was educated in the private schools of Greensboro, the preparatory department of the Southern university; and was graduated from the latter, A. B., 1882. He was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. M., 1883, and from the law department, in 1885, with the degree of LL. B. In 1885 Mr. Coleman entered upon the practice of law at Greensboro. In 1887 he was appointed secretary to the supreme court of Alabama, and from 1894 to 1905 he was the reporter of the decisions of the supreme court. Mr. Coleman was president of the Montgomery library association for several years; was for some years a member of the board of directors of the commercial and industrial association of Montgomery; was a steward in the Court street Methodist church, Montgomery; is a Knight of Pythias; was a member of the advisory board of the alumni society of the University of Alabama; and was chairman of the advisory board which was instrumental in aiding in securing the location in Montgomery of St. Margaret's hospital. He is a Democrat. Married: March 12, 1889, to Margaret Sledge, daughter of Dr. Francis M. and Margaret J. (Sledge) Peterson (q. v.), of Greensboro. Children: 1. Phares, jr., m.; 2. Elizabeth; 3. Margaret. Residence: Birmingham.

COLEMAN, THOMAS K., major, 4th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

COLEMAN, THOMAS WILKES, lawyer, associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama, was born March 31, 1834, near Eutaw, Greene County; son of James Cobb and Martha Ann (Anderson) Coleman, who were married December 5, 1830, and lived at Eutaw, the former a native of Edgecombe County, N. C., who came to Alabama in 1818 or 1819, lived in different parts of Greene County, was twice married, his second wife being Juliet Bestor, and died in 1868; grandson of John and Rhoda (Cobb) Coleman, who were married February 4, 1807, and moved from North Carolina to near Eutaw, the latter a native of Virginia, and of Thomas I. and Jane (Kennedy) Anderson, who were married September 28, 1801, and lived in Abbeville District, S. C., until they moved to Greene County in 1818, where they settled on "Anderson Hill," near Mt. Zion, the Presbyterian church; great-grandson of Charles and Mary Rountree, both of Edgecombe County, N. C., who moved to Alabama in 1818, settling first in Bibb County, the former a soldier in the Revolution, serving as quartermaster in the Third North Carolina regiment, who died in 1824, the latter dying in 1821, and of Thomas Anderson and his wife, who lived in South Carolina, the former a soldier in the Revolutionary War, a private in the Third South Carolina regiment, commanded by Col. William Thompson, and was killed at the battle of Charleston, S. C., and of James and Mary (Hamilton) Kennedy, the former a lieutenant in the First South Carolina regiment, commanded by Col. Charles C. Pinckney, Colonial Army, who was captured at Charleston in 1780, and promoted from second to first lieutenant, 1781, the latter a kinswoman of Alexander Hamilton, and a member of the Scotch branch of Hamiltons, a descendant of James Hamilton, fourth son of Alexander Hamilton, Laird of Grange, and his wife Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Sir Robert Pollock. The Hamiltons of Grange belong to the Cambuskeith branch of the great house of Hamilton, and the founder of that branch in the fourteenth century was Walter de Hamilton, the common ancestor of the Dukes of Hamilton, the Dukes of Abercorn, Earls of Haddington, Viscount Boyne, Barons Belhaven, several extinct peerages and all of the Scotch and Irish Hamilton families. He was the fifth in descent from Robert, Earl of Mellent, created by Henry I, Earl of Leicester, who married a granddaughter of King Henry I, of France, and his queen, who was a daughter of Jeroslaus, czar of Russia.

Judge Coleman received his early education in the county schools, and was prepared for college at Green Springs, by Dr. Henry Tutwiler. He was graduated at Princeton, New Jersey, A. B. The degree of A. M. was conferred on him by that college, and the degree of LL. B., by the University of Alabama. He read law in the office of Stephen F. Hale, for whom Hale County was named, and was admitted to the practice by the supreme court of the state in 1855. He practiced his profession at Eutaw until the commencement of the war in 1861. At that time he was with the Greensboro Guards, occupying Fort Morgan. He organized a company of troops, and became its captain, holding that place until he was desperately wounded at the battle of Missionary Ridge, when a minie ball passed entirely through his body, destroying his left lung and incapacitating him for further service. He recovered from his wound and resumed the practice of law. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1865, and in 1866 was elected solicitor for the fifth circuit, but was ousted from office by the reconstruction laws in 1868. In 1878, he was appointed solicitor for the seventh circuit by Gov. W. R. Cobb, and in 1880, was elected to that office by the legislature for a six year term. At the end of that term, he was re-elected by the legislature for another period of six years, but resigned in March, 1887, in order to accept the appointment of Gov. Thomas Seay, to the chancellorship of the southwestern chancery division of Alabama. After serving as chancellor for four years, he was appointed associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama. In 1901, he was a delegate to the state constitutional convention, was the only member who sat in that convention and in the convention of 1865, and was chairman of the committee to frame an article on suffrage and elections. He was at that time the principal author of an article providing for qualified suffrage. The rules of the convention were suspended by a two-thirds vote, and resolutions complimenting him, and extending thanks to him specially, for services in framing the new constitution, were adopted. He was president of the Merchants & Farmers Bank at Eutaw; and chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the University of Alabama, and president of the board, pro tem. He is a Presbyterian and a Royal Arch Mason.

Married: November 1, 1860, at Sumterville, Sumter County, Frances Jane Wilson, born October 29, 1842, at Moundville, Hale County, daughter of Samuel James and Elizabeth (Frierson) Wilson, who lived at Moundville, the former born May 16, 1790, in Williamsburg District, S. C., who served in the War of 1812, being stationed on Cat Island, twenty-five miles off land, Georgetown, guarding that point; granddaughter of Robert and Elizabeth (McIlvain) Wilson, who were married in 1764, the former a native of South Carolina, born October 9, 1737, died March 4, 1813, a soldier in the Revolution, serving as private in the sixth South Carolina and Third South Carolina regiments under Marion, and of James and Mary (Brown) Frierson; great-granddaughter of David and Mary (Witherspoon) Wilson, the former a native of Ireland, born in 1710, who was married in that country and emigrated to South Carolina in 1732, the latter born in Ireland in 1707, a first cousin of her husband, was also cousin to John Witherspoon, signer of the Declaration of Independence, of James Frierson and his wife, whose maiden name was Davis; great-great-granddaughter of William and Jane (Witherspoon) Wilson, who were married in Ireland and emigrated to America about 1832, the latter the aunt of John Witherspoon, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and great-great-granddaughter of John Witherspoon, born in Scotland in 1670, from whom is dated the origin of the family in America, and of James and Margaret (Frierson) Frierson, cousins; great-great-great-granddaughter of David Witherspoon, and of John and James Frierson, brothers, and soldiers in the Revolution; great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Rev. and Lucy (Welch) Witherspoon, and of William Frierson, who came with his wife and two sons, John and James, from County Down, Ireland, to Williamsburg District, S. C., and is the head of the Frierson family in this country; great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Rev. John and Elizabeth (Knox) Welch; great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of John and Lady Margaret (Stuart) Knox, the latter the youngest daughter of Agnes, daughter of John Cunningham of Caprington, and Andrew, second Lord Ochiltree, commonly called the "good." Mrs. Coleman is also a direct descendant of Andrew, third Lord of Avondale and Lady Margaret Hamilton, daughter of James, first Earl of Arran, by Beatrice Drummond, his first wife; of Andrew Stuart, second Lord of Avondale, and Margaret Kenedy, daughter of Sir John Kenedy of Blairquhan, in Ayrshire; of Walter Stuart, of Murphie, and Elizabeth, daughter of Arnot of Arnot, the former the son of James Stuart and Miss McDonald, of the family of McDonald, of Ireland, who on the imprisonment of his father and brother, with the assistance of the Bishop of Argyle, assaulted and burned the town of Dumbarton, and killed Sir James Stuart, the governor of the Castle, 1424, was proclaimed a traitor and sought refuge in Ireland, where he married, and died in 1441; of James Stuart, son of Murdock, second Duke of Albany, Governor of Scotland, until the restoration of his cousin, James I of Scotland, and Isabel, daughter and co-heiress of Duncan, last Earl of Lennox; and of Robert, Earl of Fife and Monteith, afterwards Duke of Albany, and Margaret, only daughter of Murdoch, Earl of Monteith, who were married in 1399. Her ancestry has been traced through that line back eighteen generations, through Robert II, King of Scotland, the only child of Walter, High Steward of Scotland, and his wife Marjory, daughter of Robert, the Bruce. Children: 1. Ezra Wilson (q. v.); 2. Ellen, Eutaw; 3. Julia, deceased, m. James Oliver Banks, Eutaw; 4. Mary, m. Grigsby Eskridge Chandler, deceased, Eutaw; 5. Thomas Wilkes, jr. (q. v.); 6. Flavel Woodrow, m. Nannie McMillan, Atlanta, Ga.; 7. James Samuel, m. Mary Bell Peteet, Eutaw; 8. Frances Jane, m. Thomas Thompson Quarles, Eutaw; 9. Charles Hamilton, Eutaw; 10. John Anderson, m. Sue Innis Brumbach, Seattle, Washington. Residence: Eutaw.

HORACE TURNER

COLEMAN, THOMAS WILKES, jr., lawyer, probate judge and judge city court of Anniston, was born December 19, 1868, near Butler, Choctaw County; son of Judge Thomas Wilkes and Frances J. (Wilson) Coleman (q. v.). Judge Coleman, jr., studied in the public schools at home until he was ten years of age, and then attended Dr. Henry Tutwiler's school at Greene Springs three years, entered the academic department of the University of Alabama; after this he attended the University of Virginia one year, and again the University of Alabama, from which he graduated with the degree of A. B. in 1885, and LL. B. in 1889. He began the practice of law in 1889 in Anniston; was a member of the legislature in 1896-97; attorney of the city of Anniston in 1897-99; solicitor seventh circuit, 1898-1901; judge of the city court of Anniston, November, 1901 to 1916; and since 1916 probate judge of Calhoun County. He is a Presbyterian; a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. Married: October 15, 1891, at Anniston, to Carrie Arnold, daughter of Stephen H. and Catherine Elizabeth (Powell) Beasley, both of Montgomery. Children: 1. Frances Wilson; 2. Alfred; 3. Catherine Elizabeth; 4. Thomas Wilkes. Residence: Anniston.

COLEMAN, WALTER LEAKE, lawyer, was born January 10, 1813, in North Carolina, and died December 4, 1879, in Montgomery; son of Dr. James and Nancy (Leake) Coleman, of Rockingham, N. C. He was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., studied law and was admitted to the bar. He practiced law in Montgomery, where he was at one time register in chancery, and was elected mayor of the city, 1864-1868. He was a Democrat and a Methodist. Married: May 7, 1844, in Montgomery, Caroline A. Bibb, daughter of Hon. B. S. Bibb. Children: 1. Walter Bibb, deceased, m. Mamie Lowe, of Montgomery; 2. Pickett Leake, deceased, unmarried. Last residence: Montgomery.

COLEMAN, WILEY, lawyer, was born February 11, 1819, in Edgecombe County, N. C., and died May 22, 1892, at Eutaw; son of John and Rhoda (Cobb) Coleman, who came from North Carolina and settled first in Bibb County, in 1819, and two years later moved to Greene County, where they resided on a plantation for the rest of their lives; grandson of Charles and Mary (Rountree) Coleman, of Edgecombe County, N. C., and of James and Penelope Ethridge (Butts) Cobb. The Colemans came from England and settled at Wilmington, N. C. The Cobbs and Butts were residents of Norfolk, Va. Judge Coleman was the uncle of Judge Thomas W. Coleman (q. v.). His early schooling was obtained in Eutaw, and he was for some years a student at the University of Alabama. He attended the law school of the University of Virginia, and was graduated in 1842. He immediately opened practice in Eutaw, where he spent practically all of his life. He was elected judge of the county court of Greene County, in 1846; and represented the county in the legislature for two terms during the War of Secession. He was a member of the state constitutional convention of 1875. In addition to his law practice, he had large planting interests in the district around Eutaw. He served as a private in the Mexican War, and was a Democrat. He was never married. Last residence: Eutaw.

COLEMAN, WILLIAM H., member of the constitutional convention of 1865 from Washington County.

COLEMAN, WILLIAM MADISON, business man and legislator, was born March 2, 1860, near Guntersville, Marshall County; son of John Crawford and Mary Jane (Critchler) Coleman, the former a farmer and merchant, was first sergeant in Russell's 4th Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army; grandson of Thomas A. and Mary (McCrory) Coleman, and of James and Jina E. (Roden) Critcher, who was born in North Carolina, in 1809, removed to Alabama, represented Marshall County in the legislature, and was a State senator from the fifth district. He was educated in the common schools of Marshall County; which county he represented in the State legislature, 1892-93, again in 1894-95, and was re-elected in 1906. He is a Democrat; Methodist; Mason; Odd Fellow; Knight of Pythias; and a Knight of Honor. Married: February 4, 1880, in Marshall County, to Nancy Catherine, daughter of Hiram and Edith (Green) Bailey. Residence: Albertville.

COLLIER, BUCKNER K., lawyer, was born in Opelika; son of Thomas Collier, a North Carolinian, who died at Opelika, 1883, at the age of seventy-eight years. His mother, a native of Tennessee, was before her marriage, a Miss Killibrew; she died at Opelika in 1877, when she was fifty-six years old. The Colliers originally came from England, while the Killibrews are of Scotch descent. He was educated in a high school at Decatur, Ga., and in college at Auburn; and began the study of law in 1875, at Opelika, under Hon. William H. Barnes. He was admitted to the bar in 1877, and immediately began to practice law in Opelika in partnership with Augustus Barnes, the son of his late preceptor. That same year, he became assistant solicitor for Lee County, and filled that position until he moved to Montgomery in 1885. He formed a partnership with Mr. Pinckard in that city, under the firm name of Collier & Pinckard, and from that time on devoted himself exclusively to his practice. He was attorney for the Corbin Banking Company of New York for many years, and as such, had supervision of their immense financial interests in Alabama. He was vice president of the State Abstract Company of Montgomery, and a director in the First National Bank of Opelika. He was chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Lee County for some time. Married: in 1881, at Opelika, Charlotte Isabella Hooper, daughter of Col. George W. Hooper, who commanded the Third Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, during the War of Secession. Last residence: Montgomery.

COLLIER, HENRY WATKINS, lawyer, chief justice of the supreme court of Alabama, governor of Alabama, was born January 17, 1801, on his father's plantation in Lunenburg County, Va., and died August 28, 1855, at Bailey's Springs; son of James and Elizabeth (Bouldin) Collier, the former of whom was born October 13, 1757, at the family plantation in Lunenburg County, Va., was a soldier in the Revolution during which struggle he received a sabre cut across his cheek in a hand to hand encounter with a British officer at the battle of Eutaw Springs, moved with his family to Abbeville District, S. C., in 1802, and to Madison County, 1818; grandson of Cornelius and Elizabeth (Wyatt) Collier, who lived on the plantation in Lunenburg County, and of James and Sallie (Watkins) Bouldin, who lived in Charlotte County, Va.; great-grandson of John Collier of Little York, Va., who was either a native of England, or the son of an Englishman, and of Col. Thomas Bouldin, a lieutenant-colonel in the French and Indian wars in Virginia, and a vestryman in the Church of England. He belonged to an old colonial family, of which Sir Francis Wyatt and Rear-Admiral Sir George Collier were members. He was educated at the academy of Dr. Moses Waddell, at Willington, S. C., and went with his parents to Alabama territory in 1818. He read law with Judge Haywood of Nashville, Tenn., and was licensed to practice in Huntsville, 1822. He remained in Huntsville for a brief time, then located in Tuscaloosa, in 1823, becoming the law partner of Hon. Sion L. Perry. He was elected to the legislature from Tuscaloosa County in 1827, and the following year, was elected by the legislature to the supreme bench over Judge Eli Shortridge. When the supreme bench was constituted separately in 1832, Judge Collier was continued on the circuit bench. When Judge Saffold resigned in 1836, Gov. Clay appointed him to the vacancy in the supreme court, and the legislature elected him to the position over Hon. A. Crenshaw of Butler at the following election. The following year he was elected chief justice of the supreme court, a position which he held for the following twelve years. His decisions are spread through thirty-five volumes of the reports of the supreme court of Alabama.

Judge Collier was elected governor of Alabama without opposition in 1849, and was re-elected two years later, defeating B. G. Shields, William L. Yancey and Nathaniel Terry. During his term as governor, he presented the memorial stone for the Washington monument on behalf of the state of Alabama. His support was sought by both the southern rights and Union party, but he favored neither side of the question which then agitated the southern states. At the end of his second term, he was offered a seat in the U. S. senate, but declined, and retired to private life, with his health fatally impaired by his arduous labors. He was first president of the Alabama Historical Society; was at one time general of the state militia; and was a steward in the Methodist Episcopal church, being one of the eight men who built the present church in Tuscaloosa. He was a Democrat. Married: April 25, 1826, in Tuscaloosa, Mary Ann Battle, who was born March 16, 1803, in Nash County, N. C., and died April 7, 1867; daughter of Capt. William and Mary Ann (Williams) Battle, who lived near Nashville, Nash County, N. C., the former a Revolutionary soldier; granddaughter of Maj. John Williams, who served in the commissary department during the Revolutionary War with the rank of major, as he was too old for active service. Both families lived in North Carolina, but originally came from Virginia, where they were connected with the Drakes and Bustins. The Williams family emigrated from Wales. Mrs. Collier is of the same family as Sir Francis Drake of England. Children: 1. Mary Williams, m. Prof. George William Benagh, of the University of Alabama, a scientist of distinction, who was drowned in Tuscaloosa; 2. Evelyn Hewett, m. Capt. William Thomas King, of Dallas, who was killed in the second battle of Manassas, the nephew and adopted son of William Rufus King, vice president of the United States; 3. Dr. James Wyatt, physician, never married; 4. Sallie Bouldin, m. Capt. Battle S. Fort, of Mississippi. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

COLLIER, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, was born October 13, 1757, in Lunenburg County, Va., and died in Madison County, August 20, 1832; son of Cornelius and Elizabeth (Wyatt) Collier; grandson of John and his third wife, Nancy (Eyres) Collier; great-grandson of Charles Collier of King and Queen County, Va.; related on his maternal side to Sir Francis Wyatt, Colonial governor of Virginia. He fought in the battles of Guilford, Brandywine, Savannah and Eutaw Springs; removed to Abbeville District, S. C., in 1802, where he was a planter. In 1818 he removed to Alabama, his son having already settled in Madison County in 1812. Married: July 3, 1788, to Elizabeth, daughter of James and Sally (Watkins) Bouldin; granddaughter of Col. Thomas and Nancy (Clark) Bouldin, who settled in Lunenburg County, Va., in 1744, coming from Pennsylvania. Children: 1. Bouldin, m. Sarah Slaughter of Limestone County; 2. Wyatt, m. Janet Walker of Nashville, Tenn.; 3. Martha, m. William Alexander Slaughter, of Culpeper County, Va.; 4. James Bouldin, m. (1) Sarah W. Land of Limestone County, (2) Mrs. Frances Slaughter; 5. Eliza Wyatt, m. William Henry Backwell of Lunenburg, Va.; 6. William Edward, m. (1) Emily Goodwyn Stewart; (2) Jane Ophelia Stewart of Madison County; 7. Henry Watkins, (q. v.) governor of Alabama, m. Mary Ann Battle of Bailey Springs; 8. Thomas Bouldin, m. Mary Dent of Madison County; 9. Charles Ephraim, m. Elizabeth Madison Stewart of Madison County. Last residence: Madison County.

COLLIER, JAMES MARSHALL, physician, was born October 19, 1838, in Hampton, Va., and died October 4, 1911, at Troy; son of Charles Miles and Sarah (Cowles) Collier. He received his education in Virginia and at the outbreak of the War of Secession enlisted in Co. F, 6th Virginia infantry regiment, C. S. Army. He was one of seven who, with Lieutenant Sinclair and others of the old navy, captured Fort Norfolk and gave the Confederacy the ammunition with which the first battle of Manassas was fought. Later he was commissioned surgeon in Armisteads' brigade, Longstreet's corps, and was one of a special surgical corps organized March 15, 1864. He was captured at Camp Jackson hospital at the fall of Richmond. After the war he located in Georgia; removed to Orion, Pike County, in 1869, where he practiced his profession; and in 1878, located in Troy, practicing medicine and becoming proprietor of a wholesale drug store. He was an Episcopalian; a member of the National medical association; and a Mason. He was married at Orion, his wife and one daughter preceding him to the grave. Two other daughters, Mrs. Percy Smith and Mrs. M. Downer Pace, survived him. Last residence: Troy.

COLLIER, JOSEPH M., teacher, was born February 15, 1868, at Rockmills, Randolph County; son of Thomas and Nancy (Blair) Collier, of Cleburne County; grandson of Thomas Collier and his second wife, of Clay County. He was educated in the public schools of Clay and Marshall Counties; graduated Walnut Grove college, 1887-92, with the B. S. degree; Chattanooga normal college, 1898, B. S. degree; and from Howard college, 1912, A. B.; summer student at University of Virginia, Tulane and Peabody normal. He has been a teacher in the rural schools of Alabama for years; served as instructor in mathematics in summer schools of Universities of Virginia, and Alabama; superintendent of schools for Decatur for eight years. He is a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: April 12, 1894, at Walnut Grove, to Fannie Viola, daughter of Jesse Thomas and Annie (Penny) Campbell, of that place; granddaughter of William Campbell of South Carolina. Children: 1. Royal L., deceased; 2. Ruby Jo, deceased. Residence: Decatur.

COLLIER, THOMAS A., planter, was born July 13, 1831, in Burke County, N. C.; son of George and Martha (James) Collier, of North Carolina; grandson of Mary Collier of Philadelphia, who reared Thomas A., on the death of his mother, in his infancy, and removed to Alabama, locating near the Tennessee River. He was educated in the schools of his community, and engaged in railroad work, until 1856, when he removed to Brundidge, Pike County. There he formed a partnership with his brother, George, and engaged in merchandising until 1861. He enlisted as private in Co. F, 15th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and was in the battles of Front Royal, Harper's Ferry, Antietam, Second Manassas, the Wilderness campaign and Jackson's Valley and took part in the retreat from Richmond, 1865. He was made prisoner twice, but was never wounded. He resumed farming, at the close of war, and extended his operations to five hundred acres of Pike County lands, near Brundidge. He was a Democrat; a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: February 1, 1868, at Brundidge, to Allie, daughter of Simeon and Louisa Williams of Pike County. Children: 1. Lena, m. A. L. Dickinson, of Brundidge. Residence: Brundidge.

COLLINS, ALFRED, teacher and public official, was born in Rhea County, Tenn., in 1816. After acquiring a good education, he moved, in 1840, to Alabama, settling in DeKalb County. He was reputed one of the best mathematicians in north Alabama, and in early life engaged in teaching, being instrumental in building up several fine schools in DeKalb County. After some years, he gave up teaching, and engaged in planting, continuing in that occupation, with the exception of the period during the War of Secession, for the remainder of his life. In politics, he was an old line Whig, and supported the Bell and Everett ticket in the presidential campaign of 1860. On the issue of secession, he maintained the fundamental principles of his old party, upholding the Union often under circumstances involving the danger of his life, and supported the Union all through the War of Secession. In 1865, he was sent without opposition to the State convention, and in 1867 represented DeKalb County in the constitutional convention. After the war ended in 1865, he became a member of the Republican party. Last residence: DeKalb County.

COLLINS, CHARLES W., merchant, was born, July 1, 1830, in Stafford County, Va., son of Joseph Todd and Susan (Wood) Collins, natives of Caroline County, Va., the former a planter, descended from an old Virginia family of Irish origin, the latter of English ancestry. He received a fair literary education, after which he learned the carriage-maker's trade. He worked but a short time at that trade, and in the winter of 1851-1852, left Virginia, and came to Alabama where he joined his uncle, John Collins, who had settled in the cane brake region of Marengo, now Hale County, in 1836. He farmed with his uncle until the death of the latter in 1867, when Mr. Collins became a legatee for a large portion of the estate. He became a prosperous farmer and merchant in Hale County. Before the War of Secession, he was an old line Whig; after that time he voted the Democratic ticket. He was a Baptist. Married: (1) in 1855, Cary T. Collins, of Virginia, who died in 1865; (2) in 1867, Louisa Collins, of Virginia, who died in 1872; (3) in 1874, Hattie E. Allen, daughter of Rev. W. L. Allen, of Virginia. He had three children by his first marriage; two by his second; and five by the third. One of his sons, Charles Wallace, B. S., 1899, was a lawyer at Birmingham, 1901-1904, when he became assistant state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and now is educational director of the Y. M. C. A. at Birmingham. Last residence: Hale County.

COLLINS, CHARLES WALLACE, lawyer and author, was born April 4, 1879, at Gallion, Hale County; son of Robert Wood and Anne Bates (Allen) Collins, the former a native of Caroline County, Va., moving, at the close of the War of Secession, to Hale County, was a cotton planter; grandson of Joseph Todd and Susan (Wood) Collins, of Caroline County, and of Littleberry Woodson and Anne (Martin) Allen, of Caroline County, Va. He was educated in a private school at Gallion; attended Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn, graduating with distinction and receiving the B. S. degree, 1899, and the University of Chicago, pursuing historical studies, receiving honorable mention and A. B., 1907, also M. A., 1909; read law in the office of his uncle, Basil Manly Allen, Birmingham; admitted to the bar, by State examination, 1901; did post-graduate work in constitutional law at Harvard university 1910-11; practiced law in Birmingham for four years; engaged in research in economics and constitutional law in the Library of Congress, 1913. He is a Democrat; a Roman Catholic; a member of the Knights of Columbus; the Alpha Tau Omega college fraternity, and of the University club and Southern society, Washington, D. C. He is the author of "The Fourteenth amendment and the States—a Study of the operation of the restraint clauses of section one of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States," 1912; is writer for leading legal and academic journals. Unmarried. Residence: Washington, D. C.

COLLINS, ELISHA, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, and a resident of Greene County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on December 18, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $30; sums received to date of publication of list, $90.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COLLINS, ELY, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 76, and a resident of Limestone County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on February 23, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $40; sums received to date of publication of list, $100.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COLLINS, GEORGE MONROE, farmer, lumberman, and legislator, was born August 17, 1875, at Randolph, Chilton County; son of James Thomas and Rhoda Louisa (Woolley) Collins; grandson of Thomas and Sarah (Raspberry) Collins, and of George M. and Euna (Palmer) Woolley, the former of Lawley, the latter of Randolph. Both of Mr. Collins' grandfathers served in the C. S. Army. He was educated in the common and high schools of Randolph and Jemison. He is a lumberman and farmer; was a councilman at Gordo, 1908 to 1914; has been a member of the county board of education of Pickens County since 1917; and was a member of the house of representatives from that county, 1919. He is a Democrat; Baptist; and a Mason. Married: June 11, 1907, at Gordo, to Cornelia E., daughter of Columbus and Ophelia Shirley. Children: 1. George Malory; 2. Robert Hilliard; 3. James Columbus; 4. Thomas Marshall; 5. Charles Morgan. Residence: Carrollton.

COLLINS, ROBERT EMMETT, merchant, was born September 18, 1864, at Quitman, Clarke County, Miss., and died March 10, 1913; son of Osborne Baldwin and Sarah (Stainback) Collins, who lived at Quitman, Miss., and moved to Birmingham, about 1887, the former a native of Hernando, Miss., a lawyer and politician; grandson of Jareth Collins who lived at Athens, and of Peter Stainback, who married a Miss Moore, and lived at Petersburg, Va. He was a wholesale merchant in 1887; was a Democrat, a steward in the Methodist church, a Shriner, a Maccabee, and an Elk. Married: April 25, 1893, at Okolona, Miss., to Minnie Beaty, daughter of Dr. Thomas Monroe and Sara Helen (Gates) Beaty, of Houston, Miss.; granddaughter of Col. Robert Beaty, of Union, S. C.; and a descendant of Sir Thomas Gates who came to America in 1610, and was at one time governor of Virginia. After her husband's death, Mrs. Collins resided in Birmingham. Children: 1. Robert Emmett; 2. Sara Helen.

COLQUITT, ALFRED BETHEA, public official, was born March 21, 1848, at Monticello, Pike County; son of Dr. William Bethea and Mary (Miles) Colquitt, natives of Marion Court House, S. C., who were married at that place, moved to Alabama, and lived successively at Monticello, Coffee County, Elba, 1858-1864, a plantation near Brundidge until 1867, and Bullock, where they both died, the former, orphaned when quite young, was reared and educated by his uncle, Dr. Alfred Bethea, became a physician of the old school and a ruling elder in the Presbyterian church, the latter a daughter of an Irishman, one of the leading citizens of Marion County, S. C.; grandson of Alfred Colquitt, a Scotchman, who landed at Charleston, S. C., became a prominent slaveowner and planter in Marion County, S. C.; married a Miss Bethea, of South Carolina, and founded this branch of the Colquitt family in America. He received his early schooling from private instructors at Elba, and entered the C. S. Army in 1863, being fifteen years old and weighing seventy pounds at the time. He volunteered as a private in Co. H, Fifty-third Alabama cavalry, Col. Hannon commanding. He was soon after promoted to a place on the staff of Col. Hannon, and remained there until the close of the war. After peace was established, Mr. Colquitt entered the general merchandise store conducted by his brother at Bullock. He moved, in 1876, to his farm in Montgomery County, which he has since operated successfully. In 1900, he moved to Montgomery in order to educate his children, but continued to operate his farm. In November, 1902, he was appointed deputy United States marshal for the middle district of Alabama. He is a Democrat, a Methodist Episcopalian, and a Mason. Married: April 19, 1877, Mattie Key Shackelford, daughter of Frank and Amelia Jane (Watts) Shackelford, of Montgomery County. The Shackelfords were among the first settlers of the county. The Watts family came from Georgia. Children: 1. Kate; 2. Ethel, m. Mr. Martin, a railroad man of Montgomery; 3. Blanche, m. J. D. Boyd, a farmer of Montgomery County; 4. Jennie; 5. Wiley; 6. Helen; 7. Lois. Residence: Montgomery.

COLSTON, ELECTRA SEMMES, educator and writer. Residence: Mobile.

COLTART, SAMUEL, pioneer, came to America from Gate House upon Fleet, Scotland, and spent his life in Huntsville, where he died in 1873. He was one of the founders and earliest settlers of Huntsville. He was a devout Presbyterian and is commemorated by a marble tablet in the church at Huntsville. He was a Mason; was married; and had a family of several children, all of whom are dead. One of his two sons, Col. John Gordon Coltart, served in the C. S. Army as captain of the Madison Rifles, Seventh Alabama infantry regiment, and later as colonel of the Fiftieth Alabama regiment. He was in the army throughout the war, and was sheriff of Madison County at the time of his death in 1869. The other son, Robert Wilson Coltart, was Confederate States marshal for the northern district of Alabama during the War of Secession, and after that time served as mayor of the city of Huntsville for several terms. He died in 1879. Henry G. Coltart, of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, Memphis, Tenn., is a grandnephew of Samuel Coltart. Last residence: Huntsville.

COLVIN, JAMES PICKETT, physician, was born March 20, 1863, at Greenville; son of Col. C. H. and Olive (Pickett) Colvin, the former colonel of the Sixth Alabama cavalry, C. S. Army; grandson of Alexander and Mary Jane (Goss) Colvin of North Carolina; and of Frederick and Martha (Farrion) Pickett, of Pike County. He was fitted for college by private tutors; spent two years in the University of Alabama, medical department; graduated in medicine from the Kentucky school of medicine, 1891; began practice at Fitzpatrick, 1895, and later located in Birmingham; removed to Lincoln, Talladega County, 1897. He is a member of the Alabama State and the Talladega County medical societies; a Knight of Pythias; an Odd Fellow and an Episcopalian. Married: in 1892, to Ada, daughter of Capt. Charles M. and Mary (Hobby) McRae, of Barbour County, the former a Confederate officer. Children: 1. Charles Henry; 2. Augustus Wilson; 3. John. Residence: Lincoln.

COMAN, JOSHUA PROUT, physician and public official, was born April 4, 1812, at Wadesboro, N. C., and died December 2, 1885, at Athens; son of Capt. Robert and Jane Wade (Prout) Coman, the former a native of Ireland, born August 15, 1776, in the County of Antrim, the latter born September 26, 1773, at Mt. Pleasant, Anson County, N. C.; grandson of Dr. Joshua and Sarah (Wade) Prout, the former a New Englander who came to South Carolina; great-grandson of Thomas Wade, of Anson County, N. C., who was colonel of the minute men of the Salisbury District, N. C., in 1775, member of the first and later provincial congresses, and for whom the town of Wadesboro, N. C., was named. His father came to America in 1800, and was married February 4, 1804, in Charleston, S. C. He was engaged for a few years in shipbuilding at that place, and later in real estate business in Raleigh, N. C. In 1814, the Prouts and Comans moved to Huntsville, Ala., then part of Mississippi Territory, where Dr. Prout and Capt. Coman engaged in the real estate business. Several houses which they built are still standing, among them Dr. Prout's home, a tall brick building on the turnpike one mile west of Huntsville. Dr. Coman's mother died there, January 1, 1816, and his father, September 23, 1819. His older brothers and sisters were sent to a paternal uncle, James Coman, at Raleigh, N. C., to be educated, but he, being but four years old at the time, was left to the care of two maternal aunts. He attended the "Sixteenth Section School," and later was enrolled as a medical student at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., where he was graduated, M. D. He began to practice medicine at Athens, Limestone County, 1829, and devoted the best years of his life to that profession. He represented Limestone County in the State legislature, in 1835 and 1837, and was a delegate to the constitutional conventions of 1861 and 1865 from the county. He was also a member of the State senate for four years. After the War of Secession he was judge of the probate court of Limestone County, and during the last years of his life was very much interested in the Prohibition movement.

Married: August 26, 1835, at Poplar Mount, Limestone County, Jane Heland Lindley, an accomplished musician of her day, daughter of Rev. Jacob Lindley, D. D., the first president of the Ohio University. Of the five children born to them, only two reached maturity: 1. James Lindley, attorney-at-law, b. July 14, 1836, m. April 18, 1860, Frances Jane Malone, d. July 2, 1876, children, 1. Louise Emmet, m. W. W. Beck, Seattle, Wash.; 2. Broussais, m. Boyd Baker, Guntersville; 3. James Lindley, Seattle, Wash.; 4. Frances Fawn, m. H. H. Clayton, Milton, Mass.; 5. Robert Brickell, Seattle, Wash.; 2. Louise, d., m. William Mason, child, Louise Ola, m. S. B. Spickard, Jackson, Miss. Last residence: Athens.

COMECYS, EDWARD FREEMAN, merchant and banker, was born April 13, 1797, in Kent County, Md., and died at Courtland, Lawrence County, January 10, 1875. He was for several years cashier of the old State bank of Alabama; was a merchant at Tuscaloosa for many years, and built the third brick house in that town. Married: in 1834, at Tuscaloosa, to Susan Brown (Fitts) Ripley, daughter of Judge Oliver and Sarah (Harris) Fitts (q. v.), and widow of Daniel B. Ripley. Children: 1. William Crawford, studied at the University of Alabama, 1851-53; private in the Third Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, 1861-65, and died from disease contracted while in the service; 2. Edward Freeman, jr., graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1859, was captain of Co. E, 43rd Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; one of the regents of the University, 1870-72; moved to Gainesville, Tex., and was superintendent of schools, 1891; m. July 15, 1868, at Courtland, to Susan Harris, and had six children. Last residence: Courtland.

COMER, BRAXTON BRAGG, planter, merchant, banker, manufacturer, president Alabama railroad commission, governor and United States senator, was born November 7, 1848, at old Spring Hill, Barbour County; son of John Fletcher and Catherine (Drewry) Comer, of Jones County, Ga., the former Judge of the Superior Court of that State, removing in 1837 to Alabama, settling on a plantation in Barbour County, on which his brother, who had preceded him, had cleared the land and built a water, saw and grist mill which his father later converted into an extensive steam saw, corn and flour mill, the first of that type in the section, in 1853-54, represented Barbour County in the State Legislature, and died at the early age of forty-seven; grandson of Hugh Moss Comer, a native Virginian, who early in the nineteenth century removed to Jones County, Ga., where he established a plantation and where he reared his family, and of John and Elizabeth (Wallace) Drewry also of Jones County, Ga., who later removed to Spring Hill, Barbour County. The Comers are of English and Irish stock, early seated in Virginia. The first Comer ancestor to locate near Petersburg in the old Dominion was a Cromwellian. It is an interesting co-incidence that the Comer family is related to Clement Comer Clay, also a native Virginian, who was Governor of Alabama 1835-37, and also U. S. Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John McKinley, serving from 1837-41, when he resigned. Governor Comer was the fourth of six brothers and the study of their lives forms one of the most interesting family developments in the State, several of them being remarkable successes. Senator Comer spent his childhood and boyhood in the healthy environment of his father's plantation home and at eight years of age began his school life. His teacher for six years was Prof. E. N. Brown, a noted pedagogue, afterwards State senator from Russell County. He attended the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, in the winter of 1864 and the spring of '65. His college career there was cut short by the burning of the University by Gen. John T. Croxton, of the Union Army. When the young cadet watched with awe those magnificent buildings consumed by worse than incendiary flames, he little thought in the years to come, as Governor of the State, it should be his privilege to direct from State funds the rebuilding of much of the destroyed plant and that in recognition of his great service to the cause of education and the restoration of the University, his name should be given to one of the group of new buildings, and that "Comer Hall" should be a permanent monument to him. Following the destruction of the University buildings the students were disbanded at Marion, and Cadet Comer walked from that place to his Barbour County home where he spent a year upon the farm. He then entered the University of Georgia but was compelled to leave on account of ill health. January 1, 1868, he entered Emory and Henry College, Virginia, where he graduated in 1869 with the A. B. and A. M. degrees, winning a medal for special proficiency in natural science. He therefore enjoys the unique distinction of being an alumnus of three institutions, although only a graduate of one. After his term as Governor, the Southern university at Greensboro, recognizing the great work accomplished by him in the State, conferred upon him the LL. D. degree. After completing his education Senator Comer returned to Spring Hill and to the task and problems of plantation management under the new and trying conditions incident to the reconstruction period. After his marriage in 1872, he removed to Comer Station, on the Montgomery and Eufaula railroad, where he developed one of the largest farming and country store interests in the State. Governor Comer was a member of the Commissioners Court of Barbour County, serving from 1874 to 1878. In 1885, he removed to Anniston, where under the firm name of Comer and Trapp (S. B.), he conducted a wholesale grocery and commission business. Five years later he moved to Birmingham where he has since continuously resided. At first he was president of the City national bank and of the Birmingham corn and flour mills; later he liquidated the bank and devoted his time to the manufacture of cotton, farming and corn milling. Through his own experience as merchant-planter-manufacturer-shipper, he realized the need for remedial railroad legislation. Succeeding in unifying shippers of a like conviction, he began an agitation that resulted in his election to the presidency of the Railroad commission in 1904, defeating Hon. John V. Smith, incumbent. Two years later, believing that with larger powers he could realize his convictions he entered the race for the governorship of the State upon the main issue of railroad regulation. In the Democratic primaries, August 27, 1906, he defeated Lieutenant Governor Russell M. Cunningham for the nomination and on November 6th, was elected governor.

Governor Comer's induction into office was accomplished with brilliant military and civic ceremonies, said at the time to have been the most elaborate and impressive since the War of Secession, rivalling the historic parade forty-six years earlier when Jefferson Davis was inaugurated on the same spot as president of the Confederate States of America. He entered upon his administration with a legislature in full sympathy, and fully committed to stand by his leadership. In his first official message to that body he made it clearly understood that the mandates embraced in the platform adopted by the Democratic convention of September 10, 1906, and all pre-election pledges made by him and by the legislators, were to be scrupulously kept and enacted into law. With broad vision and the experience of large affairs, he put the law making body on notice that a liberal policy was to be maintained towards the educational and eleemosynary institutions and the other responsibilities of the State, a policy which happily carried out, caused his name to be written in the annals of Alabama as the great "educational governor." Having had as his principal campaign slogan "railroad rate regulation," his first concern as governor was to call the attention of the new law making body to that subject. His message declared that the transportation charges and methods of our railroads, rivers, express, telegraph, telephone and other public service corporations were crude; that where the interests of the masses and the corporations clashed that it became the duty of the State to adjudicate the differences and to establish for the future guidance of both, equitable laws that could not be misunderstood. He declared that the interests of the producers and the consumers needed to be more firmly safeguarded against the corporate interests, that the "debauching lobby" maintained by the railroads and operating in the very halls of legislation must be controlled and that the sovereignty of the State should not be subordinated to public service corporations whose idea of freight and passenger tariff tax was "limited to what the traffic will stand." He further recommended that the Alabama railroad commission should be given adequate power and means to make investigations concerning the rules of railroads, their charges and methods of doing business, to restrict charges and establish rules that would be fair to the railroads and to their patrons. He based his convictions of unfairness to Alabama shippers on comparisons with treatment accorded shippers in Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia and gave economic reasons why Alabama should be equally favored. He also stressed the advantages of competitive water-rates and stated that that advantage to shippers was throttled by railroad contrivance; that the public eventually paid to the railroads the interest on both legitimate and specious securities; that the demurrage rules were one sided and discriminatory against the shipper; that the principle of rebates was wrong and should be prohibited by law; that discrimination should be prohibited between shippers of carload lots, and also against shippers of less than carload lots; that the books of common carriers in the State should be subject to inspection of the railroad commission or other proper authority, and their agents submitted to examination under oath for the purpose of determining the amount of capital invested; that claims against common carriers should be promptly adjudicated and settled, and that the policy of delay practiced by them through carrying such claims from court to court with the purpose of wearing out and making the cost prohibitive to the claimants, should be discontinued, and that one set of valuations and not three as then practiced by common carriers, be established. He said that the carriers previously had given the State Auditor a valuation on which they should pay taxes for the benefit of the State; had given the railroad commission another and much higher valuation as a basis for high traffic rates in order to realize eight per cent interest for the Corporation on this claimed investment, and a third for the information of the companies themselves. Governor Comer called a special session of the legislature to meet November 7, 1907 to enact legislation necessary to carry out the above policies. In 1911, at the end of his four years as governor, he was able to report to the legislature assembled that during his administration railroad laws were enacted regulating the charges and providing penalties; fixing the principals for tax values for railroad, telegraph and express companies, so that they should be taxed on the same principle as other property; an anti-pass law prohibiting the giving of passes except to bona fide employees of the railroads; increasing the power of the railroad commission enabling that body to prevent unjust charges by the railroads of the State and also to secure for all patrons of the railroads, fair and just treatment; the classification of railroad rates, establishing by law rates as a minimum which could not be changed to a higher rate except by order of the railroad commission or the legislature; reducing passenger fares from three to two and one-half cents per mile and reducing the freight rates on 110 articles of common production, consumption and use, and putting them on the same practical basis as had been for many years the rate on the same articles on the same class of railroads in Georgia and many other States. In order to act with business like procedure in approving or disapproving legislation carrying appropriations Governor Comer caused to be made an estimate of the State's then present income from taxation and increased the tax income by enacting a franchise tax and by establishing a State board of assessors, giving them general supervision of the tax assessments of the State and whose special duty should be to equalize the values of all property in the State, that the railroad properties and properties of other public service corporations should be taxed at a valuation in exact proportion to the valuation of other property of the State and that that value should be based on the valuation fixed by them in the making of their rates and charges on the people of the State and that all properties should be assessed at 60 per cent of their so ascertained value. Basing the expenditures of the State upon an estimated increase from taxation from these sources, Governor Comer encouraged liberal appropriations commensurate with the expected resources of the treasury and the needs of the educational system, including common schools, and the institutions of higher learning, and that for both races. Large sums were appropriated for the improvement of old buildings or the erection of new ones at the university, at Auburn, Montevallo, the nine agricultural schools, the Normal schools, and the State supported institutions of an eleemosynary character. Appropriations were made to aid in the building of rural school houses. Necessary increases were made to the maintenance funds of all State institutions. County high schools were established. Possibly no one of the many important things accomplished in his administration had more far reaching results than the founding of the county high schools. The Alabama boys industrial school, passed from benevolent to State control and responsibility. The curriculum of the entire educational system was raised and the State placed in the forefront of its sisters. Beginning with the common schools the establishment of the County high schools, the recreating and reindividualizing of the nine agricultural schools, the State normal schools, the Girl's technical institute at Montevallo, the Polytechnic institute at Auburn, the university, all bear splendid evidence of the new impulse given to the educational system of the State in Governor Comer's administration. In recognition of his services to education, both the university and the Alabama polytechnic institute named their handsome new buildings in his honor. When the "watch-dogs" of the treasury protested against the amazing increase in appropriations for education, the "educational governor" remained undisturbed and declared that he was considering future citizenship as well as contemporary tax payers; that with more training in how to think and how to work, posterity would have a proportionately greater earning capacity and he would rest his case with posterity who would help pay the debt. During his first candidacy for governor, he stood with the leaders of the prohibition movement, whose efforts were being directed towards local or county option. The greater part of the State had already adopted prohibition and during his administration the State wide prohibition law was enacted.

JUDGE JOHN C. PUGH

In 1907 upon the death of Senator Morgan and the ratification by the legislature of the primary choice of Hon. John H. Bankhead as his successor, Governor Comer signed the new incumbent's commission to the high post of United States Senator. Thirteen years later, upon the death of Senator Bankhead, Governor Comer was appointed, March 5, 1920, by Gov. Thomas E. Kilby, to fill that office pending the party primaries of the spring and fall elections. While his service as Senator covered only eight months, he was alive to the interests of his constituents and by his vigorous personality impressed himself upon his colleagues in that august body. Upon the day following his appointment as senator the statesman suffered the loss by death of his devoted wife and companion of forty-eight years. Owing to this bereavement and respect for the wishes of his wife that he not subject himself again to the hardships of political campaign and controversies, he declined to be a candidate for the unexpired term of five years.

Senator Comer was among the first Alabama cotton planters to manufacture that staple on a large scale within the State. He is president and treasurer of the Avondale mills of Birmingham, which also own and operate the Eva Jane, the Central, the Sally B. and the Catherine Mills at Sylacauga; the Alexander City cotton mills; the Sycamore mills, and the Pell City manufacturing company, constituting one of the largest cotton milling interests in the State. During the early period of his experience as a cotton mill operator the labor was drawn from native country families, who coming from remote hillside farms, were as entire families frequently illiterate and formed an unskilled and cheap class of labor. These same families placed within reach of schools and the awakening influence of community life, rapidly advanced in efficiency and usefulness and enjoyed a steadily increasing wage and better living conditions. In Gov. Comer's administration a child labor law was passed restricting the age limit in the mills to not under 12 years and also a compulsory educational law requiring mill children under sixteen years to attend school at least eight consecutive weeks during the school term. This law has since been changed by the State making the age limit in the mills not under 14 years. The mills managed by Governor Comer all show the widest provision for the physical comfort, and health, education and high living conditions of all employees, and also through the State there has been as an effect of the educational policies adopted by him, a distinct progress in the citizenship of the State, and the great success of his administration is easily distinguished by the beginning of this era of progress. In all of his life he has had the wonderful help not only of his wife but of his large family. He is a Methodist and a Mason. Married: October 1, 1872, at Cuthbert, Ga., to Eva Jane, daughter of John W. and Sally (Bailey) Harris, one of the prominent families of Cuthbert, Randolph County, Ga. Children: 1. Sally Bailey, m. (1) James Blount, Macon, Ga., (2) F. H. Lathrop, Birmingham; 2. John Fletcher, m. Helen Browne of Washington, D. C., now living at Alexander City, Ala.; 3. J. McDonald, m. Gertrude Miller of Reading, Pa., now living at Birmingham; 4. Eva Mignon, m. J. Craig Smith, Selma; 5. Catherine, m. W. M. Buck, Port Dover, Ontario; 6. Braxton Bevelle, m. Dr. F. E. Nabers, Birmingham; 7. Eva, m. (1) E. D. Fraser, Toronto, Canada, (2) Herbert C. Ryding, Birmingham; 8. Braxton Bragg, jr., m. Brownie Johnson, of Laurel, Md., now living at Sylacauga; 9. Hugh M., unmarried. Residence: Birmingham.

COMER, GEORGE LEGARE, lawyer, was born January 1, 1847, at Old Spring Hill, Barbour County; son of John Fletcher and Catherine Lucinda (Drewry) Comer, the former a native of Clinton, Jones County, Ga., who moved from Jones County, Ga., to Alabama in 1841, settling at Old Spring Hill, where he died in 1858, was a member of the State senate from Barbour County, 1856; grandson of Hugh and Annie (Tripp) Comer, who lived at Clinton, Ga., the former a soldier in the Revolution, and of John and Elizabeth Drewry, of Clinton, Ga. He received his preparatory training at field schools at Old Spring Hill, and in Polk County; and was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1865, from the University of Georgia, A. B., 1867, and from the law department of Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., LL. B., 1869. He was admitted to the bar at Eufaula, May, 1869, and at once entered upon the practice of his profession at that place, a practice which he has continued since that time. For ten years he was alone in the practice, but in 1874 became associated with John M. McKleroy, in a partnership which lasted until 1884. He was elected mayor of Eufaula in 1882, and was re-elected for twelve successive years; was lieutenant-colonel of the Second Regiment, Alabama national guard, 1887-1890; and a trustee of the Union Female College, at Eufaula. He has been division counsel for the Central of Georgia Railway Company; vice-president of the Bank of Eufaula; a director of the Eufaula Cotton Mills; owner and proprietor of the New St. Julien hotel; and has an interest in the Bluff City Mills. He is a Democrat; has been a deacon in the Baptist church for more than fifteen years, and was president of the Alabama Baptist State convention for two years; is a Master Mason, an Odd Fellow, a Knight of Pythias, an Elk, a Knight of Honor, and a member of the National Union. Married: June 23, 1870, at Eufaula, Laura Virginia Thornton, daughter of Dr. William Horatio and Mary Butler (Shorter) Thornton, of Eufaula; granddaughter of Col. Reuben and Mary (Gill) Shorter; niece of Gov. Shorter. Children: 1. William Thornton, b. July 15, 1871, was graduated, A. B., University of Alabama, cashier, English & American Loan & Trust Company, m. June 20, 1901, at Atlanta, Ga., Lillie Lonsdale Brockett, Atlanta, Ga.; 2. Laurie, m. Frank Wilkins Jennings, Eufaula; 3. John Wallace, m. Sadie Comer, Anniston; 4. George Legare, jr., m. Glennie Comer, Oak Hill, Fla.; 5. Edward Tripp, m. Catherine Comer, Eufaula; 6. Nell, d. July 17, 1909, at Eufaula; 7. Walter Bacon, d. May 15, 1892, at Eufaula; 8. Mary, Eufaula; 9. Robert Cyril, Oak Hill, Fla.; 10. James Drewry, Eufaula. Residence, Eufaula.

COMPERE, LEE, clergyman and missionary, was born in Leicestershire, England, November 3, 1790; and died in Corsicana, Tex., June 15, 1871. He was of Huguenot descent. The names of his parents are not available. They both died during the boyhood of their son, who was thenceforth reared by an elder sister. In early life, while a merchant's clerk, he joined a Baptist church, then studied for the ministry, was ordained at the age of nineteen, and at once entered upon active work as a minister. In 1816 he was sent by Rev. Shenstone's church as a missionary to Jamaica. After a year's residence on this island, on account of its sickly climate, he and his wife emigrated to South Carolina. On the voyage thither, their first-born, an eighteen months' old daughter, died and was buried at sea. Mr. Compere served several churches during his four years' residence in South Carolina and then moved to Georgia, where he soon became well and favorably known among his Baptist brethren.

In 1822 he received the appointment, by the board of managers of three co-operating Georgia Baptist associations, of superintendent of a mission among the Creek Indians. This mission was established at Tuckabatchee, on a site obtained from the Creeks. Mr. Compere was superintendent of the mission from 1823 to 1829. The Creek chiefs were generally favorable to the mission in the secular education given to their children by Mr. Compere and his assistants, as they saw the practical benefits of such training, but while very friendly to Mr. Compere they were averse to his preaching. They threw every obstacle in the way of his religious work and this opposition was so great by 1829 that the mission was discontinued. This discontinuance was besides unavoidable from the action of the Georgia Baptists, who withdrew their support of the mission on account of Mr. Compere's siding with the majority of the Creek chiefs and headmen against the validity of the treaty of Indian Springs, February 12, 1825, a treaty declared null and void by the United States Government at the treaty of January 24, 1826. While he thus aroused the opposition of the Georgia Baptists, who, it seems, were not averse to their state's acquiring the Creek lands in Georgia by means of a fraudulent treaty, Mr. Compere's course of action met with the emphatic approval of John C. Calhoun, President Monroe's secretary of war.

In 1828, in addition to a small church established at Tuckabatchee, Mr. Compere established Reheboth church in Montgomery County. In 1829, after the discontinuance of the Tuckabatchee mission, he bought a farm in Montgomery County, which was his home as long as he lived in Alabama. In this same year he presided over the Alabama Baptist State convention, and preached the annual sermon. In the fall, he founded the First Baptist church of Montgomery and was its pastor for four years.

About the beginning of 1834, with inherited means he purchased a plantation in Yazoo and a farm in Carroll County, Miss. In the absence of records it is not possible to give his various places of residence in Mississippi, in all of which he served churches and preached the word in season and out of season. In 1848 while living in Itawamba County, Miss., he suffered heavy pecuniary losses, by which he became a poor man. The next year he moved to Noxubee County and served churches in its bounds and also in Oktibbeha County. In 1858 he preached the introductory sermon before the Columbus Baptist association.

About the beginning of the war, he went with his son, Thomas, and others of his family to Dardanelle, Ark. Here it was his lot to suffer greatly from Federal ruffianism. He was robbed five times, even his wearing apparel being taken from him. On the last occasion, he was forced from his sick bed by the ruffians with pistols in their hands, driven about the house, and threatened with death if he dared to speak. Though a remarkably fearless man, he bore all this with Christian meekness, and was never known to speak harshly of these inhuman wretches. Escaping to a place of refuge from the lines of the enemy, all his property was destroyed by them, his precious library, his papers, his memoranda and all the relics of his past life. Much of Southern secular and religious history was irretrievably lost by this act of Federal vandalism. In 1866, he moved to Lamar County, Tex., and lived with a married daughter. In 1869 he went to Corsicana, and until his death made his home with his son, Thomas, thus closing a life of sixty-two years in the Christian ministry. Apart from the manuscripts of Mr. Compere destroyed by the Federals at Dardanelle, he was the author of a history of the Creek Indians, in which he had incorporated much of their traditional history as given by their chiefs. The fate of this manuscript is unknown. Mr. Compere was under the impression that he had lent it to Col. T. L. McKenney, who failed to return it. Mr. Compere composed a number of hymns in the Muscogee tongue which are no longer extant. His only surviving literary Muscogee remains are a copious vocabulary, over a hundred select sentences, and some notes on the Muscogee grammar, which he presented to Albert Gallatin in 1829, and which in 1836 were published in the "Transactions of the American Antiquarian Society," vol. 2. He was thus a pioneer in Creek philology, a forerunner of such noted later philologists as the Rev. H. F. Buckner, Mrs. A. E. W. Robertson and Dr. R. M. Loughridge.

Married: (1) in 1815, Susanna Voysey, a highly educated London lady, who is described as "a very extraordinary woman of great worth and strength of character." She died in September, 1834, in Yazoo County, Miss.; (2) in 1836, Sarah Jane Beck. Children, by first wife: 1. Infant buried at sea; 2. Frances, b. in Sumter District, S. C., m. the Rev. S. S. Lattimore; 3. Elizabeth, in Sumter District, S. C.; 4. Mary Jane, in Chilton, Ga., probably in 1821; 5. Thomas Hickigee, in Tuckabatchee, Creek Nation; 6. Susanna Muscogee, in Tuckabatchee, Creek Nation, m. Rev. Matthew Lyon (these Indian names were given to these two children by the Creek chiefs, an evidence of Mr. Compere's popularity with the Indians); 7. William; 8. John; 9. Ebenezer L., all three of the latter born in Montgomery County; by second wife: 10. a daughter, who died in infancy; 11. Sarah Catherine, April 7, 1840, m. Prof. John Newberry, at whose house Mrs. Compere died several years after the death of her husband. Last residence: Corsicana, Tex.

COMPTON, JORDAN CHAPPELL, lawyer, was born in Jackson, Butts County, Ga.; son of Pleasant M. and Lydia R. (Devereaux) Compton, the former a representative in the Georgia legislature from Butts County, and for ten years surveyor general of the state, died March 19, 1890, in his eightieth year, at Milledgeville, Ga., the latter a descendant of the Harrison family of Virginia; grandson of Jordon and Susan (Chappell) Compton, the former of Dinwiddie County, Va., who settled in 1807 at Monticello, Ga., and in the War of 1812, commanded a company of horse on the coast of Georgia, near Darien; great grandson of John and Anne (Cross) Compton, of Dinwiddie County, Va., and of Philip and Sarah (Dickie) Chappell, of Halifax County, Va. The Comptons came from England. Three brothers, loyalists, fled to this country after the beheading of Charles I, and settled in Maryland, two of them later moving to Virginia. Mr. Compton was educated at Oglethorpe University, Georgia, and at the Mathematical and Classical School of Benjamin Hallowell & Sons, in Alexandria, Va., the celebrated Quaker school, and one of the best known schools in the United States at that time. While engaged in the study of law he enlisted as a private in Co. H, Fourth regiment, Georgia volunteers; served with that command until 1862, when he was attached to the staff of Maj.-Gen. Henry Heth, and served in Gen. Bragg's Kentucky campaign. In January, 1863, he was commissioned lieutenant of artillery and ordnance and assigned to duty at Vicksburg where he was in charge of the ordnance depot. He was with Gen. Johnston's army at Meridian, Miss.; was second officer in command at the Selma arsenal under Col. James L. White; and surrendered at Meridian, Miss., in 1865. He was admitted to the bar of Alabama by the supreme court, June, 1869, and has practiced law at Selma since that time. In 1886, he was nominated by acclamation and elected without opposition state senator, and served as chairman of the committee on local legislation, was a member of the judiciary committee and later chairman of that committee; was re-elected to the senate in 1890, serving through the session of 1890-1891 as chairman of the judiciary committee and in the session of 1891-1892, being unanimously elected president of the State senate. He is a Democrat and has served as chairman of county and congressional committees in notable campaigns. In 1884, he was a delegate from the fourth congressional district of Alabama to the national Democratic convention at Chicago which nominated President Cleveland. Married: 1865, in Selma, Ada Norris, daughter of William J. Norris, president of the Commercial Bank of Selma. Children: 1. William Norris, b. March 16, 1868, insurance agent, A. B., University of Alabama, was with the census department at Washington, D. C., 1900-1901, manager of the credit department of George T. Keen, clothing manufacturer, Washington, D. C. Residence: Selma.

COMPTON, LOULIE, teacher, was born in Davidson County, Tenn., and died June 30, 1912; daughter of Felix and Emily Green (Webster) Compton, the former a native of Davidson County, and a resident of Nashville; granddaughter of William and Susanna (Mullen) Compton, the former a pioneer settler of Nashville, an officer, under command of General Andrew Jackson, in the War of 1812, and whose ancestors came from England and settled at Culpeper Court House, Va., and of Jonathan Green and Emily (Gant) Webster, of Maury County, Tenn. After the War of Secession, Loulie Compton was educated by George Blackie, Ph. D., D. D., and Miss Fannie O'Bryan. She was a teacher by profession, teaching, in 1886, at Sherman, Texas; from 1887 to 1895 at Waco, Texas; later head of the English department at Ward's seminary, Nashville; in September 1897, she together with Miss Hattie Morton founded Birmingham (Alabama) seminary, which, since her death, has been named "Loulie Compton seminary." She was a Presbyterian. Last residence: Birmingham.

CONNER, DAVID, member of the constitutional convention of 1819, from St. Clair County.

CONNOLLY, WILLIAM E., pioneer teacher in Russell County; member of the State legislature from that county, 1865. Last residence: Hubbard City, Tex.

CONOLEY, JOHN FRANCIS, lawyer, was born May 6, 1811, in Robeson County, N. C., and died February 18, 1883, at Selma; son of Daniel and Anna (Campbell) Conoley, natives of Scotland, of the Isles of Ila and of Jura, respectively, who came to America between 1795 and 1800 and landed at Wilmington, N. C., settling with several other Scotch families on farms in Robeson County, not far from Fayetteville, N. C., where they lived the remainder of their lives. He received a country school education, and began to work early in life. He went to Alabama in 1833, and located in Selma, where formed a copartnership with William Waddell, jr., in a mercantile firm under the name, John F. Conoley & Company. In 1836 when the Creek Indians commenced depredations upon the white settlers in the Creek Nation, and troops were called for, he organized a volunteer company, the Dallas Rangers, of which he was elected captain, and reported to the commanding officers at Tuskegee, ready for service. He was elected sheriff of Dallas County in 1843, and on retiring from that office in 1847, was admitted to the bar of Dallas County. He opened a law office in Selma, during that year, and practiced there for many years. When Alabama seceded from the Union, he visited different sections of the state and organized many military companies. The Fourth battalion of Alabama troops was organized from companies raised by Col. Conoley, and in November, 1861, he was elected lieutenant-colonel of the battalion, and confirmed in the appointment by President Davis, November 6, 1861. By addition to the Fourth battalion of other companies raised by Col. Conoley's influence, the Twenty-ninth regiment of Alabama was formed, and on December 9, 1862, he was appointed its colonel. The regiment served at Pensacola until the city was evacuated, then at Pollard, Mobile, and in Mississippi, and joined Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's army in northern Georgia, May, 1864. Col. Conoley was engaged in all the battles from Chattanooga to Jonesboro. At Resaca, he was wounded by a cannon ball, and was complimented on the field at that place by Gen. Johnston for conspicuous gallantry, May 14, 1864. He went with Hood's army into Tennessee, but was sent home on sick leave, and took part in the battle of Selma, April 2, 1865, in his own home town. He was elected judge of the city court of Selma just before the close of the war, but never served, as the court was not organized in the desolation which followed the cessation of hostilities. He was appointed probate judge by the provisional governor in 1865, and at the election in 1867, under the reconstruction acts, was elected by the white people to the same office. He held the position for six years, and was defeated in the election in 1874, by the Republican and negro vote. After retiring from the probate judgeship, he again opened his law office in Selma, and engaged in the practice of his profession. He was general of the state militia for many years; was a Democrat; a Presbyterian; a Mason; and an Odd Fellow. Married: October 8, 1840, near Summerfield, Mary Eliza Pitts, born October 12, 1823, in Jones County, Ga., daughter of Noel and Clarinda (Dunn) Pitts, who moved from Jones County, Ga., to Dallas County, near Summerfield, 1830; granddaughter of John and Elizabeth (Taylor) Pitts. Children: 1. Endora, teacher, retired after forty-eight years service, Selma; 2. Louis Alexander, b. June 28, 1843, at Selma, was educated in private schools in Selma, clerked in his father's law office, went as a member of the "Independent Blues" to Fort Morgan and Fort Gaines, when those forts were seized, January, 1861, by order of the governor of Alabama, enlisted in the C. S. Army, May 10, 1861, when the Blues were ordered to Virginia, was sergeant-major in the Eighth Alabama regiment, transferred to the Twenty-ninth and elected second lieutenant of Co. H., 1863, was in the battle of Resaca, Ga., was sent home a few days later on sick leave, and died in a hospital at Monticello, Fla., November 22, 1864; 3. Anna Eliza, m. S. J. Martin, d. September 5, 1892, leaving three children; 4. John Francis, d. in 1853, at the age of six years and six months; 5. William Noel, captain's clerk, U. S. Navy, 1875-1877, postmaster, Tampa, Fla., 1897-1898, evangelist, Methodist Episcopal church, south, secretary of the Board of Trade, Jacksonville, Fla., m. October 7, 1880, in Madison County, Lucy Hamerly, Jacksonville, Fla.; 6. Frank Hamilton, m. Jeannie Kilpatrick, has one son, New Orleans, La.; 7. Douglas Fleming, m. Dora Hamerly, Tampa, Fla. Last residence: Selma.

COOK, BENJAMIN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 82, resided in Monroe County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

COOK, EDWARD HAMPTON, physician, was born in Hancock County, Ga., and died in Hayneville, in December 1859; son of John and Mary Ellen (Hampton) Cook, jr., brother of Nathan Cook (q. v.). He practiced his profession in Butler and Lowndes Counties; was a member of the Alabama legislature in 1844-45; was elected judge of the county court of Lowndes in 1847, and upon the establishment of the probate court was elected judge, and held the office until his death. He was a Whig and a Methodist. Married: (1) Sallie Reese; (2) Mrs. Long. Children: Several children were born to him. Last residence: Hayneville.

COOK, HATCH, major, 60th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; major, 3rd infantry battalion, Hilliard's Legion.

COOK, JESSE ALLEN, Baptist minister, was born September 15, 1882, at Roanoke, Randolph County; son of Wiley Harrison and Mary Jane (Faucett) Cook, of Pike County, Ga., who removed to Roanoke; grandson of Allen and Rachel (Gray) Cook, of Upson County, Ga., who moved to Pike County, Ga., and later to Randolph County; grandson of Samuel and Harriett (Arnett) Faucett, of Roanoke. He was educated in the public schools of Roanoke; entered Howard college and graduated A. B., 1907; studied theology at the Southern Baptist theological seminary, Louisville, Ky.; ordained minister, 1908; pastor at Demopolis, 1909-10; called to Montgomery and located there as pastor of Clayton street Baptist church. He is a Democrat, and Knight of Pythias. Married: November 10, 1909, at Birmingham, to Ruth, daughter of George W. and Adella (Hudmon) Hopson, of that place. Children: 1. Mary Della, d. in infancy. Residence: Montgomery.

COOK, JOHN WILLIAM, merchant, planter, mayor of Eutaw, was born December 1, 1863, in Greene County; son of James Bizzell and Mary (Carpenter) Cook, of Greene County, the former a Confederate soldier in the 36th Alabama infantry regiment; grandson of John and Anna (Elsie) Cook, and of John R. and Eliza Carpenter, all of Greene County; great-grandson of Stephen Cook, of Virginia, Revolutionary soldier. He was educated in the schools of his community; spent a brief term at Cooper institute, Daleville, Miss.; his parents dying when he was but fifteen years of age, he was forced to suspend education and seek a living. He engaged in planting and later in life in merchandising. In 1908, was elected mayor of Eutaw. He is a Democrat; a Mason; and a Presbyterian. Married: October 29, 1885, to Annie McPherson, daughter of C. M. A. and Annie (Barnes) Rogers, of Warsaw. Children: 1. John William, jr.; 2. McPherson Aduston; 3. Mary Carpenter. Residence: Eutaw.

COOK, MAJOR, grand treasurer, grand chapter, 1837-1840; grand treasurer, grand council, 1838-1839-1841.

COOK, NATHAN, lawyer, was born December 8, 1798, in Hancock County, Ga., and died in 1882, at Hayneville; son of Capt. John and Mary Ellen (Hampton) Cook, the former a native of Fairfield District, S. C., who moved with his father to Hancock County, Ga., the latter a niece of Gen. Wade Hampton, a colonial officer in the Revolutionary War; grandson of John and Martha (Pearson) Cook, and of Edward and Sarah (Earle) Hampton, of South Carolina; great-grandson of Henry Cook of Brunswick County, Va., and of English ancestry, and of Anthony and Elizabeth (Preston) Hampton; great-great-grandson of John and Margaret (Wade) Hampton, the latter of Kent County, Va.; great-great-great-grandson of John and Mary (Mann) Hampton, of Virginia; great-great-great-great-grandson of William and Joana Hampton, who emigrated from Middlesex, England, in 1620, and settled on a plantation in Gloucester County, Va. Judge Cook moved to Alabama with his parents in 1817, and settled in what is now Butler County. When the county was organized, he was appointed clerk of the county court. He read law during the four years he served as clerk, and was admitted to the bar. In 1824, when Butler voted with Conecuh County, he was elected to the State legislature. The next year, he was elected to that body from Butler County, and was annually returned, with one exception, until 1833. During that year he moved to Lowndes County, and practiced his profession there. He was elected district solicitor of Lowndes County in 1839, and held that position until 1843, when he resigned. In December, 1847, he was elected judge of the circuit court, and held the position until 1850. He became circuit judge again in 1853, by appointment of Gov. Collier, and held the position until 1865. After that time he lived in Tennessee and Texas, practicing law in the latter state at Galveston. He was a Democrat, an Episcopalian, and a Mason. Married: (1) to Harriett Herbert, sister of E. H. Herbert; (2) to Elizabeth Starke Mickle, daughter of Gen. John Joseph and Rebecca Ballard (Martin) Mickle, who lived at Camden, S. C., the former who was at one time adjutant general of the state; granddaughter of John and Elizabeth (Starke) Mickle, of South Carolina; great-granddaughter of Joseph Mickle, who married a Miss Belton, both of South Carolina. Children, by first marriage: 1. Walter, represented Lowndes County in the State legislature in 1851, killed at the battle of Chancellorsville, m. Cornelia Mickle; 2. Girard, m. Virginia Frazier; 3. Gustave, colonel of a Texas regiment, C. S. Army, m. Elizabeth Jones; 4. Charlotte, d. in childhood; 5. Ellen Cook, d. in childhood; 6. Nathan, d. in childhood; by second marriage: 7. Hampton; 8. Belton Mickle, d. at nineteen years; 9. Thurber, d. in childhood; 10. Juliet Starke, m. James A. Olin, Montgomery; 11. George Player, d. in childhood. Last residence: Hayneville.

COOK, REUBEN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 74, and a resident of Fayette County; private N. C. Militia; enrolled on November 15, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $36.66; sums received to date of publication of list, $109.98.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Fayette County, June 1, 1840, aged 80.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

COOK, SAMUEL, member of the constitutional convention of 1819, from Conecuh County.

COOK, SAMUEL CALVIN, lawyer and legislator, was born November 6, 1837, in Wilcox

WILLIAM S. MUDD

County; son of Daniel and Martha (Warren) Cook, the former a native of Chesterfield District, S. C., served in the war of 1812, removed in 1827 to Georgia, and in 1829 to Wilcox County where he resided many years; grandson of Joseph Norwood, of Hartsville, Darlington District, S. C., who served as a captain in the Revolutionary War. He is of English and Welch ancestry, and is a descendant of Gen. Moultrie of South Carolina, and of Revolutionary fame. Mr. Cook was educated in the primary schools and graduated A. B. from Howard College, 1859. He read law under Col. A. B. Howard in 1861 but his studies were interrupted by his entrance into the C. S. Army. He went with the "Wilcox Dragoons" to Pensacola; later became a lieutenant in Co. D. 3rd Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army; was promoted to a captaincy at Green River, Ky., and later served on the staff of Gen. Joe Wheeler; paroled April 29, he arrived at home May 31, 1865, having served four years and one month. Since the war he has been engaged in the practice of his profession. He is a Democrat; and a Missionary Baptist. Married: March 11, 1861, to Mary Harrell, daughter of George Samuel and Elizabeth (McPherson) Gullett (q. v.), of Wilcox County. Children: 1. Daniel Gullett; 2. Jesse McPherson; 3. Sallie Gullett; 4. George Frank, m. Nathan McPherson Newell; 5. Mary Norwood; 6. Willie Martha, 7. Bessie Lee; 8. Maggie Austill; 9. Samuel Calvin, jr.; 10. Jesse Gullett; 11. Robert Eades; 12. Ruth Moultrie; 13. Carrie Kolb; 14. Joseph Norwood. Last residence: Nellie, Wilcox County.

COOK, THOMAS ARMSTRONG, Episcopal minister and teacher, was born January 11, 1812, in the Highlands of Scotland and was the son of Thomas and Maria Cook. Thomas Cook was a sea captain and was lost at sea with his ship in 1815. He had intended this to be his last voyage, and had told his wife that when he returned he would quit the sea. His widow now determined to go to America. Her first attempt was thwarted by a wreck of the vessel in the English Channel; her second by a wreck on the Isle of Man, in which she lost all her possessions except a looking glass, which still remains in the possession of her descendants. Her third attempt, which was in 1819, was successful and she landed in Charleston with her son. Mrs. Cook was a well educated woman, and had even studied medicine, a rare accomplishment for women in that day. She entered upon the practice of her profession in Charleston and followed it until her death in 1857. Thomas Armstrong Cook was educated in the schools of Charleston, and under the instruction of his mother. In 1827 he entered Dr. Muhlenberg's Institute at Flushing, Long Island, where he remained three years. On leaving the institute, Dr. Muhlenberg presented him with a small gold cross with the request that he wear it in memory of his teacher. He put it on and wore it all the days of his life until his death. He next entered the college in Charleston and there completed his classical studies. In 1831 he entered the Episcopal theological seminary at Alexandria, Va., where he remained three years. Returning to South Carolina, he helped build a church at Edgefield, and during the illness of the rector, took his place. He was then living at Beaufort where his mother had built a house near the coast. In 1836 he settled in Florence, and was the pioneer Episcopal minister of North Alabama. He built a church in the town in which he preached for three years. He next moved to Lafayette, Chambers County, where he organized a church and remained three years. After a year's residence at Forsyth, Georgia, he came to Decatur, where he remained two years. In 1844 he came to Talladega where he established a school for young ladies, which he taught until 1874, a period of thirty years. He and his wife often had as many as ninety pupils under their instruction at one time. On withdrawing from the teacher's vocation, he retired to his farm, and all his preaching thereafter was given freely and without compensation. During all his life he was a hard worker in the cause of religion and education, and he did more for the education of young women than any other man in Talladega County. He was an ardent southerner and during the War he organized a company for the Confederate service, but owing to ill health he had to give up this patriotic undertaking. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. He manifested great interest in Scotch-Irish meetings or conventions, and even arose from a sick bed to attend one held in Atlanta, Ga., April 28, 1902. He was a life long student and wrote much, but all his writings with much of his fine library were destroyed by fire, and all the family records were destroyed or taken away from his mother's house in Beaufort during the War by Federal officials when they converted the house into a hospital. Married: in 1834, in La Grange, Georgia, to Ann Eliza, daughter of Elias and Tabitha (Johnson) Jones. She was born in Charleston, April 14, 1815, and was well educated and assisted her husband in all his church and school work. Children: 1. Maria Louise, b. January 14, 1836; 2. Richard Elias, b. October 1, 1837; 3. Julia Johnson, b. April 12, 1839; 4. Thomas John, b. February 11, 1843; 5. Ann Eliza, b. January 16, 1845; 6. William Augustus, b. August 28, 1846; 7. Emma Virginia, b. January 31, 1849; 8. Henry Adolphus, b. January 7, 1851; 9. Mary Windsor, b. March 20, 1855; 10. Florence Victoria, b. April 15, 1857; 11. Nathaniel Bowen, b. October 8, 1859. Last residence: Alpine.

COOK, THOMAS CHAPPELL, physician, was born September 19, 1836, at Fairfield, Pickens County; son of Major and Mary Wicks (Jarvis) Cook, of Fairfield. He was educated in the schools of his community and fitted for college; graduated A. B., from Princeton university, 1857, and this institution conferred the degree of A. M. upon him in 1859; studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, receiving M. D. degree, 1859. He practiced until the outbreak of the War of Secession, 1861, serving as assistant surgeon to the First heavy artillery, C. S. Army. At the close of the war, he removed to Texas and resumed his practice.

In 1885-86, he was a member of the Texas legislature; in 1888-89, U. S. examining surgeon for Army and Navy pension department. He is a Democrat. Married: September 19, 1860, at Fairfield, to Margaret Jane Windham. Residence: Weimar, Texas.

COON, DATUS E., reconstruction legislator, died December 17, 1893, near San Diego, Calif. He was an old time editor in Iowa, having started the first newspaper in Mitchell County, that state, in 1855. The paper was a Buchanan organ printed at Osage, and supported by the officials of the county who were all strong Democrats. In 1858, Gen. Coon, removed the material he used in his printing establishment in Osage, to Mason City, Ia., and established the "Cerro Gordo Press," the first newspaper published in Mason City. At the outbreak of the War of Secession, he was authorized by Gov. Kirkwood of Iowa to raise a company for the Second Iowa Cavalry. He was commissioned captain of Co. I, was soon after promoted to major and finally became colonel of the regiment. He was brevetted brigadier general before the close of the war. He was a member of the provisional legislature of Alabama during the reconstruction period, and was afterwards appointed consul to Babaca, Cuba, by President Hayes. In 1878, he went to San Diego, Calif., as superintendent of the Chinese exclusion law. He was living there at the time of his tragic death, when he was killed by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hand of a friend. Last residence: San Diego, Calif.

COOPER, AARON BURR, lawyer, was born December 11, 1800, in Morris County, N. J. He received a good education in New Jersey and was preparing to enter college, when the death of his father caused him to change his plans. He studied law in Morristown, N. J., and came to Alabama, January, 1822, locating in Mobile. A year later he moved to Clarke County, and in 1826 to Monroe. At Claiborne he formed a law partnership with Gen. Enoch Parsons, which existed until the death of the latter. He was elected to the State legislature from Monroe County in 1845, and was re-elected in 1847, serving in the latter session as chairman of the judiciary committee. Abandoning his law practice in 1850, he moved to Wilcox County, and occupied himself with planting. In 1865, he was a delegate from Wilcox County to the state constitutional convention, and during the same year was elected to the State senate from Dallas and Wilcox Counties. He was warmly supported for federal senator in 1865. After his disfranchisement in 1867, he retired to private life. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Married: twice; the second time to Mrs. Creagh, widow of Judge John G. Creagh of Clarke County. Two of his sons were killed in battle during the War of Secession, one of whom, Capt. H. M. Cooper, was on the staff of Gen. Allen of Montgomery. Last residence: Wilcox County.

COOPER, BLUCHER HAMILTON, business man and member Alabama public service commission, was born September 19, 1869, at Conway, Leake County, Miss.; son of Thomas Littleberry and Edwina Canal (Mann) Cooper, the former a native of Conway, and later a resident, successively, of Carthage and Looxahoma, Miss., sheriff of Leake County for six years, having in 1872, declared himself sheriff and held in office by the moral coercion of the Ku Klux Klan, member of the Mississippi legislature from Leake County, 1878, and state senator of Leake and Attala Counties, and later senator from Sale and Benton Counties, served four years in the C. S. Army, being captain of his company, and later a major; grandson of Thomas J. and Myra L. Cooper, of Conway, Miss., the former, with his sister, was captured by the Indians when he was a small boy, and did not escape until sixteen years of age, when he located in New York state, his sister having in the meantime become the wife of an Indian chief. Mrs. Cooper was connected with the Hill family. The maternal grandparents were Maning Hamilton and Maria Theresa Mann, of Carthage, Miss. The original name was McMann, and the family being of Scotch Presbyterian stock. Commissioner Cooper received his education in the public schools and early in his business career located in Birmingham. He was elected alderman of that city, 1903, and served in that capacity for almost eight years, during which time he introduced and had passed ordinances for better fire protection, the revocation of charters to social clubs where gambling was carried on, park improvement, and was responsible for the organization of the municipal ownership league. He was elected, November 3, 1914, to membership on the Alabama public service commission, at that time known as the Alabama railroad commission, which name the commission has, by legislative enactment, 1919, resumed. He is a Democrat, Presbyterian and Elk. Married: November 4, 1896, at Monroe, La., to Lula Jane, daughter of George Alexander and Anna Theresa (McKinney) Preston, the former a native of Canada, the latter of Iuka, Miss. Children: 1. Blucher H., jr.; 2. J. Fenimore; 3. Preston L. Residence: Birmingham.

COOPER, BRYAN BROCKWAY, public official, was born March 13, 1859, near Gaston, Sumter County; son of Francis Marion and Mary (Wimberly) Cooper natives of Butler, Choctaw County, who lived in that place, the former a school teacher, who volunteered in the C. S. Army, 1862, but was found disabled for military duty by the examining medical board, and died February 10, 1887, in Choctaw County, the latter born August 30, 1835, died May 10, 1909, at York, Sumter County; grandson of Francis and Martha or Pansy (Dansby) Cooper, the former a native of Wilkes County, Ga., who early moved to and was one of the pioneers of Choctaw County, and settled about three miles north of Butler, later moving to the northern part of the county, near Gaston, Sumter County, where he died, about 1883, and was buried with Masonic honors, and of William and Margaret (Braswell) Wimberly, natives of Virginia and North Carolina, who moved from North to South Carolina, from there to Wayne County, Miss., then to Washington County, Ala., in 1835, and finally to Butler, Choctaw County; great-grandson of James and Debbie (Owen) Cooper natives respectively of Pennsylvania and Maryland, who were married about five years after the Revolutionary War, and moved to Wilkes County, Ga., then to Alabama, and of William Wimberly, who came from Wales when a child and settled in Virginia, married a Miss Harrell, also from Wales, and moved to North Carolina, where he died from being thrown from a horse, and of a Mr. Braswell, born in North Carolina, who married a Miss Blowe, a native of South Carolina, and moved from South Carolina to Georgia, where he died about 1833. Mr. Cooper was educated in the common schools of Choctaw County, mostly taught by his father, and in Butler Academy. He entered the probate office as probate clerk in 1887, and remained there as chief clerk for more than six years. He engaged in the mercantile business for a few years; was elected city clerk of Tuscaloosa, 1895, and served for four years; was elected clerk of the circuit court of Tuscaloosa County in 1898, was re-elected in 1904, and again in 1910, each time for a term of six years. He is a Democrat, a Methodist Episcopalian, a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and an Odd Fellow. Married: Ella Leatherwood, daughter of John Washington and Jane (Burton) Leatherwood, of Tuscaloosa; granddaughter of Miles Leatherwood who lived and died in Tuscaloosa County, and of Ephraim Burton, who lived and died in Greene County; great-granddaughter of Jesse Leatherwood, of Spartanburg, S. C. Children: 1. Ethel, a graduate of Tuscaloosa Female College, m. Clifton Gregory Bowden, November 16, 1910, resides at Decatur; 2. Bertha, a graduate of Tuscaloosa Female College, Tuscaloosa; 3. Louise, Tuscaloosa; 4. Marian Hester, Tuscaloosa. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

COOPER, DANIEL NELSON, business man, was born March 31, 1842, in Knox County, O.; son of Thompson and Rebecca (Craig) Cooper; grandson of Daniel and Ellen Cooper of New Jersey, the former a relative of John Witherspoon, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of William and Mary Craig, natives respectively of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. His maternal ancestors were Scotch-Irish, one of them being an aide-de-camp to William of Orange at the battle of the Boyne. Another ancestor was an officer in the British navy, and sympathizing with the struggle for independence, resigned his commission and remained in this country. The Cooper family moved west in the early part of the nineteenth century, located at Mt. Vernon, O., and went into the iron foundry business and the manufacture of plows. Mr. Cooper was educated at Mt. Vernon high school. In 1862, he enlisted in Co. A., Ninety-sixth Ohio infantry, U. S. Army, was commissioned first lieutenant of the company, and served until the close of the war, taking part in the siege of Vicksburg, the battles of Chickasaw Bayou, Arkansas Post, around Mobile and at Grand Couteau. He was in Buell's army during that general's race with Bragg through Kentucky. After being mustered out of the service, he returned home and began the study of law under his brother, Col. W. C. Cooper. He was ordered south for his health, and located in Huntsville, in the summer of 1866. He went into the cotton buying business at that place, and moved from there to Courtland, where he engaged in planting on a large scale. In 1878 he was appointed deputy U. S. marshal, and filled the position for four years; and then was appointed U. S. commissioner. In September, 1897, he was appointed by President McKinley U. S. marshal of the northern district of Alabama. He is a Republican, and has been chairman of the county and district, and a member of the state, executive committees for years. He has been a delegate to four national Republican conventions, and in 1898 was nominated on the Republican and Populist tickets for congress from the sixth congressional district, but was defeated by Hon. J. H. Bankhead. He was a personal friend and supporter of President McKinley. He was at one time a director in the Warrior Coalfield Company. Residence: Hamilton, Marion County.

COOPER, FRANCIS, planter, was born August 31, 1834, at Tyner, Tuscaloosa County; son of James and Elizabeth (McGee) Cooper, of Wilkes County, Ga., who removed to the North River community, Tuscaloosa County, among the earliest settlers. His education was obtained in the rural log school-houses of that day. He engaged in farming and also served, for seventeen years, as postmaster for Fox, afterwards Elbert, Tuscaloosa County. In 1862, he enlisted in Troop G, 51st Alabama cavalry regiment, C. S. Army, and served until the close of the war. He was a Republican; a Mason; and a Methodist. Married: July 11, 1858, at Elbert, to Mary Ann, daughter of Houston and Elizabeth (Bailey) Gardner, of Elbert, who emigrated from South Carolina to Pickens County, and with the father of the former were pioneer settlers of Pickens County. Children: 1. Elizabeth Pruitte, m. Frank Falls; 2. John Francis, m. Annie Brown; 3. Dr. William Kennedy, m. Carrie Hinton; 4. Sallie, m. Martin Luther French; 5. Dr. Joseph Houston, m. Cora Deal; 6. Dr. Julius Burson, m. Maude Adams, Birmingham. Residence: Elbert.

COOPER, JULIUS BURSON, physician, was born October 13, 1877, at Fox, Tuscaloosa County; son of Francis and Mary Ann (Gardner) Cooper, (q. v.); grandson of Houston and Elizabeth (Bailey) Gardner, of Pickens County. He was educated in both the public and private schools of Tuscaloosa; student in U. S. Grant university, Athens, Tenn., medical department, graduated, 1904, M. D.; located at Fox, Tuscaloosa County; later removed to Blount Springs, where he practiced and also served as assistant post master. In 1907, he removed to Birmingham. He enlisted for medical service in U. S. hospital corps, Spanish-American War, 1899; served in Philippine Islands, 1899-1902; in all the engagements on the Island of Panoy; honorably discharged from the U. S. Army, March 7, 1902. He is "Non-Partisan" in politics; a Mason; Odd Fellow; Woodman of the World. Married: September 2, 1908, at Birmingham, to Alice Maude, daughter of John H. and Annie M. (Williams) Adams, of England, now residing at "Fernbank," Birmingham. Children: 1. John Francis; 2. Elizabeth Maude. Residence: Birmingham.

COOPER, J. L., Presbyterian minister, living in 1913. Residence: Ferrell, Miss.

COOPER, OLIVER WINSTON, business man, was born April 12, 1856, in Chambers County; son of Charles J. and Harriet Ann R. (Johnston) Cooper, the former who was a native of Edgfield District, S. C., moving from there to Calhoun, or Benton County as it was then called, where he was married, later moving to Chambers County where Oliver Winston was born, and four years later removed to Calhoun County and lived upon a farm where now a part of the city of Anniston stands. On the paternal side the first of his ancestors in America was Reuben Cooper, who came over from Wales and settled in Virginia before the Revolutionary War, and whose son Charles fought with Gen. Greene in South Carolina, settling there after the war. His son, Reuben Cooper, the grandfather of Oliver Winston Cooper, married Elizabeth Ann Williams, whose mother's father Col. James Williams was in command at the battle of Kings Mountain. On the maternal side Oliver Winston was the grandson of William and Elizabeth Ann (Terrell) Johnston, the latter being a daughter of Anna Blair, whose father Col. James Blair fought in the battle of Kings Mountain. Col. James Blair was a son of Dr. James Blair, one of the original trustees and first president of the William and Mary College. Mr. Winston entered into the business world as a partner of his father in the wholesale merchandise business, in which line of work he is still active. He is also a member of the private banking firm of C. J. Cooper & Son, which in 1888 became known as the Bank of Oxford and in 1903 the First National Bank. For many years he served the bank as cashier and in 1919 he was made chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank. He is also president of the Blue Springs Mills Company and one of the largest farmers in this county. He is a large stockholder in the Alabama Home Building & Loan Association, the Alabama Home Mortgage Company of Birmingham, and the First National Bank of Oxford. From 1903 to 1910 he was president of the Oxford school board. He is a democrat and a member of the Christian church of Oxford, which he is serving as treasurer. Married: June 11, 1884, at Griffin, Ga., to Beatrice Freeman, daughter of Francis A. and Missourah Freeman, the former an extensive farmer of Spalding County, Ga. Children: 1. Nettie Eugenia; 2. Charles Freeman; 3. Clarence Winston, m. Elizabeth Ford of Georgetown, Ky.; 4. George Seymour; 5. Amy Leta; 6. Fred Emmett; 7. Agnes Beatrice; 8. Louise. Residence: Oxford.

COOPER, THOMAS BUTLER, lawyer and merchant, was born February 18, 1807, at Pendleton Court House, S. C., and died March 7, 1885, at Centre. His father, a native of Philadelphia, was a merchant; his mother's maiden name was Winslow. He received a substantial education, taught school and merchandised in Habersham, Ga., several years reading law in his spare time. In 1835, he went to Alabama and settled in Wetumpka as a merchant. Two years later he came to Cherokee and started a law practice. In 1842, he was elected to the State legislature from Cherokee County on the Whig ticket although the county was largely Democratic. He was a member of the house in 1844, 1849, 1851, 1863-1864, 1865-1866. In 1860 he allied himself with the national Democratic party, and was a delegate to the Charleston and Baltimore conventions. He voted for Douglas for president and Johnson for vice-president. He was elected to the Confederate congress in 1864, to fill the vacancy caused by the expulsion of Hon. W. R. W. Cobb of Jackson. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1865, and was unanimously elected speaker of the house that year, serving in that position through two sessions of the legislature. He was disfranchised by the reconstruction acts in 1867, and following that time devoted his time more closely to his profession. Married: Nancy Powell, of Georgia, born August 23, 1814, in Rutherford County, N. C., and died November 13, 1882, in Centre. Last residence: Centre.

COOPER, WILEY HOWARD, planter, teacher and State senator, was born September 5, 1873, at Centerville, Bibb County; son of Jesse Dean and Phoda Jane (Howard) Cooper, the former a native of Butler County, Pa., graduate, 1858, of Bucknell university, Pa., removed to Chapel Hill, Tenn., where he taught school until 1870, when he removed to Centerville, captain in the Army of Tennessee, C. S. Army; grandson of Thomas and Phoebe (Dean) Cooper of Butler County, Pa., and of George and Theresa (Coleman) Howard, natives respectively of Rowan and Edgecomb Counties, N. C. Senator Cooper received his education in Centerville, being taught by H. K. W. Smith and his father, J. D. Cooper. Early in manhood he engaged in farming upon the large plantation owned by his mother, later acquiring large landed property of his own. He represented the 18th senatorial district in the legislature of 1915. He is a Democrat, Presbyterian and Knight of Pythias. Married: February 1901, at Centerville, to Estelle, daughter of Alex and Mary (Steele) Avery, of that place. Children: 1. Jessie Dean; 2. Mary; 3. Wiley Howard, jr. Residence: Centerville.

COOPER, WILLIAM, lawyer, was born January 11, 1802, in Brunswick County, Va., and died in Tusculumbia, August 16, 1887; son of Edmund and Patsy (Jackson) Cooper. In 1805, while still an infant, his parents moved to Nashville, Tenn., where he remained until his majority, being educated at the University of Nashville and studying law in the office of Hon. Ephraim Foster who was afterwards U. S. senator from Tennessee, 1838 and 1839. He was admitted to the bar in 1823. He located first in the practice of his profession at Russellville, from which place he moved to Tuscumbia in 1828, where he spent the rest of his life. The one ambition of William Cooper was to be a successful lawyer and all of his energies were applied to this one purpose, he practicing in the courts of Alabama for more than half a century, always taking the lead in his profession. In early years, he was elected a chief of the Chickasaw Indians. This was on account of professional services rendered in defending an Indian who had killed a white man, from whom he would accept no fee. They showed their appreciation of this and many other acts of kindness on his part to them by electing him a chief giving him the name of "Oolisk," meaning double or four eyes, on account of his wearing glasses. He negotiated the "Treaty of Pontotoc" with the United States government, representing the Indians. He served as a bank commissioner from 1845 to 1847. During the War of Secession he was commissioned by President Davis to go to Jefferson City, Mo., at the time the seceding of that State was under consideration. He was in Jefferson City on December 27, 28, 29 and 30, 1860. History shows the decision of that State. He was also a member of the Alabama State convention; his diary of 1861 showing entry as follows: "Friday, January 11, 1861. Ordinance of secession of the State of Alabama passed the Convention this day at 2 o'clock and 25 minutes p. m. by a vote of 61 to 39." He was always a strong believer in States rights. Prior to the War he was a Whig, often an elector in his State. He was a free thinker on the subject of religion. He was a member of the Masons and Knights of Pythias. Married: (1) November 12, 1824, to Susan Henderson McCulloch, died at Tuscumbia, August 9, 1834; (2) in 1836, at Tuscumbia, to Elizabeth Blocher; (3) December 27, 1869, to Mrs. Julia Plummer Blocker. Children: by first wife, 1. Langston, died young; 2. James Parke, Confederate soldier, in "Franklin Blues," married and had two daughters; 3. Jane Foster, m. James T. Pettit, August 14, 1840, they are parents of six children; by second wife; 4. John William, Confederate soldier, serving in the "Franklin Blues;" 5. Susan Henderson, m. W. A. Nelson, mother of three sons; 6. Sarah A., m. John Goodwin, mother of two sons and one daughter; 7. Mollie R., m. Ben Winter, mother of three sons and two daughters; 8. Julia Francis, m. E. R. Rather, mother of two daughters. Last residence: Tuscumbia.

COOPER, WILLIAM BLOW, farmer and legislator, was born January 13, 1857, at Jefferson, Marengo County, and died December 2, 1919, at Linden; son of Anson Wilmouth and Arabella Mozelle (Wood) Cooper, the former was a native of Sussex County, Va., later a resident of Marengo County, a Methodist, and Confederate soldier; grandson of Joe Wilmouth and Polly (Blow) Cooper, and of David and Sarah (Fowler) Wood. He was educated in the common schools of Marengo and Choctaw Counties. He is a farmer, and livestock breeder; was sheriff, 1892-1896; mayor of Linden, 1906-09, president of the county jury commission, 1909-1914, and represented Marengo County in the legislature of 1915. He is a Democrat; a Methodist, a Mason; and a Woodman of the World. Married: February 23, 1876, to Maggie Ann, daughter of Lod and Margaret Elizabeth (Thompson) Moore of Forest Home. Children: 1. Odem Wilmouth, m. Agnes Jackson; 2. Hazel Scott; 3. Willie Bertha, m. William J. Powell. Last residence: Linden.

COOPER, WILLIAM HENRY, broker and commission merchant, was born January 10, 1898, at Benton, Tenn.; son of William Philip and Elizabeth (Cameron) Cooper; grandson of Henry and Eliza (Cooke) Cooper; great-grandson of Philip and Clerinda (Freeman) Cooper, and of Robert Cooke, who served under Washington at Valley Forge in 1777, and as a member of the "ranger of frontiers," in 1778. Through his mother, Mr. Cooper traces his descent from Clan Cameron of Scotland. He was educated in the common schools of Georgia, at Alexandria academy in Calhoun County, and was graduated from Howard college, B. S., 1878. After his graduation, he assisted his father in the supervision of the farm, incidentally trading in stock and buying cotton. In 1886, he became a traveling salesman, and continued in that occupation until 1897. He engaged in the mercantile business at Oxford for several years, and at the end of that time, entered a brokerage and commission business at Anniston, in which he is now engaged. He is a Democrat, a Baptist, and a Mason, and has in the past been associated with the orders of Elks, Knights of Pythias, and Red Men. Married: May 2, 1898, to Frances Estelle, daughter of Chaney Johnson and Ada (Harling) Dodd. Residence: Oxford.

COPELAND, BENJAMIN GRIGSBY, physician, was born July, 1860, in Limestone County, and died March 11, 1914, in Birmingham; son of Nathan G. and Callie C. (Grigsby) Copeland, natives of Alabama, who lived on a plantation in Limestone County. He was reared on the farm, and attended school in that neighborhood until his twelfth year, when he took a two year course of study at Elkton, Tenn. Subsequently he attended Bethany high school, Giles County, Tenn., and the academy at Culleoka, Tenn. He was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, M. D., 1883; came to Birmingham in October of the same year; and practiced medicine from that time until his death. He was a member of the Jefferson County Medical Society, and served as its secretary for one year. He was a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and a Knight of Honor. Married: Lucy Turner of Huntsville. Children: 1. Caroline; 2. Jennie Hammond. Last residence: Birmingham.

COPELAND, DICK RIVERS, merchant and legislator, was born April 4, 1859, at Danville, Morgan County; son of Anderson Guin and Winney Jane (Johnson) Copeland, the former a physician and Methodist minister; grandson of James Copeland, of Danville. He was educated in the schools at Danville and Summit.

In 1881, at Flint, he entered the mercantile business; removed in 1883 to Birmingham where he now resides and is at the head of a fruit and produce business. Mr. Copeland served as an alderman of Birmingham from 1901 until the commission form of government was adopted. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: April 24, 1888, in Birmingham, to Ida Elizabeth, daughter of Alfred Hamilton and Elizabeth Welsh (Cunningham) Roebuck, who resided in Montevallo. Children: 1. John Eubank.

COPELAND, MACK M., planter and cotton-buyer, was born about 1830, in Augusta, Ga., and died in 1875, in Montgomery; son of pioneer settlers of Eufaula, who removed to Alabama when he was a child. His grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier. He was educated in the common schools of Eufaula, and merchandised until his removal to Montgomery about 1856, where he engaged in the cotton-buying business. He was 1st lieutenant in the Barbour County volunteers, Mexican War, 1845-48; also a member of Tenant Lomax's command, Civil War; assigned to duty in the Confederate commissary at Montgomery, with rank of major. After the war he again engaged in cotton-buying and scientific market gardening being among the first to plant asparagus and strawberries on a commercial basis, for the Montgomery market, 1866. He was a Democrat; and a Baptist. Married: in 1853, in Eufaula, to Margaret Bledsoe. Children: 1. Elizabeth, m. Donald Hanson, Union Springs; 2. Florida; 3. Maggie; 4. Richard, m. Nancy Fannin; 5. George, m. Miss Herbert; 6. William. Last residence: Montgomery.

COPELAND, THEODORE, Methodist minister, was born November 18, 1868, near Blountsville; son of Silas Virgil and Mary J. (Yeilding) Copeland, who lived near Blountsville, until 1887, when they moved to Birmingham, the former a soldier in the C. S. Army during the War of Secession, who died April 25, 1910; grandson of James and Mary (Sterling) Copeland, of Blount County, and of William and Odessa (Yeilding) of Blount County. The city of Sterling, Scotland, was named for the family of which Mary Sterling was a member. The Copelands were of Irish descent. Rev. Copeland attended the county school at Blountsville, the public school at Bellevue, and the academy at Birmingham. He was a student at the Southern University for three years, and was graduated from the theological course at Vanderbilt University. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., in 1909. He was licensed to preach at Birmingham, 1891, and was ordained in 1893 and 1895. He was pastor successively at Leighton; Attalla; St. Paul's church, Birmingham; First Church, Grenada, Miss.; St. Luke's, Columbus, Ga., three years; Rayne Memorial church, New Orleans, La., one year; St. Paul's, St. Louis, Mo., four years; and Cohane church, St. Louis, Mo. He is a Democrat, a member of Phi Delta Theta college fraternity, and has been a contributor to the church press for a number of years. Married: July 6, 1893, at Athens, Kate Phillips, daughter of Col. D. T. and Ophelia (Redus) Phillips, who lived at Athens. Children: Theodore, jr., St. Louis, Mo.; 2. Phillips, St. Louis, Mo.; 3. Mary Catherine, St. Louis, Mo. Residence: St. Louis, Mo.

COPELAND, WILLIAM BAKER, public official, was born May 12, 1856, at Danville, Morgan County; son of Anderson Gwinn and Winnie Jane (Johnson) Copeland, the former a native of Sparta, White County, Tenn., who moved to Danville in his early manhood, was a practicing physician until 1872, and after that a member of the North Alabama Conference till his death, November 20, 1895, in Jefferson County; grandson of James Wilson Copeland of Danville, whose grandfather, James Wilson, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and of David Johnson of Russellville. He received his early schooling at Danville, under Prof. Zoe Freeman, at Summit, under J. L. Brittain and M. V. Henry, and attended Vanderbilt University for some time. He was postmaster at Birmingham, July, 1893-September, 1897; city auditor of Birmingham, 1902-1906; city treasurer and tax collector, 1910-1911; and was elected clerk of the criminal court, November, 1912. He is a Democrat, serving as secretary of the campaign committee, 1892; is a Methodist Episcopalian, and was steward in the church, 1910-1911; is a Master Mason, an Odd Fellow and a Knight of Pythias. Married: January 23, 1877, at Summit, Mary Olivia Henry, daughter of Ake and Elizabeth P. (Vaughan) Henry, who lived at Summit. Her father was a member of a large family in Marshall and Blount Counties, originally from Virginia. Her mother's family came from Tennessee. Children: 1. Edward Rivers, chief clerk of the criminal court at Birmingham, married; 2. Annie Pearl, m. Samuel Nabers Gore, Birmingham; 3. Nash Anderson, farmer, Pinson; 4. Paul Henry, deputy clerk at Birmingham, married. Residence: Birmingham.

COPELAND, WILLIAM PRESTON, was born September 1, 1845, at Eufaula, Barbour County; son of John Nelson and Caroline Elizabeth (Cannon) Copeland; the former born in Barnwell District, S. C., in 1811, lived successively in Augusta, Ga., St. Joseph, Fla., and Eufaula, served in the Seminole War of 1835-36, as a private in Capt. Robinson's company while living in Florida, later came to Eufaula, where he engaged in the mercantile business until his death in 1859, was the first captain of the Eufaula rifles, a position which he held as long as he lived, the latter was twice married, her first husband being a Mr. Carvin to whom she bore three children, one of whom became the wife of Gen. Alpheus Baker, she died in Eufaula in 1866; grandson of Simeon R. and Mary Owen (Kennedy) Cannon, the former a resident of Barnwell District, S. C., later of Eufaula; great-grandson of John and Elizabeth (Treutlen) Kennedy, great-great-grandson of John Adam Treutlen, who was elected governor of Georgia, May 8, 1777. His grandfather Copeland was of French Huguenot descent, who died in Augusta, Ga., in 1868, was twice married, John Nelson Copeland being a son of the first marriage. William P. Copeland received his elementary and academic education under well qualified teachers in the schools of Eufaula. In 1863, he entered the University of Alabama and was noted for the faithful discharge of every duty whether as a student over his books or as a cadet performing military service at Mobile and elsewhere until the end came in the spring of 1865 with the destruction of the university by the Federals. On his return home, he became a clerk in the store of H. C. Hart and company. After serving for some months in that capacity, he entered Georgetown college, D. C., where he pursued his studies until the following January, when he supplemented his course at Georgetown by several months study at the University of Virginia. He next followed farming for one year near Eufaula, then became a bookkeeper for T. J. Perkins, with whom he remained until the summer of 1868, when he began the study of medicine under Dr. P. D. L. Baker of Eufaula. He spent a part of the years 1868 and 1869 in Bellevue medical college, N. Y., from which he was graduated in the spring of 1870. He returned to Eufaula, where he opened an office and where he has had a large and lucrative practice running through all the years to the present day. He is regarded as one of the most eminent physicians of Barbour County. From 1871-1874, he was convict doctor, and in 1874 was U. S. acting assistant surgeon. He was president of the Barbour County medical society for eight years. The only military office he ever held was sergeant Co. C., Alabama corps cadets, 1863-1865. He is an Episcopalian, a Democrat, Odd Fellow and a Mason. He is the author of several papers, which were published in the New York medical world. Married: April 16, 1872, to Mary, daughter of Col. James T. and Henrietta (Fontaine) Flewellen, and grand-daughter of John Fontaine, a wealthy planter of Columbus, Ga. Children: 1. Martha Fontaine, m. William Love McCormick; 2. Caroline Elizabeth, m. Lee Johnston Clayton; 3. Sarah Matilda, m. Malcom McNab Reeves; 4. Willie Preston, m. Alexis A. Couric. Residence: Eufaula.

DR. WELLINGTON P. McADORY

CORLEY, ZACCHEUS, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Bibb County; private S. Carolina Militia; enrolled on March 8, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $40; sums received to date of publication of list, $100.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in Part 3, vol. xiii, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Bibb County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 149.

CORN, F. M., major and lieutenant colonel 3rd, also called 11th, Confederate cavalry, C. S. Army.

CORNELL, CHARLES ALBERT, Methodist minister, was born December 9, 1864, at Hudson Falls, Washington County, N. Y.; son of Charles Henry and Florence Frances (Snyder)

der) Cornell, the former born at Galaway, Saratoga County, N. Y., who lived at Hudson Falls, N. Y., at Pittsburgh, Pa., and at Mexico City, Mexico, the latter who was left an orphan in infancy at Lock Haven, Pa., and became the ward of Nelson W. Waite, of Hudson Falls, N. Y.; grandson of Madison and Lucy Maria (Cadman) Cornell, who lived at Galaway, N. Y., and moved to Hudson Falls; great-great-grandson of George Cadman, a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He was educated in the public school at Hudson Falls, and in the ward schools at Pittsburgh. He was licensed to preach, October 17, 1887, at Selma; was received on trial in the Alabama Conference, December 9, 1890; was ordained deacon by Bishop Hendrix, December 20, 1891; admitted to full connection, December 9, 1892; ordained elder by Bishop Duncan, December 16, 1894; served at Douglas Court, 1891-1892; at Whistler, 1893-1894; at Summerfield, 1895-1896; at Fort Deposit, 1897-1899; at Midway, 1900-1901; at Ozark, 1902-1903; at Auburn, 1904-1907; at Marianna, 1908-1909; was presiding elder of Marianna District, 1910; and of Prattville District, 1911-1913. He is a Democrat; has been president of the Alabama Conference board of missions, is a Royal Arch Mason, and past chancellor of the Knights of Pythias. Married: December 12, 1882, at Selma, Ransome Annie Scurry, daughter of Ransome Gary and Mary Caroline (Moseley) Scurry, natives of South Carolina, and Alabama, who lived in Dallas County. Children: 1. Charles Van Wormer, Montgomery; 2. Florence Cadman, m. Lewis Pendleton Goodman, of Frederick's Hall, Virginia, Montgomery; 3. William Tate, deceased; 4. Nellie Grey, deceased; 5. Gracie, deceased; 6. Annie, deceased. Residence: Prattville.

CORNWELL, THOMAS J., banker, was born in Chester District, S. C., son of John B. and Alice (Stone) Cornwall, who lived in Chester County, S. C.; great-grandson of Jacob Stone who served in the Revolutionary War. He was educated in the country and city schools of Chester County, and in the Greenville military institute. He became a banker; served for some time as a member of the board of education of Bessemer; and in 1901 was a delegate to the constitutional convention of that year from Jefferson County. He is a Democrat and a Baptist. Married: (1) December 1, 1886, at Ackerman, Miss., to Kittie Alice Bowles, who died January 4, 1894; (2) December 20, 1894, at Bessemer, to Sadie Cockrell. Residence: Bessemer.

CORY, CHAPPELL, general manager Jefferson county building and loan association, was born February 6, 1858, at Benton, Lowndes County; son of Thomas Denny and Martha Elizabeth (Chappell) Cory, the former a native of Sparta, Sussex County, N. J., who located at Mulberry, Autauga County, a Confederate soldier for three months, trustee University of Alabama 1886-90, member Alabama legislature, 1884-85, and for many years chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Autauga County; grandson of David and Martha (Wade) Cory, also natives of Sparta, N. J., and of Joseph John and Susan (Taylor) Chappell of Mulberry. His paternal ancestors settled on Long Island in 1644, and his maternal line was founded by Thomas Chappell who came to Virginia in 1635, and settled an estate at Merchant's Hope, Chappell Creek, on the James River, below City Point. He received his elementary education at Ivy Creek academy in Autauga County, and graduated from the University of Alabama with the A. M. degree in 1878 and the LL. B. degree in 1879. He at once began teaching in Ivy Creek academy, but the following year was engaged in the University of Alabama laboratory. In 1880 he began the practice of law at Selma, in partnership with Thomas W. Clark. Journalism made a strong appeal to him, however, and in 1881, he bought, with Gaston A. Robbins, the "Southern Argus," Selma. The following year he entered the employ of the "Montgomery Advertiser." In 1884, he edited the "Selma Times." In 1884, he again joined the "Montgomery Advertiser," and owned a fourth interest in that paper, 1887-88. From 1889 to 1893, he was managing editor of the "Birmingham Age-Herald;" and secretary, Commercial club, Birmingham, 1894. During 1894-96, he was engaged in business in London, England, and was private secretary to Gov. J. F. Johnston, 1896-1900, residing in Montgomery. During 1900, he was connected with the "Montgomery Journal" as business manager, and the following two years was newspaper correspondent for several State and out of State papers; secretary, Birmingham trust and savings company, 1903-09; general manager, Jefferson county building and loan association, 1909 to date. While attending the University of Alabama, he served as second sergeant of the Alabama corps cadets, 1877-78. He was candidate for the nomination of state superintendent of education in 1902, and ran third in the race. For several years he was trustee of the State normal school, Florence. He is a Democrat, a Methodist, Good Templar, and a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. Married: November 26, 1890, at Gadsden, to Marielou Armstrong (q. v.). Children: 1. Mattie Linn, died in infancy; 2. Chappell, jr.; 3. Armstrong; 4. Theresa. Residence: Roebuck Springs, Birmingham.

CORY, MARIELOU ARMSTRONG, author, was born at Greensboro, Hale County; daughter of Thomas and Martha Louisa (du Bois) Armstrong, the former a Methodist minister, serving charges in Alabama and Louisiana, editor Alabama Christian Advocate, and member of North Alabama conference, M. E. church, South; granddaughter of Harvelle and Mary (King) Armstrong, of Conecuh County, and of John and Louisa (Williams) du Bois, of Autauga County, the former was of French Huguenot line of Charleston, S. C.; great-grandmother was of the South Carolina Elmore family and was a sister of Gen. John Archer Elmore; great-great-granddaughter of Peter and Annie (Cairus) du Bois, the latter a daughter of Thomas Cairus, the youngest son of an English nobleman of that name, who was in America at the time of the Revolution and fought gallantly on the side of the patriots, and whose brother, John David Cairus, returned to England and on death of oldest brother inherited the family estate. She received her early education at Mt. Sterling, Choctaw County, under Prof. Seth S. Mellen; was graduated at Mansfield female college, Louisiana, with degree of M. A., being valedictorian of her class. She taught music in Birmingham, and music and art in Decatur public schools; was organist, without remuneration, for churches at her father's ministerial charges, and was organist for Sam Jones, the noted evangelist at his first tent meeting in State of Alabama; was instrumental in securing the passage of the bill establishing the Boys' industrial school at East Lake; and a member of the committee for the preservation of the First White House of the Confederacy, created by a bill which was passed against great obstacles by the Legislature, but was vetoed by Govs. Samford and Jelks. She was a member of the legislative committee of the Federation of Woman's clubs, recording secretary State Woman's Christian temperance union, and director, for Alabama of Scientific temperance instruction; assisted in organizing the Alabama division, U. D. C., April 8, 1897; president Alabama division, U. D. C., 1911-1913, and was one of the founders of the Alabama home of refuge. Author: "The Ladies memorial association of Montgomery, Ala., its origin and organization with biographical notes of distinguished citizens and families of Alabama." Married: November 26, 1890, in Gadsden, to Chappell Cory (q. v.). Children: 1. Mattie Linn, died in infancy; 2. Chappell, jr.; 3. Armstrong; 4. Theresa. Residence: Roebuck Springs, Birmingham.

CORY, THOMAS, soldier of the American Revolution, age not given, a resident of Mobile County; sergeant 4th Battalion Corps Artillery; enrolled on May 21, 1821, payment to date from February 15, 1821; annual allowance, $32; sums received to date of publication of list, $161.47; acts military establishment.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COSTELLO, PIERRE DARCY, judge and soldier, was born, March 22, 1827, near Dublin, Ireland, and died at Murfreesboro, January 4, 1863; son of Daniel Edmond and Mary (McNamara) Costello, the former lived at Dublin, Ireland, was educated for the priesthood, the latter moved to New York City soon after her husband's death, and there married a Mr. O'Flarity. He lived with his parents in New York till he was sixteen then on account of family troubles left home coming south; received a good education in New York public schools; was in Mexican War on board U. S. vessel Porpoise; after war ended came to Alabama, and when but nineteen years of age was appointed probate judge of Conecuh County to serve from 1849-1850; on completion of term of office he removed to Geneva County, later moving to Elba; elected probate judge of Coffee County, May 15, 1856, commissioned for six years, which office he held until his death. Upon his removal to Elba he studied law and was admitted to the bar but never practiced on account of official duties. He organized Co. K, 25th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, 1861, and was elected captain, fighting at Corinth, Shiloh, in the Mississippi and Kentucky Campaigns at Perryville, and at Murfreesboro; was promoted major and was acting lieutenant-colonel when he was mortally wounded at Murfreesboro, January 1, 1863. He was a Whig; a Mason; and did not belong to any church, though parents were Catholics. Married: December 18, 1855, to Cordelia Ann Lee, daughter of Charles Stephen and Elizabeth Mary (Broughton) Lee, the former was engaged in the Indian Wars, gaining title of colonel, both parents were natives of Georgia. Children: 1. Elizabeth Mary, died in infancy; 2. Mary Agnes, accidentally killed during war, aged seven years; 3. Daniel Edward, died when eighteen years of age; 4. Camilla, died at sixteen years. Last residence: Elba.

COTHRAN, JOHN FRANKLIN, publisher and editor, was born September 21, 1834, at Marion, Perry County; son of Elijah and Talitha Adeline (Brown) Cothran, who were married in 1830. His father was born at Dunedin, County of Monaghan, Ireland, 1805, and ran away from home on his eighth birthday, becoming bound to a sea captain, with whom he embarked for America. He ran away from the captain as soon as the vessel reached the port of Mobile, found shelter in a boat owned by Stewart George, and was secreted by the latter's brother, Elias George, until they left the city. He lived in the George home in Hamburg for five years, attending school with the sons of the family, then engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes. Mr. Cothran obtained his early education in Marion, and was one of half a dozen boys admitted as pupils to the Judson Female Institute, then one of the leading schools of the south. Soon after he was transferred to Howard College, where he continued his studies until the death of his father in 1844. He obtained his first employment on the "Marion News," where he worked as printer's devil until the suspension of "The News." At that time he was transferred to "The Commonwealth," a paper then published at Marion, by John Garland Markham. In 1849, Mr. Cothran moved to Mobile where he hoped to find employment at his trade. Being a minor, the printers' union refused to allow him to work, and he was compelled to become a grocer's clerk. When the yellow fever broke out in Mobile in 1853, many of the printers fled from the city, and he secured a position on the "Daily Register," then published by John Forsyth. He remained with that paper, filling various positions in the mechanical department, until 1868, when he purchased a third interest in the job printing business of Farrow & Dennett. In 1877, Mr. Cothran sold his share in the company to George Matzenger, and took charge of a job printing concern which he had purchased in New York. Four years later, "The Item," a small weekly paper of four pages, published by Mr. Cothran, made its appearance in Mobile. He continued in the printing business, spending the greater part of his life in that trade. At the time of the outbreak of the War of Secession, Mr. Cothran was a member of the Washington Light infantry at Mobile, which became Co. A, Twenty-first Alabama regiment. He was promoted from sergeant to second lieutenant, then to first lieutenant, and finally, August 30, 1863, became captain of the company. He was in command of two companies at Cedar Point, and of two companies of infantry and two of cavalry at Bon Secour. He was captured at Fort Morgan and imprisoned in Fort LaFayette, New York harbor, for five months, in solitary confinement, then was transferred to Fort Delaware, where he was held until the surrender. Married: September 24, 1865, at Lauderdale, Miss., Mary F. Patton, daughter of Dr. James Patton. He had seven children of whom three are living: 1. John F., jr.; 2. William P.; 3. Mrs. Norwood A. Richards. Residence: Mobile.

COTTON, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 69, and a resident of Madison County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on March 2, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $55; sums received to date of publication of list, $165.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COTTRELL, JAMES LAFAYETTE, lawyer, representative in congress, was born in 1808, in Prince William County, Va. His father, the son of an Englishman who was a colonial naval officer in the Revolutionary War, and subsequently, a Baptist minister, moved to Georgia, then came to Alabama with the Hall and Lewis families of Autauga County. Mr. Cottrell was reared in Autauga County, and studied law at Washington under Hon. William D. Pickett. He moved to Lowndes County in 1830, located in Hayneville, and at once began to practice law. He served in the State senate, 1838-1841, defeating Mr. Needham Smith. During the latter year of his term in the senate, he was unanimously chosen president of the body. He was elected to congress in 1846 to fill the unexpired term of Hon. William Lowndes Yancey who had resigned. In that election, he was opposed by Samuel S. Beeman of Wetumpka, the half-brother of Mr. Yancey, and won the election by a majority of only thirty-eight votes. On his return from congress in 1848, Mr. Cottrell was placed on the electoral ticket for Gen. Cass, but resigned. He moved to Cedar Keys, Fla., and became a planter on the Suwannee River. In 1865 he was elected to the senate of that state, and during the winter was defeated by Gov. Marvin for U. S. senator, by one vote. Married: a sister of Hon. James McQueen, of Florida, and daughter of one of the first settlers of Lowndes County. Last residence: Florida.

COUCH, ELY, soldier of the American Revolution, age not given, a resident of Russell County; corporal 4th Regular U. S. Infantry; enrolled on September 20, 1832, payment to date from August 1, 1832; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $201.06; acts military establishment.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COUNCIL WILLIAM HOOPER, negro educator, was born July 12, 1848, at Fayetteville, N. C., of slave parents. After the close of the War of Secession he attended for three years a school for colored children at Stevenson. In 1867, he engaged in the profession of teaching. Later he studied law, and was admitted to practice in Alabama in 1883. Prior to his study of law, he was enrolling clerk of the Alabama house of representatives, 1872-1874, and in the following year was receiver-general of the land office for the northern district of Alabama. He has never practiced law, and since 1875 has been president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Normal, of which he was the founder and organizer. He was the founder and the editor, from 1877 until 1884, of the Huntsville "Herald." He has contributed to the "Arena," the "Forum," and other periodicals. Residence: Normal.

COURSON, JAMES, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Montgomery County; private S. C. Continental Line and Militia; enrolled on January 19, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832; payment to date from March, 1831; annual allowance, $80; sums received to date of publication of list, $240.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

COWAN, E. E., Methodist minister, member of the Alabama conference. Residence: Headland.

COWAN, SAMUEL COLVIN, physician and State senator, was born August 4, 1861, at Aberfoil, Bullock County; son of Samuel Colvin and Mary Jane (Larkins) Cowan, the former lived at Eufaula, then Irvington, Aberfoil, and Union Springs. was in the Indian War, and was a physician; grandson of John Alexander and Anna (Gillespie) Cowan, the former owned and operated the first ferry over the Alabama river where Selma now stands, was of Irish extraction, his father coming to America during the latter part of the 17th century, the latter the sister of Mrs. James G. Blaine, and of William L. and Christian Williams (Scott) Larkins. The Larkinses came from Scotland and settled in North Carolina, removing to Alabama in 1819. Dr. Cowan was educated in the common schools of Bullock County; graduated valedictorian from the medical college of the University of Alabama, Mobile, 1889. He was State senator from the 26th district, in the legislature of 1919. He is a Democrat; Mason; and Shriner. Married: April 26, 1906, to Effie May, daughter of Lucius Theodore and Emma (Hancock) Bush, of Atlanta, Ga. Children: 1. Samuel Colvin; 2. Effie May. Residence: Union Springs.

COWART, FLETCHER J., teacher, was born in Pike County, December, 1850; son of Hansford D. and Louisiana E. (Carter) Cowart, the former born in Barnwell District, S. C., 1818, went west and settled with parents in Georgia, received common school education, became a Methodist, was county commissioner, served in 57th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, until after 1864, and died in June, 1890, the latter was born in Conecuh County, in 1820; grandson of James Cowart and William Carter, the former born in 1778, moved to Mississippi in 1820, thence to Georgia, removed 1840 to Pike County, died there in 1846, the latter born in Hancock County, Ga., 1789, fought in War of 1812, at Battle of Autasse, in Eastern Alabama, removed from Baldwin County, 1817, to Conecuh, and in 1825 to Pike, where he died in 1883, being one of the first settlers, was tax collector, 1836, a farmer, and a Primitive Baptist. F. J. Cowart is one of ten children, was reared on a farm and received a common school education; taught school 1869; in 1870, attended Auburn; became editor of "Troy Messenger" in 1875; retired in 1877 to engage in merchandise; superintendent of education for Pike County, 1877-1880; member legislature 1880, reelected 1882. He was appointed by Pres. Grover Cleveland as agent to Mescalero Apaches, New Mexico, 1885-1889. For a number of years was a member of the faculty at the Troy normal school. He is a Mason, Methodist and a Democrat. Married: in 1873, to Mattie, daughter of W. C. and Elizabeth Sanders, natives of Talbot County, Ga. Residence: Troy.

COWART, LEE, lawyer, was born March 26, 1866, in Towns County, Ga.; son of Thomas J. and Lydia (Chastain) Cowart, the former a native of Spartanburg District, S. C., who lived at Houston, served in the C. S. Army for four years, and was county superintendent of education of Winston County from 1880 to 1888; grandson of Elijah and Sarah Chastain, who moved from North Carolina to Alabama in 1860. Mr. Cowart received his early education in the common schools of Winston County, and was graduated from the law department of the University of Alabama, LL. B., June, 1886. He was admitted to the bar at Double Springs, in 1886, and practiced there for four years, serving from 1887 to 1890, as county solicitor. He was examiner of accounts in the department of justice, 1893-1895; assistant U. S. attorney, northern district of Alabama; 1895-1898; presidential elector, ninth congressional district, 1908; private secretary to Gov. Emmet O'Neal, from January 16, 1911, until his appointment as commissioner of immigration, February 3, 1911, and held the latter position until January 18, 1915. He is a Democrat; was chairman of the Winston County executive committee, 1886-1890; a delegate to all state conventions, 1886-1894; and a member of Jefferson County Democratic committee, 1900-1910. He is a Methodist, an Odd Fellow, Knight of Pythias, and a Red Man. Married: February 22, 1892, at Spruce Pine, Franklin County, to Emilie Spann, daughter of Felix G. and Martha (Howell) Spann, of Double Springs. Children: 1. Lee, jr.; 2. Emmet O'Neal; 3. Virgil; 4. Edward; 5. Willadene. Residence: Birmingham.

COWLES, THOMAS MERRIWETHER, planter, was born in 1794, in Richmond County,

Ga., and died March 20, 1857, in Montgomery; son of William Marston and Anna (Merriwether) Cowles, the latter the sister of Nicholas Merriwether. His ancestors were located in Virginia in the Colonial period, an old record showing that land lying on the James River near Charles City, Westover County, Va., the bill of same bearing the date 1614, was in the possession of Richard Cowles. This same land passed into the possession of Edmund Cowles in 1666 along with larger tracts. Thomas Cowles, a descendant, was a member of the house of burgesses from James City County in 1698. Major Thomas Merriwether Cowles was a gentleman of culture and great wealth. When Pres. Millard Fillmore visited Montgomery in 1854, he spent the day upon the Cowles plantation, four miles from the city of Montgomery on the Mount Meigs Road, and was given the opportunity of seeing hundreds of slaves in the cotton fields, plowing and hoeing, and also was guest of honor at a barbecue at which the neighboring planters and friends from the city were present. He built in Montgomery, upon the banks of the Alabama river, a palatial mansion of brick and stone that was for years among the most beautiful private residences in the South. Here he died, and in the course of time the property fell into the hands of strangers and within the recent months, after several visitations of fire, was demolished. A period of railroad building was inaugurated during his last years and, sound business man that he was, he realized that the future prosperity of the section depended in a large measure upon the encouragement of this industry. But for his support and persistent confidence, the Montgomery and West Point railroad would have been abandoned, owing particularly to the financial panic that grew out of the State bank failure. He had migrated from Georgia to the Canebroke region of what was then the Mississippi territory and later, Alabama, being the first of the Georgia planters to pass beyond the Creek nation to the rich lands of a virgin region, carrying their families and their slaves. This same independence and daring characterized his subsequent career. His death, in the prime of manhood, took from the state one of its foremost citizens. Married: Elizabeth Ware, sister of Dr. Robert J. Ware and of Colonel James H. Ware of Montgomery County. She survived him, and some years after his death married Col. Edmund Harrison. Major Cowles left no children, and his estate was divided between his widow and the children of his younger and only brother, Dr. John A. Cowles, and his only sister, Mrs. Martha Cowles Sheaur, wife of Gen. Gilbert Sheaur. Last residence: Montgomery.

COX, ADDIE ESTELLE, Baptist missionary and teacher, was born October 24, 1885, at Carrollton, Pickens County; daughter of John Wyley and Frances Roan (Eddins) Cox, the former a native of Philadelphia, Miss., who later lived at Carrollton, and held a county office; granddaughter of Thomas Bolling and Lucy Stribling (Clarke) Cox, of Petersburg, Va., and of William and Salina (Trimmier) Clarke, of Spartanburg, S. C., and later of Pickensville; great-granddaughter of Banister and Rebecca (Cavanaugh) Cox, who lived at Petersburg, Va., were descended from John and Pocahontas Rolfe, and also descended from the Reverend Mr. Banister, who was probably the first English missionary from the Church of England to America, and who laid out Petersburg, Va., and of Obediah and Lucy (Walton) Trimmier, the former a native of Virginia and of French parentage, an officer in the Revolutionary Army; neighbor and intimate friend in South Carolina of "Horse Shoe Robinson," of the Revolutionary Army. Miss Cox attended the public schools of Carrollton, and graduated at the Alabama central female college, Tuscaloosa, 1905, and from the Woman's missionary union training school, Louisville, Ky., 1913. She taught from 1905 to 1911 in her alma mater, Tuscaloosa, and in Jefferson and Pickens Counties; pastor's assistant, First Baptist church, Birmingham, 1913; field worker for the Alabama Woman's missionary union, 1914-18; appointed by the Southern Baptist convention as missionary to the interior of China, July, 1918, and in eight months' study at the girls' school, Pekin, China, had so mastered that language that she was appointed acting principal of the girls' school at Kaifeng, China, which she now occupies. She is unmarried. Residence: Carrollton.

COX, HENRY W., lawyer, was killed May 3, 1863, at Chancellorsville, Va. He first saw military service in the War of 1812, in which he enlisted as a private. His early educational opportunities were limited, but he succeeded over many difficulties in getting to the bar. He practiced law in Coosa County, and was sent to the State legislature from the county in 1851. He was a Whig, but believed firmly in States Rights. As early as 1851, he was a secessionist in feeling. In 1860, he advocated secession direct, and was a candidate for the convention, but was defeated. Early in the War of Secession, June 17, 1861, he enlisted in the C. S. Army, and was sent to Pensacola. He returned soon afterward, helped raise a company of which he was elected second lieutenant and a Mr. Bradford captain. The company was attached to the Twelfth Alabama infantry regiment, as Co. B. On Capt. Bradford's resignation, Mr. Cox was promoted to captain, September 5, 1862. In one of the battles of Virginia, he was wounded in the mouth, and returned home for recovery. His age, nearly fifty years, and the care of a mother and two sisters were presented to him by friends as reasons why he should remain at home. As soon as he had recovered, however, he returned to his post, and in the battle of Chancellorsville, while leading his company in a charge, he was killed. He was never married. Last residence: Coosa County.

COX, JAMES MONROE, educator, was born February 26, 1860, at Fredonia; son of John Wesley and Martha Cox. Rev. Dr. Cox graduated A. B., from Clarke university, Atlanta, Ga., 1884; and graduated from Gammon theological seminary, Atlanta, Ga., 1886, receiving from the latter institution in 1898 the honorary degree of D. D. He has been a member of the Little Rock conference, Methodist Episcopal church, and president of Philander Smith college, Little Rock, Ark., since 1896. He is a Republican. Married: September 20, 1887, to Hattie W. Robinson, of Macon, Ga. Residence: Little Rock, Ark.

COX, W. J. E., missionary Baptist minister, living in 1913. Residence: Birmingham.

COX, WILLIAM MANNING, Methodist minister, was born February 11, 1857, at Yorkville, Pickens County; son of Dr. Silas Hill and Mary Elizabeth (Burdine) Cox, the former born near Pickensville, Pickens County, practiced medicine at Yorkville, minister in Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, South, from 1852 until his death in 1904; grandson of Robert Plummer and Margaret (Basket) Cox, who were married in 1803, in Pendleton District, S. C., and in 1819 came to Pickens County, lived near Pickensville, and of James T. and Mary (Martin) Burdine, who lived at Yorkville. Rev. Mr. Cox was educated in public and private schools at Citronelle, and at Southern university, Greensboro. He was licensed in 1877, at Greensboro, as a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and at the close of 1878 joined the Alabama conference, and is now presiding elder of the Montgomery district. He is a Mason. Married: (1) December 24, 1882, to Nellie Alderman, who died November 4, 1898; (2) August 16, 1905, to Fannie Duskin, of Montgomery. Children by first wife: 1. Floyd Wightman, lives in Amarillo, Tex.; 2. Annie Rourke, teacher; 3. Carl S., principal of town school, Mulberry, Fla.; by second wife: 1. Frances; 2. Elizabeth. Residence: Montgomery.

COXE, ROBERT EDWARD, druggist, was born in New York, N. Y., about 1820 and died in Montgomery, 1868; son of ——— Coxe and Agnes O'Ferrell, his wife, natives of Ireland; was left an orphan at ten years of age, by the death of both parents, of yellow fever, in New Orleans; was adopted and educated by a Mr. McGrane, of Mobile; on reaching manhood, established a drug business in Montgomery, under the name Coxe and Coster. He was a Democrat and a Catholic. Married: about 1841, Harriet Eleanor Perkins, of Tuscaloosa, who died in Montgomery, 1856. Children: Annie Eliza, d. in Montgomery, m. William Knox, jr. Last residence: Montgomery.

COYLE, JAMES EDWIN, Catholic priest, was born March 23, 1873, at Westpark Drum, County of Roscommon, Ireland; son of Owen and Margaret Letitia (Durney) Coyle, natives of the County of Roscommon, Ireland, who lived near Athlone, in that county, where the former was head master of the government national schools, for many years, until he was retired on pension. His ancestors were prominent as educators, holding positions as teachers and professors in many state and religious schools and colleges in Ireland. They were uncompromising opponents of English rule, and took part in every attempt to overthrow that rule. During the insurrection of 1798, the families of Coyle and Durney threw in their lot with the United Irishmen and the other patriotic societies which rose in rebellion. When the insurrection was crushed, their estates were confiscated, and two of Father Coyle's great-great-granduncles died on the scaffold, martyrs to the cause. His early education was obtained from his father's school. He attended Mungret College, Limerick, Ireland, 1888-1893, and followed the course of the now defunct Royal University of Ireland. After graduating at Mungret, he attended the Collegia Americano del Nord, and the Propaganda University, Rome, Italy. He finished his education there in 1896, and on May 26 of that same year was ordained a Catholic priest by Cardinal Parrocchi, at St. John Lateran's Basilica, Rome, Italy. His first mission was at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception at Mobile. He next became rector of McGill Institute, a Catholic high school in Mobile, and then was situated as rector of St. Paul's church at Birmingham. He was made irremovable rector of that church in 1913. He is an Independent in politics, and is a chaplain of the Knights of Columbus. He has contributed fugitive essays and poems to Catholic publications and to the local secular press. He is editor of "The Catholic Monthly," a monthly magazine published in the interest of the Catholic Church in north Alabama. Residence: Birmingham.

COZART, TOCCOA PAGE, author and educator, was born August 31, 1855, at Atlanta, Fulton County, Ga.; daughter of Wiley Person Mangum and Hannah Page (MacIntyre) Cozart; grand-daughter of Hubbard and Ann (Turner) Cozart, of Atlanta, Ga.; grand-daughter of Dr. Peter and Ann Crossland (Seale) MacIntyre, Montgomery. An early American ancestor was Jacques Cossart, a French Huguenot who landed in New Amsterdam in 1662, and was made treasurer of the colony under Peter Stuyvesant and also under the British. His descendants participated in the battle of Alamance, in North Carolina, the event prior to Lexington in the struggle for American independence. The family is remotely related to Anthony Crozart, governor of the province of Louisiana under Louis XIV. Toccoa Page Cozart was educated in the private schools of Troy and Montgomery, and the Presbyterian college of Troy; graduated at Florence normal college, 1893; at Cook County normal, Chicago, 1893, Summer School of the South, Knoxville, Tenn., 1903, and Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn, 1901. She taught in the Ramer high school, 1891; Troy public schools, 1893; Montgomery public schools, 1894-97; preparatory school for Alabama Polytechnic institute, 1899-1900; Aberdeen, Miss., 1902-04. She engaged in newspaper work on the "Montgomery Times" 1910-13; was historian of the Ladies' memorial association, Montgomery, for a term; designed the monument erected in 1913 on Chickamauga battlefield by the association; former historian of Sophie Bibb chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. She is a member of Daughters of the American Revolution; Alabama historical society; Woman's Christian Temperance Union; charter member of the Presbyterian Church, Troy; member of Montgomery School Improvement Association. Author: Sketch of Henry Hilliard, in Volume IV, Transactions Alabama Historical Society; and of the words of The Bonnie Flag, adopted by the general United Daughters of the Confederacy as the children's song of patriotism, and incorporated in the general program of each Southern State for use by the Children of the Confederacy, 1909. Unmarried. Residence: Montgomery.

SAMUEL S. BROADUS

COZBY, ROBERT, soldier of the American Revolution, age not given, a resident of Lowndes County; private Revolutionary Army; enrolled on May 15, 1821; payment to date from February 14, 1821; annual allowance, $96; sums received to date of publication of list, $245.06; acts military establishment.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CRABB, GEORGE W., lawyer, representative in congress, was born February 22, 1802, in Botetourt County, Va., and died August 15, 1846, at Philadelphia, Pa. He spent his childhood in Tennessee, and came in early manhood to Alabama, settling in Tuscaloosa. He read law there and was admitted to the bar. He was elected assistant secretary of the State senate, and in 1829, was elected comptroller of the treasury of the state over John C. Perry of Dallas County. In 1836, at the outbreak of the Indian War in Florida, he served in a twelve months' campaign as lieutenant-colonel of a regiment raised in Alabama. On his return, he was elected major general of militia, and the same year was sent to the State senate. In 1838, he was brought forward by the Whig party as a candidate to fill the vacancy in congress created by the death of Judge Joab Lawler, in opposition to Harvey W. Ellis, esq., the Democratic candidate. Gen. Crabb was elected by a small majority, and in 1839, at the regular election, was re-elected over the same candidate. In 1841, under the general ticket system, he was defeated. In 1844, he withdrew his allegiance from the Whig party and became a Democrat. He moved to Mobile, and in 1845 was appointed judge of the criminal court of that city. Declining health induced him to spend the winter of that year in Havana, Cuba, and the next summer, during a visit to Philadelphia, Pa., he died, August 15. He was a brother of Hon. Thomas D. Crabb, of Morgan County, and of Judge Henry Crabb, who served many years on the bench of the supreme court of Tennessee. Married: Miss Inge, a sister of Hon. William M. Inge, of Sumter County. Child: a daughter, m. Prof. Pratt, at one time a member of the faculty of the University of Alabama. Last residence: Mobile.

CRABB, THOMAS D., member of the constitutional convention, 1819, from Cotaco, now in Morgan County.

CRAFT, EZEKIEL, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 72, and a resident of Madison County; private, dragoon and drummer S. C. Continental Line and Militia; enrolled on December 31, 1832, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $93.33; sums received to date of publication of list, $279.99.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34. He resided in Madison County, June 1, 1840, aged 77.—Census of Pensioners, 1841, p. 148.

CRAFT, JOHN, merchant and State senator, was born May 20, 1847, in New Orleans, La., son of John Craft of that city. He was educated in the public schools; member of the city council of Mobile, 1874 to 1876, and from 1893 to 1901. He is a strong advocate of good roads and is president of the Alabama good roads association, and also holds membership in a number of civic and commercial organizations. He is a merchant and was elected to the State senate 1918, for a term of four years. He is a Presbyterian; and a Democrat. Married: June 1, 1880, at Mobile, Marie Victoria Guesnard. Residence: Mobile.

CRAIG, BENJAMIN HOGAN, lawyer and legislator, was born April 27, 1835, at Cahaba, Dallas County, and died July 10, 1907, at Selma; son of James D. and Elvira Susan (Berry) Craig (q. v.). He attended the schools of Cahaba until he was seventeen years of age, then entered Oglethorpe college, Milledgeville, Ga., from which he was graduated in 1856 with the degree of A. B. Immediately after graduation, he began the study of law at Cahaba under Gayle and Williams, and in 1857 was admitted to the bar, and practiced his profession in Cahaba until his removal to Selma in 1867. In January, 1887, he formed a law partnership with his brother, Hon. George H. Craig. In November, 1863, he was appointed register in chancery and held this office until November, 1898. He was the only Democratic officer retained during the reconstruction period, and also the only one when the new constitution went into effect. He was a member of the legislature, 1900-1901, and a member of the constitutional convention, 1901. "His ability and judgment and absolute honesty gave him high standing as a member of the legislature and as a member of the Constitutional Convention." In May, 1862, he enlisted in the 42nd Alabama infantry regiment on its organization, and was made its quartermaster sergeant. He was with the regiment in the siege of Vicksburg. His wife was on a visit to him in Vicksburg when the Federal Army invested the place and hence was with him during all that memorable siege. In November, 1863, he was retired from the army on account of disabilities. He was a Presbyterian. Married: (1) in December, 1856, to Eliza, the daughter of James Harper and Sallie Tucker, who lived at Milledgeville, Ga.; (2) in 1870, in Selma, to Laura, daughter of Capt. John Weeden; (3) June 3, 1885, in Selma, to Cola, daughter of Col. James and Frances (Dowell) Barr, the former came to Mississippi from Brooklyn, N. Y., when only fourteen years of age, and was a member of the Jackson marble works in the city of Jackson, enlisted as a first lieutenant in the 10th Mississippi infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and rose by successive promotion to the colonelcy of the regiment, was killed at the battle of Kennesaw Mountain, and had two brothers in the service of the Confederacy; granddaughter of James and Ruth (Smith) Barr, the former born in 1777 in Renfroe, Scotland, emigrated to America, where he was a worker in marble, and of William Henry and Susan (Benthall) Dowell, of Wilkins County, Tenn., and the great-granddaughter of Peter Barr, who was born in 1759, in Renfroe, Scotland. Cola Barr was born in Jackson, Miss., March 17, 1861. She was educated in Jackson, Miss., under Misses Mary and Fannie Moseley and after their death under Miss Ethel Baird. She graduated as valedictorian from the Fairlawn institute in Jackson, June 3, 1870. She is a Presbyterian and primary superintendent; was president of the United charities for several years; is first vice-president of Daughters of the Confederacy of the State of Alabama and president of Memorial association. She is the author of two books. "Was she?" and "By contract." Children: by first marriage, 1. James H., banker in Butte County, Nebraska; 2. daughter, m. H. M. Tanner; 3. daughter, m. R. B. McAlpine; 4. George; children by third wife; 5. Benjamin H. jr.; 6. Cola Barr. Last residence: Selma.

CRAIG, MRS. COLA BARR, author and club woman, born March 17th — at Jackson, Hinds County, Miss.; daughter of Col. James and Frances (Donnell) Barr, the former a native of New York state, who early in life moved with his parents to Jackson, Miss., and during the War of Secession served in C. S. Army, as colonel of the 10th Mississippi infantry regiment and was killed at Kennesaw Mountain; granddaughter of James and Margaret (Smith) Barr, of Patchogue, Long Island, and of William H. and Susan (Benthall) Donnell, natives of Wilson County, Tenn., who resided at Jackson, Miss., many years. Mrs. Craig is a descendent of Capt. John Donnell, of Mecklenburg County, N. C. known as the fighting parson during colonial times, and of John Benthall, a private in the Revolutionary Army. She was educated at "Fair Lawn Institute," Jackson, Miss., graduating in 1879. Mrs. Craig has been president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, of the Memorial Association, of the United Charities of Selma, vice-president Anti-Suffrage association of United Daughters of Confederacy; county chairman State council of defense, and was chairman Dallas county committee on food conservation and production, during the European War. She was one of the originators of the movement which resulted in the first hospital in Selma, owned by the United Charities. She is a member of the Ossian Club, a literary organization, and secretary-treasurer of the "Scribblers," the first organized writers club in Alabama. She is a Presbyterian; and a Democrat. Author: "Was-She," and "The Contrast," the latter in preparation, and of numerous short stories and poems. Married: Benjamin H. Craig (q. v.). Children: 1. Benjamin H., jr., lawyer, m., Emma Vaughn, Selma; 2. Cola

Barr, m. G. J. Jackson, Rembert. Residence: Selma.

CRAIG, GEORGE HENRY, lawyer, representative in congress, was born December 25, 1845, at Cahaba, Dallas County; son of James D. and Elvira Susan (Berry) Craig (q. v.). He was educated in the common schools at Cahaba until he was sixteen years old, when he entered the C. S. Army, becoming commissary sergeant of Col. William M. Byrd's regiment of ninety-day volunteers. After a few months in the service, he returned home and entered the University of Alabama as a student and military cadet. He was promoted while there to a first lieutenancy of infantry, the Alabama cadets being a part of the State army, and was twice ordered into service with the cadets, serving with the Confederate troops at Mobile, Pollard, and Blakely. He commanded a company in the fight with Gen. Croxton at Tuscaloosa. After the war, he moved to Selma and read law in the office of White & Portis. He was licensed by the chancery court at Selma in 1867, and later by the state supreme court and the U. S. supreme court. He was elected solicitor of Dallas County in 1867, but was restrained by military order from entering that office. In 1869, he was appointed sheriff by Gov. Smith, and held the office for a year, when he was elected judge of the criminal court of Dallas County. He held that position until 1874; was appointed by Gov. Lewis, judge of the first judicial circuit of Alabama; was elected to that office for a term of six years, November, 1874; was elected to congress on the Republican ticket, from the fourth district of Alabama, 1882, but as his seat was contested, was not able to take his seat in congress until two years after the election; was re-elected in 1884, but was counted out. He was appointed U. S. attorney for northern and middle Alabama, by President Arthur, and held the position until displaced by the Cleveland administration. From that time on, he devoted himself to his legal practice as senior member of the firm of Craig & Craig. He was appointed a member of the board of visitors to West Point Military Academy by President Cleveland, 1895. He is a Republican; a Presbyterian; and a Mason. Married: April 8, 1868, Sarah Alvena White, daughter of Judge John and Mary Jane (Finley) White, of Cahaba, the former captain and quartermaster of the Fifth Alabama regiment, was captured at Gettysburg, and imprisoned on Johnson's Island, a lawyer and brother of Hon. Alexander White, who was twice a member of congress, and chief justice of the supreme court of Utah territory; granddaughter of John White, judge of the circuit and supreme courts of Alabama in the early days of the state, and of Alva Finley, a member of the Alabama legislature. Children: 1. Alvena, m. R. O. Blakey, Fresno, Calif.; 2. John White, a graduate of West Point, 1894, second lieutenant, U. S. Cavalry, 1899, captain, Twelfth U. S. cavalry; 3. Mary, m. H. H. Stewart, jr., Selma; 4. William Benjamin, lawyer, member of the firm of Craig & Craig, member of Sixtieth and Sixty-first U. S. congresses.

m. Irene K. Craig, Selma; 5. Bruce Kilpatrick, m. Henrietta Mueller, Selma. Residence: Selma.

CRAIG, JAMES D., lawyer, was born December 2, 1800, in Chester District, S. C., and died February, 1882, in Fresno, Calif.; son of James and Jaen (Kilpatrick) Craig, the former a native of County Antrim, Ireland, who came to this country when he was sixteen years old, located in Chester District, S. C., where he was married, after some years moved to Tennessee near Duck River, moved from there to Dallas County, where he settled near Craig's Ferry on the Cahaba River, eight miles from Selma, shortly after Alabama became a state, was captain of a Tennessee volunteer company, Jackson's army, in the War of 1812, and served in the Creek and Seminole Wars; grandson of Robert and Katy Craig, Scotch coventers, who removed to County Antrim, Ireland, where they lived some years, then sold their estate and sailed with their children for America, the former died and was buried at sea, while the latter, with her five children, landed at Charleston, S. C., and purchased a plantation in Chester District; and grandson of Robert Kilpatrick, who lived near Chester District, S. C., and was an American soldier in the Revolution. Judge Craig's schooling was limited to a few years in the country schools of Tennessee and Alabama, but while at work on his father's farm and in his blacksmith's shop, he spent much of his spare time in reading and study. He taught in a country school for a year, then moved to Selma and for several years clerked in a dry goods store. He was employed as a clerk in the U. S. land office at Cahaba, then the capital of the state, and some years after was elected clerk of the county court of Dallas County. He served several terms in that office, during which time he studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1835 or 1836. He began to practice law at Cahaba, served twelve years as probate judge of the county, and was mayor of Cahaba for many years. In 1868 he moved to Selma, and in 1874 to San Francisco, Calif. After moving to California, he was appointed court commissioner of that state and held the position at his death. During the War of Secession, while on a visit to his son, Benjamin H. Craig, of the Forty-second Alabama regiment, at Vicksburg, Miss., he went through the entire siege, and was furnished by Gen. Grant with an ambulance and team to convey him where he could reach the railroad for home. He was a member of the Whig party until after the war, then voted with the Democratic party. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church forty years. Married: October 25, 1832, Elvira Susan Berry, born March 15, 1813, in Mississippi, who lived in Wilkerson, Miss. Children: 1. Louisiana, deceased, m. H. I. F. Coleman, deceased; 2. Benjamin Hogan, deceased, register of the chancery court for more than ten years, m. Cola B. Craig, Selma; 3. Sarah, m. Dr. H. S. Hudson, both deceased; 4. William, deceased, a captain in the Twenty-eighth Alabama regiment, C. S. Army, promoted from the ranks for gallantry, was captured at Missionary Ridge, escaped from his guards on his way to prison by leaping from a train, made his way through enemy territory to his home, rejoined his regiment, was wounded at Atlanta in a charge on the Federal works, recovered, rejoined his regiment and surrendered with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's army, was elected to the State legislature, and moved to San Francisco, m. Ruth Craig, San Francisco; 5. Ellen, m. Mr. Robinson, Berkeley, Calif.; 6. George H. (q. v.); 7. Ida, m. George M. Edmunds, Fresno, Calif.; 8. James H., Fresno, Calif.; 9. Lela, Honolulu, Hawaii. Last residence: Fresno, Calif.

CRAIG, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 75, resided in Limestone County, June 1, 1840.—Census of Pensioners, p. 148.

CRAIG, JOHN, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 71, and a resident of Limestone County; private Virginia Militia; enrolled on January 24, 1833, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $28.34.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CRAIG, WILLIAM, lawyer, was born January 17, 1840, at Cahaba, and died in January, 1910, in San Francisco, Calif.; son of James D. and Elvira Susan (Kilpatrick) Craig, of Chester District, S. C., who removed to Alabama, where the former was clerk in the U. S. land office at Cahaba, afterward mayor of Cahaba and probate judge of Dallas County. He was educated in the Cahaba academy; graduated from Oglethorpe college, Georgia, A. M., in 1860; and from law department of the University of Virginia, B. L., 1868. In 1861, he enlisted in the Cahaba rifles, 5th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army; was in the first battle of Manassas; later was a member of Co. I, 28th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army, under command of Gen. Pettus, at the battle of Missionary Ridge; at the battle of Atlanta, promoted to captaincy for gallantry on the field; surrendered with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, in North Carolina, 1865. He was a member of the Alabama legislature, 1866-67. In 1868, he removed to San Francisco, Cal., where he practiced law until his death. He was a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: in 1873, to Ruth Thompson, whose father represented Virginia in congress, whose mother was a sister of Jubal A. Early, natives of Virginia who removed to California before the War of Secession. Children: 1. Jubal Early; 2. William B.; 3. Robert; 4. Donald; 5. Olive. Last residence: San Francisco, Calif.

CRAIGHEAD, ERWIN, journalist and author, was born April 4, 1852, at Nashville, Tenn.; son of James B. and Ellen Kirkman (Erwin) Craighead; descendant of Rev. Alexander Craighead, of Mecklenburg, N. C., an evangelist of American liberty. He attended Racine College, Wisconsin, and was graduated, B. Litt., from the University of Nashville, Tennessee. He was a post graduate student in law at Middle Temple, Inns of Court, London, England, and in philosophy at University of Leipsic, Germany. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Alabama, 1906. He studied law and was admitted to the bar of Tennessee, 1877, but never practiced. He turned his attention to journalism, and in 1878 moved to New Orleans, La., where for two years, he was on the staff of the New Orleans "Times," as music critic and editorial writer. He was managing editor of the New Orleans "Daily States," 1880-1882, then became connected with the Mobile "Register" in the capacity of city editor. He held the latter position for two years, became managing editor of that paper in 1884, has been its vice president since 1889 and its editor since 1893. He has been a member of the state board of education of Alabama since 1904, has been a member of the state board for normal schools for white students since 1911, was formerly president of the Mobile Commercial Club, of the Mobile Symphony Orchestra, of the board of control of the Conference for Education in the South, of the State Normal School Board, and is president of the Iberville Historical Society, and of the Father Ryan Monument Association. He is a member of the joint committee on rivers and harbors, of the Mobile Cotton Exchange, and of the Chamber of Commerce. He is a Democrat and attends the Episcopal church. Married: December 12, 1878, Lura Harris (q. v.), daughter of Maj. W. Hooper Harris, of Nashville. Children: Frank, b. 1879, in New Orleans, La., m. 1909, Florence T. Roper, of Mobile. Residence: Mobile.

CRAIGHEAD, LURA (HARRIS), civic and patriotic worker, author, parliamentarian, president Alabama federation women's clubs, was born January 17, 1858, at Nashville, Davidson County, Tenn.; daughter of Major William Hooper and Frances Virginia (Martin) Harris, the former one of the first volunteers from Davidson County, Tenn., in the Confederate army serving first as lieutenant in Co. A, 1st battalion, Tennessee cavalry, transferred to Gen. Joseph Wheeler's cavalry, and promoted to rank of major, being made chief quartermaster and a member of Wheeler's staff, afterwards quartermaster of Humes' brigade, had part in several hard fought campaigns in Wheeler's division, a commission as colonel was made out for him just prior to the close of the war, but it never reached him, was slightly wounded once, captured and in prison once, before the war was engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Nashville, afterwards for several years was at the head of a large business in New York City, later was engaged in the cotton brokerage business in Nashville, and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Erwin Craighead, Mobile, August 11, 1908, aged seventy-three; granddaughter of Nathan and Janet (Lowry) Harris, the former a distinguished surgeon, and for many years in the employ of the U. S. government at the Cherokee Indian agency, in Tennessee, and of Dr. Charles Kennan Venable and Frances Holder (Williams) Martin of Nashville, Tenn.; great-great-granddaughter of Robert and Mary (Venable) Martin, the former of King and Queen County, Va., located and married, later, in Prince Edward County, served in both the French and Indian war and the War of the Revolution, and one of the founders of Methodism in Virginia, of Richard Kennon, a member of the provincial congress from Chatham County, 1775, and was re-elected, 1779, assisted in establishing a regular government, resting entirely on popular authority, instead of the royal government, and annihilated every vestige of the power of the last royal governor of North Carolina, and a signer of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, of Jesse Williams, one of the first to enlist from Culpeper County, in the war of 1776, held the rank of captain, and was in the battles of Great Bridge, Long Island, Harlem Heights, and the siege of Boston, and of John Holder, closely identified with Colonel Callaway in his Kentucky career, married his daughter Frances, the Frances Callaway, who, with her sister, Elizabeth, and Jemima Boone, daughter of Daniel, was captured by a roving band of Indians, July 14, 1776, while paddling about in a canoe on the Kentucky River just below the fort of Boonesborough, the young women being rescued by a party in which were included the three young men to whom they were betrothed, John Holder being one; great-great-great-granddaughter of Charles Venable, a descendant of William Venable, Duke of Vernon, and of French origin, and of Richard Callaway, one of those bold delegates who were called together just outside the fort of Boonesborough to organize the government of Transylvania, which, "short lived as it was, displayed the mettle of its founders and contained the germ of that independence that became the full grown plant in the famous Philadelphia declaration the year following," who signed the Transylvania Declaration of Independence, May 23, 1775, captain in the French and Indian wars prior to 1758, one of the trustees to lay out the town of New London, Va., and one of two commissioners to mark and make the first public road over the Cumberland Mountains into Kentucky County, justice of the peace, Kentucky County, 1776, member house of burgesses from the same county, April, 1777, re-elected 1779, one of the most valiant defenders of Boonesborough at all times and especially in the Duquesne Siege, 1778, killed by Indians in ambush, March, 1780, of Robert and Mourning (Glenn) Harris, the former a member of the house of burgesses from Hanover, surveyor for Louisa County, Va., justice of the peace, moved to Albemarle County and became large land owner from grant and purchase, colonel in the Albemarle militia, lived in Brown's Cove; great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Robert and Mary (Claiborne) Rice-Harris, 1630-1701, the former came from the town of Harrison-ton, Glamorgan, Wales, about 1650, and settled on the James River in Virginia, married Mary Claiborne Rice, daughter of Sir William Claiborne, and great-great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Sir William and Elizabeth (Butler) Claiborne. Mrs. Craighead received her early education in Miss Mary Dunn's private school, Nashville, Tenn., attended the public schools of New York City, and Ward's seminary, Nashville, Tenn., and graduated from the Patapsco institute, Baltimore, Md. She is a charter member, and first vice-president of the board of directors of the Alabama boys' industrial school, appointed by Gov. Joseph Johnston; charter member of the Daughters of the American Revolution; past president, Mobile art league and school, 1897-99, the Mobile Reading club, Alabama federation women's clubs, 1899-1900, Mobile Shakespeare club, Mobile city and county school improvement association, St. Cecilia chorus, Clara Schumann club, 1894-95; president for the past twelve years of the Benevolent home for aged and dependent women; chairman, Mobile council of defense, woman's division; past chairman, Mobile illiteracy campaign, 1916; member of the committee on school improvement, Alabama federation of women's clubs from 1905, when it was organized, until it asked to be discharged, 1911, having completed its mission and introduced organized effort in each of the sixty-seven counties of the state; led two campaigns in Mobile for the retention of kindergartens in the public school system of that city; member of the War Camp community service during the European war, and of the Suffrage association; now and for many years, member of the legislative committee of the Alabama federation of women's clubs, and particularly active in the effort to secure a law regulating child labor, resulting in one of the best child labor laws in the United States. In addition to the foregoing, Mrs. Craighead has worked and spoken throughout the state on civic, educational and patriotic subjects. Author: "Lessons on parliamentary law," a text book and manual; leaflet, "Instant answer to everyday questions on parliamentary law;" a pamphlet, "All the pros and cons concerning child-labor," used as campaign propaganda by the Alabama and Georgia federations of women's clubs; in preparation, "History of Alabama federation of women's clubs," besides numerous newspaper articles and circulars in the interest of educational institutions, better laws, and philanthropic, civic and patriotic enterprises. She is a Democrat and Episcopalian. Married: in 1878, in Nashville, Tenn., Erwin Craighead (q. v.). Children: 1. Frank, m. Florence Turner Roper, Nodena, Mississippi County, Ark. Residence: Mobile.

CRAIK, GEORGE WILLIAM, banker, born April 23, 1834, at Charleston, Kanawha County, W. Va., and died April 19, 1898, at Hazel Hedge, Montgomery; son of Dr. James and Juliet (Shrewsbury) Craik, the former a native of Alexandria, Va., who later lived at "Kana-wha," Louisville, Ky., rector for thirty-eight years of Christ church, Louisville, Ky., president of the General convention of the Episcopal church, 1862-74, author of The divine life and Search after truth; grandson of George Washington and Maria Dorcas (Tucker) Craik, of Alexandria, Va., and of Samuel Shrewsbury of Kanawha County, Va.; great-grandson of Dr. James Craik, a native of Arbigland, near Dumfries, Scotland, who immigrated to America in 1750 and upon the organization of the provincial regiments of Virginia, in 1754, was appointed surgeon. When young

George Washington succeeded to the leadership of the regiment, a life-time friendship began. Dr. Craik was with Washington during Braddock's campaign, and in 1755 when he was appointed to the command of the Virginia provincial army, Dr. Craik remained his chief medical officer. In 1770 he accompanied Washington upon the first of the two adventurous trips into the western wild. In April, 1777, he became assistant surgeon general of the army and in 1780 chief physician and surgeon of the Continental Army. His letter of warning to General Washington, exposing the Conway Cabal, forms one of the most interesting documents in the history of the period. At the close of the Revolutionary War, Dr. Craik retired to his home near Mount Vernon and continued his intimate friendship with his former chief and attended him in his last illness. His was the hand that closed the eyes of the dead Washington, and in his will is found a testimonial of his friendship for his physician and neighbor, the bequest being as follows: "To my compatriot in arms and old and intimate friend, Dr. Craik, I give my Tambour Secretary and the circular chair, an appendage of my study." George William Craik was educated in private schools, and in White Plains, N. Y. Later he traveled in Europe, and made a study of the old world history. While his career compelled him to live the life of the normal business man, his deeper love of the cultural and spiritual side was recognized by the community in which he lived. He was president of the Mobile and Montgomery railroad in 1882; secretary of the South and North railroad from 1885 until his death; vice-president of the First national bank, Montgomery; second president and founder of the Montgomery country club. He was an Episcopalian and a Knight Templar. Married: January 27, 1875, in Montgomery, to Jennie Patton, daughter of Dr. William Owen and Mary (Martin) Baldwin (q. v.); grand-daughter of Judge Abram Martin, and great-niece of Gov. Benjamin Fitzpatrick (q. v.). Children: 1. Mary Martin, m. Buckner Speed, New York; 2. Juliet Shrewsbury, m. Dr. Charles Teed Pollard, Montgomery; 3. Jean, m. William Nash Read, Montgomery; 4. Cecile, Paris, France. Last residence: Montgomery.

CRAM, DANIEL HOUSTON, civil engineer, soldier and president of railroad, was born August 11, 1829, at Hanover, N. H., and died March 31, 1881; son of John Shepard and Clarinda (Gregg) Cram, the former born at Parks Hollow, South Acworth, N. H., lived there, and at Hanover, N. H., where all his children were born; the grandson of Hilliard and Sarah (Gove) Cram, and of Joseph Gregg. The former family, Von Cramm, being of the race of Wends, of Slavic tribe, powerful in the sixth century in Northern and Eastern Germany, the family belonging to the oldest and most highly regarded families in the county of Brunswick, having always been related by marriage to many of the noble families of Northern Germany, members of the family yet being landed proprietors in the Duchy of Brunswick. D. H. Cram received his primary education at Moore academy, Hanover; in 1843 entered Dartmouth college, and during vacation practiced civil engineering under direction of his uncle, Joseph L. Gregg. On May 26th, 1847, he was appointed by President Polk, to a second lieutenancy in the Ninth infantry, United States army, was under command of General Winfield Scott in the Mexican War; served in the campaign resulting in the capture of the City of Mexico, being wounded at Contreras, resigned his office and resumed the practice of civil engineering in Vermont, then on the Atlanta and West Point railroad of Georgia, and the Alabama and Florida railroad of Alabama; was appointed in 1856 as assistant superintendent, and in 1858 as chief engineer and general superintendent, of the Montgomery and West Point railroad of Alabama, held this position during twelve years; resigned July 1, 1870, to accept the presidency of the Pensacola and Louisville railroad of Florida. Married: February 11, 1857, to Clementina Rebecca, daughter of Col. Lorenzo and Eliza (Scott) James (q. v.), who lived in Lowndes County. Children: 1. Eliza Scott, m. Edward Woodruff White, resides in Cincinnati, O.; 2. Clara Gregg, deceased; 3. Clementina Rebecca, m. John P. Kohn, resides in Montgomery. Last residence: Montgomery.

CRAMPTON, ORSON LUCIUS, physician; graduate of Bellevue, 1865, commenced the practice in 1878. Residence: Mobile.

CRANE, MAYFIELD, soldier of the American Revolution, aged 67, and a resident of Pickens County; private S. C. State troops; enrolled on April 13, 1834, under act of Congress of June 7, 1832, payment to date from March 4, 1831; annual allowance, $80.—Revolutionary Pension Roll, in vol. xiv, Sen. doc. 514, 23rd Cong., 1st sess., 1833-34.

CRANE, WILLIAM CAREY, clergyman, college president and author, was born March 17, 1816, in Richmond, Va., and died in Independence, Tex., February 26, 1885; son of William and Lydia (Dorret) Crane of Richmond, Va., the former born May 9, 1790, was compelled at a very early age to learn a trade, which he followed until 1811, in that year he began merchandising in Richmond, and was so prosperous and public spirited, that in time he became one of the most noted Baptists in Richmond and Baltimore, of his children, four sons acquired distinction in the religious, literary and political world; grandson of Rufus and Charity (Campbell) Crane, the former a soldier of the Revolution who lost all his property in that contest; great-great-grandson of Azaria and May (Trent) Crane, the latter the daughter of Governor Trent of Connecticut, who successfully withstood Sir Edmund Andros' demand for the charter of the colony which was concealed in the Charter Oak; great-great-grandson of Jasper Crane, who was one of the original settlers of Newark and its first magistrate. William Cary Crane was fortunate in having unusual educational advantages. He attended successively the best schools of Richmond, the Baptist seminary, now Richmond college, Mount Pleasant classical institution, Amherst, Mass., Columbian college, D. C., and Madison university, N. Y. He received his A. B. and A. M. degree from Columbian college, his D. D. from Howard college, and his LL. D. from Baylor university, Tex. His early life was passed in Virginia. On a profession of faith, he was baptized July 27, 1832, by Dr. James B. Taylor. He was licensed to preach by the Second Baptist church of Richmond, of which his father was the founder, and on September 23, 1838, in Baltimore, Md., he was ordained to the full work of the ministry. In 1837 he was elected a professor in the Baptist seminary, but declined and spent two years teaching and preaching in Georgia. From February, 1839, to January, 1851, he was pastor successively of churches in Montgomery, Columbus, Vicksburg and Yazoo City, Miss. He was successively president of the Yazoo classical hall, Yazoo, Miss., Mississippi female college, Hernando, Miss., Semple Broadus college, Centre Hill, Miss., and Mount Lebanon university, La. On July 3, 1863, he was elected president of Baylor university, Independence, Tex., and held that position until his death. During the many years of his presidency of this university, in surmounting the difficulties with which it was environed, he sacrificed forty thousand dollars of his salary, and about seven thousand dollars from his own means for the various objects connected with the interests of the university. He was often called upon to deliver addresses to Masons, Odd Fellows, and Sons of Temperance. By invitation of the Mississippi legislature, he once made an address to that body from the speaker's chair in Jackson. Years later he was accorded a similar honor by the Texas legislature. For twelve years, he was president of the Southern Baptist convention, and in 1870 was its vice-president. For three years he presided over the Louisiana Baptist State convention and for many years was president of the Texas Baptist State convention. During his entire life as an educator he always had charge of churches, and whenever an opportunity offered itself he preached the gospel, whether from a stump in the forest, or in the elegant churches of New York, Louisville, Richmond and Baltimore. Author: various articles contributed to newspapers and periodicals are very numerous, also a large number of sermons and literary addresses, "Memoir of Mrs. A. F. Crane," "A Collection of arguments and opinions on Baptism," "A Baptist catechism" and a "Life of Sam Houston." He was a member of various scientific and literary associations. He was a Mason, an Odd Fellow, and a Son of Temperance. Married: (1) Alcesta Flora Galusha of Rochester, N. Y., who was a grand-daughter of Governor Galusha of Vermont; (2) Jane S. Wright, of Rochester, N. Y.; (3) April 26, 1845, Kate Jane Shepherd of Mobile. Last residence: Independence, Tex.

CRANFORD, JOHN HARVEY, business man, was born March 12, 1855, near Jasper; son of Chesley Hardy and Elmartha (Morris) Cranford, the former a farmer, who served for four years in the War of Secession; grandson of

JUDGE HENRY B. FOSTER

John and Elizabeth (Wilkes) Cranford, and of John Harvey and Catherine (Hubbard) Morris, the latter a sister of Hon. David Hubbard of Lawrence County, first Confederate commissioner of Indian affairs. Mr. Cranford attended the country schools of Walker County; taught for five years; then clerked in a store for a time. He was mayor of Jasper, being nominated by acclamation and elected without opposition, 1892-1894, and 1904-1906. He is president of the First National Bank of Jasper; president and principal stockholder of the Cranford Mercantile Company; president of the Jasper Water, Light and Power Company; and of the Cranford Coal Company. He is a Democrat, a member of the Christian church, and a Mason. Married: October 18, 1892, at San Antonio, Tex., to Annis Eleanor, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Morris) Lyon, of Barnesville, Ga. Residence: Jasper.

CRAVEN, T. A., teacher, located in Eufaula, and later removed to Union Springs. Deceased. Last residence: Abbeville.

CRAWFORD, BEVERLY, deceased Presbyterian minister, mentioned in Nall's "Dead of the Synod of Alabama," 1851.

CRAWFORD, DANIEL, public official, was born in North Carolina, and came to Alabama in his youth, about 1833. He was for several years connected with the mills owned by John McNeil in Autauga, and later with the gold diggings at Goldville, Tallapoosa County. He settled at Coosa about 1840, and established himself as a planter and mill owner. He was elected to the State legislature from that county in 1847, serving in that body on the committee of ways and means and in formulating the revenue bill of that year. In 1857 he was sent to the State senate for a term, and in 1865 was elected a delegate to the state constitutional convention. After he was disfranchised by the reconstruction acts in 1867, he retired to private life. Last residence: Coosa County.

CRAWFORD, EUGENE LOWTHER, Methodist minister, was born January 12, 1871, at Glennville, Barbour County; son of Robert Blakely and Martha Frances (Stephenson) Crawford, who lived at Montgomery, Mobile, Talladega, White Plains, Glennville, Demopolis, Opelika, and Eufaula, the former a Methodist preacher, secretary of the Alabama conference for fifteen years and twice a delegate to the general conference; grandson of Robert Blakely and Olivia (Howard) Crawford, who lived at Smith's Station, Lee County, where their son was born, and of Josiah and Susan (Madison) Stephenson, who were moving to Texas and were probably at Coffeetown, Miss., at the time of their daughter's birth; great-grandson of Josiah and Martha (Green) Stephenson, the latter a relative of Nathaniel Green; great-great-grandson of John Stephenson. He was educated in private and public schools, in Barton Academy, Mobile, and at the Southern University, where he was graduated, A. B., 1891. He was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal church, south, at Eufaula, November 30, 1893, and admitted on trial into the Alabama conference in session at Opelika the following December. He has preached at Washington Street church, Eufaula; at Tuskegee; at the Perry Street church, Montgomery; and at Eutaw; has been presiding elder of Pensacola District, Greensboro, Union Springs, Andalusia and Enterprise; and has been in charge, in Texas, of the Central church at Galveston and the church at Crockett. He has been a traveling elder and assistant secretary of the Alabama Conference. He is a Democrat, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, of the Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of the World, and the Columbian Woodmen. For a time he was chairman of the temperance committee of the Alabama Conference, was trustee of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League several years, was leader of the movement which gave Bullock County prohibition in 1907, and was associated with the leader of the amendment forces in 1909 in that county; was secretary of the amendment meeting in Birmingham, September, 1909, and of the meeting of amendment forces which met in Montgomery a short time afterward. Married: October 30, 1902, at Tuscaloosa, Martha Gindrat Thorington, who died March 20, 1911, daughter of Judge William S. and Mary Ella (Chilton) Thorington, who lived at Montgomery. Children: 1. Frances, b. in Crockett, Tex., December 11, 1903; 2. Lucile, b. in Greensboro, August 6, 1905; 3. Martha Stephenson, b. in Union Springs, July 3, 1909. Residence: Enterprise.

CRAWFORD, GEORGE GORDON, president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, was born August 24, 1869, at Madison, Morgan County, Ga.; son of George Gilmore and Margaret Reed (Howard) Crawford, the former born near Jonesboro, Henry County, Ga., who lived at Atlanta, Ga., entered the War of Secession in 1861 as captain of Co. F, Tenth Georgia volunteers, C. S. Army, was made surgeon of the Tenth regiment of Georgia volunteers, was professor of anatomy in Atlanta Medical College, and later professor of surgery in the Southern Medical College; grandson of Thomas Shauklin and Alice (Dorsey) Crawford, who lived near Jonesboro, Henry County, Ga., and of Dr. John Gordon and Margaret (Reed) Howard, of Savannah, Ga. He received his early education at Means high school, Atlanta, Ga., and in Prof. Charles Neel's school, near Atlanta; attended Georgia Military and Agricultural College, Milledgeville, Ga.; was graduated in mechanical engineering from the Georgia School of Technology, B. S., 1890, in the first class to graduate from that institution; and was a student, specializing in chemistry, in the Karl-Eberhard university, Tuebingen, Germany, 1891-1892.

He became draughtsman in 1892, of the Sloss Iron & Steel Company, Birmingham; was chemist, 1892-1894; engineer, 1894-1895, and assistant superintendent of furnaces, 1895-1897, of the Carnegie Steel Company, Edgar-Thompson Works, Braddock, Pa.; superintendent of furnaces and steel works, National Tube Company, McKeesport, Pa., 1897-1899; superintendent of blast furnaces, Carnegie Steel Company, Edgar-Thompson Works, Braddock, Pa., 1899-1901; manager of the national department, comprising blast furnaces, steel works, rolling mills, tube and pipe mills, galvanizing works, etc., of the National Tube Company located at McKeesport, Riverton, Versailles, and South Side Pittsburgh, Pa., 1901-1907, rebuilding all the departments during that time; president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, Birmingham, since 1907. He is a director of the First National Bank at Birmingham, and of the American Trust & Savings Bank. Mr. Crawford is a member of the Southern Club of Birmingham, the Duquesne Club, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and the Engineers' Club, New York. Married: February 1, 1911, at New Orleans, La., Margaret Richardson, daughter of William P. and Lina (Gordon) Richardson, who lived at Savannah, Ga., and New Orleans. Residence: Birmingham.

CRAWFORD, JAMES, commission merchant, was born January 18, 1807, at Winnsboro, Fairfield County, S. C., and died September 29, 1881, at Sweet Springs, Mo.; son of Andrew and Jane (Bones) Crawford, natives of County Antrim, Ireland, born August 8, 1770, and February 1, 1776, respectively, who were married April 10, 1793, lived at their ancestral home, "Castle Davidson," until 1802, when, being under suspicion as sympathizers of Robert Emmet, they emigrated to Winnsboro, S. C., and lived there until 1842. The family of Crawford was originally from Scotland, and was entitled to wear armorial bearings. One ancestor was captain in the English army at the battle of the Boyne under William III, and a member of the family in Ireland held the position of surgeon in the British army. Mr. Crawford was brother of Dr. William Crawford, who married a daughter of Gov. Gayle. When he was twenty years old, he moved from Winnsboro to Columbia, S. C., and joined his brothers, John A. and Andrew Crawford, in the commission business. He came to Mobile in 1827, and became associated with the cotton factors Purvis, Andrews & Company, until 1845, when he formed the partnership of Crawford & Gowdey. That firm was dissolved in 1850, and Col. Crawford continued the business alone. He had held the agency of the bank of Charleston until 1849. For the fourth time, in 1861, he entered military service. He had been captain of a volunteer company in Columbia, S. C.; had organized the Mobile Rifles in 1835 and served as first lieutenant of that company in the Creek War; and ten years later, as captain of that company, had been mustered into service for the Mexican War. When the War of Secession began, he was unanimously elected captain of the Woodruff Rifles, Twenty-first Alabama Infantry. He was promoted to colonel of the regiment, and served as such until forced by failing health to resign his command. He returned to his plantation home, and spent the remainder of time during the war in raising provisions for the army. After the end of the war, he returned to Mobile and resumed mercantile life as a member of the firm, Crawford, Walsh, Smith & Company, which added the importation of coffee to its cotton business. He died at Sweet Springs, Mo., and was buried with military honors at Magnolia Cemetery, Mobile.

Married: October 18, 1842, in Eutaw, Greene County, Zemula Walker Creswell, daughter of Judge Robert and Mary (Davis) Creswell, of Eutaw; granddaughter of Rev. James and Molly (Garlington) Creswell, who were married in 1760, the former, of Scotch-Irish descent, who left Ireland during the persecutions of Bloody Mary, and settled in Virginia and the Carolinas, where he established the first Presbyterian churches, the latter the niece and namesake of Mary Washington. Children: 1. Mary J., m. Darwin W. Marmaduke, who died in Missouri, resides in Seattle, Wash.; 2. Robert Creswell, merchant, b. September 28, 1845, deceased, was first sergeant, third, second, and first lieutenants of Cos. D and I, Eighth Alabama regiment C. S. Army, served as deputy U. S. marshal, 1885-1889, m. December 16, 1869, Louisa Hopkins Blevins, last residence, Mobile; 3. Zemula C., m. Leslie Marmaduke, resides in Joplin, Mo.; 4. Margaret L., m. Dr. William MacD. Mastin, resides in Mobile; 5. James William, deceased, m. Corinne Phillips, of Mobile. Last residence: Mobile.

CRAWFORD, JAMES W., member of the constitutional convention of 1861, from Bibb County.

CRAWFORD, J. T., member of the constitutional convention of 1865, from Macon County.

CRAWFORD, PETER, Baptist minister and founder of Judson female college, was born in 1809, in Virginia, and died April 25, 1873, at Keachi, La. He was educated at Richmond college, Va.; professed religion in 1831, and engaged in preaching and teaching. He removed to Marion in 1835 and was one of the founders of Judson female college. He taught for some time in the Central female college, Miss., and later became president of Keachi female college, La. Last residence: Keachi, La.

CRAWFORD, WILLIAM, second federal district judge of Alabama, was born in 1784, and died in 1849 in Mobile. He came from Louisa County, Va., to St. Stephens as federal district attorney in 1817. He was elected president of the bank at St. Stephens in 1818, and was law partner there of Hon. Henry Hitchcock until the latter was transferred to the bench. In 1822, Judge Crawford was a candidate before the legislature for the federal senate against two or three competitors. On the first ballot he ran ahead of Hon. William R. King, of Dallas County, but when the contest was narrowed down to the two, he was defeated. He was elected to the State senate from the district composed of Washington, Mobile and Baldwin Counties in 1825, and resigned his seat in that body the following year to accept the office of federal district judge. He filled that office from 1826 until his death in 1849, taking no further active part in political affairs after he assumed that position. He went to Mobile to reside in 1827. He was a trustee of the University of Alabama, 1824-1828. Married: in 1820, at St. Stephens, Temperance Winnifred Fitts, who was born in 1802, and died in August, 1867, a daughter of Judge Oliver Fitts, a North Carolinian, whose son represented Washington County in the legislature at one time. Last residence: Mobile.

CRAWFORD, WILLIAM WEBB, banker, was born August 27, 1867, at Eutaw, Greene County; son of Col. Robert and Frances Elizabeth (Webb) Crawford, who lived at Eutaw, St. Louis, Mo., and Birmingham, the former a lawyer who served in the C. S. Army, during the War of Secession; grandson of Nelson A. and Julia (Penn) Crawford, of Eutaw, and of William P. and Martha (Bell) Webb (q. v.). He was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, Mo., until he was sixteen years of age, when he became shipping clerk for a large pork-packing establishment at that place. Upon the death of his father in 1884, he returned to Alabama with his mother and entered the banking house of A. Lawson, at Greensboro. He moved to Birmingham, 1886, and became connected with the Berner Bank as bookkeeper, and later, as teller. He has been banking in Greensboro and Birmingham since 1896, and is now president of the American Trust & Savings Bank at Birmingham. He served as treasurer of the city of Birmingham in 1892. Mr. Crawford is a Democrat, a Presbyterian, and a Mason. Married: June 21, 1891, at Nashville, Tenn., Juliet Irwin Cherry, daughter of Edgar and Mary D. (Irwin) Cherry, who lived at Savannah, Tenn.; granddaughter of William H. Cherry, of Savannah and Nashville, Tenn. Children: 1. William Webb, jr., Birmingham; 2. Edgar Cherry, Birmingham. Residence: Birmingham.

CREAGH, GERARD WALTHALL, planter and merchant, was born in 1790, in South Carolina, and died November, 1849, at Suggsville; son of Thomas Bivin and Rebecca (Walthall) Creagh (q. v.); brother of Memorable Walker Creagh (q. v.). He attended the old field schools of South Carolina, and was one of the early graduates of South Carolina College. He came to Alabama in 1812, when the state was still part of Mississippi Territory, bought some land, and established himself with his slaves on a plantation. At the time of the Indian uprising in 1813, he enlisted as a lieutenant in the company of Capt. Sam Dale, was wounded in the Battle of Burnt Corn, took part in the "Canoe Fight," and at the capture of Econochaca, and was mustered out at the conclusion of the Creek War at Tuskegee. After the war, Mr. Creagh became a merchant in addition to his planting. He was elected to the State legislature in 1819, being one of the first representatives from Clarke County, and was re-elected in 1820. In 1838, he was again sent to the lower house, and in 1839 was elected to the State senate. He was returned to the senate in 1842, was defeated for a seat in that body in 1845, but in 1847 was again re-elected. He was regularly appointed chairman of the committee on accounts, and was the first man in Alabama to be called the watchdog of the treasury. He was a Democrat, and a Mason, being a charter member and master of his lodge at Suggsville. Married: at Suggsville, Ann Eliza Davis, daughter of Thomas and Susan Davis, who lived at Lower Peach Tree. Children: 1. Tancred Rufus, d. in eighteenth year; 2. Noval, d. in fourteenth year; 3. Eliza Davis, m. Col. Stephen Beech Cleveland, left one daughter, Lillian, who married Dr. C. I. Dahlberg; 4. Rebecca Clara Ann, m. Col. Thomas Powe Falconer, had several children who live in Mississippi; 5. Thomas Bivin, b. March 21, 1842, private, sergeant and brevet second lieutenant, C. S. Army, taught school in Clarke County until 1892, since then clerk, m. January 15, 1862, at Nashville, Zuleika Bugg, resides at Selma, children: Fannie Louise Anna Zuleika, and John Wesley, m. Genevieve Smith; 6. Gerard Walthall, m. Emma May, of Greensboro. Last residence: Suggsville.

CREAGH, MEMORABLE WALKER, lawyer, was born July 4, 1817, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died May 21 1872, at Demopolis; son of Thomas Bivin and Rebecca (Walthall) Creagh (q. v.); brother of Gerard Walthall Creagh (q. v.). He received a collegiate education, was graduated in law in South Carolina and in medicine in Philadelphia, but never practiced either profession. He came from South Carolina to Alabama in 1826, and settled on a plantation near Union Town, given him by his father. He became a large slave owner and an active politician. He lived at Union Town about three years, then built a large colonial home at McKinley. He remained at that place until 1858, then built a home on his plantation in Wilcox County near Prairie Bluff, where he lived until after the war. From that time until his death he lived at Demopolis. He was an old line Whig until his party died, then became a Democrat. Dr. Creagh represented Marengo County in the State legislature in 1849, and in 1853. He was a Methodist and a Mason. Married: (1) Sarah Harris, of Clarke County, the daughter of his stepmother; (2) at Spring Hill, Marengo County, Willie Harris Burton, daughter of John and Sarah (Glover) Burton, who lived at White Hall, Marengo County, granddaughter of John Frederick and Jean Glover; great-granddaughter of Frederick and Elizabeth (Cato) Glover, of Louisiana, who moved from that place to Abbeville District, S. C.; great-great-granddaughter of Benjamin and Olivia Glover; great-great-great-granddaughter of Richard Glover, of Jamestown, Va., who lived there in 1635. Children, by second marriage: 1. Rebecca Walthall, m. William Ross Brooks, of Mobile; 2. Sarah Glover, m. John Cox Webb, Demopolis; 3. Willie Burton, deceased, m. George Clifton Clarke, son of Judge William E. Clarke, child, Mrs. Richard Inge, of Greensboro; 4. Thomas Bivin, deceased; 5. Alexander Milton, deceased; 6. Amanda Burton, deceased; 7. Clara Falconer; 8. Mary Burton, m. John

B. Wilson, of Columbiana, who served as mayor of Demopolis, children, two daughters. Last residence: Demopolis.

CREAGH, THOMAS BIVIN, farmer, was born at Donerail, County Cork, Ireland, and died February, 1842, at Boiling Springs, Wilcox County; son of John and Sarah O. (Moore) Creagh, of Donerail, County Cork, Ireland. The founder of the name was a son of King O'Neil, of Ulster, who commanded a body of troops in the Castle of Limerick at the time the Danes invaded Ireland. He defeated the Danes with great slaughter, and when he returned to the castle, the population turned out to greet him, placing laurel in the horses' bridles. Laurel in Irish is known as "creagh," and he was known from that time on as Creigh O'Neil, until O'Neil was dropped and Creagh alone used. The street in Ireland leading from that castle to the river is known as Creagh Lane to this day. Mr. Creagh came to America as an English officer with Gen. Braddock, before the Revolution. He was an educated man who later held office under the British government, but he did not return to Europe. There is a tradition that it was to Capt. Creagh that George Washington spoke, when he said that Braddock could not fight the Indians by the method he was then pursuing. He settled in Lynchburg, Va., after retiring from the army, and was married there. He moved to North Carolina for a short time, then located in South Carolina, near the Georgia line. He was a farmer and a large slave owner. He lived in Abbeville, S. C., until after his wife died, then broke up his home and followed his son, George, to Alabama, settling near Suggsville. His home was made of lumber sawed with a whip saw by hand before there was a mill. He was a Master Mason perhaps the first grand master of that order in the state of Alabama, and was high priest of his chapter. He was a Democrat. Married: (1) at Lynchburg, Va., Rebecca Walthall, daughter of Gerard and Eliza Ann (Davis) Walthall, who lived on a plantation at Lynchburg, Va., a descendant of the Davis family of Salisbury, N. C., of Scotch-Irish ancestry, who emigrated to America, settling first at Salisbury and later moving to Lower Peach Tree; (2) Winifred Davis, of Clarke County. Children, by first marriage: 1. John G., b. 1787, in South Carolina, was educated in Dr. Waddell's academy, was an early settler in Alabama, a lawyer and farmer, who was elected to the State legislature five times from Clarke County, and served one term as probate judge, d. in 1839, m. Clara Howze, who later married Judge A. B. Cooper, had one child, Clara, d. in childhood; 2. Richard P., attorney general of Mississippi, who was killed in a rencontre in 1823, while occupying that position; 3. Gerard Walthall (q. v.); 4. Edward A., who came from South Carolina to Alabama, d. unmarried; 5. Lorenzo; 6. Memorable Walker (q. v.); 7. Milton Alexander, m. (1) Ann Howze, deceased, child, John Wesley, m. Lizzie Simmons, of North Carolina, (2) Willie H. Glover, daughter of Ben Glover, who lived near Dayton, children, Clara, Amanda Hughes, Sallie and Willie.

Last residence: Boiling Springs, Wilcox County.

CREECH, DAVID BRYANT, member secession convention, 1861, was born July 2, 1811, in Montgomery County, Ga., and died at Sylvan Grove, Dale County, June 4, 1863; son of Joshua and Mary (Bryant) Creech, the former an immigrant from England to Virginia. David B. Creech removed from Telfair County, Ga., to Alabama in 1854. He had previously served as an officer in the Indian war of 1836. He represented Dale County in the legislature of 1860-61; was a member of the Secession convention of 1861; acted as a mustering officer for Confederate Army, ill health preventing active service. Married: Judith Douglas, daughter of Alexander and Sarah McClennan, residents of Lumber City, Ga., the former was a native of Scotland. Descendants reside in southeast Alabama. Last residence: Sylvan Grove.

CRENSHAW, ANDERSON, lawyer, was born May 22, 1783, in Newberry District, S. C., and died August 31, 1847, in Butler County; son of Charles and Eunice (White) Crenshaw, who lived in Newberry District, S. C., the former of whom was tax collector at that place for many years; the latter, a native of Virginia, born in 1753; grandson of John and Betty (Lee) White, of Virginia. He was the first graduate of South Carolina College, at Columbia, 1806, and after leaving college studied law in the office of Judge Nott. He was licensed to practice in 1809, and immediately entered the legal profession. He was elected to the South Carolina legislature in 1812, and some years later was a candidate for congress, but was defeated. He moved to Alabama in 1819, and settled at Cahaba, where he practiced law for a short time. He was elected circuit judge in 1821, and, as such, was judge of the supreme court, which was composed of circuit judges, until the supreme and circuit courts were separated in 1832, after which time he continued on the circuit bench until 1838. He resigned from that position in 1838 in order to accept the election to the office of chancellor of the southern division at the organization of the separate court of chancery. He served as chancellor until his death in 1847. He was a Whig in politics, but so moderate in his views that he was retained in office under elections of the legislature in which Democratic majorities existed. The State legislature named Crenshaw County in his honor in 1865. Married: Mary Chiles, of Abbeville District, S. C. Children: 1. Walter Henry (q. v.); 2. Thomas Chiles, planter, b. December, 1818, d. November 10, 1899, served as representative in the State legislature 1866-1867, m. 1841, in Butler County, Lucinda Womack, last residence: Manningsham; 3. Charles Edward, minister, b. August 8, 1821, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., was licensed to preach by the Methodist Protestant church, m. (1) April 8, 1847, at Hickory Grove, Montgomery County, Mary Louisa Coleman, (2) August, 1877, Lydia Grant Shaw last residence, Coosada; 4. Frederick William, planter, b.

February 18, 1824, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., m. (1) 1850, Elvira Caroline Womack, (2) 1871, Sarah Lewis, last residence, Manningsham. Last residence: Butler County.

CRENSHAW, ARTHUR, lieutenant commander U. S. Navy, a member of the well known Crenshaw family of Alabama, was born March 4, 1875, at Clinton, N. C.; son of Edward and Sarah Edith (Brittain) Crenshaw, the former of Butler County, and the latter of Georgetown, Dunarara, British Guiana; great-great-grandson of Gen. John Arthur Elmore (q. v.), of Revolutionary fame. He received his early education in the public and private schools at Greenville, and at the U. S. naval academy. He was an ensign on board the U. S. S. Maine at the time of the explosion in the Havana harbor; served during the Spanish American War on the San Francisco; inspector of machinery for the government, Bath, Me.; and promoted lieutenant commander, U. S. Navy, July 1, 1909. Married: March 19, 1900, at Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, to Theodora Jacobs.

CRENSHAW, BOLLING HALL, professor Alabama polytechnic institute, was born May 18, 1867, at Greenville, Butler County; son of Walter Henry and Sarah Anderson (Anderson) Crenshaw; grandson of Anderson and Mary (Chiles) Crenshaw (q. v.). He was educated at public schools in Greenville, Birmingham, and Montgomery, and at the Alabama polytechnic institute, Auburn, graduating in 1889, with the degree of B. S. and "with highest honors," and in 1890 with the degree of M. E. He is a teacher by profession, and from 1891 to date has been connected with the department of mathematics, Alabama polytechnic institute. He is a Democrat; and a Presbyterian. Married: April 29, 1896, at Auburn, to Willie, daughter of Emory Thomas and Elizabeth (Ross) Glenn, who lived at Auburn. Children: 1. Mary Glenn; 2. Sarah Hall. Residence: Auburn.

CRENSHAW, EDWARD, lawyer, was born August 29, 1842, in Butler County; son of Judge Walter Henry and Sarah Anderson (Crenshaw) Crenshaw (q. v.); grandson of Judge Anderson and Mary (Chiles) Crenshaw (q. v.). He was graduated from the University of Alabama, and from the law school of the University of Virginia, 1861. He entered the C. S. Army that year, enlisting as second lieutenant of Co. K, Seventeenth Alabama volunteer infantry, and served with that command until March, 1863, when he was promoted to captain of Co. B, Fifty-eighth Alabama regiment. In May, 1864, he was appointed second lieutenant of the Confederate marine corps, and subsequently became first lieutenant of marines on the Confederate privateer Tallahassee, which captured about forty Union vessels during the war. After the war closed he opened a law office in Greenville. In 1869, he was elected clerk of the circuit court for Butler County, and held that office for five years. He served as county solicitor, 1879-

1883, and later as city attorney of Greenville. Married: May, 1874, at Greenville, Sarah Edith Brittain. Children: 1. Arthur; 2. Edith. Residence: Greenville.

CRENSHAW, JAMES HERVEY, printer and publisher, was born February 2, 1849, in Montgomery; son of James Hervey and Marie Louise (Butts) Crenshaw, the former born in Washington, Wilkes County, Ga.; grandson of Miles Crenshaw, of Washington, Ga., and of Thomas and Elizabeth (Lucas) Butts, of Macon County. He was educated in the schools of Montgomery, and Lookout Mountain educational institutions; began work as bookkeeper for "Alabama State journal," 1868; in 1872 went with Barrett & Brown; in 1883 became member of the printing firm of W. D. Brown & co.; in 1886 was made secretary and treasurer, and in 1908 president of the Brown printing company. He is a Democrat; a Knight of Pythias; and a Presbyterian. Married: December 26, 1873, at Mobile, to Mollie Childers, daughter of David Jordan and Mary Elizabeth (Childers) Files. Children: 1. Hervey Files, m. Pauline Smith, of Montgomery; 2. James Clinton, deceased; 3. Ware, deceased; 4. Henry Childers, m. Annie Edwina, daughter of Henry Danziger, of Montgomery; 5. Elizabeth, deceased; 6. Mary Belle, m. Walter Dorman Shepard, of Montgomery. Residence: Montgomery.

CRENSHAW, THADDEUS HENRY, planter and legislator, was born April 30, 1862, at "The Ridge," Butler County; son of Frederick William and Elmira Caroline (Womack) Crenshaw, of Butler County, the former was a soldier in Capt. S. B. Bolling's Co., C. S. Army; grandson of Anderson and Mary (Childs) Crenshaw and of Jacob Lewis and Agnes (Childs) Womack; great-grandson of Charles Crenshaw who came from England, first settling in Virginia. He was educated in the public schools of Butler County, and is a cotton planter. In 1900-01 and 1911-15, he was a member of the house of representatives from Butler County. He is a Democrat; a Methodist. Married: in 1886, at Birmingham, to Annie Hadden, daughter of Joseph and Caroline (Crenshaw) Calvin, D. D., of Oakland college, near Rodney, Miss., the former was of Huguenot descent and came to America from Ireland at the age of 17; he was educated at Princeton, for the Presbyterian ministry. Children: 1. Thaddeus Henry, jr., m. Martha Donimick; 2. Louise; 3. Mary; 4. Irene, deceased; 5. John; 6. Joseph; 7. Anna. Residence: Forest Home.

CRENSHAW, WALTER HENRY, lawyer and planter, was born July 17, 1817, in Abbeville District, S. C., and died December 7, 1878, at Greenville; son of Judge Anderson and Mary (Chiles) Crenshaw (q. v.). He obtained his early education from a classical school established in Butler County by his father and some neighbors and was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1834, in the class with Hon. C. C. Clay (q. v.). Three years later the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by the University of Alabama.

He studied law under his father, was admitted to the bar, and became a lawyer and planter in Butler County. He was elected to the lower house of the legislature in 1838, and was re-elected in 1840. From that time until 1867, with but very little intermission, he served in one or the other branch of the legislature, being defeated but once. He was speaker of the house from 1861 to 1865; in 1865 and 1866 was president of the senate; and was a member of the state constitutional convention of 1865. On the establishment of the criminal court of Butler County, 1871, Judge Crenshaw was elected judge. He resigned that position in 1873 in order to accept the appointment of code commissioner. He was one of the compilers of the Code of 1876. When quite a young man, he had been colonel of militia. He was an old line Whig before the War of Secession, and after that time was a conservative Democrat. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. Married: August 17, 1841, at Wetumpka, Sarah Anderson Crenshaw, his first cousin, daughter of Dr. Abner and Charlotte P. (Elmore) Crenshaw, who lived in South Carolina; granddaughter of Charles and Eunice (White) Crenshaw, and of Gen. John A. and Mary Ann S. (Saxon) Elmore. Children: 1. Edward (q. v.); 2. Walter H., jr., m. Sallie Bell, Coleman, Sumter County, Fla.; 3. Abner F., m. Laura Olive, Coleman, Sumter County, Fla.; 4. Anderson unmarried, Calhoun, Lowndes County; 5. John E., unmarried, Montgomery; 6. Leonora, Greenville; 7. Bolling H., professor, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, m. Willie Glenn, Auburn. Last residence: Greenville.

CRESSWELL, JULIA PAMELIA PLEASANTS, author, was born August 21, 1827, at Huntsville, and died June 9, 1886 at Jackson, La.; daughter of Col. James Jay and Emily Julia (Bibb) Pleasants who lived at Huntsville, the former a commission merchant, a native of Hanover County, Va., who came to Alabama, and was elected secretary of state, 1822-1824; granddaughter of Gov. Thomas and Pamela (Thompson) Bibb, who lived at Belle Mina homestead, near Huntsville, the former of whom was the second governor of Alabama, succeeding his brother to that office. She was reared and educated in Huntsville, and was graduated from a young ladies' seminary at that place. After her marriage she lived in Mansfield, La., until the end of the War of Secession, when she moved to Shreveport, La. She taught for one term in a young ladies' seminary at Shreveport, while her husband resumed his law practice. Later she conducted a private school in her home for two terms. She was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. She was author of "Aphelia, and Other Poems by Two Cousins of the South," in conjunction with T. M. B. Bradley, of Huntsville, published in 1854; "Poems"; "Callamura," an allegorical novel, published 1868; a posthumous volume of poems; "Abracadabra," a novel which was never published; and a book of short poems which she had ready for publication, dedicated to George D. Prentice in appreciation of his unswerving devotion to Southern literature, but never published. Married: October 11, 1854, at Huntsville, David Cresswell, son of Robert and Mary (Davis) Cresswell, who lived at Eutaw, the former a lawyer, whose father, a Presbyterian minister, came from Ireland. Mr. Cresswell was a graduate of Columbia Law School, South Carolina, was a district judge before the War of Secession, and a parish judge for eighteen years after the war. He died September, 1876. Before his marriage to Miss Pleasants, he had been married to Gertrude Thornton, by whom he had one son, Harry Thornton Cresswell, a lawyer, of San Francisco, Calif. Children: 1. David Lewis, Steins, N. Mex.; 2. Adrienne, resides in San Diego, Calif., m. Elijah P. Butts, deceased; 3. Robert Paul, Tornillo, Tex.; 4. James Pleasants, Shreveport, La.; 5. Sydmore, d. at three years of age; 6. Kenneth, d. at two years of age; 7. Julien, d. at one year of age; 8. Frank Lyon, Steins, N. Mex. Last residence: Shreveport, La.

CRIBBS, DANIEL, business man, was born May 8, 1800, at Greensboro, Westmoreland County, Pa. He moved from Pennsylvania in 1806 with his parents to New Philadelphia, Pa. While living at that place at the time of Hull's surrender, 1813, Gov. Meigs, then on a visit to his father, desired to send a message to Detroit. The perilous mission was undertaken and accomplished satisfactorily by the thirteen year old boy. The Cribbs family returned to Pennsylvania some years later, and lived at Pittsburgh for two years. Mr. Cribbs came to Alabama in 1823 and made his home in Greene County until 1828, when he settled in Tuscaloosa County, two miles from the city of Tuscaloosa. He was engaged in the steamboat business and lost heavily by the explosion of the Tuscaloosa in 1845. He was elected sheriff of Tuscaloosa County, 1842-1845; went to California in 1850 to search for gold; was successful in his search; and returned to Alabama to invest his means in slaves to cultivate his farm near Tuscaloosa. He established the first stoneware manufactory in the state at Tuscaloosa, and conducted it successfully until the outbreak of war in 1861. Married: in 1828, Amy La Vergy, of Greene County. He had nine children: one son, Harvey H., b. June 17, 1832, in Tuscaloosa, was elected sheriff of Tuscaloosa County in 1860, by the largest vote polled for that office in the county up to that time, resigned that position in 1862 to assist in the organization of Lumsden's battery, of which he was elected first lieutenant, served with that command until 1864, when he resigned his commission to take the post of scout by detail, under Lieut. Wright, Second Alabama cavalry, was captured on the eve of the surrender near Charleston, S. C., and for some time confined in that city, entered the grocery business in Mobile, becoming a member of the firm of Cribbs, Davidson & Company, wholesale grocers, for twelve years, returned to Tuscaloosa as a broker and insurance agent, m. 1870, Carrie Roper, seven children. Last residence: Tuscaloosa.

DR. WILLIAM D. PARTLOW

CRITTENDEN, MOSES H., business man, was born August 31, 1851, in Lauderdale County; son of Wm. H. and Octavia (Ingram) Crittenden. He was educated in common schools of Florence; studied medicine for a short time; in 1873 removed to Birmingham, where he engaged in mercantile and real estate business. He is a Knight of Pythias. Married: November 14, 1878, to Sallie J. Goodrich, of Kentucky. Children: 1. Lula O.; 2. Erline, m. J. Q. Smith; 3. Inez, m. Homer E. Starks, Montgomery. Residence: Birmingham.

CRITTENDEN, ROBERT FLOURNOY, farmer, colonel, C. S. Army, was born November 5, 1837, in Talbot County, Ga.; son of Cincinnati Decatur and Emmaline Amanda (Mahone) Crittenden, of Bellview, Ga.; grandson of Robert Green and Nancy (Crowder) Crittenden, all of Hancock County, Ga., and of Peter Flournoy and Elizabeth (Marshall) Mahone, of Talbot County. C. D. Crittenden was a native of Hancock County, and served as a soldier in the Seminole War in Florida. Robert Crittenden was educated by his uncle, Oliver A. Crittenden, and by M. A. McNulty, in a country school. He then read law, and taught school two years. In 1860 he moved to Coffee County. In April, 1862, he entered the C. S. Army as captain of Co. I, Thirty-third Alabama infantry regiment, organized at Pensacola, which proceeded to Corinth after the battle of Shiloh. Capt. Crittenden was soon promoted major of the regiment, and later lieutenant-colonel. He was with the regiment in all of its campaigns, and after the death of Col. Samuel Adams, July 21, 1864, he succeeded to the command, and, prior to the Tennessee campaign, was promoted colonel. He was captured at the battle of Franklin, November 30, 1864, sent as a prisoner of war to Johnson's Island, where he remained until his release in July, 1865. He then returned to Alabama, where he remained until 1870, when he moved to Georgia. In 1872 he was elected to the legislature of that state, and again in 1889; and since that date he has been closely identified with Georgia politics. He has always been a farmer; is a Methodist, and a Mason. Married: at Eatonton, Ga., in 1860, to Frances Massie, daughter of Alexander and Frances (Terrell) Reid. The great-grandfather of Alexander Reid was a Revolutionary soldier, and his knee-buckles and a silver eagle that he wore on his hat are still in the possession of his descendants. Children: 1. Anna Bell, m. James Crittenden Simpson; 2. Emaline Virginia, m. John Mercer Wooten; 3. Marshall Mahone; 4. Oscar Alexander, m. Sarah Helen Land; 5. Robert Flournoy; 6. Henrietta Maria, m. John Mercer Bell. Residence: Shellman, Ga.

CROCHERON, HENRY NICHOLAS, planter, was born October 6, 1813, at Richmond, Richmond County, Staten Island, and died August 12, 1846, at McKinley; son of Richard and Ann (Perine) Crocheron, who lived at Richmond, Staten Island, the former of whom was for several years, surrogate of Richmond County; grandson of Edward and Addra (Grison) Perine; cousin of John J. Crocheron, who owned and lived at Elm Bluff on the Alabama River, was never married, raised and equipped a company for service in the C. S. Army, and died during the War of Secession. His ancestors, both paternal and maternal, were French. He came to Alabama in 1836, identified himself with the south, and became a planter. He was a Democrat and an Episcopalian. Married: January 4, 1838, at McKinley, Marengo County, Lucretia King, daughter of Henry and Nancy (Wellborn) King, who lived near Huntsville. Last residence: McKinley, Marengo County.

CROMMELIN, CHARLES, lawyer, was born in January, 1800, at the summer home of his parents at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., died in July, 1857, in Pensacola, Fla., and is buried in Oakwood cemetery, Montgomery; son of Charles and Anne Newell (Cogswell) Crommelin, the former a native of New York city, who removed to Alabama in 1820, locating first at Wetumpka, later going to Montgomery; grandson of Charles and Anne (Sinclair) Crommelin of New York and Saratoga, and of William and Anne (Newell) Cogswell, of Newell's Point, N. Y. He was the fourth Charles in direct line from Charles Crommelin, thirteenth child of Jean Crommelin, born in Chateau d'Armaucourt, St. Quentin's, France, died in New York City, 1739, and is buried in Trinity churchyard with Daniel Crommelin, his uncle. Other lines of ancestry include the Fish, Roosevelt and Fairbanks families of New York. Mr. Crommelin was graduated from King's college, now Columbia university, N. Y., 1818. He was licensed to practice law in Montgomery, September 27, 1833, and entered into partnership with Charles Ball, the firm being Ball and Crommelin. He was an Episcopalian, and member of the Washington national monument society, by whose efforts the Washington monument in the national capital was built. Married: in December, 1830, at Harrogate, near Wetumpka, to Juliana Parthenia, daughter of Isaac and Juliana Parthenia (Brown) Ross (q. v.). Children: 1. Charles, died in childhood; 2. Anna, m. Daniel Robinson; 3. Thomas, d. in early manhood; 4. Eliza Jane, "Jeannie," died young; 5. Isabel, deceased; 6. John G., deceased; 7. Henry, deceased, m. Lucie Greene Metcalf, to whom were born, (1) John G., m. Katherine V. Gunter; (2) Mary C., m. Richard Wood (q. v.); (3) Mrs. C. Reilly, of Andalusia; (4) Charles, deceased; (5) Parthenia. Last residence: Montgomery.

CROMMELIN, MRS. JENNIE, deceased, patriotic worker, and at one time secretary of the Memorial association of Montgomery.

CROMMELIN, JOHN G., public official, was born in 1844, in Montgomery; son of Charles and Julia Parthenia (Ross) Crommelin, who lived in Montgomery County, the former a native of New York, N. Y., born in 1805, who settled in Alabama when he was eighteen years old, the latter a native of Camden, S. C., who moved with her parents to the present county of Montgomery in 1815. He obtained his early education from schools in the city and county of Montgomery, and attended Washington College, now Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. He served in the C. S. Army as a private in the Sixth Alabama cavalry, and was paroled at the close of the war. For several years after the war, he engaged in farming in Montgomery County. He was elected a member of the city council of Montgomery for a term of four years, May, 1889; was elected mayor of the city in May, 1891, and was re-elected in 1893 without opposition. Residence: Montgomery.

CROOK, EMMETT FARROW, public official, was born July 27, 1851, at Alexandria, Calhoun County; son of John Martin and Narmesia (Woodruff) Crook, the former a native of Spartanburg District, S. C., who came to Alabama when a young man, was a planter and lawyer at Alexandria, and a member of the secession convention; grandson of James and Amelia (Owens) Crook, who lived in Spartanburg District, S. C., and in Calhoun County, and of Caleb and Reosannah (Farrow) Crook, of Spartanburg District, S. C., and Calhoun County, the former born in Spartanburg, came to Calhoun County in 1834, whose father was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and was of English ancestry; great-grandson of John and Lucy (Brockman) Owens, jr. Judge Crook is half-brother of James Crook (q. v.) and John M. Crook (q. v.) and a nephew of S. W. Crook (q. v.). He received his education at the Jacksonville Academy, taught by Col. Simpson Fouce and John Lafayette Dodson. When he was seventeen years old, he entered the mercantile business in New York, remaining in that place for two years. He returned to Alexandria, and in 1874, became a merchant there. He continued that occupation, in conjunction with farming, for twelve years, until, in 1886, he was elected judge of the probate court for Calhoun County. By successive re-elections, he filled that office for twenty-six years, resigning March, 1912, because of failing health. He is a Democrat, has taken part in most of the State conventions since 1876, and was chairman of the county conventions of 1882 and 1884. He has been a deacon in the Parker Memorial Baptist church for many years, is a Mason, a Knight of Honor, a Knight of Pythias, an Odd Fellow, an Elk and a Woodman of the World. Married: December 19, 1872, at Gainesville, Sallie Walker, daughter of Whitfield and Mary Elizabeth (Mangrum) Walker, who lived in Newberry District, South Carolina, the former of whom was a member of the South Carolina legislature before the War of Secession, who came to Alabama in 1860, organized the first company of South Carolina soldiers in Newberry District for the C. S. Army, was elected captain of that company, known as the Rhett Guards, served with that command at the first battle of the war in which Fort Sumter fell, resigned that command in order to accept a commission as colonel of an Alabama regiment, and served until the close of the war, remained in Alabama until 1873, moved to Jacksonville, Fla., that year, was elected to the Florida senate, and served as internal revenue collector of Florida under the Cleveland administration. Mrs. Crook's brother, John T. Walker, is the sole survivor of the Confederate war vessel, Alabama. Children: 1. Maud, a graduate of Chapell's Female College, Columbus, Ga., m. W. Hardwick Ruth, Montgomery; 2. Ida, m. Dr. W. F. Brown, Anniston; 3. Dr. Whitfield Walker, m. at Cuthbert, Ga., Nellie Key, Gibsland, La.; 4. John Martin, probate clerk, m. at Anniston, Corinne Harper, Anniston. Residence: Anniston.

CROOK, JAMES, associate railroad commissioner, 1881-85; president of the railroad commission, 1896. Residence: Anniston.

CROOK, JAMES, lawyer, was born October 12, 1841, at Alexandria, Calhoun County; son of John M. and Margaret (Miller) Crook, natives of Spartanburg District, S. C., the former of whom, born in 1810, came to Alabama in 1834, was a lawyer and farmer, and a delegate to the secession convention of 1860; grandson of James and Amelia (Owens) Crook, of Spartanburg District, S. C., who came to Alabama in 1834, the former a representative of his native district in both branches of the South Carolina legislature, and of Samuel Miller, a soldier in the Revolution, who fought at the battle of Cowpens, married a Miss Dean, of South Carolina, and subsequently became sheriff of Spartanburg District; great-grandson of John Miller, and John and Lucy (Brockman) Owens, jr. The Crook family came originally from Wales, settling first in Virginia, and moving from there to South Carolina. The Owens, Deans, and Millers were of Scotch-Irish descent, and were part of the Scotch-Irish Colony in South Carolina. Maj. Crook's four great-grandfathers served in the Revolutionary War, Mr. Crook, John Owens, and Mr. Dean serving through the war, while John Miller was killed by Tories and Indians in 1775. He is a brother of Dr. John Martin Crook (q. v.), a half-brother of Emmett Farrow Crook (q. v.), and a nephew of S. W. Crook (q. v.). Maj. Crook was educated at the Universities of Alabama and Virginia, leaving the latter institution a short time before the end of his last term. He enlisted in the C. S. Army, June, 1861, joining Co. D, Tenth Alabama regiment, as a private; was promoted to first lieutenant in 1862, captain in 1864, and major of cavalry later in that year. Soon after his transfer to the cavalry service, he was captured and imprisoned on Johnson's Island until the close of the war. After peace was established, he returned to Alexandria and during the following year began to study law under Hon. W. H. Forney at Jacksonville. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, and at once entered upon the practice of his profession. In that year, he was made chairman of the Democratic executive committee of his county and served for six years, while at the same time he was a member of the state Democratic executive committee. In 1868, he was a Seymour and Blair elector. The following year, he was the nominee of the Democratic party for the State legislature. He was appointed by Gov. Houston as a trustee of the State University, 1876, and was made by statute a director of the normal school at Jacksonville, 1883. He continued his law practice until 1881, when he was elected railroad commissioner, with Hon. Walter L. Bragg as president and Hon. Charles P. Ball as associate. He held that position for four years, since which time he has been devoting his attention to manufacturing, farming and the breeding of blooded stock. Married: (1) in 1868, Annie E. Ponder, of Montgomery, who died in 1869; (2) in 1871, Miss Reynolds, daughter of Maj. Walker Reynolds, of Talladega County. Children by first marriage: 1. James Flournoy, journalist, b. March 10, 1869, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., LL. B., 1890, first lieutenant and adjutant Third Georgia volunteer infantry, Spanish War, 1898, New York, N. Y.; by second marriage: 2. Hannah; 3. Walker R.; 4. Martin; 5. Eppie, deceased. Residence: Jacksonville.

CROOK, JAMES KING, physician, was born February 25, 1859, at Allenton, Wilcox County, and died April 15, 1908, in New York City; son of James Alexander and Sarah (Stover) Crook. Dr. Crook received his early education in private schools and academies; received the degree of M. D., from the medical department, University of New York, 1880, and the honorary degree of A. M. from the University of Alabama. He was resident physician of the city institutions on Blackwell's and Ward's Islands, 1880-81; attending physician, St. Stephens home for children, 1882-83; assistant attending physician, outdoor patients, Mt. Sinai hospital, 1886-87; attending physician, diseases of heart and lungs, Bellevue hospital, outdoor department, 1884-94; clinic assistant, 1883, instructor, 1884-98, adjunct professor, 1898-1904, department of clinical medicine of Post-graduate medical school; visiting physician, Post-graduate hospital, 1895-1904. He was a Presbyterian; member American medical association; National society for study and prevention of tuberculosis; member and delegate second Pan-American medical congress, 1896; fellow New York academy of medicine; secretary Post-graduate clinic society. Author: "Mineral waters of the United States" 1899, and numerous articles for magazines and medical publications. Associate editor: Chicago clinic, Pure water journal, and Archives of Physiological Therapy. Married: April 20, 1887, to Grace Ada, daughter of John Edmonds and Hannah L. (Adee) Flagler, of New York City. Children: 1. Ann Flagler, m. Eliphalet R. Merry, jr., of Westfield, N. J. Last residence: New York City.

CROOK, JEERE E., physician, graduate of Vanderbilt university, 1883, and commenced the practice that year. Residence: Jacksonville.

CROOK, JOHN MARTIN, physician, was born August 4, 1847, at Alexandria, Calhoun County; son of John Martin and Margaret (Miller) Crook, natives of Spartanburg District, who came to Alabama in 1834; brother of James Crook (q. v.); nephew of S. W. Crook (q. v.). He was reared in Alexandria, received a common school education and at the age of fifteen entered the University of Alabama. He remained a student there until he reached the senior class, when he enlisted as first lieutenant in the C. S. Army. He was with Gen. Johnston in his retreat a short time, and afterward with Hood when he returned to Tennessee, serving until the close of the war as a scout. He returned home, and entered school at Jacksonville, but attended only a short time, being compelled by his father's death to take charge of the plantation. In 1872, he formed a partnership with his half-brother, Judge Emmett Farrow Crook (q. v.), in a mercantile business, and remained a member of the firm until 1878. In that year, he moved to Jacksonville and farmed there four years. He began to study medicine in 1883, and was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, Md., M. D., 1885. Immediately after his graduation, he was appointed resident physician of the Maryland Woman's Hospital, where he remained one year. The next six months, he spent at Bay View, then returned to Jacksonville, where he has since devoted his time to the practice of his profession. He established a drug store at that place in 1891. Dr. Crook served as mayor of Jacksonville, 1880-1883; was a member of the town council six years; is a member of the Calhoun County medical society, of the board of censors of that society, of the State Medical Association, and of the College of Counsellors of the state. He is a Baptist, a Knight of Pythias, and a Knight of Honor. Married: (1) April, 1876, Annie Whatley, who died January, 1878, daughter of Col. George C. and Ann (Crook) Whatley, the former a lawyer, who lost his life while making a charge at the head of his command, part of the Tenth Alabama regiment, at the battle of Sharpsburg; (2) in 1890, at Columbus, Ga., Louise Rankin, daughter of James and Agnes Rankin, both natives of Scotland. Children, by first marriage: 1. Anna Lee, b. January, 1878; by second marriage; 2. Agnes. Residence: Jacksonville.

CROOK, SAMUEL WILES, farmer, was born in 1824, in Spartanburg District, S. C.; son of James and Amelia (Owens) Crook, who lived in Spartanburg District and in Calhoun County, the former a native of Virginia, who was one of the leading politicians of South Carolina, was a Union man and served in the South Carolina legislature at the time the nullification bill was before the house; grandson of James Crook, who married a Miss Williams, fought through the Revolutionary War, and after the war went to South Carolina, and of John and Lucy (Brockman) Owens, jr., the former of whom was a soldier in the Revolution. Mr. Crook was uncle of James Crook (q. v.), Judge Emmett Farrow Crook (q. v.) and Dr. John Martin Crook (q. v.). Mr. Crook came to Alabama with his parents in 1834, and settled on the Tallabatchee battle field, where his father opened up a farm. He received a limited education in an old log school house, and after his father's death in 1849, took charge of the farm. He was a member of the Baptist Church. Married: in 1853, Sallie Chisolm, a native of Georgia, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Whatley) Chisolm, also natives of Georgia. Children: 1. Millie; 2. Dora; 3. James Edward, physician, b. July 7, 1861, was graduated from the University of Alabama, A. B., 1881, from the University of Nashville, M. D., 1882, Jacksonville; 4. Mamie; 5. Samuel Wiles, jr., railroad conductor, m. at Calera, Miss Cook, Gadsden. Last residence: Calhoun County.

CROOM, ISAAC, planter, was born about 1797, in North Carolina, and died in 1866 or 1867, in Alabama. He was connected with the same North Carolina family as Hardy B. Croom, esq., who with his wife and daughters, perished on the wreck of the steamer, Home, off Cape Hatteras in 1837, on the voyage from New York to Charleston. He was graduated at the University of North Carolina, 1815, in a class of eighteen members, among whom were John H. Bryan, congressman; Francis L. Hawkes, lawyer, minister and historian; Willie P. Mangum, senator in congress and president of the senate, and Richard D. Spaight, governor. He was a planter of extensive means, and in 1830, moved with his property to Alabama, settling in Greene County. He continued his planting there, and during his life furnished frequent communications to the press on agricultural subjects. He was for many years president of the State agricultural society, and took a leading part in organizing the state fairs. He represented Greene County in the house during the session of 1844, and was strong in his support of the bill providing for the maintenance of the public faith and the payment of the state debt to the last dollar. He was a Whig in politics, and was president of the State Historical Society, which was organized a few years after the war. Last residence: Greene County.

CROOM, STEPHENS, lawyer, was born December 12, 1839, in Quincy, Gadsden County, Fla., and died July 29, 1884, at Asheville, N. C.; son of William Whitfield and Julia (Stephens) Croom, natives of North Carolina. His parents remained in Florida until he was about twelve years old, up to which time he was taught by his mother. In 1851, he was sent to a private school near West Point, on the Hudson River, taught by Mr. Kingsby, and from there went to a school in New York, where he was prepared for college. He entered the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, in 1856, and was graduated second in his class, 1859. After leaving college, he entered the law office of Hon. Wade Keys at Montgomery to study for the bar, and was admitted to practice in 1861. At the beginning of the War of Secession, he joined a company being raised by Capt. George Field, as a private. The company was assigned to the Eleventh Alabama regiment as Co. B, under the command of Col. Sydenham Moore. At Manassas Junction, Mr. Croom was detailed as clerk to the adjutant general of the brigade, commanded by Col.

John H. Forney. He became Gen. Forney's adjutant general with the rank of captain, when the latter was put in command of the district comprising south Alabama and west Florida; accompanied Gen. Forney to the Mississippi department with the rank of major; and was on his staff at the siege of Vicksburg. After the surrender of Vicksburg, he became a member of Gen. Loring's staff; was with Johnston's army during his retreat in Georgia; and again joined Gen. Forney, then in command of the Trans-Mississippi department, remaining with him until the general and his staff were paroled at Galveston, Tex., May, 1865. After the war, he returned to his father's home in Eutaw, and opened a law office with George Goldthwaite, of Montgomery. He soon moved to Mobile, entered the office of P. & T. A. Hamilton, for three years, then opened an office by himself, and finally formed a partnership with Hon. Thomas H. Herndon. He died while on a visit to Asheville, N. C., in search of health. Married: in 1874, Mary Marshall, daughter of B. F. Marshall, of Mobile, who with one child, a boy, survive him. Last residence: Mobile.

CROSBY, CHESLEY, pioneer settler, was born July 22, 1788, in Chester District, S. C., and died May 22, 1864, at his home between Belleville and Sparta. He removed to Alabama and located in Conecuh County about 1818 where he accumulated considerable wealth. He left many descendants. He was a Baptist. Last residence: Conecuh County.

CROSBY, JOHN, pioneer settler, was born in Chester District, S. C., and died in 1849, near Belleville. He removed to Alabama in 1832 and settled in Conecuh County. He owned several plantations and many slaves. He was a Baptist and one of the early benefactors of Howard college. Last residence near Belleville.

CROSS, LUTHER B., Presbyterian minister, was born in 1857, at Pelham. His father was born in Illinois, lived at Pelham, served with Gen. Morgan during the War of Secession, and was a prisoner at Camp Douglas at the close of the war. His mother was Martha Lindsey, daughter of Elijah Lindsey, who lived near Montevallo, and his paternal grandfather was Z. Cross, who lived near the present village of Pelham. He received his early education in the country schools, and at Gaylesville High School, and for a short time was a student at Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tenn. He became a candidate for the ministry under the care of the Elyton Presbytery in 1880, and was ordained to the ministry in 1884. Since that time, he has been occupied in the pastorate, with the exception of a brief period when failing health caused him to withdraw from the work. He was stated clerk and treasurer of his Presbytery for most of the time during thirty years, and held that position in Birmingham in 1913. He is a Democrat. Married: April 5, 1888, near Catherine, to Lillie Mathews, daughter of William Thomas and Rebecca (Seavens) Mathews, who lived at Canton Bend.

Children: 1. Robert Carroll; 2. Luther Lawrence; 3. Frank Moore; 4. Annie Helen, deceased. Residence: Gastonburg.

CROSS, WILLIAM C., physician, was born July 31, 1856, in Colbert County, son of Dr. William C. and Mary (Harris) Cross, the former of whom was an eminent physician in his day. He was educated at Verulam high school, and at Randolph-Macon, in Virginia; he received an A. M. degree from University of Alabama, 1877, and an M. D. from Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., 1880. He began the practice of his profession in Bibb County, removing in 1887 to Tuscaloosa, where he remained until 1892 when he moved to Newbern, where he still resides and practices. He was for some years surgeon-general of the Alabama State troops, with the rank of colonel; is senior counselor of the Alabama medical association; member of the American microscopical association; represented Tuscaloosa and Bibb Counties in the State senate 1886 and 1887. He is a Mason, Knight of Pythias, and member of the Psi Kappa Psi college fraternity. Married: (1) in 1878, at Tuscaloosa, to Belle T. Prince; (2) in 1894, at Newbern, to Lida Jennings. Residence: Newbern.

CROW, CHARLES, Baptist minister, was for many years the most prominent man among the early Baptists of Alabama. He served at Okmulgee and other places and was the first president of the Alabama Baptist State convention.

CROW, EDWARD CALVIN, lawyer and one of the judges of the Tenth judicial circuit, was born June 18, 1866, at Moulton, Lawrence County; son of Dr. Calvin Austin and Ann Elizabeth (Traxton) Crow, the former a surgeon in Roddy's command and saw service at Shiloh and many other engagements; grandson of Daniel Crow, and wife, a Miss Cox, a native of North Carolina, the former a resident of Alexandria, and of Irish descent, was proprietor of the Crow Iron Works near Anniston, which helped to furnish armor plate for the Confederacy, and of William and Sarah Jane (White) Thaxton, the former from Georgia, at one time a member of the Alabama legislature, the latter a daughter of Zachariah White, a general under Gen. Jackson in the Indian war, who lived near Carrollton at the time of his death. Judge Crow was educated in the schools at Moulton, and graduated in 1886 in academic work, and in 1888 in law, from the University of Alabama; entered upon the practice at Florence in September, 1888, where he remained several years; was registrar in chancery of Lauderdale County, 1895-1903, but resigned and removed to Birmingham. On May 10, 1910 he was appointed one of the judges of the Tenth judicial circuit to fill the unexpired term of Judge A. A. Coleman. On November 8, 1910, he was elected for a term of six years and again in 1916 was re-elected. For a number of years he was a member of the Third Alabama infantry, National guard. He is a Democrat; Methodist; and a Mason. Married: in 1889, Evie, daughter of John Perry and Susan (Bentley) McKee, of Camden. Children: 1. Elizabeth Malton; 2. Lucy; 3. Evelyn. Residence: Birmingham.

CROW, JAMES McCOLLOUGH, business man, was born March 16, 1836, at Florence, Lauderdale County; son of Thomas J. and Elizabeth (Hooks) Crow, the former a native of Adair County, Kentucky., who later removed to Florence, where he resided until his death in 1869, an architect and contractor, and proprietor of Crow's hotel, alderman and Mason; grandson of Thomas and Nancy (Donally) Crow, the former a native of Botetourt County, Va., soldier of the Revolutionary War, surveyor and teacher who settled in Kentucky prior to 1800, and of David and Mary (McCollough) Hooks of Pulaski, Giles County, Tenn.; great-grandson of William and Margaret (Lewis) Crow, and of Hilary and Elizabeth (Canon) Hooks, of North Carolina; great-great-grandson of John and Margaret (Lynn) Lewis; great-great-great-grandson of David Lynn of Loch Lynn, Scotland. Two great-uncles, Andrew and Charles Lewis, were generals in the Continental Army, and another great-uncle, Thomas Lewis, was a member of the house of burgesses, and also a member of the Virginia convention of 1776. Mary Hooks, sister of Hilary, married Col. Ezekiel Slocum of the Continental Army. Andrew Lewis Crow, great-uncle, on the paternal side, married Margaret Montgomery, sister or daughter of Gen. Montgomery, who was killed at Quebec. The Lewis family were Huguenots who fled from France after the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1655 and settled in North Ireland. There were three of the brothers, William, Samuel and John. The Crows, on account of persecution, left Scotland during the reign of James I and II, and settled in northern Ireland, from whence they removed to America. James McCollough Crow was educated in the common schools of Florence, and early entered upon a business career. He was bookkeeper for a mercantile firm in Florence from 1858 to 1861 at which latter date he entered the C. S. Army in which he fought gallantly in Wilcox's brigade from the beginning of hostilities to the surrender at Appomattox. He was first a lieutenant in Co. D., 9th Alabama infantry regiment, and was promoted to the captaincy in the fall of 1861. After the battle of Gettysburg, he was promoted major. After that date, he located in St. Louis, Mo., where he was bookkeeper for a business house for five years. In 1866 he returned to Florence and went into the mercantile business, the firm being Crow and Miller. Later he disposed of his interest and became chief clerk on river steamboats. After four years in this capacity he removed to Sattilo, Tenn., where once more he entered the mercantile business, dealing principally in cotton and white oak timber for foreign shipments. He was assessor of Florence, 1897-1901. He is a Democrat; Christian Scientist; Odd Fellow; Elk; Mason and was a Ku-Klux. Married: April 30, 1867, at Florence, to Mary Josephine, daughter of Washington M. and Mary (Munn) Brandon, who lived near that place, the former a successful planter and manufacturer of cotton goods, the Brandon cotton mills on Cypress Creek, Lauderdale County, being his property. Children: 1. Thomas Wood, civil engineer and contractor, educated at the Florence Wesleyan university, Florence; assisted in building Colbert shoals canal on the Tennessee River, and has done much other work for the government in Colorado and Montana in irrigation canals and also work on the Mississippi River levees; has been connected with railroad work in Arkansas, Tennessee and Louisiana; is now operating phosphate mines in Florida and Tennessee and coal mines in Walker County, by the process of removing the overburden instead of tunnelling, the operation being known as strip mining: m. Louise Allen Finley, reside in Jasper; 2. Mary Elizabeth, m. Jeff H. Johnson, Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., who has charge of the phosphate operation in Tennessee. Last residence: Jasper.

CROWELL, JOHN, Indian agent, first and only territorial delegate to congress and first representative in congress from Alabama, was born about 1785, in Halifax County, N. C., and died January 25, 1846, at Fort Mitchell; son of Edward Crowell, who, with his brother John, emigrated from Woodbridge, N. J., to Halifax County, N. C., where he married Miss Rayburn, aunt to Gov. Rayburn of Georgia. The Crowells are of English descent; the ancestors were originally called Cromwell. The family in this country is descended from two brothers of Oliver Cromwell who fled from England in 1674 to escape from the loyalists, came to America and settled in New Jersey. While on the voyage, fearing that persecution would follow from adherents of Charles II, then on the English throne, they resolved to change the name. This was done, with solemn ceremony, by writing their name on paper, each cutting from the paper the letter "m," and casting it into the sea. The family pedigree on vellum recording those facts was with the family in North Carolina, in an ornamental chest with other valuables, when a party of Tarleton's legion, in 1781, seized the chest and bore it off. The record was again made up from the recollection of the family and is still preserved among them. Mr. Crowell came to Alabama as the agent of the government to the Muscogees in 1815. He had a temporary residence in St. Stephens in 1817, and was elected, March 4, 1818, by the first territorial legislature, a delegate to the Fifteenth congress. In the Sixteenth congress, he was the first member of the lower house of congress from Alabama, being elected by the people in 1819. He served in that body until 1821, then was agent for the Creek Indians, 1821-1836. He was a patron of the turf, and his horses were the favorites on many of the courses of the South. He was never married. Last residence: Fort Mitchell.

CROZAT, ANTOINE, French financier. See Indian chiefs and associated characters.

CRUIKSHANK, GEORGE MARCUS, journalist, was born March 15, 1852, near Lexington, Woodford County Ky.; son of Marcus Henderson and Matilda Washington (Chrisman)

Cruikshank (q. v.). He was educated at Peabody Institute, Talladega, at Southwood Academy, and at Synodical College. After graduation from college, he taught at Talladega for some time, and was elected principal of the blind department of the State institution for the deaf, dumb and blind. He held that position for six years, until the death of his father compelled him to resign and lead a more active life. He began to practice law, and took editorial charge of the "Reporter," succeeding his father, 1881-1883. He was admitted to the bar in 1882. He practiced law in Talladega, 1882-1883, and was appointed general administrator of Talladega County, remaining in that position until 1883, when he moved to Birmingham. He at once bought an interest in the Birmingham "Chronicle," with F. V. Evans, and became its editor. Soon afterward, in partnership with Mr. Evans, he founded the "Evening Chronicle." He continued in that work until 1889; became superintendent of the house folding room, at Washington, D. C., during the Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses, 1891-1895; was assistant postmaster at Birmingham, 1893-1897; and became editor of the Birmingham "Ledger," in 1897. He is a Democrat, a Presbyterian, a Master Mason, a member of the Alabama Press Association, of the Birmingham Press Club, of the Commercial Club of Birmingham, and is president of the Birmingham Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Married: November 17, 1897, at Birmingham, Mary Rachel Smith, daughter of Matthew T. Smith, of Birmingham. Children: 1. Mary George; 2. Marcus. Residence: Birmingham.

CRUIKSHANK, MARCUS HENDERSON, public official, was born in 1826 in Autauga County. His father was a Scotchman who settled in Autauga County in 1822; his mother was the daughter of Lachlan McNeil, an early resident of Autauga County. He read law in Talladega under White & Parsons, and became a member of the firm in 1847. He was register in chancery, and mayor of the town of Talladega, and became editor of the "Reporter," 1855. In 1863, he was elected to the Confederate congress, defeating Col. Curry, and served until the final adjournment of that body in 1865. The same year Gov. Parsons appointed him commissioner for the relief of the destitute of the state, a position which he held three years. Married: Matilda Washington Chrisman, daughter of Col. Joseph H. Crisman, who, at the outbreak of the War of Secession, being too old for active service, went to Missouri and acted as drill master of Price's army; granddaughter of Gen. McDowell of Revolutionary fame. Children: 1. George Marcus (q. v.). Last residence: Talladega.

CRUM, BENJAMIN PERCY, lawyer, was born March 7, 1864, in Lowndes County; son of Benjamin Dulaney and Eleanor Elizabeth (Oliver) Crum, the former of whom was born in Lowndes County, lived in Selma, served as a lieutenant with Bragg's forces, 1861-1864, and participated in all of his important battles; grandson of Samuel P. and Isaphena (Dulaney) Crum, who were of Scotch descent, and came to Lowndes County from South Carolina in the early history of Alabama, and of John and Miranda (Bryan) Oliver, who lived in Lowndes County, the former of whom was a native of Ireland, born in 1800, who, when quite a young man, occupied the chair of mathematics in Dublin University, and came to America about 1830, settling in Lowndes County where he was married in 1832. Mr. Crum received his preparatory education in the common schools of Lowndes and Dallas Counties, and was graduated from the University of Alabama with the degree of LL.B., 1887. He began to practice law with the late George R. Farnham, and continued in that association until 1894, when he moved to Montgomery and formed a partnership with the late Tennent Lomax and Leon Weil. He is a Democrat and a member of the Sigma Nu college fraternity. Married: October 30, 1889, at Greenville, Emma Crumpton, daughter of Boardman Hartwell and Ralphine Caroline (Armstrong) Crumpton (q. v.). Children: 1. Sallie Clyan, m. Chollett Berney Boykin, resides in Montgomery; 2. Eleanor, m. Joseph Harris Washburn, resides in Montgomery; 3. Isabel; 4. Tennent Lomax; 5. Bennie. Residence: Montgomery.

DR. HENRY M. CALDWELL

CRUM, DANIEL FLOYD, planter and legislator, was born October 22, 1854, at Farmersville; son of Samuel Daniel and Eren Ellen (Hays) Crum, natives of Orangeburg, S. C., who removed to Farmersville; grandson of Jacob A. and Mary Crum of Orangeburg District, S. C., and of Green Berry and Sue Anna (Crum) Hays, of Butler County. He was educated at the country schools of Farmersville; has been a merchant's clerk and a merchant, and is now a farmer. From 1875 to 1890 he was county registrar. He was a member of the legislature of 1903 and 1907 from Lowndes County. For ten years he was a member of the Lowndes County Democratic executive committee. In 1907 he was a member of the prohibition campaign committee of Lowndes County. He is a Democrat; and a Methodist. Married: November 21, 1878, at Farmersville, to Nettie Frances, daughter of David Lee and Mary Ingram (Lee) Bozeman, of Lowndes County, the former a captain in the 44th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army. Children: 1. Maggie Irene, m. John Waller Haygood, physician, Evergreen. Residence: Farmersville.

CRUMP, WALTER SCOTT, farmer, merchant, lawyer and legislator, was born August 11, 1873, at Lincoln, Talladega County; son of Dr. Henry Green and Mary Elizabeth (Braden) Crump, the former lived practically all his life in St. Clair County, practicing medicine; grandson of Barton Guess and Bessie Lee (Gibson) Crump, and of Solomon and Sara Elizabeth (Weeds) Braden. He was educated in the common schools of St. Clair County; graduated at Alabama polytechnic institute with the B. Sc. degree and was captain Co. B, corps of cadets, 1893; studied law in the office of John B. Knox, Anniston; admitted to the bar in 1895; is at present in the mercantile, farming, and livestock business. He was a member of the court of county commissioners of St. Clair, and was elected to the legislature from that county, 1918. He is a Democrat and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon college fraternity. Married: June 16, 1908, at Rome, Ga., to Eva Pearl, daughter of Charles Madison and Sara Eugenia (Stubbs) Joyner. Children: 1. Sara Elizabeth; 2. Walter Stubbs; 3. Charles Henry. Residence: Seddon.

CRUMP, WILLIAM N., lieutenant colonel, 49th Alabama infantry regiment, C. S. Army.

CRUMPLER, ALBERT, farmer and Methodist minister, was born November 29, 1808, near Norfolk, Va., and died November 29, 1882, in Talladega County; son of Beasant and Elizabeth (Wright) Crumpler, natives respectively of England and Ireland who came to America soon after the Revolutionary War and settled in Virginia, and removed to Alabama during the early years of the State's history and located in Coosa County. Albert Crumpler was a farmer, tanner, shoemaker, and ordained Methodist minister, but would accept no pay for preaching. He was a member of the Secession convention of Alabama, 1861, and was elected to the legislature which met soon thereafter. He removed to Childersburg, Talladega County, later in life. He was a Mason. Married: in Autauga County, to Maria, daughter of Nicholas and Catherine (Speigner) Zeigler, the former born of German parents in South Carolina, and lived at Washington, or Dutch Bend, Autauga County. Children: 1. Albert, m. Elizabeth Ann Morriss; 2. Catherine E., m. Capt. John Oden; 3. Lewis Henry (q. v.), m. Antoinette Irene Oden. Last residence: Talladega County.

CRUMPLER, LEWIS HENRY, farmer and merchant, was born December 27, 1843, at Nixburg, Coosa County, and died February 14, 1910, at Sylacauga; son of Albert and Maria (Zeigler) Crumpler, (q. v.). He received his early education in the neighborhood schools of his native county and at Wewoka academy. At the outbreak of the War of Secession he was a student at the Southern military academy for which he had been prepared at the Lowndesboro college. He enlisted in the Confederate Army, and was made lieutenant of Company F, Eighth Alabama infantry regiment, of which former Gov. John A. Winston was commander. He resigned the next year to return home and raise a company of which he was elected captain, mustered into Confederate service as Company C, 59th Alabama infantry regiment, which was formerly the consolidation of the second and fourth battalions of Hilliard's legion. He was promoted to the rank of major in 1864 and was in command of his regiment at the close of the war; was wounded at Bean's Station, Chickamauga and Hatch's Run; in 1864 fought with Gracie's brigade in defense of Petersburg, Va.; was in the heat of the fight in Snodgrass Hill, which closed the day of September 20, with a glorious victory, and was commended in the reports of the battle for gallantry in leading his company. After the war he returned to Alabama, located at Sylacauga, and engaged in farming and merchandising. He was a Democrat, Mason and Methodist. Married: December 14, 1865, to Nettie Irene, daughter of Joshua and Charlotte (Funderburg) Oden, of Sylacauga, one of the pioneer citizens of Talladega County, a descendant of Alex Oden, one of three brothers, Joshua and Hezekiah being the other two, who came to America with Lord Baltimore and later fought in the Revolutionary War. Joshua located in Virginia, Hezekiah in Tennessee, and Alex in Maryland, later to remove to Edgefield District, South Carolina. In 1819, he located in Alabama. The Odens were of Scotch-English stock. Children: 1. Lottie, m. George W. Phillips, Sylacauga; 2. John Henry, m. Lillian Roth, Tahlequah, Okla.; 3. Ermine Irene, m. Henry M. Hammett, Fort Meade, Fla.; 4. Al Joshua, m. Charlotte Ray, Jackson, Tenn.; 5. Otis Zeigler, m. Mary Campbell, Jackson, Tenn.; 6. Zulah Bussey, Sylacauga. Last residence: Sylacauga.

CRUMPTON, BOARDMAN HARTWELL, Baptist minister, was born March 19, 1840, at Pleasant Hill, Dallas County, and died October 13, 1909, at Bay Minette; son of John and Mary Ann (Ulmer) Crumpton, who lived at Pleasant Hill; grandson of Peter Ulmer, who came from Germany to America, landing in Buford, S. C., early in the eighteenth century, and emigrated from there to Alabama, where he lived at Pleasant Hill and Selma. He obtained his early education in the country school at Pleasant Hill, and spent two years at Howard College, then located at Marion, Perry County, where he was a student for the Baptist ministry. He was graduated from that institution, June 1859, was ordained that same month, and began his first missionary work in and around Pleasant Hill, Dallas County, at the same time engaging in farming on his widowed mother's plantation. He was chaplain in the C. S. Army during the War of Secession, 1861-1865. After the war, he had official connection with the schools in the towns where he preached. He also farmed on a small scale for a great many years in order to educate his children. He preached in the district in which he was born for fifty years. He was a Democrat, a Mason and a Knight of Pythias.

Married: October 27, 1859, Ralphine Caroline Armstrong, daughter of Dr. Ralph Clay and Cornelia (Thompson) Armstrong, who lived at Montgomery and died during the childhood of their son and daughter. After the death of their parents, Mrs. Crumpton and her brother, Waddy Thompson Armstrong, were adopted by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Talbird, the former of whom was one of the earliest pastors of the First Baptist church of Montgomery and afterwards president of Howard College at Marion, being at that college when the institution was burned. She was a first cousin of H. Clay Armstrong and of Gov. Hugh Thompson of South Carolina. Children: 1. Mary Cornelia, m. Judge P. C. Walker, Hendersonville, N. C.; 2. Martha Elizabeth, m. Adam McCreary, Eagle Lake, Tex.; 3. Margaret Eveline, m. (1) Ernest McCreary, deceased, (2) Samuel Dunn, Evergreen; 4. Emma, m. Benjamin Percy Crum (q. v.); 5. Sallie, m. Homer Hayes, Union Springs; 6. Addie, m. Benjamin Alston Lide, Rockingham, N. C.; 7. Lena, m. Bruce Luttrell, Bay Minette; 8. Rev. Henry Talbird, m. Lucile Pettus, deceased, Huntsville. Last residence: Belleville.

CRUMPTON, WASHINGTON BRYAN, Baptist minister, was born February 24, 1842, at Camden, Wilcox County; son of Henry Tally and Matilda (Bryan) Crumpton, who lived at Cahaba, Camden, and Pine Apple, the former of whom was a native of South Carolina; grandson of Richard Bryan, of South Carolina. The Crumptions came from England originally, and the Bryans from Ireland. Ancestors on both sides fought in the Revolutionary and Indian wars. Rev. Crumpton received his early schooling in Camden, Pine Apple and Pleasant Hill. He enlisted in the Thirty-seventh Mississippi infantry regiment, C. S. Army, and served as sergeant until near the close of war, when he was elected lieutenant. He was wounded at Vicksburg, at Nashville, and in front of Atlanta. He attended Georgetown College, Kentucky, soon after the War of Secession, but was never graduated. He began to preach in 1867, and was ordained to the regular work of the Baptist ministry, January 31, 1870, at Town Creek church, Dallas County, at the request of the Pleasant Hill church. W. C. Cleveland, D. D., and T. M. Bailey, D. D., acted as ordaining counsel. He was a Baptist pastor for many years, and has been corresponding secretary of the Baptist State Missionary Board for twenty-five years. He was an advocate of prohibition for more than thirty-five years, and was president of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League from the time of its organization through 1912. Author: "A Book of Memories, 1842-1920." He is a Democrat. Married: (1) Ellen Cochran, deceased, daughter of Claudius M. and Elenor Cochran, who lived at Cambridge, Dallas County, and had come to that place from South Carolina; (2) Florence I. Johnson, of Louisville, Ky., widow of W. M. Harris, D. D., who was pastor of the First Baptist church of Montgomery at the time of his death. Children: 1. William Cochran, lawyer, who served in the State senate, m. Mamie Cortro, Evergreen; 2. Robert Cochran, physician, m. Claudia Evangeline Crumpton, a teacher at Greensboro, N. C., Chicago; 3. Washington Bryan, jr., teacher, m. Ralphine Walker, Blountsville; 4. Ilda, m. Rev. Charles Vernon Edwards, pastor of the Baptist church at Greenwood, Miss.; 5. Martha, m. Rev. James M. Shelburne, pastor of the Baptist church at Bristol, Va. Residence: Montgomery.

CRUMPTON, WILLIAM COCHRAN, lawyer and legislator, was born March 13, 1873, at Shields Mill, Dallas County; son of Washington Bryan and Ellen (Cochran) Crumpton (q. v.). He received his early education in the country schools and attended Marion military institute, 1889, where he was captain of his company, and Howard College, East Lake, 1890-91. His professional education was acquired at Cornell university in 1896. During the latter year he was admitted to the bar and entered the practice at Evergreen in 1898. He was a nominee to the proposed constitutional convention of 1898; and in 1900 was defeated for the legislature by J. M. Foshee, Independent. In 1911 he was a member of the State senate from the 17th district. He is a Democrat; Baptist, and a Knight of Pythias. Married: June 15, 1908 to Mamie, daughter of Thomas Clay and Azeline E. (Lott) Carter of Meridian, Miss.; granddaughter of W. H. Lott, many years tax collector for Mobile County. The Carters are of the prominent Virginia family of that name. Residence: Evergreen.

CRUSE, MARY ANN, author, was born about 1835, in Virginia, and died in 1910, in Huntsville. She lived in Huntsville and was author of a novel, "Cameron Hall," published in 1866, a story of the War of Secession which brought her into prominence as an author. She also published several Sunday-school books for children, in which her purpose was to strengthen in the minds of her readers a clear understanding of the teachings of the Episcopal faith. "The Little Episcopalian" was first published by her in 1854, and was endorsed by the General Protestant Episcopal Sunday School Union and Church Book Society. That book was followed by its sequel, "Bessie Melville," and in 1888, by "Little Grandpa." Miss Cruse was never married. Last residence: Huntsville.

